The valleys of the Ohio and Little Muskingum mark the course of the most extended areas of level ground. In general these valleys are quite narrow, and they soon lose themselves in surrounding hills, which like walls, hem them in on either side. Especially is this the case in the Narrows just below Newport village, where the course of the Ohio is straightened and narrowly confined by opposing hills in Ohio and West Virginia.

The more level territory in the township is utilized in the cultivation of corn and considerable tobacco, while the hill land with its drier atmosphere and vigorous clay upland soil is most valuable in the production of wheat and other small grain. The hill tops and slopes are in many places still crowned with their native forests of oak, hickory, and some poplar, while the first and second bottoms were covered principally with a growth of black oak.

Fruit raising is a characteristic feature of the farmer in this township, and the cleared hill tops are planted with large orchards of apple and other fruit trees. The proximity of the Ohio affords ample opportunity to get the fruit to a good market.

In general the eastern slopes of the hill ranges are the most productive areas in the uplands. While there are some tracts that are of little value, there is scarcely any land in the township that the patient industry of practical farmers has not caused to produce at least one mite towards the general prosperity. For many years after the first settlements roads were not numerous and considerable difficulty was experienced in traversing the hilly regions. But for many years the system of roads has been good, and ingress and egress is now comparatively an easy matter.

RESEARCHES AMONG THE ROCKS.*

The western part of the township shows little of interest in its geological structure. The hills are composed largely of shales and sandstones. The most remarkable feature in the geology of the township is what is termed the Newell's run uplift, a continuation of the great West Virginia uplift. The line of this uplift was found to be a line of gas springs, oil springs, and of the few wells at that time obtained. The centre of this uplift on the Newport side is at or very near the mouth of Conley's run, a little above the mouth of Newell's run. In the immediate bank of the Ohio we find by far the lowest rocks, geologically considered, in the county, for the bottom of this uplift is, geologically, about one hundred and sixty-five feet lower than the bottom of the Cow run uplift. The sand rock in which the old Newton well on Cow run found its oil, is here seen in the Ohio river bank. This uplift, toward the north, becomes a broad and flattened arch, and gradually dies away.

At the feet of the rocky hills in the courses of the small streams there are many opportunities for quarrying a fair quality of building stone. But the only quarry that has been extensively worked is located on the Ohio river, a short distance above Newport village. Much of the stone used in the construction of the ice harbor at Marietta in 1880 and 1881, was taken from this quarry.

OIL AND COAL.

Says Professor Andrews: "At some points in West Virginia, by a careful study of the 'break,' as it is called, I was enabled to predict, upon the position of the rocks on the surface, where the large oil fissures must almost necessarily be found, and these predictions were abundantly verified. But in Newport the same 'break' or uplift so flattens and fades away that it has been found impossible to make similar predictions, and yet there is but little doubt that there are beneath the surface large quantities of oil."

Wells have been bored in the centre and on either slope, and, although some of them were sunk very deep, no large reservoirs of oil have been discovered, and the oil business in Newport township has consequently never been very profitable. At the time of the outbreak of the oil excitement numerous wells were sunk in the vicinity of Newell's run, and with them was sunk considerable sums of money. To-day in a number of places only the deserted derrick stands as a monument of a dead enterprise. However, there is some oil still produced in Newport township. There are six wells on Northup's run, a tributary of Newell's, which yield the Wideawake oil company about sixty barrels per month. These are the only wells in operation in this township.

On the Ohio, at a point called Petrolia, a little over a mile below the mouth of Newell's run, is an iron oil tank of ten thousand barrels' capacity, which was erected in the winter of 1869-70 by the Cow Run Iron Tank company. The oil from Cow run, in Lawrence township, is carried a distance of five and a half miles by means of a two-inch iron pipe which discharges fifty barrels per hour. This tank is not now used.

The West Virginia Transportation company has wood-en tanks at Petrolia, and is handling the Cow run oil.

Coal has been discovered and mined to some extent in this township, but the seams are thin generally, and mining soon becomes unprofitable. The conditions favorable to the growth and accumulation of the vegetable materials for seams of coal appear not to have existed, although this territory is very near the centre of our great coal basin. At present in the township of Newport there is but one coal mine in operation. This mine is *The above is from Professor E. B. Andrews' Report in the Ohio Geological Survey.

DR. JOSEPH M. McELHINNEY.

Joseph M. McElhinney, the subject of this sketch, of a somewhat eccentric life and character, was born in Artnagunnig, in the parish of Foghanvale, about two miles east of the city of Londonderry, in the north of Ireland, on Good Friday, April 16th. He was the oldest son of Joseph McElhinney. His parental ancestors, being dissenters, went over to Ireland for refuge during the persecution in Scotland. His mother, Mary Miller, whom he describes as a woman of rare merit, was of a family which trace their lineage back several centuries in Scotland and England. His father, wishing to give him a liberal education, had him, at a very early age, placed under the care of Mr. William Wright, a celebrated teacher, of Greenan, in the county of Londonderry, where he received the rudiments of his education. From his infancy he was fond of books, and was soon distinguished for his love of learning. He made such early improvement in literature that, in his seventh year, he was in advance of most children of his age, and attracted the attention of his tutors. In his boyhood he evinced a partiality for the exact sciences in which he excelled, and which engrossed almost his whole time and attention. So great was his passion for the mathematics that to them for some years he applied all the powers of his mind, and his attention was so given to these branches that he was often abstracted from surrounding objects and circumstances. In the solution of mathematical problems he seldom followed the rules of arithmetic, or the ordinary methods of demonstrating geometrical propositions.

In the summer of 1831 he emigrated to the United States, and settled on the Little Muskingum, in the northeast part of Lawrence township, where he lived until 1848. In 1840 his father's death left on him a great part of the care of the family, the youngest of which was but six weeks old. The same year he commenced his diary or daily account of his transactions, and of events worthy of note, which came within the range of his observation; also the weather, extremes of temperature, barometric pressure, etc. No day passed without something noted.

In 1842 he left off farming and commenced teaching, which was his main calling for twelve years. About this time, although he had been reared in a pious family and was particularly careful as to his moral conduct, so that he never in his life so much as used one profane word, yet he began to see his moral depravity, and to realize the deep sinfulness of his heart. And being influenced by an ardent desire to become a Christian, he was brought through the good providence of God to repentance and evidence of regeneration in February, 1843, and united with the Presbyterian church, under the ministry of Rev. J. M. Woodbridge.

On the second of February, 1850, he helped to revive the Newport Lyceum, which had in its possession a fine library. On the seventeenth of June, 1851, he organized the Newport Literary Institute, which he conducted with some degree of success for about three years. In this society he gave a series of lectures on Astronomy in 1851, on Natural Philosophy in 1852, and on Mental Philosophy in 1853.

MRS. DR. J. M. McELHINNEY.

In July, 1844, he invented his "Revolving Calculator," or machinery applied to calculation. This he constructed in two parts; the first part applies to all the different arithmetical calculations, and the second to the problems in trigonometry, including logarithmic sines, tangents, secants, etc.

In December, 1845, he discovered a new method of proving numerical calculations, which he termed "Undecimation," and which he published at St. Clairsville in 1847.

His most laborious performance was that of compiling his "Medical and Surgical Notes," which he did in two large manuscripts from 1860 till 1880, and in which he has made more than twenty-two thousand references to diseases and morbid symptoms.

In his twenty-sixth year he married Miss Arabella R. Hannold, a daughter of Major I. M. Hannold, who was then superintendent of the Washington county infirmary. Their marriage was solemnized by Rev. Levi L. Fay, to whom Dr. McElhinney always felt indebted for the assistance which he rendered him through the use of his library, to which the latter had free access.

Miss Arabella Ross Hannold was born June 6, 1821, near Strattonsville, about a mile from the Clarion river, in what was then Armstrong county, Pennsylvania. She received her education in Marietta, under the care of Professor Lyonel Tenny. She taught in Lawrence and Fearing townships, and in Newport from 1847 till 1849. She was industrious, economical, persevering, and neat as a housewife; but her chief delight was in floriculture, in which she excelled. During the spring and summer her flower garden bloomed with the greatest variety of flowers, and through the winter months her east and south bay-windows might be seen crowded with rare and choice flowers and foliage. She was a member of the Presbyterian church, and warmly advocated the total abstinence reform and opposed the liquor traffic in toto. And she also took an active part in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

In the year 1850, through the medium of the "Journal of Man," Joseph M. McElhinney became acquainted with the editor, Dr. J. R. Buchanan, of Covington, Kentucky, one of nature's noblemen, and through his influence he was induced to undertake the study of medicine systematically. He had the advantage of being already acquainted with the Latin language, and of being a teacher of the elementary branches of medical science—botany, chemistry, anatomy, physiology and neurology. He attended the lectures at the Eclectic Medical college in Cincinnati, and commenced the practice of medicine and surgery in Newport, where he had been teaching. In practice he endeavored to shun the "crux medicorum," and take the course suggested by a sound philosophy and the best authorities, as being the safest. His success in practice was indicated by his case-book, which, while it shows over six hundred cases annually for the first ten years, shows at the same time an average mortality of but one and one-fourth per cent.

In May, 1850, he was initiated a Son of Temperance in Newport division, No. 402, in which he presided as worthy patriarch in 1852. From that time he became an advocate of the temperance reform. He organized the Newport temperance alliance May 17, 1853. The same year he was made secretary of the Washingtonian society, of Newport, a place which he continued to fill for several years. In March, 1869, he joined the Independent Order of Good Templars, and was afterwards made State deputy grand worthy chief templar for Ohio, and became well known as an advocate of total abstinence in opposition to the liquor traffic. In May, 1873, he helped to organize the Newport temperance league. He co-operated with the Prohibition party from its commencement, and was the unsuccessful candidate for the Ohio State senate in 1877, and for congress in the Thirteenth district in 1878.

His sentiment in opposition to the use of tobacco was alike marked, but, as he said: "The time has not yet arrived for us to deal with the tobacco evil; let us first put down the liquor traffic."

When the rebellion broke out, owing to the distracted state of the nation, his medical practice was to a degree interrupted. In May, 1861 he was elected first lieutenant of the Newport company of volunteer militia, under Captain Christopher Greene. This was the first volunteer company ever raised in Newport township. In September, 1862, he was elected captain of the Newport home guards, a company of one hundred volunteers, organized for home protection. In August, 1863, he was elected captain of company H, of the forty-sixth battalion of Ohio volunteer militia, a company raised in Newport for State service. May 2, 1864, his company was called into the United States service, and took its place as company G, of the One Hundred and Forty-eighth regiment, Ohio infantry volunteer. The regiment was discharged on the fourteenth of September of the same year. During this short term of four and one-half months, Captain McElHinney served in the double character of captain and assistant surgeon of the regiment.

In 1866 he was made a Mason in American Union lodge No. 1, A. F. and A. M., and in 1867 was exalted to the degree of Royal Arch Mason in American Union chapter No. 1, at Marietta, Ohio.

The subject of this sketch, like every man of positive character, had some peculiarities or ways of his own. In his childhood he was habitually silent, and when he spoke his language was laconic. In his boyhood and youth his hours of study were from seven o'clock P. M. until one o'clock A. M., but at the age of thirty years he was threatened with paralysis of the eyelids as a result of these late hours, and was compelled to give up this habit. His most prominent trait of character, morally, was that of firmness, which he sometimes carried to the extent of stubbornness. He was scrupulously exact in his dealings, and acted up to his obligations, whether expressed or implied. He was seldom or never known to shed tears under any circumstances, and was habitually cheerful. His favorite amusements were those of sailing and hunting. As a teacher he avoided all appearance of partiality and labored hard to be successful; and knowing as he did that no teacher could please everyone, he determined to have his own method of teaching and so be sure that one was pleased. During the war his motto was: "The United States against the World." In the church his motto was: "Do right and be happy." In medicinal practice it was: "One nurse is worth two doctors." But in respect to the doubtful occurrences of every day life he was sure to remark: "We can tell better afterwards."

A prominent element in his character was the love of children, which he cultivated on all occasions. While a teacher the younger scholars would each try to be nearest to the teacher; and when in his office the smaller children of the town would often visit him. This led him into Sabbath-school work, for which he had a preference. In his boyhood he used often to walk down to the old Caywood church to attend Sabbath-school, a distance of nine miles. He had no devotion or adherence to any sect, but had an aversion to sectarianism either in religion or medicine; and so little interest had he in the politics of the country that he never voted until over forty years old, and the safety of the Republic seemed to demand it. His aversion to litigation and strife was no less marked, and the only suit he ever had in court was the notorious case of Amos Dye vs. Joseph M. McElHinney. He was charged with having slanderously circulated an old report that the former had murdered a pedler. Against this claim both conscience and justice required his efforts to defend himself; and after a contest of over two years—1867 to 1869—the court decided that his defence was true, and that he was justified in what he had said.

Unlike as he was to almost everybody else, he often claimed to be decidedly an average man, being, as he said, "neither very big nor very little, neither very old nor very young, neither very rich nor very poor, and neither very good nor yet desperately bad."

The following is a genealogical account of the McElHinney family—as prepared by Dr. McElHinney himself:

MCELHINNEY FAMILY.

FIRST GENERATION.

(1) William McElHinney resided in the county of Londonderry in the north of Ireland, where he died about the year 1762. His first wife was a—

(2) Miss Marshall. His second wife was—

(3) Miss Agnes Melevary. He had two brothers—

(4) Samuel McElHinney, a resident of the same county, and—

(5) John McElHinney, " " "

SECOND GENERATION.

Children of William McElHinney by his first wife (Nos. 1 and 2).

(10) Joseph McElHinney, farmer, near Londonderry. After the death of his father he supported the widow and the younger children.

(12) Mary McElHinney married a—

(13) Mr. Purling near the city of Londonderry.

Children of William McElHinney by his second wife (1 and 3)—

(15) Jane McElHinney married—

(16) George O'Dare, who resided near Londonderry.

(17) William McElHinney, jr., emigrated to England while a young man.

(20) John McElHinney, farmer, was born about the year 1754. He lived near the Point of Colmore below the city of Londonderry until after the birth of his youngest child. He removed to Artnagunnig, a village about two miles east of Londonderry, where he resided until 1832, when he emigrated to the United States, and settled on the Little Muskingum near the upper corner of Lawrence township, where he died in January, 1834. He was a member of the Covenantner church. He married—

(21) Nancy Hettrick, of the county of Londonderry, Ireland. She was a member of the same church with her husband. She was remarkable for neatness of person and propriety of speech. She died in Artnagunnig about the year 1825 of pulmonary consumption.

(22) Samuel McElHinney, the youngest of the family, emigrated to India, where he married and had a large family.

THIRD GENERATION.

Children of Mary McElHinney and Mr. Purling (12 and 13)—

(30) William Purling, born in Londonderry.

Children of John McElHinney and wife (20 and 21)—

(76) John McElHinney, jr., a linen weaver; born at the Point of Colmore about the year 1775. He was a young man of amiable character, and had a habit of giving good precepts to those about him. He died at Artnagunnig at the age of twenty-three years.

(77) Anne McElHinney was born at Colmore Point about 1778; came with her father to the United States in 1832. After the death of her father she made her home with the family of her brother Joseph. She died of paralysis October 19, 1870, at the residence of her niece, Mrs. M. M. Chambers, in Marietta, where she had made her home for several years. She was a member of the Presbyterian church, and remarkably gentle in her disposition. Dr. McElHinney remarks of her that he felt greatly indebted to her for her affection and kindness to him in his childhood.

(78) Joseph McElHinney, farmer, was born at the Point of Colmore, near the city of Londonderry, about the year 1780. He was educated at Cloghhole, where he continued at school until about thirty years of age; and, in the old, slow methods of teaching and learning, he became what was considered a good scholar, especially in mathematical and philosophical science. He married at the age of forty years. In the spring of 1831 he emigrated to the United States, had a long, rough voyage of about fifty days on the ocean, came over the Alleghany mountains by wagon, and settled on the Little Muskingum, in the upper corner of Lawrence township, in this county, at what was called the "Long Narrows," where he purchased two hundred acres of land. He died September 5, 1840. When in Ireland he was a member of the Covenantner church, but when he came to Ohio he joined the Presbyterian church for convenience of attendance. His wife—

(79) Mary Miller, daughter of John Miller, was born in Middle Edenreagh, in Muff Glen, near Londonderry, May 12, 1798. She was the youngest of nine children. Her mother was Gressy Withro, a daughter of Alexander Withro, of the "Back hill" near Londonderry. Mary Miller was a member of the Presbyterian church until her sixtieth year, when she united with the New Jerusalem church. Her children describe her as a woman of rare merit, and with a keen, penetrating mind. Mrs. McElhinney was passionately fond of reading and a fine Bible scholar. She, with her husband, taught the first Sabbath-school ever organized on the Little Muskingum. She died October 8, 1874, at the residence of her oldest daughter, Mrs. M. M. Chambers, in Marietta.

FOURTH GENERATION.

Children of Joseph McElhinney and wife (78 and 79)—

(98) Matilda McElhinney was born near Londonderry, Ireland, in July, 1821, and in her tenth year came with her parents to Lawrence township, in this county. At the age of sixteen years she married—

(99) Joseph Chambers, a farmer and carpenter of Lower Lawrence, in this county. In 1850 she induced her husband to remove to Harmar, and afterward to Marietta, for the purpose of educating their children.

(100) Joseph M. McElhinney, M. D., physician and surgeon, Newport, Washington county, Ohio, was born near Londonderry, in the north of Ireland, on Good Friday, April 16th; emigrated to the United States in 1831; received his education first in Londonderry, and afterwards in Pittsburgh, Marietta, St. Clairsville, and Cincinnati; taught in this county for twelve years, and then went into the practice of medicine and surgery. In 1849 he married—

(101) Arabella R. Hannold, a daughter of Major I. W. Hannold, who was the superintendent of the Washington county infirmary. Miss Arabella R. Hannold was born near Strattonsville, Clarion county, Pennsylvania, June 6, 1821; received her education in Allegheny City, Newport, Ohio, and Marietta, Ohio; taught school from 1847 to 1849. She was noted for her success in floriculture.

(102) John A. McElhinney was born near Londonderry, Ireland, in June, 1827; died of croup in 1829, and was buried at Enoch Kirk, a very ancient ruin, near Londonderry.

(103) Nancy J. McElhinney, teacher, was born near Londonderry, December 31, 1829; came with her parents to the United States; received her education in Marietta, under the care of Professor L. Tenny; married in 1849 to (104) Rev. George V. Fry, a Congregational minister. In 1863 they removed from this county to Richmond county. In 1867 she became insane and was placed in the Central Ohio lunatic asylum, at Columbus.

(105) Catharine A. McElhinney, was born February 27, 1832, and died in October, the same year.

(106) David W. McElhinney, teacher, merchant, brickmaker, and builder, was born in Lawrence township, Washington county, Ohio, January 9, 1834; was educated in Allegheny City college; removed to Nebraska City in 1869, and afterwards to Hastings, Nebraska. In 1873 and 1874 he was grand master of the order of Odd Fellows, of the State of Nebraska. He married (107) Miss Harriet Barnes of Allegheny City.

(108) Alexander M. McElhinney, teacher, photographer, merchant, land-dealer, and miner, postmaster in Silver Cliff, Colorado, was born in Lawrence township, February 23, 1838; removed to Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, about 1858, and to Lincoln City, Nebraska, in 1868. Afterwards he removed to Silver Cliff, Colorado; married (109) Miss Lizzie Ellis, only daughter of Dr. Ellis, of Greenupsburgh, Kentucky.

(110) Catharine G. McElhinney, teacher, was born in Lawrence township, July 25, 1840. She was educated in Allegheny City college, where in 1860 she graduated with the highest honors of her class. She taught in the grammar school, in Columbus, until 1869, when she married (111) Samuel Adalbert Squier, a merchant, of Chicago. About the year 1879 he removed to Silver Cliff, Colorado, and was made mayor of the city in 1880.

FIFTH GENERATION.

Children of Matilda McElhinney and Joseph Chambers (No. 98 and 99)—

(132) Lucy A. Chambers, teacher, born in Lawrence township, July 19, 1838, educated in Marietta and Harmar Union schools in which latter she became a teacher in 1856. She died of typhoid remittent fever, February 23, 1858.

(133) Mary E. Chambers, teacher, born in Lawrence township, May 13, 1840. In 1867 she married (134) Walter Brown, a farmer, of Wade, Ohio.

(135) Nancy M. Chambers, teacher, born in Lawrence township, September 28, 1842, educated in Harmar and Marietta. At the age of sixteen years she married (136) James Steele, miller and farmer, Smith-ton, West Virginia, who had been divorced from his first wife (137) who was a daughter of Henry Harper, of Tigert's valley, West Virginia.

(138) Dr. Joseph M. Chambers, dentist, Marietta, Ohio, born in Lawrence township, July 15, 1847, received his education in Marietta and Cincinnati.

Children of Dr. Joseph M. McElhinney and wife (100 and 101)—

(140) Joseph McElhinney, M. D., physician and surgeon, Hills, Ohio, born in Newport, Ohio, October 13, 1850; educated in Newport, Marietta and Cincinnati; married September 18, 1877, to (141) Mary Elizabeth Greene, a daughter of Christopher Greene, of Newport, Ohio.

(142) Adella A. McElhinney, artist, born in Newport, Ohio, May 16, 1852; received her education in Newport, Marietta and Delaware, Ohio, and in Steubenville, Ohio; graduated in the Ohio Wesleyan female college in 1873.

(144) Francois B. McElhinney, M. D., physician and surgeon, Columbus, Ohio, born in Newport, September 18, 1853; educated in Newport, Delaware and Cincinnati, Ohio. On the first of October, 1878, he married Sophie F. Jones, daughter of Edward A. Jones, a merchant, of Newport, Ohio.

Children of Nancy J. McElhinney and Rev. G. V. Fry (103 and 104)—

(150) George Vincent Fry, jr., merchant, Allegheny City, Pennsylvania, born October 17, 1850; educated in Marietta. In 1872 he married (151) Josephine Wintrobe, of Lexington, Ohio.

(152) James Melanchthon Fry, died in infancy.

(153) Eva H. Fry, born in Salem, in this county, February 22, 1854; educated in Lexington, Ohio; married in April, 1875, to (154) William A. Sackett, farmer, Ruggles, Ohio.

(155) Clara C. Fry, born in Salem, in this county, April 20, 1856; educated in Lexington, Ohio; married in January, 1876, to (156) William W. Beach, teacher, Ruggles, Ohio.

Children of David McElhinney and wife (106 and 107)—

(160) Bessie B. McElhinney, born in Uniontown, Pennsylvania, March 9, 1863.

(162) Frank Alex. McElhinney, born in Wellsburgh, West Virginia, November 25, 1865.

Children of Alex. M. McElhinney and wife (108 and 109)—

(170) Lucy E. McElhinney, born August 27, 1871.

(172) Samuel A. McElhinney, born December, 1873.

Children of Kate McElhinney and S. A. Squier (110 and 111)—

(180) Edward A. Squier, born in Chicago, May 26, 1870.

(182) James M. Squier, born in Chicago, January 17, 1872.

(184) Marshall M. Squier, born in Chicago, February 23, 1874.

(186) Esther Squier, born in Silver Cliff, Colorado, December 31, 1879; died of hydrocephalus, September 8, 1880.

located in section five on the land of George W. Smith. It produces a fair supply of good coal.

ESTABLISHMENT.

At the regular meeting of the court of quarter sessions in December, 1798, it was deemed expedient to organize a distinct township in the eastern part of the county. Accordingly, all that portion of Washington county lying east of the western boundary of the Seventh range was set apart and named Newport township. The portion of the county included within this new township was bounded on the north by what are now portions of Noble and Monroe counties, on the east and south by the Ohio river, and on the west by Marietta and Salem townships.

A special study of the several townships of which Newport is the common parent will show that this eastern third of the county is no mean territory.

Increased population and growing prosperity called for the gradual partition of this huge township, which, in time, would have become unwieldy. Communities springing up here and there justified independent organizations for each. By successive acts of the county commissioners, from year to year, this work was effected. Six townships were erected in this eastern territory, leaving Newport as their corner-stone. The records show that in 1802 the extreme eastern part of Newport township was made separate and named Grand View. By subsequent partition, in 1815, the township of Lawrence reduced the northern boundary of Newport. Ludlow, in 1819, was located diagonally northeast of Lawrence, and in 1832 Liberty was made the western boundary of Ludlow. In 1840 the new township of Independence bounded Lawrence on the east, and Jolly crowned the head of Grand View. Five of the six townships thus established have survived, and still exist as separate organizations. In 1840, however, it was ordered by the county commissioners that sections seventeen, eighteen, twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-eight, twenty-nine, and thirty-four, in town two, range seven, Lawrence township, be attached to Newport township. Jolly township was short-lived, a part being annexed to Monroe county in 1851, and the remainder becoming a part of Grand View in 1859.

Thus, little by little, has the territory of Newport township been encroached upon, not by the slow advance of decay, but by the quick and vigorous step of progressive enterprise. The cutting off of the several branches has but quickened the life of the parent vine whence they sprang.

ORGANIZATION.

The exact time and locality of the first election of officers for the township of Newport cannot be ascertained. Settlement had scarcely begun when, in 1798, Newport was established. It is believed, however, that the first election was held in the immediate vicinity of the present village of Newport. John Greene, sr., was the first justice of the peace, and there is a record that in 1805 he made Benjamin and Sarah Raser happy by tying the matrimonial knot. Luther Dana was a justice as early as 1806. William Nixon served in the same ca-capacity in 1810, and was followed by Jeremiah Dare. William Dana and Ebenezer Battelle, sr., were soon afterwards elected justices, the former in 1813, and the latter in 1816. William Knowlton was clerk in 1810, and was soon followed by Ebenezer Battelle, sr.

For several years prior to 1820 the Newport elections were regularly held at a point just below the present residence of J. B. Greene, a short distance below Newport village. It is to be regretted that the records of all official proceedings prior to 1834 have not been preserved. About 1830 Joseph Barker and Thomas Ferguson served as justices. For years the elections have been held at Newell's Run. The town hall is located in section nine, on the Newport pike, a short distance west of Newell's Run post office.

The following is a list of officers elected at successive spring elections from 1834 to 1880, as taken from the earliest records extant:

TRUSTEES.

1834, Oliver Woodson, jr., John Rowland, Thomas Ferguson; 1835, Clark Middleswart, Ezra O'Neal, Thomas Ferguson; 1836, Ira Hill, John Rowland, Thomas Ferguson; 1837, Joseph Barker, jr., Robert Rowland, Peregrine Dana; 1838, John Chambers, Jacob Middleswart, S. Harvey; 1839, Richard Greene, William A. Bosworth, Clark Middleswart; 1840, James Ferguson, John Chambers, Jacob Middleswart; 1841, James Ferguson, Joseph Barker, John Hill; 1842, Clark Middleswart, Charles Dana, John Hill; 1843, Peter Snyder, Charles Dana, Ira Hill; 1844, George Greenwood, Reuben McVay, Ira Hill; 1845, Robert Rowland, Reuben McVay, Richard Greene; 1846, George Greenwood, Benjamin Rightmire, Richard Greene; 1847, George Greenwood; Benjamin Rightmire, Jacob Middleswart; 1848, Henry Obleness, Benjamin Rightmire, William Lyons, 1849, A. B. Battelle, C. Greene, F. O'Neal; 1850, A. B. Battelle, Peter Snyder, E. O'Neal; 1851, James Ferguson, John Hill, E. O'Neal; 1852, Joseph Barker, P. F. Dana, Reuben McVay; 1853, Benjamin Rightmire, R. Rowland, Reuben McVay; 1854, James Mackey, R. Rowland, James Ferguson; 1855, James Mackey, Joseph Bell, James Ferguson; 1856, R. Rowland, Charles McVay, James Ferguson; 1857, R. Rowland, John Hill, —; 1858, R. Rowland, John Hill, Evan Scott; 1859, E. O'Neal, John Hill, Evan Scott; 1860, Henry Sheets, John Hill, Evan Scott; 1861, Benjamin Rightmire, John Hill, Aaron Edgell; 1862, Benjamin Rightmire, John Hill, Evan Scott; 1863, B. Rightmire, Isaac Adkins, James Sankey; 1864, B. Rightmire, Isaac Adkins, James Sankey; 1865, B. Rightmire, Jesse Whiston, T. Ferguson; 1866, William Hill, Jesse Whiston, T. Ferguson; 1867, William Hill, Jesse Whiston, T. Ferguson; 1868, William Hill, J. W. Collett, Henry Sheets; 1869, William Hill, Jesse Whiston, —; 1870, John Reynolds, Jesse Whiston, C. McVay; 1871, James Hanna, Jacob Cooper, C. McVay; 1872, Wesley Brown, William Hill, C. McVay; 1873, Lewis Phillips, William Hill, John Reynolds, jr.; 1874, Lewis Phillips, William Hill, B. Ferguson; 1875, Lewis Phillips, S. A. Whiston, B. Ferguson; 1876, Lewis Phillips, S. A. Whiston, B. Ferguson; 1877, Lewis Phillips, S. A. Whiston, A. B. Little; 1878, Lewis Phillips, P. G. Hays, A. B. Little; 1879, Lewis Phillips, William Hill, A. B. Little; 1880, Lewis Phillips, William Hill, A. B. Little.

CLERKS.

1834-5, Edwin West; 1836, Charles Dana; 1837, J. G. Brown; 1838-9, Joseph Barker, jr.; 1840-5, E. Battelle, jr.; 1845-6, Christopher Greene; 1847, E. Battelle, jr.; 1848, Isaac Adkins; 1849, George Greenwood; 1850, J. B. Brown; 1851, Anthony Reed; 1852, G. Greenwood; 1853, S. Amlin; 1854, J. G. Brown; 1855, C. Greene; 1856, A. Leonard; 1857, Thomas O'Neal; 1858-70, Samuel Amlin; 1871, J. W. Ker; 1872, Dr. C. T. Gale; 1873, J. M. Willis; 1874-79, G. W. Haight; 1880, Fred Koerner.

TREASURERS.

1834-49, John Greene; 1850, A. B. Battelle; 1851, E. O'Neal; 1852-4, L. Edgerton; 1855-6, Charles Dana; 1857, Robert Rowland; 1858-61, E. Battelle, jr.; 1862-4, James Ferguson; 1865, John Reynolds, jr.; 1866, James Ferguson; 1867-72, J. K. Burge; 1873, George Cassidy; 1874-8, P. G. Hays; 1879-80, J. W. Ker.

The present justices of the peace are: Monroe Greenwood, Alvin Adkins, and J. T. Hill, the two former residing at Newport, and the latter near Hills post office.

Out of a population of two thousand five hundred and thirty-five, there were, at the Presidential election in 1880, five hundred and twenty-four electors in the township.

EARLY SETTLERS.

The population of Newport township has from the earliest times increased very rapidly. Taking a brief review of the last forty years it is discovered that in 1880 the population was 2,535; in 1870, it was 2,002; in 1860, 1,804 were enumerated; and in 1840, after Independence and Jolly had been made separate townships, the township of Newport counted one thousand six hundred and seventy-eight citizens. The ratio of growth prior to 1840 is much larger, and constantly increases towards the beginning of the century, at which early time even, a community was established in the township. A community to grow so rapidly must have a healthy animus, and it is surprising to learn by actual research that the pioneers were men who possessed great strength of character as well as strength of body. With few exceptions the early settlers came to stay, and their children are now moving in the places which only their death made vacant. In giving the history of the settlement of Newport township, let it be understood that it is a history of the settlement of the territory of the township as it now stands.

No permanent settlement was made prior to 1798, although the actual settlers found several squatters ahead of them.

William Tison, Neal Cortner, John Cotton, and David Stokely, once lived in what was afterwards known as the Upper settlement, in the vicinity of the present village of Newport. Here, too, had Joseph Luckey erected a little cabin. All of these men soon disappeared from the neighborhood, and gave way to the permanent settlers, the real pioneers of the township.

It will appear that there were three principal points or centres of settlement, around which as many early communities clustered, viz: the Upper settlement, near Newport; the Lower settlement, around Lower Newport; and the Hill settlement in the northwest corner of the township. Gradually the intermediate spaces have been filled with inhabitants.

The Danas and the Greenes share the honor of having made the first permanent settlement in Newport township. Both came in the same year, 1798, and about the same time in the year. They owned most of the bottom land north of the river from Newport, and much of it is still in the possession of the two families.

William and Luther Dana secured a large tract of land, and erected thereon log houses. The brothers fell vigorously to work in an effort to make for themselves and families a comfortable and pleasant home. The work was arduous, and required patience. The trees had to be felled, and the brush cleared away before a crop could be raised. They were far from neighbors, and in the midst of dense forests full of dangers. But they did not grow faint-hearted, and they succeeded in the accomplishment of their work. The brothers were sons of Captain William Dana, a Revolutionary soldier, who, in 1789, settled at Belpre, where he died in 1809. At the edict of Nantes the family fled to England, whence Richard Dana emigrated to the United States, and settled in the vicinity of Boston. Captain Dana, his great grandson, married Mary Bancroft, by whom he had eight sons and three daughters. William Dana who built his cabin near the present site of Milltown on Dana's run, was a man of sterling worth and uncommon enterprise. He built several manufactories, prominent among which was his flouring mill at Milltown. He was a man of public enterprise, and one of the strongest supporters of the church. He was twice married, first to Polly Foster, and after her death, to Maria Taylor, the widow of Benjamin Guiteau. By his first wife he had five children; Betsey married Charles Haskell, who was drowned near Newport, and afterwards she married Dr. John McCracken, of Pittsburgh; Fannie married Rev. Israel Archibald, of the Methodist Episcopal church; Pamela was never married; Samuel married Elizabeth Thornily; Rev. Charles, a Methodist Episcopal preacher, who afterwards became insane, married Eunice Churchill. By his second wife William Dana had three children: Polly is the wife of Rev. M. Dustin, of the Methodist Episcopal church; Grace married Thomas Ewart, of Marietta, and Dorcas was the wife of Melvina Clark, of Marietta. None of the children are now living in the township. The two sons of Charles Dana reside at Milltown. William Dana died in 1851, aged seventy-six years.

Luther Dana entered land in section twenty-eight, and built his house on that part of the farm now known as the Adkins place, just north of Newport village. He was born in Massachusetts in 1773, and had all of the good qualities of the New Englander. He made one of the first clearings in the settlement. He came to Newport township from Belpre, where he had married Grace Stone. They had five children, four of whom arrived at years of maturity. It is noticeable that the only son became a minister of the Gospel while the daughters became the wives of ministers. Lucy married Rev. Samuel Browning; Alfred married Ann Pratt, and was an earnest and effective Baptist minister; Susan became the wife of Rev. Joseph A. Waterman, a preacher and a doctor; Maria married Rev. Peter McGowan, a Methodist Episcopal preacher. Luther Dana did not live many years to enjoy the home that he had worked so hard to establish. He died in 1813, aged forty years. His family is not now represented in this township.

John Greene, sr., and members of his family came to Newport township in 1798, the year of the first settlements. He built his log house on the farm now occupied by William C. Greenwood near the present village of Newport. He, from the first, was a leading and influential citizen as were also his sons who settled near him. He early became Squire Greene, and in this capacity was the arbiter of many a dispute.

John and Mary Greene had a family of ten children, all of whom were born in Rhode Island, and all of whom came to this county. The first John Greene came from Salisbury, England, to Massachusetts, in 1635, and went with Roger Williams to Rhode Island, becoming the ancestor of a numerous progeny. His son Thomas and his descendants continued to reside in "Stone Castle" from 1660 to 1795, when John Greene made preparations to remove to the far famed territory of the Northwest. In 1796 the family arrived at Belpre, and in 1798, as above narrated, came to this township. The children all lived to years of maturity, and the family is by nature of long life. They are all deceased. Phoebe Greene married Major Jonathan Haskell, of Marietta. Daniel, the sea captain, built the first brick house in Newport township, and resided in Marietta. Eliza became Mrs. Pilcher, of Athens county. Mary married Ebenezer Battelle, jr., who settled in Newport. Ruth, the seventh child, married James Whitney, of Harmar. The next daughter was Sarah. Caleb, Philip, John and Richard settled in the township.

Caleb Greene married Catharine McMasters, and Philip married Martha Brooks. Both lived for a while in the southwestern part of the township, on the farm now owned by Henry Sheets. Caleb removed to Union county, and Philip, who became a Methodist Episcopal preacher, worked in eastern Ohio and West Virginia, in which latter State he died.

John Greene, jr., married Mary Hill and settled above the present village of Newport, on the place now occupied by their son, Rufus H. Greene. He was very active in every early enterprise, and took a very prominent place in the community. He became the father of ten children—nine sons and one daughter—viz.: Christopher, William H., John, Daniel, Sarah, Charles, Rufus H., Richard, and Luther. One child died in infancy. Of these, Christopher, Charles, Rufus, and Sarah settled in this township, and are still living, with the exception of Sarah, who became the wife of P. F. Dana and died in 1857. Christopher resides in Newport village. Rufus H. married Eleanor Echols, by whom he has four children.

Richard Greene, a brother of John Greene, jr., settled about a mile below Newport village soon after the settlement of his brother. The home place is now occupied by his son, Hon. James B. Greene. His first wife, Rebecca Lawton, died in 1831. In that same year he married Harriet Brown, who was born in Waterford township in 1798, and died in 1877, surviving her husband four years, the latter dying in 1873, at the advanced age of ninety years. His son, James B. Greene, married Melissa Wood, who died in 1860. He afterwards married Mary Adkins. He has eight children. In the winter of 1866-7 he was a member of the general assembly of Ohio.

Prior to the year 1800 George, the eldest son of William Templeton, of "Burnt Cabins," Pennsylvania, emigrated to Ohio and settled at the mouth of Eight-mile run, in the northwest part of Newport township. From thence he removed to the mouth of Newell's run, or on to the island opposite, and in 1825 moved to Lawrence township where he died in 1850. He is described as a tall, sedate man, who was never known to laugh, and yet no man was more sociable. He was a prominent man in Lawrence township in which his children all settled.

Probably the next family that settled in Newport township was that of Joseph and Grace Holden, who came from Pennsylvania in 1800, and located on the present site of Newport. Their house, which was of logs, was erected on the lot in the present village upon which Frank Greenwood's residence now stands. Mr. Holden's daughter, Grace, married Thomas Ferguson of Newport township.

David McKibben came from Pennsylvania to Ohio in 1800, and settled in Newport township, near the mouth of Eight-mile run. He lived on this place until his death. He married for his first wife Elizabeth, daughter of Judge Sharp, of Lawrence township, and after her death he was married to Hulda Johnson. He was the father of eleven children, none of whom reside in Newport township.

The father of James Nichols settled near Newport in 1800.

The next settlement was made in the northwestern corner of the township on the Little Muskingum, when, in 1801, William Hill, sr., emigrated from Pennsylvania to this county and township, and entered land in section thirty-six, on the east bank of the Muskingum. He built the first house in the neighborhood which is now known by his name. He was the son of John Hill, a native of Ireland. He married first Rhoda Stephenson, and after her death married Sarah Twiggs, who died in 1833. By his first wife he had eight children, viz.: John, who married Martha Richey and lived in Newport; Mary, wife of John Greene, sr., Elizabeth, married Jasher Taylor, of Marietta; James, died aged eighteen; Margaret married Reuben McVay, who lived near by; Sarah, died aged twenty-two; William Hill, jr., married Sarah Amlen. He was born near Pittsburgh in 1800, while his parents were detained on their journey to Ohio. He was a prominent man in Newport township, where he resided until his death, which occurred in 1853. He had twelve children. John T., a justice of the peace at Hills post office, married Cynthia Carver. Jonathan A. married Lucinda Reckard. William married Mary Ann Caywood, and resides near the old homestead. Sarah married William Caywood, living just beyond the line in Lawrence township. Charles became a Presbyterian minister; and Maria married B. F. Twiggs, living on the homestead farm, where Mrs. Hill, sr., still resides.

Thomas Ferguson was born in Loudoun county, Virginia, and in 1801 emigrated from Washington county, Pennsylvania. He settled in Newport township, about a mile and a half above the village, on the Ohio river just below what is known as Ferguson's landing. By his wife, Grace Holden, he had thirteen children, ten of whom became men and women, and seven of whom are still living, four being in this township, and three in Independence township. Lucy married Jeremiah and Mary married Ira Bosworth. Basil and James live near Ferguson's landing.

Colonel Ebenezer Battelle, and his son, Captain Ebenezer Battelle came to the upper settlement in 1802, locating on the land on which Captain Battelle afterwards laid out the village of Newport. The ground was soon cleared for the erection of the family residence, which is still standing—the oldest if not the first house in the village. It was built two stories high, of hewed logs, and at that early day was considered quite a palatial residence. Colonel Battelle died here in 1815, and his son continued to hold the old house, which was afterwards the property of his son, also named Ebenezer. It is now owned by Captain Jack Harrison. The Battelles were very important factors in the early growth of the settlement.

Colonel Batelle, only son of Ebenezer Battelle, of Dedham, Massachusetts, graduated at Harvard college, at Cambridge, Massachusetts, engaged in business in Boston, and was there married to Miss Anna Durrant.

April 6, 1788, he set out on the journey to Marietta, arriving there after six weeks toilsome journeying. In 1789 he removed to Peipre, and afterwards, as above narrated, came to Newport, where he ended his days. His son, Captain Battelle, married Mary, the daughter of John Greene. They reared a family of six children. The eldest son, Cornelius, became a Methodist minister. He married Elizabeth Greene, and now resides at Zanesville. Phœbe married Mr. Browning. Thomas has attained distinction in California. Gordon became a Methodist minister, and died in the army as chaplain of a West Virginia regiment. He was very active in the work of securing a State constitution for West Virginia. Ebenezer, the fourth son, married Julia, the daughter of Judge Joseph Barker, of Lower Newport. At present he resides at Newark, Ohio. He was the founder of Newport village. Andrew married Elizabeth Barker and resides at Bellaire.

Samuel Bell, born in Ireland about 1780, emigrated to Brownsville, Pennsylvania, and from there to Marietta in 1800. He settled in Newport township in the southwestern part, and at the time of his death in 1848 he was the owner of eleven hundred acres of land. He was a soldier in the War of 1812. His wife, Mary Lyons, was born in 1790 and died in 1842. They had twelve children, of whom five survive, viz: Samuel, Joseph, Nathan, Hiram, and William.

Nathan Bell was born in 1811. His first wife, Adaline Reckard, lived about eight years after her marriage. Three children were born of the first union. By his second wife, Maria Broome, born in 1827, he had seven children.

William Plumer settled in this county in 1804, having emigrated from Pennsylvania, where, in 1799, his son, John M., was born. The latter, in his early manhood, constructed a flat-boat of his own, and for five years followed the river, making trips to New Orleans, and various other points. He married Jane H. Fulton, who was born in 1804 and died in 1871. Five of their six children are living, viz: William F., in Iowa; John A., in Marietta; Happy F., at home; Eliza, and Charles S., at home. Mr. Plumer has a beautiful farm of two hundred acres, which was a dense forest when he came to it; but by hard work and honest toil it has been converted into one of the finest homes in Washington county.

Among the earliest settlers in the township were the children of Thomas and Mary Ann Reynolds, who emigrated from Maryland and settled opposite Newport township, in West Virginia. All of their children but one settled in Newport. John and Samuel settled near Ferguson's landing in 1805. The former died in 1877, leaving a widow and three children who reside in the neighborhood. John had eight children, three of whom live in the neighborhood. He enjoys the proud distinction of being the sole survivor of the soldiers of the War of 1812 who went from this township. Margaret married Jacob Seevers, of Newport. The other children were James E., Nancy, George, Rebecca, Daniel and Thomas. The latter settled at Lower Newport.

Daniel S. Reynolds, son of Thomas Reynolds, was born in 1819, in section twenty-four of this township. By his wife, Elizabeth Gill, he has had nine children, four of whom survive. He is a cooper by trade and has a farm of seventy-eight acres. He served four years—from 1861 to 1864—in the Thirty-ninth Ohio volunteer infantry.

As early as 1805, William Nixon came from Fayette county, Pennsylvania, and settled in the northwest corner of the township, on the Marietta line, a short distance below the mouth of Eight Mile run. He was a tanner by trade, and did some work in that line. He had eight children by his first wife, Mary Petit, and three by his second wife, Elizabeth Stephenson. Of these, Sarah became the wife of John Chambers, formerly of Newells Run, and Harriet married Samuel Rightmire, of this township. Other representatives of the family are living on Cow run.

John Rowland emigrated from Pennsylvania in 1805, and located in this township below Newells Run, and nearly opposite the Lower Brother Island. He was a prominent officer of the township during the earlier years of its civil history. Representatives of his family are still in the neighborhood in which he first settled.

Nathaniel Little was among the early settlers who came from Belpre township. He made a permanent settlement about the year 1805, locating about three-fourths of a mile above Newport village. His wife's maiden name was Pamela Bradford, daughter of Major Robert Bradford, of Belpre. There were five sons and one daughter in the Little family, viz: Wealthy married Ira Hill, a farmer of Lower Newport; Charles died on the homestead in 1876; his wife's name was Mary A. Frazier; Harry went to Cuba and from thence to California, afterwards returning to Newport, where he died in 1873; Lewis settled near McConnelsville, Ohio, where he died; Nathaniel, an itinerate preacher, is the only survivor. George resided in Cincinnati. Charles Little had a large family, five of whom are living. His son, Arthur B. Little, lives on the old homestead near Newport village.

Although Stephen Dana entered a large tract of land in section twenty-nine, where he afterwards erected his house, it was not until the year 1807, that he became a resident of the township. He was born in Massachusetts in 1779. He married Elizabeth Foster, who was born in 1788, and died in 1870, surviving her husband thirty-six years. Mr. Dana was not one whit behind his brothers in his active zeal for the promotion of the welfare of the community. His family is represented in this township by his son S. A. Dana, who resides on the home place, which now consists of four hundred and thirty-three acres. The younger Mr. Dana was born in 1819, in this township, and married Jane Little, born in 1822, by whom he has two children, viz: Permelia L. and Frederick F.

Reuben McVay, born in Pennsylvania in 1791, came to Ohio about 1810. His first settlement in this township was near Ferguson's Landing, in the upper settlement. He afterwards removed in the neighborhood of the Hill settlement. He married Margaret, the daughter of William Hill, sr. He had twelve children, of whom Luther and his wife Martha J. Hill, are in Newport township. Reuben McVay died in 1866.

Peter Snyder came from Pennsylvania in 1810, and settled in section thirty-five of this township. The old man, while yet living east of the mountains, was made prisoner by the Indians, who barbarously mutilated his ears before releasing him. His son Peter lives in Marietta township.

Ira Hill married Wealthy Little. He came from Salem township in 1810, and settled on the Ohio, about five miles below Newport village, his daughter living near where he settled.

Pressly Petty was born near Harper's Ferry in 1791, and in 1810 came to Ohio, locating on section twelve of Newport township, where he died in 1862. His widow, Margaret Jennings, born 1794, is living with her son, Henry W. The family consisted of nine children, of whom six survive, viz: Mariah (Dye), in Lawrence township, Betsy (Harris), in West Virginia, Rosannah (Smith), in Watertown township, Margaret (Lee), in Iowa, Stephen, in Illinois, and Henry W. in Newport township. The latter was born in 1838, married Nancy McAllister, by whom he has had ten children, nine of whom are living. Mr. Petty was in the hundred day service, company B., One Hundred and Forty-eighth Regiment, Ohio National Guards.

William Burch, the father of Captain Hiram Burch, of Marietta, was an early settler in Newport. He came from Newtown, Connecticut, about the year 1806. He brought with him a stock of goods and established a store on the opposite side of the river, at the mouth of Bull creek. In 1808 he brought out his family. Mr. Burch traded his store for a tract of land in that vicinity, which he afterwards lost through defect in title, and then removed to this township and settled on the Adkins place. He was subsequently engaged in brickmaking, and he erected some of the earliest brick houses in the township and elsewhere in the county. He removed to Mason county, Virginia, in 1823, where he afterwards lived. He had a family of five sons and five daughters, only two of whom are now living—Captain Burch, in Marietta, and William, in Virginia.

About 1813 Benjamin Hartwell settled two miles above Marietta, on the Ohio. He was soon afterwards drowned in the river between Newport and St. Marys.

Jacob Kinsor settled on Dana's run in 1814 or 1815, locating three miles from the Ohio. His wife was Ellen O'Hanlin. He died in Missouri. His daughter, Elizabeth, became the wife of Jonathan Ker, and Margaret married Samuel Ker.

Luther and Joseph Barker settled in the southwestern part of the township, about the year 1815. They were the sons of Colonel Joseph Barker, whose early settlement in Wiseman's bottom is fully noticed in the history of Muskingum township.

Luther, after remaining two years in Newport township, removed to McConnelsville, where he died in 1845. By his wife, Maria Devol, he had ten children.

Joseph Barker, jr., better known as Judge Barker, remained in Newport township until his death, which occurred at the old Newport farm, in 1859. He was born in 1791. His first wife was Melissa Stone, of Belpre. His second wife was Mrs. Mary Ann Shipman. He was elected to the legislature in the three years 1829, 1830 and 1834. He succeeded his father as associate judge of the common pleas court. He was elected in 1844, and served until 1852, when the adoption of the new constitution abolished the office. He was seventy-one years of age when he died. He was the father of nine children.

A Mr. Kinder settled about a mile above Milltown in 1816, in section thirty, in the neighborhood now known by the name of Kinderhook.

In 1817 Samuel Smith and family came from near Lancaster, Pennsylvania, and settled first on Dana's run, three miles from the Ohio, and afterwards removed to the farm of Reynolds' run, now occupied by James Smith.

William Mullen settled in Newport township, section nine, in 1818. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1797, and died six years after coming to Ohio. His wife, Sarah Poland; whom he married in 1820, was born in 1792. Of their three children two survive, and are living in Belpre township, viz.: Mary Campbell and William. The latter, born in 1822, married Mary C. Cook in 1853, and became a resident of Belpre. Three of their four children are living.

In 1818 Isaac Davis came into the township and settled on the small stream that bears his name. He emigrated from Virginia. He settled in the woods and among the hills. The logs with which he built his cabin were poled down the steep hill slope. By his first wife he had six children. His wife's maiden name was Betsy Miller. By his second wife, Elizabeth Williamson, he had five children.

Charles Ker, a farmer, carpenter, and hunter, lived for several years in Allegheny, Pennsylvania. He married Jane McNulty. In 1821 he and family removed to this township and settled just behind Mount Dudley. He died on the east fork of Newell's run, which took the name of Ker's hollow. He had ten children; of these, Jonathan married Elizabeth Kinsor, and, prior to 1871, lived in this township; Margaret married George Reece, of Newell's run; Samuel, a farmer, cooper, and cattle dealer, settled in section twenty-one, on the east branch of Newell's run, and died in 1872, was twice married and had six children; Barbara married Joshua Britton, and Hannah married David McKibben, both of Newell's run. Five of the six children of Samuel Ker are living. Of these, the second son, James W., born in 1845, married Hattie Jewell, born in 1848. They have five children. Mr. Ker is a large stock dealer, and has a farm of two hundred and twenty acres of land in section five. He has held the offices of township treasurer and clerk.

George Greenwood was born in West Virginia, as was also his wife, Isabella Clarke, who died in 1811. Their son, William C. Greenwood, was born in 1804 in West Virginia, emigrating from that State to Ohio in 1821. He settled in Washington county, Newport township, where he owns a beautiful home, surrounded by two hundred and fifteen acres of land. He is one of the two children remaining* of the original family of three sons and four daughters. He married Parmelia Little, who was born in 1818. Five children have been born to them, four of whom survive, viz: George C., Frank A., Monroe, and Junius.

Dr. George W. Gale was born in New Hampshire in 1798. He emigrated to West Virginia, practicing medicine in Pleasant and Wood counties until 1825, when he came to Newport township. His wife, Catharine A. Mills, was born in 1815. Ten of the twelve children survive, viz: Alcinda, Rachel, Ellen, Nicholas, Constantine, Mrs. V. Stephenson, Hammit, Ada, and Bernard. Of the sons, Constantine, George T., and Bernard are physicians, and Hammit is a dentist. Dr. Gale died in the village of Newport in 1878. His son, Dr. George T. Gale, is practicing in Newport.

Edward Francis was born in Maryland in 1786, removed to Virginia about 1812, and to Ohio about 1826. He settled on Eight Mile run, in Newport township, where he lived several years, and then removed to Dana's run, two and a half miles north of the village of Newport, where he died about 1848. His widow, Ann Francis, a daughter of George and Elizabeth Pritchett, died in 1880. They had six sons and seven daughters. Of those who remained in the township, Edward remained until 1865; Allen lived on Dana's run; Susan, the wife of W. H. Ballentine, lived first in Newport village and then on Long run; Ann married John Baldwin, of Long run; Amanda married Sanford Davis, of Dana's run; Jackson died in the army, and Sophia married Lester Francis, of Dana's run.

Ezra O'Neal was born in Virginia in 1802, and in 1826 came to this county, and settled in Newport township, near the mouth of Newell's run. He married Matilda Ferguson, who was born in 1805, and died in 1872. Seven of the ten children survive, viz: George, Thomas, Joseph, Judah, Jane, Huldah, and Gilbert. The latter, born in section three, Newport township, in 1837, married Sarah Broome, born in 1844. They have four children. Mr. O'Neal is postmaster at Newell's Run, where he has a general store.

In 1832 Hugh Brown settled on Newell's run, where he died in 1852. His wife, Mary Griffin, daughter of Benoni Griffin, was a vocalist of much power. After the death of her husband she lived with her youngest son, Wesley, until her death in 1856. Mr. and Mrs. Brown had nine children—Joseph G. married M. E. Crawford, and in 1832 settled at the mouth of Newell's run; Sarah married James Little, of Eight Mile run, this township; Leonard married Jane Carr, and settled in this township; Hannah married Samuel Ker; Wesley, a boat builder, pilot, and farmer, married Elizabeth Reece.

Jacob Ritchey, the son of Abraham and Jane (Willoughby) Ritchey, was born in Pennsylvania; and settled on Newell's run, Newport township, in 1833. In that same year he married Nancy Edmondson. His daughter, Maria, married Stephen Noland, of Newell's Run, and Mary married Joseph L. Conner, of Newport township. Mr. Ritchey was drowned in 1861, in the Ohio, near the mouth of Newell's run.

Among those living in the township at an early day was Samuel Rightmire, who married Harriet, daughter of William Nixon, whose settlement has been noticed. Mr. Rightmire was born in 1810, and died in 1868. His wife was born in 1817. They have had six children born to them, all of whom survive, viz: Susan E. (Miller); Lucy A. (Davis); Sarah R. (Lackey); Mary H. (Dye); Martha H. (Doan); and Eliza J. (Lucans). Mrs. Rightmire has a farm of one hundred and four acres of well improved land.

William Warren settled in Marietta in 1814. He was born in Massachusetts in 1772, and died in Noble county, Ohio, in 1854. By his wife Hannah Dickinson, born in 1780 and died in 1853, he had fourteen children, viz: Priscilla Berry, William, Nancy Hutchison, Sophia Daniels, James S. of Noble county, Sarah Rayley, Delia, deceased; Ai, Caroline Weber of Noble county, Marilla Hussey, Elmira Hussey, dead; Andrew, deceased; Western of Noble county, and Elbridge G. The latter born in Morgan county in 1826, married Sarah Mitchell, by whom he has had five children, four of whom survive. He has a farm of one hundred acres of land in Newport township, in section twenty-one.

LATER SETTLEMENT.

After 1835 settlements in Newport township became very numerous, and it would be well nigh impossible to mention each and every one of these later settlers. However an effort has been made to note as many as limited space will permit.

'Squire Samuel Amlin, as he was familiarly called, was the son of John and Sarah Amlin. He became a resident of this township about 1840, having emigrated from New Jersey to Marietta township as early as 1809. He lived for many years in the village of Newport and died in 1872 at a ripe old age. The records show that for many years he was active in the affairs of the township.

James Cree and his wife Nancy Gadd emigrated to Ohio from Pennsylvania in 1840, and located in this township. Both died in 1876. Three of the five children survive. Alfred is in Grand View township, and John and David H. are in Newport. The latter, born in 1847, married Louisa Heintzelman, born in 1846. They have one child. Mr. Cree has been connected with the hotel business since 1877. His wife is a milliner.

* Deceased since this was written.

Jacob Day, native of Pennsylvania, settled in Washington county, Newport township, in 1843. He died in 1876, aged eighty-two years, and his wife Catharine died two years later than her husband aged seventy-five years. Their son John Day was born in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, in 1818, and emigrated to this county with his father. He flat-boated from Marietta to New Orleans for ten years and finally settled in section thirty-five of this township, where he cleared and improved his farm of about one hundred and twenty-five acres of land, which is now adorned by the handsome buildings which Mr. Day has erected. He married Mariah Cisler, who was born in 1827. Six of their nine children are living, all in this township except one—Cecelia—in Lawrence township; Edward, Augustus, Lucinda, Daniel, and Frank.

Thomas Noland, born in Virginia in 1794, married Sarah Frazee, who was born in 1810. Mr. Noland came to Ohio in 1844, and settled in section eleven of this township, where he died in 1859. Six of his twelve children are living, viz: Stephen, Edmund, Johnston, Lewis, William, and Augustus. The latter, born in 1837, married Nancy Haynes, who was born in 1852. They have three children. Mr. Noland has a farm of eighty-three acres. Mr. Noland was in the hundred day service, as were his brothers Stephen and Johnston. His brothers Justice and Philip were in the Ohio volunteer cavalry. In 1844 Stephen and Anna (Ballard) Bull settled on the north branch of Eight Mile run in Newport township. He was a millstone maker and farmer. He was born in Pennsylvania and emigrated to this county from Guernsey county, Ohio, in 1844. He died in Kansas in 1861.

Nicholas Cisler, born in Pennsylvania in 1788, whence, in 1819, he emigrated to Marietta, subsequently settled in Newport township, where he died in 1853. He was a carpenter and farmer. His wife, Sarah Newton, was born in 1790, and died in 1864. They had nine children—Elizabeth, Margaret, Mary, J. N., Eliza, William, Harriet, Maria, and Lucinda. Four of these survive. J. N. Cisler was born in Marietta in 1822, and married Elizabeth McVay, born in 1824. Two of their five children survive. Mr. Cisler has a farm which consists of one hundred and three acres, situated on the Little Muskingum.

Noah Smith settled in Newport township in 1848. He was born in New Jersey in 1783, and died in 1865. His wife, Christianne, was born in 1785, and died in 1864. Of their children, Rebecca (Rasher), resides in Steubenville; James is in Watertown; George W. in Newport township, as is Samuel T. The latter was born in Steubenville in 1829. He married Mary Kidd in 1862, who was born in 1837 in Belmont county. He enlisted in the regular service in 1864 in company G, One Hundred and Forty-eighth Ohio volunteer infantry. In 1863 he became a member of the Ohio national guard.

Robert Edwards settled in section six of Newport township in 1849. He was born in Virginia in 1810.

His wife, Mary Workman, was born in 1803, and died in 1874. Four of their five children survive. John is dead. Jane lives in Middleport, Ohio; the fourth is Dennis, and the youngest, Mary, is living in Virginia. Benjamin F., the second son, was born in 1832, and married Nancy E. Need, by whom he has four children, the oldest, Alice, being a natural artist. Mr. Edwards has a farm of eighty-six acres of land.

John Metheny is the son of Noah and a grandson of Nathan Metheny, both of whom resided in Lawrence township. He was born in 1830. He married Mary Seevers, born in 1832, and settled in Newport township, where he owns a farm. Their four children are married. Mr. Metheny served three years in the Seventh Ohio volunteer cavalry during the late war.

In 1850 James Conner, who was born in 1805 in Pennsylvania emigrated from that state to Ohio and located in Newport township. By his wife, Sarah Macon, he had seven children, of whom Joseph L., Eliza (Johnson), and Thomas J., reside in this township. The latter, born in Guernsey county in 1841, married Isabel Dye, of Lawrence township. From 1871 he served three years as township trustee, and is at present the president of the township board of education. He served three years during the late war in company B, Thirty-ninth regiment. He is now filling the position of postmaster at Cow Run.

William Seevers came to Newport township in 1852 from Noble county. He was born in Fearing township in 1799; married Elizabeth Devol. He settled in section thirty, and built the first house in the little settlement called Kinderhook. His house was a pioneer preaching place. He died in 1867. Of the children Daniel came to this township in 1840; Richard in 1842; Abraham and his wife, Polly Morrison, in 1855; and others have become residents of the township. Abraham and Polly Seevers had fourteen children, five of whom are deceased. Those living are Andrew, Martha, Amariah, John, Levi, Harvey, Polly, Mary, and Abraham. Mr. Seevers was in the hundred day service.

James Mackey was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, in 1814, and in 1857 settled in section thirty-five, Newport township. By his wife, Susan B. Corner, he has five children—Louella, Susannah, J. Noble, Frank, and Anna. Mr. Mackey has a beautiful home, consisting of two hundred and twenty-five acres of land well improved. He and his family are staunch members of the Congregational church.

D. A. Conger was born in Monroe county, Ohio, in 1818, and removed to Washington county in 1857, settling in Newport township on a farm in sections twenty-one and twenty-seven. For ten years he was in the oil business. His wife, Catharine Lippincott, was born in 1820. They have had ten children, eight of whom are living.

George Stephens, born in France in 1827, married Mary Rabel, born in 1838. In 1859 they settled in Newport township, section twelve, where Mr. Stephens owns two hundred and eighty acres of land. Thirteen of the fourteen children are living, twelve in the township. Mr. Stephens, in addition to his farming, deals extensively in stock.

Moses Hanna settled in Newport township, section six, in 1860, and died in 1879. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1800. By his wife, Mary Watson, he had ten children, four of whom survive. Of these, James, the second son, was born in Pennsylvania in 1825, coming to this township in 1868. He married Harriet Case, by whom he has had five children, four of whom are living. Mr. Hanna has been trustee and supervisor.

Jonathan Burge was born in Pennsylvania in 1834, afterwards removed to Virginia, and in 1865 came to Ohio and Washington county, settling upon thirty five acres of land in sections three and four in Newport township. He is a blacksmith by trade. He has been township treasurer, supervisor, etc. He married Ellen B. Raby, who was born in 1832. They have nine children. In 1862 Mr. Burge enlisted and served two years and three months in the Fifteenth Pennsylvania, company B.

Frederick Koerner was born in Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, in 1843, and in 1866 settled in Salem township, this county. He enlisted and served in the Pennsylvania Reserve, battery B. Since the war he has been engaged in boring for oil, in which business he has been actively engaged for ten years. He is at present engaged in the mercantile business at Newell's Run post office. He is the township clerk. By his wife, Mary, he has had three children, one of whom is deceased.

Henry Bate, born in England in 1833, became a resident of this county in 1875, and settled in section twelve, of Newport township, where he died in 1880. He married Martha Etitt, who was born in 1833. By her he had four children, three of whom, Sarah, Joseph, and George H., are living. George H. was born in 1854, in Noble county. He cultivates a farm of two hundred and forty acres of land.

John Butler, born in New Jersey in 1830, settled in Independence township, this county, in 1861, and afterwards removed to Newport township, section eighteen, where he owns one hundred and thirty-five acres of land. He has been trustee and supervisor. By his wife, Amelia Boyd, who was born in 1833, he has had ten children, nine of whom survive.

John Braun, who was born in Germany in 1830, became a resident of Washington county in 1853, and settled in Salem township. He married Eva D. Wohlrab, who was born in 1834. Ten children are living. Mr. Braun is a general farmer, and has about one hundred acres of land, and now resides in Newport township.

THE OHIO RIVER

is an invaluable means of transportation. Ever since the first settlers brought their flat-boats down by means of its current, it has been a grand highway for trade. During the greater portion of the year a railroad in Newport township along the Ohio valley would be almost superfluous.

Newport township furnishes no small portion of the trade of the river boats. Lower Newport, Newell's Run, Newport, together with Little's and Ferguson's Landings are the principal stopping points.

An island of ninety-five acres opposite Newell's Run, and Middle island, opposite sections twenty-two and twenty-three are the only considerable islands along the Newport line.

A more general account of the floods in the Ohio will be found in another part of this work. The record of these floods in the vicinity of Newport has been preserved by Dr. J. M. McElhinney. The store room now occupied by E. A. Jones has been used as the standard of measurement in determining the various heights to which the water has risen.

February 12, 1832, during the greatest flood, in the evening at Newport, the water was four feet and two inches above the store counter, and was out of its banks for nine days, destroying an immense amount of property. In December, 1847, the water reached the level of the store floor. April 21, 1852, at 8 A. M., the water was five inches above the counter, and was three feet and eight inches lower than during the flood of 1832. April 13, 1860, although higher at Marietta than in 1852, the water was two inches below the counter's top, and seven inches below the mark of 1852. Late in the night of the twenty-first of January, 1862, the river reached the level of the store floor, and was one foot higher than the subsequent flood of 1873. March 19, 1865, the river was over its banks and came within one foot and six inches of Jones' cellar door, and within six inches of 1873's high water. December 15, 1873, the water line was six inches higher than in 1865. This is commonly called the "corn fodder" flood. In 1874, January 9th, at 5 P. M., the water was even with the bank at the foot of Greene street in the village of Newport. During these floods it often becomes necessary for people living near the river to remove their families and goods to drier quarters, and the unwonted spectacle of boats sailing in the streets, and even within the houses, is occasionally seen. Although the destruction of property by the rampant river has at times been great, there have been few accidents to human life during the floods. Persons have been drowned during the ordinary stages of water.

THE DROWNING OF CHARLES HASKELL.

The drowning of Charles Haskell is perhaps the most remarkable and the saddest case of this kind on record. Charles Haskell was, at the time of his tragic death, a respected citizen and a prominent member of the Baptist church. He resided near the river where he had his store. Saturday, July 23, 1831, he observed that some boats that he had secured to the Ohio shore were being blown by the wind towards the Virginia side. Without a second thought he plunged into the river, and his wife happening to come to the door for a moment, saw him swimming towards the boats. Having confidence in her husband's strength, she went into the house, but upon looking towards the river shortly afterwards she was horrified by the non-appearance of her husband, and the terrible thought was at once suggested that he had sank under the cruel water. This proved too true. It is supposed that he was seized with cramps while trying to get into the boat, and thus met a watery grave. A long search in the vicinity failed to discover any trace of the drowned man, and it was not until the third day that the body was found in the river at a point opposite Marietta. At the time of his death Mr. Haskell was clerk of the Baptist church, and it is recorded that Charles Little was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of their beloved brother.

THE ONLY "RAILROAD."

The township records show that August 28, 1872, a petition signed by one hundred citizens of Newport township was presented by virtue of an act of the general assembly, April 23, 1872, "to authorize counties, cities, incorporated villages and townships to build railroads and to lease and operate the same."

The termini in the township were an eligible point in the north line of the township in the valley of the Ohio, and an eligible point in the west line of the township in the valley of the Ohio.

An appropriation of thirty thousand dollars was to be raised by the issue of bonds executed by the township clerk and trustees, payable semi-annually at the office of the county treasurer, with interest at eight per cent. Three thousand dollars to be paid in eleven years, and the remainder in nine annual payments of three thousand dollars each.

There was some prospect of a road, which, however, never became more than an imaginary line. At an election held February 27, 1873, the people of Newport township decided that the construction of the road would be expedient.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION.

The pioneer physician of Newport township was Dr. George W. Gale. In 1822 he settled on the Ohio in West Virginia, opposite Rea's Run, and about six miles above Newport. He practiced throughout the neighboring country for miles around, and ere he had actually become a resident of Newport township he was practising in every part of it. About the year 1837 he removed to the Barker settlement, near Lower Newport, and there made his headquarters until in 1840, he removed to the village of Newport, and remained there until his death, which occurred in 1877. He was a successful physician and an esteemed citizen.

The second physician who located in the township was Dr. George S. Smith. He was a native of Belmont county, Ohio, and in 1844 came to Newport township and settled about two miles north of the village. He practiced his profession in connection with horticulture until the time that St. Mary's was made the county seat of Pleasanton, in West Virginia (about 1850), when he removed to St. Mary's. In 1854 he returned to his old location, and in 1858 removed to Missouri, and is now practising in Illinois.

Dr. Joseph M. McElhinney has been identified with the interests of this township since 1848. He was born in Ireland, and in 1831 came, with his father, to Ludlow township. After teaching in Newport township for five or six years, he went through a course of study in medicine at Cincinnati, and in 1855 commenced the practice of medicine and surgery in the village of Newport, where he has continued in practice up to the present date, only being interrupted by the late war in which he served. He became captain of company H, Forty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry. During the hundred day service he was assistant surgeon of the regiment. His two sons, Joseph H. and Francois B., chose the medical profession, and practiced with their father in Newport, the elder from 1872 to 1875, when he removed to Marietta township, near Hills, and the younger practising from 1875 to 1877, when he removed to Hocking county, and afterwards to Columbus.

The mantle of Dr. Gale, sr., very appropriately fell upon his son, George T. Gale. He commenced the study of medicine under the tutelage of his father, and after his graduation commenced practicing in Newport, where he continued for two years, and then removed to Matamoras, Grand View township. In 1877 he returned to Newport village, and took the place vacated by his father.

PIONEER SCHOOLS.

The first school in the township was held in the upper settlement. At first the children were instructed by Caleb Greene at the family residence. This was as early as 1801, or 1802. Subsequently, the first school-house in the township was erected, about fifty yards north of where Little's tannery stands, the only mark of the deserted site being a growth of locust trees thereon. This first school-house was rude in its architectural design, being built wholly of rough round logs, and having a puncheon floor and seats. It was heated by an old-fashioned fireplace, and lighted by means of greased paper windows. Among the first teachers were John Watterman, Wealthy Little, Rebecca Ellis, Mary Fraizer, and Luther Barker.

In the course of time, with the advancing growth and prosperity of the settlement, it was thought best to build a more enduring structure, and hence the primitive log school-house was replaced by a more modern brick building. This latter building was destroyed by fire, and another building, erected in its place, has since been torn down by the hand of progress.

The first school in the hill neighborhood, in the extreme northwestern part of the township, was contemporary with the school settlement at Newport. It was a round log cabin, and stood on Hill's run, about half way between the residence of William Hill and the mouth of the run at the Little Muskingum. The first teacher was Annie Plumer, the sister of Dr. William Plumer.

Another round log school-house was soon erected near by, on the east bank of the Little Muskingum on the land now owned by Joseph Gracey, less than half a mile west of the Beech Grove church.

The flood of 1832 caused the Little Muskingum to overflow its banks, and the little school-house was swept away. Then a hewed log house was built on the spot, which house is now occupied by Mr. Gracey.

In 1816, in section twenty-six, at Lower Newport, a hewed log school-house was erected on the land then owned by Philip Greene. George Greenwood was the first teacher in this building, which stood near by the Ohio river.

These pioneer schools were kept up by subscription, and although in the early days of Newport township it required a strong effort to find time and money for schooling purposes, the thought of this very fact, combined with a natural intelligence and a due appreciation of knowledge, served to stimulate the energies of the youth, who very properly disregarding the maxim that "a little learning is a dangerous thing," struggled on over multitudinous obstacles, wisely striving to gain as many invigorating drops from the Pierian fount as possible. Thus has the whole community gradually risen in intellectuality. The development and progress of the common school system has given tone to

THE PRESENT SCHOOLS,

with which the township is well supplied. Always prospering and never retrograding, they are eminently successful in the accomplishment of popular practical education. In 1881 there are eight school districts, besides the special district at Newport village. The board of education consists of the following named gentlemen: Henry M. Hill, Charles Dana, E. T. Miller, Joseph Conner, James W. Ker, John Butler, Michael Lawrence, and Martin Hall.

OLD DISTILLERIES

were very numerous in the early days when it was a breach of hospitality not to pass the bottle when guests were present. The purity of the liquor made by the honest pioneer distillers was unquestioned, and everybody used it, until they noticed that they were beginning to yield to whiskey the mastery, and then they quit the use and the manufacture, and to-day there is but little spirituous liquor sold, and none made, in this township. During the first years of the settlement, "whiskey mills" were even more numerous than grist-mills.

John Greene, jr., Ebenezer Battelle, sr., and Richard Greene had a small distillery in the northwest corner of section twenty-eight, in 1805. They had three copper stills in operation, and devoted most of their time to the manufacture of apple jack and peach brandy. They continued at the business for about ten years, and now there is no sign of their place of business.

William Dana started a still about 1815, and continued until 1832 or 1833, when, being convinced that he was not doing right, he ceased operations in this line.

There was once a log distillery on the Little Muskingum, nearly opposite the old Sharp mill, owned by Reuben Northup. This was burned about 1826. A remnant of the old fixtures was recently found deeply buried in the river bank.

From 1820 to 1832 Thomas Ferguson had a still-house on his place above Newport, in section twenty-two.

Reference to the old account book of John Greene, which is in the possession of his son, Christopher, proves that in the early days whiskey was legal tender for all debts, for in those days it was supposed that whiskey was even better than water. From the same old book it is also learned that the consumers of the fiery liquid wanted it like water in two respects—pure and free, for they always bought on credit.

CEMETERIES.

There are at least five burying-grounds in Newport township that have been used for many years. The cemetery adjoining the Beech Grove Presbyterian church serves as a neighborhood burying-ground. The first person buried therein was Mrs. Rhoda Hill, the first wife of William Hill, sr. She died in 1807, aged forty-eight years.

The cemetery at Newport is the largest in the township. It is in the northern part of the village, next to the Methodist church. The first person buried here was Nathaniel Little, who died November 20, 1808, aged forty-nine. There had been others buried in private grounds in the vicinity before the death of Mr. Little. In this cemetery lie buried nearly all of the early settlers of the territory around Newport. They have one by one passed over to the "silent majority," and are too numerous to mention.

The old cemetery at Lower Newport is located in section thirty-three. The first burial, which took place in 1818, was that of a young man who was killed by the falling of a tree. His name is unknown.

The new graveyard was laid out in 1860, the first burial taking place therein being that of Judge Joseph Barker, jr. The cemetery is located in section twenty-five, not far from the Ohio river. The trustees who control it are Jacob Middleswart, H. D. Hill, and Joseph Bell.

The cemetery adjoining the Beech Grove United Brethren church, at Newell's run, is also very old. The first person buried there was an unknown man who was found floating in the Ohio. The graveyard, though small, contains the remains of a great many people.

CHURCHES.

Before the erection of any church building the people were wont to assemble in private houses and school-houses that they might enjoy the benefits of the gospel. In the earliest days they seldom were able to have preaching services, inasmuch as the ministers were nearly all travelling evangelists, whose circuit of preaching places was almost boundless. When practicable, the people would go to Marietta to church, but there was scarcely any road and the distance was too great. In such a community as was formed by the early settlers of Newport township churches and schools must spring up, and it is not strange that among the cabins erected we find the pioneer school-house and church. The results of their early support of intellectual and religious institutions have been manifest in the proportion of young men and women of intelligence and high moral worth, many of them having entered the profession as ministers, physicians, lawyers, or journalists. The number of ministers' wives which Newport has furnished is truly remarkable.

As time advanced, the several denominations in the settlement that had representative members were organized into distinct societies, and each one has become the centre of a wide circle of good influence.

THE METHODIST CHURCH.

In the summer of 1799 Robert Manley, the first Methodist preacher in Washington county, visited the Newport settlement, it being one of his stopping places in his evangelistic tour. The ministers who followed him to Marietta did not neglect the way station, and consequently it was not long before the first Methodist church was erected. As early as 1815, at Lower Newport settlement, in section sixteen, on the bank of the Ohio, there was a Methodist church. The building was of hewed logs, and stood on the land of Philip Greene, now owned by Henry Sheets. Philip Greene early became a Methodist minister, and it is probable that he was the means of having the church built, and that he was its first preacher. The house has long since disappeared.

An old Methodist church once stood on the spot now occupied by the Beech Grove United Brethren church, on Newell's run. It was organized by Rev. Jones, now at Williamstown, West Virginia. The church, which was of log, was erected prior to 1840. It was afterwards deserted, and at the time that it was torn down was used as a tobacco house.

A Methodist church known as the German church was organized at an early day, and a little log church erected on the west bank of Newell's run, in the northwestern part of the township. It was occupied until about 1873, when the society transferred its membership to the Pine Ridge Methodist Episcopal church, in Lawrence township.

THE NEWPORT CHURCH.

The upper settlement was one of the earliest preaching points. Rev. Jacob Young, who came to the Marietta circuit in 1804, occasionally preached in the vicinity of the present village of Newport. In 1821 the appointment at Newport was attached to the Duck Creek circuit. In 1825 it was deemed advisable to organize a regular church at Newport, and accordingly less than twenty members formed a society.

However, it was not until 1829, that a house of worship was ready for occupancy. Rev. David Young was the first preacher after the house was occupied and dedicated. Many ministers have followed him, among whom were Revs. Philip Greene, John Smothers, John Waterman, William Lippert, Peter McGowan, William Waterman, Cornelius Battelle, Wesley Browning, Pardon Cook, and Richard Armstrong. After 1860 the ministers have been, Revs. Andrew Huston, John Z. Moore, Joseph H. White, John W. Hamilton, D. C. Knowles, John H. Doar, Henry M. Rader, Frank D. Fast, W. H. Piggott, C. J. Feitt, George W. Dennis, and the pastor in 1880-1 J. H. Doan, who was pastor in 1871-2.

Of the earlier ministers of this church: Philip Greene died a superannuated minister of the West Virginia conference, after a long life spent in preaching in eastern Ohio and western Virginia. Rev. Waterman, once of the Ohio conference, later of the church South, sleeps with his fathers; Cornelius D. Battelle, now among the older members of the Ohio conference, has given half a century to the work of the ministry.

From a mere handful the membership of the church has increased to almost sixty members. Revivals were experienced from time to time, and many memories are clustered around the old but never to be forgotten Methodist mourners' bench.

In 1866 and 1867, it having been determined that a new house of worship was to be erected, large centenary subscriptions were raised, and the work of building a good-sized brick church proceeded. However, it was not until May, 1870, that the Centenary church was finished and dedicated. The work was begun under the pastorate of Rev. J. H. Hamilton, and dedicated while Rev. D. C. Knowles was the minister. The building cost seven thousand dollars, which is now about paid for.

The church owes much of the prosperity to the energy of the ladies who by their efforts have paid much of the debt. The Ladies' Foreign Mission society and the Mite society are vigorous organizations, and are doing a noble work.

The "wheel within a wheel," the Sabbath-school within the church, has wrought a glorious work. The school was started in Newport by Mr. Everett and Miss Louisa Battelle, now Mrs. Foote. Those two were on a visit from Massachusetts, and siezing the opportunity organized the school and succeeded in awakening an interest that continues to the present day. Each additional revival in the church met its response in the Sabbath-school, and the result has been that the school is as the nursery to the church. The present superintendent is D. J. States.

THE NEWPORT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

was organized in the village of Newport June 9, 1838, by Rev. Bennett Roberts, an Evangelist. The nine constituent members were, David and Mary Murdock, John and Mary Greene, Jane Moreland, Eleanor K. Cook, Mariah H. Bailey, Sarah E. Dana, and Ira H. Bosworth. They held their meetings in the pioneer school-house just north of Newport, and after it was burned meetings were held at the other school-house and at the Methodist and Baptist churches. The congregation was never strong. They had occasional supplies from Marietta, but not until Rev. Henry Smith, D. D., president of Marietta college, came did they have a stated supply. For fifteen years he preached to this people twice a month. He was accustomed to remark that his visits to the little flock at Newport were green spots in his life. Certain it is that no little church for miles around was favored with the services of so talented a minister as was Dr. Smith. Rev. John Noble also supplied the church.

In 1869 the presbytery of Athens formally dissolved Newport church, and the following were at their own request transferred to the Fourth Street Presbyterian church in Marietta: Eleanor Cook, Dr. J. H. McElhinney and wife, Ira H. Bosworth and wife, Eleanor C. Bosworth, Augustus Leonard and wife. Luther Edgerton, the only surviving elder, afterwards became a member of the Forth Street church.

BEECH GROVE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

This church is located in the northwest corner of the township on the Little Muskingum, not far from Hill's post office. The history is closely identified with that of the First Presbyterian church of Marietta, of which this church is the successor, and, in fact, the remnant. When the Marietta church was formed in 1841, those Presbyterians living in the Hill neighborhood attended services in town occasionally. But most of them attended more regularly a church that had been formed just over the line in Lawrence township, near William Caywood's.

In 1844 or '45 a Congregational sentiment having arisen in the church near Caywoods, the members of the Presbyterian church withdrew and with members who had hitherto belonged to the Marietta church established a branch society on the Little Muskingum, and in 1848 erected the present house of worship, which was at first a mere shell of a frame building but has since been remodelled and is now a very neat structure.

The ministers have been Revs. J. M. Farris, James Stewart, William Reed, T. S. Leason, Benjamin I. Lowe, M. R. Miller, Samuel Forbes, W. M. Galbreath, and the present supply, J. Strauss. Of these ministers only Revs. Leason and Lowe were installed as pastors of the church.

When the church was first organized William Hill was the first elder. Joseph Caywood was soon afterwards elected. Others have served since then. William Caywood and William Hill, jr., are the present elders.

February 23, 1861, the church at Marietta having died, it was decided that the church be afterwards known as the Beech Grove First Presbyterian church, which name it still retains. At present there are about sixty members.

The church has furnished one minister, viz: Rev. Charles Hill, who is now preaching in Tennessee.

The Sunday-school of about fifty scholars is under the charge of William Hill.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH.

The earliest history of the Baptist church of Newport is a part of the history of the church in Marietta township near the mouth of the Little Muskingum, which church the Newport people attended. The first meetings in the Upper settlement were at the house of Jacob Churchill, at Newport. Elder James McAboy was the first minister. The first recorded meeting was held September 21, 1822, and at that time, "after prayer by Elder McAboy, Sarah Howard, David Canfield, and Ira Hill, jr., after relating their experience were received into the church, and baptized the following Sunday, together with Abigail Churchill, Melissa Barker, and Susan S. Dana, who had united with the church at its last meeting on Little Muskingum." The next month Joseph Barker, and L. D. Barker and wife were received, and at the close of the year 1822 William and Lucy Bosworth, Grace Ferguson, and Mary Little became members. Thus, little by little, was the nucleus of the Newport church formed.

In 1823 regular meetings were not held on account of prevailing sickness in the neighborhood, and by reason of the death of the clerk, Jacob Churchill, the record was neglected. Joseph Barker was the next clerk. After the death of Mr. Churchill the meetings at Newport were held in the old brick school-house, where they were continued until the church was built. Gradually as the years advanced did the meetings at this school-house church multiply, and it was evident that a church would be located in the neighborhood. November 19, 1825, Elder McAboy requested to be released from the pastoral charge, and on the next day Elder Jeremiah Dale was ordained and installed, receiving a solemn charge from the retiring pastor.

September 19, 1830, Alfred Dana was ordained assistant pastor, Elder Dale going to Massachusetts to visit relations. Elder Dale was in poor health and died at Danvers, Massachusetts, September 4, 1831, in the forty-fourth year of his age.

At a meeting held October 15th "the solemn and affecting letter concerning the death of the beloved pastor Elder Dale was read, and then the congregation asked Rev. Alfred Dana to become its pastor. Mr. Dana continued in the pasorate until 1834, when Elder A. Darrow was called, Elder Dana for a time remaining the assistant pastor.

The time had now come for the establishment of an entirely separate church, and on the third of January, 1838, a meeting of the members of the regular Baptist church was held at Newport for the purpose of effecting an organization. William Dana, Ira Hill, Joseph Barker, Charles Little and Jacob Middleswart were the members of the committee who drafted the constitution. It was resolved to invite delegates from Marietta, Adams, Vienna, Mt. Vernon, and Mill Creek churches to join the council, together with Revs. H. Geer, C. Rector, A. Dana, and the pastor, A. Darrow, and also Revs. Gabriel and J. Whitney, with their churches. The council met January 20, 1838, and adopted articles of faith. The members of the council were: Elders H. Geer, A. Dana, A. Darrow, with Brothers Thornily, P. Snyder, F. Wood, and others. Rev. A. Darrow became pastor of the new church, and William Dana and Ira Hill were elected deacons.

In the latter part of the year 1839 there was some talk of a meeting-house, and in the early part of 1841 it was decided to erect a house of worship. Joseph Barker, jr., William Dana, A. Darrow, Ira Hill and William Leonard were appointed members of the building committee. A commodious brick church was erected where the present building stands, in the northern part of the village of Newport. The house was dedicated on New-Year's day, 1842, Elder Geer preaching the sermon. There had been paid on the church nine hundred and fifty-one dollars and twenty-four cents, leaving a debt of three hundred and thirty-six dollars and forty-four cents. William Dana paid this, and took the note of the trustee for the amount. At the death of Mr. Dana search for the note was made, but it could not be found. In this quiet way did Mr. Dana pay the debt, having destroyed the note as soon as received. The following trustees were elected: William Dana, Joseph Barker, Ira Hill, Jacob Middleswart, Charles Little, Jacob Leonard, Ezekiel Slagle, William A. Bosworth, Carlton Palmer, P. F. Dana and Amos Adkins. Elder Darrow resigned in 1843, and in July, 1844, Elder H. S. Dale received a call to the pastorate, in which he continued until 1851. He was followed by Rev. John D. Riley. Rev. Z. C. Rush was called May 18, 1868, and remained until 1871. Then came Elder Hiram Geer, who remained until 1874. In 1875 Elder William Dunn was called, and stayed until the first of July, 1876. Since that time the church has been without a pastor, and the pulpit has received occasional supplies. The services of a regular pastor will be secured as soon as practicable.

Meanwhile, the people have not been idle. In 1877 there was talk of fixing up the old church, but in 1878 it was decided that the house be thoroughly remodelled. This was done at an expense of two thousand dollars, most of which is paid. The building, as it now stands, is neat and commodious, and an ornament to the village. A clear-sounding bell swings in the steeple. The building is fully insured, and there is the most complete order in the business affairs. The new house was dedicated on the twenty-first of March, 1880, the dedicatory sermon being preached by Rev. W. P. Walker.

The present officers of the church are: James Ferguson, Stephen A. Dana and Arthur Little, trustees; James Ferguson, clerk.

The Sabbath-school was established in 1841, and has been prospering ever since. The attendance is good, and the teachers have a mind to the work. Bazel Ferguson is the superintendent.

UNITED BRETHREN IN CHRIST.

In the early history of the work of this denomination in Ohio, there was occasional preaching at or near Marietta, and the adherents of the church living in the eastern portion of the county were at first under the care of the Wills Creek circuit. The churches at Newport are now under the jurisdiction of the Beech Grove circuit, which embraces six churches, four in this county and two in Newport township, viz.: Kinderhook and Beech Grove churches. The former is located in section thirty, about three miles north of Newport village. This church owes its origin to the church in Noble county, of which William Seevers was a leading member. About the year 1854 or 1855, when Mr. Seevers came to this township, a United Brethren church was organized by Rev. Hazel Cecil, from near Woodsville, Ohio. The land upon which the church building was subsequently erected was obtained from Mr. Seevers. The building is of frame, and the congregation being small, has been unable to fit up the house as it would have done had it been possible. The inside of the house has not yet been finished, the room being unplastered and the seats being of the roughest pattern.

In 1856 Rev. H. Rice, having been appointed to take charge of what is now Beech Grove circuit, became the pastor of the Kinderhook church. Since then, among the ministers who have served this people may be mentioned: Revs. George Athey, A. L. Moore, Joseph Miller, M. S. Riddle, George Moore and the present pastor, Rev. John Coleman.

The Beech Grove church was organized in the school-house at Newell's Run, in 1868. The congregation was not large, but, with the firm conviction that they would prosper did they but do their duty, the people went forward and made arrangements for the erection of a church. The site of the old Methodist church, near the mouth of Newell's Run, was thought the most eligible, and it was accordingly purchased. The old church which had years before been deserted by the Methodists, and had been since used as a tobacco shed, was torn down and a very neat little frame building put in its place. This was in 1870, and in the following year the house was dedicated to the honor and glory of God. The first minister of this little church was Rev. George Athey, who effected its organization. The succeeding ministers have been Revs. A. L. Moore, Riddle, Miller, George Moore and the present pastor, Rev. John Coleman. Mr. Athey has been returned to the church once since he first had charge of it.

The trustees of the church are Isaiah Bogard, L. Phillips, William Guiten, Jacob Gans and Peter Hasley.

POSTAL MATTERS.

Four years prior to the settlement of Newport township a line of mail boats was established on the Ohio between Wheeling and Cincinnati, but of course no stops were made within the territory of Newport.

In the year of the first settlements (1798) this system of carrying the mails was discontinued, and the better plan of the overland route was adopted.

There was an early call at Newport for the establishment of a post office, and very soon after the formation of the community Luther Barker received his commission as postmaster. The office was kept in the brick residence now owned by Isaac K. Adkins. In 1825 the late Ebenezer Battelle was appointed to take charge of the office, which he removed to his residence at Newport. He remained in the office until 1843, when he was succeeded by Dr. George W. Gale. Since then the office has been held successively by Joseph W. Crandall, Thomas O'Neal, Samuel Amlin, Alfred Cree, George Davenport, John M. Gano, and the present incumbent, E. A. Jones, who took the office in 1876.

The post office at Lower Newport was established in 1841, with Jacob Middleswart as postmaster. He was succeeded in 1849 by Ira Hill. John Plumer served from 1850 to 1857, and was followed by Henry Sheets, who held the office until 1879, when the present incumbent, H. F. Middleswart, was appointed.

The Newell's Run post office, situated on the Ohio river, was established in 1865. Thomas J. Conner was the first postmaster. The present incumbent is F. Koerner.

Hills post office was established in 1869, with Amos Crum as the first postmaster, and Philip Becker assistant. Hills is located in the extreme northwest corner of the township, and is the successor of Lower Lawrence post office, in the adjoining township. The present postmaster, Philip Becker, took the office three years after its establishment.

The mails at Newport and other river stations are received by way of the United States mail steamers, which run regularly on the Ohio.

GRIST- AND SAW-MILLS.

As early as 1800 there was a log-mill in section thirty-six, on the banks of the Little Muskingum, where the present mill now is. At first it was nothing more than a "corn cracker," but soon afterwards became a flouring-mill, with a sawing apparatus attached. Prior to 1820 this mill was burned, and a frame mill, erected by Elisha Rose, stood until a better one was built in its place by Thomas Dye. This building was burned, and the site purchased by James Lafaber, who erected and is still running a grist- and saw-mill which, as were the previous mills, is operated by horse-power. At one time there was a fulling-mill near the grist-mill, which was kept by Jasher Taylor.

In 1816 there was a mill run by horse-power, owned by William Dana and located midway between Dana's store and the larger water-mill that was built by Mr. Dana in 1820. This latter mill is still standing in Milltown, on Dana's run, and is used as a tobacco warehouse. The mill was built under peculiar circumstances. A number of Irish families en route for some point down the river were hindered from proceeding further than Newport by the ice, and were obliged to remain in Newport until the river opened. They were destitute, and appealed for work to Mr. Dana, who being a man of kind sympathies, sought to devise some means by which he could give them employment. Remembering that Irishmen could dig, he set them to digging a long mill-race, which work occupied most of the winter. Afterwards the mill was constructed. Mr. Dana spent in all about seven thousand dollars in this humane enterprise. The mill ceased operations about twenty-two years ago.

A small horse-power mill commenced to operate on the Ohio at the village of Newport in 1855. The owner, John S. Moore, at first only ground feed for his own horses, but gradually the operations became enlarged, and in 1859 he erected a frame steam flouring mill, which was afterwards enlarged. In 1879 the Newport Mill company bought the old mill, tore it down, and disposed of the machinery. The company was incorporated July, 1879, with a capital stock of twelve thousand dollars, in shares of one hundred dollars each. Victor Torner is president, James Johnson, secretary and treasurer, and John Hadley, director. The company contracted with the Cooper Manufacturing company of Mt. Vernon for a complete new process mill of four run of buhrs. The company erected the mill building, which is of frame. The mill was completed and in operation September 1, 1879, the total cost being ten thousand dollars.

There is a steam saw-mill in section sixteen belonging to Benjamin Goddard; another one near Lower Newport, by J. W. Gitchell; and still another at Hills post office, which has been mentioned.

NEWPORT VILLAGE.

This village is located on the Ohio river, six miles above Marietta. It is the centre of the semi-circular territory in which the first settlement in the township was made.

It must have been evident to the keen observer who watched the progress of the upper settlement, that the interests of the community would eventually centre around this spot in the Ohio valley. The idea of a village was suggested by the natural advantages surrounding on every side.

In front and beyond the Ohio river and the abrupt hills of West Virginia, behind and on either side the wide spread and fertile valley jointly contributed to make the locality attractive, so that even at first there was a hamlet where the village now stands.

The present site of Newport was conveyed by Messrs. Cotton and Caldwell to the late Ebenezer Battelle, sr., about the year 1801. As has been previously remarked, there were two or three little cabins in the vicinity as early as 1798. John Cotton had his house near by and it is known that Joseph Luckey's cabin stood on the present site of the village. This house probably stood near the river. The first house built on the second bottom in what is now the upper part of Newport, was built by Joseph Holdren on the lot now owned by George Greenwood and occupied by Frank Greenwood. The first house in Newport of any considerable size was the substantial log residence erected by Ebenezer Battelle, sr., the subsequent founder of the town. The house, which has since been weather-boarded and otherwise modernized, is still standing, and is now the property of Captain Jack Harrison.

The first brick house in Newport town and township was erected by Captain Daniel Greene about 1809, and is now owned and occupied by William C. Greenwood. There was a tavern opened at a very early day near the river. Esquire John Greene, sr., was its first proprietor from 1798 to 1810.

Thus was formed the nucleus of the future village. Gradually, as the river facilities for river transportation increased, and the prosperity of the community created a trade, the number of houses increased, and ere the official act the village of Newport was established. On the pages of the records of Washington county is found "a plat of the village of Newport, comprising forty lots in section twenty-seven, in the original surveyed township, numbered one, in range numbered six of the old seven ranges; surveyed January 30 and 31, 1839, for Ebenezer Battelle, the proprietor, the streets to be ninety-one links and the alleys sixteen links in width." This is witnessed by the county surveyor, Benjamin F. Stone, and by the proprietors of the village, Ebenezer and Mary Battelle. The ground was surveyed anew May 27, 1839.

The following is the record of the vacation of the town plat by the original proprietor:

In the court of common pleas, September term, 1839, on application of Ebenezer Battelle, he having produced to the court satisfactory evidence that notice of his intention to vacate the town plat of Newport had been given according to law, and a statement in writing filed from the persons, to whom by verbal contract said Battelle had given an equitable claim on lots in said town, of their consent to said vacation. It is ordered by the court that said proprietor be permitted to vacate said town plat of Newport.

As the village now stands the main group of buildings is near the river, while along the county road, known as Green street, extending as far north as the Methodist church, the village is elongated by a continuous line of houses, mostly on the right hand side. The village contains about fifty houses and three hundred inhabitants. Its growth has been gradual, and has probably attained its maximum. Besides the steam flouring-mill there are no considerable manufacturing establishments. There are two blacksmith shops, one wagon shop, a cigar manufactory, a harness and a shoe shop, besides seven stores and three hotels. The number of general stores is as remarkable as is their general prosperity. The first regular store in the village was on the river bank opposite the store now owned by E. A. Jones, which was probably the second in the village. Mention has been made of the first hotel. The Cree house and the City hotel are the leading hotels at present, and are doing a good business. The resident physicians are Drs. McElhinney and Gale. The history of the Methodist and Baptist churches appear in another part of this work.

Fortunately there is no place in the village where liquor is sold. The people of Newport and vicinity have for many years been bitter enemies of intemperance. A few years ago there was an attempt to start a saloon at the southeast corner of Greene and Merchant streets. For a time the establishment flourished, and the proprietor began to hope that he would succeed. But one night a crowd, with perhaps more impatient enthusiasm on their side than law, unceremoniously stoned the saloon, breaking windows and creating havoc among the bottles within. One adventurous stone liquidated the saloonists' debts to the community by striking and turning the spigot of the "fire box," and thus deluging the floor with the stock in trade. In this way was the liquor business broken up in Newport, and the law-abiding citizens, while not in favor of violent measures, will see to it that there be no necessity for them in the future.

The post office is kept at the store of E. A. Jones, it having been previously kept at the Battelle residence.

The schools of Newport are exceptionally good, and are embraced in what is known as the Newport special school district, which was established in 1866. There are three buildings in this district, the two primary schools being at either extremity, and the graded school midway between them. The primary school in Newport is taught by Susan F. Moore, the primary school in the back settlement being taught by Julia Rea. Professor D. J. States has charge of the high school where the more advanced branches are taught. The building now occupied by this school was formerly the Methodist church. The schools are in a flourishing condition, and the good work of higher education is advancing in this intelligent community.

CHAPTER XLII.

SALEM TOWNSHIP.

The Four Watersheds—Mt. Pisgah—Anthony's Rock—A Township Rich in Soil and Coal—Singular Natural Water Works—Why Called Salem—Establishment—First Officers—How Salem was Settled—The First Family—From Youghiogheny to Marietta—A Crude Shelter—Improvements—The First Birth—The First Bereavement and Burial—Neighbors Arrive—The First "Hired Man"—A Poorly Furnished House—The Namesake of Noble County—A Colony leaves Salem—The First Colored Man—Beginning of Settlement Near Bonn—Other Settlers—Schools—Old Log School-houses—Wages of Old Time Teachers—Orthodox Text Books—Frame Buildings Erected—The First Cellar—Mills—Prehistoric Stone Cutters—Tanneries—Stores—A Temperance Society in 1822—Salem Obtains a Post Office—Physicians—The Oldest Church—A Temperance Plank in its Platform—Religious History—Odd Fellowship—Cemeteries—The Oldest—The Good Hope Cemetery—Other Graveyards—The Villages of Salem, Warner, and Bonn—An Attempt to Introduce the Manufacture of Silk.

THIS is the fourth township in the eighth range. It is in the shape of a parallelogram, six miles from east to west, and nearly five and a half miles from north to south, with the exception that a tract four miles east and west by a mile and a third from north to south is missing from the northwest corner. This space is occupied by the southern part of Aurelius township. The rest of the north boundary is Noble county, which also bounds the township for a half a mile on the east. For the rest, Liberty township lies to the east, Fearing and over half of Muskingum on the south, and Adams on the west.

The hills, though numerous here, are not so abrupt as those farther north. About a half mile east of Bear creek, the ridge or watershed between that stream and Duck creek enters and extends through the township nearly due north.

Passing through the southeast corner of Aurelius another ridge enters, separating the east and west forks of Duck creek.

In the northeast part, to the east of the East fork of Duck creek another watershed enters, extending approximately in a southwesterly direction and ending not far east of Salem village. A fourth dividing ridge controls the drainage of the southeastern part of the township in respect to the claims of Pawpaw and Duck creek.

It will be seen from this that with the single exception of Pawpaw valley, the drainage of the township is toward the south. All Salem belongs to the Duck creek basin, except a narrow north and south strip in the western part.

The rains that fall in this tract are carried to the Muskingum by Bear creek, which rises about a mile west of what is known as the Good Hope church, and flows south in an unusually, for this region, straightforward course, until it leaves the township, when it immediately turns west and finds the Muskingum.

Not so easily described is the course of Duck creek, for it waddles through the township in a most incomprehensible manner. The west branch crosses the Ludlow line about half way between the east and west boundaries of the township. It leaves the township, after being joined by the west fork, at a point due south. Its first large bend is a mile south of where it enters—thence if flows a little south of east, or as far as the "forks," a mile east of Salem village. The east fork enters in the north bounday, bisects the northern extension of the township, then flows southwesterly to the junction of the streams. The combined waters immediately proceed to form the first, or upper ox-bow, almost enclosing a triangle of land extending to the south a mile, and there having a breadth of over half a mile, while the northern neck is not wider than thirty rods. To advance this short distance, the stream goes about two miles. Turning, it flows south, parallel to the last mile of its former course, and when two miles away, it forms the second ox-bow, which is a narrow peninsula extending half a mile northwest. In three more marked bends, this meanderer leaves the township. From the right, the west fork receives the contents of Buell's run, whose waters are mostly from Aurelius township. The east branch is recruited by three runs, draining the northern extension, and the crooked Pawpaw creek, which enters the township a mile and a half north of the southeast corner, and flows west, then nearly north to Salem village.

At the first ox-bow are the sharply defined bluffs known as Mount Pisgah—a favorite resort for picnickers, and easily accessible by railroads. A couple of depressions in the rock resembling footprints are pointed out, doubtless to the great edification of the children at the Sunday-school picnics, as the place "where Moses stood, to view the landscape o'er."

The only other topographical feature that has received a name is "Anthony's Rock," on Pawpaw creek—a favorite resort for the pioneer, Anthony Perkins, in his hunting days. The soil is much richer than would appear to one used to the broad stretches of bottom land in some other parts of Ohio. It is largely made up of limestone of great fertilizing power, and on the ridges can produce many bushels of wheat per acre. Elsewhere, the land is very good corn land. Here, as in other places in the county, are many orchards, especially of apple and peach trees.

The native forests are of oak, chestnut, and kindred trees, sugar maple, walnut, beech, buckeye and the like. So far as known, Salem township is the richest in the county in coal. One seam is generally found roofed with a heavy sandstone, from which it derives its name. This deposit is undoubtedly the most extensive formation of coal in the county. On Bear creek it is thickest toward the north, having been mined when it was as thick as five feet. The coal in the Bowen mine, farther south, is three and a half feet thick. It was sent, as fast as mined, to the Muskingum, by means of a road up the creek, built for that purpose. But the best development of this seam is on Duck creek, especially in the hills bordering the East fork, and in different places between the two forks.

The limestone seam, or lower Salem coal, corresponds with the Pittsburgh seam. It appears in the lower course of Bear creek; on Duck creek, directly across the ridge and up that stream and the East fork; for miles along Pawpaw creek; in places along Coal run, a branch of the latter stream; near the village of Salem; and near the south line of the township on Moses Blake's farm, where it appears as cannel.* This seam thins to the north and disappears.

Oil has not been found in remunerative quantities at its present price. Several wells have been dug, however, along the East fork of Duck creek and along Pawpaw. In the upper end of Salem village, on the right bank of Duck creek, Mr. John Kiggins was sinking a well in October, 1880, and struck at the depth of six hundred and eighty-four feet, a vein of mineral water, which gives rise to some striking phenomena. Under the impulses of gas, it boils over the top about once every hour, and at irregular intervals, averaging forty-eight hours, perhaps, the impulsive force of the gas throws a vertical stream a hundred and fifty feet above the mouth of the well. This display excites considerable interest in the neighborhood and regularly attracts its quota of spectators at times when the "blast" is expected. This great supply of gas indicates the presence of petroleum somewhere in the neighborhood. The water has a strong odor, and tastes much like brine, although it is reported that no salt can be obtained from it by boiling. Many believe it to be of great medicinal virtue.

ESTABLISHMENT.

Salem was originally a part of Adams. But the following petition was handed in to the court of quarter sessions, part of whose business it was to establish townships:

To the Honorable Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the County of Washington:

GENTLEMEN: Your petitioners, the inhabitants of Duck Creek, beg your honors to take into consideration the local situation they are in from other settlements, and whereas, your honors at your last session in March did at that time form the different settlements into towns, and at the same time put us, the inhabitants of Duck Creek, into an association with the inhabitants of Virgin Bottom, Rainbow, Cattle Creek, and Bear Creek (into one town called by the name of Adams), whose situation is inconvenient for us to associate with as respects a town by reason of the inconvenience of passing the hills and ridges where it is not practicable to make roads to pass from Duck Creek to Muskingum at the same time, our numbers are almost if not quite equal to some of the other towns already laid out by your Honors being in number on Duck Creek thirty-four families and upwards of sixty men capable of bearing arms.

For this and other good motives, your petitioners request your Honors would take the matter into consideration, and make a division in the town of Adams west by a division line between the waters of Duck Creek and Muskingum, and as far south as Shephard's old mills, so called, as far as your Honors in their wisdom shall judge best.

We also would inform that the people on Duck creek did on the second day of May last, make choice of us, the subscribers, to prefer a petition to your Honors for the above mentioned purposes.

DUCK CREEK, June 3, 1797.

[Signed],

Levi Chapman,
John Amlin,
John Amlin, sr.,
Joel Tuttle,
John Campbell,
Jonathan Delong,
Samuel Fulton,
Samuel Nash,
Robert Colewell,
Seth Tolman,
Benjamin Tolman,
Samuel Amlin,

James Amlin,
Jonathan Amlin,
Conrad Rightner,
Joseph Chapman,
Daniel Bradstreet,
Patrick Campbell,
Robert Campbell,
Daniel Campbell,
Ebenezer Tolman, Uriah Wheeler,
Amos Porter,
Amos Porter, jr.

*Compiled from E. B. Andrews in Ohio geological report.

[Indorsed].

Petition from the inhabitants of Duck Creek relative to a division of the township, received June, 1797.

By the Court ordered on file.

Salem bounded north on the northern boundary line of the county, east on the west boundary line of the seventh range, south on Marietta township, and west on a line which shall be parallel to, and one mile east of the western boundary of the eighth range.

CAPTAIN NASH, assessor.

LEVI CHAPMAN, constable.

These last two names are the appointment of the court, and hence were the first officers of the township.

The word Salem in this document is probably a memorandum of the christening. Many of the first settlers were from near Salem, Massachusetts, which sufficiently accounts for the name.

In the journal of the above court appears this entry, dated the first Tuesday of December, 1797:

The court proceeded to establish a new township by the name of Salem. Samuel Nash appointed assessor for said township of Salem.

The first changes in the boundary of this township were made March 8, 1808, when Fearing was established, thus cutting away over three miles from the south end of the township, in compensation the commissioners on the same day:

Ordered that the west range of sections in township four in eighth range formerly belonging to Adams, be attached to the town of Salem.

In December, 1818, when Aurelius township was established, sections Nos. 25, 26 and 27, and fractional sections Nos. 34, 35 and 36 were excepted from that township, they being reserved for Salem.

In the June session, 1842, the commissioners:

Resolved, That section twenty-seven and fractional section thirty-four in township five, range eight, heretofore belonging to township Salem, is hereby annexed to Aurelius.

It will be seen that these changes leave Salem its present size and shape.

The township officers in the territorial days, before 1802, were appointed by the court of quarter sessions. The two officers first appointed we have noticed. In March, 1798, they were: Ephraim True, Amos Porter, jr., overseers of the Poor; Levi Chapman, constable; Richard Maxon, Ebenezer Tolman, supervisors of highways; Andrew Gaylor, Dudley Davies, fence viewers. On the second Tuesday of May, 1800, the officers were: Allen Putnam, constable, vice Henry Maxon, resigned; Samuel Nash, Joel Tuttle, and John Amlin, supervisors of the highway; Dudley Davis, Andrew Galor, Seth Tolman, fence viewers; Ephraim True, Amos Porter, jr., Joseph Chapman, committee of freeholders; Ephraim True, Amos Porter, overseers of the poor. The present township officers are: Joseph Elliott, John Thomas, Charles Schrumm, trustees; Walter Thomas, clerk; Theobald Young, treasurer; C. J. Pfaff, assessor; William J. Sprout, Pemberton Palmer, justices of the peace. Township elections were formerly held in an old log church, hereafter to be mentioned.

The first elections for representative to general assembly were: first—William R. Putnam, thirty-two; Griffin Greene, two; Elijah Backus, thirty; second—in October, 1802—William Rufus Putnam, thirty-eight; Ephraim Cutler, thirty-eight; Griffin Greene, one; William Wells, one. In 1880 Garfield electors received one hundred and eighty-nine votes; Hancock electors, one hundred and ninety-nine.

The population of the township in 1840 was eight hundred and eighty-one; in 1860, one thousand five hundred and twenty-seven; in 1870, one thousand six hundred and ten, which, added to one hundred and eighty-seven in Salem village, makes one thousand seven hundred and ninety-seven; in 1880 it was one thousand six hundred and thirty-eight.

SETTLEMENT.

The first family that settled in what is now Salem township is supposed to have been that of Amos Porter. As a biographical sketch of the family is given elsewhere in this work, it will not be necessary to make further mention of them in this place.

Soon after the arrival of the Porters came Samuel Nash and Jonathan Delong. Captain Nash established himself on lot No. 18, just above Salem village on Duck creek. His farm included the site of Salem village. He was, as has been seen, the first assessor of the township. His children were David, Chester, one daughter, who afterwards became Mrs. Fuller, and two or three other girls. A number of years before 1816, he sold his farm and moved away.

Jonathan Delong first settled on Pawpaw about a mile and a half from its mouth. He sold this farm to Samuel Fulton and moved on Duck creek, on the north side of the lower "ox bow." He was a very shrewd man, and one of the foremost in the neighborhood. His children were: Isaac, who died at Macksburg, Jonathan, David, James, Chauncey, Mary, and Lydia. He died in Salem, and was buried on his own farm.

Ebenezer, Seth, and Benjamin Tolman came at this period, and entered the adjoining lots, nine, six, and twelve, above Samuel Nash. They were also from Massachusetts. Ebenezer and Benjamin, soon after, moved down to the forks of the creek, and afterwards up the West fork. Benjamin Tolman and his wife, Elizabeth, had the following children: Jerusha, who married John True, an early school teacher, Eben, Chester, Joel, Nancy, and Urania. Seth Tolman's wife was a Miss Reed. His children were: George, Silas, James, Ora, and several daughters. Just before Benjamin settled on the West fork of Duck creek, he and his brother Seth went to Urbana, whence Seth went to Iowa, and remained there until his death.

The father of Benjamin and Seth Tolman started with them from the east, but while on the road he, from some cause, fell before a moving wagon, which crushed the life from him.

Then came to the settlement Mr. McCune, and made his home at the mouth of Pawpaw creek. His children were Mary, Hannah, and one other. Mr. McCune was a day laborer, and found employment among the neighboring farmers. He left the settlement about 1809.

Samuel Fulton bought the place of Mr. DeLong when a man of, perhaps, forty-five years. About the same time he married Louisa Jackson. He had a family of five or six children.

Dudley Davis was a soldier of the Revolution who came with a comrade, Levi Dains. He built his house on the right bank of Duck creek, in the first bend below the lower ox-bow, and entered lot number sixty-two. He afterwards removed to Noble county. Mention of him may be found in the history of Aurelius township, in connection with Indian run. He was a justice of the peace, and had the honor of performing the marriage ceremony for each one of his seven or eight children.

John Noble was another of this community, living on the south side of the lower ox-bow. He soon moved up to a settlement in the county that now bears his name.

In these times, too, there was living in the neighborhood one named Ogle. He lived two miles south of the forks, in a hollow, named, at that time, after him, and remarkable for its low temperature. Ogle's children were George, William, and James. The father died in the settlement, and the children moved northward to the Caldwell settlement, where James acquired quite a fortune. In this connection it may be remarked that very many from Salem settlement, about the year 1810, went to the Caldwell settlement, forming a nucleus about which has clustered the present people and improvements of Noble county.

Other settlers who were present when the township was established were Robert Campbell and Robert Colewell, or Caldwell.

Campbell took up his abode near where Salem village is, on the other side of the creek. One of his children was Patrick Campbell, whose name occurs elsewhere in the county history.

Caldwell, as the name has since become, soon made a part of the north settlement just referred to, and from his family the city in Noble county gets its name.

Richard Fisher, a mulatto, was in the settlement before October, 1801. He lived on the West fork of Duck creek. The course of true love between himself and his wife did not run smooth. Separations frequently occurred, and after each one they considered it necessary to be re-united by a justice, thus keeping 'Squire Porter in steady and light employment.

By the beginning of 1798 Anthony Perkins had moved into lot No. 116, just south of the present village of Bonn. Three years later, William Perkins moved into the adjoining farm where his son Ezra now lives. He died in 1816, aged about fifty-five. His wife, Elizabeth Oatly, died in 1816, being in the neighborhood of fifty-three years of age.

The children of Ezra Perkins are Percival, Asa, Augustus, Ezra, Osborne, Mrs. Doane, Mrs. Thomas, at Salem village, and Mrs. Bennett, of Louisville, Kentucky.

In 1808 Ephraim True moved from what is now Fearing township to the farm in Salem township which is now occupied by his son Moses. Ephraim True was born in Salisbury, Massachusetts, in 1756. He came west first in 1789 and again in 1796. In 1807 or 1808 he married Betsy Amlin, whose father settled about the same time as Mr. True did. Both men were in the Revolutionary war.

Moses True, Ephraim's son, was born in 1810 in the township, and has spent his seventy years in the old place. He was married in 1836 to Mehitabel Alden. Of their seven children, five are living: Melvin C., Wilbur L., Hiram, Abbie L., and Julia. All but one live in the county and that one lives in Monroe county. Moses True has held various offices in the township.

Melvin C. True married Mixenda Hovey in 1867. Three children have been born to them—Eugenie Mabel, Annie G., and Clarke E. Mr. M. C. True served as sergeant in the army in the Thirty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry during the civil war, and was lieutenant colonel of the militia regiment organized in Salem since the war.

By this time the settlers were so numerous that it would occupy beyond the limits allotted to mention them in detail. A few, only, of the many representative ones will be noticed.

The first one to settle in Salem, on Bear creek, was David Jackson, who married Sarah Morris and, about 1807, located near the stream opposite where is now the Good Hope church. The children of this pioneer couple were Hugh, David, Robert, Mary, Rebecca, Margaret (now at Harrierville), Ruhama, Jane, Nancy, Sally, Betsy (now at Newport), and Phoebe. All are dead but three. Jane married Joseph Reed in 1817, and moved to Caldwell, Noble county, but returned in 1836 to near Schrumm's mill, West fork of Duck creek. She is now living in Salem village, an aged lady of eighty-four years, and the mother of six sons and five daughters.

Daniel Ward came to Ohio in 1808, and lived the greater part of his life in Salem township, arriving about 1810.

Benjamin Gould came to the settlement from Massachusetts, where he was born in 1767, October 3rd. He came to Washington county, Marietta township, in 1808. Thence he removed to Salem township in 1813. He died in 1849. His son, Ephraim Gould, was born in 1805, in Massachusetts, and still lives at the well known Gould place with his daughter, Miss Annie Gould. His connection with the old temperance society and the Methodist church on his place is given elsewhere.

Isaiah Hallett was a settler in 1813, coming with his family from Kennebec county, Maine, where he was born. He is said to have made the first pegged shoe made in Washington county. He had seven children—Ruthey, Orrellane, Solomon, Isaiah, Isaac, Hannah, and Zenas. Solomon, Hannah, Isaac, and Zenas are living.

Orrellane Hallett was born in Maine in 1807, and came to Washington county with his father in 1813. In 1831 he married Lucy L. Blake. They had seven children—Mary A., Lynda, Angenora, Corwin, Cynthia, Howard, and Anna. All but Corwin are living, Lynda in Kansas, Cynthia in Noble county, and the rest in Washington county. Captain Howard Hallett served three years in the Twenty-fifth Ohio volunteer infantry, and is now captain of the Salem guards.

In 1770 the pioneer, Simeon Blake, was born. He came to Adams township first, and died in Noble county in 1833. By 1801 he had moved into what is now Fearing township, on the farm now occupied by John Flanders. He served as captain of the militia. His wife, Lavina Peck, was born in Connecticut, and died in 1843. Of the children, two are living—Simeon, in Illinois, and Matilda. Simeon Blake, jr., grandson of the pioneer, and son of Benjamin Blake, was born January 18, 1822. He married Mary J. Cunningham in 1840, and has had eight children, three of whom are living—Susan, Jane, and Edward. His second wife, Diana Morgan, he married in 1875. He is a general farmer in Salem township.

John McGee was an early settler who came with his wife, Mary Higgins, in 1814, and built his house on the east bank of Duck creek, west of Amos Porter's. He was born in 1790 and died in 1861. His wife, though born in 1795, is still living in the place and is the mother of Joseph, Ann, Eliza, Rebecca, Henry H., Diantha, Sarah, Sophia, Julia, Martha, John, Clark, Barker, Mary, and Francis. Her father and mother were Joseph and Mary Higgins, who settled on the Ohio river.

A man by the name of Babson settled in Aurelius at first, and afterwards removed to Salem. He was born in 1795, in Gloucester, Massachusetts, whence he emigrated. His marriage to Nancy Marr occurred in 1818. He has three sons and six daughters: John and Oliver, who live in Athens county; Albert, yet in Salem; and Sarah Ann, Mary, Betsy, Lydia, and Francis. Mary died in Iowa; the rest are living.

Lot Hull came to Salem township about the year 1819. Of his children, John and Darius are in Illinois, L. R. and Charlotte Kelly are in Salem township.

Henry Schofield has been in the township since 1824. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1809, his father being William Schofield.

Richard Doane came to the county in 1807. He was born about 1765 and died in 1823. His wife was Anna Post, who died in her seventieth year in 1846. They were married about 1798. They came first to Noble county from Cincinnati, where both were born. Richard Doane enlisted in the Revolutionary war when only sixteen years old. His children were Curtis, Lyman, Ashael, Anna, Philo, Joshua, Linda, Diana, Richard, William, and Lydia.

Curtis Doane married Esther Chapman, in 1825. The children are Richard, David C., E. P., J. M., A. S., E. T., H. P., and L. C., all in Washington county. Curtis died in 1880.

E. P. Doane was born in 1832, and married Mary A. Babson, in 1859. His children are Curtis and Preston. He is a carpenter and undertaker by trade.

S. C. Doane was born in 1846 and married Pauline Fuller, of Marietta, in 1876. They have one child, Guy Frederick. Mr. Doane is a farmer and lives on the old homestead.

H. C. Hovey, another one who has passed the limit of three score and ten, is living in Salem township, having been born in New York in 1797. He married Clarissa Stanley, and his children, Benjamin, Simon and Lucy, are now in Illinois; Mary and Lucinda are in Kansas, and G. S. and Mixenda C. are in Salem. G. S. Hovey married Mary A. Hallett. Their three children are Judso H., Grace R., and Alice E., who married Jacob Matz of Salem township. Although he did not come into what is now Salem until 1830, Mr. H. C. Hovey is really a much older resident, as he moved first into Fearing in 1818, at the age of twenty-one. His mother was born in 1761, and died in 1858. He married Clarissa Stanley in November, 1822. His wife was born in 1803, in Fearing. His father, Thomas Stanley, died there in 1816.

John R. Hardy came to the State about 1830, and settled first on the Western Reserve. He was born in Maine in 1812, commenced the practice of medicine in 1846. In 1831 he married Julia M. Goodrich. Three children were born to them—M. V., Susan C., and Andrew J. Susan is Mrs. P. Palmer; M. V. has chosen the profession of his father, and has been engaged in it since 1853. In 1854 he married Adaline Collins and now has three children: John C., who is a practicing physician, Ella F., and Edward. John R. was married the second time, in 1840, and has had two children—James M. and Josephine. The latter is dead. James M. was born in 1844, was three years in the Seventh Ohio cavalry, in which he was corporal, and was married to Miss Mary E. Miller in 1872, by whom he had three children—Eva May, Maurice Luther, and Arthur Garfield, the latter born in 1880.

Joseph Palmer came to Washington, Ohio, as early as 1818. He was born in 1815 in New Hampshire. In 1837 he married Matilda Ward, and by her had three children, the youngest being dead. His daughter married Jacob Flanders and now lives in Kansas; Milo L. lives at Whipple, married to Mary J. Flanders since 1861. Both his children, Edward W. and Dudley R., are living. Mr. Joseph Palmer was justice of the peace twenty four years. Miles L. served two years and ten months in the Seventh Ohio cavalry. Mrs. Joseph Palmer died in 1861, aged forty-five years.

Thomas Bay was born in Germany in 1797; emigrated to Philadelphia in 1835, moved to Pittsburgh in 1836, and to this county in 1837, settling in Salem township on a farm. He now lives in Marietta. He married Miss S. Gruisharber, born in Germany in 1804, and by her has had six children, of whom four survive, viz: Thomas, in Salem township; Jacob, in Lowell; Samuel, on the old Salem homestead, and William Lewis.

George Stanley, another settler of the township, has now a representative descendant by the name of W. W. Stanley, who married Ida Babson in 1876. He served in the army in the Twelfth Ohio volunteer infantry, and was wounded at South Mountain in the arm.

Willard Twiggs was born in 1836 in Salem township. In 1865 he was married to Jane Blake. Soon after his marriage he removed to Salem village, where he now resides. Mr. and Mrs. Twiggs have two children. Mr. Twiggs is an artist by profession. He has been constable for the last fifteen or twenty years.

David W. Schofield was born in the township in 1832. In 1856 he married Miss Drucilla Marshall, a native of Virginia. There have been born to them three children, two of whom are now living; the oldest, Lilly M., married G. W. Stanley; the name of the other is Mary E.

Since 1865 Mr. Schofield has been a merchant at Warren. Previously he was engineer on Ohio, Mississippi and Red river steamboats. During the war he was in the service of the Government.

In 1806 Asa Doane came to the county and took up his residence in Fearing. He was born in 1802 in Saybrook, Connecticut, whence he came to this county. In 1825 he married Sarah Stanley. He had five children, four of whom are now living: Emily, William A., Harriet A., and Armarilla G. Asa Doane first settled at Stanleyville and afterwards returned to Salem, where he now lives. By patient and honest toil he has become owner of a farm of one hundred and twenty-seven acres near Salem village.

William A. Doane was born in 1832 on the farm where he now lives. In 1855 he married Annie Palmer, by whom he has had thirteen children, ten of whom are now living.

In 1836 Jacob Lauer came to the county from Germany. His wife's name was Barbara, and she was the mother of seven children, viz: Jacob, now living in Salem township; Theobald, Daniel, Phœbe Hahn, in Tuscarawas county; and Catharine, Margaret, and John, who are dead.

Daniel Lauer and his wife, Catharine, had five children—all living. His second wife was Mary Kilthary.

George P. Lauer, born in 1796, died in 1869, came from Bavaria to Ohio and made his home in Salem township in 1840. His wife, Margaret, lived from 1791 to 1875. His children were as follows: Jacob, Margaret, who is the wife of John Gearhart, of Muskingum township; and Elizabeth, who married Lewis Plaff, and moved to Missouri, where both died. Jacob lives in Salem township. George Lauer was a member of the council, and acted as clerk for a village in Rhinephalz, Bavaria. Jacob Lauer's children are as follows: George, Jacob, Daniel, William (now in Nebraska), Lewis (now in Nebraska), Christopher, Magdalene, and Mary. Jacob Lauer married Catharine Close in January, 1847, has been elected to different township offices, and still lives on the old homestead. His son George keeps a dry goods and grocery store in Salem village. His father founded this business under the name of J. Lauer & Son in 1868.

L. Haas, born in Bavaria in 1789, came to Salem township in 1840 from Pennsylvania, where he had been four years. He was one of Napoleon's soldiers for four years, and engaged in the battles at Moscow and Waterloo. In 1809 he married Sophia Lorentz, in Bavaria. His children are Mrs. Elizabeth Trapp, of Lowell; Matthias Haas, of Warner; Christina, who is unmarried, and Valentine, of Salem township. The latter married Joanna M. Boger in 1841, and has these children, all living: Charles, Wallace, Jacob, William, Elizabeth, and Rosa.

William Kelly came to the county in 1824 from Pennsylvania, and settled first in Fearing township. He was born in 1788, and died in 1870. His wife's name was Elizabeth Scott, and their children were called John, William, and Margaret. William Kelly, jr., is the representative of the family in Salem. He married Charlotte

Hall in 1842, and has had eleven children. Eight are living: Lucy, Calvin, William R., Mary J., Elizabeth, Clara, John, and Charles.

Franz Reiss, born in Germany in 1793, emigrated to this county in 1835, and two years later, in the spring of 1837, came to Salem township, this county, where he resided until his death in October, 1840. He was married in 1815 to Susan Wendell, and had a family of five boys and six girls. Peter, the second child, was born in Bavaria, Germany, in 1817; came to Salem township with his father in 1837, and in 1849 settled in Adams, where he has since resided. In September, 1843, he was married to Christena, daughter of Henry Mattern. She is also a native of Germany, born in 1822. Mr. Reiss was formerly in the mercantile business in Lowell, but is now proprietor of a tannery in that place.

Henry Mattern emigrated to this country from Germany, where he was born in 1790, and settled in this township, where he resided until his death in 1860. He was the father of four children—George, Christina, Madaline, and Philip, all living but Madaline.

David Hunter, born in Pennsylvania in 1801, settled in Salem township, this county, in 1841, and died in Marietta in 1856. By his wife, Elizabeth Mellan, he had seven children, of whom five survive, viz: John in Illinois; Samuel, and David, Lavina and Amanda are in West Virginia. Samuel Hunter was born in Pennsylvania in 1833; married Ellen Ritchie, who was born in 1832. Their three children are dead. They have an adopted son, Emerson Burnett Hunter. Mr. Hunter has a farm of sixty-seven acres in Newport township, where he resides.

William Best, born in Bavaria in 1801, emigrated to Washington county, Ohio, in 1840, and located in Salem township. In 1824 he married Catharine Burkey, who died in 1832. Two of the four children are living—William and George C. The latter, born in 1825, married Hannah Snyder, by whom he has had seven children, all living. In 1865 he engaged in the grocery business in Marietta, in which business he is still engaged.

One of the natives of the township is Mr. Samuel Bay, who was born in 1844, and married Henrietta M. Conrad, by whom he has three children—Mary C., Henry, and Louis William. He has a farm in Salem township, and makes a specialty of stock-raising and stock-dealing. He has been supervisor two or three terms, and is a member of the order of Odd Fellows.

Paul Smith came to the county in 1845 with his son J. L., who was born in Bavaria, Germany, in 1835. Paul had four other children—Eva B., in Noble county; J. J., in Quincy, Illinois; Katy and Michael, in Salem township.

William Thomas came from Wales originally, and emigrated from Pennsylvania to Ohio in 1848. He was born in 1810, and is therefore now seventy-one years of age. Besides serving the township in various official capacities, he has been county commissioner several terms. The children of himself and his wife, who was Eliza Ruse, are Walter, Margaret, Ruse, David, John,

Jane, Mary and William. Ruse married Angenora Babson in 1866, and has two children, Freddie K. and William W. He has been township clerk, and is now postmaster at Lower Salem. He was in the Third Ohio volunteer infantry over three years, and is a merchant.

In 1849 Pemberton Palmer moved into Salem township from Fearing, where he had been living since he was three years old. He was born in Liberty township in 1827. In 1852 he married Susan C. Hardy. Three boys and three girls were the remainder of the family. One died. Moses and John married respectively Matilda and Catherine Beck. Julia is Mrs. William Wolfert. Clarence and Maud are still at home. Pemberton Palmer has served the county as commissioner, has taken great interest in agricultural societies, attending fairs in many places, and is prominently connected with the county board of agriculture.

John A. Palmer was born October 12, 1829, and died March 26, 1863. In 1856 he married Margaret A. McAfee. Two children were the result of this union—Eva, who died in 1863; and Ida, who was born in 1861.

Frederick Boye came to Salem at the close of the year 1849. He was born in the kingdom of Hanover, June 11, 1796, and his death occurred March 27, 1878. The maiden name of his wife was Christina Belmann, and their children are F. W. and Theodore, at Cincinnati; Philip and Almer, in Salem township; Ernest, in Salem township; August, farming in Colorado; and Bertha, married to David Thomas.

Joseph Elliot was another accession to the township in 1850. He was born in 1835, in Morgan county, Ohio. He is a stock dealer and farmer, and has held several local offices. The name of his wife was Susan Blake, whom he married in 1858. His children are Mary E., who is now at home, and Charles E., who died in infancy. His parents, John and Mary, came from the State of Pennsylvania.

John Haskins was born in 1809. He married Mehitabel Littlefield, by whom he had six children, Joanna, Roswell, David, Lydia, John, and Sarah. Joanna is in Liberty township, Roswell in Salem, Lydia in Noble county, David in Salem, John in Salem, and Sarah is dead.

David Haskins married Mary Sutton. They have three children, who live at home—Victoria, Oscar, and Eunice.

Jacob Matz, sr., a native of Germany, came to Salem from Pennsylvania in 1855. He married Catharine Kilzer, and their children are Carrie, who married O. J. Pfaff, of Salem; Catharine, who is unmarried; George, the husband of Elizabeth Stom, of Salem; Jacob, jr., who married, in 1878, Alice Hovey; Henry, who died young; Emma, wife of Frederick Feldner; and Elizabeth, widow of Matthew Haas.

Thomas Mathews came to Noble county from Maryland about 1828. He was married to Maria Magruder about 1822. They had six children, five of whom are living. Mrs. Mathews died in 1875. Mr. Mathews is now in Louisiana. Their son, William P., born in 1823, moved into Salem township, Washington county, in 1839.

He married Jerusha True in 1845. They have one child living, Allen, a young man of twenty-two years. Mr. Mathews has a farmer and is engaged principally in shipping stock.

German Hall was born in 1805. His wife, Edith Chandler, was born in 1812. They were married in 1830. Their children are: Phœbe, in Indiana; W. D., in Salem; Nancy, in Salem; Elizabeth, in Warner; Norman, dead; Mary, in Iowa; Eunice, in Salem; James A., in Salem township; Rebecca, in Iowa; and Lydia J., in Macksburgh. German Hall died in Salem township in 1863. He was a farmer and was several times called upon to serve the township in an official capacity. His son, James Hall, was married to Jane Longfellow in 1869, and their offspring are Minnie, Edith, Blanche, and Ara.

George Kilzer is a native of Germany, born in 1820, who arrived in Salem in 1858, in which township he has been engaged in running a steam-mill. His wife's name was Catharine Burkhard. His sister, Mrs. Matz, is also in the township. A brother is in Columbus, and a brother and sister are in Noble county.

David Feldner was born July 5, 1837. His parents came from Germany. In 1862 he married Rebecca Elliott, who was born in Morgan county, Ohio, July 26, 1842. Their only child, Charles H., is now eighteen years old. Mr. Feldner has a farm in Salem township and pays especial attention to stock-raising and shipping.

Daniel G. Stanley came to Marietta from Massachusetts when a small boy. He was born May 4, 1785, and his wife, Rosella Putnam, was born two years later. They were married December 27, 1807. They had the following children: Anna, Lot Putnam, James, Thomas, Lydia Porter, Rosella, Daniel G., Mary Augusta, and Augustus Little, who died in the shipwreck of the General Warren, at the mouth of the Columbia. Lot P. was killed in the Confederate army in the seven days' fight about Richmond. All but James are dead.

James Stanley was born in 1813, in Washington county. He was married in 1837 to Grace Racer. They have had six children: Susannah, Benjamin, Thomas J., Charles W., Joseph L., and James H. Thomas J. was killed at Cloyd's Mountain, May 9, 1864, aged twenty-two; C. W. and J. H. are living. The former is a merchant in Salem village, and the latter a farmer in the township. Mr. Stanley served through the civil war, coming out as captain.

Moses Blake was born October 30, 1820, in Fearing township, whither his parents had come from Maine. He lived in Fearing township until about 1849, when he moved to the farm in Salem township now occupied by his son Benjamin. Mr. Blake married Martha J. Chapman in 1845. They had five children: Hannah D., born July 22, 1847; Benjamin, born January 14, 1851; George, born December 1, 1852; John, born June 1, 1856; and Charles, born December 27, 1860. George is a merchant in Salem village; John has a farm in the township, and makes a specialty of thoroughbred Devon cattle; Charles owns a farm adjoining the old homestead; Benjamin owns the old home farm, where he lives, paying most of his attention to sheep-raising, making a specialty of thoroughbred sheep; Hannah D. is dead.

EARLY EVENTS.

The earliest residents of the township being mostly from New England, and especially from Massachusetts, schools were no doubt established at a very early date, in fact, the oldest ones now living remember log school-houses in different localities, but do not know who first taught in them, or when they were built. It is known that John True kept a school in Salem about the year 1807. His salary would hardly be satisfactory to the school teacher of to-day. It was ten hard (and hard-earned) dollars every month. With this he was expected to feed and clothe himself and lay by the rest for the proverbial rainy day.

About 1813, in the summer, Rebecca Perkins, a young lady of twenty or twenty-one, taught a school in the house of Amos Porter, jr.; she was a daughter of Hannah Perkins and a niece of Anthony Perkins.

A log school-house stood on the Magee place at a very early date. Probably the first teacher in it was Barton Wells, who taught there one summer. The second school-house was built on the opposite side of the little run that traverses the farm. This was one of the houses in which John True taught. These schools were attended by the neighborhood children that have been mentioned in the preceding pages. The text books were Testament and the spelling book. The "Bible in the schools" was a question not mooted at that time.

It is not known just when or by whom the custom of building their dwellings from logs was broken in upon, but it is known that the frame house of Seth Tolman was standing at a very early date, and that Squire Ira Hil built a frame house very early. The house of Amos Porter, jr., in which Rebecca Perkins held her school, was also a frame. It was situated over a cellar dug in a hill—this being probably the first cellar in the township.

At the beginning of the War of 1812, the Porter brothers determined to introduce frame barns instead of the old log structures. At the barn raising at Amos Porter's, a recruiting officer appeared upon the scene from Marietta. The men in those days were brave and quick in their decisions, so in an amazingly short time, six men who had gone to the place with the expectation of merely aiding a neighbor in the peaceful construction of a shelter, enrolled their names and devoted themselves to the aid of the Nation, the destruction of her foes, the strengthening of the great shelter of government. These men were Amri Sutton, Thomas Taylor, Hugh Jackson, James Walker, "Doc" DeLong, and one whose name was forgotten. The latter alone was killed. The term of enlistment was three years.

In those early and unartificial times, every one was direct in his dealings with others, free in his opinions, rough and practical in his jokes. Yet neighbors were bound strong in friendship, and, as one who lived there recently remarked, "It seemed as if neighbors thought more of each other then, than kinsefolk do now." This is not to be wondered at, for though human nature changes as little, perhaps, as anything else, yet the loneliness of the surroundings, the scarcity of help, a common lot of hardships and danger, bound stronger than ties of blood alone. As an illustration of the broad, rough ways, though occurring later than the earlier days of the settlement, old residents will remember the trick played on John Mead, about 1825. At one of these "mutual aid societies," a barn raising or similar assembly. They were gathering the briars away from some patch of ground, and quite a heap had been collected at the foot of a hill. John with many others was proceeding toward the heap, arms full of the prickly things and grasping them with gingerly embrace. John himself had ducked somebody in the creek sometime before and somebody was going to get even. Suddenly Mr. Mead was tripped up and forward upon his burden that felt anything but a bed of roses. As he rolled permiscuously down the hill, others paved the way with their thorny bundles, and so, betimes, he plunged into the great brush heap below. Some thoughtless one set fire to it. In an instant the mass was ablaze, and John was dragged out by one leg as a brand from the burning, his clothes hanging in strips. The only complete covering he had was the scratches of briars. But he took it goodnaturedly after all, so it is said, which is the most marvelous part of the story.

Considering that the whole business of these early communities was to produce grain, a comparatively useless article until taken to mill and ground, it is not strange that the few mills then in existence were so crowded with work.

At first the inhabitants of Salem went down Duck creek to mills near Marietta, or over to the Muskingum by horse-paths, or, later, to Dr. Regnier's mills in Aurelius; and many a trip did the farmer make after his pulverized grist only to find it lying where he left it with many unground grists ahead of him yet. As one who knew by experience remarked, "It seemed as if I went a hundred miles after one grist." In such cases the ingenuity of the housewife would be sorely taxed to get up a meal without meal, and contrive to appease the appetites of the young and growing "flower of the family" when the bottom of the flour barrel had been reached long ago. It was not until near 1820 that Elisha Allen erected a mill in the township, on Duck creek, below the lower ox-bow. This was the first. He had built a saw-mill at the same place a short time before.

Shortly after Thomas Porter constructed a horse-mill that helped to meet the wants of the community.

The first steam saw-mill was built by S. N. Merriam on upper ox bow in 1831, followed by his steam grist-mill in 1832. He hired John Magee to get out the mill-stones. Mr. Magee went south of the upper ox-bow and worked out a stone that lay under a layer a foot thick. It is said that above the quarry grew an oak tree perhaps eighteen inches in diameter. Altogether it is quite reasonable to suppose that no human hand had touched the stone for centuries upon centuries. Yet he found that a line had been chiseled across it and wedges inserted, but failed to split the rock since they were working across the grain. The unknown workmen, or workman, had knocked out all the wedges but one, which the rock had held too tightly, and there was the wedge, just such a short iron instrument as quarrymen use to-day. Mr. Magee cut out the stone, leaving the wedge in it, and there it staid in the upper mill-stone of Merriam's mill, a sight for the curious. The stones were afterward removed and placed in a mill near the mouth of Bear creek, and the mill being disused and dismantled they probably lie there to-day. Now who made that iron wedge? Does it prove that the "stone age" is more ancient than has been supposed, or that rock can be deposited much faster than geology has allowed?

Another mill was built by William Mackintosh in 1836 or 1837. This was on the site occupied by Boye's mill to-day.

The first tannery in the township was the enterprise of Thomas Gilkerson, and was carried on as early, probably, as 1813; certainly before 1816. The enterprise was brought to a conclusion by the removal of himself and wife, who was Sarah DeLong, to the Caldwell settlement.

In 1820 Thomas Porter built a tannery about a hundred yards below the residence of Almer Porter. In the fall of 1832 he set in operation another on the hill south of Salem village.

Before Mr. Merriam built his mill, he kept a store, probably about the year 1829. At about the same time, part of Elisha Allen's mill was utilized for mercantile purposes, but whether Merriam's or the store in Allen's mill was the first in the township, is unsettled. The probability is in favor of the latter.

In 1832 or 1833 Daniel Hill kept a store about a mile and a half from Salem, on the Aurelius road. He resorted to the store of William Mackintosh, at Macksburgh for his stock.

The first Sunday-schools in the place were held by Daniel J. Stanley, in a school-house, and by William Porter, John Magee, and the Goulds, about 1825.

Very near the year 1822 arose what was a very remarkable organization for the times when everybody drank "good whiskey," and considered it a necessity at the social and industrial merrymaking and assemblies. It is claimed that this organization in question was the first temperance society in the west. The honor of its establishment belongs to Ephraim Gould, then a youth of seventeen years, and his brother Dennis, nineteen years old. While working in the field the idea occurred to Ephraim that whiskey was doing more harm than good, and that a society that would induce people to do without it would be a benefit. Together with Dennis, then fresh from Lane seminary, and full of the ardor of reform, he arranged a pledge that they called "teetotal"—thus divorcing it completely from the old Washingtonian movement. The first members were the immediate members of the family, and by means similar to those now in use, such as home-made speeches, persuasion, and the like, others were induced to sign, until the list comprised the great part of the community. Mr. Ephraim Gould, for one, has kept his vow in all its strictures, ever since.

In a few years after this, the first post office was granted to the township. Daniel J. Stanley was the first postmaster, and held his office about 1827. Before that, the people in the northern part of the township went to Macksburgh for their mail.

For many years after the settlement, the people of Salem were obliged to send to Marietta for their medical attendance. In this way Drs. Hildreth and Regnier were well known to all. It was not till about 1837 or 1838 that a physician established an office among the Salem people. This was Dr. William Hield. Since then, there have been at various times, Dr. Owens, Dr. Stone, Dr. Rose, Dr. Bishop, Dr. Samuel McGeary, Dr. Blackledge, and Dr. J. R. Hardy, who began his practice in 1848. At present there are Drs. J. M. Hardy, M. V. Hardy, and G. W. Blake.

CHURCHES.

Salem township is remarkable for the number of its churches. The first one organized was the old Presbyterian church. It started in Fearing township. Members were the Stanleys, Chapmans, William Perkins (who was a deacon), Messrs. Fulton, Davis, Linn, Swan, and others. From a sketch, drawn from the records by Mrs. George Hovey, it appears that the first meeting recorded was on April 25, 1810. James Amlin and Jesse Baldwin were declared elders. May 6, 1810, the first session convened at the house of Rev. James Cunningham. The first death in the church was that of Mrs. McMillen, in Fearing, May 22, 1812. The first meeting of the session in Salem was October 12, 1812, when the following joined: Amos Porter, Eleanor Waterman, and Mrs. Lydia Gould. In about 1830 the building now standing at Salem village was erected, the second one in the township. The ministers who served the church and presided at sessions at various times are Revs. James Cunningham, Ebenezer Everett, John Hunt, John Pitkin, Jacob Little, Tyler Thatcher, Luke De Witt, L. G. Bingham, N. H. Allen, M. J. Hickok, Samuel Dunham, Thomas Wicks, Bennett Roberts, N. C. Coffin, R. Tenney, and G. V. Fry, who was a Congregationalist minister and remained until 1861. *The early elders were James Amlin, Jesse Baldwin, Amos Porter, William Perkins, Daniel G. Stanley, and Elisha Allen. In 1834 the records bear a resolution that no one shall be admitted to the church who will not abstain from the use of ardent spirits as a beverage. In 1845 the church had seventy-two members. Two new places of worship were organized, one in Harrietsville, and one in Bonn. Since 1861 no record has been kept and no pastor has been in charge. "Only a few members remain, like sheep without a shepherd, and the old house of worship, the second one built in Salem, yet stands a monument of what once was but now is not."

About 1810 a series of meetings were held in a school-house at the forks of Duck creek, and at other places, under the auspices of the Freewill Baptist denomination. The services were by David Wells, who would come over from the Muskingum, where he lived. These meetings ceased in two or three years, without any organization being effected.

Methodist meetings were held in the neighborhood from time immemorial to the oldest inhabitants. The earliest remembered preacher was a local exhorter known as Father Goss, who lived in the Chapman settlement, in Fearing township, and came to the Salem settlement to preach every two weeks. These meetings were held in the house of some settler, oftenest at the residence of Amos and Simon Porter.

Some time before 1815 a Methodist church was organized in the school-house at Salem. One of the earliest preachers of this church was Elder Young. The original membership comprised Simon Porter and wife, John True and wife, Ebenezer Tolman and his mother, the two Amos Porters, and Margaret Hale. Their first building was on the site occupied by the present one in Salem village. Moses True constructed it in 1836. The new building was dedicated in 1873 by Rev. McCormick, the present preacher.

Of late years a disagreement occurred in the congregation, and the Protestant Methodist church was established. In the summer of 1878 their place of worship was completed, not far from the other church building. The land on which it stands was given by H. Magee. Messrs. Simeon P'ake, Joseph Elliott, David Feldner, M. D. Morse, and H. Magee, were some of the members and had the church building constructed.

The Mount Ephraim Methodist church, whose building is some two miles above Salem, dates from the earliest times when meetings were held from house to house in the neighborhood; and in the absence of any regular preacher, the farmers took turns at reading discourses from a book of Erskine's sermons, which one of the neighbors possessed. In 1846 the little association felt able to afford a building which was erected on land given by Ephraim Gould. In 1873 the present building was finished, and the old one is now used as a stable near by.

A Baptist church, of long standing in the township, is the Good Hope church, situated on the ridge west of Duck creek. On the eleventh day of October, 1835, various persons in the community met at the house of Deacon Hugh Wilson and organized this church. The chairman of the meeting was Elder Jacob Drake, and Enoch Rector was clerk. The members that joined the church were James Bell, Calvin Crawford, Hugh Wilson, Eli Vaughn, William Wharff, Lucy Driskill, Elizabeth Driskill, Eleanor Bell, Maria Bell, F. Congleton, Nancy Culver, sr., Nancy Culver, jr., Mary Crawford, Harriet Retcher, Mary Wilson, Margaret Jackson, Electa Vaughn, Sarah Babson, Deborah Wharff, Esther Still, Eleanor Stewart, Nancy Wharff, and Mary Spears—twenty-three in all.

The first pastor was Elder Levi Culver, who was chosen for that place in October, 1835, the same month in which the church was organized, and who held it until his death, December 17, 1835. The next pastor was Enoch Rector. Since these two, Benjamin Blake, D. G. Hanley (supply), Henry Billings, J. C. Skinner, W. E. Mathuss (supply), Henry Lyon, John Ables, J. H. Barker, E. W. Daniels, E. Adkins, W. A. Blake (missionary), J. S. Covert, William McPeak, J. C.

Richardson, and H. M. Prince, have acted at various times as pastors. In 1874 we find that the church had been disbanded and reorganized. In 1871 the total membership was one hundred and thirteen. In 1874 twenty-seven members were enrolled. The present number of members is fifty-two.

The first house of worship was built in 1836 of logs. In 1851 it was superseded by a frame church building, which is the one now in use.

The Bonn German Methodist church was organized in 1840 by Rev. Koaneke. The first regular minister was Rev. J. Miller. The first members were Henry Otton, Mr. Barand, Jacob Schlohn, P. Bahrenburg, I. Mier, and I. Bakehaus. Two years after the organization, a house of worship was erected. This was replaced in 1871 by a new building. About 1852 a parsonage was built, and the first one to make use of this was a man by the name of Jahraus. This, too, was, in turn, thought too old for use, and in 1874 a new parsonage was built. Before the meeting-house was built meetings were held in private houses—principally at the residence of I. Bakehaus.

The Disciple church at Bonn was organized about 1852 at a meeting in the school-house. The first preacher was J. J. M. Dickey; then followed Elders Hughes, Solomon Devoir, and J. M. Harvey. Services were discontinued about 1858. The first members were William Sprout and wife, Hill and wife Julinda Kidd,*A. Zollars and wife, J. Zollars and wife, Thomas Farley and wife, and Captain Collins. They had no church building, but met from house to house.

The next Disciple church started at Warner in 1872, under the charge of J. M. Harvey, though services had been held for some time just before. The original members were William J. Sprout, William Sherfick, Isaac Hill, and their wives, Julinda Kidd and Malin Martin. The Elders, from Mr. Harvey to the present, have been John Moody, Nathan Moody, Joseph M. Thomas; irregular supply, O. W. Kyle and Mr. Cox. At present the church has no regular elder. In 1876 the present edifice at Warner station was constructed.

At a meeting in the public school-house in Salem village, December 13, 1859, the Universalist church of the township was organized. The pastor was J. W. McMaster, who has remained in charge ever since. The first members were William Thomas, Eliza Thomas, Jewett Palmer, sr., Jewett Palmer, jr., John A. Palmer, Thomas Williams, Mrs. Mary Williams, Henry Schofield, Mrs. Sarah Schofield, Dr. Ernest Lintner, Mrs. Caroline Lintner, Mrs. Sarah Williams, Mrs. Anna Doane, Mrs. Mary Chapman, Miss Jane Thomas, Miss Ellen Crawford, Miss Julia Wiley, and Robert Fulton. The first officers were Jewett Palmer, sr., moderator; Jewett Palmer, jr., clerk; Thomas Williams, Dr. Lintner, Robert Fulton, trustees; William Thomas, John A. Palmer, stewards. J. W. McMaster preached monthly a year before the church was organized in the Salem school-house. The church building now in use a mile north of Salem was dedicated in 1861.

In the western part of the township is a German Lutheran church, which was organized about 1859. The first minister was named Juergen. The first members were Theobald Jung, Theobald Schramm, Theobald Boesshar, Jacob Boesshar, Adam Baltz, Jacob Baltz, Jacob Motz, Jacob Pfaff, Peter Pfaff, Wilhelm Wagner, their wives, John Schramm, and Michael Feldner. The preachers since have been Daniel Hirsch, Revs. Boedenschatz, Esschenfeld, Trapp, and Engelhardt. The church building has been in existence since the organization.

The Corinth church is in the southeast part of the township near Bonn. Its membership formerly belonged to and attended a church which met further up Pawpaw, in Liberty township. In 1860, however, they began to hold meetings in their own neighborhood, there listening to the preaching of Henry Lyon and W. A. Blake. In 1863 this part of the old church was organized separately and held meetings in a school-house on the farm of John Fulton. In 1876 a building that had till then been standing near Pawpaw creek in Liberty township was moved to the neighborhood, in which the meetings of this church have since been held. The original members of the church are George Twiggs and wife, Almund Cluss, John Fulton, Jane Haskins, and Joanna Fulton. At the first regular meeting as the Corinth church, Andrew Twiggs, Mrs. Fulton, Margaret Fulton, and Cornelia Twiggs became members. In 1870 and 1872 the church had fifty members, which number diminished to fifteen in 1880. Since the pastors mentioned there have been placed over the flock from time to time the following ministers: John Ables, William McPeak, J. D. Riley, G. F. Dix, and H. M. Prince.

The Baptist church of Lower Salem was organized under the leadership of Rev. J. D. Riley, August 26, 1877, with seventeen members. At first they worshipped in the old Presbyterian church building. A new frame building was put up in Salem village in the winter of 1880-81 and dedicated in the latter year. The church has now twenty-eight members.

The only secret society of any permanence in the township is the Odd Fellow lodge at Salem. Its origin was in this wise: In April, 1859, William Thomas, John A. Palmer, Pemberton Palmer, William A. Doan and Walter Thomas met at the house of John A. Palmer, to organize, if possible, a lodge. Their endeavor was successful, for in May the charter was made out, in July the meeting was held at the "Valley House," and thus began the Palmer Lodge, No. 351. The first officers of the Lodge were William Thomas, noble grand; John A. Palmer, vice-grand; P. Palmer, recording secretary; William A. Doan, treasurer. The present officers are August Decker, noble grand; Jonas Neun, vice-grand; Evan Williams, recording secretary; W. W. Stanley, permanent secretary; Daniel Lauer, treasurer. The meetings are held once a week in Blake's store, in Salem.

Some time ago Margaret Palmer, Anna Dean, and Mrs. William Thomas organized as Daughters of Rebecca.

Mention has been made of the Amos Porter cemetery as the first in the township. It stands on a high hill back of the Salem school-house and contains the graves of many fathers and mothers of the community. Here we find represented the Stanleys, the Trues, the Tolmans, the Porters, the Pettys, Armstrongs, and others.

Another comparatively old burying-ground is the cemetery on Bear Creek ridge near the Good Hope church. Here lies Elder Levi Culver, the first one buried in it, whose stone bears the record, "Died December 17, 1835 in his sixtieth year." Here also are the remains of members of the first families in the neighborhood—Hugh Wilson, who settled in 1819, some of the Hutchesons, Felix Mayer, who died aged one hundred and seven years. Representatives are here of the Bells, Simons, Montgomerys, Carlins, Hayts, Dixons, Halls, and others.

A visitor at Orgilleas Doan's by the name of William McBane, died in 1823 and Mr. Doan came to Mr. Gould to arrange a place of burial. A spot was selected near where a barn of Mr. Kilmer's stands. In a few days Mr. Doan was seized with the same disease and died. The burying place was afterwards changed to where it now is, near the church. Here lie buried the dead of the Goulds, Hoveys, Halletts, Hills, Doans, Aldens, Trues, and also Rev. Denton Watkins.

About 1839, Henry Whittock gave a half acre to the township for a burying-ground. It is located near the Universalist church. On one stone is the inscription, "Henry B., son of S. and M. Whittock, died June 20, 1839, aged twelve years, one month and four days," being the first person interred in this yard.

The last cemetery in the township is on a hill west of Warner station. The first one buried there was Frederick Feldner, who was killed by a boiler explosion about four years ago.

The graveyard at the Bonn German Methodist church dates from 1842, when a child of Henry Bahrenburg was buried in it, the first.

Salem is the largest village in the township. It was laid out by James Stanley in 1850. The occasion was the building of a plank road from Marietta to the place, and it was thought that this advantage would make the place quite a fair sized town. The resident stockholders in this enterprise were William Thomas, Madison R. Morse, H. McGee, and Moses True. A toll-house was built at the terminus, and was the first building in the village. But the road did not pay, the boards were allowed to rot, while the village that it started kept on to its present size. The first house, except the toll-house, was built by Benjamin Hovey and is now occupied by a saloon.

Though a small place at present, of less than three hundred population, it can boast of quite a number of business houses. It contains a hotel, livery stable, grist-mill, saw- and planing-mill, a tannery, six grocery and dry goods stores, a tobacco packing house, two carriage shops, three blacksmith shops, two shoe stores, one harness shop, a cigar factory, and four churches. A two-story brick school building was erected eight years ago, at a cost of over three thousand dollars. The first teachers were W. R. and Talma Goddard. The present are Mr. C. E. Bailey, principal, and Miss Mary Ames.

Warner village, a station on the Cleveland & Marietta railroad, and named in honor of General A. J. Warner, was laid out by P. and E. Boye in about 1873. It now has a store, harness shop, blacksmith shop, cooper shop, shoe shop, a church and two hotels. The store was begun in August, 1871, and is therefore the first enterprise in the village. It was kept formerly in the railroad depot.

Bonn is the oldest of the three towns and is in the southeastern part of the township. Mr. Nahum Ward owned land at the place and by his characteristic and energetic endeavors induced a considerable emigration to the locality, principally of Germans, in whose honor the town was called Bonn, from the town of that name on the Rhine.

Bonn was laid out near 1835. It will be remembered that Mr. Ward expected to introduce the manufacture of silk to the place and for that purpose planted a grove of white mulberry trees, bought spinning machinery and introduced workmen. But the enterprise failed and Bonn was left to the fate of an inland agricultural village. The first store in the place was by Rufus Payne who began to carry on the business about the time the town was platted. The place now contains a store, carpenter shop, blacksmith shop and shoe shop.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

PORTER FAMILY.

The Porter family, of Salem township, came from Danvers, Massachusetts. Amos Porter, the head of the family, was born in Danvers, November 24, 1742, and married in 1764, Anne Bradstreet, of Topsfield. This couple, Amos Porter and Anna Bradstreet, were descended respectively from John Porter and Governor Simon Bradstreet.

John Porter was born in England, in 1596. It is not known just when he arrived in the Massachusetts colony, but he was there as early as 1635. Settled first at Hingham, but soon removed to Salem. At the time of his death, in 1676, he was the largest landholder in Salem. He was a man of energy and influence, well known in the colony, and held many official positions. His wife's name was Mary ———, and they had eight children. The record of descent to Amos Porter is as follows: John Porter and Mary ———, Joseph Porter and Ann Hathorne, Joseph Porter and Mary ———, Joseph Porter and Mary ———, Amos Porter and Anne Bradstreet.

Governor Simon Bradstreet, son of a nonconforming minister, was born at Horbling, England, in March, 1603; spent one year at Emanuel college, Cambridge; came to Massachusetts with Winthrop, Dudley, and other distinguished persons in the Arbella, in 1630. Was chosen an assistant in the government of the colony before leaving England, and annually reelected for fifty years; was afterwards deputy governor and governor. He married Anne Dudley, daughter of Thomas Dudley, first deputy governor of the colony, who was never out of the magistracy, and most of the time deputy governor or governor until his death, in 1653. The record of descent to Anne Bradstreet runs thus: Simon Bradstreet and Anne Dudley, John Bradstreet and Sarah Perkins, Simon Bradstreet and Elizabeth Capen, Simon Bradstreet and Anne Flint, Amos Porter and Anne Bradstreet.

The children of Amos Porter and Anne Bradstreet, all born in Massachusetts, were: Lydia, born March 20, 1765; Anna, born December 6, 1766; Amos, born February 20, 1769; Jonathan, born June 6, 1771; Simon, born November 18, 1779. Lydia died in Danvers at the age of ten; Anna married Allen Putnam.

The parents, with their son-in-law and three sons, came to Ohio in the spring of 1795. Mr. Putnam settled on a farm in Fearing township, not far from Stanleyville. Mr. Porter and his sons settled in Salem township, just below the present village of Salem, pushing much farther into the wilderness in that direction than any previous settlers.

Amos Porter, jr., purchased a farm on the same side of the creek that the village is, and extending from the village to near the West fork of the stream. Amos Porter, sr., and his sons Jonathan and Simon took a farm directly across the creek from that of Amos Porter, jr.

Amos Porter, sr., died in 1807; Jonathan shortly afterward, leaving the farm to Simon, who also had the care of his mother until her death, several years later.

On these farms these two brothers lived the remainder of their days, Simon dying March 10, 1843, aged sixty-three, and Amos dying November 28, 1861, aged ninety-two.

Men of integrity, industry, and sobriety and of simple habits, they became well-to-do farmers, lived quiet but useful lives, were prominent in church and township affairs, and rendered valuable assistance to later settlers and to the poor generally. It is believed that among their descendants not one has become a drunkard or even a tippler.

Amos was for some years an elder in the Presbyterian church of Fearing and Salem, of which his mother and brother Jonathan were members. But the church being without a pastor for several years, and possibly for other reasons, he changed his church relations, uniting with the Methodists, with whom he continued to the time of his death.

Simon was the chosen leader of the Methodist society in Salem nearly all the time from its organization to the time of his death. His home was the chief stopping place for the Methodist ministers. The door-string always out, was especially so when ministers were about, and on occasions of quarterly meetings. Methodist preachers in those days were fond of, and needed good horses, and, to this end, they wanted them well cared for; and they soon learned that "Father Porter" or "Uncle Simon" (as more commonly called) would not only look well to their own comfort, but equally well to the condition of their horses.

The term "Uncle Simon" was so common, so well nigh universal, that the younger children scarcely knew their father had any other name, as the following incident will show. "Uncle Simon," busy at work, and wanting more nails than he had, called upon his little boy to make his first trip to a neighboring store about a mile off to get a few pounds. The little fellow having received his instructions, set out for the store. Arrived there, he announced that "Father wants some nails." Looking at the lad, the storekeeper asked "Who is your father?" "Uncle Simon," was the ready response.

Amos was one of the number that landed at Marietta April 7, 1788, and the last survivor of that famous band. The return trip to Boston, at the end of two years, was made all the way on foot. He married for his first wife, Sabra Tolman. She was the mother of all his children. For his second wife he married Mrs. Sally (Perkins) Sutton. His children were: Amos, William, Samuel, Thomas, Rufus, Hiram, Lydia, Jerusha and Almer. Amos died in early manhood, unmarried. Rufus and Hiram died in childhood. William married three times: First, Mary Sutton; second, Polly Stanley, and third, Mrs. Betsey (Fowler) Tolman. He had ten children. He and six of his children removed to southern Illinois, where he died. Samuel married Mary Palmer; he had three children, and died in Salem. Thomas married: first, Rhoda Sutton, and second, Polly Stille, and had six children. The children are all dead, except Mrs. Joseph Cox, of Lowell. He is living at Belpre, and has been a man of remarkable physical strength and activity, and was a noted conductor on the "Underground Railway" in years gone by. Lydia married Mr. S. N. Merriam, of Lowell, this county, where they now reside, a well preserved, aged couple, who have passed their "Golden Wedding" by several years, but are remarkably youthful for persons of their ages, and are still actively engaged in their usual pursuits,—he, at the age of eighty-two, conducting a general merchandise store, and she, at the age of seventy-five, doing all their household duties with that punctilious care which has ever characterized her.

Jerusha married Mr. Davis, and had three children. She has long been a widow. It is supposed she is still living in the west.

Almer, an invalid for some years, lives on a part of the old homestead in Salem. He married Mary Babson. They have six children.

Simon, son of Amos, sr., married Elizabeth Stille. Their children were: Hiram, Lois, Anne Bradstreet, Mary Vincent, Irum, Ruth, Simon Sworinstead and Cyrus Fox. No death occurred in this family for thirty-six years, viz: From January 9, 1807, to January 29, 1843. Hiram died in infancy. Cyrus died in early manhood unmarried. Anne never married. Lois married Ephraim Gould, had ten children, and died October 23, 1859. One son, Jasper Porter, graduated at Alleghany college, Pennsylvania, and was for a time principal of Marietta high school. He married Mary Taylor, of Lee, Massachusetts. One daughter, Mary Melissa, married Rev. Mr. Brady, who left the ministry to help put down the Rebellion. Mary married Madison R. Morse, had nine children, and died September 29, 1863. At one time her husband and five of her sons were in the Union army. Her oldest son Wallace was killed before Lynchburgh. Irum married Elizabeth True. Their two children died in infancy. He died in Minnesota June 1, 1872.

Ruth married Dr. William Heald, had one son, and died November 26, 1843.

Simon S., the only member of the family now living, married Euretta S. Hill. They have three children: Ida Precia, Mary Waldena and Edwin Horace.

Beside several years' teaching in district and select schools in this county and Crawford county, Pennsylvania, Mr. Porter has been principal of the Washington Street grammar school, Marietta, eighteen years, and entered upon the duties of that position in January, 1854. In March, 1864, he resigned on account of ill health. In the spring of 1865 he was chosen a member of the board of education, in which capacity he served until 1873, when he was reelected to his former position in the schools, which place he still holds. It will thus be seen that he has been connected with the public schools of Marietta as teacher or member of the board of education for the past twenty-seven years, with but one year's exception.

FAMILY OF IRA HILL.

Among the early families of Salem township was that of Ira Hill, esq. Mr. Hill came to Ohio from Vermont, but was born in Goshen, Litchfield county, Connecticut. He was the son of Zenas and Kezia Hill (probably cousins.) His grand parents were Ebenezer Hill and Martha Dibble, the former born at Guilford, Connecticut, November 23, 1687, and the latter at Hartford, November 13, 1697.

Ira Hill married Esther Post, of Norwich, Connecticut, February 2, 1786. Their children were: Ira, Harry, Sally, Urania, Speedy, Guy and Dan. These were all born in New England except Dan, who was born in Salem, January 31, 1803.

The family arrived in Marietta in the year 1800, and after remaining a while in Marietta, settled on a farm in Salem, about one mile north of Salem village.

Mr. Hill came west, thinking a change of climate might improve his health; and he seems to have realized the object of his search, for he lived to the ripe old age of four-score and six, dying October 13, 1841. Mild and amiable in disposition, frank, honest and upright in his intercourse with others, he was not only respected, but trusted and honored by the community.

His wife was a woman of rare social qualities, and of great courage, energy and endurance. She lived to the age of ninety-two, dying August 15, 1851.

The parents and most of the children were members of the Presbyterian church of Fearing and Salem. The boys were fond of military displays, and figured somewhat prominently in the musters and drills of those early times. Harry became a colonel, Ira a major, and Guy and Dan were musicians.

Ira Hill, jr., married Wealthy Little, of Newport, in 1816, and, in 1819, settled on a farm in Newport, next above the late Joseph Barker's. Here he lived until his death in 1866. He was a deacon in the Baptist church, a prominent member of that denomination, and widely known in other denominations as a zealous Christian worker. He was a genial companion, a most liberal giver for religious purposes, and a man of the highest integrity. His children were: Luther, Ira, Emily, Cynthia, Mary, Charles, Hervey and Judson.

Luther, a graduate of Marietta college, class of 1842, and of Newton theological seminary, Massachusetts, is a Baptist minister in Maine. Ira is a farmer in Iowa. Emily (Mrs. Charles Fuller) removed to Iowa some years since, and died there. Cynthia, an intelligent and deeply religious maiden lady, resides near her father's farm, in Newport. Mary is the worthy wife of Mr. Adams, an Iowa farmer. Charles and Judson died in early manhood at their father's. (Charles was preparing for the ministry at the time of his death.) Hervey, who lived on the homestead, died soon after his father, leaving the farm to his widow and children, who still occupy it.

Colonel Harry Hill married Mrs. Jerusha (Chapman) Doan, of Salem. They lived for a time in Salem, then removed to Lancaster, Ohio, where he died. Their children were: Jerusha, Louisa, Harry and Abigail. Jerusha married Mr. Prindle, a farmer. They live in Wisconsin. Louisa died in infancy. Harry is a farmer near Lancaster. Abbie is Mrs. Major Carey, Aberdeen, Ohio. Sally and Guy never married, living and dying at the old home in Salem. Speedy died in infancy in Vermont. Urania married James Stanley, of Fearing. They had nine children: Urania, Laura, Lucy, Cynthia, James, Caroline, Diantha, Clement and Paul. Urania, James and Clement went to Wisconsin, married and settled at Necedah, Juneau county. (Urania is Mrs. Harry Smith.) Laura married James Ewing, of Salem. Lucy is Mrs. James Calland, of Noble county. She resides near Summerfield. Cynthia married Isaac T. Lund, a successful farmer of Aurelius, active in township affairs, and a noted abolitionist in times when it required backbone to avow such sentiments. Caroline is Mrs. Daniel Morgan, of Salem. Diantha died in early womanhood, and Paul while yet a youth.

Dan, the youngest of the family, married Mary Merriam, daughter of Reuben Merriam and Mary Noyes, who came from Troy, New York, to Lowell, in 1816. He remained on the farm in Salem, and, beside carrying on the farm, engaged in merchandizing, first with William McIntosh, afterward alone, and for many years conducted an extensive and profitable business. He was a keen observer of men and nature, and a man of excellent judgment. His counsel and sympathy were extensively sought in times of trouble and distress, and his kind, sympathetic nature extended to all a helping hand. He was active in the formation of the first temperance society west of the Alleghanies, and drafted its pledge. Deprived by death of his beloved wife, on whom he greatly relied, not only for the management of the household but also in business matters, he nevertheless succeeded in rearing his family of six children, watching over them with a father's care and a mother's tenderness. His children were: Edwin, Eureka, Archibald, Oladine, Deming, Esther and Erwin. Edwin died in infancy. Eureka is Mrs. S. S. Porter, Marietta. Archibald is a merchant in Columbus, Ohio. Oladine is the wife of S. B. Hildreth, a well-off farmer near Marietta. Deming is a farmer in California. Esther is the wife of J. A. Woods, superintendent of schools and farmer, Clarinda, Iowa. Erwin is a farmer near Marietta.

CHAPTER XLIII.

GRAND VIEW TOWNSHIP.

A Picturesque Locality—Location, Soil, Timber, Etc.—Organization of Township—Early Settlement and Personal Sketches—Lease Run Settlement—Churches—Schools—Cemeteries—Railroad—Vineyard—Matamoras and Grand View—Odd Fellows and Masonic Lodges—Grange Societies—Mills—Casualties and Tragedies—Newspapers—"Petticoat Ford."

ASCENDING the highest hill immediately southwest of Matamoras, and turning our gaze toward the east, a scene of rare beauty is revealed. At first the eye will naturally seek the view of the great, majestic sweep of the Ohio, whose waters can be traced for full twenty miles away. Then beyond are the Virginia hills rolling away into mere perspective of blue sky and vapory clouds. On either hand the Buckeye hills, with rugged brows of abutting sandstone, stand revealed in strongest outline, amidst gnarled trunks of trees, variegated oaks and evergreen pine.

Below is the town of Matamoras toward the north, and the village of Grand View at the south with pointed church-spires and the scarce-heard echoes of their school bells mingle with the hum of manufacture, the bustle of farm life, and the piercing whistle of the river steamers. The squares of fenced fields, dotted with farm houses; the winding roads and noisy teamsters, the orchards, field and woodland, in one unbroken vista—how natural the exclamation: "What a grand view!"

So general was this expression by visitors to this place that it naturally and appropriately became the name of the locality and township.

It is the extreme northeast township of the county, and lies in the shape of the letter V pointed at the south; is joined on the north by Monroe county, and the southwest course of the Ohio river shapes the inclination of the eastern boundary, while Independence and Ludlow townships join Grand View on the west. Along the banks of the Ohio level stretches of fertile bottom lands of the variable breadth of a mile and less extend the entire length of the township, and the soil of sand and clay is highly productive of wheat, corn, potatoes and tobacco, the latter being extensively cultivated.

The highlands rise abruptly from the river bottoms, and extend in high ridges throughout the western part of the township, some of the elevations reaching a height of over eight hundred feet. The soil is generally what is known as "white oak," and of variable degrees of productiveness.

The timber lands are mostly of the different varieties of oak, while some hickory, walnut and poplar may be found. The whole length of the township, between the extreme north and south points, is ten miles and the greatest width five and one half miles, embracing an area of near thirty thousand acres of land. The settlements were made along the banks of the Ohio, and Matamoras is the only incorporated town. Grand View village, Ward Station, and Yellow House are points of trade and post offices. The population, according to the last census, is two thousand six hundred and sixty-four. The drainage is generally by small branches into the Ohio river; the principal branch is Sheet's run, which takes its rise in the northwestern part, and flowing directly south, empties into the Ohio at the extreme southwest corner of the township. Mill Creek run carries the waters of the northern part into the Ohio above Matamoras.

The chief productions belong mostly to the agricultural department, though there is considerable cooperage, tanning and other minor branches of manufacture in operation in this township.

ORGANIZATION.

"Grand View was struck off from Newport in 1803," and the first election for township officials was held the first Monday of the April following, and resulted as follows: Samuel Williamson, Philip Witten, and David Jackson, trustees; Arthur Scott, clerk; Nathan Parr, William Ramsey, and John McBride, supervisors; Alexander Mayers, constable. In the following year the list was increased: Philander B. Stewart and William Cline, constables; Arthur Scott, lister of property; James Riggs and John Collins, overseers of poor; Nathan Parr and Henry Dickerson, appraisers of houses.

EARLY SETTLEMENTS.

The old Dickerson farm was the first land cleared in Grand View township, and on it was built the first log cabin by David Shepherd, in very early times. This cabin stood east of the present residence of Aurelius Ellis, near the river. David Shepherd is supposed to have been but temporarily settled here as nothing concerning him can now be found, and, after selling his property, in all probability he removed further down the Ohio. The cabin which he built was occupied by the Dickerson family when they first came to this locality. Kinsey Dickerson first purchased the farm of David Shepherd "for a consideration of eighty-five pounds, current money of Virginia," and it was described as fractional section twenty-seven, township one, range five, in the territory northwest of the Ohio river then belonging to Virginia, and containing one hundred and seventy acres of land. The deed conveying the land in this transaction was recorded in 1796.

Mr. Dickerson, the purchaser, was a well known hunter in the early days, and with rifle, tomahawk, and a knife in his belt, delighted in the chase after the wild animals among the hills and along the banks of the Ohio, and any adventure promising any extraordinary demand for skill, prowess, or heroism, was hailed with delight by Kinsey Dickerson. He was also many times in active pursuit of thieving or hostile Indians that frequently visited the early settlements.

Thomas Dickerson, brother of Kinsey, settled on this farm in 1795. He was born October 15, 1757, and had a family of nine children—Joseph, Frederick, Rebecca, Vachel, Isabella, Eleanor, Elizabeth, Thomas, and Sarah. He lived on this farm, an industrious and respected citizen, until his death, when the estate was divided among his children. Among his papers were found several ancient documents, some of which are here given:

Feb. 20th, 1786.

Received of Thomas Dickerson one discharge for three years' service in the 8th Penn. Regulars. Given at Ft. Pitt Oct. 9th, 1779, by Col. Bayard, com. of 8th Penn. Regulars.

(Signed)

JOHN MUNN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 18th, 1818.

This is to certify that Thomas Dickerson, private in the army of the Revolution, is entitled to a pension of $8.00 per month.

(Signed)

J. C. CALHOUN,
Sec. of War.

The neighbors of Thomas Dickerson in early times were David Shepherd, John Mitchell, Philip Whitton, and others, of whom no further record can now be found. They are remembered as the men of pioneer times in this locality, whose personal efforts, privations, and industry began the work now blooming in fruition, as exhibited by the present prosperity of Grand View township, and measured by the position she holds in the rank of progress and civilization of Washington county.

James Riggs came from Maryland and made the first settlement in what is now Matamoras, about 1799, and built his log cabin on what is now First street, where the residence of Mr. Thornbury now stands. This house was made of hewn logs, after the style of early times. He first encamped on the opposite side of the river, where he kept his family until the cabin in Ohio was completed, when he moved over. He was born in what is now Washington, District of Columbia, in 1742, and died February 27, 1815. He was accompanied by his wife, Mary Johnson, and children—Basil, Hezekiah, John, Samuel, Edmund, Maxey, Polly, and Prissa; also his son-in-law, Martin Sheets. He, with the latter, entered two hundred acres of land along the Ohio river, he taking the northern, and the son-in-law the southern part, all of which subsequently was transferred to Martin Sheets. On the northern part of this land the town of Matamoras was founded. Basil Riggs was born in Maryland in 1775, and died in 1850. Mary Robey, his wife, was born in 1777, and died in 1836. Their children were—James, Susan, Harriet, Isaac, Edmund, William, Hezekiah, Hazil, Asbury, and Squire Dilly. Hezekiah was born in 1810, and was married to Elizabeth Moorland, who was born in 1812. They had a family of eight children—James W., Mary, Susan, Daniel, Hezekiah, Nancy E., Angeline, and Harriet.

Anthony Sheets and wife emigrated from Maryland to Ohio and settled in Grand View township sometime during the latter part of the eighteenth century. He died in 1834, aged seventy-five, and his wife died in 1840, aged eighty years. Their son, Henry Sheets, who was born in Grand View township in 1807, married Rebecca Parr, who was born in 1811. To them have been born thirteen children, of whom there survive, viz: Minerva, in Iowa; Jesse P., in Kansas; Leander and William H., in West Virginia; Rebecca M., and Ruth B., in Kansas; and Hamilton and Malinda. Henry Sheets laid out the first lots in the town of Matamoras, of which he was the originator. During the years 1836-52 he was engaged in the mercantile business on the site of Matamoras. In 1855 he removed to his present farm in Newport township. During the years 1826-79, inclusive, he was postmaster at Lower Newport.

Rufus Ellis came from New York and landed at Newell's Run in 1808, having floated down the Ohio on a lumber raft. His wife was Ruth Ingalls, and they had children, viz: Martin, Benjamin, Silas, Rufus, Henry, Rebecca, Sibyl, Sabra, and Diana. Silas Ellis settled on the old Dickerson farm in 1806. He was married to Eleanor Dickerson, who died in 1859, his decease occurring the same year. To them were born seven children—Charles D., William M., Ruth, Minerva, Solon, Aurelius and Aurelia (twins), and Henry. William McGee Ellis was born on the Dickerson farm in 1819, and was married to Clarissa Ankrom. He moved to Matamoras in the spring of 1847, and erected for John Scott, on First street, the first brick house in the town, now the residence of Dr. Richardson. The grandmother of Silas Ellis, father of William M. Ellis, was a Ballou, sister to the mother of James A. Garfield, President of the United States.

Aurelius Ellis was born in 1823, and was married in 1845 to Eveline Morgan, who was born in 1824. To them were born ten children, nine of whom are now living: Leander, Lafayette, Evan, Aurelius, Elizabeth, Sarah, Mary, Paulina, and Bertha.

Mr. Ellis was pilot on the Ohio river, running from Wheeling to St. Louis for twenty-six years. At present he is a farmer, and owns a farm of one hundred acres in Grand View township.

John Burris settled just above Leath's run, about 1800. His wife was Betsey McMahon, and their children were: Benjamin, Van, Stinson, Swangum, Martin, John, Lavina, and David. He was quite a remarkable man physically, and stood six feet six in his stockings. His wit and sociability made him very popular in the settlement, and he was also given to poetry, confining his genius, however, to local events, and the satire of local characters. These compositions he would sing to very appreciative audiences. On one occasion he had a lawsuit with William Rea, and after the trial he placed his back against the door, thus confining his victim in the room, and then entertained the crowd and the 'squire with a song against his late opponent. On account of his well known physical endurance he was appointed to carry dispatches from Cincinnati to Fort Duquesne during the Indian war.

Henry Jolly settled about half a mile below Grand View village in 1799. His wife, when a child, had a very narrow escape from death by the Indians as she was on her way with her parents from Virginia to Ohio. The family were attacked at night, and all the rest of them murdered. She was also felled by a blow from a tomahawk, and scalped as she lay helpless on the ground, where she was left for dead. A party of whites the following day found the bodies of the murdered family, and upon proceeding to bury them they found that one was yet alive, and after some difficulty she was resuscitated and lived to become the wife of Judge Jolly. To them were born four children: Albert, William, Kinsey, and Sidney.

John Collins was the oldest member of the family that came to this county in 1803. He was born in 1754 and died in 1842. His wife was Sarah (Henthorn), who died in 1814. They had a family of three sons and four daughters. He was afterward married to Deborah (Dickerson) Dyson, who died in 1847.

Henry Collins came with his father, John Collins, and settled in Grand View township in 1803. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1778, and was married in 1810 to Frances Ewart, widow of William Peyton (now Mrs. Cordery), who was born in 1781. They had a family of six children, of whom five are now living: Elliott H., Sardine Y., Francis E., John H., and Jeremiah.

Francis E. Collins was born in 1818, and was married in 1851 to Margaret M. Bill, who was born 1829. To them were born four children, three now living—John H., Mary E., Francis B. Mr. Collins has been, and is, one of the successful farmers of this township. He owns a farm of two hundred and thirty acres, most of which he cleared himself; is one of the leading men of this locality, and has furnished for himself and family one of the most elegant and comfortable homes of this township.

Joseph Holdren was born in New Jersey and came to this township about 1803, and was married in 1805 to Ruth Coleman. They had three children, two now living—Thomas and George. His son Thomas was born in 1808 and in 1839 was married to Mary A. Riggs, who was born in 1812. They have a family of eight living children—James, Joseph, Edmund, George, Allen, Josiah, Mary, Eliza. When Mr. Holdren first came here he was possessed of little or no property, but by his own industry he accumulated twelve hundred and fifty acres of land, which he has deeded to his sons, only a part of which is located in this township, on which is a very fine orchard.

Richard Talbott was a native of Wales, and emigrated to Washington county, Pennsylvania, and afterwards to Grand View township, in 1812, and settled on the farm now owned by Robert Amos in the extreme northeast corner of the township on the Ohio. The site of the cabin in which he lived was located at the mouth of Talbott's run, but has long since been washed down the river.

Charles W. Talbott, sr., was born in Washington county, Pennsylvania, in 1791, and came to this township after a service in the War of 1812. He was married to Eliza McMunn who was born in 1798. They had a family of twelve children, namely: Temperance, Absalom O., John Marshall, Martha, Charles W., Elizabeth, Basil, Ephriam, Nancy B., Cornelia, Elvisia, and Mary. He was a farmer and well known local preacher in the Methodist Episcopal church. He died October 22, 1874, in Lawrence county, Ohio.

Charles W. Talbott, jr., was born in Matamoras on First street, south of the public well, in an old house that stood where the street now runs, in 1826. He was married in 1849 to Nancy Talbott. To them were born five children—Emma, Dorinda, Alma, Eliza and Luna Lee. He has served as captain on the Ohio and Mississippi. He now resides in Matamoras.

William Williamson was born about 1790, and died in Texas about 1855. He was married about 1809 to Sarah McMahn, who was born about 1788, and died 1838. They had three children—Narcissa, Hannah and Hannibal. Hannibal Williamson was born in Grand View in 1813, and was married in 1831 to Temperance Hubbard, born in 1824. They had a family of eleven children, of whom are now living—Belmont, Jerome, Narcissa, Hannibal, Eva, and Althea Temperance. He has held the office of treasurer eleven years, trustee several years, and now owns a farm of nine hundred acres, part of which he cultivates himself, and is a prominent citizen of the township.

Bemont Hubbard was born in Connecticut about 1780, and was married to Miss A. Talbott, who was born about 1791. To them were born eight children, five now living: John, Richard, William, Temperance, and Jemima. His decease occurred at Matamoras in 1866, the death of Mrs. Hubbard having occurred in 1845. He was trustee several years, and served as teamster in the transport service during the War of 1812, and by his industry had accumulated considerable property.

Isaac Rinard, father of John Rinard, came from Pennsylvania and first settled on Leath run in 1814, and removed to this township in 1824, on Mill creek about one mile north of Matamoras. His wife was Mary Young. They had a family of two children—Sarah and John; and by his second wife—Isaac, James, Peggy, Polly, Nancy, and Cynthia. John went to Muskingum in 1826, and returned to Mill creek in 1829, where he lived until 1870, when he removed to his present residence near the public school building in Matamoras.

Nicholas Lisk was born in Virginia in 1803, and was married to Susan Hill, who was born in 1805 and died in 1846. Six of their thirteen children are now living—Edmund, Jonas, Jasper, Nicholas, Pauline, and Harriet. He was again married, in 1848, to Mary A. Lippincott, and died in Monroe county in 1874. Edmund Lisk was born in 1829 and was married in 1855 to Maria Salisbury, who died in 1868. They had a family of five children, three now living: Alexander, Mary E., and Jasper. He was married again in 1870 to Sarah Fox, who was born in 1851, and they have five children: James, Nicholas, Thomas, Anna, and John. He has been constable three times, and has given much attention to the study of law, and is a prominent farmer and citizen.

Samuel Pool, a native of Virginia, came to this county about 1835, where he resided until his death, which occurred August 29, 1846. He was married to Mary E. Kidwell, December 23, 1813, who died June 6, 1875. They had a family of ten children: Samuel, John, Ellen, Catharine, and Richard, are now living. John, the fifth son, was born in Virginia, October 18, 1824, and came to this county with his father; was married August 12, 1856, to Hannah Rinard, who was born December 12, 1833. He has served as county commissioner one term; assessor of township three years; and like his father and mother before him, is an active and efficient member of the Baptist church, which he has served as deacon for thirty years, and is one of the leading citizens of the township.

John Hinds was born in Washington county in 1835, and was married in 1855 to Margaret Frey, who was born in 1831. They now have a family of ten children: John F., Sarah, Eliza A., Mary S., William C., David H., Charlotta, James, Hannah and Rosie. He is one of the leading farmers and citizens of this township. By the death of his father he was early called upon to support his mother and younger brothers and sisters. He came with the family to Ohio in his seventeenth year, in order to give his brothers and sisters educational advantages. He was entirely without assistance, but by industry, has accumulated considerable property. He was a member of company C, Seventy-seventh Ohio volunteer infantry, serving from 1862 to the close of the war; was detailed as orderly to Colonel Hildebrand, and was in the battles of Shiloh, Corinth, Little Rock, Spanish Fort, Mark's Mills, Siege of Mobile, and was at the surrender of Kirby Smith at Mobile.

William L. West, M. D., was born in Moundsville, West Virginia, 1850; began the study of medicine under Dr. G. W. Brue; graduated in 1875 at Jefferson Medical college of Philadelphia, and moved to Matamoras in 1877, where he has since practiced. He is now mayor of Matamoras, and one of the leading physicians.

Francis P. Martin, M. D., was born in Monroe county, in 1836, and was married in 1860 to Adaline A. Davis, who was born in 1842. They had a family of eight children, six now living—John H., Thaddeus, Luther, Lilian, Nimrod, and Matilda. He came to Matamoras in 1862, where he has since been engaged in the practice of medicine; is a graduate of the Cincinnati College of Medicine and Surgery; belongs to the Allopathic school of medicine, and is known as a successful practitioner.

John Webber came to this township in 1837, was born about 1798 in New England, and died in Minnesota in 1863. He was married to Mary Gilson, who was born about 1796, and died in 1864. Six of their children are now living—Hadessa, John P., Sarah, Richard Gilson, Mary and Jerry. He held several township offices, and remained in the township, one of the leading citizens, until 1854, when he removed to Minnesota.

Richard Gilson Webber was born in 1826, and was married in 1856 to Mary Farraborn, who was born in 1834. They have a family of five children—William Emmett, James Madison, Samuel G., Richard C., and Marion. He came to this township with his father in 1837; has held the office of school director, and is entirely a self-made man, receiving no assistance from his father. He has, as the fruit of his own industry, a farm of one hundred and sixty acres of land in Missouri, and two hundred and eighty in this township. He is a prominent member of the Presbyterian church.

Samuel Hensell was born in West Virginia in 1810, and was married to Miss R. A. Keck, who was born in Pennsylvania in 1816, and died in 1877. They have three children now living: Catherine, John F., and Anna. He first settled in what was then Jolly township, where he resided until 1871, when he came to Matamoras, where he now lives. He has been a class leader in the Methodist Episcopal church for twenty years, and is a leading citizen of the town in which he lives.

John Hensell was born in Jolly township in 1834, and was married in 1858 to Martha C. States, who was born in 1837, and died in 1873. He was afterward married to Mary J. Cambell, who was born in 1850, and they have three children—Samuel T., Cora Jane, and Z. David. He has held the office of corporation treasurer, and is now undertaker and cabinet-maker in Matamoras on First street. He also owns a small farm of fifteen acres of bottom land, with a good orchard. In 1860 he had the misfortune to lose his left lower limb in the horse power of a threshing machine. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, in which he has held the office of leader and trustee.

Conrad Emery came to this township in 1846. Was born in Germany about 1810, and married to Catharine Kraft, who was born in the same country in 1820. He died in 1877. They had a family of seven children, five surviving: Catharine, John, Mary, Margaret, and Laura. John Emery was born in Pennsylvania in 1834, and was married in 1860, to Mary Hays, who was born in 1828. They have five children: Ira, Allen, Mary, Elizabeth, and Alice. He held the office of school director, and owns a farm of one hundred and twenty acres.

John Hays was born in 1780, came to this township in 1838. His wife was Elizabeth Waters, born in 1790. They have six children living: Ann, Sarah, Allen, Mary, John, and David. He died in 1872, one year after the decease of his wife.

Samuel S. Dorff was born about 1776, and died in 1870. He was married to Violet Evans, who was born in 1782, and died in 1845. Five of their children are now living: Joshua, Charles, William, Violet, and Russell. They came to this township in 1844.

Russell Dorff was born in 1817, and was married in 1843 to Elizabeth Barnett, who was born in 1819. Six of their ten children are now living: William, Sarah, Eveline, Margaret, Stillman, and Mary. He was previously (1831) married to Jane Evans, who was born in 1816, died in 1841. He has held the office of justice of the peace for twenty-three years, and also many other offices. His son William was a member of the First battery, Ohio volunteer artillery, from 1861 to 1865, and was at Gettysburgh, Bull Run, Petersburg, and many other battles.

Edward Shapley came to this township with his step-father, John Edmonds, where he has since resided. Was born in 1820, and married in 1841, to Mary Cameron, who was born in Virginia in 1824, and died in 1864. Their family consisted of five children, four now living: Jerome, George, Marshall, and Sarah. He was again married in 1869, to Martha Edmonds, born in 1850, and died in 1873. They had one child, William. He has been school director; is a cooper by trade, and has succeeded in accumulating considerable property, and is a well known citizen of Grand View.

George A. Shapley, son of Edward Shapley, was born in Grand View in 1845, and was married in 1870, to Josephine McCracken, who was born in 1849. They have a family of four children: Fanny B., Maud, Charles P., and Frederick. He is now engaged in coöpering, and manufactures one hundred barrels per week, sending them to the markets of Pittsburgh and Wheeling.

James Ward came from Pennsylvania and settled in Grand View township, in section five, in 1845. He was born in 1813, and was married in 1834. His wife, Margaret, was born in 1815. They now have seven children living: David, Mary, Richard, Eliza Jane, Albert, Joseph, and Margaret. He has by his own industry accumulated a large property, part of which he has distributed among his children, and is a leading citizen of the county.

Joseph P. was born in 1846, and in 1877 was married to Nancy M. Covert, who was born in 1858. They have one child—Asa Evart. He has studied law for a number of years, and is now notary public and holds half interest in the general store under the name of Ward Brothers. He is the present postmaster, located about eight miles west of Matamoras. The general store of Ward Brothers is the only business house at what is known as Ward station. The merchandizing of quite a large and thickly settled community is done here. The business firm is composed of Albert and Joseph P. Ward, and was established in 1862 under the name of Richard Ward. It consists of dry goods, general merchandising, produce, and buying tobacco. The Ward family now owns about three hundred and fifty acres of land in this township.

Silas F. Cochran, son of Zachariah Cochran, was born in this township in 1839, and was married in 1872 to Emma Dorsey, who was born in 1848. They have a family of three children—Lulu, Eddie, and Harry. He commenced life as a farmer, but started for himself in the dry goods and groceries at Longreach, West Virginia, after which he came to his present business situation in Grand View. He is postmaster of Grand View, which position he has held for the past five years.

Theodore Perry Biddle came to this township about 1840 and settled between Matamoras and Grand View. He was born in September, 1820, and was married to Maria Willis in 1840. They had a family of seven children—Alonzo, Lloyd, John, Margaret, Josephine, Ella, and Grace. He enlisted in 1861 in company I, Seventy-seventh Ohio volunteer infantry, and was in the battle of Pittsburgh Landing. He died in 1864 at Little Rock, Arkansas.

Lloyd Biddle was born in this township in 1844, and was married in 1867 to Sarah Mitchell, born in Monroe county in 1844. To them were born six children—Eva, Abbie, and Jessie now living. He enlisted in 1861 in company C, Seventy-seventh regiment, Ohio volunteer infantry, and was mustered out in 1866—after having served during the entire war. He was in the battles of Pittsburgh Landing, Little Rock, and Mark's Mills, where he was captured with about fifteen thousand others, and was confined in the rebel prisons at Tyler, Texas, for ten months. When captured they were stripped of their clothing, except shirt and drawers, confined in an open stockade without shelter except what they themselves provided by digging caves in the earth, and were compelled to subsist on one pint of meal and three-fourths of a pound of beef, per day, and that issued irregularly. Many died from the severe treatment, and naturally every means was sought to escape from the prison. At one time a New York prisoner was detailed to haul dirt from the prison with a dump-cart and mule, and as many as three hundred of the prisoners escaped, one by one concealing themselves in the load of dirt and were dumped into the garbage holes outside the prison, but just before Mr. Biddle's time came the guards discovered the trick, and, as a precautionary measure, would prod the loads of dirt with their bayonets as they passed out. One very extensive tunnel was worked entirely beyond the guards, requiring from June to October to complete it, but the anxiety of the prisoners to escape overcame their precaution, and the tunnel was opened at the wrong time and discovered by the guards in time to prevent any escapes. Punishment for such offences was ten days standing on a stump.

The year 1847 brought a settler to Grand View by the name of Walter Brown, a native of Tyler county, Pennsylvania. He lived in the township the rest of his life, which ended in 1874. Of his eleven children, his namesake, Walter Brown, jr., was the second child, and was born in Ohio county, West Virginia, in 1834. He went to Independence township from Grand View in 1867, where he now lives. His wife, Mary E., is a daughter of Joseph Chambers, and was born in Lawrence township in 1840. Their marriage, in 1867, has resulted in seven children—Walter E., Mary A., Richard C., Edward T., Joseph H., Walter M., and Carl—all living but Walter and Mary. Mr. Brown is a farmer, township trustee, and ex-boatman. John and Mary, his brother and sister, live with him at present.

Samuel Hutchison was born in Belmont county, Ohio, in 1818, and was married in 1843 to Jane Morton, who was born in 1824, in Washington county, Pennsylvania. To them were born ten children, seven of whom are now living: Arthur, Morton, William, Elizabeth, Edward, John, and Mary. He came to Grand View township in 1851, and settled in Matamoras, where he established his present business of general merchandising. In 1857 he established the tannery, which he carried on until 1863, when he sold to Machetanz & Son. He was prominent in getting the post office established in the town in 1851, and was the first postmaster, and has held several other offices. He was elected justice of the peace in 1851, and served six years. He was mayor two terms, and was elected representative in the Ohio legislature on the Republican ticket in 1855. He was an ardent supporter of the Union cause during the late war, and raised a company of militia, of which he was made the captain. He has been identified with all the public movements of this locality. At present he is a member of the United Presbyterian church. He owns a farm of three hundred and twenty-three acres, located in the north part of the township.

Under the name of Samuel Hutchison & Sons, he is assisted in the largest merchandizing establishment in the township by his two sons, Morton and William, located on the east side of First street, in the north part of Matamoras.

Samuel Shannon, son of John and Hannah (Rabe) Shannon, was born in 1813, and was married in 1844 to Susan Dennison. They have a family of the following children: John, Thomas, Samuel, and Mary. He first came to Matamoras and purchased the general store of Henry Sheets (the first store in the town), and began business in 1852, where he remained until about 1870, when he purchased the present steam flouring-mill of Clement Waters, where at present he is engaged in milling with his son John.

Mr. Shannon is one of the substantial and highly respected citizens of Matamoras, but careful and industrious attention to his business affairs has prevented him from accepting any public office.

Thomas A. Masters settled in Grand View village in 1856. He was born in 1838, and married in 1868 to Phoebe Titus, who was born in Rhode Island in 1841. They have four children, viz: Flora, Netta, Etta, and Fairy. He enlisted in 1861 in company B, Twenty-fifth Ohio volunteer infantry, and was mustered out in 1864. He was the color sergeant of his company, and received a serious wound in his side at Chancellorsville. He was also in the second battle at Manassas, at Gettysburgh, and several other engagements, serving under Generals McLean, Hooker, and Meade. He has held the office of justice of the peace since 1877, and was elected assessor the following year, which offices he now holds.

George West was born in England in 1821, and was married there to Susan Knowles, who was born in 1819 and died in 1857. They had a family of five children, four now living—Michael, Samuel, George, and Anna. He was again married to Rebecca Chambers, born in 1823. To them were born five children, three now living—Susan E., David O., and Mahala.

He settled in Matamoras in 1856, and in 1865 moved to his present location and commenced business as dry goods and general business merchant in what is known as the Yellow House west of Matamoras. He now owns a farm of two hundred and ten acres and is one of the leading citizens of his neighborhood.

Andrew Vauple (Fawble) was born in Germany in 1830 and came to the United States in 1857, and settled in Matamoras. He was married in 1860 to Elizabeth Bendal, and to them were born three children—Louisa, William, and Mary. Mr. Vauple first engaged in butchering in Matamoras and by hard work and economy succeeded in purchasing a farm of one hundred and seven acres, which lies west of the town. In 1868 he built his present brick residence in Matamoras, and was elected as member of the council in 1876.

Robert E. Wilson settled in Grand View township in 1856. He was born in 1815 and died in 1877; was married in 1833 to Mary Van Eman, who was born in 1820. Five of the ten children are now living, namely: Alexander D., Andrew, Sarah, Anna, and Lily. His son Andrew V., was born in 1842; married in 1869 to Jennie S. Hutchinson, born in 1852 and died in 1880, leaving three children—Clifford Guy, Emmett C., and Stella A. He was a member of company C, Seventy-seventh Ohio volunteer infantry, from 1861 to 1864, as corporal, color sergeant, and orderly; was in Sherman's brigade Sixteenth army corps and in the engagements of Shiloh, Little Rock, and at the battle of Fallen Timber, Tennessee, was captured by the enemy but was recaptured by the Union cavalry; is now farmer by occupation.

Robert Lovett was born in Pennsylvania in 1823, and was married in 1845 to Susan Nelson, who was born in 1823. They had a family of eight children, six of whom are now living—George, Jay, Ella, Madison, Brady, and Frank. He came to this township in 1858; is a carpenter by trade, having previously been a tanner, and has served his township as road master for eleven years. He now owns a farm of one hundred and twenty-eight acres of land and considerable other property as the result of a busy and industrious life.

Theodore Barnes, sr., son of Charles T. Barnes, settled in this township in 1860; was born in 1813, and died in 1880. He was married in 1842 to Euphemia Benninghaus, who was born in 1820, and died in 1852. Four of their six children are now living—Francis A., Charles W., Theodore B., and Lizette. He was again married in 1856 to Jane Grimes, who was born in 1830. To them were born three children—Anna, Laura and William. His son Theodore was born in 1849; married in 1873 to Margaret Bell, who was born in 1847, and they now have a family of two children—Louisa Belle and Jennie Leslie. He is now conducting a livery stable at Matamoras, owns a farm of twenty-one acres of bottom land, and is a well known citizen of Matamoras.

John Swan, son of John Swan, sr., settled in this township in 1856; was born in Jefferson county, Ohio, in 1820. He was married in 1846 to Mary Ann Aten, born in 1828, and died in 1877. Five of their seven children are now living—George, John C., William, Jane, and Silas Darwin. He commenced life with but the clothes on his back, and they unpaid for; but by industry has made himself possessor of a farm of eighty acres, and has been enabled to start some of his children in life. He is a respected citizen of the township.

John Brooks was born in 1829, and was married in 1857 to Miss N. J. Davis, who was born in 1838. They now have five living children—William, Charles, Frank, Anna, and Effie. He came to Matamoras in 1862, and began the practice of medicine, having studied at Antioch, Ohio. In the year 1814 he was called to the pastorate of the Brownsville Baptist church, which position he now holds, and during this pastorate he has baptized one hundred and one converts. He was a member of company D, Fifty-first Ohio volunteer infantry, being drafted in September, 1864, and mustered out in 1865.

Matilda Efan, widow of Wesley Cline, was born in West Virginia in 1829. Her family now consists of nine children by her first husband—Alpheus, who now resides in Newport; Rosetta, wife of James Merride, in West Virginia; Nancy A., wife of George W. Coss; Martha Jane, wife of James W. Bruce; Solomon, and Jacob M., the four latter now living in Monroe county; Sarah E., Susanna, and James Monroe, all now living at home.

Thomas Mitchell was the first member of his family who came to Grand View township; he arrived in Matamoras in 1861. He was born in Pennsylvania, in 1804, and was united in marriage to Elizabeth Clarke, who was born in 1803. To them were born ten children; five now living: Thomas, Elizabeth, John C., Joseph M., and Sarah A. He was a prominent citizen of Monroe county, being elected sheriff two terms in this county. He gave his attention to farming and accumulated considerable property, but reverses in later life reduced his effects considerably. He died in 1870, and the decease of his wife followed the next year. Thomas Mitchell, his son, was first lieutenant and afterwards captain of company H, Seventy-seventh Ohio volunteer infantry; enlisted December, 1861, and discharged in 1864. He was wounded at the battle of Fallen Timber, in Tennessee. John was second lieutenant of company I, One Hundred and Ninety-fourth Ohio volunteer infantry, and served one year. Joseph M. Mitchell was born in 1841, and was married in 1867, to Mary E. Swarts, who was born in 1850. They have five children now living: James T., Tolo, George C., Mabel, Delia. He enlisted in 1861, in company C, Seventy-seventh Ohio volunteer infantry, and was promoted to first lieutenant of company A, which position he held until the close of the war. He was engaged at Shiloh, Fallen Timber, Corinth, Mobile, and Marks Mills, Arkansas, in which battle he was taken prisoner and was confined ten months in Tyler prison, Texas, during which time he suffered from exposure and insufficient food, and general ill-treatment, the effects of which he yet feels. (For further particulars of life in this prison see sketch of Lloyd Riddle). He is now one of the leading business men of Matamoras, engaged under the firm name of Mitchell & Rice, as general merchandise and provision merchants, in which they were established in 1879. The shipments are made by boat to Pittsburgh, consisting mostly of butter, eggs, beans, dried fruits, etc. The business is increasing and every indication points to a deserved success.

George Davenport was born in 1832, and was married in 1858, to Mary E. Reckard, who was born in 1839. To them were born eleven children, nine of whom are now living: William C., Frank E., Ella L., Olivia R., John A., George A., Mary E., Martha, and Carl B. He came to this county in 1855, and first settled in Marietta, where he resided until 1866, and was engaged in the clothing business, when he removed to Newport and engaged in the dry goods business, until 1873, when he was elected sheriff of the county. He commenced business in Matamoras in 1877. He enlisted, in 1862, in the First Ohio light artillery, battery H, as first lieutenant, where he served until discharged on account of physical disability, in 1863. He was at the first battle at Winchester, Port Republic; Second Bull Run, and Fredericksburgh.

Nathan Kirkbride first came to this county in 1840, and settled in Ludlow township; was born in Maryland in 1795, and died in 1865. He was married to Sarah Farley, who was born in 1805. She still resides on the old homestead in Independence township. Andrew Kirkbride was born in 1827, and was married in 1855 to Mary Decker, who was born in 1839. They had a family of ten children, eight now living: Sarah, Ellen, Charles, Mary, Elizabeth, Frank, Frederick, and Andrew. He has followed the occupation of butchering for the past twenty years, and is also dealer in cattle, and has accumulated considerable property, and now resides in Matamoras.

Henderson Rice was born in 1819, and was married to Elizabeth Miller, who was born in 1818. They have five children: Frances, Edmund, Alice, William, and Oscar. He came to this county about 1842, and first settled in Harmar, but since removed to Monroe county, where he now resides. He was a minister in the United Brethren church. Edmund M. Rice was born in 1847, and was married in 1868 to Caroline Grove, who was born in 1849. They had a family of four children, three living: Ettie, Effie, and Kate. He engaged in the dry goods business in 1878 with George Davenport in Matamoras, and sold to Mr. Davenport in 1879, and in the fall of the same year began the same class of business with Joseph Mitchell, under the name of Mitchell & Rice, where he is now engaged.

Gottfried Machetanz was born in Germany in 1808, and was married to Maria Jacob, who was born in 1814. To them were born ten children, eight now living: Sophia, Jacob, Martha, Elizabeth, Maria, Louisa, Amelia, and Edward. He emigrated from Germany in 1858, and came to Matamoras in 1863, purchased the tannery and residence of Samuel Hutchinson, which business he has since conducted—first under the firm name of Machetanz & Son, but now Machetanz & Brother. His son Jacob was born in 1837, and came to America with his father. He was married in 1868 to Elizabeth Lentz, who was born in 1836. He is now engaged in the business with his brother Edward as successors to their father. He has held several town offices, and is at present treasurer of the township.

The tannery of Machetanz and Brother was established by Samuel Hutchison, and passed into the hands of the Machetanz family in 1863. They tan all kinds of shoe and harness leather, and are doing a business of fifteen thousand to twenty thousand dollars, employing a capital of seven thousand to ten thousand dollars. They have a large and extended market demand which taxes their fullest capacity and energy. They employ six hands on full time, and the business is fast increasing. They are located in the northwest part of Matamoras.

James K. Libbey settled in Grand View township in 1850, and died in 1860. He was born in Maine in 1784. He was a soldier in the War of 1812. His wife, Phoebe Benson, died in 1859. Of the four children, two reside in this county, viz: Eliza, a wife of Henry Myers, of Ludlow township; and Elisha B., who was born in Maine in 1812, married, in 1854, Nancy Campbell, born in Pennsylvania in 1813. Five children survive. His sons, Virgil and Jason, were in the late war. Virgil was wounded at Fredericksburgh, and never fully recovered. He died in 1864. Mr. Libbey is a general farmer, and owns one hundred and six acres of land.

Jacob Fox, a native of Germany, was born in 1846, and settled in Grand View in 1868. In 1870 he was married to Rosa Roth, who was born in 1851. They have now a family of six children—Mary, Charles, George, Cora, Arthur, and an unnamed babe. Mr. Fox is clerk of the township, which office he has held two years. He is one of the leading merchants of Grand View, where he commenced business in 1878, in dry goods, etc., and also owns a farm of two hundred acres located in this township.

William Patterson was born in Pennsylvania in 1827, and was married in 1849 to Barbara Ambler, who was born in Ohio in 1828. They had a family of five children, three of whom are now living—Lucinda, Sarah M., and James Winfield. They came to the township in 1869. He was formerly engaged in mining, but on coming to this township he began operations on the farm which he now owns as the result of his own industry. It contains one hundred and nine acres. He is a member of the Methodist Protestant church, and a prominent citizen.

John Marshall Wells was born in 1852, and was married in 1873 to Mary L. Barnes, who was born in 1850. They have two children—Chauncy T., and Harry H. He came to this township with his mother in 1855, and was originally a farmer, but in 1873 he began as a shipcarpenter, which occupation he now follows. In 1872 became a member of the Masonic order in Matamoras, and has taken four degrees in that order; also, has held the offices of senior and junior wardens. He is now a prominent member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

LEASE RUN SETTLEMENT.

Benjamin Pinney came from New York and made the first opening in this settlement in 1834. He built the first cabin on the bank above what is known as White Oak spring. Soon after, Thomas Flowers moved into this settlement, after him John Hecathorn, James McCullough, and others. This has grown to be a thickly settled neighborhood, located about three-fourths of a mile southeast of Ward station.

CHURCHES.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

This church was organized by an appointment made by the Presbytery of St. Clairsville, and the committee met in the village of Grand View June 7, 1850. Rev. John Moffat acted as moderator. James McWilliams and Joseph A. Barton, elders from Brownsville church, were invited to assist in the organization. The following persons were received on certificate at this meeting: Anthony and Caroline Sheets, Dr. Moses and Nancy Curry, John M. and Margaret Conkey, Mrs. Joseph Harvey Curry, Tirzah F. Curry, and Rebecca McWilliams.

At the first election of elders, Anthony Sheets, John M. Conkey, and Joseph H. Curry were chosen, and the ordination of these elders, which took place on Sabbath evening, June 9, 1850, completed the organization of the first Presbyterian church in this township. Among the first ministers who were sent as supplies to the new church were Revs. Williams, Hall, Alexander, Grimes, and Dool. Rev. R. Armstrong was the first ordained minister of this congregation, which ceremony took place June 25, 1851.

The work of building a house of worship began immediately and was soon ready for dedication, which occurred October 2, 1852. The dedication sermon was preached by Rev. W. S. Dool, using for his text the following words: "I will glorify the house of my glory."

The society of Grand View prospered for a time, but eventually, for unknown reasons, the membership decreased and the organization was abandoned. The friends of this denomination living in and about Matamoras called a meeting, to be held in the Baptist church of that place, for the purpose of organizing a society and building a church at Matamoras. The necessary arrangements having been made the building was begun in 1877 and was completed in July, 1878.

The church building is located on First street, in the northern part of the town, on a beautiful situation fronting the river. It is a frame building of modern finish and has an eighty-five feet spire. The ceremony of laying the corner stone was performed by the present pastor, Rev. C. D. Curtis, in 1879. The base stone was followed by a square mortise in which are deposited a copy of the Bible, records of the church, names of members, and several different pieces of coin. The trustees of the church at the present time are R. G. Webber, Israel Early, and M. M. Hutchison. Present elders, R. G. Webber, John Emery, and M. M. Hutchison.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

The first meetings were held by this denomination in very early times in Grand View, at the houses of the pioneers, by the itinerent ministers as they passed to and from the annual conferences. Among the early ministers were Revs. Abel Robinson, Denison, David Smithers, and others. The first permanent organization was made some time prior to 1852, in which year the present church building was erected in Grand View village. The dedication sermon was preached by Pardon Cook. Among the leading members were James Williamson, Anthony Sheets, Polly Talbott, Warren Wells, Martin Sheets, William Peaden and wife.

In 1865 the appointments at Grand View and Matamoras were added to Brownsville circuit, from whose present secretary, C. Sander (Jolly post office), we are indebted for the following history, which then belonged to McConnellsville district, of Pittsburgh annual conference:

The first quarterly meeting was held at Grand View June 3, 1865. The trustees of this church at that time were: J. Martin, C. T. Barnes, F. Collins, C. Masters, and J. H. Stewart, who was also a local preacher. The preachers in charge on this circuit were, viz: From 1864 to 1867, Rev. C. P. Hamilton; from this time to 1871 were Revs. F. C. Hatfield and H. McCall.

At the fourth quarterly conference, held at Matamoras, February 26, 1870, the following committee was appointed to estimate the cost of a proposed church edifice in Matamoras, viz: C. T. Barnes, C. Deiters, H. R. Riggs, G. W. Cline, and J. H. Stewart, and at the conference held at Brownsville in September 24, 1870, the following trustees of this church were appointed: G. W. Cline, W. Wells, H. Hensell, S. Pope, H. R. Riggs, C. Deiters, A. Nuger, J. Hensell, and J. H. Stewart. The present Methodist Episcopal church building was completed in 1871, at a cost of over three thousand dollars, and the following ministers have served this congregation and the circuit from 1871 to the present time, viz: Revs. P. K. McCue, William Smith, John Wright, J. J. Exell, and William Piggott, the present pastor.

THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH (BELL'S CHAPEL).

The lot on which the first log meeting-house of this society was built in 1855, was donated by Alexander Bell, who was a local preacher, and it was located in the southwest corner of the roads, three quarters of a mile west of Ward's station, in the extreme western part of the township.

The society then belonged to Brownsville circuit, and among the early ministers were: E. Ellison, Pardon Cook, James A. White, and many others. The present building, a frame, twenty-eight by forty feet, was erected in 1879, and stands on the land donated by John Drake, immediately west of the site of the old log church. John Stewart, John Twinem, Joseph Dodds, Thomas Flowers, and Andrew McMasters, trustees. Present membership sixty-four, services every three weeks, and Sabbath-school every Sunday—under the superintendence of Rev. Doan, Newport circuit.

THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH (GERMAN)

is located in the western part of the township, and is a frame building, about twenty-six by thirty, and was erected about 1860.

Among the early ministers of this church were Henry Henkey, Frederick Schimmelfenig, Carl Melitzer, John Kupp and the present one, J. G. Reiber. The first trustees were John Neun, Peter Englehart and Tunis Neun, and the present trustees are Peter Englehart, Conrad Miller and John Kellner. The membership numbers about fifty; services every three weeks, and Sunday-school every Sunday.

UNITED BROTHERS CHURCH.

The first church building of this denomination was built on west corner of farm owned by Francis Collins, south of Grand View village. The house was a rude log built about 1869. Henry Jones, Dwight Berentz and Levi Clark were leading men and officials in this first organization. Among the early ministers were Rev. George Athy, Reasacker, Hendrickson and others. Rev. Reasacker was a minister of remarkable powers, and many very extraordinary revivals occurred in this church under his ministry. It is related that at one time a lame man was made to walk about the church as though he were not lame. A young lady—Laura Emory—passed over the tops of the benches and the heads of the people in a manner clearly impossible to mere human power, and as many as ten persons lay helpless on the floor at one time, and many other remarkable manifestations are related as having occurred in these revival meetings.

Some few years after this society moved to the present location where, under the ministry of Rev. Anson Roach, they now hold regular services near Ward's station.

THE FAIRVIEW (CHRISTIAN) CHURCH

is located in the western part of the township; is a substantial frame, twenty-four by thirty-four, and was erected in 1880. This congregation was built up from a general revival in 1819, under the preaching of Revs. Barker and Singer, when about forty members were taken into the church. Trustees: James Knowlton, Anderson Hall, Daniel Little, and Revs. Bonner and Nugent were among the former ministers of this denomination. Services are now held once every month; Sabbath-school every Sabbath superintended by Daniel Little.

The present membership is about fifty, and is the only congregation of this denomination in the township.

BAPTIST CHURCH (MATAMORAS).

The Baptist denomination had the earliest representation in the religious element of this locality. They first held services in the old log school-house near the mouth of Mill creek in very early times, but no organization was made until 1859.

The council called for the purpose of organizing a church at Matamoras was held May 28, 1859. T. W. Ewart acting as moderator and Okey Johnson, clerk, and the delegates in attendance from the various points, who were previously solicited to attend, were as follows: Rev. Henry Lyons, John Pool, Stacy and John P. Stephens, and John Davis, Brownsville; Morris Covert, Samuel Morgan, Basil Stewart, Michael Stine, and Richard Stacy, Unity; Rev. J. D. Riley and James Furguson, Newport; Andrew Dare, George Stewart, William and E. D. Johnson, Long Reach, Va.; L. G. Leonard, D. D., T. W. Ewart, Isaac Adkins, Isaac Talbott, Charles Pearce, Marietta; Elder J. D. Riley, Little Muskingum; Sterling Jones, Woodfield; S. B. Sickman, Pleasants, Virginia.

The following persons were admitted by letter at the first meeting: Lucy Cochran, Levi and Mary Hoffman, Charlotta Eastham, Robert McCormick, Joseph Bonar, Emma Brown, Thomas R. and Maria Smith, Jonas and Nancy Unger, J. D. Nancy, Mary, Virginia, Albert, and Cynthia Leonard, Diana Furguson, Temperance Scott, Mary Young, and Thomas Reynolds.

The organization having been thus successfully effected, Rev. J. D. Leonard received the first call to the regular pastorate of this church and among those who have since served this society as ministers were T. L. Rinehart, J. P. Stephens, Watson Dana, L. Hamlin, M. J. Dunn, and the present pastor, Rev. Mungo Taylor.

The first officials were—Andrew Snider, Zachariah Cochran, H. G. Hubbard, trustees; Thomas Reynolds, treasurer; Jasper Bonar, clerk.

The lot on which the church was erected was donated by the "Womens' Sewing society," which was organized for the purpose of making up articles of wearing apparel, the proceeds of the sale of such articles to be devoted to religious purposes. The above lot was purchased by this society in this way at the cost of one hundred dollars, and was first intended as a donation for a Union church, but finally came into the possession of the Baptists, as they were greatly in the majority over other denominations. The present building is located on the southwest corner of Third and Main streets, is a frame, about forty by fifty, and has a cupola and bell.

The present membership numbers about one hundred and twelve. The present pastor holds services here every alternate Sunday and the Sabbath-school meets every Sunday; and in connection with this society the same pastor serves Lawrence and Unity, and the pastoral charge is now in a good, flourishing condition.

SCHOOLS.

The first school-house of which an account can now be found was built at the mouth of Mill creek on the banks of the river. The teacher of this school was a Mr. Edgington, of whom little is now remembered.

Another school was afterward established in a deserted cabin, near what is now Cochranville, and was taught by Mr. Oakey. These were known as subscription schools, the teacher receiving so much from the parents or guardian of each scholar. About 1852 the present school building in Matamoras was erected, originally containing two rooms, under the control of Abram Loman. Among those who have taught in this school building are, Messrs. Tuttle, Alexander, Charles D. Young and others. The fourth separate district in which the building is located includes the town of Matamoras and a considerable extent of territory beyond the corporation limits. The building has been improved to accommodate the increasing number of pupils, until there are now four departments, and four rooms of equal size and the whole building eighty-five by thirty feet. The number now enrolled is two hundred and twenty-five; average daily attendance, one hundred and seventy-five, under the present corps of teachers—Professor S. W. Barber, principal; John Martin, intermediate A; Miss Emma Greene, intermediate B; and Miss Lida Hinds, primary.

GRAND VIEW VILLAGE SCHOOL.

The first school-house in this locality stood where the Methodist Episcopal church now stands, and was the old log building elsewhere mentioned as the place where the early meetings of the pious settlers were held. Mr. Flack was the first teacher who presided over the school here. In a few years the school was removed to the old tannery belonging to Hannibal Williamson, where it was continued until 1863, when the present house was built and was improved in 1874, now having two rooms. The present teachers are Professor E. B. Hutchinson and Mrs. S. E. Altzman. Number of pupils enrolled, eighty; daily average attendance, fifty-five. In good, prosperous condition.

CEMETERIES.

The first cemetery in this township was the old burying-ground immediately south of Matamoras, and was the first half-acre of cleared land in this locality, and the first person buried there was Prissa (Riggs) Sheets, about 1800. The next burial place was the lot in the rear of Andrew Vauple's residence in Matamoras.

These old grounds have long since been abandoned, and many of the bodies removed to other places. In 1840 Amos Ridgway donated three acres of land to the public for a cemetery, which is located on the hill northwest of the town, which is now the principal cemetery, though there are other places of interment in other localities.

RAILROAD.

A line of railroad was projected through this township following the course of the Ohio river leading from Marietta to Bellaire, and extending the entire length of the township from south to north. Many very extensive bridges and culverts were completed and grading done, but for some reason the enterprise failed and the unfinished work abandoned. This rather extensive and very costly failure was begun by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, in 1854, and but little hopes are now entertained of the final completion of the road.

VINEYARD.

The Machetanz Brothers also have a vineyard located on the hill back of Matamoras, containing two acres of land and about twelve hundred plants, and having a southeast front. It was first planted in 1875, and the first crop taken in 1877. The plants are of many kinds, embracing some of the finest grapes in the United States, including the Concord, Ives, Seedling, Norton, Virginia, White Wine, Taylor, Cynthia, Martha, and others. They have a press of four hundred gallon capacity, and they propose soon to establish a shipping business.

MATAMORAS—NEW MATAMORAS POST OFFICE.

The proprietor of the town was Henry Sheets, who made the survey of the first plat on his land lying along the Ohio river. Beginning with the big road, which extended along the banks of the river, the original plat extended west three blocks to Third street, and north three blocks from Merchants street, to the first alley above the flour mill now belonging to Samuel Shannon. The only houses within the bounadry of the original plat were the stove and dwelling house, also the flour mill of the proprietor. The streets were, beginning at the river, Water street, which has now almost disappeared beneath the encroachments of the river; the next was First, then Second and Third streets, all running north and south; then those extending east and west were Merchants and Ferry. The first addition was made by Stinson Burris, and extended from Merchants down to Vine, including two lots beyond; and from Water back to third, thus extending Water, First, Second, and Third streets, and adding two new streets—Main and Vine. The second addition was made on the north extending Water, First and Second streets three blocks, and adding another street—Togler—and eighteen new blocks, which in 1849 included the full dimensions of the town. Afterwards many other large additions were made on the southwest.

The town began slowly to improve, and houses, one by one, began to appear along First street of the old plat, then on Main and Second, until 1861 the incorporation was made, and at the election James McWilliams was elected mayor.

The present town officials are: Dr. W. L. West, mayor; Jasper Lisk, clerk; Philip Hanshumaker, treasurer; Hezekiah Riggs, marshal; J. N. Simmons, street commissioner; John Shannon, H. B. May, Edward Machetanz, George Davenport, John Hays, and I. Walters, councilmen. The commercial importance of Matamoras is represented by the following business firms: First street, Samuel Shannon & Son, flour mill; Samuel Hutchison & Sons, general store and post office; August Andrea, druggist; Adam Brown, saloon; Hosea B. May, hardware and tinner; John Richard, Richards House; Philip Reinherr, confectionary and bakery; Dr. S. M. Richardson, druggist and physician; John Hensell, furniture and undertaker; Charles Miller, general store; M. Burbaker, merchant tailor; Jacob Gautchi, cigar-maker and barber; A. Unger, boot and shoemaker; Frederick Glaso, merchant tailor; Jacob Grohs, saddler and harness; Mitchell & Rice, general store and foward-ing; Charles Nelly, Nelly House; Philip Hanshumaker, dry goods; Dr. F. P. Martin, physician and surgeon; W. F. Powell, New Matamoras Herald; T. B. Barnes, livery. Main street: Dr. W. L. West, physician and surgeon; I. Walters, boots and shoes; A. Kirkbride, butcher; Elliott Brothers, general store; Lloyd Biddle, saloon; James McMunn, boots and shoes; A. P. Cree, grocery and commission; Mrs. Young, book store; T. H. Huffman, Huffman House; Isaac Young; blacksmith; Alexander Minder, saloon; Jonas Lisk, wagon-maker. Second street: John Graham, carpenter; Charles Keddy, butcher; Levi Huffman, drayman. Third street: William Gist, carpenter; H. C. Cunningham, carpenter; John Hays, cooper; Dr. A. R. Anderson, physician and surgeon; Machetanz & Brother, tannery. Merchant street: John Craig, livery.

The location of the town on the Ohio river makes it a convenient shipping point for a large territory.

GRAND VIEW VILLAGE

is a small place located immediately south of Matamoras, and was first surveyed in very early times, but the old plat was annuled by Hannibal Williamson in 1848-9, who immediately proceeded to make a new plat on the same grounds, by running two rows of lots from the river, six rods deep, with an alley between, ten feet wide. The buildings are mostly located on the one main street and facing the river. There are at present one grange store, two general stores, three cooper shops, one church, one graded school, one drug store, and one saloon.

LODGES.

The Matamoras Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, No. 524, was organized by Right Worthy of Ohio

Grand Lodge at its May session 1872, when the charter was granted. The charter members were—Philip Hanshumaker, O. F. Flint, William S. Potter, George Schmidt, Charles Hill, Charles Miller, and Philip Reinherr, and the lodge was instituted July 9, 1812, by Special Deputy Grand Master, H. R. Williams. Officials elected were—Philip Hanshumaker, N. G.; Charles Hill, vice N. G.; O. F. Flint secretary; Philip Reinherr, treasurer; William S. Potter, chaplain. Members of fifth degree are, viz: Jasper Lisk, Philip Reinherr, Philip Hanshumaker, W. S. Potter, George A. Shapley, Samuel Snodgrass, Esau Knowlton, Mathias Merckle, W. W. Glesencamp, William Pool, Charles Hill, George Schmidt, W. T. Steadman, Harvey Holland, jr., Barnet Adamson, Israel Early, Lloyd Biddle, Jacob Machetanz, David Thomas, Richard Edwards, A. W. Minder, A. Cutler, A. R. Newman, Jacob Gautchi, George Davenport, George Emery, J. McBaker, R. A. Shaw, Jacob Grohs. The benefits paid by this lodge are, in case of sickness, four dollars per week after first week, and funeral expenses of fifty dollars. Meetings are held over store room of Miller & Hanshumaker.

New Matamoras Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, No. 374, was organized by charter, granted October 16, 1867. Charter members, viz: Dr. F. P. Martin, J. R. Algeo, George S. Algeo, Frederick Beegle, William S. Potter, Dr. S. M. Richardson, Vachel Barnes, Cameron Bishop, Charles McMunn, C. W. True, Clement Watters, William Hubbard, C. W. Ridgeway, Charles Algeo, Rolla Meredith, G. C. Renetts. First official, John W. Jackson, master; F. P. Martin, senior warden; Joseph Algeo, junior warden. The hall in which the lodge held its meetings was destroyed by fire August 17, 1874, and all the property of the lodge totally destroyed.

It was, however, reorganized, and another charter granted with full power of the original. The hall in which the lodge now meets, on the corner of Main and Second streets, in Matamoras, is fully refurnished with the equipments necessary to Masonry. The present officials are: John Wells, master; George Algeo, senior warden; Samuel F. Koontz, junior warden; Charles McMunn, treasurer; J. M. Mitchell, secretary; Jasper Lisk, senior deacon; James L. Amos, junior deacon; David A. Cochran, tyler.

THE GRANGES.

The organization of farmers known as the Grange is in active operation in this township, and several lodges have been organized in various localities. These granges—Greene Mountain, Salem Hall—together with Archer's Fork, Mt. Vernon, Bethel, Low Gap and Jericho, have organized an incorporated joint-stock company for the purpose of operating what is known as a cooperative store. This store is now located at Grand View, under the control of Jacob Fox, and is now in successful operation on what is known as the Rockdale plan.

Greene Mountain Grange, No. 1,040, is located on Lease Run, about four miles west of Grand View village, and was organized about 1872. The following were the original officials: William H. Fullmer, master; Jacob Fox, secretary; William Heddleston, lecturer; and John Delong, treasurer. The charter members, including the above officials, were: John M. Walker, August Suck and Conrad Felton. The present membership is about thirty, and the society is in active, prosperous condition.

Salem Hall Grange is located in the western part of the township, and was organized in February, 1875. The first officials were, viz.: William Fry, master; C. Fox, lecturer; William Smith, secretary; Henry Roudebaugh, treasurer; Burgess Hall, chaplain; Joseph Bashor, gate-keeper. The hall building is a frame structure about eighteen by thirty-seven, and was erected in 1877, at a cost of about three hundred dollars. The membership, originally about fifty, has decreased almost one-half.

MILLS.

The first mill in this township was known as "Bucks Mill," and was operated on Mill creek in very early times, about one mile north of Matamoras. This mill was rebuilt in 1829 by Isaac Rinard. It is remarkable that this only flour-mill within twelve miles of this locality used No. 4 bolting cloth, and every kind of grinding was done on one run of stone. After this some time, Henry Sheets erected the steam mill on the site of the present steam mill of Samuel Shannon, in Matamoras.

Mr. Shannon has made some very material improvements on the mill, and it is now a frame structure about thirty-three feet square, four stories high, and has three run of stone of usual capacity, propelled by steam.

GRAND VIEW MILL.

This mill is located immediately north of Grand View village, and was erected by Hannibal Williamson in 1864, and is a flour-and saw-mill combined. It is a frame structure (thirty-six by twenty-four) having two run of stone of usual capacity. Gilbert Hubbard now has the mill rented, and is doing only the general custom work of the locality.

CASUALTIES AND TRAGEDIES.

On the Fourth of July, 1856, every preparation was being made by the people of Matamoras and the vicinity for a grand celebration of the national holiday. William Ellis, Isaac Cline, Amos Ridgway, and Sylvester Martin had charge of a small swivel gun, and were on the hill back of the town very early in the morning, firing salutes. While Martin was loading a premature discharge carried away both of his arms, and, singularly as it may appear, one of his thumbs was blown off with such force as to enter the arm of Joseph Cline above the elbow, and, following the muscle almost to the shoulder, remained imbedded in the flesh until extracted by the physician. Martin exhibited great power of endurance under the suffering the accident necessarily must have cost him, and when under the physician's hands, enduring the necessary amputation, he was even humorous, and inquired flippantly of the physicians what they intended to make out of him, and expressed the very plain fact that they could never "fix him up for a fiddler." He recovered, and is now living, though having left this locality after many years here, where he supported himself in several lucrative lines of trade.

On the evening of the third of July a crowd was collected at the wharf at Grand View, for the purpose of firing salutes preparatory to the celebration on the following day. They had a singular machine for making a loud noise—a fifty-six pound weight with a hole drilled in it, in which the powder was confined by driving a plug. The fuse at one time failed to ignite with the powder, and Dr. Drake, a young physician, proposed to ignite it with a lighted cigar, which he did, and the explosion which followed tore his head from his shoulders, producing instant death.

In 1860 David Burnet was instantly killed by a falling tree, about one and a quarter miles west of Frank Collins', near Grand View. Near this same place a few years after, John Burnet was killed by a falling tree while coon-hunting at night. He was a son of the former victim. Following this a few years, in the same locality, Albert Hutchison, while fox-hunting at night, ran against a stump, receiving injuries from which he soon died. All these accidents happened within one-half mile of each other.

In 1863 William Little and Reason Kendall quarrelled about some domestic troubles, and one day as Little was riding along the road about three miles northwest of Matamoras, Kendall, who was secreted behind an old chimney that stood near the road, fired upon Little with a rifle. The ball took effect in the back of the head and passing through lodged near the right eye, producing instant death. Kendall was convicted, and served a time in the State prison, but was pardoned.

In 1866 John Hupp was knocked down and beaten to death in a drunken quarrel at Grand View, but the murderers were never apprehended, and the particulars were not fully known.

On the river about one-half mile below Grand View, a man by the name of Fuller, from Virginia, was engaged to row William Brian, and a woman known as Kate King, from the Virginia side to Grand View, some time in 1860-1. The boat did not proceed to suit the parties, and a quarrel ensued in which Fuller received a blow on the head by an oar, and his body was found drifting in his boat the following day.

NEWSPAPERS.

The first newspaper published in this township was issued by L. L. Harvey, editor and proprietor, on Friday, November 15, 1861, and was called the Matamoras Herald. The editorial prospectus lays claim to the usual unselfish object of "filling a long felt want" by publishing the only paper on the Ohio river between Marietta and Belaire, a distance of seventy-eight miles. An article is clipped from the New York Observer in which the impatience of the people in that stage of the late war was sought to be silenced by explanations of the crippled condition of the Government at the beginning of the war, and that the real designs of pretended leaders in the Union cause were fast being discovered, and confidence restored by the elevation of men of undoubted loyalty to places of command, and promising an immediate advanced movement when these difficulties were satisfactorily adjusted. Also an article from the Richmond (Virginia) Whig, complaining of the failure of the Confederate army to advance, deprecating a defensive policy, and earnestly entreating the leaders of the rebel hosts to carry the war into the enemy's country. The removal of General Fremont was interpreted by the editor of the Herald as propitiatory to the pro-slavery element of the north.

Among the professional and business men that patronized the advertising columns of the paper were: Dr. W. W. Plummer, office First street; D. R. Marks, physician and surgeon, Second street; wagons repaired by H. Bebout; Blue Bird mills give notice that without ten bushels of custom work to begin with on Wednesdays and Fridays, no grinding would be done—Knapp & Calhoun; blacksmithing, for cash or produce, by Isaac Young; W. M. Harvey, and J. N. Hills, dealers in dry goods; I. C. Land, tailor, First street; Em. Andrea, drug store. W. T. Robinson, second lieutenant, Ohio volunteer infantry, opens a recruiting office for the Seventy-seventh Ohio volunteer infantry, offering thirteen dollars per month. The paper existed for some time, but finally ceased.

The New Matamoras Herald was first issued by W. T. Powell, editor and proprietor, August 5, 1880, and though in operation but a short time there are many encouraging indications of future success. It is now a sprightly journal of twenty-four columns, soon to be increased, and, maintaining an independence in all things, can be supported as it ought by the citizens throughout this locality.

"PETTICOAT FORD"

is the name given a former shallow place in the Ohio river, below Grand View village. A man living on the Virginia side of the river had a large family of girls who frequently visited their neighbors on the Ohio side, and in order to do so they were compelled to wade the river, and this operation necessitated the exposure of the well known article of female apparel called the petticoat, and the usually gay colors of which this garment is made did not escape the prying eyes of the boatmen as they passed up and down the river, and the jesting remarks occasioned thereby gave the name to this ford.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH.

H. A. WILLIAMSON.

On an accompanying page will be found a view of Grand View farm. The township derives its name from the magnificent view within the range of an observer standing on a point on this farm. Between the Virginia hills in the distance and the plain on which is situated the village of Grand View, lies the winding course of the Ohio, with willow-dressed shores and bearing on its bosom noisy tugs and gracefully floating packets. This farm, possessing greater scenic interest than any other in the county, is owned by H. A. Williamson.

The Williamsons were among the first settlers of the

H. A. WILLIAMSON.

OLD HOMESTEAD.

MRS. H. A. WILLIAMSON.

RESIDENCE OF H. A. WILLIAMSON, GRAND VIEW, WASHINGTON CO., O.

township, and it is proper that the portrait of a well-known representative of the family, and a pictorial sketch of his finely situated farm, should have a place in this volume. Mr. Williamson was born in Grand View township, November 13, 1813. He married, January 14, 1841, Temperance Hubbard, who was born May 16, 1824. Since he began life for himself, Mr. Williamson has accumulated a great deal of property. His farm includes nine hundred acres of choice land and is well improved. Before the war he was engaged in the southern trade, and about 1850 was a partner in a store at Grand View. He has been identified with the educational interests of his community all his life, having served term after term, in the capacity of school director. He is not a member of any church, but his means contributed largely toward building the Methodist and Presbyterian meeting-houses. Mr. Williamson is known in the community and will be remembered as an industrious, liberal man, whose life has been honorable and useful.

CHAPTER XLIII.

MUSKINGUM TOWNSHIP.

The Township in Embryo—Boundaries Defined in 1861 by Legislative Act—Part of Union Annexed—The Muskingum's Influence on Physical features—Wolves Troublesome—Piscatorial Amusements—The Last Beaver—Donation Lots Drawn—The River a Refuge—A Block-house built—Pioneers of Rainbow—First Settlement in Wiseman's Bottom—The Virginia Squatter—First Orchard Planted Under Difficulties—Growth of the Community—First Schools and Teachers—A Singing School—An Old Subscription Paper—The Only Church—Pioneer Burying-Grounds—The Putnam Monument—Jonathan Devol's Floating Mills—Stationary Mills—Ships on the Muskingum—Children's Home Established—Mrs. Ewing's Home—An Organization of Farmers.

THE territory now comprised in this township was originally a part of Adams township as established by the court of quarter sessions convened at Marietta in March, 1797. From time to time since that early day the several northern townships have come into existence by the crumbling away of old Adams, and prior to the year 1861, Muskingum township was in an embryonic state within the confines of Marietta, Fearing and Union townships.

ESTABLISHMENT.

April 18, 1861, the Ohio legislature passed the following bill:

AN ACT

To erect the township of Muskingum in Washington county.

SECTION I. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, That the territory now constituting parts of the townships of Marietta, Union, and Fearing, in the county of Washington, and bounded as follows, to wit: Beginning at a point on the Muskingum river, where the same is intersected by the west line of a seventy-eight acre lot, numbered sixteen, in Bear Creek allotment of donation lands, running thence south on said line to the southwest corner of said lot numbered sixteen, thence west to the northwest corner of an eighty-five acre lot, numbered twenty-two, in Rainbow Creek allotment of donation lands, thence south on the west line of said lot numbered twenty-two, to the north line of Wiseman's bottom allotment of the donation lands, thence east on said line to the Muskingum river, thence down said river on the west bank thereof the same is intersected by the west line of one hundred and sixty acre lot, numbered four hundred, thence south on said line and its continuation to the south line of township numbered three, in range numbered eight, thence east on said line to the east bank of the Muskingum river, thence down said river to the south line of commons lot numbered twenty-eight, thence northeasterly along the corporation line of the city of Marietta to the southwest corner of commons lot numbered seventeen, thence easterly along the south line of commons lot numbered seventeen, to the southwest corner of commons lot numbered twelve, thence easterly along the south line of commons lot numbered twelve, to the southwest corner of commons lot numbered fourteen, thence north on line of original survey to the south line of Fearing township, thence east on said line to the east line of three acre lot numbered three hundred and two, thence north on the east line of a range of three acre lots numbered three hundred and eighty-nine, thence west to the east line of section numbered twenty-five in township numbered three, of range eight, thence north on the section line to the south line of Salem township, thence west on said township line to Bear creek, thence down said creek to the Muskingum river, thence up said river to a point due north of the place of beginning, thence south across the river to the place of beginning, be and the same is hereby erected and constituted into a new township to be designated as Muskingum township, and that the eastern boundary of Union township, the western boundary of Fearing, and the northern boundary of Marietta township be so changed as to conform to the lines of said Muskingum township.

SECTION II. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after the date of its passage.

Thus were the boundaries of the new township defined, and then as now Muskingum was bounded on the north by Adams and Salem, on the east by Fearing and Marietta, on the south by Marietta city and township, and Warren, and on the west by Watertown.

ORGANIZATION.

The records show that the first election for officers in the new town of Muskingum was held at the school-house in sub-district number two of said township, December 28, 1861, the judges of the election being Augustine Dyar, William Devol, and C. F. Stacy. After balloting the following named persons were declared elected: Abraham Zellers, Augustine Dyer, and C. F. Stacy, trustees; Wesley Combs, clerk; James Ward, treasurer; A. D. C. Stacy, and John Gerhart, constables; J. P. Devol, and Smith Bartlett, justices of the peace; A. R. Stacy, R. Fearing, A. Dyar, Daniel Wilking, and Jacob Wagner, board of education.

At succeeding annual elections the following officers were chosen:

TRUSTEES.

1862, A. Zellers, Jacob Schramm, J. Stacy; 1863, A. Zellers, Jacob Schramm, A. Dyar; 1864, Anthony Smith, A. R. Stacy, George Matthews; 1865, John Gerhart, A. Smith, William Devol; 1866, John Gerhart, A. S. Marshal, W. Devol; 1867, J. B. Dyar, Theodore Devol, Levi Bartlett; 1868, R. G. Alden, George Wagner, Levi Bartlett; 1869, R. G. Alden, Jacob Oesterle, Levi Bartlett; 1870, O. J. Wood, Jacob Oesterle, Levi Bartlett; 1871, Joseph Dyar, Jacob Oesterle, L. Bartlett; 1872, A. Dyar, A. R. Stacy, S. S. Olney; 1873, G. A. Wood, Jacob Spies, S. S. Olney; 1874, John Gerhart, J. Strecker, S. S. Olney; 1875, George Cesterle, J. Strecker, S. S. Olney; 1876, A. Dyar, A. Smith, Charles Weinheimer; 1877, S. S. Stowe, A. Smith, C. Weinheimer; 1878, M. A. Stacy, A. Smith, C. Weinheimer; 1879, G. P. Smith, A. Smith, C. Weinheimer; 1880, G. P. Smith, Jacob Neu, A. Dyar.

CLERKS.

1862-7, W. D. Devol; 1866-75, James Weeks; 1875-80, James Weeks; 1880-1, James Weeks.

TREASURERS.

1862-7, James Ward; 1867-75, James Ward; * 1875-80, W. D. Devol; 1880-1, M. A. Stacy.

* Mr. Ward dying during his term of office, John Strecker was appointed.

The elections are now held at Grimm's wagon shop at Union landing, on the Muskingum river.

AN ADDITION.

At the June session of the board of county commissioners in 1877, a petition was presented by Matthew Jurden and others, praying for the dissolution of Union Township, and at the regular session of the commissioners in December, 1877, the following was ordered:

The petitioners having made application at the June session of 1877 for the partition of Union township among the townships of Adams, Muskingum, Warren and Watertown, and the board being of opinion that it is necessary and expedient that the prayer of said petitioners be granted, hereby order that said Union township be divided, and annexed to the adjoining townships as follows:

to Muskingum—the territory beginning at the northeast corner of one hundred and sixty acre lot No. 392, west to the northwest corner of said lot No. 392, thence north to Wiseman's bottom, thence west to the southwest corner of Wiseman's bottom, thence east to the Muskingum river, thence following the course of the Muskingum to the northeast corner of one hundred and sixty acre lot No. 413, thence south to the place of beginning, containing section eight, one hundred and sixty acre lot No. 413, part of Donation line (lot No. 418), and all of Wiseman's bottom allotment that lies in Union township.

It was further ordered that the above go into effect April 1, 1878, and that the boundary of the township of Muskingum be so changed as to conform to that given above.

THE NAME OF THE TOWNSHIP

is very naturally and very appropriately derived from the beautiful Muskingum river, which meanders through its whole longitudinal extent, and keeps fertile the garden spots along its banks.

PHYSICAL FEATURES.

The surface of the township is greatly diversified. The course of the Muskingum river has greatly influenced the contour of the land on either side. The eastern and western boundaries of the township embrace rugged hills which gradually slope towards their common central valley, which has been marked out in sinuous course among the surrounding uplands and hill country. The ascent from the river to the terminal hills is by four distinct steps, which are generally apparent. Including the river from Marietta on the south to Bear creek on the north, the township contains a large area of the immediate valley of the Muskingum. In places this valley or bottom land is scarcely perceptible. However, there are considerable areas of broad low lands extending first on one side and then on the other. The three abrupt bends in the course of the river indicate the boundaries of as many areas of plain land, and especially is it true of the two northerly intervals, that they are the garden spots of the township and hence the centres of thriving agricultural communities.

The first and most northerly curve of the river bears so strong a resemblance to the bow in the clouds that the included district was early called the Rainbow territory. Immediately south of this land and only separated from it by the waters of the Muskingum, is a stretch of bottom land which took the name Wiseman's bottom from its first settler. Still further south is a smaller stretch of lowland. The first two areas are from one-half to nearly a mile wide. Opposite these respective bottoms the hills approach very nearly to the water's edge as if jealous of their sister lowland. One step back from the first bottoms will be found a slightly more elevated region known as the second bottom, which swells into the higher plain land beyond, which in turn borders the outstretching slopes of the hill land. The hill country is very much broken and consists of alternate swells and falls. The hills vary in height and are separated by deep hollows through which run small streams of water, many of which are fed by springs, especially abundant in the northeastern part of the township. Many of these hills are symmetrically moulded by nature's hand, and there are numerous mounds very suggestive of the artificial. Towards the western boundary the hills are not as prominent as on what is known as the ridge, which extends north and south along the western line.

The general tendency of the various branching water-courses is in a southerly direction toward the Muskingum river.

SOIL.

The bottoms consist of rich alluvions deposited by the river. The soil is of the richest quality. Adjacent to these are the second bottoms, of a thinner soil, and of a more loamy or sandy character. The plain land immediately adjacent to the hills has a gravelly soil. It is not expedient to attempt to determine which of the two bottoms, Rainbow or Wiseman's, is the more productive, inasmuch as they vie with each other for the palm. Both are very fertile and are consequently very productive, and are clear of timber. The uplands afford a fertile, clayey soil well adapted to the culture of wheat and all the small grains. The hill-tops which in the early days of settlement were regarded as little more than sterile obstructions have, by reason of the industry of the farmer, been crowned with golden harvests and dotted with grazing cattle. The bottom land averages in value fifty dollars per acre; and the lowest valuation is set on the hill land, which is worth from twenty-five down to ten dollars an acre.

Wheat is the staple production, corn being raised principally for home consumption. In the territory among the hills, and distant from the markets the raising of stock is made a specialty, and especial attention is paid to sheep raising where the soil is adapted to pasturage.

Throughout the whole territory of the township great pains are taken to raise fruit. The stipulation in the early allotment of land that fruit trees be set out has left a lasting impression on the settlers, and consequently fruit is now abundant.

The uplands and hill slopes are covered with a growth of beech and sugar trees, which the higher elevations and tops of the hills are heavily clothed with forests, principally of white oak. At the time of the first settlement when there was such a scarcity of salt for culinary operations, it was thought that there were saline indications near the entrance of March run from the east, into the Muskingum. The deer, by congregating in that vicinity, suggested the presence of a "salt-lick." A man named Miller, from McConnelsville, was employed to bore a well, and for a number of years the remnants of the machinery then used might have been seen along the shores of the creek.

Along the eastern ridge of the township there are indications of the presence of coal, although not in quantities sufficient to warrant mining. Coal has been found on the land of John Spies, in the northern extremity of the township; also not far from the residence of B. F. Dyar in section seven. A thin seam of coal has been discovered on the land of Jacob Sutter on Second creek.

In the bed of this last named stream abundant modules of rich iron ore are found, which have been used in the puddling furnaces in the Marietta rolling mill.

NATIVE ANIMALS.

Originally, the forests bordering the Muskingum teemed with almost every variety of wild animals which are native of this western country. Before the advent of the white man, the Indians, in passing up and down the river, would turn aside to indulge in their favorite sport. These native nimrods rapidly scaring the abundant game from their native haunts, when the settlers arrived the buffalo had disappeared, and bears and panthers were scarce; but wolves, deer, and wild turkey, besides smaller game, were yet plenty.

The early settlers of Muskingum were frequently disturbed by the inroads of wolves among their cattle, but seldom had cause to fear for their personal safety, although at times lonely travellers had to run for their lives. It is related, that at one time a fiddler was en route down the Muskingum for Marietta, where he was to preside at some jollification, and when several miles above town, was attacked by a pack of wolves and forced to take to a tree and there fiddle for his life until the first gray streaks of early dawn.

Deer and wild turkeys kept the larder well supplied with fresh meat, while the waters of the Muskingum were overstocked with hundreds of the finny tribe, which furnished no small part of the animal food of the early settlers. The black cat and pike were the largest of these natives of the water. Fishing at the time of the settlements at Rainbow and Wiseman's bottoms was a comparatively easy task, as there were generally about two bites for every hook.

The last beaver were seen at the time of the settlement of Judge Joseph Barker in Wiseman's bottom in the winter of 1795. These sagacious animals had a lodge behind an island about a mile below the Barker place, and another a short distance above, at the mouth of Rainbow creek. They were the last of the race seen in this country, and were ere long caught by the old trapper, Isaac Williams.

SETTLEMENT.

Prior to the Indian war there had been no permanent settlement made in that part of the Muskingum valley within the limits of this township. While Virginia claimed the right to the Northwest Territory, a backwoodsman named Wiseman entered about four hundred acres of the bottom land lying east of the Muskingum. He strove to hold his land by asserting what was known as the claim right, and forthwith made a clearing near river. He remained only long enough to give his name to the territory he occupied, and soon afterwards disappeared from this part of the country.

During the Indian war many families were compelled to dwell within the refuge afforded them at Marietta, where they remained until after the peace of Greenville. By virtue of an act of congress, April 21, 1792, donating to the agents of the Ohio company a tract of a hundred thousand acres of land lying north of Marietta, they were enabled to offer settlers tracts of land which were to be conveyed in fee simple upon the fulfillment of certain stipulated conditions. Naturally, the first settlements were made on the donation land, whose southern boundary line passes through Muskingum township about four miles above Marietta.

At the close of the war the brave men who had been for so long a time harassed by the bloodthirsty savages were eager to settle on their land, and at the first opportunity made preparations for emigration from their prison houses. Accordingly, in the spring of 1795, those who drew land located on the Muskingum river, made preparations for an early migration, so that they could get a good start with their spring work. In those days the winding river was the only avenue of ingress and egress and along the shores of the Muskingum there was no road on which to journey; then, too, the settlers, for fear of the Indians, kept no horses; so it became a necessity that the company journey by boat up the river, which they accordingly did.

Few of these pioneers of Muskingum township had much more property than their household goods, but they all possessed determined spirits and unusual intelligence. Compelled to undergo every hardship incident to pioneer life, these hardy settlers went energetically into the laborious task of subduing the forest and preparing the virgin soil for the first crop. Their success has been attested by their subsequent history. Naturally the areas of such bottom land were chosen as centres of settlement, and hence it is that we find that the earliest settlements in the township were made in Rainbow and Wiseman's bottoms.

THE RAINBOW SETTLEMENT.

The Rainbow settlement was commenced April 29, 1795, when a company of several families arrived from Marietta and landed on the western shore of the Muskingum river, and then and there proceeded to make for themselves homes. At that time the whole surrounding country was a labyrinth of forest, and a mile was an almost interminable distance, when its course lay through dangers innumerable. On this account and for purposes of mutual protection and comfort, it was thought best to establish a community along the river bank. Hence they desired and received a portion of their allotted land adjoining the river, and built their cabins close to the stream, which was their only effective means of egress and ingress. In the midst of the settlement, on the land now owned by Aurelius Stacy, was erected a block-house which served as a shelter and protection until the neighboring cabins could be built.

In the first company of settlers in the Rainbow district was Israel Stone and family. He settled on the farm now occupied by Sardine S. Stowe. Mr. Stone was of Welsh ancestry, and the ninth child of the fifth generation in America. He was born at Rutland, Massachusetts, in 1749, and in 1768 was married to Lydia Barrett, by whom he had twelve children. His first wife died in 1792, at Belpre, and he married Mary Broadhurst Carner, by whom he had one child. He settled first at Belpre prior to 1790, and in 1795 removed to this township, in which he finally settled. His children were: Elizabeth, wife of Truman Guthrie; Matilda, wife of Stephen Smith, whose settlement in this township is noted; Jasper, married Mary L. Converse; Lydia, married Ezra Hoyt; Mary, married John Dodge, of Beverly; Augustus, married Miss Rebecca Dodge; Benjamin F., married Miss Rosanna Devol, sister of Stephen Devol; Christopher Columbus, married Cyinthia Graham; Harriet, married James Knowles; and John B. married for his first wife Celina Bosworth, and for his second, Sarah Taylor. Israel Stone, jr., was drowned at Belpre in 1791, when but thirteen years of age. Israel Stone, sr., died in 1808, at his home. Mrs. Harriet Knowles is the sole survivor of the family, being eighty-eight years old.

Stephen Smith came from Massachusetts among the earliest western emigrants. He married Matilda, daughter of Israel Stone, in Farmer's castle, at the time of the siege in the block-house. At the declaration of the peace he, with his family, started up the Muskingum for the Rainbow district, and settled on the farm now owned by his son, Columbus C. Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Smith had a family of eleven children: Percival, Harriet, Matilda, Lydia, Augustus and Franklin are dead; Dudley settled and now lives in West Virginia; Melissa married Jonathan Sprague, and lives in Adams township, this county; Columbus married Orrilla Davis; Mary married a Mr. Davis, of West Virginia; and Cyinthia was married to a Mr. Morris, whose first wife died when they were coming to this country from England. Mrs. Morris is now a widow, living in Salem. The family of Columbus C. Smith, who resides on the home place, consisted of seven children, who became men and women. George P. married Adaline Wolcott; Cyinthia married S. S. Stowe, of this township; Caroline is the wife of F. W. Rayley; C. C. Smith, jr., married Jane Moore; Sarah E. married A. McNeal; and Eva became the wife of Sardine S. Stowe. George and C. C. Smith, jr., were both in the late war, the former remaining in the army until mustered out in 1865, and the latter being discharged on account of physical disability, in 1864.

After the treaty with the Indians, Ebenezer Nye and his two elder sons went to Rainbow and made ready a home for the family. He had, in the spring of 1790, at the suggestion of his brother in Ohio, exchanged his farm in Connecticut for a share in the Ohio company's purchase. He started for his western home, crossing the Hudson at Newburgh, reaching Robstown, on the Youghiogony, about harvest time in 1790. Here he bought, in connection with Joshua Shipman, a flat-boat, in which the two families came to Marietta. Mr. Nye and family at first lived in a house in which it was almost impossible to stand erect. During the Indian war they lived in the northeast block-house of the garrison. The farm in Rainbow is opposite the mouth of March run, and is now occupied by Thomas Ridgway. Reviewing Mr. Nye's family history, it is found that he was born in Tolland, Connecticut, in 1750, and that he removed when twenty-three or twenty-four years of age to Litchfield county, where he married Desire Sawyer, who died in 1800, aged forty-two years. He afterwards married the widow Gardiner, and continued in Rainbow until his death in 1823. He had six sons and one daughter. Lewis died near Zanesville; Neal lived and died at Kerr's run, above Pomeroy; Melzer died in Meigs county and George in Athens; Nathan moved west, and Sarah, wife of Azariah Pratt, after living for many years in Marietta, removed to Sunday Creek, in Athens county.

Simon Wright was also one of the original settlers of Rainbow. He was a native of Massachusetts. He married Mrs. Maria Witham. About the time of the first emigration to Ohio, he with others, came to the Marietta settlement, and remained at the garrison until after the cessation of Indian hostilities. Then he took charge of his portion of land on the Muskingum, settling with his family on the farm, upon which the Wood family now reside. Mr. Wright was a soldier in the War of 1812. His family consisted of four children—three sons and one daughter. Henry, Simeon and Horace have since died. The only daughter, Lorana, married and removed to Wolf creek. After remaining a few years on his farm in Rainbow, Mr. Wright sold his place to Joseph Wood, who emigrated from the State of New Jersey prior to the Indian war. His wife was a Miss Pewther. He was the father of the following named children: Emelius married Adaline Fuller, the daughter of the man, who at one time owned the land, on which the city of New York now stands. Caius Martius, the second son, married Sophia Hall, who is still living with her son and daughter, Gustavus and Cornelia, both of whom are unmarried. Joseph lives in the neighborhood, having married first Anna Wilber, and after her death, Susan Wood. His children are Imogene J. and John A. He owns ninety acres of land, and is a small fruit grower. The other children of Joseph Wood, sr., are James and Nancy, the latter being a resident of Marietta. Some years after Mr. Wood's settlement, he was called to Marietta to take charge of the land office. He died about thirty years ago, being universally respected.

Among the first settlers of Rainbow were Archibald and Mary Lake, who located on the place now owned by Israel Devol. Archibald Lake married Mary Bird, of London, and being a seafaring man, removed to New Foundland, where he was employed in the fisheries, which at that time were very profitable, as the strict observance of Lent in Catholic Europe caused a great demand for fish. When that place came into the possession of the French he moved his family to New York and worked in the ship-yards. During the Revolution, when General Washington evacuated the city of New York, the Lake family followed the army up North river, where Mrs. Lake served as matron, first at Fishkill, and then at New Windsor hospital. Mr. Lake was appointed a deputy commissary to the hospital, and ranged the adjacent country in search of provisions for the sick. More than once did Mrs. Lake receive the personal thanks of General Washington in recognition of her valuable services. After the army was disbanded Mr. and Mrs. Lake returned to New York. After the war, ship-building being a poor business, and Mr. Lake accidentally hearing of the Marietta colony, decided to emigrate to the west. Accordingly, in 1789, he removed to Marietta. His family consisted of eight children, of whom three sons, James, Thomas and Andrew, were young men. The spring after their arrival the small-pox broke out, and during the terrible pestilence Mrs. Lake heroically served as nurse, and her superior knowledge of the art of nursing, in all probability, saved many a valuable life. Probably one of the first Sunday-schools in America was taught by her, in 1791, at the Campus Martius. Being early converted she felt it to be her duty to care for the souls, as well as the bodies, of those with whom she was wont to be associated. She collected in her little room on Sabbath afternoons the children who were wont to indulge in all sorts of amusements upon the holy day. After the conclusion of the service by Rev. Mr. Story she held Sunday-school, giving the youth instruction from the Bible and the Westminster catechism. She was peculiarly adapted to impart religious instruction to the children, and hence her work was crowned with merited success. April 27, 1795, the Lake family became residents of Rainbow. Mrs. Lake died the next year after her settlement, and her husband did not long survive. Their son Andrew was a carpenter by trade, at which business he worked whenever an opportunity was afforded, and during the remainder of the time he was an honest tiller of the soil. In 1797 he married Miss Elizabeth Goss, whose parents resided on Duck creek. The marriage ceremony was performed at the bride's house by 'Squire Monroe, and the young couple at once came to Rainbow, where the young people treated them to a genuine, old-fashioned house warming. They had nine children, of whom William, Tirzah, Jane, Mary and Dauphin are dead; Hannah is the wife of Courtland Sheppard, of Harmar; Sarah is the widow of Isaac Monett, and resides with her son in Marietta; Preston and Daniel are in Iowa, and Solomon is living in Kansas.

Captain Abel Matthers was among those who, with his wife and children, resided at the Point prior to the peace with the Indians. He was a native of Hartford, Connecticut, whence he emigrated during the first days of the Ohio colony. His wife was a widow named Elizabeth Woodard. John, the eldest son, served as drummer to the garrison, and eventually married Penelope Morris. Philo married Penelope Woodard. Hannah and Charlotte never married. Captain Matthers became a resident of Rainbow settlement about three years after the first cabin had been erected. By that time the people had discovered that it was not safe to build so close to the bank of the river, because of occasional overflows which flooded their houses, and hence it was that Captain Matthers erected his cabin a short distance back of the river, making his settlement in the northeastern part of the township.

William Stacy settled on the farm now owned by his grandson, Cyrenius F. Stacy. His father was a native of Massachusetts, and a proprietor in the Ohio company. He came early to the Northwestern Territory. In the early part of his life he engaged in the seafaring business, probably at Salem, and afterwards became a farmer near New Salem. At the outbreak of the Revolution he took the initiatory step in reorganizing his company of home militia, becoming their captain by unanimous choice, he having gallantly torn up his royal commission, saying: "Fellow-soldiers, I don't know exactly how it is with the rest of you, but for one I will not serve a king that murders my own countrymen." In 1778 he had become lieutenant colonel in Colonel Ichabod Allen's regiment of the Massachusetts line. In the summer of 1778 his regiment was ordered up to Cherry valley to protect the inhabitants from the threatened attack of the Tories and Indians. The commander of the soldiers at the fort being unacquainted with Indian warfare, was surprised and defeated by a combined force of Indians and Tories, and among the rest Colonel Stacy was taken prisoner by the Indians, and was only released from the stake by giving to an Indian the sign of Free Masonry, which act saved his life. After four years captivity he was released and returned to his family at New Salem, whence, in 1789, he emigrated to Marietta, remaining there until his death, which occurred in 1804. His sons, John and Philemon, were massacred at the Big Bottom settlement. William and Joseph became the pioneers of Muskingum township. To William and Mehitabel Stacy were born five children, who grew to maturity. Sophia married Moses Varnum, of West Virginia. The oldest daughter became the wife of James McClure, of the Rainbow settlement, who finally settled in Millersport, Ohio. William married Vilata Howe, and is deceased; Joel was the husband of Lorilla Howe, and Samuel married Elizabeth Price, and is also deceased. A. R. and C. F. Stacy are the sons of Joel Stacy, and reside in this township. C. F. Stacy was born in 1817, and married Lucy Withom, by whom he has had eight children. He was township clerk for fifteen years, and has held other offices. A. R. Stacy, his brother, is also a native of Washington county. His first wife was Sarah Ross, and his second Diana Malster. He is the father of four children. He is a general farmer and stock-raiser.

Joseph Stacy, also a son of Colonel William Stacy, settled on a farm now occupied by Aurelius Stacy. He married a Miss Perry, by whom he had several children. Joseph married Fanny Williams, whose ancestors came from England. Their children are in Iowa, and the parents are both dead. John, the second son, was married three times and raised quite a family of children. His first wife, Lucebe Rice, had one child that died in infancy. By his second wife, Lousiana Frost, he had four children, two sons and two daughters. Miles A., living in Wiseman's bottom, married Harriet Dyar, by whom he has had five children—Adalaide, Amelia, Ella, Grace, and Joseph. In 1861, at the call of his country, he enlisted in the Thirty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry, company A, and soon rose to the position of captain. He was discharged after three years and a half of service on account of physical disability. The third wife of John Stacy was Claryna Frost, by whom he had five children. The two little girls when about nine or ten years of age were attacked by a severe bleeding at the nose which caused their death. James, a son by the last marriage, married a Miss Ann Von, and John married Miss McNeal, and resides near Lowell. Joseph Stacy, sr., had a daughter, Mary, who married, first, Elijah Boyce, and after his death, Luke Emerson.

Preserved Seamon, with his family, emigrated very soon after the arrival of the first company at Marietta. They came from Nova Scotia. The family of children consisted of four sons—Samuel, Gilbert, Preserved, and Benajah. Samuel had a wife and two or three children and occupied the guard-house of Fort Harmar, where the whole family remained during the Indian war. At the Peace they drew donation lots and settled on the Muskingum.

Cogswell Olney was born in Nova Scotia September 28, 1791, and was brought to Ohio by his parents when only six weeks old. His father, Elaezer Olney, was one of the twenty-seven proprietors who settled the most of the donation lands in the tract known as "Rainbow Creek allotment of donation lands." He lived on his farm there until his death. Cogswell Olney married, November 3, 1816, Matilda P. Smith, who was born in Farmer's castle, Belpre, December 12, 1794. She lived until eighty-four years of age, dying at Harmar, December 18, 1878. Their daughter, Celina, is the wife of Charles M. Devol, of Muskingum township.

John Dyar, sr., was born in Boston, Massachusetts. Thence he removed to Nova Scotia, where he lived for a number of years and was married. Here he engaged in navigation. He emigrated thence to Ohio in 1816 and settled in what is now Muskingum township, in Rainbow settlement. He was an eye-witness of the battle of Bunker Hill. After an eventful life in Muskingum he died in 1832. His wife, Sarah Potter, born in 1778, survived him forty-two years. They had ten children, only two of whom survive: J. B. and B. F. Dyar, of Muskingum.

J. B. Dyar has been a resident of his present neighborhood since he was sixteen years old. He has been twice married, first to Amanda Hall, by whom he had seven children, viz: Augustine, who married Elizabeth Pollard; James (deceased), Joseph, who married Fanny Kendrick; Alary, Adelaide (deceased), Edwin, and Charles. By his second wife, Abigail Proctor, Mr. Dyar has had two daughters, viz: Harriet, wife of M. A. Stacy, and Amelia, wife of Reece Cole. Joseph, who was in the Thirty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry, was wounded at the battle of Lewisburgh, and on that account discharged in 1863.

B. F. Dyar was born in 1817 in Washington county, the year after his father arrived in the county. When he was about a year old his parents removed to the farm where he still resides. Mr. Dyar was married in 1843 to Miss Polly P. Hensy, who still lives. Mr. and Mrs. Dyar have had eight children, four sons and four daughters, all of whom are living. Camillus is married and engaged in the mercantile business in western Iowa. His brother, Frank B., is in business with him. Louisa married Mr. Chapman and resides in Fearing township, of this county. The remaining children reside at home. Mr. Dyar has a farm of one hundred acres in Muskingum township.

SETTLEMENT IN WISEMAN'S BOTTOM.

As has already been mentioned, the first who made a clearing in the above named territory was the man whose memory is perpetuated in the name of the locality in which for a time he dwelt. It is probable that not holding a clear title to his land, he was forced to yield to the claims of the rightful owners in the Ohio company. Geographically considered, Wiseman's bottom is but the southern extension of Rainbow, and hence the two settlements being contiguous, and having a community of interests, were almost blended into one.

The pioneers of Wiseman's bottom were well satisfied that their lot had fallen in such a pleasant place, and joyfully did they make ready to establish their right to their allotted land.

Colonel Joseph Barker was the advance guard of the little colony. In April, 1795, having drawn his donation lot of one hundred acres, he left the garrison in a canoe, with two of his wife's brothers, William and Edmond Bancroft Dana, together with his faithful dog Pedro, and ere long reached his destination—the land now owned by James S. Stowe. Colonel Barker brought with him—in addition to his cooking utensils, farming tools and provisions—fifty young apple, and a dozen cherry trees; it being a condition of a clear title to their land that the recipients of donation land set out fruit trees immediately upon settlement.

At the time of Colonel Barker's settlement the Indians had not been wholly pacified, and soon after his arrival he heard of the death of a man on Wolf creek at the hands of the treacherous savages. Each night the little party was wont to seek shelter in the block-house, which had been erected on the opposite side of the river by General Putnam. Each morning they returned to their work, and although harassed and embarrassed by dangers and difficulties, they never faltered in their arduous undertaking. While at work felling the trees, one of the party was constantly on the watch, for it was a pioneer's first principle to ever be on the alert and ready for any emergency. The faithful dog Pedro, who had been the family guard ever since leaving New Hampshire, was quick to scent danger from afar.

They were thus occupied for about three weeks, and made the first permanent improvement in Wiseman's bottom. During this time they cleared about two acres of the thick forest near the river, and with infinite labor succeeded in getting the ground ready for cultivation. Their first work was to set out the orchard. While they were setting out the apple trees the dog showed signs of alarm, and they therefore remained only long enough to finish the planting of the apple trees, and thinking that they had almost transgressed the limit of safety, hurriedly got ready and were soon rapidly paddling down the Muskingum. In May Colonel Barker returned to his farm and cleared an additional acre of wood-land, making in all about two acres of cleared land, which he planted in corn. This new land, rich with vegetable mold, needed no plowing, but became productive by having the soil stirred up just deep enough to shelter the grain. Colonel Barker's corn-field was carefully watched from the ravages of the squirrels and other animals destructive to the growing corn, and at the harvest the field yielded one hundred and twenty-five bushels. He succeeded in erecting a log cabin sixteen feet square, to one side of which he attached a corn crib four or five feet in width, made of poles, and in this crib he stored his first crop.

In the following December Colonel Barker, with his wife and three children, left the garrison, and on the eighteenth of that month arrived at their new and rather dreary home. The nearest neighbors were distant. During the winter the clearing was considerably enlarged and two hundred peach trees were set out in the orchard in the spring. The hand-mill across the river, at the block-house, was their only dependence for meal, but with a good crib of corn and this resource they thought themselves fortunate. During the year he erected a hewed log house, which was distinguished by the unwonted luxury of a brick chimney, something that humbler houses could not boast of for several years. He had erected his new house just in time, for soon after leaving his first cabin it was destroyed by fire. This was a very heavy loss to Colonel Barker, inasmuch as in this cabin, which was used as a general storehouse, was kept his stock of carpenter tools, and in the loft was stored away the well rotted crop of flax, ready for dressing, and on which depended the family's supply of material for making cloth. His provisions, as well as his fine stock of tools, were lost. But in no wise disconcerted by this misfortune, he sought employment at his old trade of carpentering. In Marietta he erected the Muskingum academy, and the dwellings of Hon. Paul Fearing, William Skinner, Rev. Daniel Story, and others. In 1799 and 1800 he built the mansion of Herman Blennerhassett, on the island called by his name. He was one of the first justices of the peace in Washington county. In 1818 he was elected representative for Washington county in the Ohio legislature. He served for a number of years as county commissioner, and in 1822 drew the plan for the new court house, which was built in that year. During the years 1830-42 he was an associate judge of the common pleas court. He died in 1843, aged seventy-eight years, he having been born at New Market, New Hampshire, in 1765. While working at the carpenter trade in New Boston he became acquainted with Elizabeth, the daughter of Captain William Dana, and in 1789 he was married. In September of the same year the young couple emigrated in an ox wagon to Ohio, suffering every hardship on the way, stopping at Belpre and Marietta, before making a final settlement in Wiseman's bottom. Mrs. Barker died in 1835. They had ten children, four sons and six daughters: Joseph; Elizabeth, wife of Rufus Stone, of Belpre; Luther married Maria Devol; Sophia married Rufus Browning; George; Mary, still living; Catharine resides in Tennessee; Fanny lives in New Jersey; and Charlotte is also a survivor. Most of the children married and moved away. Joseph and Luther settled in Newport township. George W., better known as Major Barker, was the only member of the family who remained many years on the old homestead farm. He was born in 1801 in Wiseman's bottom. He married Emeline, daughter of Captain Wing Devol. He became the owner of the old homestead. He was twice elected sheriff of Washington county, and filled the office from 1842 to 1846. In the latter year he was elected representative to the legislature, and in 1847 was elected senator, and served two years, he being the last State senator under the old constitution of Ohio. In 1873 he sold his farm, and with four of his sons removed to Missouri, where he died in 1875, aged seventy-four years. His widow, now seventy-one years old, is living in Muskingum township with her son, J. G. Barker.

Israel Putnam settled on the Muskingum on the farm now occupied by S. S. Stowe, and he soon became one of the leading men of his enterprising neighborhood. He was a grandson of General Putnam and a son of Colonel Israel Putnam, of Revolutionary fame. He was born in Pomfret, Connecticut, in 1776. He had four brothers and three sisters. Of this family none survive. In 1789, his father settled at Belpre where, in May, 1794, he arrived, and stopped for a time with his brother Aaron Waldo Putnam. He was a young man of rare powers of observation and had, while travelling from place to place, become imbued with that spirit of enterprise which marks the practical and successful man. He had learned in the east to engraft fruit trees, and almost his first act after landing in Ohio was to graft some fruit trees for his brother with scions which he had brought with him. This is thought to have been the first grafting this side of the Alleghanies. In 1796, he, with his family, settled in Wiseman's bottom, locating on the farm now owned by S. S. Stowe. The first wife of Mr. Putnam was Clarina Chandler, by whom he had two daughters, Fanny and Clarina, both of whom are deceased. His second wife, Elizabeth Wiser, was born in 1769, and died in 1842. Seven children were born by this marriage. Pascal is dead; Helen P. (Mrs. Devol); Lewis J. is living in Marietta; Laura is dead; Fanny, deceased; Catharine, wife of John Newton, is deceased; and the youngest, Elizabeth, is also dead. Mr. Putnam, being a man of great intelligence, encouraged education in the new settlement and did all that he could to assist in the establishment of the first school-house. In the early days of the settlement he erected a substantial brick house, a thing that was rarely done in those days. In 1818, he was the first to undertake the rather difficult task of raising merino sheep. He purchased at Steubenville a flock of over one hundred of these sheep, and succeeded very well in the business of sheep raising. Mr. Putnam died in 1824, aged fifty-nine years.

In 1796, the families of Captain J. Devol and John Russel moved into Wiseman's bottom and soon there was a decreased sense of loneliness in the surrounding forest which rang at the stroke of the woodman's ax.

Captain Jonathan Devol built his house upon the land now owned by Robert Ward, at the place on the Muskingum where he afterwards built a mill. Rapidly reviewing his history, it is found that Jonathan Devol was born at Tiverton, Rhode Island, in 1756, and there in 1776 he married Miss Nancy Barker, daughter of Captain Isaac Barker, a noted ship master, who was lost at sea several years before his daughter's marriage. At the time of the formation of the Ohio company, Captain Devol, who was an ingenious mechanic, built the "May Flower," in which the first company came down the Ohio. The further exploits of this remarkable man will be particularly noticed elsewhere in this work. He settled first at Belpre, where he became famous by reason of his construction of the first floating-mill. After the peace, which ended the Indian war, he removed to Marietta, and cultivated the land of Paul Fearing, and in 1797, made a settlement on the Muskingum, as above narrated. His family consisted of six children, most of whom are deceased. Sarah married James McFarland; Charles, Barker, Tillinghast, and Frank were the sons; Mariah married Luther Barker who removed to McConnellsville.

Wing Devol was among the first settlers in Wiseman's bottom, coming from Marietta soon after the Indian war. He married Clarissa Hart, by whom he had eight children. William, B. F., James, Harris, Josiah, Cynthia, and Emeline (Barker). William Devol, whose family still live in Muskingum, was born in 1803. He married Helen P. daughter of Israel Putnam, and died in August, 1873. Mrs. Devol is still living. She is the mother of three children, John P., William Dudley and Israel P. Dudley Devol married Bitha Marshall, and has had three children, two living. He resides on what is known as the Walnut Hill Farm. Israel P. married Diantha Stowe and has six children. He owns the old farm purchased by his father in 1829.

Benjamin Franklin Devol, a son of Wing Devol, married Ruth B. Cross, by whom he had fourteen children, twelve of whom are living. He died in 1876 and his widow is still living in this township. Her sons, Charles William, and Benjamin were soldiers in the late war.

Joseph, a brother of Wing Devol, at the time of the first settlement, entered land in Wiseman's bottom. Joseph Devol and family lived but a comparatively short time in this township, and then moved to Morgan county, Ohio, where they both died. The family has been scattered, and is not now directly represented in Washington county. The land upon which Joseph Devol settled is now owned by W. D. Devol.

John Russell and family were among the earliest settlers in Wiseman's bottom. They located on the farm which is at present in the possession of Allen Marshall. Mr. Russell was born in Connecticut, in 1764. He married Elizabeth Smith, a native of Massachusetts. To them were born nine children, of whom three are living. Jonathan, Elizabeth, Lucy, Charles, Jane and Caroline are dead. Mary, the widow of Pardon Cook, lives in Marietta; Hiram resides at Centre Point, Iowa, and William resides beyond Williamstown, West Virginia. Mr. Russell emigrated to the Northwestern Territory about the time that the Ohio company's first colony arrived. During the Indian troubles, he remained at Marietta, and soon after the cessation of hostilities drew his land, and proceeded up the Muskingum to make a settlement. He died in 1829, and his family is not now represented in this township.

Squier Prouty and his wife, Diantha Howe, emigrated to Ohio shortly after the first settlement was made at Marietta. They were natives of Vermont. Mr. Prouty being a blacksmith, located about a quarter of a mile south of Devol's dam, and after building a shop, worked at his trade whenever there was opportunity. Mr. and Mrs. Prouty had two daughters—Rachel and Louisa, both of whom are deceased. Squier Prouty moved away years ago, and the name is without a representative in the township.

Peter Howe and his wife, Orinda Fuller, were from Vermont, and were among the first settlers on the Muskingum. They reared a large family, the only representative of which is Orinda, the wife of Rice Loring, of Belpre. There were fourteen children in all. The Howes lived about a mile south of John Russell's place. Mr. Howe afterwards removed to the vicinity of New England, this State.

John Dyar, a son of John Dyar, sr., and brother of J. B. Dyar, elsewhere mentioned, was born in 1804, in Nova Scotia, and in 1816, emigrated to Ohio from Massachusetts. He settled in section nine of Union township, in that part now embraced in Muskingum. Here he remained until his death in 1835. His wife was Rosanna Stone. His son, John W. Dyar, married Charlotte Beebe, by whom he has had two children—Helen and Harry.

Levi Bartlett was born in 1805, in Rhode Island, from which State he emigrated to Ohio. He settled in Warren, since called Muskingum township, and remained there until his death which occurred in 1879. He married first, Maria Dickey in 1837, by whom he had five children, four of whom are living; she died in 1846. For his second wife he married Mrs. Phoebe Green in 1851, by whom he had nine children, all living. The farm consists of two hundred acres. Mr. Bartlett was justice of the peace and county surveyor, and in 1852-4 represented Washington county in the State legislature. His widow still resides on the farm.

Thomas Ridgway was born in Nova Scotia in 1796, and afterwards removed to Louisiana. In 1822 he came to Ohio, and settled on the west bank of the Muskingum, where Ridgway ferry is located. By his first wife, Esther Ann Dyar, he had four children: James, John, George, William, and Francis. By his second wife, Sarah Abigail Doane, five children were born: Caroline, Thomas, Mary, Isaac, and Sidney. The farm consists of thirty acres of bottom land, and eighty acres of hill land. Stock and fruit are raised to a considerable extent.

James S. Stowe, sr., was born in Meigs county in 1806, and when nineteen years old came to Washington county and became a resident of the Muskingum valley. In

THOMAS RIDGWAY, MUSKINGUM TP.

THOMAS RIDGWAY.

Thomas Ridgway was born January, 22, 1796, of English ancestors. At the time of his birth, Thomas' parents were living at Shelbourne, Nova Scotia, at which place they continued to reside until he was thirteen years of age, when they removed to Halifax, at which place Thomas obtained the rudiments of an education by perseveringly applying himself at night school, kept for those whose daily task forbade their attendance in daylight.

Trained to the trade of a cooper from boyhood, Thomas was called (in that fishing town) to the fisheries, and at an early age was engaged in superintending the cooperage department of one of the great mackerel fisheries on Cape Breton island.

At other times during the fishing seasons he was employed in the cod fisheries of the coast of Newfoundland. During the War of 1812-15 he was, as a British subject, aboard many of the American prizes, among which was the ill-fated Chesapeake, and at an advanced age of eighty-five years his recollection of that terrible wreck is clear and vivid. In 1821 Thomas Ridgway started to seek his fortunes in the southwestern States, and early in that year landed at New Orleans. There he worked at his trade in the great sugar establishments until, losing his health, he returned to Halifax late in the same year. In the spring of 1822 he returned to New Orleans and pursued his trade until autumn, when he came north to see the country and visit the Dyar family, living then on the old homestead, on the Muskingum river, in this county, to whom he was distantly related. In the following spring of 1823, in company with Joseph B. Dyar, he loaded a boat with produce of various kinds and floated it up the great Kanawha to the salt wells, near the site of the present town of Malden, West Virginia. There they disposed of the cargo to advantage, and entered into a contract with one of the salt firms to furnish salt barrels in exchange for salt, at the rate of one bushel and a peck of salt for a barrel. In the succeeding fall they brought a cargo of salt up the Ohio river, and sold it at various points from Marietta up as far as Wheeling.

In February of 1824 they returned to the salt wells, and recommenced the making of barrels and shipping of salt with renewed vigor, Joseph Dyar doing the shipping. During that season Mr. Ridgway, with his own hands, unaided, made three thousand barrels in nine months, about twelve and a half per day. They lived in true bachelor style, and did a thriving business, selling their salt down the Ohio at thirty-five cents per bushel. In the autumn of 1825, after they had closed their contract at the wells, they were wind-bound with their last load of salt, at a point near Iron-ton, and were offered a piece of land, at three dollars per acre, upon which the city now stands.

After they had disposed of the cargo, Mr. Ridgway returned to Washington county and with Mr. Dyar purchased the property in Muskingum township upon which he now lives. They also purchased what is known as the Davis farm one mile further up river. At the termination of their partnership Mr. Ridgway took the farm upon which he now lives at a valuation of nine hundred dollars. February 16, 1826 he was married to Esther Ann Dyar, the sister of his late partner, by whom he had five children: James, John, George, William, and Francis. His wife dying in 1836, he was married to Mrs. Sarah A. Doane December 6, 1838, by whom he had five children: Caroline, Thomas, Mary, Isaac, and Sidney. Mrs. Sarah A. Ridgway dying May, 1862, he married Mrs. Caroline Johnson on the fourteenth of November, 1866. Mrs. Caroline Ridgway lived but five years, and Mr. Ridgway was again left a widower on the thirtieth of November, 1871. Shortly after his first marriage Mr. Ridgway entered the Methodist church, and has since continued to live the life of a consistent Christian.

The church of his first adoption becoming enfeebled by removals, he entered the Congregational church of Lowell, that he might do more effectual work, and the frequent donation made to that society after he had secured a home for his family testifies his devotion to the cause.

In politics, as in religion, nothing was done by halves. With his earnest acquaintance with our form and principles of government he espoused the cause of the Whig party, and from his sense of justice and humanity became an avowed enemy to slavery. He continued with the Whig party until its faltering, wavering course upon the question of slavery gave rise to the Free Soil party, where he found a better expression of his sentiments. Mr. Ridgway voted the anti-slavery ticket almost alone in his precinct. No taunts or opposition could cause him to hesitate or waver in the support he gave the choice of his conscience. Before and during the fugitive law Mr. Ridgway's house was ever the asylum for the pursued; and from first to last of those bitter slavery days over fifty fugitives have found food and shelter at his hand from their pursuers. From the rise of the Republican party Mr. Ridgway has been found in its ranks. During the war he was a firm Unionist, losing two sons in the support of the cause he upheld, and in his old age has the sweet pleasure of seeing the fulfillment of the most sanguine expectations of his younger days.

1831 he commenced boating, which he followed until prevented by the outbreak of the late war. About 1830 he married Anna Merriam, by whom he had four children. She died in 1842. About 1844 he married Eliza Davis, by whom he had six children, all of whom survive. His eldest son, Sardine S., married for his third wife, Eva Smith, and has seven children: Nancy, married to A. S. Marshal; Diantha, married to Israel Devol; Seldon S., married to Ellen Smith, and has had three children, two of whom survive. He served during the Rebellion in the Thirty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry. Lucy Stowe married J. C. Drake; Dudley D. became a resident of the township in 1850, married Sybil Wood, and has one son, David H. Stowe. He lives on the homestead farm, where he owns three hundred and twenty-nine acres. James Smith Stowe, jr., born in 1856, married in 1880 Lucy W. Franks, whose parents were early settlers in Marietta. In the summer of 1880 he commenced the grocery business at Marietta. Pittman L. Stowe resides at home.

Randolph Fearing was born in 1825, and died in 1873. His wife, Julia Hill, born in 1830, is the daughter of William Hill, an old settler. Mr. and Mrs. Fearing became the parents of ten children, of whom three are deceased. The farm in Muskingum township consists of twenty-four acres.

Charles Weinheimer came from Prussia in 1853, and settled in this township. He was born in 1831, and married Elizabeth Shoemaker, born in 1829. They have five children. Mr. Weinheimer farms one hundred acres of land. He has been a member of the board of education and trustee of the township.

A. S. Marshall owns one hundred acres of land in Wiseman's bottom. His father, John Marshall, emigrated from West Virginia in 1832, and became a resident of Marietta township, dying in 1874. A. S. Marshall married Nancy Stowe, by whom he had five children, four of whom survive.

Thomas Drake bought land in Wiseman's bottom in 1866, coming from Chester, Pennsylvania, where he was born in 1825. His wife, Sarah J. Oliver, born in 1830, is still living. They have had four children—John, Margaret, James and Mary. John, who was born in 1848, married Lucy J. Stowe, who was born in 1847. They have two sons. Mr. Drake has two hundred and sixty acres of land, is a general farmer and a cattle and sheep raiser, making a specialty of Jersey cattle and fine Merino sheep.

Dr. Simeon D. Hart became a resident of Muskingum township in 1869, when he became the superintendent of the Children's Home. He is one of the seven children of Benjamin and Honor (Deming) Hart. His father was born in Connecticut in 1781 and died in Newport township in 1867. His mother, born in 1789, died in 1825. Dr. Hart married Lydia M. Lawrence, who was born in 1822. He has been superintendent of the Home during the past eleven years. During the years 1864–66 he was county coroner.

Peter Armstrong settled on the Muskingum in Wiseman's bottom allotment in 1870. He was born at Harrisonburgh, Virginia, in 1839. He married Catharine Burke, by whom he has had seven children, six of whom survive. He has a farm of thirty-seven acres of land.

THE SETTLEMENT OF THE RIDGE.

The territory forming the eastern boundary of the township, and known as the ridge because it divides the waters of Duck creek from the Muskingum, was not generally settled until a comparatively recent date. This is on account of the hilly, and consequently somewhat sterile nature of the soil whose unproductiveness was early a proverb among the more fortunate settlers of the lower and richer valley lands. But it has been demonstrated that a living can be obtained on these high places by honest and persevering toil, combined with practical intelligence.

Although the neighborhood is now almost entirely peopled with Germans, who in fact made the first permanent settlements, yet is it discovered that settlers of American birth first had little farms among the hills. The representatives of these first settlers of that part of the ridge lying in the present township of Muskingum are scattered, and it is impossible to give them more than a passing mention.

In all probability a number of these settlers were in this section prior to 1825. A Mr. Page resided for a short time on the present Garver place.

A settler named Steit, residing just north of where the Wagners settled, removed to the west about the year 1840, declaring his inability to make a livelihood by tilling his farm.

Mr. Johnson, with his wife and children, resided on the place upon which Ulrich Ulmer now lives. He also moved to the west.

Stephen Otis and wife, with five or six children, lived first on the Decker place, on the river, and afterwards moved on the hill, upon what is now known as the Frank Rayley place. Mr. Otis was one of the prominent men in his community forty years ago, and it was he who presented the ground upon which the German church was erected.

There were settlers on the Wilking and Gerhart places prior to the German settlement.

In 1833 quite a company of Bavarians left their native Germany and, after the long and tedious voyage necessary to travel in a slow sailing vessel, they arrived in New York, and most of them came immediately to Ohio and secured land on the ridge. In this company were the families of Abraham Arend, Daniel Cemmer, and Jacob Peters. They were also accompanied by Theodore Schreiner, who afterwards became the pastor of their church.

Daniel Cemmer, born in 1781, was one of the first German settlers on the ridge. In 1833 he, with his wife, Barbara, and nine or ten children, settled on what was originally the Steit place. Both of the old folks are dead, and the children are scattered through the county.

Jacob and Catharine Peters settled in 1833 on the Page farm. They had two sons and one daughter—Charles, Philip, and Margaret. In 1836 they removed to Watertown. Both parents are now deceased.

In 1834, in the forepart of the year, Abraham Arend and his wife, M. Sarah Arend, settled in the neighborhood. They left their native land in August, 1833, and stopped for a while after landing at Wheeling, West Virginia. After remaining there for seven months they got a farm in Washington county, and settled on the farm upon which Mrs. Arend still resides with her daughter, Mrs. Jacob Wagner. Seven of their eight children are living, two of them residing on the home-place. The eldest daughter, Mary Elizabeth, became the wife of Jacob Wagner.

In 1834 Jacob and Mary Gerhart came to the vicinity, being emigrants from Germany, and settled on the farm now occupied by their son, John Gerhart, with whom the mother still resides. John Gerhart is quite prominent as a township officer.

John and Elizabeth Wagner emigrated also from Germany and settled on the farm near the church on the place now occupied by John Wagner. There had been a clearing made in the forest which surrounded them by B. Briggs, who was a hunter in that region some time before the advent of the Wagners. Mr. and Mrs. Wagner had ten children in all, three of whom were born in this county. Six of the children are living, and five are in this township.

In 1836 Adam and Margaret Seiler settled on the farm which had been previously owned by Jacob Peters. Mrs. Seiler had five daughters, of whom three are living.

In 1836 Theobald, a brother of Jacob Gerhart, settled on Second creek, on the place now owned by Jacob Millbach. His wife died soon afterwards, and his children are scattered. He moved to Marietta and there died some years ago.

In 1839, or thereabouts, Jacob Grimm and his wife Caharine, settled on the ridge between Second creek and the Muskingum, on the place now occupied by their daughters, Elizabeth and Catharine.

In 1837 Daniel and Catharine Long, with their three children, settled on what is now known as the Young blood farm. Mr. and Mrs. Long had three children born to them in America.

Theobald Wagner settled about the same time on the same place with the Longs. He married Margaret Cemer, by whom he had eight children. Jacob Wagner is still living on the place.

F. W. Rayley was born in Aurelius township in 1839, and afterwards became a resident of Muskingum. He married Caroline Smith, who was born in 1840. They have three children—Raymond W., Maynard, and an infant. Mr. Rayley farms eighty acres of land.

John Phillips emigrated to this county from Massachusetts in 1815, and settled in Muskingum township. He married Mary Dean, who was born in Massachusetts in 1795. He died in 1840, aged sixty-six years. Two of their seven children are living: Mary, the widow of Captain Hathaway, living in Massachusetts; and Joseph, residing east of Marietta. The latter was born in 1805. He married Anna Terny, by whom he had seven children, six of whom survive. For thirty years Mr. Phillips was in the employ of Dr. Moore, and then purchased his present farm, where he has a nice, comfortable home.

Mr. J. N. Bishop was born in 1800, in Hoosac Falls, New York. When he was a small boy, his parents removed to the vicinity of Parkersburgh, West Virginia. Thence after several years, they removed to Morgan county, Ohio, where they died. Before the death of his parents, Mr. Bishop had settled in Marietta. In 1830 he married Miss Lucetta A. M. Seely, of Washington county. Miss Seely's parents were among the oldest settlers in Marietta. Mr. and Mrs. Bishop had four children. Their three daughters are still living. Their only son died in 1863, in Virginia, from wounds received in battle. His father died a few weeks after from a disease contracted while nursing his son in the camp. Mrs. Bishop still lives in the old place in Muskingum township.

Mr. W. W. Rathbone was born in Columbus, Ohio, in 1829. He removed with his parents to Louisville, Kentucky, when he was about six years old. Here the family lived five or six years. Thence they removed to Belpre village, Washington county, Ohio, which was the old home of Mr. Rathbone's mother, she being a member of the Putnam family. Here Mr. Rathbone lived until his twenty-second year, when he removed to his present residence, about a mile north of Marietta, in Muskingum township. He was married in 1852 to Miss Julia Furguson. Mr. and Mrs. Rathbone have three daughters. Mr. Rathbone makes a specialty of raising sweet potatoes, and probably does the largest business in that line in the west.

EARLY SCHOOLS.

It is not strange that in such highly intellectual communities as are found in this township that the first school-house was built about the time the first cabin was erected in the several settlements. The earlier settlements in Wiseman's bottom and Rainbow were made by people who had enjoyed the privileges of a New England education, and were unwilling with the loss of numerous comforts and privileges to give up the school-house. They very sensibly foresaw that their children needed intelligence to assist them in the arduous task of overcoming the numerous obstacles which blocked up the road to success in the west. Hence it is that from the earliest beginnings the foundations of present prosperity were laid in the ground of a broad intelligence. The first schools were of course subscription schools, and continued as such until the formation of our present excellent system of free schools.

The first school in Wiseman's bottom was located on the Muskingum river, on the land then owned by Israel Putnam. It was a round log structure of the true pioneer type, with puncheon floor and seats, windows covered with greased paper, and huge fireplace across one end of the room. The logs of which the house was constructed were of beech and sugar principally, and ere very long they became rotten and hollow in places, which were frequently occupied by snakes, chipmunks, etc. On one occasion an unusually large black-snake was discovered in the recess of the fireplace trying to get at a nest of swallows in the chimney above. It was recess in that school until the big boys and teacher killed the snake.

The earliest teacher whose name can be ascertained was Miss Esther Levings. Abigail Poole was in all probability the next. She was followed by Theophilus Cotton. Not long after the erection of the school-house on the river it was found that the building was too near the water and was liable to be surrounded during a heavy rise in the river. On this account it was deemed advisable to remove the school-house farther back on higher ground. Accordingly this was done, the building being located on Israel Putnam's farm, where, in 1816, through Mr. Putnam's instrumentality, a commodious brick school-house was erected, which served the double purpose of school-house and church. In this building the people of the neighborhood continued to worship for a number of years. The people were of various denominations, but in those early days they worshipped in common. Rev. Joseph Willard, an Episcopal clergyman of talent, is remembered to have been the first minister who preached in the school-church. When the school-house was first moved back from the river, the teachers were Colonel Stone, Mr. Brown, of New England, a Mr. Allen, and perhaps others. Whipple Spooner was the first teacher in the brick house.

In early times Rainbow had two neighborhood school-houses, which, in this modern day have been consolidated into one. There was what was known as the upper and lower school-house, the former being located on the Muskingum, not far from Stephen Smith's place, and the latter being on the site of the present school-house of the neighborhood, immediately in the bow of the river. Both structures were built of logs and were primitive in the style of their architecture. In these two buildings did the children of the first settlers of Rainbow receive the rudiments of education. School was kept three months in each year, and the children were allowed and encouraged to attend whenever the work at home permitted. Nathaniel Dodge is believed to have been the first teacher in what was known as the lower school. Benjamin F. Stone soon succeeded him, and he in turn was succeeded by Sidney McClung. A. Pixley was the next teacher. To his pedagogical duties he added those of the singing master, and was accustomed to teach the young folks how to sing, and there were consequently many good singers in the neighborhood. They did not learn the common tra la la of modern days, but were trained in such music as Judgment and Easter anthems. Among succeeding teachers are found the names of Elijah Boyce, Nancy Plummer, Harriet Williams, Orinda Howe, Amanda Hall, Melissa Smith, and Sarah Thornily, and later came Mordecai Sanders, William Otis, Jonathan Gibbs, Dudley Smith, Whiting Hollaster, and others. The log school-house gave place to a frame and then the present brick structure. From the earliest date in the settlement of Rainbow the people in addition to their love for education, were firm in maintaining religious principles, and the school-houses and neighboring private houses were used as places of worship.

The first teacher at the upper Rainbow school was a Mr. Walbridge. B. F. Stone and Lydia Smith were among the succeeding early instructors. The original log building was the first and last school-house on this site, and years ago the two schools were consolidated, and the children of the upper school became attendants of the one farther down the river.

It was customary for the two schools to hold joint spelling matches, which drew to the front all the orthographical talent of which the settlement could boast, and many a night's sport did the fun-loving young folks of that day have in these contests.

The first school-house in the settlement of Germans on the ridge was located on the land which was then owned by Adam Seiler, and is now on the Arend place. It was a hewed log building, and during the first years of its history was a German school, in which no English was taught. The first German teacher was Carl Young. He was followed by John Paff, Adam Wilking, Jacob Morningstar and Jacob Miegler. Gradually the children of the neighborhood learned the English language, and there was consequently a demand for English teaching. The first one who taught an English school was Mrs. Mary A. Grant. This was in the year of 1843, and since then English has become predominant, alternating at first with the German, and gradually taking precedence. The log school-house has given place to a comfortable frame.

At the passage of the law establishing schools throughout the county which were to be supported by taxation, the pay schools were discontinued and the district schools took their places. There are at present nine school districts in the township. The first township board of education consisted of the following named gentlemen: A. R. Stacy, R. Fearing, Augustine Dyar, Daniel Wilking, and Jacob Wagner. The present board consists of the following persons, one for each district, viz: Anthony Smith, M. A. Stacy, John Wellspring, Joseph Dyar, J. G. Barker, Jacob H. Wagner, Joseph Jurden, Henry Cline, and J. W. Dyar. The schools are under good management and the high standing of education which has ever been maintained, has made this township a most intellectual community.

About thirty years ago Samuel Maxwell, a retired professor of Marietta college, erected a large brick residence which is now used as a part of the Children's Home. In an upper room in the rear part of the house, over what is now the kitchen of the Home, Professor Maxwell established an academy for boys, and there instructed them. At times he had as high as twenty scholars, and for a while the school was successful, but it eventually failed.

AN OLD SUBSCRIPTION PAPER.

Although because of the proximity of neighboring churches a house of worship was not erected in the territory now comprised in this township, the people have always been enthusiastic in religious work, and from the earliest time strove to care for their souls as well as for their intellects. An interesting bit of paper remains to testify to their Christian fidelity. This witness is an old subscription paper drawn up in 1810, which appears to be in the handwriting of Colonel Joseph Barker. The object of the subscription was to establish divine worship in Rainbow and Wiseman's bottom. None of those whose names appear below are now living. It reads thus:

Please pay in money or produce to Mr. Thomas Lake, on or before the fifteenth day of December next, for the purpose of introducing the regular preaching of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and for inculcating and introducing habits of good order, morality, and piety, by holding up to public view examples worthy the imitation and practice of the rising generation.

The subscription paper provided for a cash subscription, but there was none made of that kind.

Then comes a list of the subscribers:

ADAMS, April 2, 1810.

| Subscribers' names.                                      | Produce. |
|--|----------|
| Joseph Barker.....                                       | $5 00   |
| Jasper Stone.....  | 3 00     |
| Joseph Stacy.....  | 4 00     |
| Sylvanus Newton.....                                     | 6 00     |
| Sardine Stone.....                                       | 2 00     |
| Joseph Stacy, jr.....                                    | 1 00     |
| Stephen Smith.....                                       | 1 00     |
| Thomas Lake.....   | 6 00     |
| John Russell.....  | 3 00     |
| Simeon Wright.....                                       | 2 00     |
| Isaac Walbridge.....                                     | 1 00     |
| Benjamin F. Stone.....                                   | 3 00     |
| William Stacy, jr.....                                   | 1 00     |
| John Deem.....   | 1 00     |
| William Stacy.....                                       | 3 00     |
| Ephraim Matthews, thirty cents for each day's preaching. |          |
| Squier Prouty.....                                       | 2 00     |
| Joseph Wood.....   | 4 00     |
| Resolved Fuller.....                                     | 1 00     |

Preaching services were regularly held in the several school-houses from time to time when a minister could be found.

THE EVANGELICAL PROTESTANT CHURCH.

This, the only church within the confines of Muskingum township, is formed exclusively of the German settlers on the ridge and vicinity. The first company of emigrants had with them him who was to establish in their midst a church, in which, as was their wont in the Fatherland, they could worship the God of their fathers. Sometimes they would attend English preaching services at the Cedar Narrows, on Duck creek, in Fearing township. But this was, of course, unsatisfactory to people who could not as yet speak the English language, and they were all very anxious to establish a church of their own, where they might hear the gospel in their native tongue. The material for the organization was at hand and the people had a mind to work, but as yet they knew of no one who would serve them as pastor. But Providence had been kind to them, and they soon discovered that they had the right man in their midst. Theodore Schreiner, who emigrated from Germany in 1833, was the son of a clergyman, and had been carefully reared and educated. While in the midst of his studies, his father died, and he was consequently deprived of further educational advantages. Feeling that his future success depended entirely upon his own efforts, he decided to come to the new world. At the time of the organization of the church he was living in Fearing township, near by. Being a man of education, a minister's son, and withal a godly man, what more proper than that he be called to become the shepherd of this little flock among the hills. Having decided to pick up the ministerial duties which his father had been compelled to lay down at his death, he went heartily into the work, and soon effected the organization of a society of not less than twenty members.

The first building was a hewed log structure, erected upon the site of the present building. The lot for the building and adjoining burying-ground was donated by Stephen Otis. In this house the congregation continued to worship for a number of years, and in 1849 the hewed log gave place to the present frame church, which was built by Theobald Baker.

Rev. Theodore Schreiner continued in the pastorate for nineteen years, and was followed by Rev. F. Ciolina. He, in turn, was followed by Rev. Ferdinand Jurgens, who remained eight years. Revs. F. Wald and August Walther stayed about one year each. The next pastor, Rev. G. F. Englehardt, remained seven or eight years, being followed by Rev. Trapp, who remained about one year. Then the people called the present pastor, Rev. S. Beach, who has faithfully ministered unto them for seven years.

The church at present is in a prosperous condition, and is well sustained. There are ninety-seven members on the church roll. The trustees are: Anthony Smith, John Wilking and Wallace Smith. John Gerhart is the clerk. About twelve years ago another acre of ground was added to the church lot.

GRAVEYARDS.

Each neighborhood had its pioneer burying-ground, for death was common to them all. There are now three such enclosures in Muskingum township, which are sacred to the memory of the past and the resting place of hopes to be realized only in that future day that is yet to come. In each one of these God's acres sleep the forefathers of the township's early settlers.

The pioneer graveyard of Wiseman's bottom was located on the farm of Israel Putnam. Here were buried the Putnams, Barkers, Russells, Devols, and in fact nearly all of the earliest settlers. In later years the place was not used, and it became neglected. About the year 1820 a new cemetery was laid out about half a mile northeast of Devol's dam, and in this ground was buried most of those who had lain in the old cemetery. Since 1820 burials have been frequent, and the cemetery is well filled. The grounds are neatly kept, and are adorned with numerous evergreens that form a pleasing background to the many handsome monuments. Conspicuous among these monuments is a Scotch granite which Colonel Putnam erected to the memory of his fathers. The inscription reads:

To the memory of General Israel Putnam, born at Salem, Massachusetts, in 1718, a confidential friend of Washington, died May 19, 1790. Israel Putnam, his grandson, died March 9, 1824, aged fifty-nine. This monument was erected by Major L. J. P. Putnam.

The monument of Colonel Barker is also conspicuous.

There is another pioneer graveyard on the Walnut Hills farm, now owned by Dudley Devol. Therein were buried a number of the first settlers. It is not now used, and has been sadly neglected.

The pioneer graveyard of the Rainbow settlement is located on the Joseph Wood farm. The first person

J. B. DYAR.

MRS. J. B. DYAR.

buried in this ground was Mrs. Mary Lake, wife of Archibald Lake, who died the next year after his settlement on the Muskingum. The grounds have from time to time been greatly improved, and at present the cemetery presents a very attractive appearance. Within its boundaries reposes the dust of the early settlers of Rainbow, sleeping in the midst of the land which they redeemed from the wilderness and made prosperous by their early efforts.

There is a cemetery adjoining the Evangelical Protestant church in the northeastern part of the township. It originally consisted of about an acre of ground, but a few years ago received an additional acre. It is under the control of the church. The first person buried in this cemetery was the mother of Henry Spies, and since then most of the original settlers have been buried there.

FLOATING MILL ON THE MUSKINGUM.

In another place there is a history of the floating mill which Captain Jonathan Devol so ingeniously built for the use of the settlers along the Ohio at Belpre. When, in 1796, he moved up the Muskingum and joined the community located in the present township, he found that the settlers were in great need of a mill in which to grind their grain. The clumsy hand mills, then in common use, were inefficient, and it was difficult to keep a sufficient supply of meal. Captain Devol with becoming and characteristic enterprise, at once proceeded to alleviate the difficulty by constructing a floating mill similar to the one he had built at Belpre in 1791. It was built on two boats, the one supporting the machinery for grinding, and the other the shaft for the water wheel. The boats were joined at the bow and stern by stout planks, which served the double purpose of floor and girder, binding the boats to a parallel course. The mill machinery was enclosed by a little frame structure which sheltered the miller, and protected the machinery and grain from the wet weather. People came by water from all parts of the country for fifty miles around, and the mill supplied them with plenty. In 1803, he built a larger mill which produced an excellent quality of flour. This floating mill was constructed at the instance of Griffin Green, esq., after the pattern of similar mills in Holland. During its operation on the Muskingum it was moved at a point in the river where Captain Devol afterwards built the dam for his large stationary mill.

OTHER MILLS

of various kinds have been erected from time to time. In 1807, Captain Devol erected a very large frame flouring mill near where the present mill now stands. Its large under shot wheel is said to have been more than forty feet in diameter, it being the largest mill wheel ever seen in the west. The mill did a fair business, but with the lapse of years was allowed to fall into decay. It stood for a number of years a deserted monument to early enterprise, and full fifty years ago it tottered to its fall, and with a crash was scattered prone upon the earth. Like an aged man, having finished its appointed tasks, it mingled with its original dust, and gave way in later years to a modern structure which is still standing.

Some time after the desertion of the old mill, Captain Devol's grandson, J. L. Devol, put up a building near by to be used as a saw-mill and chair factory. He also kept, in connection with it a small general store. The buildings, which are now owned by Colonel L. J. P. Putnam, are still standing in a very dilapidated state. There was a corn cracker in connection with the saw-mill that did some grinding for the neighborhood. This saw-mill and chair factory, prior to its purchase by Major Putnam, was owned by Dana & Wendleken. After the close of the late war it was for a time operated by Putnam, Bragg & Straw.

In 1866, Major Putnam erected at Devol's dam, a large mill with three run of buhrs, which was considered to be the best mill on the river. After operating this mill for a year, Major Putnam put it in charge of I. P. and H. C. Putnam, and is now operated by I. P. Putnam, under the name of Union mills.

Sheep raising had become such an important industry among the farmers in the year 1809, that it was highly important that the work of the hand cards be made easier by the use of machinery. Accordingly, with his usual enterprising energy, Captain Devol purchased and put in operation, necessary machinery for wool carding.

During the previous year he erected works for cloth dressing and fulling, both of which operations being carried on by Captain Devol prior to any other operations of like kind west of the mountains. The machinery for cloth dressing could not be found in Ohio, and was purchased at McConnellsville, on the Youghiogony river.

The saw-mill at Union Landing or "Pinchville," was built at a comparatively early day by George T. Elston.

John Strecker, jr's. glue factory just north of Marietta, began operations in 1863, and now has an invested capital of four or five thousand dollars. Thirty-five thousand pounds of glue, valued at thirty-five thousand dollars, are made annually.

SHIP-BUILDING ON THE MUSKINGUM.

The community in Wiseman's bottom was fortunate in having among its numbers two men of such marked mechanical skill as Colonel Joseph Barker and Captain Jonathan Devol. Both of them were skilled architects, Captain Devol being a shipwright by trade, and Colonel Barker a house-builder. About the year 1800, ship-building having become an important industry at Marietta and on the Muskingum, these men readily took part in the work for which they were so well adapted by previous education and natural skill. The dense forests on either side of the river furnished excellent material for the work. Giant oaks were felled, and under the skilful hands of these men were joined together and moulded into symmetrical shape. Noting first the work of Colonel Barker, we find that his shipyard was on his farm on the east bank of the Muskingum. In 1802, he constructed two ocean vessels. One was a brig, built for Messrs. Blennerhassett and Woodbridge, and named the Dominic, after the name of Mr. Blennerhassett's oldest son. The other was a schooner, called the Indiana. This last named vessel, together with the Louisa, built in 1803, were for E. W. Tupper, of Marietta. During the fall of 1806 he was employed by Herman Blennerhassett to construct fifteen large bateaux for the use of the expedition of Aaron Burr to Mexico. The fate of these boats and this intended expedition is more fully described elsewhere in this work.

Captain Devol's ship-building was quite extensive. He also worked along the Muskingum upon his farm. In 1801 he built a sloop of four hundred tons for B. J. Gilman, a merchant of Marietta. The vessel was wholly constructed of black walnut, and was named after the river by whose side it was built. In 1802 he built two brigs, of two hundred tons each, the Eliza Green, and the Ohio. In 1804, the schooner Nonpareil was built. The passage of the embargo act, in 1807, suspended all further operations in this line.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME.

This institution is beautifully situated on an eastern bluff of the Muskingum river about one mile from the city of Marietta. The idea of the institution was a gradual growth, founded on the increased necessity for some refuge besides the infirmary for the numerous little ones left without parental care. The act establishing children's homes in the several counties of the State was passed March 20, 1866, and then with the means in their hands the county commissioners proceeded to establish a Home in this county, appointing, in accordance with law, five trustees, to serve one year each. The act of 1867 reduced this number to three, whose term of service extended to three years.

The first board of trustees was composed of the following members, viz: Douglas Putnam, William R. Putnam, Frederick A. Wheeler, William S. Ward, and Augustine Dyar. Of this number, Frederick A. Wheeler is still in office. Colonel W. R. Putnam, the chairman of the board from its commencement, resigned after a faithful service of ten years; and William S. Ward died during his term of office. Wylie H. Oldham, who was appointed in 1871, also died while in office. In 1875 W. Dudley Devol was appointed, and in 1877 George Benedict became a member of the board which now consists of Messrs. Wheeler, Devol, and Benedict.

There was no lack of children anxious to enter the Home. As early as 1858 Miss Catharine Fay, now Mrs. Ewing, began caring for the little waifs which were left without parental care. They were provided for at the Home in Lawrence township under an arrangement made with the directors of the county infirmary. At the time of the establishment of the Home on the Muskingum there were thirty children under Miss Fay's charge, who were brought to their new abode April 1, 1867. Mrs. A. G. Brown, who had been appointed matron on the first of March, continued to serve until April 1, 1868, when she was succeeded by Rev. Ira M. Preston and wife as superintendent and matron, who served one year, being succeeded by the present incumbents, Dr. Simeon D. Hart and wife.

Since the advent of Dr. Hart numerous improvements have been made. A frame addition in the shape of an L has been put up on the north side of the back part of the original brick building. This part is used principally as a nursery for the younger children.

In 1874 the increased numbers justified the erection of a second brick building just behind the first house. It was occupied January 1, 1875. It is three stories high, seventy-five feet long, and thirty feet wide. As soon as there is need of additional room it is proposed that a similar structure be added to the north side, and that the two wings thus formed be wrought into one building. The first floor of the wing that has been built is occupied by the Home school. The second floor is the boys' dormitory, and the third is for the girls. Everything is kept neat and clean, as perfect order is maintained in every department. The attendance at the school in 1880 averaged over sixty pupils, none being exempt from school duty except those very small and those of the larger ones detailed to assist in the work. The school is under the management of Miss Augusta Nixon, who has had charge of it for over ten years. Inasmuch as the scholars are all quite young, only the common branches are taught. Music is taught to such as evince a taste for it. On Sundays, and at other times, religious instruction is given and many of the children have a thorough knowledge of Bible history. The progress of their education is very satisfactory and the results of thorough system in training are seen in the bright eyes and quick looks of intelligence which greet the visitor. That the bodily powers may not flag the children regularly go through exercises in calisthenics. They are well fed, well dressed, and kindly cared for, and are therefore happy.

The farm land is much better adapted to grazing and pasturing than to the raising of grain and other crops. Except the lawn and garden, and about twelve acres of woodland, the farm is in pasture and fruit land. Milk being considered an almost indispensable article of diet, especially for children, a sufficient quantity is provided to give them a generous supply each day. To do this, from ten to twelve cows are required, and pains are taken to secure the best breeds for the purpose. The orchard provides an abundance of healthful fruit.

The object of the Home is not simply to feed and clothe these children, but to nurture them by inculcating those principles which shall enable them to go out into the world and make homes for themselves. They are not allowed by the law to remain at the home after reaching the age of sixteen years. Long before that time most of the children are either restored to their parents or adopted into responsible families. The average number of inmates during the year 1880 was about seventy-five, there being twice as many boys as girls. The number of children has been less during the past year than it has been in any of the last ten years previous.

This institution was the first in the State organized under the law authorizing county homes for children. Those charged with its management accepted their positions fully sensible of the difficulties to be encountered, and with the knowledge that they were without the advantages to be derived from the experience of similar institutions. Its history shows that the Home has succeeded in fulfilling the full measure of expectation. The general management of its affairs by the superintendent and matron have been eminently satisfactory, and their annual reappointment since 1868 attests the estimation with which their services are regarded by those most familiar with the history, success, and progress of the Home.

THE MUSKINGUM FARMERS' CLUB

was organized January 1, 1874, for the double purpose of promoting the agricultural and social interests of the community. Most trades and professions have their associations for the advancement of their interests, and it is equally fitting that farmers assemble to talk over their business and social affairs, and to make more interesting and profitable the great industry which is the foundation of all prosperity. Moreover society in the country is usually more nominal than real, and it is invigorated by the frequent assembling together of farmers and their families. The Muskingum Farmers' club has succeeded admirably in the accomplishment of these very important ends. During the six years of its existence the meetings have been well attended, the average attendance being about forty. Formerly bi-monthly, the meetings are now held on the first Saturday of every month, at the house of some member or friend of the club. In winter it is customary to assemble at 11 A. M., dine at 12 and transact business from 1 to 4 P. M. During the summer season the meetings are in the afternoon with supper at the close. The ladies of the club share with the hostess the duties of entertainment, and the culinary department is fully equipped in true picnic style, and thus happily is business combined with social enjoyment, and it is no wonder that there are always a number of ever welcome friends who enjoy the club's hospitality.

The usual order of exercises is as follows: Reading of the minutes of the previous meeting; vocal and instrumental music; a recitation by one of the younger members; the reading of a selected article and of an original essay; general remarks; miscellaneous business, and the discussion of a question previously assigned. The subjects for reading, writing and discussion are left entirely to the discretion of the appointees who gratify their own convenience and tastes, though party questions are carefully avoided. The regular question for discussion is generally of practical importance to the farmer, and much practical good is derived.

Premiums have from time to time been offered for the best articles and yields of farm produce. The most noticeable of these premiums is a handsome silver medal presented to the club by M. P. Wells, of Marietta, to be given each year to the member raising the best acre of corn.

It is the intention of the club hereafter to give more attention and encouragement to careful experiment in regard to the comparative values of different farm products and methods of culture.

The present officers of the club are: J. G. Barker, president; W. D. Devol, vice-president; Kate Rathbone, secretary; C. P. Dyar, corresponding secretary, and M. A. Stacy, treasurer.

Taking all things into consideration, the Muskingum club has been a success, and has realized the anticipations of its founders. It has done much to make enjoyable a life usually of much toil and little healthful intellectual and social enjoyment. No means which can improve the welfare and increase the happiness of the great farming class of the country should be neglected, and the Muskingum Farmers' club has, in great measure, met this great want.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

THE DYAR FAMILY.

John Dyar, the first representative of this family in Washington county, was a native of Boston. After the Revolution he removed to Nova Scotia and became engaged in navigation, and accumulated some money, but during the Napoleonic wars his vessel was captured and his fortune ruined. He married, in Nova Scotia, Sally Potter, whose father was also a native of Boston. Mr. Dyar returned to Massachusetts with his family, and in 1816 emigrated to Ohio. The journey from Boston to Marietta was made with teams, and occupied thirty days. At this time his family consisted of eight children; two more were born after coming to this county. Joseph, the oldest, was born October 1, 1800, in Arcadia (Annapolis Royal), Nova Scotia. His facilities for obtaining an education were very limited, owing to his father's occupation and circumstances. He remained at home six years after coming to Ohio, and assisted his father to acquire a small estate in Muskingum township.

Joseph Dyar made his first business venture at the age of twenty-two. He built a flat-boat and loaded it with a cargo of hoop-poles, staves, and produce, for the Kanawha trade. He pushed his boat to the salt regions, and traded and sold his freight for a cargo of salt, which he floated down to Cincinnati and sold with the boat for two hundred dollars. This was the first money of his own which came into his possession. An episode on the way home shows his energy. The steamer Rufus Putnam, on which he took passage, was wrecked near Maysville, Kentucky, and Mr. Dyar set out on foot, reaching home in good spirits. The same year Mr. Dyar and Thomas Ridgway purchased a keel-boat, and engaged in the Kanawha trade. The second year of their partnership they purchased the Nye farm, in the Muskingum valley. This was the first settled farm in the township. They paid for it one thousand dollars in cash. The Kanawha trade was continued for one year longer, and then Mr. Dyar began flat-boating and trading along the river as far south as New Orleans. He was the first trader in this section who paid cash for goods. This gave him great advantage in buying. For ten years he continued buying produce, and flat-boating. The productions of his own farm by this time amounted to considerable, and added materially to his yearly dividends. One peculiarity of Mr. Dyar's business operations is deserving of special notice. He never insured either his boats or goods. He always kept a personal supervision over all operations, and depended upon no one but himself to guard against loss. Although he experienced many narrow escapes, and sometimes approached the brink of destruction, he never suffered any material loss.

Since he quit flat-boating Mr. Dyar has been engaged in farming, dealing in real estate, and managing his accumulations. Care and industry are his predominant characteristics. He owes much of his success to his ability to read a line ahead in the chapter of current events.

Mr. Dyar married in February, 1827, Amanda Hall, of Muskingum township. She died June 25, 1837, leaving six children. Augustine, the oldest, was born December 10, 1827; he is married and lives in Muskingum township. Edwin was born February 1, 1829; he died in the south January 29, 1852. Charles C. was born October 22, 1830, died January 24, 1857. Mary was born October 2, 1830; she lives on the homestead. James H. died in youth. Joseph was born February 24, 1836; he lives in Muskingum township. Adelaide was married to General H. F. Devol in 1856, and died at Waterford in 1860.

Mr. Dyar married for his second wife Abigail Proctor, daughter of Nathan Proctor, of Muskingum township, January 24, 1839. Her father emigrated to Ohio, from Massachusetts, at an early period of the settlement, and after the Indian war, returned and brought to the county his family. They stopped with his brother, Jacob Proctor, in Watertown township, and then removed to Barlow as soon as a cabin could be erected. Mr. Proctor made the first improvement in the township, and Abigail (Mrs. Dyar) was the second child born in the township. She was one of seven children. By his second wife Mr. Dyar had three children, two of whom are living, viz: Amelia E., wife of E. N. Cole, of Harmar, born December 28, 1841; and Harriet A., wife of Miles A. Stacey, born December 26, 1844.

Mr. Dyar can look over his possessions with the comforting consciousness that they are the product of his own labor, care, and business sagacity. He has made it a rule in life to attend strictly and closely to his own business and operated on a cash basis. He earned his start, and has never since ventured beyond his ready capital.

In politics he acted with the Democrats until 1856, since when he has been a Republican. He has never connected himself with any organized society.

JAMES S. STOWE.

Erastus Stowe, father of the subject of this sketch, was born at Cooverstown, New York. While yet a child, one of the celebrated Indian massacres of the Revolution occurred in that valley, and both his parents were murdered by the savage woodsmen. The child was carried away and left in a corn field and there found by Abijah Hubble who adopted him into his family. About 1800, Mr. Stowe, then more than twenty years old, came with the Hubble family to Ohio, and settled in Meigs county. He married in Meigs county, Jane Smith, a daughter of James Smith, who, like many others, sold his property in New England, in the hope of bettering his condition by joining the Ohio emigrants, but also like many others, he received for his property continental money and was in consequence reduced to penury. The family lived at the Marietta garrison during the Indian war and afterwards settled in Meigs county. Mr. Stowe, after he was married, engaged in farming. He died in Meigs county at the age of sixty-five years; his wife died at the age of ninety-three years.

James S. Stowe, whose portrait appears above, was the oldest son of Erastus Stowe, and was born in Meigs county, in 1806. He was a spirited youth and never afraid to undertake anything assigned for him to do. His services were always in demand on the farms in the neighborhood. When a small boy, he made a lonely trip on horseback through the cow-paths in the woods to Athens to mill; at the age of seventeen he was apprenticed to a cabinet-maker, in Gallipolis. He was sadly afflicted with homesickness, which the religious practices of his boss were not calculated to alleviate, and, as he expressed it, "the man fortunately died soon," being stricken with the prevailing epidemic. He returned home and was variously employed in Meigs county until the age of twenty, when he began work for his uncle, Sardine Stone, in Muskingum township. At the end of five years he became impatient and affected an arrangement by which the Stone farm came into his possession.

In 1829, Mr. Stowe began flat-boating—a business which he pursued with great profit for more than thirty years. The first load was fitted out at an expense of five hundred dollars, which was borrowed for the purpose. The load was disposed of at a profit of three hundred dollars. This was the beginning of a long and successful business career. Every planter along the river knew Smith Stowe. He had the reputation of being a sharp but honest dealer. In all his experience he never lost money on a season's trade. But the winter of 1861 was full of danger for flat-boatmen. The opening of rebellion is characterized by a certain enthusiasm which is worn off by the fatigue of military movements. Mr. Stowe, although well acquainted, did not escape the general threat against Ohio men and abolitionists. At Lake Providence an incident occurred which shows the spirit of the times in the south and also Mr. Stowe's sagacity. The boat was tied up at the shore and he had been doing considerable trading when the news came of the secession of South Carolina. The community was thrown into a whirlwind of excitement, and flat-boatmen notified that it was unsafe for them to remain. Mr. Stowe fastened a line to the bottom of his boat, where it could not be seen. That night the main line was cut, and when he appeared on the roof a shot was fired. The next morning a deputation waited on him and warned him against remaining, declaring that "no Lincoln abolitionists could land at their shores." He was given till four o'clock to leave. This is one of many similar incidents which shows the feeling at the south during the formation of the confederacy. One fact is worthy of mention in connection with the subject of this sketch in regard to the use of fire-arms. He has been down the Mississippi and up Red river and in the most dangerous parts of the south at the most dangerous times, and yet has never owned a revolver or carried a firearm. Mr. Stowe, in connection with the produce trade, carried on farming and milling. He always kept things moving, employed hands and paid them and in that way has been a useful man in his community. His first possession was the Stone farm, but since then he has invested as much as ninety thousand dollars in land lying in the fine bottom within the bow of the Muskingum, just above Devol's dam, and forty thousand dollars in farms in the Rainbow bottom. He has made his money by industrious, hard work and sharp dealing. He attributes a large measure of his success to punctuality, whether working by the day in his boyhood, or in business transactions throughout life.

MRS. JAMES S. STOWE.

JAMES S. STOWE.

Mr. Stowe was married in 1830, to Anne Meriam of Lowell, by whom he had six children; four of whom are now living: Sardine (Marshall), Diantha (Devol), and Seldon. Mrs. Stowe died in 1842. In 1843 he married for his second wife, Mrs. Eliza Ferrin, daughter of Freeman Davis, and widow of Davis Ferrin. She had by her first husband one son, Liman Ferrin, who was killed in the war. By Mr. Stowe she had five children, viz.: Charles, died in 1866; Lucy (Drake), Dudley, J. Smith, and Pitt. All the children live on farms within the sound of the dinner-bell at their parents' house, except J. Smith, who is in business at Marietta.

CHAPTER XLV.

WATERTOWN TOWNSHIP.

Geography and Survey—Donation Lands—Surface Features—Establishment and Change of Boundaries—Change of Name—The First Settlement—Wolf Creek Mills—The Pioneers—Millsburgh—First Sermon—Millsburgh Evacuated—New Mill Built—The Watertown Settlement—Sherman Waterman Killed by Indians—West Branch Settlers—Other Settlers—Review of Settlement—Educational History—Character of Early Traders—Wolf Creek Mills Rebuilt—South Branch Mills—Watertown Mill—An Indian Incident—A Church Scene—The Nine Cemeteries—Watertown Village—Church-town Post Office—Manufacturing—Physicians—Watertown Grange—Churches—Methodist, Presbyterian, Universalist, Lutheran, Catholic, United Brethren.

WATERTOWN in extent of territory is the largest township in Washington county. From the southeastern corner to the northwestern is a distance of twelve miles, and forty-two and one-half miles of area lie within its boundaries. About one-third of this area was originally Ohio company land, and was laid out in one hundred and sixty acre lots; the remaining two-thirds was a part of the donation tracts set apart by the Ohio company for the encouragement of settlement. Rainbow allotment, South Branch allotment, North Branch allotment, are included in this township. A part of Between Rainbow and Waterford allotment, and Wolf Creek and Waterford allotments are also included.

DRAINAGE.

Watertown is chiefly drained by Wolf creek, the two branches of which unite in the northern part. The east branch, which rises in Warren township, takes almost a direct northward course in Watertown. The hills along its valley are not as abrupt as those in most other parts of the county. Back from the creek valley the surface is comparatively level except along the tributaries, where the hills reaching to the plain are steep, but not abrupt. The west branch flows into Watertown from Morgan county, and joins the east branch near the Waterford line. This stream flows alternately between regular and picturesque hills and through beautiful valleys, which spread out into fertile bottoms. The part of the township drained by the west branch is the most hilly and broken. Rainbow creek carries off the waters of the northeastern part of the township.

THE SOIL.

This township is generally finely situated for agricultural purposes, but the soil is not as fertile as that in some other portions of the county. The rock strata, by the disintegration of which soil is mostly formed, is shale and sandstone with very little limestone. The heavy stratum of limestone in the bed of the west branch of Wolf creek does not crop out anywhere on the hills, and can only be made available by artificial methods. A seam of slaty coal appears near the village of Watertown.

GEOGRAPHY.

At the date of its establishment, June 4, 1806, Watertown, then Wooster, included only the fourth township of the tenth range. The commissioners at a subsequent meeting set off of Waterford and attached to Wooster, that part of the town of Waterford lying in the third township of the tenth range, and the seventh township of the eleventh range, and so much of the eighth township of the eleventh range as lies south of the west branch of Wolf creek.

At the September session of the commissioners, 1813, six sections, thirty-one to thirty-six, of Union, were set off and annexed to Wooster. The name of the township was changed from Wooster to Watertown, December 6, 1824, the object being to avoid the annoyance of having two Woosters in the same State, there being a town and township bearing that name in Wayne county. The name "Watertown" was selected in honor of the Waterman family, one of whose members lost his life in the early settlement.

Watertown received an important addition of territory in 1877 when Union township was partitioned. Union township when originally established in 1812 included the whole of township three, range nine, and sections thirty-one, thirty-two, thirty-three, thirty-four, thirty-five and thirty-six, of township three, range nine. This tract had previously been a part of Marietta and Adams. Watertown as it existed before 1813 had originally been a part of Waterford.

The territory of Union had grown smaller by annexations to Watertown, Adams, and Muskingum, and finally the town, December, 1877, lost its identity entirely. The part bounded by a line beginning at the southwest corner of section twenty-six, and running due east to the southwest corner of section eight, then north to the south line of "Wiseman's bottom allotment," then west to the southwest corner of Wiseman's bottom, then north to the southeast corner of lot number five, in Rainbow Creek allotment, then west to the southwest corner of lot number ten, in same allotment, then north to the northeast corner of lot number sixteen, then west to the line of Watertown township, then south to the place of beginning, was annexed to Watertown township. The territory constituting Watertown was originally embraced in Marietta and Waterford. Legal divisions generally became smaller as the population grows more dense, but every change of boundaries but one (when Palmer was established) has resulted in the enlargement of this territory.

THE SETTLEMENT.

On the bottom bordering the north bank of the west branch of Wolf creek, near the forks, was made the first settlement in the township. Here is also the site of the first mill in Ohio, known as Wolf Creek mills. In the spring of 1789 a company, composed of Colonel Robert Oliver, Captain John Dodge, and Major Haffield White, made a small clearing, erected three log cabins, and began operations for the erection of a mill, which was of great utility to the early settlers.

The place is interesting, both to the historian and the artist. The stream goes over a rapids of several feet fall, and spreads itself out to the width of one hundred feet, over a bed of solid limestone, from which protrudes irregular masses of rock. From the southern bank there rises a high hill clothed with cedars, pines, and heavy trees. On the other side, a beautiful plain extends from the rocky shore to the base of a picturesque range of hills in the distance. This plain became the residence of three of Washington county's most worthy pioneers: Major White, Colonel Oliver, and Captain Dodge. The construction of a dam and mill required much labor, and workmen were industriously occupied until the following March before the mills were put in operation. The building was made of round logs, and stood on the bank of the stream, just at the foot of the rapids. The crank for the saw-mill was made at New Haven, Connecticut, and is said to have been brought to Symrill's ferry on a pack-horse. The millstones were made of a conglomerate rock, procured at Laurell hill, near Brownsville. One of these stones is preserved as a relic by Mrs. Patterson Dodge, of Beverly. This enterprise proved of great benefit to the whole settlement. The stones were not of proper texture for grinding wheat, but corn, which was the staple product for the first few years, could be ground when the water was high, at the rate of a bushel in four minutes. A large portion of the meal, both for the Marietta and Waterford settlements, was ground at this mill. It was accessible by water during freshets, and flatboats of considerable size brought grain from Waterford and carried meal back to the settlements at Marietta and Belpre.

It was ordered by the Ohio company that a block-house should be built at this settlement, known as Millsburgh, before July 20, 1789, but no danger was apprehended, and the workmen, being busily engaged in the construction of the mill, no provision was made for a place of safety in time of danger.

The mill company seemed devoted to but one object. The clearing was very limited, and no attempt was made at cultivating the extensive bottom which spreads its fertile acres toward the north and west. The names of the laborers employed at Millsburgh are not known. The first religious service held in the Muskingum settlements was at this station, in July, 1789, by the Rev. Daniel Story, who was then in the employ of the Ohio company. There was no house large enough for the meeting, which was attended by many of the Plainfield residents. The congregation assembled in the open air, under a beech tree.

Operations at Millsburgh were undisturbed until January, 1791, when the massacre at Big Bottom made the settlers conscious of their danger. A council was held with the Waterford settlers, and the erection of a garrison decided upon. At this time the colony at the mills numbered about thirty souls, all of whom gathered in the cabin of Colonel Oliver when the fate of the Big Bottom colony, and the danger of the other settlements was made known. This and other events relating to the Indian war are fully treated in a general chapter on that subject, and to narrate them here would be mere repetition of what has already been given.

The leading families went into the garrison at Marietta, the other members of the colony moved to the garrison at Waterford, and from there with the greatest caution operated the mills, which were cunningly left unmolested by the Indians during the whole period of the war.

It required fifteen or twenty men to grind a load of corn during this period. It was necessary for sentries to guard the boat, and then when the grist was grinding guards were posted on all sides to protect the millers from a sudden attack, which might be expected any moment, as the mill was probably left standing for the purpose of decoying the whites.

At the close of the war, in 1795, the proprietors re-occupied their cabins and repaired the mill, which, in a short time, was found to be too small for the accommodation of the rapidly growing settlement, and a new frame mill was built just about the former site.

The settlement, reenforced from the east, now began in earnest the work of clearing and cultivating the land.

In the spring of 1795 the second colony, composed of five young men—William Ford, William Hart, Jacob Proctor, John Waterman and Sherman Waterman—was formed for the purpose of clearing their lands in company. A block-house was built about three miles from the township line, on the south branch of Wolf creek. Although little danger was apprehended at this time, it was thought prudent to remain together, and day by day they alternately worked on each other's farms. The spring passed away quietly and peacefully until the twentieth of May, when one of this brave and hardy band fell a victim of the red man's cunning. During the fore part of the day frequent showers had driven them from their accustomed work in the clearing to the garden near the house. Sherman Waterman went across the creek, a few yards distant, to procure some bark to repair the bottom of his bed, and while he was engaged at this work the men in the garden heard the report of a gun, and stepped to a port-hole in the enclosure. Waterman was running towards the house calling for help, while the enemy continued to fire at him from an ambush a short distance away. Waterman fell exhausted in the creek. William Hart rushed out and brought him to the house. Hart carried the news of the disaster to Waterford, whence a party of men came and took the body of the wounded man to the residence of Dean Tyler, where he died the following day. He had been shot in the region of the liver. On examination, it was found that the Indians had encamped near a log on which the settlers had been in the habit of crossing a narrow ravine as they went to and came from their work. Near the end of this log was found a blanket and some silver brooches, left as a decoy. It had doubtless been the plan of the Indians to charge upon the settlers while examining these articles, and had it not been for the fact that the day was rainy and disagreeable, the scheme might have succeeded, a result which would have materially affected the character of the settlement of the township.

A few years after this tragedy an unknown Indian, while in a state of intoxication, told a man named McFarlan, who lived in the eastern part of the township, the story of the murder of Waterman, and said they knew they had killed him, for they saw blood in the water down the creek. Waterman is buried in the Waterford cemetery. A stone bearing the following inscription marks his grave:

Memento Mori—1795.
SHERMAN WATERMAN,

Who was wounded by the savages, being shot through the body twenty-first, and died the twenty-second of May, 1795, aged twenty-five years.

As soon as permanent peace had been established with the Indians, the donation lands in the north part of the township were rapidly cleared and reduced to a state of cultivation. The south and southeast part of the territory remained a wilderness when the stumps of the northern sections were fast disappearing.

The valley of the west branch of Wolf creek above the mills was occupied about 1797 by an English settlement. The pioneer of this colony was Samuel Mellor, who settled on the farm in the bend of the creek now owned by his son, John Mellor. A few years later brought to the bottom, on the opposite side of the creek, Matthew Corner and John Bacon, and the elliptical bottom further down was occupied by James Quigley, whose name it still retains.

Peter Taylor, who was brought from England by Blennerhassett and employed by him as gardener, after the ruin of his patron's estate became a resident of this valley; also 'Cajoe Phillips, a colored servant of Blennerhassett.

William Ford, shortly after the close of Indian hostilities, was joined by his brother Giles, accompanied by his wife and son, Giles Harry. Giles died soon after their settlement, and William became the husband of his widow, by whom he had a large family. Joseph, Ansel and Ammon settled in this township, and had families; Lucien, Romanta B. and Isaiah N. studied for the Presbyterian ministry. Romanta died before he had completed his studies. Lucien died in early manhood in Cincinnati; Isaiah at Jackson, Ohio.

Ansel B. Ford was born in Licking county in 1805. In 1833 he married Lucy Deming, who was born in this township in 1809. He served for a number of years as justice of the peace, and after a useful life died in 1879, leaving four children—Sarah L., Mira M., Eliza J., and Charlotte G.

Ammon Ford was born September 9, 1807, in this township. November 27, 1827, he was married to Hannah Parke, who was born in New York, September 15, 1809. They had seven children—John, Seth, Sarah, Lucy and Laura (twins), Judah, and William—of whom three—John, Sarah and Judah—are dead. Seth, the second child, was born in Barlow township, September 12, 1830. In 1852 he went to California, where he remained until 1863, since which time he has been a resident of Watertown. December 20, 1863, he married Margaret Ross, who was born in Perry county, May 1, 1840. They have three children living—Frank, Hattie and Fred—and one dead, Mary.

Juda Ford emigrated with his father from Connecticut in 1795, and was a resident of the township to the time of his death, which occurred September 24, 1851. He married Betsy Deming, who was born in Massachusetts, June 17, 1791, by whom he had seven children. Daniel, the sixth child, was born on the farm, where he now lies October 30, 1820. February 23, 1854, he married Louisa Morris, who was born March 15, 1829. Their family consists of three children—Charles, Myron and Edward.

John Waterman, a brother of Sherman, and one of the associates of the block-house company, settled on Wolf creek, in the neighborhood of the old block-house. He came to an untimely death at the hand of his son, who was insane.

Ferrand Waterman came to the township in 1796. He emigrated from Connecticut with his brothers, John and Sherman, but remained in Marietta one year before making a permanent settlement.

Dougle Walker was probably the first Scotch emigrant to this township. He left his native Highlands and settled in the northwestern part of the township before 1800. He died in 1821, leaving a large family.

Jacob Proctor, who has already been mentioned, married Betsy Wells, and lived in the centre of the township. His brother, Nathan, came from Danvers, Massachusetts, with the Deming family in 1797. He afterwards removed to Barlow township.

Benjamin Hart came from Berlin, Connecticut, during the early settlement of the township. He married Honor Deming, by whom he had seven children—Austin died in Michigan; Columbus lives in Indiana; Dr. Simeon is superintendent of the Children's Home; Dr. Franklin, a practicing physician in Marietta; Mary Ann (Hayward), and Lucy Payne. After the death of his wife in 1825 he married Mrs. Ester Minor. Henry C., who lives near Marietta, is one of the children by this wife. He was married a third time to Mrs. Lawrence, widow of Rufus Lawrence.

Sila Hart lived with a large family on an adjoining farm. He left the township at an early date.

Pelig Springer cleared a farm on the south branch of Wolf creek, near the forks. He had four sons. Joseph, the oldest, was a school teacher; Clark, the second son, married a daughter of Elijah Wilson, who came to the township in 1797, and was employed in Wolf Creek mills.

Among the early pioneers of Washington county was John McNeal, sr. He was of Scotch parentage, born about the year 1743. When fourteen years of age he was taken prisoner by the Indians in Pennsylvania and remained in captivity for seven years. During his captivity he and another white boy accompanied three Indian chiefs as servants from Pennsylvania to the headwaters of the Missouri, as he called the country which is now Dakota or Montana. They visited on their journey the principal Indian tribes and consulted their chiefs. He did not know positively the object of the visit, but supposed it was to unite the various tribes in a general war against the whites. If such was the case it did not succeed. The journey both ways consumed three years. When the treaty of November, 1764, was concluded, he was set at liberty. He made his way back to Pennsylvania, where he found one sister still living. He subsequently married Anna Howell who was a native of New Jersey, born in 1760, and some time prior to the summer of 1791 removed to Morgantown, Virginia. In the spring of 1796 he decided to remove to the Northwest Territory and floated down the Monongahela and Ohio rivers to Marietta, arriving in the latter part of April. He drew his donation lot (No. 28) between Rainbow and Waterford. He first settled on Duck creek, near what is now Stanleyville, where he lived until the spring of 1799 when he moved to his claim where he resided until his death, which occurred probably in the fall of 1819. His wife survived him many years, dying in 1846. Their children, who grew to mature years, were James, Elizabeth, John, Susan and Margaret (twins), William, Andrew, Levi and David. Of these Anna is still living and is the only survivor of the family. William, whose whole life was spent in Washington county was born March 25, 1799, during the residence of his parents near Stanleyville. He possessed much energy of character, and bore the name of an honest, upright man. He was trustee of his township for many years and was school director for upwards of forty years. He died April 9, 1879. His wife, Matilda Bellows, daughter of the late Elias Bellows, sr., of Little Hocking, Belpre township, was born November 21, 1809, died July 13, 1875. They were married in March, 1828, and had a large family. Those who grew to adult age were the following: Andrew, Ira, Cromwell, Diana, Elias, Franklin, Thomas, Ason and Margaret. Andrew is a surveyor and resides in Cedar county, Nebraska; Ira died in Illinois in 1852; Cromwell was a physician, entered the army in the fall of 1861 from Illinois, and died at Paducah, Kentucky, while in charge of a floating hospital, June, 1862; Diana (Mrs. Wilson) resides in California; Elias lives in Missouri; Franklin resides in Watertown, on the old homestead and owns half of the old donation lot before mentioned. He was deputy surveyor of Christian county, Illinois, in 1867, and of Clay county, Kansas, in 1871. He has served one term as justice of the peace of this township. He was born April 8, 1839, married Mary Alexander and had two children. Thomas resides in Kansas, Ason is a resident of this county, as is also Margaret (Stacy).

John Mellor, son of Samuel Mellor, was born in England, August 17, 1793. The family emigrated to America in 1795, and were among the first settlers of this township. Abigail Briggs was married to John Mellor in 1818. She died in 1874, leaving eleven children—six boys and five girls.

William Woodford made the first improvement on the Ohio company lands in 1796. He came from Connecticut, a single man, and became possessor of a large tract, on which the village of Watertown now stands. Some time after his arrival in Ohio, he returned to his old home in Connecticut on foot, and came back to Ohio by the same laborious method of travel. He married Dianna Ford, daughter of William Ford, by whom he had four children, viz: Seth, who married Macey Deming; Miles, who became a trader on the river; Laura, wife of A. Brooks, the first storekeeper at Watertown, and William G., who was born February 2, 1811. He married September 27, 1832, Sophia Shields, who was born in Virginia June 2, 1811. They had nine children: Laura, Caroline, Hial, William L., Sarah A., James, Giles, Dianna and Miles, only four of whom are still living, viz: Laura, wife of George Buchanan; James, Dianna, wife of Michael Ryan, of Belpre township, and Miles, who resides in Palmer township. William G. Woodford was in mercantile business in Watertown for several years. He was also engaged in milling.

Simon Starlin, with his wife and three sons, emigrated from Connecticut about the close of the Indian war, and moved upon donation lots they had drawn in Rainbow allotment, but after a short period the family constantly haunted by the presence of the Indians, determined to wait for more congenial times for commencing pioneer life. They all removed to Vienna, Virginia, except Marvel, the oldest son, who went to Marietta. In 1798 Marvel made an improvement on his lot in the northeast part of the township, and about two years later the other members of the family returned from Virginia, and settled in the same neighborhood.

The fall of 1796 brought to Ohio the first representative of the most numerous and prominent families in the township. A party consisting of Colonel Simeon Deming and family, Horace Wolcot, Ezekiel Deming and Dr. Hart, left Sandusfield, Massachusetts, in November, and JOHN MALSTER.

One of the first and perhaps the first improvement in the present territory of Palmer township was made by Christopher Malster, who came to Ohio in the summer of 1795, from Lycoming county, Pennsylvania. He was a native of Delaware, and had lived in Pennsylvania about two years. He drew a donation lot and purchased one, and during the first year of his residence in this county cleared and planted a part of his land. He also built a cabin with puncheon floors and doors. While living in Pennsylvania he married Margaret Mahaffy, who remained there until 1797, when taking her son William, then about two years old, on a horse, she joined a party of emigrants and came to her husband's home. They at that time had no neighbors nearer than three or four miles.

John Malster, a son of Christopher Malster, was born in Palmer township September 2, 1800. During his boyhood he labored on his father's farm part of the time and part of the time worked out by the day or month. He made his first trip south on a flat-boat in 1822. During his younger years he suffered the misfortune of losing his health in a manner not highly commendable to a German physician of that period. He had been troubled with rheumatism and laid his case before the quack doctor who prescribed "a dose heavy enough," as Mr. Malster expresses it, "to kill a calf." The prescription was: "Dissolve in a quart of whiskey one ounce of saltpetre and one ounce of gumnag; take a gill every morning before breakfast on an empty stomach." Mr. Malster followed the prescription, but has been a sufferer ever since in consequence.

Mr. Malster is one of the few men yet living who in his youth wore buckskin pantaloons. He tells some comical experiences in connection with this article of clothing of a by-gone generation. They were particularly hard to remove after being wet, and the boys at retiring time were compelled to give each other assistance. It was a happy way of keeping a bond of union in the family, for an unbrotherly brother could be easily punished for his offences by help being withheld, leaving him to remain in his trousers all night. It is easy to imagine the effects of putting on buckskin in a cold morning; many of the young men wore nothing else. A pair would last two winters. The common mode of cleaning was to rub them on the grindstone or with a piece of sandstone.

His poor health prevented him from engaging in the severe labor of the farm, and in 1828 he was given the contract for carrying the mail between Marietta and Lancaster for four years, for the sum of three hundred and ten dollars a year. He performed the contract for a year and a half, but his health being poor he sold out and sought relief at the mineral springs at Bedford, Pennsylvania. In 1831 he received treatment at Saratoga springs, New York. In 1834 he opened a store in Palmer township for Colonel Augustus Stone, of Harmar, for whom he did business four years. He afterwards clerked for Colonel Stone, Abijah Brooks, at Harmar, and Chapin & Fearing at Beverly.

In 1841 Mr. Malster purchased a farm in Palmer township and began raising and dealing in cattle. He says, "I could make more money by raising cattle than by cultivating grain, and do it easier." He kept on his farm facilities for weighing, and in consequence was able to make purchases and sales to the best advantage. In 1853 he took one hundred and ten head of cattle over the mountains and sold them in Pennsylvania. He showed his speculative turn on one occasion in Athens county. He purchased, of a man named Dew, eighty fat cattle, and in less than three hours sold them on the premises to a drover from Circleville at a handsome advance. In 1855 he took a trip south for his health, and visited Galveston, Texas, New Orleans, and Memphis, returning in 1856.

Mr. Malster possessed the ability to make money and the habits of life to save it. From the time of first starting out in life for himself, when, as he has entered in a memorandum, he "bought and raised wheat and made twenty-five barrels of flour, which I sold to Colonel A. Stone, in Harmar, for two dollars and fifty cents a barrel, and trusted him six months without interest. I have bought and sold wheat for twenty-eight cents a bushel, and oats for twelve and a half cents and hauled them to Harmar." He has made the following quaint memorandum of his real estate transactions: "I sold the first farm I bought in 1854 for thirteen hundred dollars more than I paid for it. The winter of 1859 I bought a farm of John Palmer; paid four thousand dollars; swapped farms with my brother, Thomas, and got eight hundred dollars 'to boot,' and then sold this farm for six thousand one hundred dollars to John Hague, who got with the farm about fifteen hundred dollars worth of stock, grain, and farming tools." He has dealt largely in real estate and in old age is a heavy tax-payer. He is interesting in conversation and cordial in manner. He never married, and for more than four years he has been living with his nephew, M. A. Malster.

after a few weeks hard travelling reached Symrill's ferry, where the party separated. Ezekiel Deming and Dr. Hart came on to Waterford, where they spent the winter. In February Colonel Deming started the other members of the party and the goods down the river on a flatboat. He then started overland with the stock. They reached their destination near the latter part of the mouth, and sought out the lands they had drawn in the Rainbow allotment of the donation tract. A cabin was erected, where they all lived until the opening of spring, when the work of clearing and planting was commenced. During the following season an epidemic of smallpox spread across the county, and the young men of the neighborhood made the Deming cabin a pest house. Ezekiel Deming, Joseph Wolcott, Asa Beach, William Woodford, Forest Meeker and probably some others, Horace Wolcott and his family, and Colonel Deming's family were all confined within this one cabin, where they were waited upon by a physician from Virginia.

The Demings and Wolcotts formed what was known as the Sandusfield settlement, so named from the place from which they emigrated. Ezekiel Deming cleared his land, and planted an orchard. He then returned to Massachusetts, where in September, 1799, he married Hannah Parke. He came back to the settlement the same fall. A family of the children blessed this union, viz: Lucinda (Bingham), Mercy (Woodford), Hiram, J. Harvey, Harley, Mary Ann, John T., R. J. Meigs, David Y. and Hannah. Mr. Deming was a Jeffersonian in politics, and served three terms as associate judge.

Colonel Simon Deming's family, at the time of his emigration to Ohio, consisted of his wife, whose maiden name was Lucy Wolcott, and four children—one son and three daughters. Honor, the oldest daughter, was married to Benjamin Hart, Betsy to Juda Ford, and Sally to L. J. Convers. David, the third child was born in Sandusfield, Massachusetts, April 25, 1793. He married, August 27, 1816, Anna Henry, who was born in Washington county, Pennsylvania. They had seven children—Mary W., William H., Horace W., Lucy A., Amanda E., Edwin A., and Martin L.—all dead except Mary W. and William H. William H. was born July 15, 1819. April 6, 1848 he married Matilda J. Hutchinson, who died May 10, 1849. May 29, 1854, he married Ellen E. Burch. She died September 10, 1859. Mr. Deming married Mary B. Parke, daughter of Robert B. Parke, November 6, 1851. She was born June 11, 1826. Mr. Deming's family consists of four children. After coming to Ohio six children were added to the family, of whom Joel of Warren township is the only surviving son, and Mrs. Lucy Ford, of Centre Belpre the only surviving daughter. Colonel Deming was a man of positive character and strong convictions. In politics he was a Federalist, in religion a Presbyterian.

The settlement was increased in 1798 by the arrival of the Wolcotts, the Woodruffs, and other families which have been prominent in the township ever since. Elias Wolcott was a single man when he came to the State, but soon after married Delinda Howe, who bore him a family of eight children—six boys and two girls. Horace, an older brother, came to Ohio with Colonel Deming the year previous. They both settled in the Sandusfield or eastern settlement. Horace, after a residence in the county of about fourteen years, moved with his family to Granville. Elias H., oldest son of Elias Wolcott, was born June 17, 1803. May 30, 1826, he married Loraina Starlin, a daughter of Marvel Starlin. She was born June 10, 1807. The fruit of this union was thirteen children, viz.: Lucien M., Vesta, Delinda, Orlow, Walter B., Peter H., Adeline H., Roscoe, Rosaltha, Fremont, Orinda, Lydia A., and one died in infancy, seven of whom are still living. Mrs. Wolcott died March 25, 1868. Mr. Wolcott lost his eyesight October 1, 1873. He lives with his son Roscoe, who was born June 17, 1842. He was married June 17, 1868, to Emma Bridge, of Waterford township, who was born November 19, 1846. Their family consists of two children—Anna L. and Brooks. Mr. Wolcott, when a young man, was a teacher of vocal music.

Abner Woodruff emigrated from New Jersey with his family and first settled in the "Sandusfield" neighborhood, but soon moved to the south part of the township, in the valley of Wolf creek, where he made the first improvement about 1800. He was born in 1766, in New Jersey, where he married Catharine Roll. He died in Barlow township in 1836. His wife survived him two years. They had six children: Abner, Isaac, Polly, Elias, Nancy, and Hannah. Abner was born in Watertown in 1801. He married Miss Pilcher in 1838, by whom he had two children—Emily and Amanda, the latter of whom survives. Mr. Woodruff resides in Belpre. Elias, the fourth child of Abner Woodruff, settled in the south part of the township. He married Hannah McGuire, by whom he had eight children, viz: Jacob R., Sarah A., Oren J., Emeline, Henry C., Betsy J., Hannah C., and Eunice, four of whom are still living. Sarah was married first to Ragita Kalvini, and after his death to Weir Browning, who was born in England. The fruit of this marriage, which occurred in November, 1853, was two children—Francis M., and Victor. She had by her first husband two children—Thea and Adelpha. Emeline, the fourth child of Elias Woodruff, was born January 27, 1826. She was married first to Columbus D. Barkley; after his death to William Brown, January 4, 1878. By her first husband she had eight children: Cecil, Eugene H., Earnest, Minerva M., Eva V., Mary C., Arthur D., and one who died in infancy.

Jasen Humiston settled in this township about 1798. He was born in 1768, at Wellington, Connecticut, from which State he emigrated to Ohio in 1796, and remained for a period at Marietta, and then, with his wife and family, moved to Watertown. Mr. Humiston's first wife, whose maiden name was Anna Peek, died in 1809, in her thirty-eighth year. There were six children, four of whom are living: Lyndes, in Adams township; Sally (Chandler), in Minnesota; Julania (Chandler), in Brooklyn, New York; Lavinia McClure, in Dunham township. By his second wife, Margaret McNeal, Mr. Humiston had six children. Lines lived for a time in the north part of the township, then moved to Illinois; Henry lives in Chicago. Lyedes, son of Jason Humiston, was born in this county in 1797, and was eighteen months old when his father removed to Watertown. April 6, 1820, he married Betsy Starlin, and two years later he removed to Adams township. Their family consisted of seven children, four of whom survive, viz: Hiram, Eliza, Sally, and Miles. The youngest son, Miles, was born November 28, 1840. He married September 6, 1866, Emeline Beebe, daughter of George W. Beebe, of Watertown township, born October 24, 1847. They have one child—David M.

John Lafin, a native of Vermont, emigrated to Ohio in 1800, and after remaining in Adams township one year settled in this township, where he remained until the time of his death, in December, 1852. He married Abigail Richards, by whom he had four children: Kyman, Harley, Huldah, and Tuman R. Harley and Tuman are the only members of the family yet living. Tuman, the youngest child, was born November 11, 1818. He married Susan E. Leely, who was born in West Chester county, New York, August 10, 1826. Her father, William G. Leely came to Waterford in 1839, and remained there two years, when he settled in Watertown. Susan E. was born August 10, 1826, and married August 12, 1849. She gave birth to four children, viz: Flora E., Albretta M., James H., and Lorin, who died May 30, 1862. Mrs. Lafin is a member of the Universalist church. Mr. Lafin has served his township as trustee four terms.

Abijah Beebe permanently settled in Watertown in 1810. He emigrated with his family from Connecticut and remained in Marietta township about ten years before coming to this township. He died in 1853, after having had a family of twelve children. Thomas, the third child, was born June 19, 1804. He married, March 10, 1840, Kate Skipton, who was born in Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, April 27, 1809. Eleven children blessed this union: Mary A., wife of Conrad Bohl; George W., died December 14, 1852; Harriet, wife of William Myers; Jeremiah, married Martha Myers; Richard, married Christina Brabham; Franklin, married Ella Coaler; Sarah, married Joseph Newton; Joliana, married Jacob Stuber; Maria D., died October 4, 1852; Sattie, married James R. Powers; Prentiss, married Margaret Baker, died October 15, 1878. All the children living reside in Watertown.

John Johnson emigrated from Pennsylvania and settled in this township in the summer of 1817. In 1814 he married Mary Wilson; she died December 15, 1872, leaving one son, Isaac, who was born in Chemung county, New York, November 5, 1816. December 5, 1838, he married Laura A. Stanton, who was born in Connecticut, June 16, 1815. They have had six children, viz: Willis H., Winchester B., Josephine, Wealthy V., Mary I., Sarah L., and Emma J.; all living except Winchester B. Mrs. Johnson died February 14, 1862. Mr. Johnson has been assessor of Watertown township since 1862.

Seth Humphrey emigrated from Connecticut to Ohio and settled on Wolf creek, near the centre of the township, in 1817, where he died in 1837. He was the father of five children, four boys and one girl. Joseph L., the oldest child, was born in Litchfield, Connecticut, September 12, 1805. He came to this township with his father's family, and October 17, 1842, married Elmira Muchler. Their family consisted of three children: Laura A., Elisha O., and Edward M. Elisha O. married Elmira Jennings, Edward M. married Jelpa Skipton, both reside in Watertown township.

Joseph Arnold, a native of Rhode Island, emigrated to Ohio with his father, and settled in Watertown township in 1817. He was married in Rhode Island about 1803 to Mary Steer, by whom he had seven children, five boys and two girls. Mr. Arnold died August 21, 1868. Benjamin W., the sixth child, was born December 4, 1814, being three years old when his father came to Ohio. He was married October 7, 1846 to Sarah Parke, the fruit of this marriage was six children—Joseph P., Alice C., William C., Eunice, Myra, and Mary; Eunice and Myra are dead. Mrs. Arnold died June 8, 1862. December 2, 1862, Mr. Arnold married Mrs. Rosanna Jennings, widow of Daniel Jennings, and daughter of Peter Stotlar. She was born in Washington county, October 23, 1828. Mrs. Arnold had three children by her first husband—Mary J., Almira and Henry, all living. Mr. Arnold is a member of the Presbyterian church, Mrs. Arnold of the Methodist church.

Levi Brewster settled in Watertown township in 1818. He was born in Norwich, Connecticut, in 1789, and came to Ohio from New York state. In 1820 he married Lydia Waterman, who was born in New York in 1792, and died in 1864. They had two children, Richard and Sherman. Mr. Brewster died in Union county, Ohio, in 1873. Richard, born in 1820, married Annie Bachelor, by whom he had three children. His first wife died in 1859, and in 1861 he married Sarah E. Knowles, by whom he has had three children. He is a large land owner and resides in Belpre township.

Deacon Dennis Adams was born in Whitehall, New York, in 1792. In 1809 he removed with his father's family to Pennsylvania, and in 1813 to this county. He remained here about a year, then returned to Pennsylvania and married Miss Jane Patterson. In 1818 he returned to this county with his family, and settled in Watertown township, where he lived until 1837, when he sold his property and moved to Marietta. Here he spent the remainder of his life, his death occurring in April, 1873, in his eighty-first year. His wife died in 1851, in her forty-second year. They had a family of two sons and three daughters, all of whom are deceased, except one son, D. P. Adams, a machinist of Marietta.

William Quinby, third child of Daniel and Martha Quinby was born in New York, November 20, 1822. He emigrated to Ohio with his father, and remained in Marietta township one year, after which he settled in Watertown, April 16, 1846; he married Finatta Parke, by whom he had six children, viz: William W., Lewis C., Martha E., Lucy E., Harley P. William W., Martha E., and Lucy E. are still living. Mrs. Quinby died November 18, 1870. Mr. Quinby was married subsequently to Mrs. Martha Jones, widow of George Jones and daughter of John Meloney, who was born July 17, 1834.

They were married August 20, 1879. Mrs. Quinby had by her first husband six children, but one of whom is living—Samuel, William W. Quinby married Philipena Steeber; Martha married Frank Clinger. Both are residents of Watertown.

John Morris settled in this township in 1829. He was born in Loudoun county, Virginia, January 17, 1797. He first emigrated to Belmont county, Ohio, where he remained until he permanently settled in Watertown. He was married November 22, 1827, to Delilah Biggins, daughter of John Biggins of this township. She was born January 22, 1805. The fruit of this union was eight children, viz: William, Minerva, John, Nancy, Temer, Elwood, Eliza and Harvey, four of whom are still living—John, Nancy, Temer, and Harvey.

Prominent among the Scotch emigrants to this county, is Edward Breckenridge, who was born in Argyshire, June 25, 1803. He emigrated to America and settled in Watertown township in the fall of 1830. He married in February, 1832, Jane Fleming, who was born in Argyshire April 23, 1806. They have have had nine children, viz: Andrew, John, William, Edward, James F., Agnes, Jane C., Mary, and Elizabeth, of whom six are living—Andrew, William, Edward, Agnes, Jane C., and Mary. Mrs. Breckenridge died December 16, 1865. Edward, jr., is married to Nancy Greenlees. William, the third child of Edward Breckenridge, sr., was born March 24, 1835. He was married April 20, 1866, to Ermina L. Deming, daughter of Daniel and Lois Deming, born March 30, 1840. Their family consists of three children—Daniel D., James E., and William K. Mr. Breckenridge will be remembered as one of the old school-teachers of the township, having taught fifteen winters. Mrs. Breckenridge was also an experienced teacher, having taught from the time she was fourteen until she was married, in 1866.

Conrad Bohl was one of the earliest of the German emigrants to this township. He came to America in July, 1834, and settled in the eastern part of the township, and lived there until his death, which occurred June 6, 1873. He was married to Margaret Smith in 1813, by whom he had six children, viz: Elizabeth, Nicholas, Barbara, Philip, Conrad, and John. The last named was born in Bavaria, October 21, 1828. He married April 15, 1851, Mrs. Elizabeth Manche, widow of Michael Manche, and daughter of Nicholas Willis. The fruit of this marriage was four children—Mary, Elizabeth, Jacob, and John. Mary, wife of Dr. Lintner, resides in Kansas; Elizabeth, wife of Dr. J. A. Reynolds, resides in Minnesota. Conrad, jr., fifth son of Conrad Bohl, was born in Bavaria March 4, 1826. He came to America with his father in 1834, and has been in mercantile business in Watertown village since 1861. He was married August 27, 1847, to Mary A. Beebe, daughter of Thomas Beebe. She was born January 30, 1830, in Watertown. They have had seven children, viz: William H., George B., Lewis W., Emily, Edward B., Benjamin W., and Ernest L., all living except Emily, who died in November, 1873. Mr. Bohl was postmaster from 1861 till 1873.

Levi A. Newbanks, third child of Archibald Newbanks, is one of the substantial farmers of this township. He was born April 27, 1834, and has been a resident of the township all his life, except about five years which were spent in Grant county, Wisconsin. He was married February 6, 1854, to Caroline Walbridge, daughter of Ira and Cynthia Walbridge, who was born in Palmer township, February 18, 1835. The fruit of this union was three children—Joseph J., George A., and Elza. Mr. and Mrs. Newbanks are both members of the Presbyterian church.

Otis Nixon, a native of Massachusetts, emigrated to Ohio and settled in Gallia county in 1818. In 1825 he removed to New York, where he lived till 1832, when he came to Washington county and settled in Waterford township. In 1834 he removed to Watertown, where he died March 11, 1877. His family consisted of five boys and four girls. George H. Nixon was born in Herkimer county, New York, April 7, 1828. He came to Watertown township with his father, Otis Nixon, and married October 28, 1851, Adaline Smith, who was born in Fairfield township, August 22, 1831. They have seven children—Charles T., Mary E., Emma C., George D., William W., and two that died in infancy. Mary E., Emma C., and George D. are also dead. William W. is still at home. Charles T. married Miss Dena Benning, and resides in this township. Albert Nixon, fifth child of Otis Nixon was born in New York February 9, 1830. He came with his father's family to Ohio, and February 12, 1856, married Eleanor Morris, who was born in Tuscarawas county, Ohio, May 28, 1833. Three children blessed this union—Frederick L., Francis M., and Mary L. Frederick L. is dead. Mr. Nixon is a carpenter, and works at that trade; he is also engaged in farming.

Philip Schilling settled in Washington county in 1837. His son, John, was born in 1838, and married Elizabeth Snyder, who was born in 1844. In 1865 John Schilling settled in the territory in Union township now included in Watertown. Mr. and Mrs. Schilling have one child—William. Mr. Schilling enlisted in 1861 in company F, Ohio volunteer infantry, and was a faithful soldier. He has a fine farm of one hundred acres of land. At one time he was township treasurer, holding that office seven years.

James McDermott, one of the earlier settlers of Washington county, became a resident of Union township in 1840, in that part of the township now embraced in Waterertown township. He is still living. He married Margaret Dyar, by whom he has four children, viz: Philip, Ella, Jane, and Thomas; the latter was born in 1845. He owns a farm of eighty acres which he has reclaimed from the native forest. He and his family are faithful members of the Roman Catholic church.

About 1847 Jeffrey Buchannan became a resident of this township. He emigrated from New York to Ohio in 1813 and settled in Marietta, where he remained about eight years. He removed to Athens county where he lived five years and then moved to Morgan county and remained there twenty-one years. He died in this township July 12, 1876. His wife, whose maiden name was Rachel Prouty, survived him three years. Their descendants are nine children, forty-six grandchildren, and seventeen great-grandchildren. Mr. Buchannan's private life was highly commendable. Walter, the second child, was born in Muskingum township December 15, 1821. He married Mary A. Malster, who was born in Palmer township August 29, 1832. They were married November 5, 1850. Their family consists of five children, viz: Sarah A., Vesta A., Delia A., Emma D., and John M. Sarah A. is married to Clarence C. Smith, who resides in Wesley township. Vesta A. is the wife of James Wells and resides in West Virginia.

David Henry, fourth child of David Henry, sr., was born in Watertown township April 30, 1849. He has been a resident of the township all his life, except about one year during which he lived in Palmer township. He was married December 23, 1869, to Susan, daughter of Thomas G. Graham. The fruit of this marriage was one child—Susan. Mr. Henry was married the second time April 3, 1873, to Mrs. Emily Woodford, widow of William L. Woodford and daughter of Harley L. Deming. She was born October 14, 1838. They have had three children—David, Emily, and Florence, who is dead. Mrs. Henry is a member of the Universalist church.

Bilgud Curtis, with his wife and family, emigrated from Massachusetts to Athens county, Ohio, in 1826, and remained there until 1850 when they became residents of this township. Mr. Curtis died July 11, 1866, at the age of ninety years and eight months. He had eight children, six boys and two girls. Lois, the fifth child, was born October 26, 1813. She was married to Daniel Deming April 20, 1834, by whom she had six children. She was again married in 1874 to William Powers, of Waterford township.

Edward H. Corner, son of George Corner, one of the oldest settlers of Morgan county, was born April 14, 1814. He settled in Watertown township with his family in 1852, and has since been one of the prominent occupants of the valley of the west branch of Wolf creek. He married, December 6, 1843, Hannah Thornton, daughter of Henry Thornton. She was born in Wood county, West Virginia, in 1820. This union was blessed with fourteen children, seven boys and seven girls, only seven of whom are living, viz: Isabella, William, Willard, John, Jane, Matthew, and Nancy.

Joseph Wynn was born in Dauphin county, Pennsylvania. In 1814 he married Sarah Yocum, of Lebanon county, Pennsylvania. He emigrated to Ohio with his family in 1853, and settled in Watertown township, where he lived till the time of his death which occurred in 1874. His family consisted of eleven children, seven boys and four girls. Joseph D., the seventh child, December 8, 1864, married Mary A. Anderson, who was born in Pennsylvania, May 2, 1840. They had ten children, eight boys and two girls, all of whom are living except one girl. By trade Mr. Wynn is a blacksmith. He also cultivates a good farm.

Henry Jorres was born in Prussia, Germany, July 31, 1818; emigrated to America and settled in Pittsburgh in 1848. He remained there about eighteen months, when he came to this county and settled in Watertown township. He was married, in the month of September, 1845, to Anna T. Struif, a native of Germany. He is by trade a moulder, and has worked at the trade some thirty years.

John Layner, a native of Ireland, emigrated from New Jersey in 1854, and settled on lot three hundred and ninety—then in that part of Watertown township formerly in Union. In 1873 he removed to Kansas. He had five children by his first wife, and seven by his second wife, Margaret Lightfritz. Austen, of the second family, was born in 1851, and married Sarah Hagerman, born in 1855. They have one child. Mr. Layner has a farm of forty acres.

Burr W. Power, fourth child of Robert and Amanda Burr was born in Loudoun county, Virginia, December 26, 1836. He came to Ohio and remained for a short time in the territory formerly included in Union township. In the spring of 1863 he became a resident of Watertown. He married, March 27, 1862, Mary T. Sullivan, who was born in Virginia, April 29, 1841. Ten children blessed this union, viz: Estella G., Hattie P., Joseph and Mary (twins), Edith B., Charles G., Lillie F., Elliander M., John L., and Anna B., all living except Joseph and Mary. Mr. and Mrs. Power both are members of the Baptist church. Mr. Power is a minister of that denomination.

Frank Henker, one of the most prominent of the German settlers of this township, was born in Germany, March 24, 1838. He emigrated to America and settled in Watertown in 1867. He married, February 25, 1868, Christina Rowe. She died March 19, 1871. He was married again August 3, 1871, to Cila Straller, who was born in Germany March 19, 1852. The fruit of this union was five children: Frank, Henry, Katie, Jessie, and Mary, all at home. Mr. and Mrs. Henker are both members of the Catholic church.

Matthew Jurden was born in Aix-la-Chapelle, Prussia. He afterwards emigrated to Pennsylvania, whence in 1865 he came to Ohio, and settled in this county, in that part of Union township now embraced in Watertown. He was elected township clerk in 1869, served for six years as justice of the peace, and since 1875 has been postmaster at Churchtown. His wife, Catharine De Temple, was born in France in 1832. To them have been born eleven children, all of whom are living. Mr. Jurden has a beautiful upland farm of two hundred acres of land, most of which he cleared by his own labor. He is also proprietor of an extensive vineyard.

In 1869 William Sharp, born in Belmont county, Ohio, March 10, 1815, moved with his family to Washington county, and settled in Watertown township, April 1, 1846. Mr. Sharp married Martha McPherson, daughter of Eleander McPherson, of Morgan county. She was born January 7, 1822, in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania. Mr. and Mrs. Sharp lived in Barlow township from about 1849 till 1869. Mr. Sharp died May 3, 1876, leaving a family of ten children—Joseph, Nancy J., Sarah R., Letitia C., Catharine, Reese, Mary R., Martha E., Jefferson D. and George Q., all living in this county except Cath-

WILLIAM G. WOODFORD.

WILLIAM G. WOODFORD AND WIFE.

The subject of this sketch was born in Watertown township, February 2, 1811. His father, William Woodford, was a native of Connecticut, from which State he emigrated in 1797, in company with the family of William Ford, whose daughter, Dianna, he subsequently married. Mr. Woodford first settled in the northern part of the township, but finally made permanent settlement near the site of the present village. His family consisted of four children: Seth, Miles, Laura, and William G. Seth was a business man in Watertown, and also a farmer. He served in the legislature two terms, and died in his native township. Miles engaged in the southern produce trade. He died in Cincinnati. Laura was married to Abijah Brooks, a merchant at Watertown, afterwards at Waterford, Harmar, and in the south, where he died. She is living in Cincinnati. William G., the youngest son, remained with his father until he was twenty-one years old. He attended the district school, which stood on the present site of Dunbar's store. This was at a period when school-houses were made of logs, with undressed puncheons for seats and desks. When he was eighteen years old he made two trips to Baltimore for his brother Miles, with cattle, on foot. This was not an easy task, as the course lay through large tracts of woodland, and over the mountains, which were covered with green-briers. The following year he made a similar trip for his brother Seth. At the age of twenty-one he began life for himself. He bought a small farm adjoining the village and engaged in trade in the stand formerly occupied by his father. He had been trained to severe toil and now had a double incentive to activity. He continued trade for about two years and during the same time started the first carding machine in the township. At the end of that time he took advantage of a favorable opportunity and made a trade of his farm and carding machine for the Burchet farm, west of the village, with a financial result which encouraged him to continue in the real estate business. His next move was to sell this farm and buy the Patton farm, situated just across the creek from the village, which then belonged to John Paine. While living here he again engaged in the grocery and produce trade and at a later period, in partnership with Dennis Ryan, went into merchandising, where Dunbar is now located. About a year and a-half later, Mr. Woodford bought the Watertown mills, consisting of a grist-mill, saw-mill, and an oil mill. He pushed business here with characteristic energy for about three years, when he traded for a farm in Palmer township. This is said to have been the best farm in the township. He now devoted himself to accumulating land and trading farms. He at different periods owned several farms in Watertown, Belpre, and Warren townships, also six hundred and forty acres in Indiana, half of which he retains, and one-third interest in a ten thousand acre tract in Illinois. During this period he has dealt largely in stock, produce, and wool. No man in the township has handled more money or property of different kinds than Grove Woodford. He knows everybody and is known by everybody in the community. During his whole life his fortune grew steadily, until in 1875 he met a serious reverse. He then suffered a loss of twenty-five thousand dollars by having gone security for another, a loss which he met out of his hard-earned savings.

MRS. WILLIAM G. WOODFORD.

Mr. Woodford, in the spring of 1881, in partnership with his son, opened a store in Watertown for general trade. His friends were pleased to again greet him in a place, where they had so long and favorably known him—behind the counter.

In the Watertown cemetery is a large and handsomely built stone vault which bears the inscription over the front entrance: "William Woodford's family vault, 1853." It was built by the combined contributions of the father and sons, and on the lids to its occupied cells are found the following inscriptions: "William Woodford died August 3, 1858, aged 83 years, 11 months and 14 days." "Seth Woodford died April 4, 1860, aged 59 years, 6 months and 1 day." "Mercy, wife of Seth Woodford, died March 19, 1871, aged 69 years, 5 months and 8 days." "Miles Woodford died January 26, 1855, in the 51st year of his age." "Mary, wife of Miles Woodford, died August 22, 1854, in the 28th year of her age."

William G. Woodford married September 27, 1832, Sophia Shields, who was born in Virginia June 2, 1811. She was the daughter of David and Sarah Loyd Shields, who emigrated from Virginia, and settled in Watertown township about 1818. Their family consisted of twelve children, of whom Sophia was the sixth.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodford have had nine children: Laura was born June 23, 1833, is married to George Buchannan, and lives in Watertown township; Caroline was born June 6, 1835, and died at the age of seven years and ten days; Hial was born January 5, 1837, and died November 7, 1842; William S. was born August 4, 1839, married Emily Deming, died April 16, 1872, leaving five children—William G., James H., Minnie, Mary and Annie; Sarah Ann was born December 5, 1841, and was married to Juda Ford, who owned a large tannery at Watertown, and then moved to Kansas, where they died in 1878 within a period of three days, leaving two children: Adaline and Douglas Ammon; James K. P. was born September 23, 1844, and is in business in Watertown; Giles his twin brother, died October 3, 1844; Dianna Amanda was born August 8, 1846, married first Thomas Ryan, who died in Watertown, married for her second husband, Michael Ryan, lives in Belpre, and has two children—James Dennis and Delia May; Miles was born August 29, 1849, married Amelia Martin, lives in Palmer township, and has two children—Carrie Belle and Ottie Sophia.

Mr. Woodford, although he has met reverses, still has a large competence, and old age does not seem to have affected his business sagacity. His standing has always been honorable. In politics he stands alone in his family, always having been a warm Democrat. He has never sought office, but has frequently been honored with local trusts.

arine, who resides in Illinois; Reese, in Missouri; and Mary in West Virginia.

Father E. L. Fladung, who was born in Prussia, in 1847, emigrated to this country, and is now the pastor of St John's Catholic church, which is located in that part of Union township which is now included in Watertown township. He has been the pastor of the church for the last eight years.

James K. is the seventh of a family of eleven children of Noah Smith, of Newport township. He was born in Jefferson county, September 15, 1821. He came to Washington county with his father, and settled in Newport in 1848, where he remained until 1874, when he came to this township. He was married April 7, 1850, to Rosannah Petty, who was born in Newport township, September 22, 1829. Twelve children blessed this union, viz.: Jeanette A., Mary L., Maria V., Presly H., Edward M., John W., Oliver R., Edith M., Joseph L., James W., William M. and Adda C., all living. Jeanette is married to William H. McCowan, of Watertown. The other members of the family are still at home.

Jacob Hall, oldest child of James Hall, was born in the part of Noble county formerly belonging to Washington, September 1, 1837. He lived in Marietta from 1861 to 1863. He removed to Wheeling, but in less than a year returned to Marietta township, where he remained till 1874, when he settled in Watertown. August 1, 1858, he married Elizabeth Birchall, who was born in Noble county, September 6, 1838. They had five children: Anna E., Alice M., Mary J., Ele B. and one deceased. Alice is also dead. Mr. Hall, although one of the more recent settlers of the township, is regarded as a leading citizen.

James R. Sheldon was born in Noble county, Ohio, August 13, 1840. He removed with his family to Watertown township in 1874. He married, April 18, 1861, Mary Haynes, by whom he had three children, two of whom are living. Mrs. Haynes died October 17, 1869. April 24, 1872, he married Elizabeth Yarnall, who was born December 9, 1845. This union was blessed with three children. Mrs. Sheldon, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Way, was bereaved of her first husband January 13, 1870. Mr. Sheldon served in company A, One Hundred and Sixty-first Ohio volunteer infantry during the Rebellion. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon are members of the Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Mary E. Blakeley, daughter of William Sheldon, was born in Noble county, Ohio, December 5, 1835. She was married to Edward Blakeley, July 28, 1859. He was born in England, August 3, 1836, and emigrated with his father, John Blakeley, to America, in 1843. Mr. Blakeley died in Noble county, leaving two children—John A. and Mary A., who were born October 18, 1867. Mrs. Blakeley settled with her family in Watertown township, in 1878. She is a member of the United Brethren church.

It will be seen from this general synopsis of the settlement of the township that the first improvements were made at the forks of Wolf creek. The bottoms along the South branch as far as the donation line were next occupied. The English emigrants chose the valley of the West branch. The first settlement at the headwaters of Rainbow was made by the Sandusfield, Massachusetts, party in 1797. The Starlins and a few others were the only early settlers north of this neighborhood.

The German emigration began in 1835, Conrad Bohl being one of the first. The population of the northern part of the territory formerly included in Union, is largely German. It remained unimproved till as late as 1840. The southern part of this portion of the township is inhabited by people of Irish nativity, who settled in 1842-4. They were mostly engaged as laborers on the Muskingum river improvements, and then invested their earnings in the adjacent lands which at that time could be purchased at low rates. They are an industrious, hard-working class of people, and have done much towards improving the county.

EARLY SCHOOLS.

Watertown enjoyed school privileges very early in her history. A school was taught during the winter of 1799, in the Sandusfield neighborhood, by Nathaniel Gates. He was a popular teacher and pupils attended from the creek settlements. The closing exercises of Mr. Gates' school were attended by the parents, who manifested a live interest in the education of their children. Good teachers were, however, at that period very scarce. Teachers, as a rule, had no training, and it seems little sense. The unsparing use of the rod made the school-room a place of persecution, and the murder of the king's English was lamentable. The girls were taught reading and writing, while arithmetic was added to the course of study for the boys. Webster's spelling book and the Bible were the only text books used at first; in later years the American Preceptor and Columbian Orator came into use. Miss Peck, Colonel Augustus Stone, Judge Deming, Jason Humiston, and Horace Wolcott, were among the early teachers in the Sandusfield district. Another early school-house was in the West Branch neighborhood. Some old citizens retain vivid recollections of whippings received in this building. Smith Green is one of the best remembered teachers. Another early school-house was located in the Starlin neighborhood. Mr. McGehan was one of the first teachers. The building was also used as a meeting-house, by the settlers of all denominations in that neighborhood, but chiefly by the Methodists.

MILLS.

Wolf creek furnishes good water power except during dry seasons. At many places along its course a rapid current and high banks provide excellent mill sites, but periodical low water is a discouraging circumstance.

We have already mentioned the old Wolf creek mill owned by Captain Dodge, Colonel Oliver and Major White. After Indian hostilities had subsided this mill was found too small to meet the demands of the flourishing settlement, and a frame mill was constructed just above the old building, which, after the death of Major White, was in charge of his son, Peletiah White. This structure was swept away by high water, and a third and larger one built near the same site which was in after years owned and run by Haffield White, jr., grandson of the major. The foundations of these buildings are yet to be seen, and many interested persons have procured pieces of the decaying timbers and are preserving them as relics.

Solomon Lewis, a son-in-law of Mr. White, built the second mill in the township. It was located on the south branch near the forks. This was also a combination of saw-mill and grist-mill. It next came into possession of a Mr. Bartlett, and was owned by him when destroyed by fire.

The mill now known as the Ryan mill, on the south branch, about two miles below the village, was built about 1830 by William and Samuel Beswick.

The Watertown mill was built by John Paine, about 1825. He came with a party from Rhode Island on their way to one of the western States, but was delayed in this township by high water, there being at that time no bridges. While stopping with the hospitable people of the neighborhood the party were strongly impressed with the country, and after sending one of the party to examine the locality to which it had been their intention to go, they purchased lands and settled in this township. Samuel Paine, who was a miller, commenced operations for the construction of this mill. It was afterwards owned by Dennis Ryan.

EARLY INCIDENTS AND CUSTOMS.

A meagre light is thrown upon the character of the brave and prudent women of the early settlement by an incident which occurred at Wolf Creek mills shortly after peace with the Indians, but while straggling natives were yet frequent visitors at the cabins of the settlers. An Indian in a state of intoxication came to the mills and was roughly treated by a miller named Fry. He showed signs of anger, and indicated a purpose to have revenge. Mrs. Oliver, who understood Indian character, gained his attention at this point and induced him to engage in a game of quoits with herself and two other women. He finally left the settlement in the best of humor, and no occasion for anxiety remained behind.

A meeting in Wolf Creek chapel is humorously described by an old resident. Rev. Mr. Mitchell, the ardent evangelist, had just concluded a stirring sermon to a packed audience. One of the good, old-fashioned choruses was started, and everybody joined in. The singing grew louder and more enthusiastic until the more emotional of the members broke forth in a general shout of joy, which provoked a shout of fun among the wicked boys in the back corners. A general confusion, which lasted till all were exhausted, ensued. Children cried, boys sang, women shouted, and men prayed.

It was in this same chapel upon another occasion, while the meeting was in progress, a wind and hail storm set in, which struck terror in the congregation. Heavy trees were falling, lightning was striking in every direction, and large hail stones thundered on the roof. The preacher was unmoved by all these demonstrations of nature, but in a happy manner turned them to his own advantage by exclaiming "Oh, Lord, you strike outside while I strike inside." One old lady thought it was safer out, and was detained only by main force.

CEMETERIES.

There are in this township nine cemeteries. "Three of them are owned by churches; the remaining six are controlled by the township and private individuals.

The oldest one in the township is located on the Waterman farm, near the place of the second settlement. This is the burial lot of the oldest families in the township—the Watermans, Fords, Harts, Curtises, Humphries, Beaches, Rodgers, and others.

At the death of Simon Starlin a burying lot was fenced off on his farm. Here are interred representatives of the Starlin, Ezekial Deming, Parke, and Beebe families.

Horace Wolcott, at the death of his child, set apart a lot on his farm for burial purposes. The Wolcott family, Simeon Deming family, the Humiston family, the Green family, and the Henry family have used this cemetery.

The cemetery near the west branch was formerly the churchyard of Wolf Creek chapel, long since torn down. The land was given by George Corner. Most of the members of the English colony, mentioned in the settlement, are buried here.

The Woodruff cemetery in the south part of the township is the burial place of the family whose name it bears.

The cemetery at Watertown village was set apart by Seth Woodford at the death of Miss Caroline Woodford. The location is exceptionally fine. It is now used more than any other cemetery in the township.

The Catholic cemetery near the brick church in the eastern part of the township, set apart from the McDermott farm at the death of James McDermott, in March, 1846. It now belongs to St. John's church.

Eva Merae churchyard was laid out at the building of that church in 1866.

St. John's Lutheran churchyard was laid out in 1855.

POST OFFICES AND WATERTOWN.

The village of Watertown is at the intersection of the two oldest roads running through the township—the Marietta and Lancaster, and county road leading from Waterford. The first store was opened in 1828 by Abijah Brooks, who was also the first postmaster. The succeeding postmasters have been: William Woodford, Miles Woodford, Michael Ryan, Conrad Bohl, Prudie Woodruff, and Nicholas Wiles.

The first tavern was kept by a Mr. Carlton, who lived on the Lancaster road a short distance from the present town. Burris Cruson opened the first house of entertainment in the village of Watertown. John Keil and Lewis Thornbery will be remembered by travellers of a later period. Watertown is now a town of about thirty families, having three churches, Universalist, Methodist, and Presbyterian; a mill, a school, two stores, one opened by Conrad Bohl in 1861, the other by James T. Duncan in 1867, and both doing a large business; and other village conveniences.

Churchtown post office, at the Catholic church in the eastern part of the township, was established in February, 1875, with M. Jurden, the present incumbent, in charge.

Carding and fulling was at one time carried on in this village by Miles Woodford. Wolf creek does not furnish sufficient water power for carrying on this industry extensively, and consequently, after the building up of large establishments at other places, these smaller concerns were abandoned.

W. G. Woodford engaged in the manufacture of flaxseed oil. For a few years his business was quite profitable.

The tanning business, begun by Jude Ford, was the most extensive industry ever carried on in the township. At one time fifteen men were regularly employed.

PHYSICIANS.

Watertown for a long time was dependent entirely upon her neighbors for medical service in cases of sickness. Dr. Baker, Dr. Dergy, and Dr. Pardee, were called from Waterford during the early years of the settlement, and later Dr. Seymour, of Waterford, and Dr. Hildreth, of Marietta, were the medical counselors. Dr. Regnier, the Duck Creek physician, also had a good practice in this township, and at a later period the Bowers, of Waterford. Dr. Seth Hart opened the first office in the township, and had a complimentary practice. Dr. Curtis had an office in the township, and enjoyed a full practice until his death. Dr. Cottle, Dr. Ross, and Dr. Howell, were among the more recent practitioners. Several have opened offices, but their residence was too short to merit notice in this connection.

Dr. Bohl, the only physician in the township at this writing, has had a large practice since 1852, when he first placed himself before the public. Of late years he has had more calls than he has been able to give attention to.

THE GRANGE.

Watertown grange was organized in 1874 with sixty members. The first officers were: Wallace Wolcott, master; H. McGrew, overseer; Roscoe Wolcott, secretary. The society had a hall in Watertown, and during the first four years created considerable interest. Meetings were discontinued in April, 1879, owing to a general indifference on part of the members, which began as soon as the enthusiasm, naturally inspired by novelty, had died out.

RELIGIOUS WORSHIP—METHODISTS.

In the early period of the settlement of Washington county, the Methodists made it a special object to establish their form of worship in the rural districts. Peter Cartwright said: "The towns were given to Deism, Spiritualism and Calvinism." Methodist circuit riders were the only preachers who visited the sparse settlements. They did an effectual and good work.

A meeting-house, forty feet square, was built about 1802, on the west branch, known as Wolf Creek chapel. A frame church was afterwards built near the site of the first church. Services have long since been abandoned here, and the house removed.

The "First Methodist Society of Wooster" was incorporated in June, 1819. The trustees were Samuel Mellor, Samuel Mellor, jr., Seth Green, and Duty Green.

A Methodist church was built on the North Marietta road, in the part of the township formerly included in Union in 1830. The house was rented to the Lutherans at the organization of that body.

Salem church was built in 1871. The class had been organized long previously.

Watertown church was organized in 1860. The following were the members of the class: B. N. Sparks, S. Ryland, J. P. Culver, Ezra Michner, Sarah Michner, Martha Flower, Joseph Yarnell and Roena Ford. Meetings were held in a school-house for a time. Satisfactory arrangements were then made with the Presbyterians, by which the use of their house at Watertown was secured.

The churches of Watertown have been connected with Barlow circuit since its establishment, previous to that time Marietta preachers supplied these churches.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Many of the prominent early families of Watertown township were Presbyterians, and when the society at Waterford was formed, connected themselves with that body. The charge was very early divided into two preaching stations, the services for the southern part of the district being held in the open air and in residences and barns. William Ford's barn on Wolf creek was very frequently used for this purpose. Measures were taken in 1821 for the building of a house of worship. Due notice having been given, a meeting of a sufficient number of inhabitants of the township was held at the house of Benjamin Hart, November 17, 1821, for the purpose of forming a religious society. As a result of this meeting the First Presbyterian society of Wooster was incorporated November 20, 1821. Simeon Deming, William Woodford, and Benjamin Hart, are named in the record of incorporation, as trustees. A church organization separate from the church at Waterford was not formed till ten years afterward. This society was merely a business auxilliary; the conditions of membership were monetary. A meeting-house was built opposite the bend of the creek, two miles below Watertown. This house was built on the New England plan, being a combination of sanctuary and township house for election and other purposes. A school was also accommodated in one of the rooms.

Here, as at Waterford, vocal music was made a special feature of the church service. The choir was led by Colonel Simeon Deming, and assisted by the music of two violins and a violoncello. This choir became quite celebrated and aided greatly in filling the house on occasions of public worship.

On the eighth of May, 1831, Rev. Luther G. Bingham, commissioned by the presbytery of Athens, formed a church in Watertown, consisting of persons who had till then belonged to the church of Waterford, and persons living in Watertown and Barlow townships, the number of members being eighty-four. Dennis Adams and Benjamin Hart were chosen ruling elders.

August 31, 1831, Rev. P. Kimball was ordained pastor.

He also taught school in the church building, which was repaired and changed in its construction during his pastorate. Rev. S. N. Manning was ordained in 1834; Rev. Bennett Roberts in 1836; Rev. E. Garland in 1840; Rev. James Holmes in 1842; Rev. A. Thompson in 1847. About this time a division arose relative to the place of meeting. Those living in the vicinity of Watertown village furnished for meeting purposes the room in the upper story of the brick school-house. The other portion of the congregation desired to continue services in the old church. The matter was laid before the Presbytery, which resulted in the appointment of Rev. L. C. Ford and Roswell Tenny, as a committee to organize a second Presbyterian church at Watertown. August 11, 1848, a meeting was held at Watertown, at which a society, styling itself the Village Presbyterian church, was organized with twenty-seven members, all from the first church. G. H. Ford, Seth Woodford, and B. W. Arnold were elected ruling elders. Rev. A. Thompson was pastor till the summer of 1850. James S. Walton was ordained pastor in 1851.

The first church continued to hold service at the old meeting-house. Supplies from Marietta college filled the pulpit for some time. Rev. Dyer Burgess, the great abolition advocate, also ministered to this church.

The presbytery of Athens at its meeting in Barlow, April 13, 1853, resolved "That the First Presbyterian church of Watertown and the Village Presbyterian church of Watertown, be united under the name of the First Presbyterian church of Watertown, and that the records of the two churches be put into the hands of the session of the united church." The pastors since the union have been: James McNeal, G. R. Rossetter, D. C. Perry, Thomas McLeon, J. M. Howard, William H. Galbreath, J. Strauss, John Noble, and William H. Bay. During the greater part of the time since 1871, Watertown and Barlow have been served by one pastor, preaching being on alternate Sabbaths at each place. A comfortable frame church was built on the hill just above the village, in 1869, which was dedicated January 16, 1870. The use of this house is shared with the Methodists.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH.

The First Universalist church of this township was built in 1835 in the vicinity of the old block-house, below Watertown village, in the Wolf Creek valley. Rev. Mr. Sage was the only regular minister this church ever had. Services were held at irregular intervals by itinerant preachers. The house was burned in 1857, and the congregation disorganized. In 1870, through the efforts of Rev. J. M. McMaster of Marietta, the congregation was reorganized and a church built in the village. Mr. McMaster continued as pastor till 1878, when he was succeeded by Rev. E. M. Earl, who remained one year. The pastorate has since been vacant.

ST. JOHN—LUTHERAN.

Conrad Bohl, who settled in this township in 1834, was the father of this church. Preachers from Marietta occasionally held service in the neighborhood until 1845, when a congregation was organized, and the frame building erected by the Methodists some years previous, was purchased. The present house was built in 1855. In 1878 it was repaired, and is now a neat and comfortable house of worship. The congregation was connected with the Marietta church until 1865, since then with Lowell. The present membership is thirty families.

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST—CATHOLIC.

A Catholic congregation was organized in Union township, now Watertown, about 1850, which was supplied by the pastor of the Marietta parish until 1865. In 1853 Michael McDermott donated to the church a lot on which they built a frame house. In 1865 the members in this locality were constituted a parish, and Magnus Eppank sent by the diocese as priest. The congregation had, the year previous, built a comfortable parsonage which has been the residence of succeeding pastors since that time. In 1866 it was thought desirable to divide the congregation, and two meeting-houses were built that year, one was located on Rainbow, on land donated by Andrew Schemdennan, which was christened Ave Maria. The membership of this congregation is German. The other was built on land donated by M. Jurdon. The membership of this congregation is both Irish and German. The old building was sold for a school-house. The new building is the handsomest church edifice in the township, and the largest Catholic church in the county. It cost about twelve thousand dollars. The following have been the priests: Magnus Eppank from 1865 to 1869; Gebhardt Schneider and Lawrence Schneider in 1869; Leonard McKeinen in 1870; Lewis Grammer in 1871; E. L. Fladung to the present time (1881). The membership of "St. John" church is seventy-five families, of "Ave Maria," fifty-five families.

UNITED BRETHREN CHURCHES.

Watertown church was organized by Rev. Mr. Lease, an early minister on Plymouth circuit. The first members were Peter Stollar, Susan Stollar, William Sampson, Elizabeth Sampson, Daniel Jennings, Rosanna Jennings, Andrew Stollar, Elizabeth Stollar, Eleazer Smith, and Eunice Smith. The ministers of the Plymouth circuit supplied this church until 1878, when Pleasant Grove circuit was formed, J. W. Shell was given charge of the new circuit, and remained in charge two years. The present pastor, J. W. Willis, has served since 1880. In the fall of 1880 the name of the circuit was changed from "Pleasant Grove" to "Watertown." The class worshipped in private houses for some time, and then in the East Watertown school-house until 1871, when Pleasant Grove chapel was built. The present membership of this church is thirty-five. Four of the original members are yet living.

A class consisting mostly of persons living in old Union township, was organized by Rev. J. Watts in 1870. The names of the first members were, James Willis, Candace Willis, John Skipton, sr., Sally Skipton, J. W. Willis (present pastor), Bartha J. Willis, and Harriet Power. The ecclesiastical connections of this church have been with Pleasant Grove. The present membership is twenty-seven; services are held in a school-house.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH.

JOHN DRESSER CHAMBERLAIN

was born at Goshen, Hampshire county, Massachusetts, September 10, 1789, and died at Fairfield, Washington county, Ohio, February 10, 1880. His parents, Asa and Prudence (Dresser) Chamberlain, were of the hardy New England stock known as Yankees, but in their later life forsook their eastern home to make a new one in Ohio, their son having preceded them a few years.

John D. Chamberlain crossed the mountains on foot in the early part of the year 1811, arriving at Marietta in March, and immediately wended his way up the Muskingum river to Waterford. Remaining there a short time, he finally settled in Wooster, now Watertown, where he purchased land and resided more than sixty years.

He enlisted in the War of 1812, and served until its close, in 1814, when he received an honorable discharge with the rank of captain.

He was for many years a teacher, having taught school upon Cat's creek, where Lowell now stands, and at Waterford, in Washington county, and at the old settlement of Amesville, in Athens county. He served in many civil offices, and was a county commissioner for fifteen years. He was a man of remarkable physical strength and of strong intellect, alike well qualified to endure the hardships and privations of pioneer life, and to enjoy the amenities of that period in which his old age was passed.

For many years he was engaged with others in the manufacture and sale of clocks at Cincinnati, the firm at first being Reed, Watson & Chamberlain, and afterwards Watson & Chamberlain. (This Mr. Watson's first name was Luman. It was after him that John D. Chamberlain's son, Luman W. was named). Many of the clocks manufactured by these two firms, more than sixty years ago, are still keeping time, although the hands that wrought them and the minds that planned them have ceased from labor.

Mr. Chamberlain married as his first wife Thirza A. Grow, of Chester, Meigs county. Nine children were the offspring of this union, viz: Diana M., Ason G., Amanda E., Anna M., Melissa E., Luman W., Prudence N., Alma A., and Thirza R. After the death of his first wife, Mr. Chamberlain married Mrs. Sarah Williams, of Morgan county, Ohio, whose death occurred prior to that of her husband. Two children were the fruits of this marriage—Sarah J., and John D.

CHAPTER XLVI.

WARREN TOWNSHIP.

Topography—Quality of Sandstone—Boundaries—Incorporation and Survey—Settlement Retarded—Appearance of Squatters—First Permanent Settlers—Back Settlements—Settlers of a Later Period—Hunters—Post Office—Cemeteries—A Thanksgiving Incident—Epidemics—Population—Roads—Educational Matters—Warren Graduates at Marietta College—Presbyterian, Methodist, Disciple, and United Brethren Churches—Early Sunday-Schools—The Use of Spirituous Liquors—Temperance Reformation.

WARREN may properly be styled the "grindstone township" of Washington county. Along the whole course of the Ohio river hills, three strata of heavy sandstone rock present transverse sections, and an almost inexhaustible supply of stone of the very finest quality might be quarried. A high range of precipitous hills borders the river from Harmar, to a point nearly opposite Muskingum island, where it recedes and the intervening tract of bottom, about six miles long and from one half to one mile wide, includes the most fertile farming land in the township.

Back of this bluff the whole area of the township may be described by the familiar phrase "up hill and down hill." The drainage in the interior seems to be without system. Streams flow in every direction, and following their course is the only means of determining their destination. The altitude of the township makes it a head-water territory. The streams which flow into the Ohio—Mile run, Scott's run, Bailey's run, and a few others—are all short and small, the sources of none of them being more than three miles from the river. The east branch of the Little Hocking rises on the ridge near the centre of the township, and takes a southerly course. The waters of the northwestern part of the territory unite to form Wolf creek. The principal branch from the north is Horse run. Branches from the south are Turkey Hen creek and Brown's run, the mouth of which is in Barlow township. From this general outline of the water courses some idea can be gleaned of the irregularity of the surface slopes. Wolf creek, a stream sixty miles long, which empties into the Muskingum at Beverly, has its source in the ridge fronting the Ohio and Muskingum at their junction. The annoying oddity of the names of two of these streams, excite a spirit of inquiry into their origin. It is said that in early times, peavine grew in abundance along the north branch of Wolf creek. This is a species of grass greatly relished by many kinds of stock, and collections of horses, cows, etc., were frequently seen along the valley. Cow run, in Lawrence township, had for a similar reason received its name, and the pioneers of Warren took advantage of the alternative and called this stream Horse run. Turkey Hen creek was named by a party of Virginia hunters who, upon one occasion, left their own hills and came to the wilds of Ohio in search of game. The deep valley of the first southern branch of Wolf creek was made the camping ground. But game was not to be found, and the disgusted Virginians returned with a solitary turkey hen. This valley, aesthetically the most interesting in the township, by its homely name perpetuates the memory of an incident in itself unimportant.

In quality of soil the township may be divided into three distinct sections. The river bottom consists mostly of a rich loam, and produces abundant crops. The dividing ridge which borders this bottom is covered with a shaly soil rich in concretions of lime, and is fairly productive. The third belt, extending from Turkey Hen creek in a southwesterly direction, is composed of disintegrated sandstone and shale, and is not adapted to the culture of most crops without a liberal use of fertilizers.

The most valuable feature of the economic geology is the heavy ledges of sandstone of superior quality for grindstones and building purposes, lying along the Ohio river. The first layer, a coarse building stone, is thirty feet thick. This is followed by ten feet of blue shale, which rests upon a twenty-five foot stratum of sand rock of the finest quality. The texture and grit varies greatly with the locality. Everything conspires to the successful manufacture of grindstones. The quarries are easily accessible, and are inexhaustible, and the proximity of the railroad and river affords ample shipping facilities. Grindstones have been manufactured along this outcrop for more than seventy years. At the present time the principal quarries are owned by Calvin Finch, J. H. Deming, H. H. Cole, P. L. Cole, Mr. O'Connor, and Dean Briggs. The "constitution stone" of the Ohio River Stone company became quite celebrated, being admirably adapted to ornamental architectural work. It was introduced into Chicago and other cities. Capability of resisting great pressure without fracture, and resistance to the influence of heat, make it superior for building purposes to limestone or marble. For grindstones, Warren sand-rock will compare with any stone in the world. On comparison of a specimen from J. H. Deming's quarry with the best Nova Scotia grit, they were found almost identical in texture, and equal in quality for grinding.

The stretch of alluvial bottom along the river was heavily timbered with walnut, maple, beech, sycamore, hickory, and other trees, which a network of thrifty grapevines tied together so firmly that in the progress of clearing it was sometimes necessary to cut half a dozen before the first could be brought to the ground. On the uplands the trees were much smaller. At present the bottom lands and more fertile terraces are entirely cleared. Native forest continues to cover the steep hills and tracts not adapted to agricultural uses. The scenery of Warren has many attractions for the lover of nature. The streams are clear, the valleys narrow and the hills steep and at some places precipitous. The dividing ridge, extending through the township almost parallel with the river, overlooks the surrounding territory, and its highest peak—Owl hill—near the Lancaster road, affords a splendid view of the Virginia hills and the basin of Wolf creek and Turkey Hen.

LEGAL BOUNDARIES AND ORGANIZATION.

The boundaries of Warren have frequently been changed since its incorporation by the county commissioners on the tenth of September, 1810. The original town consisted of all the territory included by a line beginning at the Ohio river where the line between the eighth and ninth ranges strikes it, thence north on said range line to the northeast corner of section twenty-five, in town two, range nine; thence west to northwest corner of section seventeen, in same township; thence north to the north line of same township; thence west to the northwest corner of the township; thence south to the southwest corner of the same; thence west to the northwest corner of section twelve, in town two, range ten; thence south to the southwest corner of section ten, in said township; thence east to the Ohio river; thence up the river to the place of beginning.

In 1813 it was ordered that all that part of Marietta township lying between the eighth and ninth ranges be annexed to Warren.

The boundaries were afterwards changed several times. A personal enmity between two prominent citizens resulted in a tract one-half mile wide and two miles long being set off and annexed to Barlow. When the town of Dunham was established, June 5, 1855, considerable territory was cut off from Warren, and the partitionment of Union added four sections on the north in 1877.

The territory now included in Warren was laid out in the original survey in eight acre lots excepting three sections—ministerial section number twenty-nine, school section number sixteen, and Congress reservation section number eight.

THE SETTLEMENT.

The plan adopted by the Ohio company for allotting lands to its members retarded for several years the settlement of Warren township. Many of the eight-acre lots were owned by non-residents, who held them for speculative purposes. This made it difficult for any one desiring to make an improvement to procure a sufficiently large and connected tract of land for a suitable farm. Settlers naturally preferred to go further back, where large tracts could be purchased from a single individual.

Soon after the close of the Indian war, squatters began to make improvements on Congress section number eight. These people, with a few exceptions, were afflicted with a roving disposition and an aversion to the labor necessary to the making of more than a temporary improvement. On section eight a community of these people had gathered previous to the permanent settlement of the township. A few of them were industrious and frugal, and afterwards became good citizens, but by far the greater number sought dwelling places elsewhere, when driven from the land they occupied by actual owners. The first of this class of improvements were made in Warren township by Isaac Nogle, George Nogle, Thomas Dickey and Isaac Hardin. These were soon followed by Thomas Patton, William Patton, Dr. Morse, Samuel Friend, John Rardin, John Chevington and others. This collection of uninviting cabins was called Nogletown. These transient inhabitants did not bear an enviable reputation among the more solid settlers who followed them, and their departure was not regretted.

The rich lands along the river were naturally chosen by the first settlers. The first permanent improvements were made by Seth Bailey, Elias Newton and the Cole family, in 1804 and 1805. About one year later Isaac Humphreys, Ezekial Finch and Judge Ephraim Cutler purchased land and made improvements. These old families were not only the pioneers of the township, but the leading characters in its history for more than thirty years. They were men of culture and energy, who were ambitious to build up the community as well as their private fortunes.

Thomas Dickey was one of the earliest residents of the township. He came from Pennsylvania to Washington county in 1798. About 1810 he was employed by Timothy Cone to carry the mail. After working two years for Mr. Cone, he took the mail contract for himself, and remained in the employ of the Government till 1816. In 1818 he was married to Betsy G. Brown, and in 1820 moved to Athens county, afterwards removing to Morgan county, where he died in 1863. He had four boys and three girls. His eldest son, Charles, was born in Athens county, in 1823. He is now a resident of this township. He has had three sons, two of whom are living.

Philip Cole was the first representative of his family who settled in Warren township. John Cole, his father, was a native of Rhode Island, where he was married twice. By his first wife he had three children—Asa, Nathan, and Noah. By his second wife, Sasannah Salisbury, he had five children—Elizabeth, Candace, Philip, Ichabod, and John. He emigrated from Rhode Island to West Virginia, and then settled in Belpre where he remained two years. Philip, during the stay of the family in Wood county, West Virginia, married Eunice Gates, a Vermont lady, and in 1803, or early in 1804, sought a home up the river. He settled on the farm now owned by J. H. Deming. His nearest neighbor down the river was Wilbur Harris, one of the earliest settlers of the township. The nearest improvement up the river was Nogletown. In 1804, John Cole with his family removed from Belpre and settled below Vienna Island, on the farm now owned by Henry Cole. He opened the first house of entertainment in the neighborhood and kept the first ferry between Belpre and Marietta. His son, Asa, retained the homestead; Nathan settled on the territory now included in Dunham, where he afterwards opened a tavern. Elizabeth, the oldest daughter, married William Green; Candace married Willard Harris and settled, in 1806, on Little Hocking. Philip Cole's family consisted of eight children—Eunice (O'Neil), Lucinda (Whiteman), Diantha (Deming), Caroline (Lewis), William, Louisa (Shields), Henry H., and Mary Ann (Ballard). Philip Cole was an enterprising citizen and a useful member of his pioneer community. He was one of the first magistrates of his township. He died January 25, 1831; his wife died December 11, 1857.

Captain Willard Green lived on the farm now owned by Dean Briggs. He married Lizzie Cole, a daughter of John Cole. Before coming to Warren they lived for a time at Hughes River, Virginia, where the forest was dense and full of wild animals. The captain was necessarily absent most of the time, and Mrs. Green was herself compelled to hunt the cow in the woods. One evening, taking her baby, she set out, and guided by the sound of the bell, came to a small ravine, and through the shadow of the trees and underbrush she thought she saw a man approaching. She caught occasional glimpses of him as she went down into the ravine, but on coming nearer was startled to find herself in the presence of a large black bear. It suddenly occurred to her that animals could be controlled by the human eye. She hastily wrapped the baby in her stout apron, and looking the monster steadily in the eye, clapped her hands vigorously. The bear, to her great relief, turned and walked away. Mrs. Green lived to be ninety-six years old, and died in Warren township May 4, 1869.

Henry H. Cole, the sixth child of Philip and Eunice Cole, was born in Warren in 1816. He married Sarah, the daughter of David Varner, born in Pennsylvania in 1815. The result of this union was two children—Philip L. and Sarah J., both residing in this township. Mr. Cole has been engaged extensively in the manufacture of grindstones for the past forty years. Mr. Cole has for many years served as trustee of his township.

J. H. Deming married Diantha Cole, by whom he had seven children, six of whom survive, viz.: Diantha, Elizabeth, Lucinda, Mary, Wallace, and Hiram. Mr. Deming, besides being a large farmer, is also engaged in the manufacture of grindstones. He has been township trustee for fifteen years, and has been postmaster at Constitution for a like period.

Elias Newton settled on the bottom in 1805, and was followed by his son Oren, several years later. Oren engaged in the manufacture of grindstone at an early period. His sons, Stephen and John, now living at Marietta, received their early training in the quarries.

Seth Bailey, a native of Massachusetts, emigrated to Virginia in 1793. While in Virginia he married Polly, the daughter of Captain William James, who, at that time, owned Vienna island, Neil's island, and a large tract in Virginia. Polly received as a marriage portion, Vienna island. Mr. Bailey built a cabin on the island and began the work of clearing in 1802. He, at this time, owned one horse, two oxen, and one cow. The island was densely covered with immense trees and clearing progressed slowly and involved the hardest kind of labor. Winter set in before a shelter could be provided for the stock, but nature had supplied that. A sycamore tree seventeen feet in its greatest diameter, and fifteen in its shortest, was discovered to be hollow. A door was cut in one side and the interior found large enough to afford a comfortable stable for all the stock. In after years this tree caught fire and burned to the ground. Mr. Bailey, one year, planted corn inside the remaining snags and harvested from it one bushel. Early in 1805, a frame house was built opposite the head of the island, a short distance below the present site of Mr. Scott's brick residence. This house became the Bailey homestead. The family consisted of eleven children: Maria (Shipman), who died in Marietta; Elizabeth, Seth, jr., living in Athens county; Charles, died in Virginia; John, settled in Warren township; Bennet, settled in Warren but afterwards moved to Kansas; William, living in Marietta;

George, in Warren; Augustus, in Kansas; and Thomas, in Dunham township.

William Bailey was born May 24, 1816. He lived at home until he reached the age of twenty, when he entered Marietta college. After graduating, in 1843, he read medicine, but the practice was not congenial to his disposition. A short time was spent in mercantile business in the west, after which he opened a store in Warren township, on the Cutler homestead. From 1855 to 1871, he engaged in the grindstone trade. He has since engaged in fruit culture and gardening in Marietta. In 1848, Mr. Bailey was married to Mary A. Ward, who died the following year. The fruit of this union was one daughter, Mary Annett, wife of James Walton. She died in Nebraska, in 1875. October 1, 1850, Mr. Bailey was married to Elizabeth Smith Emerson, daughter of Caleb Emerson, esq. They have three children: Ella F., Lucy D., and Charles Emerson.

Seth Bailey, after settling in Warren, erected a forge, and "picked up" the blacksmithing trade. Besides accommodating his neighbors, he occupied rainy days at making nails. His example was imitated by many of the young men in the neighborhood, and pounding nails became a common occupation.

William Johnson, a native of Ireland, settled in Washington county in 1815, where he remained until his death in 1826. He was the father of three children: Jane, William and Ellen. Of these Jane and Ellen are living. Jane was born in New Jersey in 1813. She married George Bailey, of Warren township. They became the parents of one child, M. L. George Bailey died in 1852. His widow and son reside on the home place.

Congress section eight was purchased by Isaac Humphreys in 1805. It made the largest and best farm in the township. Mr. Humphreys was a native of Ireland, and is remembered by the early settlers as a sharp business man. He moved to Harmar in 1839. He was one of the early magistrates of the township, and represented Washington county in the legislature a few years. He had six children: Mary, wife of Joel Deming, Charles, Emeline died in Harmar; Harriet, wife of Stephen Newton; Charity deceased, and Henry, who was drowned in the Ohio.

William Smith, one of the settlers on the river bank in 1805, had rather an eventful life. He came to Ohio with General Varnum in 1788, as an attendant. He was then young, but brave and ambitious. When the Big Bottom colony was formed, he became a member, and afterwards seemingly by chance escaped the horrible massacre of that unfortunate settlement. He had been sent to Marietta on the day previous to the tragedy, and on his way back was detained at Waterford, just long enough to be absent from the sack of his settlement. In 1805 he settled in Warren, on the bottom below Philip Cole's, where he made a clearing, built a cabin, and planted an orchard. His fruit and flower gardens were the joy of the youth of the neighborhood. The family consisted of six children: John and William left the county; Elijah settled in Harmar; Sally, wife of John Newton, moved to Ironton; Mary married Richard Patton, and Huldah, John Test, ex-county sheriff.

Ezekiel Finch was one of the earliest pioneers of Warren township. He was born in New York State in 1769, and emigrated to Ohio in the fall of 1806, settling in the southern part of the territory now known as Warren township, where he resided until his death, which occurred in 1848. His children were: Morris, Lewis, Harris, Reuben, Samantha, Calvin, Darius, Sarah, Charles, and Alfred W. Calvin is the only survivor of this large family. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1806, and in that same year was brought to this county by his father and mother. He married Mrs. Sarah Cunningham in 1837. Seven children resulted from this marriage, all living but one. William W. married Eliza Jones; Lewis J. married Lucy Skipton; Henry C. married Sabra C. Thompson, and resides in Dakota; the other three children are living at home. Mr. Finch has been engaged in the grindstone business since 1850.

Morris Finch was a soldier in the War of 1812. He first went into the service as a substitute for Seth Bailey, but when his time had expired he volunteered and was present at the perilous battle of Bladensburg.

Ephraim Cutler, eldest son of Rev. Manasseh Cutler, LL. D., was born at Edgarton, Martha's Vineyard, Massachusetts, April 13, 1767. He first married Polly Leah Atwood, April 8, 1787, at Killingly, Connecticut, where he settled. She was born August 14, 1765, and died November 4, 1807. He married, for his second wife, Polly Parker, April 13, 1808. She was born at Newburyport, Massachusetts, June 6, 1777, and died June 30, 1846. He died July 8, 1853. Mr. Cutler settled in Warren in 1806, having previously lived at Waterford and at Ames, Athens county. The old stone house, which is still standing was completed in 1809. A biographical sketch of Judge Cutler will be found in this volume.

John Henry, a native of Ireland, came to Warren township in 1807, where he engaged in the manufacture of wheels for spinning flax. He owned a tract of land now included in the farm of Charles Cone, esq., which he sold to Mr. Brewster, and removed to Ames, Athens county, in 1817. He afterwards became a successful farmer and influential citizen. He had eighteen children. The patriarch of a large and respectable family, he died in 1854.

William Hutchinson was a resident of the township in 1807. He owned an eight acre lot north of Congress section eight.

Gideon Rathbun was the eccentric character among the settlers of 1807. He first settled on an eight acre lot which was afterwards included in Judge Cutter's farm. When he sold this he moved down on Little Hocking. His only source of revenue was the fur bearing animals he was enabled to capture. For a time he owned a pony on which he was accustomed to go to Marietta with a small grist of corn and skins to barter for other necessities of life. As he grew older his luck at hunting turned, and then to add misfortune to misery the old pack horse died, and Gideon was compelled to

SAMUEL DYE, SR.

Among the early settlers of the eastern part of Washington county who endured all the privations of pioneer life, in order to subdue the wilderness and plant the seed of civilization and improvement, none perhaps deserve more credit than John Dye. He was a native of New Jersey, and emigrated to Virginia when young, locating near where the first battle of Bull Run was fought, where he married Miss Hannah Hoff. After remaining there for several years, and having become disgusted with slavery, they decided to emigrate to Ohio, which they did in the year 1806. Stopping about a year on Duck creek, thence moving in the spring of 1807 to what is now Lawrence township, on the farm now owned by A. J. Dye, esq. Of a large family (there were fifteen children, the majority of whom attained the age of maturity), only three are now living. The two years known as the epidemical years (1822 and 1823) were very destructive in that vicinity, and several of this family fell victims to the fell destroyer, including the father, who died in 1823. The three now living are Samuel, the subject of this sketch; J. W., and A. J.

Samuel Dye, esq., was born September 24, 1806, in Fearing township, whence he removed with his father to Lawrence township in 1807, where he resided over sixty years. The early part of his life was spent in helping fell the forest and aiding in the support of a large family, for his father was of a delicate constitution and unable to withstand the more arduous duties of pioneer life. As means for acquiring an education at that time were very meagre, his attainments in that direction were of course limited, but his ambition and natural propensities were too great to allow misfortune and adverse circumstances to prevent him from acquiring a good education. He married Miss Lucinda Dye, December 16, 1830. Her parents were pioneers of what is now Noble county. She was a woman of most generous impulses, and a most affectionate wife and mother. Like Lucretia of old, her hands were never idle, and such was her devotion to her husband and children that however arduous her domestic duties her words of cheer and comfort and her helping hand were always unreserved. She was a most exemplary Christian wife and mother, and when, on February 1, 1870, after a short illness of a few days the Lord called her away, the husband mourned the loss of a most worthy and faithful wife; the children a mother in every sense of the word, and the neighbors and friends one whose heart was imbued with generosity and kindness. The names of their children are as follows: Morgan I., married Miss Lucretia Bull, and resides on the old homestead in Lawrence township; John J., married Miss Emily Brown (who died in 1879), and resides in Macon county, Missouri; Arius Newton, died December 29, 1870; D. H., died in infancy; Charlotte M., married Rev. Leander Rhinehart, died November 6, 1868; Daniel U., married Miss L. A. Wakefield, and resides at Kankakee, Illinois; Furman J., residing in Warren township; Sarah E., married Austin Middleswart, and resides in Warren township; Thomas M., died July 20, 1876; Joseph R., married Miss Elvira Torner, and resides on Cow run; Hattie R. and Samuel live with their father; W. Wirt, died May 25, 1867; William Chase, died January 24, 1863; Franklin C., died December 13, 1880.

Mr. Dye held the office of justice of the peace twelve years, and was noted for his just and impartial disposition of all questions which he was called upon to decide. He has been a prominent member of the Baptist church for forty years, serving as deacon about thirty years, and aiding with great liberality in the dissemination of the Gospel. In politics he is a Republican and has labored hard for the success of that party from its infancy. His loyalty is evinced by the fact that he cheerfully gave up three of his sons to battle for the preservation of the Union in the late war. Daniel U., Morgan I., and Thomas M. served creditably in different regiments until they were honorably discharged. He always took a great interest in the cause of education, sparing neither pains nor money in providing for his children in that respect. John J. graduated at Marietta high school. Arius Newton graduated at Marietta college in 1864, and at Rochester Theological seminary in 1868. He was excelled in eloquence by few, if any, in his conference, and was stricken down just as he was entering the temple of fame and distinction. Daniel U. and Furman J. graduated at Marietta college in 1871. Daniel U. afterwards graduated at the Theological seminary of West Chester, Pennsylvania, and has had charge of the Baptist church at Kankakee, Illinois, six years. Furman J. has been engaged in teaching the greater part of the time since his graduation. Although none of his other children were graduates, still they received more than an ordinary education.

The first petroleum found in paying quantities in the vicinity of Cow run was obtained in 1860 on the farm of Mr. D. Nye, and his income from that resource increased his already large accumulations until he was by far the wealthiest man in Lawrence township. Having disposed of the eighty acres of oil territory to an eastern company he purchased a large farm on the Ohio river about four miles below Marietta, and removed thereto in 1867, where he still resides. Though trouble seems to have marked him for its victim yet he is still to be seen attending to the duties of the farm, patiently submitting to the decrees of an all wise Providence. One by one has death snatched from that home-circle until the father has seen the flowers of spring bloom over the graves of just one half of those upon whom he had founded hopes of long life and influence. His success in business and his popularity have brought him in contact with the best business men of the county, by whom he is esteemed for his strict adherence to rectitude and honesty. He is indeed one of the kindest and most affectionate of men, generous to a fault and holding firmly the regard and friendship of all who know him.

carry corn to mill on his own back. One day as he was sweltering under his burden, a neighbor made friendly inquiry concerning his circumstances. Gideon despondingly replied, "Oh, I haint got nothin' to git nothin' with, nor I haint got nothin' to bring nothin' home on." The latter part of his life was not free from want.

John Shipton, a native of Pennsylvania and one of the oldest men now living in the township, settled on the farm just above the present site of Scott's station before 1810. In 1837 he moved to the farm on which he now lives, on the ridge fronting the river bottom.

In the early part of the century after permanent and substantial improvements had been made along the river, the settlement of the interior of the township was very sparse.

Robert Bulby was probably the first settler on Horse run. He and an Irishman named McGarry, who made an improvement on Wolf creek, came into the township about 1806. Shortly after William Coleby erected a cabin between Turkey Hen and Brown's run. Richard Poland made the first improvement on the ridge between Brown's run and east branch of Little Hocking. The two prominent early families in this part of the township were the Cunningham and the Bridges families.

John Cunningham was a native of Virginia. He settled in Warren township about 1807, on land lying south of Turkey Hen. He had six children, of whom Levi, a well known preacher of the Methodist church, is the youngest. Levi is described to have been a remarkable young man. He was pious and able but without education. He exhorted the small Methodist classes so effectively that he was chosen to serve the church as a local preacher, and was afterwards given a circuit. During the first year of his ministry he devoted himself assiduously to the study of English grammar and composition. Mr. Cunningham has reached a high place in the church, and is truly a self-made man. He lives near Columbus.

Jacob Bridges, esq., came from Northern Ohio about 1812 and settled near the site of Tunnel Station. Mr. Bridges was a leading man of the community. He was a magistrate several years and was the business counselor of his neighborhood. Squire Bridges and Mr. Cunningham were the organizers of Methodism in the township and the influence of their labor has not yet died out. About 1850 Mr. Bridges sold out and moved to Iowa. His two sons Silas and Benjamin accompanied him. His daughter, Sarah, was married to Charles Tidd and settled in Iowa. She died soon afterwards.

William White was the first settler on the Pinkerton farm on the Lancaster road.

The settlement was most rapid between 1835 and 1845. The earliest settlers improved the inviting river bottoms. The next class of settlers pushed further on into the State, and it was not until the Scioto and Miami valleys had been occupied that the hills of Washington county were in demand.

William Perdew was one of the earliest settlers of the interior of the township. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1789. At the age of seventeen he emigrated to Wood county, Virginia, where he lived about six months. About 1806 he became a resident of Washington county, and was one of the prominent citizens of Warren township until his death, which occurred January 5, 1869. In 1815 Mr. Perdew was married to Susanna Harris, who was born in New York in 1795. She died February 12, 1880. The family consisted of twelve children, six boys and six girls. Both were earnest members of the Methodist church, and labored faithfully and successfully for the upbuilding of the church in the community.

Charles, the second son, was born October 3, 1818, in Warren township, where he has resided ever since. May 26, 1842, he married Polly Lamma, daughter of Andrew and Rachel Lamma, of Virginia. The fruit of this union is seven boys and five girls. William W. Perdew, jr., was born August 9, 1827, and in 1853 married Sarah Seffens, born December 20, 1827. They have had nine children, as follows: Anne L., born November 2, 1854; Abbie A., October 17, 1856; John E., March 28, 1858; Mary J., December 28, 1859; Lizzie L., April 26, 1862; Hannah L., February 8, 1864; Joseph W., March 4, 1866; Benjamin W., May 17, 1871, and Clara L., May 8, 1874.

William M. Stage, eighth child of James Stage, was born in Washington county June 4, 1827, and resided in the county till the time of his death, which occurred September 9, 1871. He was married to Miss Drucilla Lightfrits, a daughter of John Lightfrits, who settled in Warren township in 1820. His death occurred March 31, 1841. His family consisted of ten children, five boys and five girls. Drucilla was born October 5, 1836. She married Mr. Stage October 14, 1849. They had seven children: William J., Samuel G., Jerry, Adda, Sarah R., Samantha B., and Perry, all living. With the assistance of her son Perry she continues to farm the old homeplace.

Philip, son of Thomas and Margaret Roe, was born in Delaware in 1811. In 1830 he removed from Muskingum county, Ohio, to Washington county, and located in Warren township. In 1839 he married Rebecca Lamery, by whom he had thirteen children, eight boys and five girls. Of this family nine children survive, three still living at home. Two of Mr. Roe's sons served in the late war, George for three years and Philip during the hundred days service.

Henry McAfee was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, and when quite young came to this county with his father, Daniel McAfee, and has since been living in that part of Warren which was formerly a part of Union township. He has a farm of forty acres. He is a carpenter by trade.

Thomas Drain, third child of Daniel and Jeanette Drain, was born in Argylshire, Scotland, in 1808, and came to Cincinnati in 1832, and after remaining there two years became a resident of Washington county. He married Jeanette Fullerton, by whom he had two children, viz: James, who married Romayne Bay; and Daniel, who is still at home. Mr. Drain has by economy accumulated much land.

Philip Schilling, born in Germany in 1810, settled in this township in 1835, in that part formerly included in Union. He emigrated to Ohio from Florida. By his wife, Elizabeth Hopp, he had eleven children, eight of whom survive. George, the fifth son, born in 1849, married Louisa Walter, born in 1852. They have four children. Mr. Schilling, who is a general farmer, possesses ninety-six acres of land.

Duncan Drain settled in this county in 1838, having emigrated from Argylishire, Scotland, where he was born in 1817. He commenced the harness maker's trade when but twelve years of age, and continued at the work for fifteen years. In 1845 he married Catharine Greenlees, by whom he has had nine children, all of whom are living, viz: Hugh, Jeanette (Curtis), Anna (Trotter), Nancy, Daniel, Mary, Eliza, Margaret, and Rosetta.

Robert Hanna, a native of Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, emigrated to Monroe county, Ohio, in 1828. He lived there about twelve years, and then moved to Virginia, where he remained about ten months. He resided in Warren township from 1841 to the time of his death, July 13, 1878, aged eighty-three. He was the father of eight children. Andrew, Robert C., Hugh, Thomas, James, and Mary A. are residents of Warren township. Jane C. resides in Harmar. Mr. and Mrs. Hanna were members of the Universalist church. Andrew, the oldest child, was born in Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, October, 1825. He came to Washington county with his father, August 24, 1848. He married Lydia Inman, who was born in Maine, May 22, 1826. They had three children: James C.; Joseph, married to Lucy Tilton, and living in Warren township; and Henrietta, married to Samuel G. Sage, of Wood county, Virginia. It is very seldom that we mention election to small offices, but a long term of service in any office indicates efficiency and popularity. Mr. Hanna has been elected supervisor six successive terms. Joseph is living with his father on the homestead, and is the father of one child, Myrtha B. James C., the oldest son of Andrew and Lydia Hanna, was born in 1850. He married Sarah Reed in 1871. This union has been blessed with two children. Robert E. Hanna, the second child of Robert Hanna, was born in Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, September 23, 1827. He came to Warren township with his father, in 1841, and August 20, 1857, married Deborah Inman, who was born September 16, 1832. They have two children—Emma, and George. Hugh, the third child of Robert Hanna, was born in Monroe county, Ohio, in 1830, and came to Washington county, Ohio, with his father, in 1841. He married Jane Seffers, by whom he has been blessed with eight children, seven girls and one boy.

In 1842 William Scott located in this county, and has since lived here with the exception of a brief residence in Iowa. Born in western Virginia in 1810, he married Mary Holiday in 1833. Five of their eight children survive. Three are home. Nancy (O'Neal) lives at Belpre, and David W. who married Louisa Dye, resides in Warren township. Mr. Scott is one of the substantial farmers of his neighborhood.

One of the many who sought homes in Warren township, between 1840 and 1850, was Jacob Cooster, oldest son of Joseph Cooster. He was born in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, March 15, 1810, and settled in Warren township in 1843. Priscilla Atwood who was born in Connecticut August 27, 1811, became his wife February 18, 1830. Their only child died April 6, 1832. Mr. Cooster's popularity in the township is shown by the frequency with which he is chosen to fill local offices.

The Coffmans are well known and influential citizens of this township. Jacob Coffman was a native of Germany. He came to America when quite young, and remained for a period at Lancaster, Pennsylvania. He came to Washington county in 1795, and settled in Marietta township. He afterwards became a resident of this township, where he remained until 1834, when he removed to Hardin county, where he died. He was the father of five children, viz: Jacob, Polly, Fannie, Deborah and Thomas.

Thomas was born November 8, 1805. He married Rebecca Callahan June 18, 1829. She was born in Waterford township October 18, 1807. The fruit of this union was nine children: Mary J., Harvey, George W., Charles, John Q., Thomas A., Sarah, Lucy and Martha, five of whom are living. Mr. and Mrs. Coffman are well known Methodists. Mr. Coffman was honored with the office of township trustee fifteen successive terms.

George W. Coffman, third son of Thomas Coffman, was born September 23, 1834. March 27, 1856, he married Sarah Patton who was born March 7, 1838. They have five children: Mary E., Sarah E., George F., Fremont D., and Murray E., all living.

Charles, fourth son of Thomas Coffman, was born January 13, 1838. He moved to Warren township in 1847, with his father. He married December 13, 1860, Harriet Roush, who was born in Washington county April 10, 1842. They have had seven children: Lizzie, Vesta H., Lucy M., Charles L., Emma M., William D., and Ida B.; all are living, except Lizzie.

John Coffman, fifth child of Thomas and Rebecca Coffman, was born in Watertown township February 28, 1840. He was married to Jane Miller June 1, 1862, and is now the father of four children: Lizzie, Austin, Franklin and Carrie, all living at home.

Stephen Druse was born in France in 1772. In 1800 he married Annie DeSasle. He emigrated first to New York and then to Ohio, and settled in Warren township in 1816. He died in Warren in 1820. Mrs. Druse died in 1845. The surviving members of the family are: Lucy Cooper, who resides in Iowa; Riley, in Belpre; Harrison in Illinois; Warren and Joseph in Missouri; and Stephen, jr., in Belpre. The last named was born in New York in 1816. In 1837 he married Sarah Barkley, who was born in Belpre in 1818. They have had seven children, five of whom are living, viz.: Lucy, Uriah, Stephen, Jane, and Cora. Amanda Williams, the oldest child, is dead.

Lucas Casady emigrated from Pennsylvania to Ohio in 1819, and settled in Washington county, in Warren township. His son, George Casady, was born in Pennsylvania in 1815, and came to Ohio when but four years of age. His first wife was Hannah S. Dye, born in 1818, and died in 1845. Three children were born of the first marriage. Amaziah volunteered in 1862, aged twenty-three, became a member of the Ninety-second Ohio volunteer infantry, company F, and died at Chattanooga in 1864. Emma B. resides in Lawrence township. In 1850 Mr. Casady was married to Sophia Hoff, who was born in 1825. They have had four children, viz.: Mary L., deceased; Judson; Oran; and Ida, deceased. Mr. Casady has a beautiful farm of two hundred and six acres of well improved land. When he first came to the county there was not a wagon in the township, and game, large and small, was abundant.

George Miller was born in England in 1771. He emigrated to America in 1804 and was employed by Blennerhassett on his farm for ten years. He then moved to Morgan county, where he died January 20, 1829. In 1806 he was married to Louise Taylor, who was born in England in 1782. Their family consisted of seven boys and four girls. William, the second child, was born December 6, 1808. He was taken with his parents when young to Morgan county, where he remained till 1840, when he settled in Warren township. He was married, December 28, 1852, to Mary McVey, who was born in Athens county December 7, 1828. They have had six children—Albert H., Hannah M., George W., Elizabeth J., and Susannah B.—three of whom are living at home. Albert resides in Kansas, Susannah B. in Morgan county, and Elizabeth, wife of J. P. Miller, in Warren township.

Barnet S. Christopher, second son of Decamp and Harriet Christopher, was born in Fayette county, Pennsylvania in 1824, and in 1846 settled in Warren township, Washington county, Ohio. In 1852 he married Emily, daughter of John Lacey, of Jefferson county, Ohio. Ten of their eleven children survive. By hard work and enterprise Mr. Christopher has secured a fine farm and a comfortable home.

James Pinkerton settled in that part of Warren formally included in Union, in the year 1846. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1804. His wife, Mary Wilson, born in 1805, died in 1878; nine of their thirteen children are living—William, Andrew, James, Thomas John, Wilson, Calvert, Robert, and Sarah. The fourth son, Thomas, born in Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, in 1837, came to this county with his father. He married Sarah R. Coffman, born in 1847. Their children are, George, Charles and Emma. Mr. Pinkerton's farm consists of one hundred and thirty-two acres of land.

Robert Smith, sixth son of Thomas Smith, was born in George county, Maryland, April 24, 1805. He came to Warren township in 1848; February 14, 1827, he was married to Eliza Arnold, of Jefferson county, Ohio. Six children have blessed this union, viz.: Oliver E., residing in Warren township; John C., and Thomas, in Illinois; Martha J., in Warren township; James A., in Kansas; and Elizabeth in Illinois. Mr. Smith is a blacksmith by trade, and both he and his wife are members of the Christian church.

March 27, 1855, Martha J. was married to Benjamin Parlin, who was born in Maine, October 9, 1825. They have had seven children, Ethalinda, John, Verandale, James, George, Lizzie and Mary, of whom two are dead—Ethalinda and John. Mr. Parlin died February 16, 1876, at the age of fifty-one years. He was several times honored with township offices, and much respected in the community.

Adam Freed, fifth son of Benjamin Freed, was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, November 5, 1824. He lived in Jefferson county, Ohio, Mason county, Virginia, and Meigs county, Ohio, until 1851, when he came to Warren township. He was married to Margaret E. Bradshaw, widow of George Bradshaw and daughter of Samuel Oliver. She was born April 14, 1827, and married to Mr. Freed July 10, 1851. They have had eleven children, Martha J., Mary A., Rebecca, Susan A., Margaret M., Dennis F., Lizzie C., Adam A., Sarah E., and two who died in infancy.

In 1851 James Foster became a resident of this township, and remained therein until his death in 1879. His widow, whose maiden name was Eliza Coyle is still living, as are also nine of her ten children. Their second son, John, was born in Belmont county, in 1835, and came with his father to Washington county. He married Eliza J. Price, daughter of Abram Price of this county. The result of their marriage was one boy and one girl. Before settling on his present farm he was section foreman on the Marietta & Cincinnati railroad.

Arthur McMahon, oldest child of Philip McMahon, was born in Ireland, May 14, 1816. He emigrated to America and settled in Chester county, Pennsylvania, in 1843. In 1844 he moved to Reading, Pennsylvania, where he was married in 1847 to Catherine Clark, a native of Ireland. In 1852 he came to Washington county, Ohio. Twelve children, eleven of whom survive, have blessed this union. Mr. McMahon is one of the kind of men who are able to turn their hand to anything. He labored successfully in a machine shop at Reading, Pennsylvania; served the Government during the war in the telegraph department, and is now a successful farmer. Both Mr. and Mrs. McMahon are members of the Catholic church.

John Christie was born in Prussia in 1823, emigrated to New Jersey, and, in 1853, came to this county and settled in that part of Union now Warren township, upon an upland farm of one hundred acres, which are well improved. For three years Mr. Christie served as township trustee. He married Elizabeth Tresth, who was born in 1828. Four of their five children survive. Mr. Christie has just erected a fine frame house.

John Holden, oldest child of Andrew and Margaret Holden, was born in King's county, Ireland, in 1810, and emigrated to New York State about 1850, remaining there two years, thence coming to Warren township, this county. In 1836 he married Julia Dooley, daughter of John Dooley, of Ireland. Twelve children, nine boys and three girls, have blessed their union. Mr. and Mrs. Holden are earnest supporters of the Roman Catholic church. Their oldest son, Andrew, born in 1839, emigrated to New York in 1853, and in that same year came to this township. By his wife, Catharine Highlands, he has had six children, four of whom are still living. Mr. Holden has been township treasurer, and is the present clerk. He served four years during the late war, in company F, Seventy-third Ohio volunteer infantry.

William C. Wright, fourth child of Jesse Wright, was born in Berkeley county, Virginia, in 1805, and in 1853 came to Washington county. In 1833 he married Maria, daughter of David Pattin. Of their ten children but four are living, viz.: John, Friend, Stephen and Elizabeth. Mrs. Wright died in 1876. Mr. Wright, being by trade a miller, has worked many years at the mill in Harmar. He is now on his farm in Warren township.

George Harris, sr., emigrated from Rhode Island to Ohio in 1805, and settled in Marietta. He remained in the county until his death, which occurred June 2, 1856. During this time he lived about three years in Monroe county. He married Mary Harrison, who was born in England, June 21, 1784. The fruit of this union was seven children. George, the youngest child, was born in Fearing township, July 26, 1829. He lived with his father till January 1, 1851, when he was married to Elizabeth Sprague, who was born in Monroe county, June 16, 1826. In 1856 Mr. Harris moved to Warren township. He is the father of nine children: Eldora, Phoebe, Isabella, Abner, Fayette, William R., Orilla, George F. and Della. Mr. Harris was township trustee four years.

John Davis settled in Warren township in 1856. He was born in Ireland in 1815, and emigrated to America with his father when quite young. He remained there until he came to this township. In November, 1838, he married Eleanor Pinkerton, a daughter of Andrew D. Pinkerton. She was born January 1, 1816. The children are: Andrew G., Malinda, Elizabeth, William W., James and Thomas P. All are living except Andrew G.

Frederick Hart, a native of Pennsylvania, emigrated to Ohio in 1854 and settled in Warren township, where he died April 12, 1857. He was the father of nine children: Samuel M., Mary A., Andrew J., Margaret, Miller H., Alexander, William, Elizabeth, and George, all living. Samuel M., the oldest child, was born in Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, September 21, 1827. He came to Warren township with his father in 1854. He was married April 26, 1856, to Mary McKee, who was born in Ireland March 6, 1831. Their family consists of four children—William, Ellenworth, George, and Frank, all living except Frank. Mr. Hart served during the war in company K, One Hundred and Forty-eighth National guard.

James A. Mercer, second child of Caleb Mercer, was born in Frederick county, Virginia, June 7, 1819. In 1841 he moved to Monroe county and remained there four years. He lived in Lawrence and Newport townships until 1857, when he settled in Warren township. September 3, 1841, he was married to Tabitha Cecil, who was born February 28, 1826, in Harrison county, Ohio. The fruit of this marriage was ten children, nine boys and one girl. Eight are still living—four married and four single. Mr. Mercer worked at blacksmithing for thirty years before coming to Warren township.

James Cooper, fifth son of James Cooper, sr., was born in Butler county, Pennsylvania, June 28, 1820. He emigrated to Ohio in 1859, and settled in Warren township. January 12, 1858, he married Sarah McCue, of Ireland. The fruit of this union was four children—Mary C., Nancy J., Sarah M., and James, all living at home. Mr. Cooper is a member of the Presbyterian church and a useful man in the community. He is a stonemason by trade, but since coming to Ohio has devoted all his attention to farming.

Uriah Cooper, youngest son of James Cooper, sr., was born in Butler county, Pennsylvania, February 22, 1836. He was married May 14, 1863, to Miss Werner, daughter of Aaron Werner, a native of Germany. She was born in Germany February 6, 1843. The family of Mr. and Mrs. Cooper consists of five children—Amos L., Sophia W., Minerva I., Marion M., and Wilmina M., three of whom are living. Both Mr. and Mrs. Cooper are faithful members and liberal supporters of the church.

Ernest Roeper, the ninth son of John H. Roeper, was born in Prussia March 6, 1818. He emigrated to America and settled in Cincinnati in 1852, and remained there until 1835, when he came to Harmar. After residing in Harmar ten years he moved to Locust Forks, in Warren township, and is now engaged in business at that place. He married Fredericka Grasle May 26, 1857, and is now the father of five children—George H., Katie E., Louisa F., William L., and Herman P., and one died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Roeper are both members of the Lutheran Church.

John J. Kaylor, sixth son of Altonis Kaylor, was born in Butler county, Pennsylvania, November 26, 1826. He married, May 6, 1852, Johannah Burger, who was born in Germany September 28, 1830. They had ten children—George, Mary A., Martha, Lizzie, Josephine, John, Henrietta, Joseph, William H., and Matilda, all living except John. Mr. Kaylor came to Washington county and settled in Warren township in 1868. The whole family are members of the Catholic church. Mr. Kaylor has worked at blacksmithing since 1845, and was employed one year during the war in one of the Government shops. He is also an enterprising farmer.

Harriet Price, daughter of John Gosset, was born in Watertown township October 10, 1813. Mrs. Price has twice been bereaved of her husband. She was first married to John Wilson, by whom she had seven children. Abram Price, to whom she was married July 10, 1863, was born April 8, 1800. Mrs. Price is a member of the Brethren church. With the assistance of her grandsons she cultivates the old farm in Warren township.

George Seibert was born in Baden, Germany, January 3, 1822. He emigrated to America and settled in Pennsylvania, where he remained until 1874, when he settled in Warren township, Washington county, Ohio. He was married in 1845 to Elizabeth Kaylor. This union was blessed with five children, all boys. In October, 1867, he was married a second time, and has since had seven children, three boys and four girls. Both Mr. and Mrs. Seibert are members of the Catholic church. Mr. Seibert worked at the machinest trade thirty-five years previous to 1874. Since that time he has been farming.

CONSTITUTION FARM.
RESIDENCE OF H. LYMAN HART WARREN TP., WASHINGTON CO., O.

HUNTERS.

Warren township, in the early years of the settlement, was a favorite hunting ground. Game was abundant along the small streams in the interior of the township. Excellent shelter was afforded by the density of the forest and size of the trees. Wild-cats and wolves were numerous and troublesome, and occasionally a panther was shot. The most noted hunters were Amos Delano, Ichabod Cole, Willard Harris, and the Ferrils.

POST OFFICES.

There have never been but two post offices in the township. The first one was established January 21, 1832, and was named Constitution, in honor of the first postmaster, Judge Ephraim Cutler, who was one of the most prominent members and latest survivors of the convention which framed the first constitution of Ohio. Judge Cutler was postmaster about twenty years. His successors have been, William D. Bailey, J. H. Deming, Lizzy M. Bailey, and Lucinda Reid. "Tunnel" was established in 1855. T. W. Moore was appointed first postmaster, and held the office two years. Succeeding postmasters have been I. J. Vandewalker, James Tuttle, William Heald, and Charles Tretsel.

VILLAGES.

There is not within this township any collection of houses large enough to be called a village. Tunnel, while the old line of the Marietta & Cincinnati railroad was being built, was a temporary collection of small huts, which were deserted when the work which called their occupants there was ended. Charles Tretsel, at Tunnel, and Earnest Roeper, at Locust Forks, conduct good country stores.

CEMETERIES.

Before any cemetery had been laid out a small lot along the river, near the present location of the Presbyterian church, was used for a burying-ground by the early settlers. A man named Ruter, two of the Green children, and a few others, were buried here; but river floods made the place unsuitable for a cemetery. Seth Bailey, at the death of his sister Mary, set apart a lot on his farm to be used as a public burying-ground. The lot was afterwards enlarged and deeded to the first religious society, by which it is controlled at present. In 1856, at the death of Lucy D. Brabham, Walter Brabham fenced off for cemetery purposes a finely located lot on the Lancaster road. It was owned by Mr. Brabham, but given to the use of the public until 1877, when the Warren township cemetery association was founded and the lot transferred to that association by Mr. Brabham. The trustees are Samuel M. Hart, Joseph A. Mercer, and Earnest Roeper.

A THANKSGIVING.

An incident is remembered by an old settler of a thanksgiving service which was held in the early history of the settlement, in the first school-house. The services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Robbins, of Marietta, and at their conclusion the men got on their horses and rode down to Cole's tavern, where the usual refreshments were served. But before partaking, Mr. Robbins, while yet remaining on his horse, asked an impressive blessing, on the stimulating beverage contained in the glasses.

THE EPIDEMICS.

The epidemics of 1807 and 1821-3 were particularly severe in Warren township. The intensely cold winter of 1806-7 was followed by high water in the spring, which completely flooded the alluvial bottom. Distressing sickness prevailed during the summer, and the work of clearing and improving farms was greatly retarded. The epidemic of 1821-3 was devastating. Fever visited almost every house, and in many cases proved fatal within a week after the first attack. One familiar with the history of this terrible period writes: "No family and few individuals escaped. In the family of William Smith, consisting of eleven persons, all were sick at the same time, and in other instances none were able to nurse the sick. This season and the next was very dry. In 1822 the Ohio was lower than ever before known; the water was nearly stagnant, and green with scum and vegetable matter, while grass and aquatic plants covered the sand-bars and extended into the water several rods from the shore. The sickness began early in June, was very severe in August and September, and did not abate until the heavy frosts in November. This year the disease prevailed especially along the river valley, and, as during the previous season, many deaths occurred. The next year much rain fell, and the river kept well up during the summer. But in June the fever again made its appearance, not only along the water courses, but also on the uplands, and was in many cases fatal. So general was the sickness that the corn grew unattended among the weeds, and remained unharvested until late, and the orchards were laden with fruits which perished. These sickly seasons will long be remembered in the traditions of the afflicted and bereaved families. Many valuable citizens were numbered with the dead. A remarkable fatality attended the families of Mr. Tiffany Adams and his nephew, James Adams, who occupied the Gilman farm in the upper part of the township. They were attacked by the fever and fourteen graves in the Adams' row, in the old cemetery in Warren, tell the result. Of six remarkably fine healthy sons of Tiffany Adams two survived, and returned to Connecticut, from where the family emigrated in 1817.

POPULATION.

In 1820 Warren had a population of four hundred and sixty. During the next decade the sickly season occurred, and the population was only six hundred and forty-two. From 1830 to 1840 the population increased to nine hundred and thirty-one, and in 1850 reached one thousand four hundred and sixty-one. In 1860 it enumerated one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, but density of settlement increased more rapidly than the figures seem to indicate, for the area of the township was considerably reduced during this decade. During the next ten years the war deprived the township of many of its best citizens, and the number of inhabitants decreased to one thousand six hundred and four. In 1880 it enumerated one thousand nine hundred and six.

ROADS.

The first road through the township was laid out in 1793 from Marietta to Belpre. This road, through the present territory of Warren, was located at the foot of the river hills. It was afterwards changed to run along the river bank, crossing many streams that required bridges. These, together with frequent sinking of the river bank, caused by freshets, made the road expensive and burdensome on the sparse population.

The second road through the township was a State road from Marietta to Lancaster, built in 1797. The location of this road has never been materially changed.

The Marietta and Athens road, commonly known in Warren township as the State road, was constructed about 1800, although the survey was made before that time. Along this road the first improvements were made after the river bottom had been taken up.

A road connecting the Lancaster and Belpre roads was laid out in 1804, but remained for a long time nothing but a cow-path through the woods. The construction of roads among the hills required much labor before they could be made serviceable. At present the roads in Warren are in good condition, considering the roughness of the surface.

The stranger riding along the Belpre road can see in the large farm houses the agricultural thrift of the community. These houses, many of them, are old, and were built by the first settlers to replace the original cabins. The bricks with which they were built were made by Oren Newton on the Newton farm.

The first frame houses in the township were built by Messrs. Bailey, Newton, and Cole. The frames were made at the headwaters of the Ohio and floated down on rafts. The oldest house in the township at present is the old stone Cutler residence, which was built in 1807. Its massive masonry is emblematic of the mind and character of its builder and occupant, for nearly half a century.

In the interior of the township the farm buildings average fairly with those of other upland portions of the county. Warren, in respect to improvements and productiveness of soil, is somewhat typical of the whole county. It has its alluvial bottom, its limestone terraces, and its shale and sand hills, and the quality of improvements varies with the productiveness of these different kinds of soil. As would naturally be expected, the character of the population is, in a measure, affected in the same way.

SCHOOLS.

Happily we have in the memoranda of Judge Ephraim Cutler a complete and accurate account of the early schools of the township. We give entire the first contract:

Memoranda of an agreement entered into this third day of February, 1807, by and between Isaac Humphreys, John Henry, and Ephraim Cutler and John D. W. Kip, on the other part witnesseth: That for the consideration of the sum of twenty-five dollars for every three months, to be paid him at the expiration of said term by Humphreys, Henry and Cutler, he, the said Kip, doth engage to keep a school at such place as they shall direct and to teach reading, writing and arithmetic, and to govern himself and school by the following rules and regulations, to-wit: He shall keep school from nine o'clock in the morning till twelve at noon, and from one in the afternoon until four; provided that during the months of June, July, August and September school may commence at half-past one and close at half-past four. He shall be excused from keeping school on Saturdays in the afternoon, on the Fourth of July, when he shall be called to attend trainings, and on election days.

The whole school shall be arranged into two or more classes at the direction of the master, the senior class to be admitted to the exercise of writing and arithmetic; the lower classes shall be employed in reading and spelling, and that no time may be lost they shall have portions assigned them for study, from which at proper hours the master shall ask them to spell, and in order to promote emulation, the priority in standing shall be determined by their accuracy in spelling.

Particular attention shall be paid in the upper class in teaching them punctuation; and that in reading they be taught to observe the stops and points, notes of affection and interrogation, also accenting and emphasizing.

The master shall consider himself as in the place of parent to the children under his care, and endeavor to convince them by mild treatment that he feels a parental affection for them. He shall be sparing as to promises or threatenings, but punctual in the performance of one and execution of the other, and that he inculcate upon the scholars the propriety of good behavior during their absence from school.

He will endeavor on all suitable occasions to impress upon the minds of his scholars a sense of the being and providence of God, and the obligations they are under to love and serve Him; of their duty to their parents; the beauty and excellency of truth, the duty which they owe to their country, and the necessity of a strict observance to its laws.

He shall caution, and as far as he can, restrain them from the prevailing vices, such as lying, profaneness, gaming, and idleness.

From these general rules he may form particular rules, and if they are broken, he must be particular to punish the offender, but mildness in punishment is recommended.

This contract shows that the early settlers had high ideas of the influence of a school and the power of a school-master. The lack of confidence in Mr. Kip, shown by the minuteness of the rules laid down in the contract, proved to be well founded, for the memoranda goes on to state that Mr. Kip found himself unequal to the task, and in less than a week resigned the charge. "He could not reduce to order the stalwart lads and buxom lasses committed to his care."

In the winter of 1809-10 the first successful school was accommodated in the south room of Judge Culler's stone house. The teacher was General John Brown, late treasurer of Ohio university, at Athens. He was an intelligent young man, of kind and genial disposition and strong common sense. He is remembered and spoken of with the highest respect by those who enjoyed his instructions.

In 1810 the first school-house was built. It was a log building, and stood where Dole's blacksmith shop now (1881) is.

In 1813 the winter school was in charge of John McMillan. John Adams, a well educated young man from Connecticut, taught in 1819.

In 1814 a summer school, designed particularly for girls, was opened by Miss Sallie Rice; she received as compensation one dollar and twenty-five cents per week. Her contract prescribed that she should teach reading and instruct the young misses in sewing. Miss Rice was a very successful teacher, and held the position until 1818. Mary Ann Cutler was a succeeding female teacher. In addition to the usual "reading, writing and arithmetic" grammar and geography were taught by her.

The common school law, which was passed in 1825 went into effect in Warren township about 1827. The township was divided into four districts, but there were probably five school-houses within the limits of the township at that time.*

April 18, 1853, the school board of the township met and reorganized the schools under the act of March 11, of that year. The township was divided into twelve school districts. The establishment of Dunham in 1855 reduced the number to ten, which number was afterwards reduced to nine. In 1867 the two river districts were separated from the rest of the township, and established into a special district. This action created a bitter feeling throughout the township. The township had the year previous appropriated six hundred dollars to build a school-house in each one of these districts, and the people of the township at large considered it unfair to permit the two wealthier districts to withdraw, especially while new houses were needed all over the township. The object of the movers for a special district was, to establish a graded school. An attempt was made to carry this object into execution, but failed. The tax duplicate shows that the special district is benefitted financially to the detriment of the township districts. In 1869 the Warren township board appropriated one hundred dollars toward the building of a house for a colored school, a similar appropriation having been made by Barlow township. There were at that time fifteen colored children in the township.

The annexation of four sections from Union added two schools to Warren, making the whole number of township schools, in 1877, nine. Most of the buildings are in good condition, and the schools are conducted as liberally as common schools generally are.

After the adoption of the common school system, higher branches than formerly were taught in the river districts, by well qualified teachers, in both summer and winter. Since 1835 the winter schools have generally been taught by students from Marietta college. Since 1820 it has been the custom to send the youth of either sex to Marietta or more distant places to complete their education. A number of young men who did not take a college course, availed themselves for a time of the instructions afforded at Marietta, and perhaps a still larger proportion of the young ladies have pursued their studies at the female seminaries in the State—thus forming an intelligent community. We append a list of natives of Warren who have graduated at Marietta college: William Dennison Bailey, class of 1843; George Washington Bailey, class of 1845; Oren Henry Newton, class of 1845; Ephraim Cutler Dawes, class of 1861; Seth Packard Bailey, 1874; Charles Lindley Dickey, class of 1877; Amos Austin Dickey, class of 1877; Charles Emerson Bailey, class of 1880. The following graduates were residents but not natives of Warren: Joseph Cone Blackington, class of 1875; Daniel Wayland Dye, class of 1871; Freeman J. Dye, class of 1871; Salathiel Smith De Garmo, class of 1876.

*In the absence of complete records we are compelled to rely upon the recollection of the oldest and best informed citizens of the township.

POLITICS.

The majority at State and National elections has always been given in favor of the Democratic candidate, with but one exception—the Presidential election of 1840, when Harrison carried the township. But at the preceding Presidential election the vote stood: Whig, 28; Democratic, 68. During the slavery agitation the leading Democrats stood by the traditions of their party. The Whigs were of the conservative order, while but two or three straight-out abolitionists resided in the township. Samuel Brown, then of Warren, and Mr. Burges were the only aggressive opponents of the system of slavery.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

In the winter of 1825–6, while navigation was suspended on the Ohio, two missionaries, Messrs. Chamberlyn and West, on their way to the southwest, were ice-bound at Marietta, and did missionary work in adjacent communities. Through their influence the Domestic missionary society of Connecticut sent Rev. Jacob Little to labor as an evangelist in Washington county. He preached in Belpre, and occasionally in Warren and other places. Services were held in the old tavern stand of Nathan Cole, in the present territory of Dunham township. Here Mr. Little, who was well fitted for a pioneer preacher, organized a Bible-class of twenty-four, mostly young ladies, and a Sunday-school.

April 18, 1827, an agreement was entered into between Mr. Little and Samuel S. Spencer, Ephraim Cutler, Seth Bailey, Timothy Cone, Oren Newton, and Isaac Humphreys, by which they were to pay him two hundred dollars for half his time and labors. About this time, however, Mr. Little received and accepted a call to Granville, Ohio.

Rev. Augustus Pomeroy came in the summer of 1827, and held meetings in the brick school-house, which had just been built, on the upper part of Seth Bailey's farm. In this house the "Presbyterian church of Warren" was formed February 23, 1828. We quote the first entry in the record:

In compliance with the indications of Providence and the ardent wishes of Christians in Warren, agreeably to previous notice, the people of Warren and vicinity assembled, and after sermon by L. G. Bingham, of Marietta, James Harvey and Catharine, his wife, James Harvey, jr., William Fleming, William Frazer and Christina, his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Fulcher, Mrs. Sarah Johnston, Samuel S. Spencer, Charles Humphreys, Mrs. Seth Bailey, and Mrs. Hezekiah Lewis presented letters of recommendation, and were duly constituted into a church of Christ, in Warren, by the Rev. A. Pomeroy, missionary.

Samuel S. Spencer and William Fleming were unanimously elected elders. On Sabbath, the day following, eight were admitted to membership on examination, viz: Ephraim Cutler, James Frazer, Mrs. Samuel S. Spencer, Mrs. Harvey Lewis, Mrs. Lucy Cooper, Sarah Smith, Sarah Cutler, and Calvina Waterman. The sermon was preached in the morning by Rev. T. Thacher, and in the afternoon by Rev. A. Pomeroy. It is recorded: "This day was one of great apparent solemnity and interest, and it is believed will be remembered forever."

The Warren church was first represented in the Athens presbytery April 17, 1828. About that time Rev. A. Kingsbury took charge. During the first two years of his pastorate two interesting revivals occurred, and sixty-six members were added to the church. Dr. Kingsbury served the church until 1839, when he accepted a call to Putnam, Ohio, to the deepest regret of the Warren church, then numbering over one hundred members.

In 1837 the present meeting-house, on the river road, was built at an expense of about one thousand four hundred dollars, which was borne mainly by Oren Newton, Ephraim Cutler, William P. Cutler, and Seth Bailey. An act incorporating the "First Presbyterian Society of Warren" was passed February 13, 1838. After Dr. Kingsbury left, the church was supplied for short seasons by Dr. Linsley, Professor Allen, and Rev. John Woodbridge. In 1841 Rev. Roswell Tenny accepted a call and remained one year. He was succeeded by Rev. Dyar Burgess, "an eccentric but strong man," who filled the pulpit two years. During this time a few additions were made to the church. During the two years' pastorate of Rev. Joseph S. Edwards, which began in 1841, twenty-seven were added to the church. Rev. Windsor A. Smith came in 1846 and was installed pastor. He was an acceptable minister, but on account of ill health resigned and retired in September, 1852. Up to this time Warren and Belpre united in sustaining a minister. It was now agreed that each church should support its own pastor.

Rev. Prof. E. B. Andrews, of Marietta college, supplied the pulpit during 1853. January 1, 1854, Rev. James S. Walton became pastor. Under his persuasive preaching a revival took place in 1856, which resulted in thirty-two accessions to the church. Mr. Walton removed to Illinois in 1858, and from that time till 1862, no record was kept. Rev. Charles D. Curtis had charge of Warren and Belpre churches from November, 1862, till June, 1866, when he was elected president of Farmers' college, Cincinnati. Rev. John L. Mills, of Marietta, supplied the pulpit until December, 1868, when John Noble was installed pastor. Mr. Noble was succeeded by Mr. Strauss in 1876. Mr. Strauss remained pastor till 1880.

The fifty-two years this church has existed, more than three hundred members have been connected with it. It has always sustained temperance and Sabbath-schools, and according to its means and numbers supported liberally, missionary and other benevolent institutions.

This church, considering its age, has had but few ruling elders. Samuel S. Spencer was a good worker particularly in the Sabbath-school. He died, much lamented, July 27, 1832. William Fleming faithfully served the church as ruling elder for a period of forty years—from its foundation till his death in 1868. He was born in 1781. April 7, 1833, Ephraim Cutler and Harry McClure were set apart as ruling elders. Mr. Cutler served the church and Sabbath-school ably and faithfully until his death July 8, 1853. He was twice a member of the Presbyterian general assembly. Mr. McClure was a delegate to the general assembly which met in St. Louis in 1855. Returning, he died of cholera on an Ohio river boat, in sight of his home, May 18, 1845. William P. Cutler and Joel Deming were made ruling elders.

Both are still living. Mr. Cutler left the place in 1872, and about that time George W. Bailey was added to the eldership.

METHODISM.

The late Bishop Morris, when a young man, preached occasionally in Warren, and was probably the pioneer preacher of the township. He formed a class in the part of the township which has since been set off to Dunham and one in the interior. A union meeting-house was built on the site of the present town-house, which was mainly used by itinerant Methodists, who carried their missionary work into the country. Had it not been for these zealous itinerants, the sparsely populated portions of the county would have been deprived of the elevating and moralizing influences of Christian preaching. A large share of the credit for the systematic organization of the church is due to Rev. Levi Cunningham, who served first as a local preacher in the community, and was finally given charge of a circuit. When the settlement began to increase more rapidly, two classes were organized, one on Brown's run called "Zoar," the other on the Lancaster road, denominated "Bethel," and churches were built and cemeteries laid out for the accommodation of both classes. "Zoar" disbanded its organization at the beginning of the Rebellion. "Bethel" continues to maintain its organization, although preaching has been temporarily suspended. Warren chapel is at present (1881) the only preaching station in the township. Its membership is partially drawn from Zoar and Bethel. Warren churches are included in Barlow circuit.

MT. MORIAH UNITED BROTHERS CHURCH.

This church was organized about 1850, at which time a log meeting-house was built near the site of the present church on the Lancaster road near Wolf creek. The congregation was connected with Plymouth circuit until 1879, when the circuit was divided and Mt. Moriah was attached to Pleasant Grove, now Watertown circuit. The ministers connected with the Plymouth circuit, a list of whom will be found elsewhere, supplied this church. Rev. Mr. Willis is the present pastor.

DISCIPLE CHURCH.

In 1862 Jesse Thomas, Samuel Sprague, Robert Smith, and a few others holding the doctrines of Alexander Campbell, met and organized a society known as the Warren Disciple church. The society has never had the services of a regular pastor, but have been irregularly supplied by various ministers, Rev. Mr. Newgen preaching most frequently. A church building was erected near the residence of Nathan Thomas in 1880. The church, although not large, is in a healthy condition.

EARLY SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

The first Sunday-school was established in Warren township by Miss Mariam Cutler, a niece of Judge Cutler, in the spring of 1819. There were at that time in the whole community but five professors of religion, and three of those were considered recent settlers. Judge Cutler writes: "At the commencement the scholars had very little previous knowledge of the design of the insti-

JESSE MELLOR.

THE OLD HOME.

MRS. JESSE MELLOR.

RESIDENCE OF J. MELLOR, WARREN TP., WASHINGTON CO., O.

tution; many of them had been in the habit of considering the Sabbath a holiday. But five were able to recite anything at the first meeting. There was, however, improvement." The following is the roll of scholars probably at the first meeting: boys—M. Cutler, William Cutler, J. Ranger, E. Smith, Seth Bailey, C. Baily, John Bailey, B. Bailey, A. Wood, William Cole, M. Wood, E. Ridgely, and W. Bailey; girls—M. Cutler, J. Cutler, C. Simpson, Sally Smith, Linda Cole, S. Jenks, D. Cole, C. Cole, C. Ridgely, M. Bailey, E. Bailey, S. Bailey, S. Harris, H. Smith, P. Smith, J. Cutler, C. Cutler, E. Cutler, and J. Ridgely. In 1836 there were three schools in the township, designated Nos. 1, 2 and 3. School No. 1 was superintended for some time by ladies. At the formation of the Presbyterian church eight scholars were received on profession and some of them were afterwards the most useful members. Four of this number had been teachers. After the establishment of the church the school was intimately connected with it. In 1836 there were sixty-one scholars, one superintendent and eight teachers, and a library of three hundred and sixty-four volumes.

School No. 2 was organized in 1833, and received through the agent of the Sunday-school union, J. M. McAboy, five dollars. Its library contained, in 1836, seventy-five volumes. There were at that time twenty-five scholars and four teachers.

School No. 3 was organized in 1833. In 1836 it had one hundred volumes in its library, three teachers and twenty scholars.

The several churches in the township maintain Sabbath-schools during the summer and others have been organized in school-houses. The three mentioned were the only early schools.

TEMPERANCE SOCIETY.

The free use of intoxicating and stimulating liquors have frequently been remarked. The much relished beverage was used to stimulate the brain and muscle while at work and to quiet the nerves during the hours of rest. A well filled bottle was the emblem of hospitality, and all grades of society united in drinking each other's health. The subscription papers of one of the oldest churches in the county show that the minister received several gallons of whiskey on account of salary and another minister of the same period owned an interest in a distillery.

That there has been a revolution of opinion on the subject of temperance is proved by the change of customs, and it is interesting to know when and in what way this revolution was effected. We shall confine ourselves to the territory which forms the subject of this chapter. Mr. Cutler says in his notes:

The first check to intemperance which had so generally prevailed as to almost forbid the hope that it could be arrested, was matured under the blessing of God through the labors of Rev. Mr. Kingsbury and a few others, it was suggested as likely to have a favorable effect to invite the Rev. John Spaulding, then living at Athens, to deliver an address on this important subject. He accepted the invitation. A committee of five was appointed and a constitution was prepared, ready for the purpose of forming a society, to be presented for signatures immediately after the address.

The meeting was held April 22, 1832. Mr. Spaulding and Mr. Kingsbury each made thrilling addresses, and we were surprised to find forty-nine pledging themselves, by signing the constitution, to abandon the use of ardent spirits, except as medicine, and we hope the entire number with nearly one hundred others whose names are added to this constitution, have remained faithful to their promise.

This temperance movement resulted in a genuine reformation. It was approved and promoted by the most influential inhabitants. Intoxicating liquors were no longer provided at huskings and raisings, and were banished from the harvest field. At first additional wages were offered, but soon all acquiesced in the innovation. Nearly half a century has passed and the good effects remain.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

JESSE MELLOR.

About the year 1795, Samuel Mellor and his brother-in-law, Matthew Corner, emigrated with their families from England, and settled on donation lands along the west branch of Wolf creek, in Watertown township. The Mellor family consisted of five sons and four daughters. One of the sons was Samuel Mellor, jr., who married Nancy Jadon, of this county, and improved a farm in the Wolf Creek bottom. Their family consisted of seven children: Susan (Dunsmore), Jesse, Mary (Adams), Prudence (Adams), Nancy (Godfrey), Joannah (Rodgers), and Walter. All of these are dead except Joannah, and Jesse, the subject of this sketch.

Jesse Mellor was born September 14, 1810. The nearest school-house being three miles distant, his early training was very limited, and the severe labor of a new farm deprived him of educational advantages later in life. He was married March 22, 1831, to Mary Ann Kidwell. He rented a farm in Wesley township, and served as a tenant four years. During that period, by industry and economical habits, he accumulated money enough to purchase a small tract of land, which he cleared, and afterwards traded for property in Marietta. In turn, the town property was exchanged for a farm on Wolf creek, above the homestead, but before removing to this place he cultivated his father's farm for a period of three years. Thirty-three years ago Mr. Mellor came into possession of his present property in Warren township.

Mary Ann Mellor, first wife of Jesse Mellor, died in February, 1844, in her thirty-fourth year, leaving seven children, all of whom are living. The children are: Mary Ann (Higgins), Harmar, born February 11, 1832; Columbus Mellor, Marietta, born November 16, 1833; Jefferson Mellor, Barlow, born March 29, 1836; Charles Mellor, Muskingum township, born April 31, 1838; Edward Mellor, Warren township, born February 10, 1840; Samuel Austin Mellor, Muskingum township, born November 23, 1841; Jane (Coffman), Warren township, born November 9, 1843.

Mr. Mellor married for his second wife, Matilda Elliott, July 12, 1845, by whom he had five children, viz: George Mellor, Warren township, born June 25, 1846; David Higgins Mellor, born May 28, 1848; Joannah (Mercer), Warren township, born March 12, 1851; Susannah Mellor, Harmar, born June 3, 1854; Thomas, born July 30, 1856, died in infancy; Mrs. Mellor died in 1865.

Mr. Mellor married for his third wife, January 1, 1866, Mrs. Ann Eliza Farrish, daughter of Joseph and Susannah Leach. Her father emigrated from Pennsylvania to Belmont county, Ohio, where she was born March 12, 1828. The family afterwards removed to this county. Her first husband was Thomas L. Farrish, who died in September, 1859, leaving three children: Virginia Ann, deceased, Tute M., and Joseph Leach. Mr. Mellor has by his third wife one son, Jesse L., born July 24, 1867.

Mr. Mellor has been during all his life a hard worker. He has cleared and improved four farms. In his clearing he departed from the general custom of the period, of making log-rolling frolics, finding it more profitable to do his own work with oxen and chains. Although never having learned the trade, Mr. Mellor is a skilled worker in wood. He has built three houses, made wagons, carts, plows, and other farming utensils for his own use and for his neighbors. In the kitchen, at the present time, stands an old-fashioned cupboard, made by him fifty years ago, with a drawing knife. He never indulged in any games, preferring to use his time more profitably making churns, buckets, etc., etc. His self-made tools and implements have frequently taken premiums at agricultural fairs.

Mr. Mellor has given special attention to fruit culture, having large plumb, peach, and apple orchards. One year he placed on exhibition, at the county fair, more than one hundred varieties of apples. Some of the specimens in the Ohio collection at the Centennial exposition were taken from his orchard. He has for many years sold fruits and vegetables to a large patronage in Marietta. He engaged in butchering and selling meat from his wagon for eight years. In addition to regular farming he has dealt largely in stock. Every agricultural fair in this county has received his support, and he always comes away with a fair share of premiums, the number at the county fair one year aggregating to forty-seven.

Mr. Mellor's habits have been unusually regular. He has never tasted strong drink or tobacco, or indulged in needless luxuries. He has never bought for his children candies, preferring to give them books for presents. He is a well preserved man, being, at the age of three-score and ten, able to fell three-foot trees, leaving "a right and left cut stump."

His first vote was for Andrew Jackson; but the next four years made him a Whig, with which party he co-operated until 1856, when he became a Republican. During the half-century he has been a voter his name has been enrolled at every election until the spring of 1881, when sickness detained him.

TIMOTHY AND SARAH H. CONE.

Timothy Cone was born in East Haddam, Connecticut, May 20, 1777. He would look back to an honorable ancestry. He was the son of Joseph Cone and Martha Spencer, the daughter of Joseph Spencer, a major general in the war of the Revolution. Her mother was Martha Brainard, the sister of David and John Brainard.

Joseph Cone, the father of Timothy, was a naval officer, and laid down his life for his country during the struggle for independence, so that Timothy never knew what it was to enjoy a father's care and protection, but his mother made good the loss as far as lay in her power. Her memory was sacred to him through all his long life. His opportunities for education were scant, and entailed a lack that he never ceased to deplore.

Soon after he attained his majority he went to Belfast, Maine, and engaged in business in which he was having good success, when he was attacked by disease and compelled to leave all and devote himself to the recovery of his health. He went to Saratoga springs and remained there eighteen months, at the end of which time the savings of the previous years were consumed, but he had received in exchange the inestimable boon—recovered health.

In the spring of 1802 he started from Saratoga, on horseback, for the Ohio. His uncle, Dr. Joseph Spencer had bought a tract of land in Virginia, six miles below Marietta and removed his family thither. Mr. Cone went to his uncle's, and his home was there until in 1806 he married Sarah H. Bailey, the daughter of Seth Bailey, who emigrated from Easton, Massachusetts, in 1804, and settled in Virginia, a few miles below Marietta.

Sarah H. Bailey was born in Easton, March 9, 1790, and was but sixteen and a half years old at the time of her marriage. They began housekeeping in a very humble way in Ohio on the bank of the river, six miles below Marietta. After a year or two Mr. Cone bought land back of the river, on what was known as the "State road," to which he removed, and there he remained four or five years, when he moved to Harmar. He lived there until 1826, when he bought a farm in Warren, four miles below Marietta, which from thenceforth became his home. The two youngest of his ten children were born there, and all grew to manhood and womanhood. Two of his children still live on the home place.

Mr. Cone felt so keenly his own want of education that he was determined to save his children, if possible, from like suffering. He was unwearied in his efforts to give them educational advantages, and counted no self denial too great if he would advance their interests in this respect. The low prices obtained for farm products at that time made it difficult to satisfy the wants and provide for the necessities of so large a family. Mr. Cone died in 1864 when nearly eighty-seven years old. His last years were clouded by the great affliction of blindness. For the greater part of twelve years he saw but dimly, and during the last two or three he saw not at all. His resignation and cheerfulness under this great affliction were something wonderful. Notwithstanding his great age his mental faculties were but little impaired at the time of his death; his memory, especially, was remarkably tenacious.

Mrs. Cone survived till 1870. She was a woman of great strength of character, of untiring industry and the most careful economy, whose home was her world. Her children "arise up and call her blessed." Mr. and Mrs. Cone were both members of the Presbyterian church, and died in the blessed hope of a glorious immortality. They are buried in Oak Hill cemetery, in Marietta.

Of their ten children seven are living. The youngest was the first to go to the "better land." Ellen married Hiram A. Peck, of Salem, Indiana, and died, leaving two children, in 1862. Deborah Packard, the eldest, married Mr. Silas Slocumb, and died in Marietta in 1863. Martha Spencer married Mr. J. B. Blackinton, who died in 1871. She and her three children live on a part of the home place. Mary is unmarried and lives in Marietta. Alice Sparrow married Edmund Brush, esq., of Zanesville, and was left a widow in 1861. She lives in Marietta. Of the four sons two are in California. George lives at Sacramento and Joseph Spencer at Red Bluff. The latter has been greatly successful in business and has accumulated a large property. Charles lives in the house his father built, and has been extending the area of his farm by adding acre to acre. Timothy is unmarried and lives in Marietta.

CHAPTER XLVII.

DUNHAM TOWNSHIP.

Establishment — Boundaries Changed — Drainage — Coal — Sandstone—The Survey—The First Improvement—Elihu Clark—The Dunhams—Description of the Forest in 1804—Inconveniences—Other Settlers—Early Events—First Tavern—Dancing—First Presbyterian Meeting—Veto, Dunham and Briggs Post Offices—Cemeteries—Agricultural Fair—Churches—First School—Public Schools—Politics—Industries.

ON THE fifth of June, 1855, the tract of territory three miles wide and eight miles long, bounded on the north by Warren and Barlow, on the east by the Ohio, on the south by Belpre, and on the west by Decatur and Fairfield, was established by the county commissioners an independent township, with corporate powers. On the petition of William P. Cutler, Dean Briggs and others, the boundary line between Warren and Dunham was changed and established as it now exists, October 19, 1855.

Along the river the hills are high and abrupt, presenting heavy sandstone ledges. The wide and fertile valley of the Little Hocking runs in a southwesterly direction through the centre of the township. The western end of the territory is drained by the Little East branch of the Hocking. The northern branches of Congress creek carry off the waters of the southwest part. The streams which empty into the Ohio are short and small. The same seam of coal found in Belpre, Fairfield and Warren, is found in Dunham. Its black stain can be seen in many places in the township. There are in places well defined strata of limestone, and some of the shales contain limestone in small concretions. Wherever these limestone concretions occur, the soil produces abundant crops. Sandstone is the characteristic rock of the hills. Large quarries have been opened along the river and in the northern part of the township, on both sides of the Little Hocking valley. The body of this rock is of excellent quality for building purposes, and the selected stone makes superior grindstones. Many of these hills were once covered with yellow pines, a tree that thrives only on highly silicious soil. The Creek valley was a dense forest of chestnut, oak and hickory—the productions of shale and limestone land. This township possessed two important natural sources of wealth, exhaustless ledges of the finest sandstone, and an abundant and valuable growth of timber. The development of the stone industry has only commenced. The forest has almost entirely passed away, the best of it in the form of barrels and casks.

The soil of the valley is well adapted to all sorts of agricultural products. Wool growing is the principal industry of the upland districts.

THE SURVEY.

This township is located in that portion of the Ohio company's purchase, which was laid out in one hundred and sixty acre lots. The ministerial section of township one, range nine, and township two, range ten, and also school section sixteen, of township two, range ten, and Congress reservation, section eleven, of township two, range ten, are included within the limits of the legal township of Dunham. Little Hocking creek flows through Congress section eleven, and school section sixteen. The ministerial sections are at the opposite ends of the township.

THE SETTLEMENT.

The first improvement on the territory of Dunham township was probably made by Elihu Clark, on school section number sixteen. He was followed by Benjamin Bickford, Hezekiah Bickford, and in 1803 Lemuel Cooper also had a cabin on the same section. At that time the forest in the direction of Marietta was unbroken as far as the squatter settlement known as Nozletown, on the Warren township bottom.

Elihu Clark was a native of Pennsylvania. He first came to Belpre township, where he worked at the carpenter trade. After he moved to the present territory of Dunham, he devoted his labor to the clearing of land and farming. He died in 1830. His wife, Helen McCune Clark, died the same year. Miller, son of Elihu Clark, was born February 24, 1799. He died November 4, 1874. Miller Clark and wife left a family of two children, Jehiel, who resides in Allen county, and Ethlinda R., wife of Samuel G. Gorham, who was killed August 9, 1864, by the explosion of an ordnance steamer, near City Point, Virginia. They had three children: Charles E., Stacy B., and Lewis C., all living in Dunham township.

Lemuel Cooper was the typical squatter of the period. He lived mostly on game and dwelt in log huts constructed with the least possible labor. He was generally found in the settlements amusing the boys with thrilling adventures and hair-breadth escapes. He was master of the boxer's art and considered himself a great fighter.

In the summer of 1803, Jonathan Dunham undertook to follow the range line from Turkey Hen creek to Belpre. He followed the line until he came to a point near the farm now owned by Sylvester Ellenwood, where he lost his bearings and had no other means of finding his way out than to follow the creek down. The land now owned by Mr. George Goddard struck his fancy, and he sought out the owner from whom he purchased the lot on long time, at two dollars an acre. This lot was divided into three parts, Jonathan Dunham taking half, Amos Dunham sixty acres, and Amos Delano twenty acres. Amos Dunham says in his address at a meeting for the celebration of the establishment of Dunham township:

In the spring of 1804, I commenced working on my lot and lived in quite a retired manner. I slept in my little camp a short distance back of where Mr. Goddard now lives; cooked my own pork and potatoes; kept a good fire in front of my camp at night; laid myself down on my bed of leaves and was soon hushed to sleep by the united melody of wolves and owls; and from Monday morning till Saturday night was not disturbed by the sight of a single human being. Every night the wolves would commence howling on one hill and be answered by another flock on another hill, and another, until it seemed the woods were full of them. Sheep had to be enclosed in yards near the house or they would be caught. I had fourteen killed in one night, one of them was not more than twelve feet from where I was sleeping.

For several years after I commenced farming, the wild turkeys would come to my fields in such numbers, after the wheat was sown, that the ground was black with them, and in the winter and spring the deer would come in droves and take what the turkeys had left.

Jonathan Dunham, in honor of whose family the township was named, was a lineal descendant of Rev. Jonathan Dunham, the first preacher at Martha's Vineyard. Each succeeding generation had left but one son to inherit the family name. Amos, after the death of his father, was the sole representative of the family. At his death the name became extinct. Betsey Dunham, only sister of Amos Dunham, was married to Asahel Hollister.

Asahel Hollister came to Washington county with his family in 1816 from Litchfield county, Connecticut, and settled in Warren, now Dunham, township. He was born in 1772, and died in 1850. His wife, Betsey (Dunham), survived him twelve years, dying in 1862. They raised a family of eight children, three dying in infancy. The only survivors are three brothers: Albert G., Jonathan J., and Whiting B. The former two reside in Dunham; Jonathan, on the old homestead where his father settled in 1816; W. B. lives in Harmar, where for nearly forty years he has been in the marble business. He began in 1844, bringing the first marble to southern Ohio. At that time there were but three pieces of marble in the cemetery and those only two inch slabs. He married in the spring of 1844 Amanda B. Burroughs, who died in 1852, and in 1853 he was married to Aurelia R. Stone, daughter of Benjamin F. Stone, who is still living.

The early settlement of the township was greatly retarded by the inconvenience of having no roads. Mills and markets were at great distances, and packing farm products on the back of a horse was slow work. Milling was particularly inconvenient, especially in dry weather, when Devol's mill on the Muskingum had to be depended upon. It not only took several days for the Dunham pioneers to go to and come from this mill, but they not unfrequently had to wait a week before their turn came for grinding.

Stephen Taylor lived where the Dunham cemetery now is, and the small stream emptying into Little Hocking, near by, was named in his honor. In a short time his house was consumed by fire. He enlisted in the War of 1812 and never returned.

Gideon Rathbun made a squatter's improvement on section eleven, near the present residence of J. J. Hollister. A man named Munn also made an improvement on the same farm. In 1816 Rathbun moved to another quarter of the same section. He was one of those eccentric wanderers so frequently met with in pioneer history, who are content as long as they have anything to eat and a place to sleep.

Benedict Rathbun, a native of Rhode Island, settled in Dunham in 1816. He was the first victim of the epidemic of 1822-3.

Thomas and Amos Delano emigrated from Connecticut to Ohio in 1804. They stopped for a short time on their way in New York. They remained in Lower Belpre until 1808, and then improved their land in Dunham. Amos owned land adjoining the farm of his stepfather, Jonathan Dunham. After his death Thomas married his widow and lived on the same farm. By her first husband, Mrs. Delano (Cynthia Cole), had two children, Julia and Lucy A., by her second husband she had five children—Lewis T.; Phoebe E.; Clark, who lives in Iowa; Amos P., and Sarah J., deceased. Lewis T., who yet resides in the township, married Mary E. Vincent. She died February 26, 1860, leaving one child, Elmer L.

Captain James Moore was in Dunham as early as 1810. His cabin stood where the house of the late Harry McClure now stands, below the narrows. He had one son and seven or eight daughters, one of whom, Melissa, was drowned in the Ohio river, near the house. Captain Moore belonged to that rough and ready, now extinct class, once so important in the commerce on our western rivers—the keel boatmen. He sometimes pushed his boat up the Big Kanawha to the salines, and returned with a cargo of salt, or made longer trips in the freighting business. He did not as others did, spend a hatful of dollars in a single spree, and come home empty handed; but he often returned from the long and tedious journey with loss rather than profit. The law at that time allowed imprisonment for debt, and Captain Moore, for this cause, was sometimes cast behind the bars. On his way to Marietta he would call at the door of Judge Cutler and say frankly: "Well, judge, I am on my way to jail and you must go bail for me," or, failing to find the judge at home, the message was left: "Tell the judge I have gone to jail and he must come up to-morrow and bail me out," which was generally done. Captain Moore was an adept in breaking and swingling flax. His labor was in great demand, and was readily promised, but the patience of the good women was often sorely tried, waiting for their flax. The late Bishop Morris, the pioneer of Methodism in this community, occasionally preached here. A class was formed and Captain Moore was appointed leader. They met at his house and were instructed to the best of their leader's ability, he being a man of good intentions. He removed with his family from the county about 1830.

Benjamin Ellenwood, a native of Maine, emigrated with his three sons—Benjamin, Daniel and Samuel—from Pennsylvania to Ohio in 1811, and settled on school section sixteen. Samuel Ellenwood was a pushing farmer and highly esteemed man in the settlement. He purchased the first wagon used on the east branch of the Little Hocking. He died June 25, 1857, in his seventy-second year. His wife died in 1862 in her seventy-sixth year. Their children were: Sylvester D., Samuel S., Milton, Harvey B., Benjamin, and Cynthia, who still reside in Dunham township, and Augustus and Corinda (Chevalier), who reside in Iowa.

Sylvester Ellenwood married Lucy A., daughter of Amos Dunham. She died December 3, 1862. The maiden name of his second and present wife was Mary Chevelier. These two marriages were blessed with eight sons and one daughter, four of whom are living—Horace D., Orville O., Lowell W., and Cynthia A.—the two oldest and two youngest. Sylvester Ellenwood owns a fine farm in the north part of the township on Little Hocking. The first improvement was made on this farm by Francis Dilly.

Milton Ellenwood, a son of Benjamin Ellenwood, jr., was born January 7, 1817. September 23, 1840, he married Sophronia Needham, a daughter of Jasper Needham, who, with his brother Stephen, settled in the township in 1816. The family of Milton Ellenwood and wife consists of two sons and five daughters, three of whom reside in Dunham township—Rowena R., Oscar N., and Ida E.; Flora B. (Gard) resides in Barlow township; Milton E., in Clay county, Kansas; Parmelia S. (Starkweather), in Hamilton, Illinois; Delia L. Lewis, in Iowa.

Harvey B. Ellenwood, a son of Samuel Ellenwood, was born August 7, 1822. He married, May 1, 1856, Elizabeth A. Paulley, who was born September 11, 1823. The fruit of this marriage was three children, two of whom—Kemper D. and Ella L.—reside in Dunham township. Samuel E. is dead.

Amos Paulley, father of Mrs. Ellenwood, came to Belpre in 1818, and died there in 1825.

Frederick Lewis is one of the principal real estate owners of the township. His farm of three hundred and twenty acres lies along the Ohio river. Benoni Lewis, his father, was born in Rhode Island in 1752. In 1802 he emigrated with his family to Virginia, and in 1807 settled on the Ohio side. He had been captain of an ocean ship and was employed during the Revolution in the commissary department. He died in 1821. Mary Walton Lewis, his wife, was born in Connecticut in 1753, and died in 1845. Frederick is the only one of eleven children yet living. He was born in Rhode Island in 1793. At the breaking out of the War of 1812 he enlisted, but was rejected on account of physical infirmity.

Loring W. Lewis, a son of Henry, and grandson of Benoni Lewis, was born in Massachusetts in 1805. He came to Ohio with his father in 1813, and in 1835 married Caroline Cole, who was born in 1811. Henry Lewis was born in 1779 in Connecticut. After living in Ohio for a period he moved to Illinois, where he died in 1847.

Hapgood Goddard, a native of New Hampshire, settled in Washington county in 1814. He was married to Rebecca Wood. His death occurred in Fairfield township in 1866. The surviving members of his family are Eliza, Wesley township; William P. P., Wesley township; Abram W., Fairfield township; Julia P., Jackson county, Ohio; Sarah S., Missouri; Charles H., Fairfield township; George R., Dunham; and Lucy, Fairfield. George R. married Ester J. Smith April 7, 1867. She is a daughter of Carmi Smith, of Fairfield township. The fruit of this marriage was four children, three of whom are living, viz: Loring H., Selvan C., and Harford H.

The first settler of the territory west of the Little Hocking valley was Joseph Tilton, who moved from Belpre township and made an improvement in that part of the township in 1817.

In 1820 James Harvey and family, Daniel Shaw, and William Fleming came from Scotland, and sought homes in Washington county. Mr. Harvey settled on the farm now owned by Neil McTaggart. Mr. Shaw purchased land in the back part of the township where he resided until his death in 1871. His widow, Catharine McKay Shaw, still resides on the farm. He had ten children, eight sons and two daughters, of whom six are living.

Thomas and Samuel Drain, sons of Daniel and Jeanette Templeton Drain, emigrated from Argyleshire, Scotland, and settled in Washington county; Thomas in Waren township, and Samuel in Dunham. October 28, 1841, Samuel married Isabella Dunlap, who was born in Argyleshire, Scotland, in July, 1818. Six sons and two daughters blessed this union, viz: John D., Daniel (deceased), Roland S., Daniel R., Jeanette, Mary, Thomas, and James N., all of whom reside in this township except three—Jeanette, McFarlan, Barlow township; Robert in Illinois, and Daniel R. in Adams county, Iowa.

Almond Henderson, a grandson of Edward Henderson, is the principal proprietor of school section sixteen. Edward Henderson was a native of Glasgow, Scotland, whence he emigrated to Massachusetts and then to Washington county, where he was employed as a spy. Josiah Henderson, of Belpre, and James, who was born in 1791 and died in 1835, were his sons. James married Jane Lucas, daughter of Nathaniel Lucas, who was born in 1805. They had three sons—Israel, Almond, and Edward. Israel lives in Minnesota, and Edward in Vinton county, Ohio. On March 10, 1859, Almond married Jane Dunlap, who was born March 17, 1818. The fruit of this marriage was one daughter—Elizabeth.

John Mitchel, the son of Hugh Mitchel was born September 8, 1835. Hugh Mitchel emigrated from Scotland in 1841 and first settled in Barlow township. He afterward located in Dunham, where he died October 5, 1856, in his forty-ninth year. He married Margaret Dunlap, who was born in 1815, and is still living.

The surviving members of the family are: John, living in Dunham township; Jeanette Drain, in Belpre; Robert, in Boone county, Illinois; Jane, in Winnebago county, Illinois; Mary, in Wood county, West Virginia; Hugh, in Belpre township, and Archibald B. in Boone county, Illinois. John was married to Hannah E. Burnett, February 26, 1863. They have a family of seven children, three sons and four daughters, viz: Charles H., Mary A., Maggie E., Sarah B., Nettie M., John E., and Daniel T. All are living in Dunham township.

Charles O. Pond is descended from one of the earliest settlers of Barlow township. His great-grandfather, Samuel B. Pond, came to that township from Vermont. Leonidas P., a son of Samuel B. Pond, was born May 23, 1826, and died January 25, 1874. November 23, 1854 he married Mary M. Gard, daughter of Hiram Gard, who was born March 31, 1834. They had four children: Hiram O., Charles V., Beman L., and Sylvester P. Hiram O. lives in Columbus, the other three live in Dunham township.

In 1815 Alexander Calder settled near the present line between Warren and Dunham townships. He was born in 1789 in New York, where he married Phoebe Mabey, about 1810. She was born in New York in 1780 and died in 1820, having had six children, of whom but one survives—Margaret (Swan) of Meigs county. He was married in 1825 to Cecy Casey, who was born at Fairfax, Virginia, in 1800. The fruit of this union was six children, five of whom survive, viz: William, David B., Philip C., and Wallace, who reside in Dunham township, and Van Buren who lives in Belpre township. Alexander died in 1848. During the War of 1812, Mr. Calder was living in Canada. He was imprisoned as a citizen of the United States, but soon received his pardon. After coming to Washington county, he opened a large stone quarry on his farm and engaged in the manufacture of grindstones.

David B., son of Alexander Calder, was born in 1829. In 1855 he married Mary E. McClure, who was born in 1832. Their family consists of five children: Ida L., Flora M., Witmer A., Stella E., and David R. Mr. Calder's connection with the stone producing and manufacturing industry, is fully noted further along.

William Calder, oldest son of Alexander Calder, was born in 1827. In 1857 he married Jane H. King, who was born in Pittsburgh in 1838. They have seven children, viz: Mary R., Clara Estella, Geneverive M., Lizzie Gertrude, Louis W., Mable L., and Myrtle L. Both William and D. B. Calder have worked in the quarries along the river ledges all their lives. Their quarries produce stone of superior quality.

Harry McClure, son of Andrew McClure, of Waterford township, was born in Waterford township in 1803. In 1827 he married Lavinia Humiston, daughter of Jasen Humiston, of Watertown. She was born about 1805. They had nine children, seven of whom are living. The military record of the sons deserves special mention in this connection: Emeline lives at home; William lives in Sioux city, Iowa; Mary, wife of D. B. Calder, in Dunham; Andrew J., in Lincoln, Nebraska;

Henry O., in Missouri; Theodore died from sickness contracted in the army. He was wounded at Shiloh, and was color bearer at Mission Ridge; Dyar B. died in 1862, from the effects of a wound received at Lewisburgh, West Virginia; William was train master for the Thirty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry, and Andrew in the First Iowa infantry and First Iowa battery. Alonzo went out in the hundred days' service. Harry McClure died in Dunham township in 1855.

William P. Cole, a son of Philip Cole, was born in Warren township in 1814. In 1840 he married Louisa Shield, who was born in Wood county, West Virginia, in 1810. They have had eight children, five of whom are living: Sarah S., David, Philip S., Effie and Arthur W.

Freman Hopkins emigrated from Connecticut, and settled in Warren township in 1816. He soon removed however, to the part of Dunham which was formerly included in Belpre, where he died in 1857, aged seventy-two years. In 1808 he married Sarah Leech, who was born in Sharon, Connecticut, in 1790. She died in 1856. When Mr. Hopkins came to Ohio, he was a poor man. He worked at the shoemaker trade in winter, and farmed during the summer. By that means he acquired financial independence. He had eleven children, eight of whom are living: Joline P., Mrs. Harrington, Louisa, Frances (Burrows), Sarah and Morgan live in Dunham; Mrs. Annie Patton lives in Watertown, and Mrs. Henriette Crosen lives in Barlow.

Joline P. Hopkins was born in 1809, in Connecticut. In 1835 he married Electa French, who was born in the part of Dunham formerly included in Warren in 1817. They had six children: Le Roy lives at home; Isaac, in Barlow township; Mrs. Melissa Martin, in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Nettie Meddlesweart, in Warren. Mr. Hopkins owns and lives on the farm formerly owned by his father-in-law, Isaac French.

William Seffens, a native of Lancashire, England, emigrated to America in 1841, and settled in Pennsylvania, where he remained until 1850, when he came to Dunham township. Both Mr. Seffens and his wife, Ann Shackleton, were born in 1801. She died in 1849; he in 1858. They had fourteen children, six of whom are living: Mary Ann (Taylor), of Highland county; Sarah (Perdew), Warren township; Hannah (Welschhaus), Allegheny, Pennsylvania; Elizabeth (Eaton), Allegheny, Pennsylvania; Jane Hanna, of Warren township; and John, Dunham township. John, youngest son of William Seffens, was born in 1838. In 1869 he married Harriet Taylor, who was born in England in 1837. They have had ten children, of whom the following are living, viz: James, John, Ann, Edward, Joseph, Hugh, and Flora. Mr. Seffens gives particular attention to sheep-raising.

William Mankin emigrated from Maryland to Ohio in 1824, and settled in the part of Dunham township formerly included in Warren. He died in 1870, in his ninetieth year. His wife, Elizabeth Carey, was born in 1783, and died in 1875. They had four children. William F., Francis F., and John live in Dunham township; Joseph W. lives in Henry county, Illinois. William F.

Mankin was born in 1816. In 1839 he married Harriet Dodge, who was born in Delaware in 1820. They have four children. Charity, Ezra, and Rhoda (Bingham) live in Dunham; Martha (Beech), in Barlow.

Alexander McTaggart was born in Argylshire, Scotland, in 1817. He emigrated to America in 1838, his older brother, Neil, having preceded him about five years. Neil had made a permanent settlement in the part of Dunham formerly included in Belpre, and Alexander on arriving joined him. In 1843 he married Jeanette Fleming, who was born in 1823. They have one child, Alexander, who lives at home. When Mr. McTaggart came to Ohio he was in debt. He is now one of the wealthiest men in the township.

EARLY EVENTS.

The first frame house in the township was built for Amos Dunham, by a carpenter named Graves.

A tavern was opened near the head of Neil's island, in 1805, by Nathan Cole. One large room was suitable for dancing, and parties frequently gathered there to practice the art, which was much cultivated at that time. Willard Green was the usual fiddler. The ideal of grace in dancing was to keep the body erect and steady and move with a noiseless step. Some attained such proficiency that they could perform any of the fashionable dances of the day with a butter bowl on their heads.

Mr. Cole sold his tavern stand to James Harvey, and it was in the ball-room of this building that the first Presbyterian meeting was held between Belpre and Marietta. In this room the first steps were taken toward the organization of the Presbyterian church of Warren.

POST OFFICES.

There are in this township no villages, but the citizens have nothing to complain of in the way of postal facilities, there being an office at each end and one near the centre of the territory.

Veto was the first post office established within the present limits of the township. William Chevalier was commissioned postmaster in 1850. He was succeeded by Mr. Deshler. Malcolm Shaw has held the office a number of years.

Dunham post office was established in 1857. Postmasters—Jasper Needham, J. J. Hollister, and Justine Hollister.

In 1875 the citizens along the river asked for an office in their neighborhood. Their petition was granted and Briggs post office established in March of that year. William Calder, the present incumbent, was appointed to take charge of the office.

CEMETERIES.

The first cemetery within the present limits of Dunham township is located on Hocking, near the mouth of Taylor's run. Upon the death of Lucinda, a daughter of Amos Dunham, a small lot was set apart by Jonathan Dunham as a public burying-ground. This lot next passed into possession of Betsey Hollister and from her to her son, R. D. Hollister. It was transferred by him to George and Charles Goddard, who made it a public cemetery and placed it under the charge of the township trustees.

The cemetery on the Shaw farm, near Veto post office, was set apart for the use of the public upon the death of Joseph Tilton, one of the first settlers of that section of the township. It has been extensively used by the citizens of Scotch descent.

The burying-ground on the farm now owned by L. D. Hopkins was fenced off for burial purposes at the death of Isaac French, who was at the time of his death owner of the farm.

AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATION.

About 1850 the farmers of Dunham fell into the habit of holding plowing exhibitions, which excited a great deal of interest throughout the community. These tests of skill soon became more general, and finally grew into a general agricultural fair. An association, of which J. J. Hollister was chosen president, was formed, grounds near Veto post office were leased and improved, and interesting annual exhibitions were held until the second year of the war, when for various reasons the enterprise was abandoned.

CHURCHES AND SOCIETIES.

It was said of Dunham township at the time of its establishment in 1855, that neither a church nor a saloon was located within its boundaries. There had been churches, and a church has since been built, but no one has ever engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors.

A temperance society, which was organized in 1837, exercised an important influence. Its membership was composed of the leading citizens, who felt the necessity of a revolution of opinion relative to the free use of distilled liquors. This society was under charge of men of sense and experience, and avoided those extremes into which similar associations too frequently fall. Meetings were held at private houses and at school-houses; meetings were addressed by members and others, and conversation relative to the subject freely indulged in by all. In that way a healthy public sentiment was created, without which reform of any kind is impossible. After a number of years, meetings ceased to be held and the organization broke up, its purposes having to a considerable degree been accomplished.

As in most other rural communities, the Methodist was the pioneer church. A class was formed soon after the first settlement, which was supplied by the preachers of Marietta circuit and later by those of Barlow circuit. A frame building was erected about 1830 on the Little Hocking, in which services were held occasionally until 1855. The building was removed before the war.

A Universalist society was organized by members from the Belpre church in 1845. This society was ministered to by Thompson Barron and J. M. McMaster. Meetings were held in school-houses. The society was never strong in numbers, and soon dissolved and reunited with the Belpre church.

The opening up of extensive quarries along the Little Hocking brought to the township many laborers, most of whom were members of the United Brethren church.

They naturally desired a house of worship, but felt themselves unable to bear the expense of building. William P. Cutler, who at that time was operating the principal quarries, donated a lot, and in 1871 erected a neat frame church, which bears the name "Cutler chapel." He deeded this property to the "United Brethren church," specifying, however, that the house should always be open for the use of all denominations. When Mr. Cutler's quarries in that community ceased to be operated, many of the members were thrown out of employment and the congregation became small. Preaching service is yet maintained. It was connected with Plymouth circuit until 1879; since that time with Watertown circuit.

SCHOOLS.

The earliest settlers along the Little Hocking sent their children to school at Belpre, where Amos Dunham was the teacher. About 1814, a school-house was built by subscription on the Goddard farm. In this house the first, and for a long time the best, school within the present territory of the town was maintained. Ethinda Clark taught there in the summer of 1816 and the following winter Samuel Clark from Massachusetts was the teacher. In 1818, Dr. Robertson, a superannuated physician from New Jersey, taught a family-school at the house of Asahel Hollister where he lived. During the next winter he taught in the school-house. In 1820, a log school-house was built near the forks of the Little Hocking. During the following winter this school was taught by Amos Dunham and attended by seventy scholars. An anecdote is told in this connection of the eccentric Gideon Rathbun. Scholars under a certain age were received at half price, and the subscription paper in consequence showed many halves the subscriptions running, "scholars, three and a half, two and a half, etc. Gideon determined to be accurate, wrote his subscription "scholars, 20 halves" (Two scholars, no halves) succeeding teachers in this school were: R. D. Hollister, Jonah Robbins, Sally Smith, Mr. Tenny, W. B. Hollister, J. J. Hollister, Mr. Proctor, and others. Mr. Proctor has since become one of the leading journalists of Iowa.

The second school-house in the township was built near the river, but this in early times was regarded an inferior school, the more advanced pupils of the northern part of the neighborhood going to Warren and those in the southern, to Belpre. The third was west of the Little Hocking. The house was built by a portion of those who had formerly belonged to the Hocking district. Mr. Hand and A. G. Hollister were the first teachers. The township, after its establishment in 1855, was divided into five full and two fractional districts. The compliments of the fractional districts are in Belpre, in which township one of the school-houses is located. The houses in this township are generally comfortable, and good talent is employed.

ELECTIONS.

The first election was held June 30, 1855, at the school-house near the forks of the Little Hocking. Succeeding elections were held for a few years at the same place, afterwards at Glendale school-house in the Hollister settlement. In 1871 a town-house was built, where elections have since been held.

In politics Dunham has always been Democratic, the lowest majority for that party having been nineteen in 1861.

STONE QUARRIES AND GRINDSTONE MANUFACTURE.

The first stone quarries in Dunham were opened up by Averal Harris, Mr. Schwan and Oren Newton about 1820. At this time there was no demand for building stone, but the manufacture of grindstones was found a profitable industry. Flat-boats were used exclusively for transporting the handcut stones down the river to the Cincinnati market, and walking back was part of the business. A. Calder opened a fine quarry in the river ledges, and as navigation improved, the industry grew in extent and importance. Along the Little Hocking the industry was carried on most extensively in 1870-71, by the Ohio River Stone company, William P. Cutter, Malcolm Blue and O'Connor & Blue. O'Connor & Blue at present operate the largest quarries in this section of the stone district.

A. B. and W. Calder have been operating extensive quarries along the river since 1870. The piers for the railroad bridge at Parkersburgh, and the stone for the ornamental work of the Episcopal church at Parkersburgh came from their quarry. An establishment was erected near the river, by Mr. O'Connor for sawing out building stone, but did not prove as successful as was anticipated.

Well informed operators estimate that the sandstone ledges in Dunham and Warren township have already been the source of more than three hundred thousand dollars revenue. These stone in quality, are unexcelled anywhere on the continent, are convenient both to river and railroad and will for years be the source of great wealth.

COOPERING.

The number of fine chestnut-oaks in the forest determined the industry of the pioneer community. Many farmers became coopers, and trained tradesmen engaged in the business of making barrels, for which there was a constant demand. The home consumption of farm products was at that time very small, and slack barrels were required for shipping apples, potatoes, etc., to Cincinnati, New Orleans, and other markets. Meat tubs and other casks were also extensively manufactured in this portion of the county.

NOTE.—Whenever the term Dunham township is used in the preceding narrative, the territory within the boundaries of the legal township, as established in 1855, is meant.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH.

GEORGE R. GODDARD.

One of the most prosperous and well-known farmers in Washington county is Mr. G. R. Goddard, of Dunham township. His father, Hapgood Goddard, was one of the early settlers of the county.

RESIDENCE OF G. R. GODDARD, DUNHAM TP., WASHINGTON CO., O.

Hapgood Goddard was born in Swansey, New Hampshire, April 12, 1783. His father was the minister of the Congregational church in Swansey, for over twenty years. He was rather too liberal in his theological views for large popularity in those strict, old Puritan days. Hapgood Goddard married, on May 7, 1807, Miss Rebecca Wood, who was born in Chesterfield, New Hampshire, August 29, 1787. Her father was minister of the Congregational church in Chesterfield for fifty-one years. He was of the most rigid, orthodox views.

Mr. Goddard, at the time of his marriage, was engaged in the mercantile business, but his business was broken up by Jefferson's embargo, he having at the time a large amount of produce on hand. He settled up his business as far as he was able, leaving only two hundred dollars unpaid. The creditor of this debt bade him go and prosper, and pay the debt when he was able. Mr. Goddard then started for Ohio on horseback. This was in 1812. He came to Washington county, and, while in Belpre, heard the Governor strongly denounced for the war in a Fourth of July oration. He was satisfied with what he saw of the country, and returned for his family. The family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Goddard and three children, commenced their journey in September 1814, in a wagon drawn by a team consisting of one blind mare, and another one twenty-one years old. With this team they started for Belpre, Washington county, Ohio, eight hundred miles distant, and that, too, over the mountains across which there were no roads.

At one time in the journey he was within hearing of the battle of Plattsburgh, but so tardy was communication in those early days that he reached the Ohio river before he heard the result of the battle. At another time, while in the mountains, they were belated, and the night came upon them before they could find a lodging place. While they were travelling in almost total darkness, the wagon upset. Mr. Goddard spread a blanket on the ground, and here his wife seated herself, took one child in her lap and one under each arm, and waited while her husband went, she knew not how far, for help to right the wagon. At that time the woods were full of bears and other wild animals. No doubt her heart leaped with joy when, after an anxious suspense, lights appeared, and her husband came with three men to help them on.

Mr. Goddard arrived in Marietta in October, 1814, with a two-dollar and a three-dollar bill in his pocket. The ferryman over the Muskingum refused to take either of these, saying that they were counterfeit. On their arrival at Major Putnam's, in Belpre, the bills were found to be genuine. Mr. Goddard immediately returned to pay the ferryman. He found his bill charged to "Mr. Yankee," the ferryman never expecting to see him again.

The family lived for one year on Blennerhassett's island, and one year in what is known as the "Old Beebe house," in Belpre. During the winter of 1816-17 Mr. Goddard taught school, and in March, 1817, moved his family to what was then known as "White Oak settlement," in Wooster township. Here they underwent such hardships, frequent in that early day, as the present generation would consider unendurable. There was scarcely any money. But the greatest cause of distress was the lack of salt; Mr. Goddard paid four dollars for a hundred pounds, and carried it from the river on his horse. At this time wheat would not bring twenty-five cents a bushel.

It was during his residence in Wooster township that Wesley and Fairfield townships were made. He was clerk of these townships for many years. He was a candidate for commissioner at one time. Although his party were largely in the minority, yet he lacked but five votes of an election, his personal popularity outweighing much party prejudice.

In 1837 he returned to his native State and paid his last debt of two hundred dollars. After visiting his friends he returned to Ohio, about the fourth of July, 1837. His return trip was the fourth one he had made over those eight hundred miles on horseback. Each time he made the trip in sixteen days. He made the trip once in a wagon, when he brought his family out, in twenty-eight days. As late as 1837 there was no better means of travelling than by horses.

In 1847 Mr. Goddard retired from active life, and his two sons, C. H. and G. R., took charge of the farm of one hundred and seventy acres which he had acquired, and also his stock. After this date he lived with his son, C. H. Goddard, of Fairfield township, until his death, which occurred January 21, 1865, he being eighty-two years old. His wife survived him ten years, dying at the same place February 27, 1875, at the age of eighty-eight years.

Mr. and Mrs. Goddard had ten children, five sons and five daughters; of these, eight are now living; their names and births are as follows: Frances Amanda, born February 17, 1810, died August 19, 1844; Edward Hapgood, born May 20, 1811, died November 27, 1853; Eliza Alvisa, born January 23, 1813; William Pitt Putnam, born December 24, 1814; Abraham Wood, born March 11, 1817; Julia Putnam, born September 30, 1819; Sarah Loring, born February 19, 1822; Charles Howe, born December 24, 1824; George Rodney, born April 7, 1827; Lucy Eaton, born September 1, 1829.

Mr. Goddard was a man of intense energy and indomitable will. Such characteristics were necessary to conquer the difficulties of those early days. He was devoted to his family, and, being a man of good education himself, determined that all his children should have as good an education as could be gotten at that day. He was very poor and scarcely able to pay their school bills. The following incident will serve to illustrate the straits to which he was put to meet these demands.

At one time a Mr. Dexter taught a six-months' school. Mr. Goddard sent his children but was not able to pay the tuition in money, and so an agreement was made with the teacher, who consented to take his pay in tow-and-linen cloth. Mrs. Goddard spun and wove thirty-two yards to pay his bill.

By such determination and such sacrifices this worthy couple succeeded in giving all their children the best education that could be gotten in those days. By such energy, also, Mr. Goddard acquired a comfortable fortune, having started out with almost nothing. He was a man of most scrupulous honesty, as instances of his carefulness in paying his last debt in New Hampshire, even when he had to wait twenty-three years to do it. Both he and his wife were earnest Christians, being members of the Universalist church. His wife was for many years a member of the Methodist church, but in the latter part of her life joined her husband in the Universalist church.

George R. Goddard was born April 7, 1827, in Wesley township, Washington county, Ohio. He was the youngest of Hapgood Goddard's five son's, and the next to the youngest child in the family. He lived on the old place until he was thirty-two years old, and received his education in the school near his father's house. When he was twenty years old, he and his brother, C. H., as has been already stated, took charge of his father's farm. In 1859 he removed to his present farm in Dunham township. On the seventh of April, 1867, he married Miss Esther J. Smith, daughter of Carmi Smith, of Fairfield township, who was born May 2, 1843, in Homer township, Morgan county, Ohio. When she was four years old her parents moved back to Fairfield township, Washington county, where they reside. Mr. and Mrs. Goddard have had four children, whose names are as follows: Loring Hapgood, born December 21, 1869; an infant, who died twelve days after its birth, born October 6, 1873; Selvin Carmi, born October 1, 1876; Harford Bishop, born March 28, 1878. Mr. Goddard has a farm of six hundred acres and a fine residence in Dunham township. He makes a specialty of stock-raising, and is particularly interested in the raising of short-horned cattle. He is one of the most wealthy and influential citizens of the township.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

LAWRENCE TOWNSHIP.

General Physical Features and Geological Formation—First Settlement—Old Families—Eccentric Characters—German Emigration—Scotch Emigration—Organization of Government—List of First Voters—Schools—Religious Societies—Cemeteries—Early Sunday-schools—First Children's Home—Post Offices—Societies—Physicians—Oil Production—Population.

LAWRENCE is the only square township in the county. Its territory bounded on the north by Liberty, on the east by Independence, on the south by Newport, and on the west by Fearing, is coextensive with township No. 3, range seven, in the original survey. In its physical features this township is peculiarly interesting, for by the relief-forms is shown the geological formation which makes possible the existence of the chief source of wealth. The Little Muskingum enters at the northeast corner and flows diagonally across this township, dividing it into two almost equal parts. Along its entire course narrow alluvial bottoms lie between the shallow channel and the steep ascent to the high plateaus on either side. The territory is divided into three surface slopes, one toward the northwest and emptying its waters into the Little Muskingum, one toward the southeast and emptying its waters into the same stream, and the third in the northwest corner, sloping toward the west and emptying its waters into Duck creek. The principal streams of the southwestward slope are Cow run, Bear run, and Archer's fork. The streams of the southeastward slope are Morse run and Fifteen creek. Whippel's fork, a tributary of Duck creek, rises in the northward slope. These streams, which on account of the rapid descent of the general slope are very swift, flow through narrow channels from which rise steep and sometimes precipitous hills to the elevated plateaus above. The surface on these elevations between these streams is comparatively level, and the soil is productive. The smaller streams are numerous and their valleys are narrow and deep, thus cutting the elevated table lands into small and irregular tracts, giving the country a rough and broken appearance.

Cow run, which we shall frequently have occasion to mention in this history, rises on the ridge in the southeastern part of the township, flows westerly and empties into the Little Muskingum about one mile from the Newport township line. The name of this stream, though not euphonious, is suggestive. There are saline springs along the entire valley, which before the land was fenced attracted cattle from the territory for miles around. This was the creek on which the milkmaid was accustomed to find her cows, and it is not strange that Cow run soon became the common designation.

Bear run, which rises in the highlands in the southeastern part of the township and takes a northwesterly direction, derives its name from an event in the life of Archer, the hunter. It is said that on the banks of this stream Archer met a bear in a hand to paw combat in which the veteran hunter triumphed, not, however, without receiving severe injuries. His thigh was horribly minced and his life barely saved.*

Archer's fork properly belongs to Independence, only about one mile of its course being in Lawrence. The sources of Fifteen creek are in Liberty township and along the water-shed between the basins of Duck creek and the Little Muskingum. It flows almost due south and empties into Little Muskingum near the centre of the township. Morse run has its source in the water-shed, and empties into the Little Muskingum about two miles above the mouth of Cow run. The hill, along this stream are the highest in the township. These hills were once thickly covered with fine chestnut trees, and the first industry in the township was the manufacture of chestnut shingles. One of the principal operators was a man named Morse, who had a cabin in the wilderness and after whom the stream was named. Little Morse run is a stream flowing into Morse run from the northwest. Cow run flows through a ravine known as Dark Valley, which requires special mention. Here the channel of the stream is very narrow, and its course is due north and south. A range of hills on each side rises almost perpendicularly to the altitude of four hundred feet above the level of the stream. A series of conical peaks castellate these ranges and present a strikingly picturesque scene. From the bottom of the valley the sun can never be seen more than four hours during the day, hence the name Dark Valley.

*Another and more commonly accepted origin for the name of this stream is that a bear was killed in the valley through which it flows in comparatively recent times.

THE SOIL AND CROPS.

The body of the soil on the terraces is red sand, sufficiently mixed with disintegrated limestone to make it fertile. Where the limestone is wanting satisfactory production can only be secured by the liberal application of fertilizers. In most portions of the township the land is naturally productive and easily cultivated. Wheat yields fairly, and of late years tobacco culture has been extensively and successfully pursued. The rich loam of the Little Muskingum valley yields large crops of Indian corn. That Lawrence is adapted to stock-raising is proved by the experience of the Scotch settlement in the north part of the township, a notice of which will be found further on. The German settlement in the north-west corner of the township occupies, probably, the most sterile portion, but under industrious and careful cultivation the hills in that section, once considered valueless, are enriching their owners.

But it is not fertility of soil that gives the lands of Lawrence their chief value. Nature has deposited her richest treasures in the underlying strata. Before, however, we proceed to the history of the discovery and production of petroleum, it will be necessary to study briefly

THE GEOLOGICAL FORMATION.

Oil is found only where there are fissures or breaks in the rock strata, caused by subterranean disturbance. At the time these fissures were formed they extended to great depths, and through them vapors from the distillation of bituminous materials came up, condensed to a liquid state and filled the pores and crevices.

There is in Lawrence township a well marked uplift, the centre of which is on the hill on the south side of Cow run, near the line of the Exchange company's territory. From this point the axis of the break slopes gradually toward the north until at Burning Spring, on Fifteen, the anticlinal feature is scarcely perceptible. The eastern and western dips on Cow run are very rapid, and oil men are guided by surface indications where to locate wells. Further north on Morse run and Fifteen, the surface indications of subterranean fissures are so slight that it is impossible to locate them. The break also declines from Cow run toward the south, and is no longer perceptible at Eight Mile run.

The best coal mines in the township are on Morse run, where the seam on the Myers and Martin farms is three and one-half to four feet thick. The Exchange company obtains the coal with which to operate their oil wells on their own territory on Cow run.

On the summit of the uplift the first sandrock which contains oil lies one hundred and thirty-five feet below the bed of the stream, and the second sandrock containing oil is four hundred feet deeper. Oil is found on Fifteen creek in blue shale at the depth of four hundred feet, and on Morse run in first sandrock.

There are a few salt springs in the township, and water, laden with saline materials, has been struck during the sinking of oil wells.

THE FOREST.

The terrace woodlands originally consisted of tall, straight poplars, heavy chestnuts and majestic oaks, with smaller timber intervening. Small pines, buckeye, ash, sugar, beech and hickory also abounded, making the forest almost impenetrable; wide-spreading sycamores skirted the streams, and but few spots of surface were exposed to the sun. This dense forest was inhabited by wolves, bears, deer, wild-cats, panthers, raccoons, foxes, and the other smaller and more common animals. Altogether this tract of territory presented few attractions for the emigrant in search of a home, and the comparative tardiness of settlement is not to be wondered at. Bears greatly annoyed the earliest settlers by carrying off their hogs and other domestic animals, but they retreated when the work of clearing began to be pushed. Wolves remained until a later date. Deer have many years since ceased to run the hills, but foxes are yet numerous.

Thus nature has left Lawrence township with a surface broken and hilly, with a soil variable in fertility, but on the whole inferior, with productive seams of good coal and underlying rocks filled with petroleum. The civil history of a community depends so much upon the geography of the territory occupied that a previous knowledge of natural environments is necessary to a correct understanding of its social and industrial development.

THE SETTLEMENT.

It is not definitely known who the first settler of Lawrence was. The Dye family, the Hoff family, and the Chambers family all made permanent improvements in the Little Muskingum valley before 1810. As would be expected, the first settlers chose the rich bottom land along the river, the more distant terraces not being entered till comparatively recent times.

John Dye and Samuel Dye emigrated from Virginia and settled in the valley of the Little Muskingum, a short distance above the mouth of Cow run, in 1805. A few years later their father, John Dye, sr., with the remainder of the family, settled in the same neighborhood. John Dye, second, was born in New Jersey, in 1774. He emigrated with his family to Virginia, and then to Ohio, and settled in Lawrence township. He was married to Hannah Hoff, who was born in 1774, and died in 1857. He died during the epidemic of 1823. They had eleven children: Enoch, who died at the age of twenty; Thomas, Mophet, Susan, wife of Robert Pierce, of Newport township; Eliza, wife of Nathan Davis; Samuel, second, esq., a resident of Warren township; Emma, wife of William Chambers; Daniel, deceased; John W.; A. Jackson, and Hannah, wife of George Casady, of Newport township.

A. Jackson Dye, son of John Dye, jr., was born in 1816, in Lawrence township. In 1838 he married Maria Petty, who was born in 1818. He owns one hundred acres of the old homestead. His family consists of nine children: D. H., who resides in Lawrence township; L. P., in Marietta; P. C., in Nebraska; G. P., in Marietta; William A., in Nebraska; H. M., wife of Gideon Campbell, on Cow run; S. A., in Lawrence township; Lottie and Emma at home.

Samuel Dye, brother of John Dye, jr., is well remembered by the older citizens of the township. He emigrated from Virginia and began life among the wooded hills of Lawrence, in 1805. He died in 1860, at the age of eighty-one years. Susan Hoff, his wife, was born in Virginia, in 1776 and died in 1849. The family consisted of ten children: John H., the oldest, was born in Virginia, in 1799. In 1822 he married Eliza O'Brien, who was born in New York in 1803. The remaining children of Samuel Dye were: Hannah, first wife of Joseph Caywood; Sophia, wife of Amos Dye, second; Betsy, wife of Ezekial Dye, second; Mary, wife of Ezekial Reed; Annie, wife of William Templeton, and afterwards of William McGee; Jonathan and James H., of Marietta; Nancy, wife of John R. Hill, of Newport township; and George, deceased. Hannah and Sophia married cousins of their father; Betsy and Mary their second cousins.

When Samuel and John Dye settled in Lawrence township, the nearest post office was Marietta, and the tract of country toward the north was an unbroken wilderness. The native animals of the forest nightly visited the improvement in search of prey. Domestic animals were in constant danger, and even children were unsafe beyond sight of the cabin. In dry weather the nearest mill was at Devol's dam, twelve miles away, which could only be reached by traversing a cow path through the woods. Samuel Dye was a man of eccentric appearance. In cold weather a long cloak, covered with shorter capes, the number depending on the temperature, protected his tall and corpulent body. He was always in a good humor and called everybody "bub," which gave him the nickname "bub Sam." The electors of his township made him justice of the peace for thirty-one successive years. The brothers and sisters of John and Samuel Dye were: Jane, wife of Henry Chamberlain; Polly, wife of James Hoff; Ezekiel and Jonathan, farmers of Lawrence township; Bettie, Sallie, wife first of Thomas Worthington, then of James Britton; Patience, wife of John Cadwell, of Marietta township; and Amos, a farmer and one of the early millers of Lawrence.

Two sons of Jonathan Dye, sr., were the victims of fatal accidents. Amos died from the effect of a falling limb striking him on the head. The accident which resulted in the death of Alexander was horrible. In 1873, during the oil excitement at Cow Run, Alexander's son, a small boy, found a can of fluid which his parents supposed to be refined coal oil. The lamp, which was more than half full of crude oil, was filled with what was supposed to be the superior article, and the evening was spent as usual around the open hearth. The lamp was noticed to flicker now and then, but no apprehension was excited. Before retiring it was turned down and left burning on the table. Soon after retiring the flickering became more frequent and excited the fears of Mrs. Dye, who asked her husband to blow out the light. He hurried to obey the request, but when he picked up the lamp the flickering became frequent and more intense. Just as he was in the act of pitching the dangerous bowl from the cabin, the explosion of the half pint of nitro-glycerine which it contained, filled the air with small particles of the body of its victim, left the cabin in ruins and wounded every member of the family except the baby.

Mrs. Abigail Dye, wife of Jonathan T. Dye, who was born in 1835 and died in 1878, is the daughter of James Jamison, who was born in Pennsylvania in 1795, and settled in Liberty township, Washington county. Mr. Jamison was married to Elizabeth Gordon, who was born in 1803 and died in 1866. The surviving members of the family are: Elizabeth, wife of William Mosburgh, of Kansas; John H., James M., and Mark B., who reside in Virginia; Susan, wife of John Phunister; Rebecca, wife of Earstus Magee; and Abigail, who was born in 1841, in Liberty township.

Diarca A. Dye, son of John H. Dye, was born in 1840. In 1860 he married Mary E. Clogston, who was born in Marietta in 1840. They have a family of six children. Mr. Dye went into the oil business in 1862, and continued to operate wells until 1875, when he engaged in the lumber business.

Dr. William L. McCowan was born in Philadelphia in 1815, and came to Ohio in 1846, stopping for a time at Harmar, and eventually locating in this township at Morse run, where he has been postmaster since 1862. By his first wife, Marinda J. Matthews, who died in 1870, he had ten children, of whom eight survive, viz: Elizabeth, Harriet (Bab) of Cow Run, Marinda (Dye) of West Virginia, Asa, Nancy H. (Dye) of Dexter City, William H., and Edward. By his second wife, Dr. McCowan has two children, Emma and Viola.

One of the early, and possibly the first, settlers of Lawrence township, was John Chambers, who was born in County Down, Ireland. He emigrated to America in 1798 and settled in Lawrence township about 1799. He settled at the mouth of Chambers' run a short distance below and opposite the mouth of Cow run. From the time of his arrival in Ohio, until he settled in Lawrence, he lived at the mouth of Wingett's run, in Ludlow township. He built the first saw-mill in the township, on the Little Muskingum at the mouth of Chambers' run. His wife, Annie Greer, was a Scotch lady. It was chiefly through Mr. Chambers' benevolence and influence that the Little Muskingum church was built. He died in 1823.

William Chambers, an older brother, settled in Lawrence on the farm opposite the mouth of Chambers' run, about 1810. A younger sister who emigrated from Ireland at the same time, was the wife of Hugh Wilson, of Aurelius township.

James P., a son of William Chambers, was a natural land surveyor. Without the aid of an instrument he could run lines and measure land with remarkable accuracy.

James G., the oldest son of John Chambers, was distinguished for two traits of character, fine social qualities and an uncontrollable temper. When in a fit of passion his swearing was shocking. William, a younger brother was killed by lightning at the age of seventeen. Joseph Chambers was a farmer and carpenter who lived on the east side of the Little Muskingum until 1850, when he moved to Marietta. He married Matilda McElhinney.

Joseph Caywood settled about one mile below and opposite the mouth of Cow run in 1806. He died without children in 1820. His nephew, Joseph, a son of William Caywood, settled in Lawrence, on what is yet known as the Joseph Caywood farm. He was a leading member of the Presbyterian church.

About 1805 the Hoff family, consisting of Susan Hoff, the widow of Daniel Hoff, and seven children, four sons and three daughters, came from Alexandria, Virginia, and settled in Lawrence township, above the mouth of Cow run. Enoch Hoff, the oldest, had been a slave master and trader. He settled near the mouth of Morse run. He was married five times. The children by his third wife were: James P., Angeline and Mary. Both James P. and his father were known in the community as "nigger catchers." Refugee slaves on several occasions were induced into the Hoff residence, and there captured and carried back to bondage.

Hannah Hoff married John Dye. Jonathan married Betsy Duncan and settled on Duck creek.

William Hoff was born in old Virginia in 1780, and settled in Lawrence township, where he died in 1844. His wife, Elizabeth Dutton, born in 1785, died in 1839. Of their children, Daniel died in Iowa; James died in Muskingum township; Lida died in Lawrence township; John died in Iowa; Margaret resides in Lawrence; Alfred, in Muskingum township; George is in Illinois, and Amos is in Iowa. Alfred Hoff is the father of eight children, of whom seven survive. He was captain of the transfer boat that carried the first regiment out of the State at the outbreak of the late war. He established a woollen mill at Marietta. Susan was the wife of Samuel Dye. Polly married Isaac Hill, and moved to Hocking river. James, the youngest of the family, married three times, and had five sons and eleven daughters.

John Sharp, well known all over the county as associate judge of common pleas, was born in Pennsylvania in 1771, and came to Ohio about 1800. He made an improvement on the east side of the Little Muskingum near the Newport township line. The first orchard on the Little Muskingum was planted by him. He was a very large, corpulent man, and was looked upon as the Solon of the community. He served as judge of common pleas several years, and a few days before his death in 1823, was commissioned judge of the superior court. His wife, whose maiden name was Mary Mitchell, and ten children survived him.

About the year 1812 Nathan Matheney (originally spelled Metheny), a native of Virginia, came from Athens county, Ohio, and settled above and opposite the mouth of Fifteen creek, and improved the farm now owned by Polly Martin. He had, by his first wife, Elizabeth Everly, eight children; by his second, Barbara Fultz, two; by his third, Katie Farley, six. Of these, sixteen children but one settled in Lawrence township. Noah, the oldest, made the first improvement on Bear run. Nathan Matheny, sr., returned to Athens county in 1835. Noah moved to Tunnel, Ohio, in 1858. His son John resides in Newport township.

George Templeton, esq., came to Lawrence township from Newport, and made an improvement on the Little Muskingum about two miles above the mouth of Fifteen in 1819. He served as justice of the peace in Lawrence for thirty-three years. In partnership with Beniah Snodgrass and Benjamin Burres, he built a saw-mill in 1834, about one mile further up the river. He died about 1850. He was the father of twelve children. His son William was killed by accident. Joseph settled on Bear run, where he is still living. James is living on Fifteen creek. Lettie who is unmarried, has always been the main support of the Lawrence Baptist church.

Zeptha Treadway was one of the earliest settlers of the upper part of the township. About 1820 he came from New Jersey, and entered land below and opposite the mouth of Archer's fork. Two of his sons are living: Jonathan, near the same place, and the other, Jerre who was a self-constituted preacher, is in the county infirmary.

Every royal household has its jester, every circus a clown, and no community is complete without a professional story teller. Lawrence, in the person of Jacob Bartmess, possessed a Munchausen in whom was combined the cunning of a wit and the oddity of a genius. "Jake" lived in a cabin on the east side of the Little Muskingum, nearly opposite the Baptist church, as early as 1825. He cared nothing about domestic affairs, and was happy only when tramping the woods with his gun on his shoulder, or entertaining his neighbors with the story of the mighty deeds of "my brother George." George was always the hero of his blood chilling stories. A few peculiarities of the house are worthy of mention. The black-eyed children had a terror of strangers. A rustle of bare feet followed a rap on the door, and the entering visitor could see nothing of children save several pairs of sparkling black eyes peering from under the bed. When the boys grew older, they were given an outfit of buckskin pantaloons. Although the boys were growing longer, the pantaloons from time to time became shorter, they being Jake's only recourse for thongs. He died on a hunting expedition down the river near Cairo, in 1876, aged seventy-seven years.

Hiram Snodgrass emigrated from Bull Creek, West Virginia, and settled on Bear run in Lawrence township, in 1812. He died on the same place in 1879. His wife's maiden name was Drucilla Olliver. Eli Snodgrass, a brother of Hiram, and husband of Polly Templeton, was one of the early settlers of Lawrence. Beniah Snodgrass is well remembered by all the old settlers of Lawrence. He was married twice, first to Anna McKibban and then to Julia Anne Clark. He settled in section ten, and in partnership with Burris & Templeton, built the Templeton mill in 1834.

Lucas Casady settled in Lawrence township, about one mile below the mouth of Fifteen, in 1821. He continued to reside in Lawrence township until 1850, when he was killed by accident in Maysville, Kentucky. His family consisted of three sons and one daughter. Morton settled opposite Painter run; George at the head of Morse run, and William J. on Morse run. Diadamia was married to Samuel Dye, third, from whom she was afterwards divorced, and married to Carlton Palmer, of Newport township.

The McAllister improvement is the oldest in the upper part of the township. About five acres were cleared as early as 1820, but no house was built. It is not probable that anyone lived there until the later settlement of the township.

Joe Harris, who settled near the mouth of Morse run in 1825, was the hero of the woods. In manners he was somewhat rough, but possessed a kind heart and accommodating disposition. He was a useful man in the clearing, and could always be relied upon at a raising.

The mill at the mouth of Fifteen was owned by George W. Reynolds in 1832. It came into possession of Charles Akinson in 1836. Charles was a grandson of Cornelius Akinson, who was wounded seven times in one battle in the Revolution. Charles was born on the Juniata in 1796, and in early life learned milling and boat-building. His death occurred in Marietta in 1880. William, his oldest son, made an improvement on Bear run in 1838, where he is still living. His first wife was Jane Templeton, daughter of 'Squire Templeton. He married for his second wife Theda Patterson, sister of Dr. Patterson. He is a prominent man in the community.

In the autumn of 1832, Joseph McElHinney with his aged father, John McElHinney, and his only sister Anne, come from the north of Ireland and settled on the Little Muskingum, a short distance above and opposite the mouth of Elk run. He found there a clearing of six acres and a small orchard and cabin which had been made by Jacob Newlin some twelve years previous. This was at that time the uppermost improvement in the township, and there was no improvement above on the county road nearer than that of Jacob Wingett, at the mouth of Wingett's run. Zephtha Treadway was the nearest neighbor on the same road below. John McElHinney died in 1874, in his eightieth year. His daughter Anne made her home with her brother Joseph, until his death in September, 1840; Mary, wife of Joseph McElHinney, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Chambers, in Marietta, in 1874. They had a family of six children: Matilda, wife of Joseph Chambers, Marietta; Joseph M. McElHinney, M. D., Newport; Nancy Jane, wife of Rev. George D. Fry, Morgan county; David M. McElHinney is mayor of Hastings, Nebraska, and was, in 1873-4, grand master of Nebraska State lodge, I. O. O. F.; Alexander M., Silver Cliff, Colorado; and Kate, wife of S. A. Squier, mayor of Silver Cliff, Colorado.

John Rake made the first improvement on section six.

He sold to A. Campbell and Samuel Bush, and purchased the McAllister improvement in 1835. He died opposite the mouth of Bear run in 1875.

Solomon Tice, an early settler of Ludlow township, pushed into Lawrence township in the pursuit of his ambition to suddenly make a great fortune. At the mouth of a small stream emptying into the Little Muskingum, the "Governor," as he was nicknamed, discovered a composite rock which he supposed to contain silver. This circumstance gave the stream its present name, Silver Mine run. As early as 1825 he bored a well on Fifteen creek, opposite the mouth of Mill fork, to the depth of three hundred feet, in search of salt. His tools were inadequate to the further progress of the work, and the attempt was abandoned. It is said that his confidence of obtaining a productive salt well was broken by the appearance, at the depth of two hundred feet, of a black, greasy liquid, which later investigations prove to have been oil.

Archibald Campbell settled in the northeast corner of Lawrence township in 1833. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1806, and married Hannah Sample, who was born in 1820. Mr. Campbell was the first postmaster of Lawrence post office. The surviving members of the family are: John M., who lives in Marietta; Rebecca J., wife of Thomas Hall, of Ludlow township; Sarah A., wife of Ross N. Dye, of Marietta township; Joseph L., who lives in Marietta; Gideon, Samuel M., and Luna, who live at Cow Run. Samuel M., the druggist at Cow Run, was born in 1844. He married Mary E. Maxon in 1866. In 1863 he enlisted in company H, Seventh Ohio cavalry, and served till 1865, when he was discharged at Nashville. He was appointed census enumerator in 1880.

The first store in Lawrence township was opened by William Powell in 1838, in the upper part of the township, near the corner of Independence. He removed from Lawrence to Grand View township, where he engaged in the practice of medicine.

John Barnhart was one of the early settlers of the upper corner of the township. He was a nervous and superstitious character, who was in constant dread of ghosts. One night, while passing through a clearing, a man without a head appeared, and in a few days it was announced that Barnhart had died of nervous prostration.

Rev. Levi L. Fay was born in the State of Massachusetts in 1814. He married Caroline Hill, who was born in 1816, and died in 1854. In 1855 he married Minerva Bachelor. He settled in Marietta township in 1835, and removed to Lawrence township in 1844. He is a Congregational minister, and is now in charge of the churches at Morse Run, Cow Run, Stanleyville, and Cedar Narrows. His surviving children do not live in this county.

Major Isaac M. Hannold was the seventh son of Isaac Hannold, jr., a blacksmith and wagon-maker of Camden, New Jersey, whose father, Isaac Hannold, came from Germany and settled in Haddonfield, New Jersey. Isaac M. Hannold was born in Barnsborough, New Jersey, June 29, 1791, and was brought up in Camden. He was a brick-layer, stone-cutter, shoemaker, carpenter, and farmer. In 1814 he was elected first lieutenant of the Camden Blues, and was in the service till the close of the war. In 1815 he married Patience F. Ross, of Philadelphia, who was of an English family. In 1817 he removed to Pennsylvania, and in 1819 he was elected captain of militia, and in 1824 was commissioned major of the Fifteenth regiment. He was elected colonel in 1836, but before receiving his commission he removed to Natchez, Mississippi, where a railroad contract occupied his time until 1838, when he returned to Pennsylvania and was employed two years in the construction of the Hann Street bridge between Allegheny City and Pittsburgh. In 1840 he removed to this county and purchased a farm eight miles from Marietta, in Lawrence township, on the ridge between Duck creek and Little Muskingum. He was for four years superintendent of the infirmary, and was one of the partners in the Old Elm well, the second producing oil well on Cow run. In 1865 he removed to Monitor, Indiana, where he died in 1867, two years after the death of his wife.

We have now given a sketch of the best known of the early settlers along the Muskingum valley. The large tract of territory at the head of Fifteen creek was settled mostly by Scotch families who came to this county between 1840 and 1850. They are an intelligent and industrious class of people, and have contributed largely toward the wealth of the county. Wool growing is the predominant industry of the Scotch communities.

George Heslop was born in England in 1790. He emigrated to America and settled in Lawrence township in 1844. His death occurred in 1878. Agnes Dixon, his wife, was born in 1794, and died in 1840. The surviving members of the family are: Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Lumsdon, who resides in Pennsylvania; Agnes, wife of Andrew Johnson, Fearing township; Jane, wife of Thomas Spratt, Adams township; William, Lawrence township; Isabel, wife of Alexander Ormiston, Barlow township; and John, who was born in 1828. In 1865 he married Anna Thompson, who was born in 1845. They have six children. John Heslop came from England in 1844, and settled on one hundred and forty acres of land in the north part of Lawrence township.

Ralph Cuthbert emigrated from England, where he was a master shepherd, in 1842. He settled in Lawrence township, on Fifteen creek, and engaged in general farming and wool growing. His wife, Isabel Thompson, was born in 1819, she died in 1876. The family consisted of eight children, six of whom are living. Ralph W., third child, died in 1865, from a wound which he received at Nashville, Tennessee. Mr. Cuthbert owns two hundred and forty acres of good land.

John Slobaum was the first German settler on the highlands in the northwest part of the township, known as German ridge. He entered land and made an improvement previous to 1840. This ridge is now settled by people of German descent, who are becoming wealthy on the products of once rejected terraces.

John D. Pape, sr., born in Hanover, Germany, in 1794, emigrated to this country in 1838, came to Washington county, and settled in Lawrence township, where he died. His wife, Hedwick Mehrtens, was born in 1797, and is still living. Six of the eight children are living. In 1812 John D. Pape served in Bonaparte's army.

John D. Pape, jr., married Christiana Fitchen, who came from Germany in 1845. Six of the seven children are living. Mr. Pape owns a farm of two hundred and fifty acres of land, on the Ohio river, in Marietta township. In 1877 he started a grocery in Marietta, where he resides.

John W. Gitchell settled in Lawrence township in 1852, he having emigrated from Steubenville, Ohio, where he was born in 1836. For the past sixteen years he has been connected with the saw-mill business in the township of Newport. He has a farm of one hundred and eighty acres of land. Was in the hundred days service, and in 1864 was drafted into the Sixty-second Ohio volunteer infantry, serving until the close of the war. By his wife, Samantha T. Tidd, he has had eight children.

John Q. Pepper settled in Lawrence township in 1853, having emigrated from Virginia. He married Olive Maxon, who was born in 1822. They had eight children. Sarah E. was born in Noble county in 1851. In 1872 she was married to Augustus T. Dye, who was born in 1850. He died in 1876, leaving two children.

The most rapid growth of population was between 1863 and 1870, caused by the extensive production of oil within that period.

Eldridge G. Gilbert was born in Massachusetts in 1828, emigrated to Aurelius township, Washington county, in 1858, and to Cow Run, Lawrence township, in 1864, where he built a machine shop. His wife, Mary A. Davis, was born in 1840, in Adams township. They have a family of three children: Juna B., born in 1870; Laura M., in 1874; and Ethel S., in 1879.

Victor Torner was born in Europe in 1815 and emigrated to Virginia, and in 1861 settled in Belpre township, afterwards coming to Lawrence, where he is superintendent of the Exchange company's oil wells. He built the flouring mill at Newport. In 1848 he married Charlotta G. Weiss, who was born in 1819. They have three children, viz: Elvira, wife of J. R. Dye, of Cow Run; Hugo T., living at Cow Run, and William V., at Newport.

Alfred Hoff was born in Lawrence township, Washington county, June 24, 1817. He was married in 1839 to Miss Mary N. Atkinson, who died in the same year. In 1840 he was a second time married, to Miss Elizabeth Fuller, who still lives. Eight children have been born of this marriage, of whom seven are living. Mr. Hoff was for twenty-five years chief engineer on boats on the Ohio, its tributaries, and on southern rivers. When the civil war broke out he was in the south, and immediately after the fall of Sumter transported two confederate regiments from Arkansas to New Orleans. Not relishing such work, he immediately set out for home. On his arrival, he with two others chartered a boat and took out the first troops that left Ohio. He served through the whole war. After the war he was interested in manufacturing, building the Marietta woollen mills. In 1861 he purchased a farm in Muskingum township, on which he now lives in retirement.

In 1868 George E. Lehmer emigrated to Lawrence from Pennsylvania, in which State he was born in 1837. He married Annie E. Stickle, who was born in 1840. To Mr. and Mrs. Lehmer has been born one son, Willie H., living in this township. In 1873 Mr. Lehmer was elected to the office of school director. He has charge of six oil wells, which produce about five barrels per day. While serving in Company F of the Pennsylvania reserves he was wounded at Antietam and also at Fredricksburgh.

W. Strachan was born in England in 1831. He came to America in 1843, and remained in Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, until 1869, when he came to Cow Run and engaged in the oil business. He has been justice of the peace for nine years. He married Sarah Johnson, of this township, a granddaughter of Alderman Johnson, an early settler of this township, and daughter of Edward Johnson. He has five children, viz: David, Mary, Margaret, Sarah and Edward.

ESTABLISHMENT AND ORGANIZATION.

A petition was laid before the commissioners at their June session, 1815, signed by Nathaniel Mitchell, John Mitchell, Elisha Rose, John Sharp and others, "praying that a new township may be laid out and set off from the township of Newport." It was resolved by the board "that the whole of the original surveyed township number three, range seven, together with sections 17, 18, 22, 23, 24, 28, 29, 30, 32, 34, 35 and 36 in the second township, range seven, be and hereby is established into an incorporated town, to be called and denominated Lawrence, and the inhabitants within said district are entitled to all the immunities and privileges of incorporated towns within the State. The elections in said town will meet at the house of John Mitchell on the second Saturday of July, at 10 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of electing township officers." The court of quarter sessions directed that an election for two justices of the peace should be held at the same time and place. The election which was held agreeably to this order resulted in the choice of the following officers: Trustees, William Hoff, John Newton and Elisha Rose; clerk, John Sharp; constables, James Hoff and Elijah Wilson; fence viewers, Jonathan Dye and James Mitchell; treasurer, John Dye; supervisors, George Nixon and Nathaniel Mitchell; justices of the peace, Samuel Dye and John Mitchell. The township officers were sworn in by Samuel Dye, justice of the peace.

On the first of April, 1816, the electors met at the house of Nathaniel Mitchell to elect township officers. John Dye was chosen chairman, and Elisha Rose and John Newton judges of the election. John Sharp was clerk. At this second election eighteen votes were cast. The following is the list of voters: John Sharp, William Hoff, James Hoff, David McKibbin, Isaac Wilson, Nathan Davis, Nathaniel Mitchell, Jonathan Dye, John Newton, Elisha Rose, John Dye, Samuel Dye, Henry Chamberlain, John Mitchell, Isaac Hill, Ezekiel Dye, James Mitchell and Alderman Johnson.

Nearly half of this list of voters resided in that part of the township which has since been set back to Newport. James Hoff was elected first "listor of taxable property," and John Mitchell appraiser of houses. The first grand jurors from the township were Nathaniel Amelin and Nathaniel Mitchell. John Dye was the first petit juror.

The election of 1820 and subsequent elections for many years were held in a school-house on John Dye's farm near the mouth of Cow run. In 1827, section thirty-two of township two was reannexed to Newport, and at the June session, 1840, Lawrence was reduced to its present limits. William Hill and others made an effort in 1816 to have this change made, but the commissioners deemed it inexpedient. A township house has since been built near the center of the township, where elections are now held by the citizens of the northern precinct. The second voting precinct was established, for the convenience of the residents of the southern end, in 1872.

Before the war Lawrence gave large Democratic majorities. From the opening of the war till 1872, the township was carried by the Republicans; from 1872 it was carried by the Democrats till 1880, when the Republicans had a small majority.

SCHOOLS.

The first school in the township was opened about 1810, by a young man from Virginia, named Dunkin, in a log building which stood on the Joseph Haywood farm, a short distance below the mouth of Cow run. A school-house was afterwards built on the farm owned by John Templeton, in which school was maintained until the common school system went into operation in 1838. A school was opened about 1835 on the J. H. Dye farm, by Peggy Hill. This school was quite popular among the settlers, and was well patronized. The only other private school in the township was on Fifteen creek.

In 1838, when the public school system went into effect, the township was divided into eight districts, and a log house built in each. The number of districts was increased to ten, and in 1880 to fourteen.

Lawrence township has been peculiarly fortunate with regard to her school fund. In 1869, when profitable oil wells were being obtained almost everywhere in the Cow run region, a company known as the School-house company leased from the school board the lot on which the Cow Run school-house then stood. The company, under the conditions of the lease were to receive two-thirds of all the oil yielded by the territory. The school-house was moved and operations began which resulted, on the twenty-second of October, in procuring, probably, the best well in the township. At first it produced one hundred and twenty barrels a day. This well has since been the source of a steady income to the township school fund, its production at the present time being about sixteen barrels per week. The school fund has derived

J. T. Dye

Amos Dye, father of Jonathan T., was one of the old settlers of Lawrence township, where he lived from the time of his settlement until his death. He came from Noble county, Ohio. He died in 1877, leaving six sons, viz: Thomas, Devol, John Wesley, Jonathan T., Joseph and Fay. All of these are living except Jonathan T. John W. and Fay live in Washington county; Thomas lives in Virginia; Devol and Joseph live in Ross county, Ohio.

Jonathan Titus Dye was born January 26, 1838, in Lawrence township, and received his education in the schools of the township. He was always noted as a particularly bright scholar, and acquired a very good common school education. At the age of seventeen, he began to teach, and followed this profession until his twenty-sixth year. His schools were all in Lawrence township.

On the thirteenth of March, 1862, Mr. Dye was married to Miss Abigail E. Jameson, who survives him. Miss Jameson was born in Liberty township, March 13, 1843. Her father was one of the oldest settlers of the county. He first settled in Liberty township, whence he removed with his family to Kansas in 1853. Here he died in the fall of the same year, his wife having preceded him to the grave a few months before. The four children moved back to Lawrence township, this county, in the following spring.

After his marriage, Mr. Dye taught school for two years, then moved to Marietta, where he engaged in the oil business. After being thus employed for two or three years, he engaged in the dry goods and grocery business on Greene street, in the firm of Westgate &

Dye. But, as his health was always very delicate, Mr. Dye felt that life in the country was better for him than an active business life in town. Hence, after about six months, he purchased a part of his father's homestead in Lawrence township, and moved his family thither. Here he lived until his death, which occurred February 28, 1879, of consumption.

Mr. and Mrs. Dye had seven children, as follows: Martin L. P., born April 13, 1863, died August 23, 1864; Clara M., born September 13, 1865; Ida Sophia, born February 21, 1868; Sherman Edwin, born August 14, 1870; Abbie C., born November 8, 1872; Furman Victor, born September 7, 1875, died March 10, 1877; and Carl M., born February 6, 1878.

Mr. Dye's home farm consisted of one hundred and twelve acres. He also owned other lands in various parts of the county, and some in Ross county, amounting altogether to about three hundred acres. This land is still owned by his widow, who lives on and manages the home farm.

Mr. Dye made a specialty of stock-raising, paying especial attention to the raising of sheep.

Mr. Dye was township clerk, and also a trustee of the township for several years. At one time he was appointed land appraiser.

He was a man of great energy, although that energy was constantly hampered by ill health. He was very widely known and always very highly respected. He was an earnest and sincere Christian, being a member of the Congregational church, which body he joined at the early age of seven.

from it about forty thousand dollars, out of which the schools of the township have been maintained and a number of new houses built. There is now a balance bearing interest, of twenty-four thousand seven hundred and seventy-nine dollars and fifty-seven cents. To what use this fund shall be appropriated is an issue in the township. Some favor permanently endowing the common schools, and others advocate the establishment of a school for higher instruction.

CHURCHES.

The first church built in Lawrence township was located in the neighborhood of the first settlement, on the Little Muskingum, near the Newport line, principally through the influence of John Chambers. It was a small log building covered with clapboards, and used by all the settlers in the neighborhood, regardless of denominational differences. The church, after 1835, was regularly supplied by Revs. L. D. Bingham and Addison Kingsbury, of Marietta, until October, 1844, when Rev. Levi L. Fay became regular pastor. During this time the congregation was under the care of the presbytery and was Presbyterian in form of government. The ruling elders were J. H. Dye and Joseph Caywood. On the eleventh of July, 1846, a Congregational meeting was held, at which it was decided to reorganize the church and unite it with the Congregational conference. During the summer of 1846 the old building was abandoned and a new one built on Morse run. Rev. Mr. Fay was ordained pastor of this society, known as the Little Muskingum Congregational church in 1849. The present house of worship was built in 1866, and dedicated May 28, 1867. Twelve hundred dollars toward the expense of this building was donated by the pastor, and a bell which cost one hundred dollars has since been purchased by him and dedicated to the use of the congregation. Mr. Fay labored successfully until 1877, when ill health compelled him to retire. The pulpit was supplied two years by Rev. Mr. Riddle. The congregation since 1879 has been without a pastor. The present membership of the society is about fifty.

BAPTIST CHURCHES.

The Lawrence Baptist church was constituted in 1840. A log meeting-house was built and the few communicants met every Sunday, although no regular preacher visited the congregation until 1844. During these four years, while the existence of the organization was hanging between doubt and fear, the courageous labor of Lettie Templeton carried the helpless infant beyond the period of danger. She is entitled to the proud distinction of god-mother of the church. J. D. Riley became pastor in 1844; Henry Lyon, in 1853; John Ables, in 1854; B. M. Stout, in 1863; D. Sechman, in 1866. Mr. Sechman was succeeded by Mungo Taylor.

At Cow Run a meeting-house was built for the use of all denominations, but passed under the control of the Baptist society which was constituted in 1870. Mungo Taylor was the pastor for a time, but regular service has been discontinued.

GERMAN METHODIST.

The first German society in the township was organized about 1845, as the German Methodist church. A log building was put up, and a burying-ground laid out on the ridge in the northwest corner. This house is still standing, and services are held at irregular intervals.

LUTHERANS.

There are in the township two German Evangelical churches—one on the Little Muskingum, a short distance above the mouth of Cow run, established in 1853, and the other on the ridge, established in 1868. Neither of these societies enjoys the privilege of regular preaching. Cemeteries adjoin both church buildings.

UNITED BRETHREN.

The United Brethren have a strong hold in the southern part of the township. The largest society of this denomination worship at the Mount Zion meeting-house, about one mile south of Cow Run post office. This society was organized about 1860, and now has a membership of sixty. Sunday-school is held every week during the whole year. G. W. Athey, A. L. Moor and M. S. Riddle have been the most prominent preachers. The Union Chapel congregation is not as large, though about five years older than the Mount Zion. Union chapel, a log structure, about twenty-five years old, is situated at the head of Eight Mile run. Both these congregations are connected with Beach Grove circuit.

METHODIST CHURCH.

Pine Ridge Methodist Episcopal church, located in the southeast part of the township, at the head of Bear run, was organized in 1866 by Rev. J. W. Hamilton. In 1868, when D. C. Knowles became pastor, the membership numbered seventeen. A log meeting-house was built in 1870. In 1873 the remnant of a German Methodist church, which had existed in the neighborhood, united with Pine Ridge. The number of members has been steadily increasing from year to year, until there are more than seventy communicants. The congregation belongs to Newport circuit, the preachers of which have been, since 1871: John H. Doan, to 1873; H. M. Rader, to 1874; T. D. Fast, to 1876; W. H. Piggot, to 1877; C. J. Feitt, to 1878; G. W. Dennis, to 1880. J. H. Doan is the present pastor.

Methodist meeting is occasionally held in the Good Templars' hall at Cow Run.

DISCIPLE CHURCH.

A society of Disciples of Christ, popularly known as Campbellites, was organized in 1869, and built a meeting-house known as Mount Pisgah church, at the head of Cow run. The society is small, and does not enjoy the privilege of regular preaching.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The Scotch settlers in the north part of Lawrence organized a church September 3, 1847. The society was organized by T. M. Galloway under the authority of the presbytery of Steubenville. Rev. D. M. Sleth is the present pastor.

METHODIST CHURCH.

Gross chapel, Methodist Episcopal church was built about 1872. The structure is comfortable, but the congregation is small.

CEMETERIES.

Besides the churchyards, there are in the township two family cemeteries. After the log meeting-house on the Little Muskingum was abandoned, the cemetery, in which the graves of many old settlers, are marked by mossy slabs of marble, reverted to the Chambers family and has since been used by them as a private burying-place.

The Dye cemetery, on the farm of A. J. Dye, was laid out by John Dye, at the death of his oldest son, Enoch, in 1812. The bodies of more than fifty members and relatives of the Dye family have been laid away in this historic lot. The tombs faithfully record the resistless march of time and keep fresh in the minds of surviving members, the memory of days gone by. The use of the cemetery has never been denied the public, and many are buried there who were in no way connected with the family. But it is not probable that a lot so sad and precious, in which are consigned the relatives of five generations, will ever become the property of the public.

There is a cemetery on the line, between the old Snodgrass farm and the Esquire Templeton farm opposite the mouth of Beaver run. It has been used as a public burying-ground since the settlement of that portion of the township.

FIRST CHILDREN'S HOME.

The first Children's Home in the State, established by Miss Catharine A. Fay, was located in Lawrence township, at the mouth of Morse run. This was properly a county institution, and has already been treated of in the general history. But the plan of its management had a local bearing upon the affairs of the township, which makes a brief sketch necessary in this connection. The Home was opened on the first of April, 1858, with eight boys and one girl, in a temporary, one story building. On the first of May when school opened, Miss Fay led those of proper age to the public school-house, but the teacher sent them home. Miss Fay then took the proper legal steps toward having her wards admitted. Great indignation prevailed throughout the neighborhood, and it was determined if possible to prevent these "pauper children" from being received into the public school of the district. When the matron, a second time, took her children to the school, she was confronted by two directors and eleven men, but she was armed with letters of guardianship, and there was no legal way of preventing the execution of her plans. This conflict inspired throughout the whole township, a deep prejudice against Miss Fay and her institution. There were some people who supported her enterprise and gave her assistance, but the prevailing sentiment was adverse.

This conflict has been the subject of much comment, and the people of Lawrence township, to some extent at least, have suffered unjust criticism. Miss Fay's work of benevolence was in behalf of the whole county, but the citizens of the township were not disposed to be in any way coerced into the support of that work. The school was maintained by the taxpayers of Lawrence township for the benefit of the people of Lawrence township, and it is but natural that a majority should be averse to educating the poor of all the townships. We are not disposed to espouse the cause of either party. Miss Fay did not receive the support and sympathy from her neighbors which the benevolent character of her work entitled her to. But there was a cause for the unpopularity of her institution, and it is but justice that that cause should be known. All occasion for complaint was removed, the second year, by the establishment of a private school. The scales of prejudice, however, which gather about the eyes of the public, can only be removed by time.

POST OFFICES.

The official name of the first post office was Lawrence Township, John W. Dye, postmaster. Mr. Dye's farm was central in location, and one office met the wants of the settlers until 1843, when Archibald Campbell, who resided in the northeast corner was commissioned postmaster of Lawrence, and Joseph Caywood, who resided in the southwest corner, became postmaster of Lower Lawrence. This office was discontinued when Hill's was established. Moss Run was established in 1858; Dr. McCowan has been postmaster since 1863. The post office known as Fifteen was established in 1867, and placed in charge of Leonard Button. In 1879 it was deemed advisable to discontinue Fifteen and establish an office at Heslop's, in Liberty township. The rapid growth of Cow Run in 1869, made the establishment of an office at that place a necessity. The department granted the request of the citizens in December of that year, and commissioned William P. Guitteau postmaster. T. J. Connor is the present incumbent. Lunville, located at the headwaters of Bear run, was established in 1879. Moss Run, Cow Run, and Lunville are the three offices now in existence in the township.

SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

The first Sunday-school in the Little Muskingum valley, so far as is known, was taught by Mr. and Mrs. McElHinney, who resided above and opposite the mouth of Elk run. This school was attended by the parents and children of the settlement within a radius of four miles. It was an itinerant school, and was held at the houses in the neighborhood, most frequently at the houses of Joseph McElHinney, in Lawrence, and Robert McKenzie and Jesse Fleming, of Independence. This school was organized in 1833.

The next school of which we have any knowledge was opened in 1835, in the Presbyterian church, in the opposite corner of the township, by Thomas Hughes, then a student at Marietta college. Mr. Hughes was in the habit of delivering an exhortation at the conclusion of the lesson, and by his stirring addresses, created a lively interest throughout the lower settlement. He soon afterwards (about 1836) opened a school in the school-house above the mouth of Fifteen. Messrs. Bingham, Bosworth, Dye, and Reynolds were also among the pioneers in Sunday-school work in the township.

SOCIETIES.

Among the young men of the early settlement of the upper part of the township, J. M. McElHinney took the lead in matters looking to mental improvement. In February, 1842, Mr. McElHinney, Evan Nomans, and William Powell, organized the Little Muskingum Lyceum, the first organization for literary improvement in the Little Muskingum valley. This society did good work for about three years in the development of literary taste and talent among its members. A considerable number of young persons in the neighborhood could not be induced to join this society, for they claimed it was too aristocratic, and their clothing was not suitable to appear at the meetings. On their account the old lyceum was allowed to go down, and in 1845 Mr. McElHinney organized a new society, consisting at first of sixteen members, called the Singed Cat society, declaring to them that they, like singed cats, were better than they appeared. The idea was popular and the society prospered for nearly three years. But there was another element among the settlers of the community—the poor and illiterate—who claimed that the Singed Cats thought themselves better than they. In order to help this class and if possible to help the poor fellows along, Mr. McElHinney organized a reading club in the spring of 1848 giving it the significant name of Tarnal Critters. This was a decidedly democratic institution, anyone being eligible to membership provided he could half behave himself. But after reading through the Western Adventures, and a few other Indian stories, they ceased to be interested, and the plan proved a failure. Soon after Mr. McElHinney removed to Newport and left the Tarnal Critters.

One organization comes under this head which deserves special prominence, and that is the Good Templars lodge of Cow Run. The village of Cow Run, even at its most prosperous period, was a sober and orderly community, being widely different in that regard from most camps of similar character. The lodge of Good Templars exercised no small influence in the maintenance of this healthy state of morality. This society was formed in December, 1870. Meetings were held in the Baptist church for about six months, and then the only saloon in the settlement was purchased and converted into a hall for meetings. The hall was thrown open on Sundays for preaching, ministers of all denominations being invited to come and hold service. The society ceased to hold meetings in 1879, the membership having become very small on account of the removal from the village of most of the members.

PHYSICIANS.

William Powell read medicine while he was keeping store in the upper part of the township. Although not a professional practitioner he attended his neighbors when the services of a medical man were needed.

Dr. Tyler was the first professional practitioner who located in the township. He opened an office about one mile above the mouth of Fifteen in 1839, and maintained a successful practice for about two years.

Dr. Joshua Rogers settled a short distance above the mouth of Fifteen and began the practice of his profession in 1842. Death deprived the community of his services in 1847.

Dr. William T. Patterson comes next on the list of Lawrence township physicians. William Patterson, his father, came from Jefferson county to Ludlow township in 1844, and soon afterwards settled on section five, where William T. opened an office.

Dr. William McCowan, a native of Philadelphia, removed from Harmar and located on Morse run in 1860. He has from the first enjoyed a large practice and the confidence of the community.

Dr. George W. Flemming, a nephew of Dr. Patterson, located at the mouth of Archers fork and began the practice of medicine in 1864. In 1876 he moved to Bear Run where he now resides.

Dr. Ullman practiced a short time in this township. His office was near the mouth of Morse run.

OIL PRODUCTION.

The development of Lawrence township's richest resource began in 1860. William Guyton had for twenty years made use of the gas emitting from a fissure on Cow run, to light his shop, and a "burning spring" on Mill creek had been known since the earliest settlement. But it had never occurred to any one that these phenomena indicated the presence of oil. Besides it was not known that the geological conditions were favorable to the procurement of profitable wells.

John Newton was the first to anticipate the possibilities, and in partnership with Mophet Dye, began to sink the first shaft, near the summit of the break, on Cow run. Oil was found at the depth of one hundred and forty feet. They drilled but a short distance further through the "first sand" rock when a stream began to flow from the top through the sucker rods, and continued to flow at the rate of twenty barrels per day. The great success of this first attempt raised the neighborhood on tiptoe. The early operators and pioneers in the business were Newton Dye, Perkins, Jonathan Hoff, Logan, List, Hervey Ablinas, Green, Brown and Nailor. The third well belonging to Ablinas, Green and Brown, produced at first about fifteen barrels per day, but was soon pumped dry. This fact was an indication that the fissures leading to the prime sources of oil, were closed, and that these wells were an outlet to that only which was imprisoned in the crevices and pores of the rocks. The first engine was brought to Cow Run by Jonathan Hoff. The first wells were all drilled by spring pole. The first machinery for drilling was used by George McFarlan in 1864, when the first attempt was made to strike oil in a lower strata. The success of McFarlan's enterprise gave the business a new impetus. Many of the first sand wells had failed, and the production of others was declining. The discovery of the second sand deposit seemed to insure permanent production. When McFarlan struck oil in the second sand, there was great rejoicing among the holders of the leases, who carried him in triumph on their shoulders. Property became food for speculation, and capital was lavishly and wrecklessly invested. The excitement was confined to Cow run. Sufficient oil was obtained on Fifteen to enhance the value of property four hundred per cent., and even on Morse run, where there were no productive wells, land commanded extravagant prices. One hundred and twenty acres in the Cow run region cost the Bergen Oil company one hundred thousand dollars.

The principal operators during 1864-5 were McFarlan, Camden & Co., Colonel Weare, Rathbone, Perkins and Hervey. McFarlan, Rathbone, Camden, Weare and others came from Virginia in 1863, and purchased three hundred and twenty acres on the western slope of the break, and divided by Cow Run valley. They also purchased a tract on Fifteen. The whole tract passed into the hands of Colonel Weare and Tillotson & Bro., and finally in 1865 came into full possession of Weare, who struck twelve profitable wells in succession, which produced ten to seventy barrels per day. In 1867 Weare sold half his territory to the Exchange Oil company of Cincinnati, and in 1873 disposed of the remaining half interest to the same company.

Cow run became the centre of interest in the fall of 1866, when Perkins and Hervey struck in second sand rock at the depth of five hundred and ninety-four feet, on a five acre tract leased from the Bergen company, a crevice from which the oil was forced at intervals to the height of seventy-five feet above the ground. This well caught fire on the following night, and produced one of the most threatening conflagrations ever seen in these regions. This was the first flowing well in second sand, and its production of one hundred barrels per day proved that the supply was not yet exhausted.

Cow Run now began to assume the appearance of a large camp. Plank houses dotted the hills and at meal time the valley was a swarm of busy humanity.

In 1869 and 1870 about five hundred wells were being operated, and shafts were being sunk wherever a show of success presented itself. The production decreased rapidly from 1872 to 1876, since which time it has been very uniform. In 1870 the daily production was four hundred and fifty barrels. At present about sixty wells are operated, which produce sixty-five barrels daily; of these sixty, the Exchange company own thirty-five; H. G. Thomas, six, and most of those remaining are on the Bergen territory. The Exchange company owns its own coal mine and its own machine shop. There is a marked difference in the character of the wells on the eastern and western slopes. Those on the Bergen territory on the western slope, terminate in crevices, and generally blow faster, but fail sooner than those on the eastern slope, which terminate in sand rock known as honey comb. A shaft was once sunk on the Exchange territory to the depth of nearly twenty-two hundred feet, but the result was unsatisfactory.

In 1868, a transportation company was organized with a capital of twenty-five thousand dollars, which constructed pipes and the necessary tanks and machinery for the transportation of oil from the tanks to the river. The main pipe passes over a hill four hundred feet above the level of Cow run.

The first productive well of Fifteen, was struck in 1870 (an attempt in 1863 having failed), at the depth of four hundred feet, in shale. In that region there is now but one producing well. The only producing well on Morse run is on the land of John Myers. This well terminates in first sand rock.

INCIDENTS.

It appears from an entry in the township book bearing date May, 1819, that the township was troubled with pauper preachers. An order directed to Reuben McVey, constable, reads: "Whereas, a certain person calling himself a preacher, is likely to become a township charge, you are hereby directed to order said preacher out of the township."

In 1839, Elisha Rose, a well known citizen of Newport township, engaged in a horse race with a man named Hinkel, on the banks of the Little Muskingum near the mouth of Archer's fork, which proved fatal to his life. A purse of three dollars was put up and the contestants started on the race. When Rose had reached the terminus, he arose in his saddle and looked for his opponent. The horse at that moment stumbled and pitched the rider against a rock. Rose died in a few days from the wound, and his estate received the purse.

In 1859, Porter Flint and one of the Mitchell boys were drowned in the Little Muskingum at Proute's mill. A raft which they were floating became unmanageable at the mill dam, and both were precipitated into the stream.

The most abhorrent of the many cases of drowning in the township, occurred at Cow run. A daughter of one of the workmen one day went to a tank to get some oil with which to start a fire. While she was stooping over the top of the tank, her foothold gave way, and she was taken from the reservoir in a lifeless condition.

Thomas Flemming was drowned at Chamber's mill below the mouth of Cow run, while running lumber over the dam.

POPULATION.

The population of the township increased very rapidly during the decade ending 1870, at which time there were two thousand six hundred and fifty-five native, and one hundred and ninety-five foreign inhabitants. The population on the first of June 1880, was two thousand three hundred and thirty-six. Cow run in 1870, was a camp of one thousand five hundred people, at present there are less than five hundred.

CHAPTER XLIX.

PALMER TOWNSHIP.

A Progressive Township—The Pioneer of the Settlement—Census in 1796—The Pioneer Babies—The Palmers—To the Legislature—The Pioneer Marriage—The First Brick House—Sudden Death—The Old Veteran—The First Death—Fire—The First Frame House—A New Settlement on the Creek—Brown's Mill—Horse-Mill—An Exhibition—A Portable Post Office—A Historic Log House—Civil History—Record of Officers from 1851 to 1880—Early and Late Justices of the Peace—Educational—The First School—Ashcroft—Other Teachers—A New Building—A School for Teachers—The Freewill Baptist Meetings—Early Methodist Gatherings—The First Preachers—First Circus Rider—Organization—The Corner Chapel—The Different Circuits—Temperance in Palmer—A Flow at Prevailing Customs—Palmer Anti-License—A Fine Company of Riflemen—Gard Graveyard—Death at a Barn-Raising—The Murdock Cemetery—A Giant Skeleton—Roads—The Old Indian Trail—The First Road Made by White Men—Doctors—Industries—Stores—The First Blacksmith—Tanneries—Agriculture—Sheep Raising—Palmer Pastures—A Bit of Geology—Native Trees—The Old Pine Grove—A Well-Farmed Land—Census.

IT HAS been said, "Happy is the native whose annals are tiresome." To those who love the tales of war, danger, and sacrifice, of startling change, or scenes of destruction, rather than wholesome growth and quiet advance, this is indeed true. But there are some who delight in watching the tranquil and steady progress of a community, from its doubtful and unsteady first steps to a prosperous present, a course as undisturbed as the glide of a boat down a widening river. To these is addressed this record of the pleasant and balmy progress of the township of Palmer.

In the upper part of their courses the West fork and the left branch of the South fork of Wolf creek approach within less than half a mile of each other. Thence diverging far before they meet, these streams enclose a large and compactly shaped tract of land, in the upper part of which is included the most of the fourteen thousand or more acres that, since 1851, have been known as Palmer township. Wolf creek's west fork courses diagonally through the northwest corner. The smaller stream just mentioned traverses from end to end the southern half of the township. The dividing ridge between these creeks extends from the west end of the donation tract belonging to Palmer through the centre of the township, and bends sharply to the northwest—shaped much like a great J and standing a perpetual judge of the claims of the two streams to the drainage of the township. In remarkable exception to the general rule that first settlements proceed along streams, the first settlers of Palmer choose homes along this ridge. This is partly due to the fact that the region between the creeks, the scene of this sketch, is beautifully rolling, the billowy land nowhere breaking into ruggedness. Thus it was that Christopher Malster, as he was choosing a place for a future home, in the year 1796, found it convenient to penetrate the then roadless wilderness without confining himself to the pathways worn by the waters. Christopher Malster was a native of Delaware, where he was born December 27, 1755. He had married Margaret Mehaffy, who was born in 1776, in Lycoming county, Pennsylvania, and settled in her native shire.

Here their first child, William, was born December 11,

1795. The following year the father, then in the prime of life, determined to wrest a home from the wilds of the west. Going first to the mouth of Wolf creek, he finally chose lot No. 15, now in Palmer, and bought of a man named Burnham lot sixty-three. On this latter place he erected his cabin home, and the population of what is now Palmer numbered one. The next year the problem presented itself of transportation. Far to the east was his wife and babe of two years. Woman's pluck solved it. All the toilsome way from Williamsport, Pennsylvania, the mother rode horseback, carrying her child in her arms. As Virgil says: "Tantæ molis erat Romanam condere gentem," it was that much trouble to start the settlement.

After arrival the family was increased by the birth of six more children. John kept his brother William company after September 2, 1800, and was the first born of the township. After him at intervals of two years, Thomas, Benjamin, and Moses were born. The daughters Elizabeth and Mary were born in 1810 and 1814 respectively.

In 1832, January 11, the father finished his work, and was laid to rest in the Gard cemetery. His wife survived him thirty years, and now lies by his side. William, the infant pioneer married in 1822, Sarah Baker, who was born in the county in 1800. Five of their six children are living: Roxana, John L., Moses A., Rowena, and Mary. Roxana is in Palmer. Moses A. was born in 1826, married Martha White in 1835, lives in Watertown, and is the father of four children, all living. His uncle, John, also lives in the place—the only surviving child of Christopher Malster. Rowena is Mrs. George B. Quinn; Mary E. married Walter Buchanan, of Watertown township. William Malster died February 12, 1876.

In March, 1802, the Palmers moved to the tract of land now under consideration. They settled on the land now occupied by Brown's Mill post office. The head of the family was Joseph Palmer, born in Windom, Connecticut, January 13, 1761, with his wife Hannah Fox, who was born in Windom August 2, 1763. His removal was from Rutland county, Vermont, where he had been a resident. The family came to King's settlement, at the head of the Allegheny river. Accompanied by Messrs. Howe, Prouty, Thaddeus, Pond, and Elijah Pond, they made their way down the rivers to Marietta in Keel-boats in the fall of 1801. On the way an accident occurred in the rapids, upsetting the boat containing the Palmers, spilling out their effects and giving the occupants a cool, but not dangerous bath. Jerusha Palmer, then a little girl, was rescued by Mr. Howe. The Palmers then consisting of the two parents and their children Joseph, Jabez, Jerusha, Isaac, and perhaps Ephraim, went immediately to the settlement at Wolf Creek mills. Winter was at hand and some place to spend it had to be found immediately. Mr. Palmer finally decided upon a building that had been used as a shelter for sheep. As might be expected, it was not in condition to suit the notions of a housekeeper who had any regard for cleanliness, but it was soon put in condition for occupation. Arriving at Palmer next spring, they found in the well known pine grove that then occupied the place, a man before them. He was one of that profession that in those days found employment in gathering knots from the pine trees and burning them for the tar they afforded. This man's name was Mallery—a singular character in some respects—well known in the Waterford settlement. He was a bachelor and had constructed a very neat lodge in the vast pine wilderness, and as he was through his work there Mr. Palmer ushered in his family and began in earnest the life of a settler. The first care was to provide a more commodious and permanent shelter for a large family than that afforded by a bachelor's shanty, which was done. In the spring of the following year, 1803, the last child of the family, Elizabeth, was born. In 1805 or 1806 another log cabin was built by Mr. Palmer, into which they soon moved. By the year 1810 Mr. Palmer had constructed a third house, of hewed pine logs, two stories in height, and in this the family lived until the death of its builder, in 1831, in his seventy-first year. Then Isaac Palmer built and lived in a two-story frame building, now remodelled and occupied by A. F. Breckenridge. Joseph Palmer, sr., was quite a prominent character in the settlement that he had helped to found. He was the first justice of the peace. In 1807 he was sent to the legislature as a representative of Washington county. Towards the close of his life his brain became affected, the general opinion being that this misfortune originated from too assiduous duties performed while at Columbus. His wife survived him five years and died at the age of seventy-three years.

Joseph Palmer, jr., the eldest son, married, in 1808, Sarah Martin. This, the first marriage ceremony of the settlement, was to have been performed by a preacher at Wolf Creek mills, by the name of Lindley. Everything was made ready—

"The bridegroom's doors are opened wide
To all the kith and kin;
The guests are met, the feast is set:
Mayst hear the merry din—"

but the minister comes not. The impatient couple wait long, for they cannot know that Mr. Lindley has received and accepted an offer of a position at Athens, Ohio, and is busily engaged in removing thence. The position is becoming embarrassing. Brilliant thought! The old gentleman suddenly remembers he is a justice of the peace. He performs the ceremony himself, thus doing his son the last favor possible while yet a member of his family, pronouncing the closing words, we may well imagine, amid many smiles, much merriment, and good-natured comment of the assembled guests—"the twain are made one"—and the wedding fee remains in the family. The happy couple immediately entered upon their wedding tour, which was the nearest route to their new home, about a quarter of a mile distant. In 1852 Joseph and his wife both died, aged respectively sixty-six and sixty-four years. They were buried side by side in the old Gard graveyard. Of their children, the first-born, Harris, made his home in the township and married Annie Hougling, of Barlow township. They have four children: Sarah, who married George Camp, of Palmer;

Edward R., husband of Mary J. Thornbury; Ruth, now Mrs. Ezra Chapman, of Palmer; and Ephraim. Joseph and John E. are dead. Edward R. was born in 1837, and married in 1858. His wife was born in 1841. His children are Jesse A., Emma N., and Mary. James Martin, another child of Joseph, jr., was born in 1813. He married Sophia Gard in 1835. Six children blessed this union, one of whom, James D., died in the army in the late war. Jabez, the second son of Joseph, sr., married Lydia Brown and settled in Palmer. He built the first brick house in the township, in 1828. It was thirty by forty feet. In the fall of 1844, while cutting corn, he fell dead in the field. He was aged fifty-five. Ten years after, his wife died, at the age of sixty-four. Benjamin F. Palmer, the third son of the original family, married Margaret Hougland, and lives in Barlow township. Jerusha married Caleb Green, of Barlow, who accidentally killed himself. Isaac was born in 1797, and married Persis Tilton. He moved to Waterford township, and had seven boys and four girls. Ephraim, the next younger, married Mary Densmore, went on a western trip and died there about 1835. Elizabeth, the first girl baby of the township, died in 1867. She was never married. The last thirteen years of her life were spent in darkness, for the checking of a running sore in the back of her head produced blindness. Of the original family, all were noted for their great size. Jabez was the largest.

The third family in the settlement was that of Jason Rice and his wife, who was a Miss Hibbard. Their children were Reuben, Joseph, Ambrose, Mary, Deborah, Jonas, Sabinas, and Jason. They moved to the neighborhood in the spring of 1802, a very little later than the Palmers. In about two years they sold out to Cornelius Gard, and went to Federal creek. Mr. Rice was from New England, and lived a short distance north of where the town-house now stands. For several years after his removal he paid visits to the neighborhood.

In 1803 John Danley brought his family to the settlement, and in a few years, together with David Gard, bought lot No. 1,065, and settled on the eastern half. He was a Virginian from near Winchester, and a farmer, though before moving west he was engaged in teaming over the mountains. He was noted as a hunter, and was very fond of the society of his neighbors, especially of children. He had never seen his father, and superstition used to bring people from miles around with children who had sore mouths. Though he had none of the superstition himself, yet he would gratify them by breathing into the mouths of his patients, their parents trusting that they would be cured in that way. His first removal west was to Marietta, in 1797. There he stayed for two years, working for Paul Fearing. Thence he moved to Round bottom, whence he finally came to the Palmer settlement. His wife was Amy Pugh. His children were: Benjamin, who died on attaining his majority; Mary, who married John Cornes; John; Eliza, who became Mrs. William Groves; Elizabeth, wife of J. Leonard; Amy, who married Thomas Malster; Robert, who became the husband of a daughter of Edmund Perry, and has three children; Joel, and, finally, Joseph. John Danley, sr., died in 1858, in his eighty-fourth year—nine years after the death of his wife, in her seventy-first year. Robert and his wife are still living, but by themselves, where the old man of sixty-seven still works at his last. He is widely known as the "old veteran," is entrusted with the care of the old Gard cemetery, and takes great pride in his charge. His quaint communications on the subject of bygone days often appear in print, and indicate how prone he is to think of the "days that are no more."

Cornelius Gard, Mary Hancher, his wife, and their two children, David and Timothy, the former of whom married Mary Hiett two years before, were the next accession to the township. They came from West Virginia, near the Ohio river. Cornelius settled in 1804 on lot No. 1,068. All the family were shoemakers. Cornelius paid more attention to that trade than his sons, however, the latter turning farmers. The father is remembered as a large man, with a deep, heavy voice, and a pleasant though bluff manner. A negro servant accompanied the Gards, Chloë, by name, whose little daughter died the summer of their arrival, and was buried without funeral services on the Breckenridge place. This was the first death and burial in the settlement. In a year or two the Gards sold out to Henry Cornes. Timothy moved on Jonathan's creek, near Zanesville. His wife was Nancy Davis, an orphan girl raised by Isaac Williams, the pioneer who named the West Virginia town opposite Marietta. David, in 1805, moved back to West Virginia, returning in the spring of 1809. He, with John Danley, bought one hundred and sixty acres, lot No. 1,065, and for his part settled with his father on the west half.

Cornelius was born in East Jersey, October 30, 1749, (O. S.) and died November 2, 1842, in his ninety-fourth year. Mary, his wife, was born in 1757, and died in 1840.

David's wife, Mary Hiett, was a daughter of Timothy Hiett, one of the earliest settlers of West Virginia, near Marietta. The children of David were: Hiram, Maria, Rowena, Sophia, Jane and James, the latter two not now living. Hiram is the oldest, was born in 1806, and is in Barlow township; Maria married Mason Brown; Rowena, Edward Camp, Sophia; Martin Palmer.

On his second settlement in the Palmer neighborhood, David Gard built a two-story house of hewed logs, which in 1816 was destroyed by fire. In all probability this was the first conflagration in the settlement. It left the family in a rather uncomfortable plight, none having any clothes but the single suits they were wearing that day.

At one time a servant was working for David Gard, by the name of Isaac Cherry. A poplar tree was standing by the road side, much deflected from the perpendicular by a large limb, that, for some reason, it was considered advisable to remove. This could only be done by standing on a limb below, holding on with one hand and using an axe with the other. The man volunteered to undertake the task; but, as soon as the limb was freed the tree, relieved of its weight, straightened and began a series of vibrations that loosened Mr. Cherry's foothold, and, while he hung by one hand, swung him violently against the trunk again and again. However, he held on, and when the tree ceased vibrating, came down with no worse injuries than a few bruises.

Benjamin M. Brown, who was born in New York State in 1797, emigrated to Ohio in 1806, and lived in Palmer township, this county, until his death, which occurred in 1849. In 1826 he married Maria Gard, who was born in 1806 and died in 1880. The surviving children are as follows, viz: C. A. Brown, who married Martha J. Breckenridge and does business in Belpre village, and John A. Brown, who resides in Union county. The elder Mr. Brown was a prominent man in Palmer township, having served nine years as magistrate and four years as county sheriff.

The sixth family to enter the neighborhood was the first German family. Henry Cornes and his wife Catharine came probably from Pennsylvania and remained in the settlement until 1832. His settlement has been described before, as the purchase, near the year 1806, of the farm of Cornelius Gard and his moving thereon. He was noted for his fondness for horses. In 1809 or 1810 he built the first frame house in the settlement. Part of it is standing yet, on what is known as the Stacey farm. The Cornes children were William, Elizabeth, John, James, Rachel and Henry. William was married before his arrival. His second wife was Mary Perry, whom he married about 1820. Upwards of seven of his children are yet living. He himself died in 1831, at the age of sixty years. Elizabeth married Asa Beach, of Watertown; John, Mary Dauley; James, Mary Miller, of England; Rachel, Miller Clark, on Little Hocking; Henry, Mary Pugh, of Virginia. The second and third deaths in the settlement were those of two children of William Cornes.

For a period of seven years, more or less, no additional families came to the settlement. Finally, in 1813, Joseph Atkinson with his wife, a niece of Paul Fearing, moved in from Waterford. His children were John, Luan, Frank, Deborah, and a little girl whose name is not known. Atkinson was a disorderly character. Returning intoxicated from Wolf Creek mills one evening in 1818, he fell by the roadside and died from exposure. There he was found by one of his sons.

During all this period, the settlement was confined to the upland country. The course of the West fork of Wolf creek now included in Palmer, was, it is remarkable, not settled at all. But in 1815, Timothy Hiett, who, up to that time, was living in West Virginia, a few miles below Marietta, began the erection of a saw-mill with one run of buhrs on this stream. This was the second mill on Wolf creek. Samuel Brown, a millwright of Athens, was employed to build the mill for six hundred dollars. When finished it was bought by its builder, while Mr. Hiett, with his wife, who was Elizabeth Pewthers before marriage, bought a farm near where Robert Breckenridge now lives. In 1834 he sold to John Breckenridge and returned to the mill, which he operated until his death, in 1839, at which time he was fifty years of age. His wife survived him until 1861, dying in her seventieth year.

Samuel Brown was a brother of General Brown, of Athens, and learned his trade of Sharp & Hunt, for whom he worked in the construction of Wolf Creek mills. Hiatt had a cabin put up, in which he intended to live when his mill should be finished. Brown and his family occupied it during the building of the mill, and continued to remain there upon his purchase of the mill. Mr. Brown did not make such a financial success of his business as a less sympathetic man would have done. Never a needy person, however, unable to pay, came to his mill and went away empty handed. After the sale of his mill, he lived with his son-in-law, a Frenchman, named Eugene Pierrot. Brown's first wife was Mary Poole, who died in Athens county. Her children were Sophia, Lucinda, Affa, and Alvina. By his second wife, Sarah Jenkins, his children were: Mary and Amy. Samuel Brown died in 1872, aged ninety-one years. His last wife died in 1856, aged sixty-four.

Before the construction of these mills, the neighborhood went principally to those on Wolf creek. A hand-mill in Watertown township also did them some service. In this connection it may be mentioned that Brown's was the only grist-mill ever run by water in the territory of Palmer. Between 1820 and 1825, John Hurlbut came to the settlement, bought the farm now owned by widow Stoller, erected a horse-power tread-mill, and with his brother-in-law, John Miller, did grinding for the neighborhood. This mill will be remembered by old settlers in connection with an exhibition, consisting of literary exercises by home talent, and held in the building shortly after its erection. This performance was perhaps the first of the kind in the neighborhood. The frame of the mill is now used in a barn on the same place. Hurlbut went to Waterford about 1842, and lived there until his death. Two miles above Brown's mill, about 1835, Hiram Gard put up a saw-mill.

The only post office that is now, or ever has been, in the neighborhood now called Palmer, is called Brown's Mill's post office. Its name indicates its origin. Samuel Brown was the first postmaster, beginning in that capacity about 1821, and locating the office in his dwelling-house, near the mill. At that time there was no post office between it and Harmar. The mail was carried by Colonel Ullmore, of Massachusetts, on the route between Marietta and Lancaster, which was opened at that time. The next postmaster was Hiram Gard, who held it for about a score of years, beginning with 1826 or 1827. The succeeding one was Thomas Breckenridge. The present postmaster is Andrew Breckenridge. The office was changed successively to the residences of the different postmasters.

George Quinn was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, and afterwards came to Palmer township in 1820-30. His wife, Jane Bruce, was born in Beaver county, Pennsylvania. Six children were born to them, of whom five are living: Charles lives in McClellan county, Texas; David J. is in Harrison county; George B. is in Palmer township; and Elizabeth is at home. They had a daughter, Annie, who is dead. George B. was born in Washington county in 1845, and married, in 1867, Roena Malster, who was born in 1830. Mr. Quinn has a large farm of some three hundred and seventy-seven acres, on which he is extensively engaged in the important interest of Palmer township—that of sheep-raising.

Thomas Perry, born in Pennsylvania in 1746, emigrated to Ohio in 1824, and died in what is now Palmer township. By his wife, Catharine Fisher, he had three sons and seven girls. Of these, John settled in Washington county in 1829. He married Abigail, the daughter of Samuel Patterson, who was born in 1801. Five of their eleven children survive. James, the fourth child, was born in 1823, and has been in this township since he was five years of age.

Isaac Perry was a Pennsylvanian, who came to the southern end of the settlement in 1829. He lived from 1775 to 1868. In 1819 he married Mary Armstrong, who was born in 1801. Six children were born—James B.; Isabelle, who is married and lives in Fairfield; Margaret, now Mrs. Smith, of Palmer; Mary Ann, a resident with her parents; Sarah, wife of Dock V. Smith, and an inhabitant of Washington Court House; and Armstrong H., who lives in Palmer.

James B. Perry was born in 1819 in Pennsylvania. He came to this county with his parents. In 1844 he married Esther, daughter of William Huston, and is the father of the following seven children: Euphemia, Orange C., Charles B., Chauncey, Mahala, Caroline, and Lewis. His first wife lived from 1827 to 1878. He married, in 1880, Mrs. Phoebe Smith, who was born in 1846. Her children by her first husband are Minnie, Leslie, and Clara B. Mr. Perry's name appears frequently in the table of the township officers, and he was also in the one hundred days' service during the war.

Dock V. Smith, mentioned above, was a son of Vincent Smith. He was born in 1832 in this county, and in 1855 was married. He removed from the county in 1877. Of his five children Ralph W., is living in Palmer township with his grandparents. He was born in 1856, and in 1880 married Ruth Rardin, who was born in 1862. He is a general farmer and stock-raiser. Ada, the second child of Dock Smith, is at home; Ella married Dr. Bansier, a native of England; Frank and Fred are at home. Vincent Smith had another son by the name of S. S., who was born in this county in 1825, and married, in 1862, Deborah Graham, who was born in 1830 and died in 1856. Three children resulted from this marriage—two survive: Anna N., and Eva J., who married George Chamberlain; both live in Columbiana county. In 1861 S. S. Smith married Margaret Perry, who was born in 1823. Their two children are Sidner E., and Idella M. S. S. Smith is a farmer on a ninety acre farm.

In April, 1828, Elias Murdock came to the settlement from Harmar, to which place he had moved from Wood county, Virginia, in 1826. His parents, John Murdock and Mary Dilse, had moved to the latter place from Pennsylvania in 1804. In 1825, Elias married Malinda, a daughter of James Pewthers, who had come from Scotland prior to 1790, and settled on the Vienna bottom, on the Ohio river. The Pewthers family was of the Bellville garrison during the Indian war.

Elias Murdock, born 1807 and died 1880. His wife in 1870. The children were: Elizabeth A., James M., Mary P., George W., Virginia A., Jesse G., Sarah C., and Charles J. James M. was born March 4, 1828, and married in 1849, Nancy Breckenridge, who was born in the county in 1828. Their five children are named respectively: Hugh B., George D., Henry G. (died in 1865), Robert H., and Ellie A.

William Hickman, the third son of William and Mary (Tumblinson) Hickman, natives of Virginia, was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, in 1819, and settled in Palmer township in 1838. He married Susan, the daughter of Thomas and Catharine Perry. They have three children, viz: Charlotte (Varner), of this township; Selena, at home, and Mary (Lake), in Decatur township. Mr. Hickman owns one hundred and sixty acres of land. He has held important township offices.

Owen Pattent, the son of Richard Pattent, was born in Washington county, in 1812, and married Anna, daughter of Freeman Hopkins. She was born in 1814. Seven children were born: Andrew, Freeman, Sarah, Thomas, John, Owens, and Robert. Thomas was born in 1840, in the county, and in 1866 married Mary, daughter of William Cornes. She was born in 1847. The fruit of this union is two children: Ida and Earl, both of whom are with their parents. Mr. Pattent is actively engaged in stock raising on a hundred and twenty acre farm. Mr. Pattent enlisted in 1861 in company L, First Ohio cavalry.

An example of what industry will do, is that afforded by Robert and Margaret Graham, the parents of Thomas Graham. When they arrived in America, their capital consisted of twenty-five cents, and hope. By hard work they in time attained a competence. Thomas, who was born in Pennsylvania, in 1800, was a miller and farmer, and lived with his parents until he was forty-five years of age. Then, having already married Susan Gilchrist in 1841, he began life for himself in Palmer township. Their children were: Robert, Maria, and Susan; the latter is dead. Thomas Graham's second wife was Miss Dennis, and his third a daughter of Peleg Lincoln, who was born in 1812 and still lives in Palmer.

She is the daughter of Peleg and Bettie Lincoln, and a native of Franklin county, Massachusetts. She came to Morgan county in 1817, and was married in 1849. Her only child, Amanda, still lives with her on a two hundred acre farm.

Mariah, daughter of Thomas Graham and his first wife, still lives in Palmer on a farm of two hundred and twelve acres, which she is managing herself.

The Scotch settlement, which owed its existence to the energy of Nahum Ward, and which began in Barlow about 1817—began in Palmer in 1820, with the advent of John and Hugh Breckenridge. Following his settlement, in order, were the arrivals of Hugh Greenlees in 1834, David Ferguson, and Duncan Drain. This is the extent of that settlement in Palmer.

Robert Breckenridge settled in the territory, now a part of Palmer township, in 1818. He was one of a numerous family that emigrated from Scotland and settled in the county of Washington. His father was Andrew Breckenridge, who married Nancy Brown, by whom he had the following children: Robert, Isabel, John, Hugh, Edward, William, Elizabeth and Nancy, all of whom were born in Argyllshire. Robert, the first settler, married Catharine Harvey and left Scotland in June, 1818, coming from New York to Philadelphia, whence he walked nearly all the way to Pittsburgh, coming thence in a keel-boat down the Ohio and landing at Marietta. His wife still survives. They had six children. John and Hugh, who were twins, settled in Palmer township in 1820. John married Agnes Fleming, by whom he had three sons and three daughters—Andrew, John, Robert, Jane, Nancy, and Martha, who married C. A. Brown of Belpre. Mr. Breckenridge was elected county commissioner in 1849 and served three years. His first wife dying, he was again married in 1852, his second wife dying in 1871. The eldest son, Andrew, in 1848, married Elizabeth, only daughter of Joseph and Sarah Palmer. Four children were born of this union. Mr. Breckenridge has been postmaster at Brown's Mills since 1861. He has been the treasurer of Palmer township. Robert Breckenridge married Mary P. Murdock. They have had seven children, five of whom are living. The Breckenridge family is of the old Scotch Presbyterian faith.

On the Breckenridge place stands a log house that has something of a history. It is two stories in height, and built by Mr. Hutchinson when he owned the farm. Timothy Hiatt bought the place, and in 1834 sold it to John Breckenridge, who already had a home on an adjoining farm. The house, accordingly, not being used by himself, he devoted it to the shelter of the Scotch families who were frequently coming in search of places in which to live, and they thus used the house temporarily until more permanently settled. Nor was this the only use made of the house. As the Breckenridge daughters would be married at different times, they would begin housekeeping in this quasi hotel until their husbands could construct dwellings of their own. Thus this structure has seen many families within its hospitable walls.

Nathan, the third child of Samuel and Rebecca (Shipley) Browning was born in Maryland in 1816, and when young came to Morgan county, Ohio, with his parents. He married Jane, daughter of Levin and Nancy Shipley. Six of their ten children are living, viz.: Edward, George, Charles and Annis, at home; Francis, in Michigan; John in Marietta. Mr. Browning is one of Washington county's most worthy farmers and respected citizens.

One of the later accessions to the township is William R. Stacy, who was born in Muskingum township in 1850; married Eliza J. Breckenridge in 1872 and settled in Palmer township in 1873. His wife was born in 1858. They have four children, three of whom, Len. E., Clide C., and Ned E., are living. John R. is dead.

Orlando Trotter, son of Richard and Caroline Trotter, was born in 1850, and married Anna, daughter of Duncan and Catharine Drain. One child is the result of their marriage. Mr. Trotter has been a township officer, and owns a farm of one hundred and fifteen acres of land.

POLITICAL HISTORY.

The territory that is the subject of these pages, has undergone many changes in regard to township lines. One man, long a resident of the Palmer neighborhood, recollects having been, without moving, successively in Waterford, Wooster (afterwards called Watertown) Roxbury, Wesley and Palmer. Prior to the formation of Noble county in 1851, a man standing on the northeast corner of section six, now in Palmer, could have placed himself by a single step, either northeast, in Watertown, southeast in Barlow, southwest, in Wesley, or northwest, in Roxbury. From this point, the dividing lines ran toward the four points of the compass in two straight lines through the present township. But, by the formation of Noble, Morgan county lost large areas, and was partially recompensed by the addition of the larger part of Roxbury, taken from Washington county. At a special session of the commissioners, May 19, 1851, the remaining portions of Roxbury, with parts of the other townships just mentioned were consolidated into a new township, named after the family so much concerned in the settlement and growth of its territory and interests. The entry on the journal reads as follows:

A petition was received from citizens of Roxbury and parts of Wesley, Watertown and Barlow for the erection of a new township composed of territory embraced within the following boundaries, viz: Commencing at the northwest corner of one hundred and sixty acre lot No. 1,079, range eleven, town eight; thence south to the southwest corner of said lot; thence to the northwest corner of one hundred and sixty acre lot No. 1,080; thence south to the southwest corner of section thirteen, range eleven, town eight; thence south to the southwest corner of section No. 17, range eleven, town seven; thence to the southeast corner of section No. 5, range eleven, town seven; thence east to the southeast corner of section No. 35, range ten, town three; thence north to the southwest corner of one hundred and sixty acre lot No. 780; thence east to the southeast corner of one hundred and sixty acre lot No. 780; thence north to the northeast corner of section No. 30, range ten, town three; thence north to the northeast corner of fractional lot No. 838, range ten, town four; thence north to the southeast corner of one hundred acre lot No. 47, range ten, town four, south branch allotment; thence to the northeast corner of one hundred acre lot No. 47 aforesaid; thence west to the northwest corner of one hundred acre lot No. 14, range ten, town four, west branch allotment; thence south to the southwest corner of one hundred acre lot No. 15, range ten, town four, west branch allotment; thence westwardly to follow the line which divides the late township of Roxbury, setting off the said township to Morgan county, to the place of beginning.

An order was issued for the first election of township officers, and bore the date, May 18, 1851. The place appointed for the election was the "school-house in district No. 1, formerly of Roxbury township." Here, May 30, 1851, the election was held. The officers elected were: Hiram Gard, John Danley, jr., and George Quin, trustees; Hiram M. Brown, clerk; Joseph Leonard, treasurer; O. M. Cook, assessor; John Palmer, Thomas Breckenridge, constables; John Breckenridge, jr., B. S. Malster, James H. Gard, Albert Thomas, Hugh Greenlees, and William Leget, supervisors. Supervisors appointed the same day—Albert Ward, Andrew Brown, Nathan Witham, William Ormiston, William Creighton, Thomas Drain, Richard Trotter, George Hildebrand, David Hildebrand, and Isaac Aigin. The judges of this election were George Quin, John Danley, jr., and J. L. Palmer. Hiram Gard and Joseph Leonard were the clerks of the election.

Since that time the township trustees elected at each spring election are: 1852, William Malster, John Danley, jr., Horace Dunsmore; 1853, Richard Trotter, William Malster, Isaac Perry; 1854, O. M. Cook, David Ferguson, Joseph W. Danley; 1855, William Hickman, jr., Joseph W. Danley, Gabriel Payne; 1856 and 1857, William Hickman, jr., J. M. Mordough, R. I. Danley; 1858, R. I. Danley, J. B. Perry, Thomas Drain; 1859 and 1860, William Malster, William Hickman, Thomas Drain; 1861, J. M. Murdock, William Hickman, J. H. Gard; 1862-67, J. M. Murdock, James M. Palmer, William Hickman; 1868, J. M. Murdock, David Ferguson, John M. Danley; 1869, J. M. Murdock, David Ferguson, Henry L. Pugh; 1870-2, R. Breckenridge, David Ferguson, I. W. Danley; 1873 and 1874, R. Breckenridge, David Ferguson, O. M. Cook; 1875, R. Breckenridge, David Ferguson, G. B. Quinn; 1876-8, R. Breckenridge, A. G. Pugh, D. W. Shinn; 1879-80, R. Breckenridge, S. J. Henry, D. W. Shinn.

The clerks of the township for the same time are: 1852-3, H. M. Brown; 1854-5, James H. Gard, 1856-7, John Palmer; 1858-60, Joseph Leonard; 1861-2, Thomas Breckenridge; 1863-5, H. M. Brown; 1866-8, D. P. Leonard; 1869-72, J. J. Montgomery; 1873, C. J. Gibson; 1874-7, J. P. Daugherty; 1878, H. M. Palmer; 1879-80, T. E. Ferguson.

Treasurers: 1852, Joseph Leonard; 1853, James M. Mordough; 1854, Joseph Leonard; 1855, John W. Danley; 1856-7, Joseph W. Danley; 1858, D. L. Brown; 1860-66, John Breckenridge; 1867, C. A. Brown; 1868, James Breckenridge; 1869-71, John L. Pugh; 1872-78, J. G. Murdock; 1879-80, L. Daugherty.

Assessors: 1852-3, Hiram Gard; 1854-7, Isaac Perry; 1858, Richard Trotter; 1859, John Breckenridge; 1860, Isaac Perry; 1861-2, Richard Trotter; 1863, Robert Breckenridge; 1864, Richard Trotter; 1865-6, Robert Breckenridge; 1867, Richard Trotter; 1868-9, Robert Breckenridge; 1870, Richard Trotter; 1871, S. S. Smith; 1872-3, William Campbell; 1874-5, Robert Breckenridge; 1876, Richard Trotter; 1877, J. M. Murdock; 1878, Ell. Miller; 1879, Richard Trotter; 1880, Samuel Caskey.

The early justices in the neighborhood are not all known. Joseph Palmer has already been mentioned as the first one in the settlement. Others were: Silas Cook, the father of O. M. Cook, about 1815-20; Hiram Gard, in the neighborhood of 1834; Evan Jenkins, about 1840-7; and Squires Trotter and Pewthers. In the June term, 1851, the court of common pleas ordered the first election of Palmer township justices to be held the third Saturday of the following July. July 19th the election was held, resulting in the choice of Hiram Gard and Edwin West. In 1854 Richard Trotter and Thomas Breckenridge were elected; 1857, Richard Trotter, A. F. Breckenridge; June 13, 1857, Joseph W. Danley was elected; April, 1860, Richard Trotter; June, 1863, Joseph W. Danley; 1865, Edward Camp; 1867, Henry L. Pugh.

May 31, 1851, an election was held on the Marietta & Cincinnati railroad question. Those who favored a county subscription of two hundred thousand dollars for the railroad, numbered seventy-six; those against, thirty-three.

Palmer township has always been Republican. A few elections indicative of its political drift are: 1851, Samuel F. Vinton, Republican, sixty-three; Reuben Wood, Democrat, thirty-eight. In 1852 General Scott received twenty-one majority. October 10, 1854, Joseph R. Swan, for supreme judge, sixty; Shep. Norris, twenty-five. In 1855 the Republican majority was forty. In 1862 the Republican majority was twenty-six; in 1866, fifty-six. In October, 1880, for secretary of State, there were eighty-eight Republican, fifty-one Democratic, and one Greenback votes cast. For the last fifteen years the average vote has been one hundred and fourteen, and the average Republican majority, forty-three.

Palmer township began with thirteen road districts; in 1878 it had fifteen. In 1880, in accordance with the Moore law, which affects only Washington county, the township was divided into two road districts, "all north of and including lots Nos. 1085, 1075, 1070, 805, and 1804," being one district, and the remainder of the township the other.

The first election after Palmer township was established has already been referred to as in a school-house. From then up to 1856 elections were usually held in an old dwelling-house near A. F. Breckenridge's residence. In 1856, when the present school-house was built, the former one was appropriated as a town-house, in which all elections have since been held.

SCHOOLS.

These began almost with the settlement. It will be remembered that Joseph Palmer built three houses. In the winter, probably, of 1805-6, Russell Darrow, a young man from New England, who married a daughter of Frederick Evelyn, engaged by Mr. Palmer, taught school a month. This was the first school in the settlement, and was held in the second house built by Mr. Palmer, a log cabin into which Palmer had not yet moved. The pupils were the seven Palmer children and Benjamin Danley—then a lad of some seven or eight summers. The wages the young teacher received were twelve dollars for his month's work.

Probably the next school was that taught by James Ashcroft in 1809 or 1810. By this time the Palmers had moved out of the house that Darrows had used, leaving it free to be occupied by Mr. Ashcroft for his work, and hence his school was held in the same building in which was Mr. Darrow's. The pupils were the Palmer children, except Joseph, the Malsters, named William, John, Thomas, and Benjamin; seven or eight of the Cornes children, three Danley children, and last, perhaps least at that time, Hiram Gard. Ashcroft was an Englishman whose folks lived at the mouth of Wolf creek. He was a peevish, spiteful man, and on account of a difficulty with David Gard, carried on a series of petty persecutions against little Hiram, keeping him most of the time on the dunce block, which, it is said, was a large bible. Almost every day he would depute some larger pupil to "take Hiram Gard by the ear and lead him to the dunce block;" but at one time the laugh was turned on him by the wit of one of his scholars. This one, being appointed as Hiram's guide, led him up to the teacher's seat, which at that time was unoccupied.

In one respect Ashcroft was an extreme hypochondriac. He was mortally afraid of getting damp. Many a housewife would often recall to memory the half opened door, the head thrush in, and the inquiry from the owner thereof: "Have you been scrubbing your floor? If you have, I can't come in." How near this dread approached insanity may be seen by the fact that at one time, at an apple-paring, he declared that the "damp from the apple-peelings affected his system." It may easily be imagined what amusement, and even scorn, this would excite among a community schooled to all manner of hardship, with whom strength and manliness was virtue, and weakness and effeminacy crime; whose women were men in fortitude, and whose men were hardy beyond their race—a people that admired virility in men, and would hardly tolerate womanly weakness in women.

Ashcroft, however, was a good scholar, and received maximum wages—twelve dollars per month.

After Ashcroft, three more teachers taught in the same building. Their probable order was Jabez Palmer, John T. Dumont, and William Brown. The little flock which all these led through educational pastures was composed of substantially the same lambs as heretofore mentioned.

By 1814 a building, for educational and religious uses, was constructed of hewed pine logs and on the small plat of ground where now stands the schools and town-house. The first teacher in this building was Solomon N. Cook, who taught two winters. Other teachers were Peter B. Lake, William Cowee, Rufus Humphrey, B. M. Brown, and Hiram Gard, who, let us hope, remembered Ashcroft and was merciful. Two lady teachers—Eliza Danley and Elizabeth Palmer—taught a summer school in this same building.

Not far from the year 1825 the log building was superseded by a frame school-house, which was so used until 1856, when it was appropriated for a town-house, and may yet be seen. In the spring of this year, however, a select school was begun and held in it. It was conducted by Z. G. Bundy, and principally designed for the instruction of teachers whose winters were occupied at their profession. In the summers of 1857, 1858 and 1859 it was continued under the instruction of Jefferson Yarnell, in the school-house yet standing, which was built in 1856. The higher branches were taught both in language and mathematics, so that it was possible for a student in the school to prepare himself for college. Its patronage was from quite a large territory, members being from Noble and Morgan counties. The number of pupils ranged from fifty to seventy-five. Among them was E. R. Alderman, the present editor of the Marietta Register, who attended in 1857, 1858 and 1859, in the latter year hearing some classes. After 1859 the enterprise was discontinued.

CHURCHES.

In the early days of the settlement, a man named Straight held Freewill Baptist meetings. Meetings of this denomination were frequently held through the different settlements at that time, and rarely resulted in an organization of a church. That was the case here. Straight became involved in social difficulties and left the neighborhood. No more meetings of this class were held after.

The first Methodist meetings were held in the neighborhood of 1807, under the management of Philip or John Green, a local preacher. Succeeding him was one named Mitchell. The place of these meetings was the house of Henry Cornes. These exercises were discontinued, after a short time, until 1813, when the circuit rider, Isaac Quinn, at that time of the Marietta circuit, revived the cause of Methodism and held meetings in the former dwelling house of Joseph Palmer, sr., the house referred to as taught in by Ashcroft. Meetings were held in this for only a year or less, when they were transferred to the hewed pine log house that had just been made as a school and meeting-house. At this time, or very soon after, the church was organized. The first class-leader was Joseph Palmer, jr. The members, as far as can be recalled by old residents, were no more than Joseph Palmer and wife, and William Cornes and his mother. Not long after Christopher Malster joined the little band. Some time before the organization of the church, many from the neighborhood attended in what was known as Corner chapel, in the Miller neighborhood. An early preacher there was named Stone. In 1827, after the building that now stands as a town-house was put up, meetings were held in that until the fall of 1837, when the present church building was constructed. The land for this latter building was given by Isaac Palmer. The present minister of the church is D. M. Smith, of the Plymouth circuit. In 1799, this settlement was included in the Little Kanawha circuit. In 1805 it became part of the Little Muskingum circuit. In 1807, it was Muskingum and Little Kanawha. After 1808, it was the Marietta circuit. This order of things continued until 1836, when it was transferred to the Belpre circuit. In 1843, it became part of the Barlow circuit. In 1856, it was part of Plymouth circuit, where it has remained ever since.

TEMPERANCE.

Palmer township, situated at a distance from large towns with their excitements and other influences which make cities always allurements to intemperance, settled by men of steady habits, devoted to the tranquil pursuits of agriculture and sheep-raising—this township, it may be readily inferred, is the home of a strong, decided, and active temperance sentiment. As early as December 24, 1840, this sentiment had crystallized into a temperance society, and the aggressive character of this sentiment was well expressed by the title, "the Roxbury Society for the Promotion of Temperance." John Hurlbert was the president, Jesse Leasure was vice-president, and Edward Camp was secretary at the organization of this society. Four times a year they met, keeping time with the seasons, thus literally fulfilling the injunction to be "instant in season and out of season." Business meetings were held on the first Saturday of April.

The first meeting saw the subscription of twenty-eight names—which roll was, by the year 1851, increased to nearly a hundred and fifty—to the following pledge which was a part of their constitution:

We the undersigned do agree that we will abstain from intoxicating liquors as a beverage except in cases of sickness or bodily hurt; that we will not traffic in them; that we will not provide them as an article of entertainment for persons in our employment, and in all suitable ways we will discontinue their use throughout the community.

It will be noticed that one clause of this agreement is aimed at the then prevailing practice of rewarding neighborly aid at log-rollings, barn-raising, and similar gatherings, also furnishing harvest hands with whiskey.

This society was succeeded by the Sons of Temperance in 1851—which body existed in Palmer until 1854. This was the period, it will be remembered, of the contest concerning the Maine Liquor law. June 17, 1851, soon after its establishment, Palmer township voted as follows on the license question: For license, thirty; against the same, fifty-two; majority against license, twenty-two.

April 9, 1852, a branch society of the Washington County Temperance Union was organized in Palmer with J. M. Palmer as president, John Breckenridge, jr., as vice-president and J. M. Murdock as secretary. This was also organized principally with the object of aiding the temperance interests in the approaching political contest.

Early meetings of the first society, as well as those of the Sons of Temperance, were held in the old Palmer house—the one mentioned as built of hewed pine logs and lived in by Joseph Palmer, jr., all the latter part of his life. When the death of the old man ended its use as a dwelling house, this building was put to many public uses. It was a general resort for the neighborhood. Isaac Palmer fitted it up, at one time as a dancing hall, and its old walls, many a time, rang to the strains evoked from his violin by the indispensable well known, country fiddler. Fourth of July and other celebrations were held in this building. It was also used many years, as a store, but more of this hereafter.

Among all these organizations in Palmer, must not be forgotten that of the Independent Rifle company. This owed its existence to a similar organization in Barlow township, about the year 1822, to which some of the residents of what is now Palmer belonged. These afterwards organized a separate company in their own neighborhood, thus bringing it in the range of this sketch. There were from a hundred to a hundred and thirty members in it. The early captains were Michael Gard, Ephraim Palmer, and Henry Abbott. Both officers and men were very finely uniformed, and their parades were very much admired by the neighborhood.

CEMETERIES.

March 15, 1817, Jane, a six months old daughter of David Gard, was accidentally and fatally scalded. This was the fourth death in the settlement. She was buried on a high plat of ground a short distance north of the residence of R. I. Danley. This was the origin of the Gard cemetery. It is in a beautiful situation, and is well kept by R. I. Danley, in whose charge it now remains.

It is rare that one sees a graveyard so filled with the patriarchs and pioneers of a community. It contains, on a close estimate, two hundred and seventy-five graves. Of the old residents of the land enclosed in Palmer township, there lie here Joseph Pierrot, a native of France, died in 1856, aged sixty-five; Henrietta, his wife, of Berne, Switzerland, died in 1875, aged seventy-four; F. L. Liengme, also of Berne, died in 1848, aged forty-four; Thomas G. Graham; Sybil Piper, died in 1853, aged seventy; Esther Michener, of Pennsylvania, died in 1867, born in 1778; Benjamin G. Brockway, died in 1856, aged seventy-four; Ruth, his wife; Dr. John Hemphill; Nathan Gard, died in 1821, aged fifty-two, the third buried in the yard; Eleanora Gard, died in 1824, aged fifty; Benjamin Pugh, died in 1870, aged eighty-four; Mary, his wife; James Henderson, died in 1835, aged forty-three; William Groves, died in 1841, aged forty-two; Eliza, his wife; Benjamin Danley, died in 1820, aged twenty-two, the second buried in the cemetery; Henry Cornes, died in 1826, aged seventy-two; Elias Pewthers, died in 1840, aged thirty-seven; Benjamin M. Brown, born in Washington county, New York, in 1797, was sheriff of the county from 1834 to 1838, died in 1849; Phœbe Groves, died in 1856, aged seventy-six; John Hurlbut, died in 1855, aged seventy-six; John Multon, died in 1850, aged sixty-five; Lucy, his wife, died in 1848, aged seventy-two. Here, also, lie many whose deaths and ages have already been given—of the Palmers, the Malsters, the Gards, the Cornes, the Danleys, the Breckenridges, and many others. Many well-known names of Barlow, Watertown, and Windsor townships also appear on the marble stones.

In the year 1838, shortly after the arrival of John and Hugh Breckenridge in the settlement, they were at a barn raising. While they were at work, one of the rafters fell, killing Hugh and injuring John. In accordance with a wish expressed by Hugh a short time before, he was buried on that part of his land now embraced by the cemetery, near the house of J. M. Murdock. This was the beginning of that graveyard. The next burial in it was that of the wife of John Breckenridge. In this yard are buried persons of the names of Breckenridge, Murdock, Palmer, Mitchell, Ferguson, Greenlees, Bryan, Reed, and others. It now contains about forty graves. Both these graveyards are in the care of the township, the Murdock cemetery having been entrusted to it some four years ago.

These are not the only burying-grounds in the township. There existed another, containing one grave, but the date of its origin, and facts about the life of its occupant, are destined, probably, forever to remain mysteries. The grave was situated west of Brown's mills, on a ridge, and was what is ordinarily known as an Indian mound. It was on the farm of G. W. Murdock. In 1838, Ludley Gard, D. W. Shinn, and others, opened it, and discovered in it a vault eight feet long, four feet deep, and walled with stone. This contained a skeleton seven feet long, a tomahawk, arrow-heads, and stones ground into divers shapes. This mound was situated near what might be styled the first road in the township.

This was no more or less than an old Indian trail, which crossed the stream below Brown's mills, and ran in the direction of the Hocking river from the Ohio. Its situation indicates that it was a line of communication from the western villages of the Indians to the frontier. In addition to the mound above mentioned, many Indian relics were found along its course.

The first white man's road in Palmer, however, was built from Waterford to within three miles of Plymouth; that is, to the State road between Marietta and Athens. The course of this road through Palmer was along the high ground to the east of the West fork of Wolf creek, and lay directly through the site of the earliest settlement. In those days of few roads, and no steamboats or railroads, articles imported into the settlement were, of course, very high priced. Salt at that time was carried over the mountains on horseback. Residents of the neighborhood were obliged to go to Marietta for this article, and pay five dollars per bushel for it.

PHYSICIANS.

The first physician in Palmer was Dr. John Hemphill, a native of New Hampshire, who was a young man of thirty-five when he arrived. His arrival was, in all probability, in 1836. He married Mary Ann Gage, of Waterford, and settled near Brown's mill. He had two children, Orson and Joseph. He was a quiet, unassuming man and a good practitioner. He practiced until within a few years of his death, which occurred in 1869, of softening of the brain. He was sixty-seven years old at the time of his death.

In 1850 Dr. West came to the settlement. He was of the eclectic school of physicians, and was very successful, especially in fevers. He did not remain but about four years. While in the settlement he lived at different places, but most of the time his residence was near the neighborhood store.

The third and last doctor in Palmer was H. Bryan, who came in 1856. He was a botanical doctor, and practiced about a dozen years.

INDUSTRIES.

The first store in the territory included in Palmer was kept by Hiram Gard, between 1825 and 1830. It was situated on the West fork.

Upon the death of Joseph Palmer, sr., in 1831, his two-story hewed pine log dwelling house, so often mentioned in this article, was used as a store. Colonel Stone, of Harmar, filled it with goods. Beginning with 1834 and continuing for four years, John Malster kept it. The building itself after being used for the various purposes referred to, was torn down. The upper story was fitted up as a dwelling house, and so used by David Richards, and after him many other store-keepers. This part of the historic building is still standing and in good preservation, but would hardly be recognized now as the last of the three houses of old Joseph Palmer.

The first blacksmith in the neighborhood, as near as can be recollected, was William Chute, who began pounding iron there about 1825. He located his shop just east of Brown's mill. At first he had no anvil, and was obliged to use instead an old cast-off saw-mill crank. When business got better he doubtless indulged in an anvil of a more approved pattern.

The first tannery was put up near Brown's mill on the Hemphill farm, by James Jenkins. This was probably a few years after the mill was built. The enterprise lasted but a few years. About 1833 Edward Camp bought a few acres of the Gards and started the second tannery. In 1847 Robert I. Danley bought this of its founder and managed it two or three years, when the enterprise was discontinued. This tannery was situated in the depression between Mr. Robert Danley's present dwelling house and the residence of Mr. Brown.

In the summer of 1879, 'Ezra Michner, at Brown's mills, began what promised to be an important work to the neighborhood—the manufacture, by grinding, of limestone flour—thus furnishing a good fertilizer for farms. But the main industries, and what must always be the main industries of Palmer, are the cultivation of farms and the raising of sheep. The land, as before remarked, is rolling, nowhere so steep as to make cultivation impossible or even difficult. The soil, though in many places of a whitish color, still yields fairly on the whole, and good cultivation is supplementing other deficiencies.

Within a comparatively few years the attention of Palmer township people has largely been turned to the raising of sheep, many of the farmers dealing in the finest varieties. So far has this interest progressed, that as the traveller traverses the country and notices the grassy surfaces, apparently swelling and falling in great waves of land on every side, he is struck with the idea that Palmer is certainly the township of meadows.

Limestone is situated in most places through this county too low to be of much value as a fertilizer. Sandstone is a remarkable factor in the rocks that underlie these farms, and where this sandstone rests on a more solvent shale, exposed to the action of water, the very beautiful waterfalls are formed that appear to one passing along the often romantic valleys of the streams.

Coal is not present in paying quantities. The only seam that appears, according to Professor E. B. Andrews, is the Hobson seam. This is not of remarkable thickness, but it gives the coal miner of Palmer a Hobson's choice—that or nothing. Mr. Andrews avers that about a hundred and twenty feet above the coal appears iron ore of two or three feet in thickness. This is said to cover a considerable area in the neighborhood. It yields a very small per cent.—only nine and seventy-two hundredths of iron.

The native trees of the county are, among others, the white oak, and hickory on the flat lands. The pine grove referred to as settled in by Mr. Palmer, and furnishing tar under the skill of a Mallery, was a remarkable growth confined to that immediate neighborhood, and well remembered by those who lived within sight of it, or spent their noons, while attending the select school, beneath its shade. Within the present year, under the destroying influence of the portable saw-mill, it has entirely disappeared from the landscape.

The numerous white oak trees have christened this, in common with settlements in adjoining townships, the White Oak settlement, which has always been famous for its thrift and intelligence. The results of this, as well as of the steady progress which the preceding pages attempt to convey, are well attested by the eye that views the neat and often beautiful houses, the well kept fences and farm improvements, and the general air of order that everywhere exists in this pleasant section.

In 1860 the population of Palmer township was six hundred and eighteen; in 1870, six hundred and seventy-one; in 1880, five hundred and ninety-three. The decrease in the last decade is partly due to the fact that increase in individual wealth resulted in larger farms and consequently fewer farmers.

CHAPTER L.

AURELIUS TOWNSHIP.

Position and Dimensions—Establishment—Name—Organization—Table of Township Officers—Changes in Boundary—Population and Vote—Physical Features—Origin of the Name Indian Run—Soil—Coal—Salt—Oil—The Dutton Well—Present State of the Oil Industry—Settlement—How Ben Beat the Boat—Early Days—Trouble with a Panther—First Marriage, Birth and Death—Dr. Regnier's Brick House—First Orchard, Road, Post Office, Sunday-school and Store—Mills—Churches—Schools—Aurelius Lodge of Masons—Cemeteries—Macksburgh—Elba—Physicians.

THIS township is the extreme northern one of the county. It is technically known as township five, range eight, and at present contains only sections seven, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty, twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-seven, twenty-eight, twenty-nine, thirty and the fractional sections between the southern boundary of these last four sections, and what is called the "Ludlow line," viz., sections thirty-one, thirty-two, thirty-three and thirty-four. On the north, west, and all of the east side, except the eastern boundary of sections twenty-seven and thirty-four, is Noble county. These sections are bounded on the east by Salem township, which also bounds Aurelius on the south. Originally the present territory of Aurelius was a part of Monroe county. Shortly before 1819 Dr. John Regnier, then a commissioner of Washington county, succeeded in getting this territory taken from Monroe county and added to Washington county. In 1818 John S. Corp and Judah M. Chamberlain headed a petition to the commissioners of Washington, praying the establishment of this addition as a township.

ESTABLISHMENT.

On the commissioners' journal, dated December 15, 1818, appears this record:

On petition of John S. Corp, Judah M. Chamberlain, and others, praying for the establishment of a new town in the county of Washington, therefore

Resolved, by the board of commissioners, That that township, numbered five in the eighth range, excepting sections No. 25, 26 and 27, and fractional sections No. 34, 35 and 36 be and the same is hereby declared and established into an incorporated town, to be hereafter known and distinguished by the name and denomination of Aurelius, and the inhabitants residing in said district are hereby declared entitled to all the privileges and immunities of incorporated towns in the State. The electors in said town will meet at the house of Mr. Judah M. Chamberlain on the second Monday of January, 1819, at 10 o'clock, A. M., to elect their township officers agreeably to law.

The godfather of this singularly named township was Dr. Regnier. Having been so prominent in all matters pertaining to the public welfare of this district, and being universally beloved and respected by the citizens, by common consent Dr. Regnier was to name the township. He accordingly christened it with the same name he gave one of his sons. Whether he derived the name from the old Roman, Marcus Aurelius, or from a friend or relation, is not now known.

ORGANIZATION.

At the date mentioned in the above extract, the citizens of the infant township met at Mr. Chamberlain's house. The result of the election is not known. The old citizens cannot remember the event, and the township records prior to 1847 have been lost.

It is known, however, that Gileas Doane and Judah M. Chamberlain were elected justices of the peace.

The officers of the township from 1847 to 1880 are given in the following list, the regular township elections being held in April of each year:

TRUSTEES.

John Smithson, John Hutchins, John Corp, 1848; John Low, 1849; John Smithson, James Weeks, Joseph Wallace, 1850; John Smithson, A. G. Grubb, Ely Vaughn, 1851; John Smithson, A. G. Grubb, Ely Vaughn, May 30, 1851, James W. Smith, I. T. Lund, William Rayley, 1852; James W. Smith, John Hutchins, Joseph Gatwood, 1853; Hanson Dutton, I. T. Lund, J. Ward, 1854; I. T. Lund, Hanson Dutton, Calvin Burt, 1855; G. W. St. John, Hanson Dutton, Calvin Burt, 1856; G. W. St. John, I. T. Lund, George Wickens, 1857; J. Hutchins, J. Zollers, George Wickens, 1858; Hanson Dutton, J. Zollers, George Wickens, 1859; A. T. Warren, John Ward, I. Atkinson, 1860; George Wickens, I. I. Dutton, T. J. Berkely, 1861; George Wickens, I. I. Dutton, R. Dilly, 1862; Joseph Dixon, I. T. Lund, R. Dilly, 1863; Joseph Dixon, Abram Dilly, R. Dilly, 1864; Joseph Dixon, T. J. Delong, R. Dilly, 1865; J. V. Davis, Owen Barnes, R. Dilly, 1866; Hanson Dutton, J. Hutchins, Joseph Dixon, 1867; Theo. Gevrez, I. T. Lund, (died) Simeon Blake, J. W. Smith, 1868; Theo. Gevrez, Joseph Dixon, James Briggs, 1869; Theo. Gevrez, Joseph Dixon, James W. Smith, 1870; Theo. Gevrez, William R. Dutton, James W. Smith, 1871; Theo. Gevrez, William R. Dutton, James W. Smith, 1872; Theo. Gevrez, Joseph Dixon, H. G. Jackson, 1873; A. Dutton, Joseph Dixon, H. G. Jackson, 1874; A. Dutton, Joseph Dixon, John Smith, 1875; Henry Mickens, Daniel J. Ward, J. S. Snyder, 1876; Charles Schimmel, J. Dixon, H. M. Cox, 1877; John Smith, J. F. Briggs, H. M. Cox, 1878; John Smith, J. F. Briggs, Charles Schimmel, 1879; John Smith, J. F. Briggs, J. F. Ayres, 1880.

CLERKS.

Theodore Gevrez, April, 1847; Theodore Gevrez, 1848; John Smithson, jr., 1850; John Smithson, jr., 1851; John Smithson, jr., May 30, 1851; I. H. Delong, 1852; A. G. Grubb, 1853; Thomas Ellison, 1854; Thomas Ellison, 1855; Thomas Ellison 1856; T. J. Berkely, 1857; J. Smithson, jr., 1858; J. Smithson, jr., 1859; R. W. St. John, 1860; R. W. St. John, 1861; Thomas Ellison, 1862; E. L. St. John, 1863; Thomas Ellison, 1864; Thomas Ellison, 1865; Theodore Gevrez, jr., 1866; R. C. Smithson, 1867; R. W. St. John, 1868; B. F. Atkinson, 1869; B. F. Atkinson, 1870; R. W. St. John, 1871; R. W. St. John, 1872; R. W. St. John, 1873; R. C. Smithson, 1874; R. W. St. John, 1875; W. E. Rayley, 1876; R. W. St. John, 1877; J. O. Dutton, 1878; J. O. Dutton 1879; J. O. Dutton, 1880.

TREASURERS.

Thomas Scott, 1848; W. L. Rayley, 1849; I. T. Lund, 1850; Thomas Delong, 1851; Thomas Delong, May 30, 1851; T. J. Delong, 1852; John Smithson, 1853; James W. Smith, 1854; James W. Smith, 1855; James W. Smith, 1856; R. W. St. John, 1857; S. J. Berkely, 1858; James W. Smith, 1859; S. L. Berkely, 1860; S. L. Berkely, 1861; S. L. Berkely, 1862; S. L. Berkely, 1863; J. W. Smith, 1864; S. L. Berkely, 1865; William H. Markey, 1866; S. W. Clark, 1867; W. H. Markey, 1868; R. C. Smithson, 1869; J. H. Delong, 1870; J. H. Delong, 1871; J. H. Delong, 1872; J. H. Delong, 1873; J. H. Delong, 1874; J. A. Morrison, 1875; J. H. Delong, 1876; R. C. Smithson, 1877; R. C. Smithson, 1878; W. T. Morris, 1879; W. T. Morris, 1880.

ASSESSORS.

James Lancaster, 1849; Theodore Gevrez, 1850; Theodore Gevrez, 1851; Theodore Gevrez, May 30, 1851; J. Smithson, jr., 1852; Daniel Bates, 1854; Simeon Blake, 1855; Simeon Blake, 1856; Matthew Brown, 1857; Simeon Blake, 1858; W. L. Rayley, 1859; W. L. Rayley, 1860; Thomas Ellison, 1861; Alexander Simmons, 1862; John Hilton, 1863; Webster Gray, 1864; A. T. Warren, 1865; Theodore Gevrez, sr., 1866; James L. Dilly, 1867; James L. Dilly, 1868; R. W. St. John, 1869; James F. Briggs, 1870; I. T. Briggs, 1871; J. F. Briggs, 1872; J. F. Briggs, 1873; J. F. Briggs, 1874; J. F. Briggs, 1875; J. F. Briggs, 1876; J. F. Briggs, 1877; W. H. Wolfe, 1878; W. H. Wolfe, 1879; W. H. Wolfe and C. W. Atkinson, 1880.

It will be noticed that the establishing act did not give Aurelius sections twenty-seven and thirty-four. The date of this accession, as ascertained from the commissioners' journal was that of their June session, 1842. For they

Resolved, that section twenty-seven and fractional section thirty-four, in township five, range eight, heretofore belonging to township Salem, is hereby annexed to Aurelius.

Aurelius was reduced to its present small dimensions by the act of the legislature forming Noble county. It was passed March 11, 1851. That part of the boundary line of Noble county which affects Aurelius is described as follows:

Thence south to the southeast corner of section eighteen, township four, range seven, thence west to the east line of township five, range eight, thence north to the northeast corner of section twenty-five, in township five, thence west to the southwest corner of section twenty-three; thence north to the northwest corner of section twenty-three, thence west to the southwest corner of number fifteen, thence north to the southwest corner of section ten, thence west to the southwest corner of section eight, thence north to the northwest corner of section eight, thence west to the west line of township five, thence south to the southeast corner of Morgan county.

The citizens in the despoiled township immediately petitioned that Aurelius be recognized as still a township, and accordingly, the commissioners, on May 19, 1851, constituted the fractional township left them an entire township, under the same old name, Aurelius, and ordered a special election of officers to be held May 30, 1851. Then as per township record,

Agreeable to a notice from the commissioners of Washington county, authorizing the electors in the fractional part of the township of Aurelius, now set off into a separate township, to hold an election for township officers on Friday, the thirtieth day of May, 1851, met and elected viva voce, John Perkins, Russell St. John, and Eli Vaughn, judges of said election, and John Smithson, jr., and William L. Rayley, clerks. They, after having taken the oath of office, proceeded to the election of township officers.

This resulted, as a reference to the table will show, in a reelection of the whole administration, and so John Smithson, A. G. Grubb, Eli Vaughn, John Smithson, jr., I. T. Lund, and Theodore Gevrez, may be considered the first officers of the present Aurelius township. No further change has been made in the political structure of Aurelius, save that in the winter of 1876-7, two voting precincts were formed; one at Macksburgh and one at Elba.

In the census of 1840, Aurelius had eight hundred and eighty-six inhabitants; in 1860, eight hundred and thirty-two; in 1870, seven hundred and ninety-nine; in 1880, one thousand and four.

The vote in 1880 was as follows: Elba precinct—Long (Democrat), forty-six; Townsend (Republican), seventy-six; Lloyd (Greenback), six; total one hundred and twenty-eight. Macksburgh precinct—Long, fourteen; Townsend, forty-eight; Lloyd, ten; total, seventy-two. Total vote of Aurelius, two hundred.

PHYSICAL FEATURES.

While it has always been considered an impossibility to have two hills without a valley between them, yet this township comes very near solving the problem. The hills here are rather high knobs with rounded tops, and separated by narrow ravines with almost precipitous sides. The west fork of Duck creek, the principal stream of the township affords comparatively little bottom land, the valley being, perhaps, not more than a half a mile broad in the widest part, which is about half way between Macksburgh and Elba. The east fork of Duck creek is entirely outside the township.

The drainage is altogether by means of Duck creek and the small tributary streams. The principal ridge or water-shed is in the western part, entering at the extreme southwest on the farm of J. Dixon, esq., and with devious course passing north through the farms of Messrs. Ward, Davidson and Wickens. Here it widens, and finally divides, one branch of the ridge ending at Indian run in the middle of the north part of section nineteen, the other turning west, and leaving the township in the southern part of the west boundary of the same section.

A second ridge east of Duck creek skirts the eastern boundary of the township, finally crossing the line in section twenty-two.

The course of these ridges may be graphically and approximately ascertained by reference to the so called "ridge roads" as they appear in the atlas. The other roads in the county are the valley roads. These two kinds are all they have, for the rough nature of the country permits the people of Aurelius to build them not always where they are needed, but only where they can be built.

The drainage of the township is, as implied by this description of the water-sheds, simple and complete. Duck creek is the main stream. It is supposed to derive its name from the numberless flocks of wild ducks that the pioneers of its valley noticed. It enters the township in the extreme northwest corner, flows southeast to Elba, there turns and flows southward, leaving Aurelius in the eastern part of section thirty-three. Though quite a small stream, it often gets high enough to be navigable by small boats as Elder Daniel Hilton and others proved long ago. Its descent is rapid enough for all purposes as a water power.

One of the principal tributaries is Indian run which enters the west boundary at section nineteen, and flows a little east of north to Duck creek at a point southeast of Macksburgh.

By this name, Indian run, "hangs a tale." At the beginning of the century when there was a peace between the Indians and whites, hunting parties of Indians were frequent in Duck Creek valley. A party of three Indians on such an expedition, went down to Marietta, and became slightly intoxicated. It is said one of the three insulted a whiteboy of the place by relating to him how he had killed the boy's father—that afterwards he asked the boy to ferry him across the Muskingum. The fate of the Indian is only surmised. The other two companions waited about Marietta in vain for their missing one, finally gave up, and returned to their camp on the stream in question. Here they packed their utensils, left those of their comrade, and returned whence they had come, blazing the trees, as they went, for the benefit of the lost Indian, should he ever return. Squire Davis and Levi Dean, then of Salem and Fearing townships, respectively, found the cooking utensils, blanket, and the like of the ill-fated Indian, and preserved them in their families, where they have been seen by many now living. But the stream where they were found, has been called Indian run ever since.

At the village of Macksburgh is the mouth of Big run, often called Goose run since the oil discoveries, which flows south from Noble county. Elba is likewise possessed of a stream running through the place called Long run. The largest tributary does not all lie in the township. It is Buell's run and has three sources on the farms of Messrs. Ward and Pierce and the heirs of Mary Ward, in sections nineteen, twenty, and twenty nine. It leaves the township by flowing south through the eastern part of section thirty-two.

A streamlet, called Jackson's run, rises near the "Smith church," about a mile and a half west of Elba, and runs southeast to Duck creek at Kingsbury station. It is important in that it affords a route for a road connecting the western ridge road with that up Duck Creek valley.

The soil in Aurelius is, for the most part, of two kinds: that formed by the action of water on sandstone and that resulting from the disintegration of limestone. The former kind of soil is not at all fertile, but in many localities fine farms are afforded by the latter. This is noticable among the hills and on the ridges in the western half of the township. From the nature of the surface and soil, the Aurelian farmers deal largely in stock, especially sheep, and plant extensive orchards. One farmer mentioned that he had twenty-three kinds of apple trees on his farm.

Enough has been told of the winding, narrow course of Duck creek, the steep yet finely-rounded hills, which are yet, in many places, covered with their original forests of oak, walnut, poplar, and the like, and the romantic and intricate system of ravines tell the stranger that a ride up the tortuous Marietta & Cincinnati railroad, commonly called the "Duck Creek road," is an admission to a moving diorama of picturesque scenery, at the low price of three cents per mile of canvas.

Coal exists in abundance everywhere over this district. It is of fine quality but not extensively mined on account of the cost of getting it to market. It is plenty and cheap enough, however, to render the old time country fireplace and "Christmas back-log" a thing unknown to the farmers of Aurelius. In its place is the more city-reminding grate and the coal-scuttle, for almost every farmer has his own private coal bank, and when he wants his fire replenished he digs rather than chops.

The lower or "limestone" seam of coal is not well developed, but the seam above it is thick and exists everywhere. The coal has been mined on Hugh Jackson's land and also in other places. In many places toward the north it is found six feet thick, and is easily obtained from the sides of the hills skirting Duck creek. In the northeast the thickness of the coal increases, in the west diminishes. A branch railroad from Macksburgh runs to the Ohio Coal company's mines in Noble county, where the coal seam is six feet thick.

Salt is found, in solution, of course, at depths of from ninety to three hundred feet in the valley near Macksburgh, but salt-boiling is not a business in Aurelius, as the drills that find the brine are after deeper things, for Aurelius township is one of the best in the county for petroleum.

About 1858-9 John McKee, near Caldwell, Ohio, while drilling for salt, found a vein of oil. It came bubbling up and overflowing in great quantity, and the discoverer celebrated the event by a bonfire of the oil. Afterwards a Mr. Duff came from Pittsburgh and put a pump in the well. But this incident set Mr. James Dutton to thinking. Many a time as he was swimming in the holes in Duck creek when a youth, he had noticed that "jumping up and down" in the water caused oil to rise and float away on the surface. Finally he, with William Dutton, John Smithson, and Alden Warren formed a copartnership and began on the since famous Dutton well, on the right bank of Duck creek about a mile below Macksburgh. At twenty-eight feet they came to a rock with oil in the crevices. They drilled a foot-square hole for the "conductor" and worked by hand through eight feet of rock, striking oil. When four feet further a second vein was touched, and when twenty-eight feet in the rock, or fifty-six feet below the surface, they struck, in October, 1859, the "big vein." Hand pumping furnished a stream "as thick as my arm," says Mr. Dutton, and he pumped an eighty-barrel tank full in half a day. For a whole year the oil was sold at twenty-eight dollars a barrel. The well itself sold for one hundred thousand dollars. This was the first paying well in the county, and the first large well in the State.

After this came a furor of speculation and drilling. Companies bought lands, farmers turned oil men, and derricks arose as quickly as the palaces of a dream. But first the war, and now the low price of oil have conspired to moderate the fever, and the oil business in this, one of the best oil townships in the county, is now conducted on every day practical principles. Yet the visitor in the valley can still count a derrick for every house, and the wells about Macksburgh present a lively appearance. One of the best is Mr. George Rice's "deep well," bored one thousand five hundred and seventy-six feet, which has been flowing a year, and now yields seven or eight barrels per diem of light oil. Another of Mr. Rice's wells has been yielding oil for sixteen years. Within a fortnight of the present writing Mr. Z. O. Patton struck oil at a depth of five hundred feet, and is now obtaining a hundred barrels a day from it. The date of this find is December 28, 1880.

SETTLEMENT.

The first settler of Aurelius—Levi Dains—was a soldier in the Revolution, and moved to Ohio in company with Squire Davis, a comrade. His wife was Chloe, and their children's names were: Levi, Eben, Parley, Benjamin, Luther, Simeon, Lucy, Julia, and Lavina. The family moved from Fearing township, and remained in Aurelius from 1806 or 1807 until a colony left on a boat for Illinois. This event will be mentioned hereafter.

A little episode, however, might be mentioned here. When the family made arrangements to leave, Benjamin was not included in their plans, as he was not considered possessed of the requisite brightness and activity for an emigrant. They remembered how on one occasion it took him three days to go with an ox team from home to Marietta. So Benjamin was to be left behind to live and die in Aurelius, while the rest of the family went rejoicing to their new home. But Benjamin had quietly made other arrangements, and when the boat with the family approached the Illinois shore, where they expected to land, the first object described was the aforesaid Benjamin, with a broad grin upon his face, apparently at the pleasure it would give them to see him. Slow and dull as he was, he had walked the entire distance, and beat them at that. Shortly after their arrival in Illinois the dread cholera carried away all the children except Benjamin and Lucy. The father had died shortly before this, and the mother had remarried and moved away.

Joseph Dutton was the second pioneer of the township. The stone that marks his resting place in the private burying-ground on the Dutton place gives his death as September 1, 1844, in his sixty-sixth year; hence he was born in 1778 or 1779. His wife, Amy Job, was born on the twentieth of October, 1767, and died March 27, 1860, at the advanced age of over ninety-two years. Their children were: Sallie, Mary, James, Jane, Susan, and Betsey. On Christmas, 1805, the family moved to Fearing township from Virginia, and in 1806 or 1807 they moved to Aurelius and settled on twenty-five acres bought from Levi Dean. He afterwards entered the southwest quarter of section seventeen.

Joseph Dutton's birthplace was in Pennsylvania. He married in Loudoun county, Virginia, about 1795. His wife was an orphan at the time, and came from New Jersey. Of the children, Mary lives at Cat's creek, near Lowell, married to Samuel Davis; Sallie was the first bride of the township; Levi and Mrs. Dains, jr., died with the cholera in Illinois; Jane is the widow of William True, and lives at Salem; Susan is the wife of William Penwill and is in Bradford, Pennsylvania; Betsey married William Garrett, and moved to near the Ozark mountains, Missouri. They are both dead.

James Dutton was born July 23, 1801, in Virginia. After the death of his father he lived in Aurelius until April, 1864, when he moved to Marietta, where he still lives. His first wife was Barbara Ann Rayley, whom he married in 1823. In 1870, he married Esther A. Suthers, a widow whose maiden name was Miss Blower. When a boy, in the wilds of the township he was known as a fearless hunter. When fourteen he killed a full grown bear with a small tomahawk. To prevent the escape of a wolf with one of his traps, he bestrode the animal and held it by the ears until help came. His boyish soubriquet was "Wolf" Dutton, and this christian name changed to "Oil" after his discoveries in that article mentioned elsewhere.

In 1809-10, Jacob Bouser, in company with his son John, their wives, and John's four children, entered land in sections seventeen and eighteen. They were Dunkers and lived there until Dr. Regnier bought them out, which was in six or eight years. They removed to beyond Zanesville.

John Hutchins, sr., the fourth or fifth to make a home in the settlement, was born in 1770. He married Joanna Weeks and came in a company of about thirty-two or three, among whom were, David and another brother. His children were: Hollis, John, Rosanna, and Shubel. Hollis died in August, 1880, Morgan county. Rosanna died fourteen or fifteen years ago. Shubel died about 1840. The father himself died in 1852, in his eighty-second year.

John Hutchins, jr., was born in the eastern part of Maine, August 31, 1797, and has been living in Aurelius since 1811. His wife was Jane Rowland, born in the Isle of Wight in 1804, who came straight to Aurelius in 1820. The marriage was in 1824, and the children are: Julia Ann, born in 1825; George, born in 1827; John, Caroline, born in 1831; and Jane Joanna, born in 1837. All of this family are yet living; the parents in the identical frame house built for them in 1823, by Hollis Hutchins, which is probably the first frame house in the township.

Elder Daniel Hilton came from Maine in 1810-12, and left on the Illinois bound boat about 1817. His wife is spoken of by all who knew her as a remarkably fine woman and very popular.

Dr. Hodge was the first doctor in the settlement. He had been persuaded to go to Aurelius by Dr. Regnier, who owned land there, but had not yet moved upon it and wanted it tenanted. He left upon the arrival of Dr. Regnier soon after. He came from New York.

I. H. Delong, sr., was born in the last century, in 1790. While in Aurelius he was justice of the peace twenty-one years, and was a volunteer in the War of 1812, being prevented from serving by the sudden close of the war. He married a Miss Hill, and she dying, his second wife was Nelsie Lancaster, who also died in 1864. His children were: Matilda, dead; Eliza, in Indiana; Jonathan, in West Virginia; William in Aurelius; and Margaret. These were children of his first wife. By his second wife were: David, dead; Thomas J., in Nebraska; I. H., in Macksburgh; Nancy, in Iowa; Martha in Kansas; Mary Jane, in Illinois; Juliette, and Hannah, also in Illinois; James in Pennsylvania; and David, who died unmarried.

Theodore Gevrez came to Aurelius from Marietta in 1817-18 with his widowed mother. He was born in 1812, in Washington county. He has been married three times—to Jane Smithson, Eliza Week, and his present wife, Elizabeth Lupardis. His children by his first wife were Didier, Jane, Theodore, and Lafayette; by his second wife, Lafayette, Frances, Charles, and Evaline; by his present wife, Willie Francis. Mr. Gevrez has held, as a reference to the table of officers will show, various township offices, and has taught school three years.

Eli Vaughn, one of the early settlers, emigrated from New York, where he was born in 1792, to Aurelius as early as 1817. His death occurred in 1864, in the township. He was honored at different times with many township offices, and was justice of the peace for several years. His wife's name was Electa Burch, and the children are, Polly, A. R., Hannah, married to Joseph Hutchins; Lydia, in Adams township; Caroline, wife of Abram Zollars, in Salem; Adeline, married to William Hoyt, of Iowa; George, husband of Patty Simms, and in Wisconsin; Electa, wife of John Dixon, of Aurelius. The dead are, John, who married Rowena Perkins and died in the army; Celestia, who married and died in Iowa; Betsey Davis, and P. B. A. R. Vaughn married Sallie Wharf in 1842, by whom he has had twelve children, ten of whom are now living.

William Raylay was born in Yorkshire, England, in 1781 and came to New York in 1799. In 1801, while still in New York, he married Martha Duncan. She died soon, and in 1804 he married Sarah Chamberlin, who was born August 7, 1781, being just one day older than her husband. In 1815, with his wife and children he moved to a point on the Ohio opposite Marietta, and in 1817 he came to Aurelius township and settled in the northwest quarter of section seventeen. He bought this of Dr. Regnier, who had bought it of Jacob Rouser. The children accompanying him to the township were. Barbara Ann, who afterwards became the wife of James Dutton, and who was the only child of his first wife, born in 1802; also William L.; Content Adeline, born in 1807; and Gurdon, born in 1810. Ralph Woodell, born in 1808, died in New York. William Rayley came to Aurelius to work for Dr. Regnier who was getting a grist- and saw-mill built. It will be seen afterward that he was the prime mover in the establishment of the Methodist society, which is the parent of so many yet existing in the neighborhood. William L. Rayley, at present living in Macksburgh, was born July 4, 1805, and married Sarah Warren in 1828, and has a large family. William Rayley has been township clerk, postmaster twenty-three years, United States marshal, and held various other offices. Content Adeline married Dr. Benjamin Brown.

In 1818 another addition was made to the settlement in the person of Mr. James Bill, a Scotchman by birth, which occurred in East London in 1777. The place from which he last came was New York. This farmer married Margaret Sinclair, born in 1778, died in 1855, he himself dying two years before his wife. Of their large family, Margaret became Mrs. Jackson, and is in Salem. Ellen married Thomas Carlin. Marion married Edmund Simmons, of Wisconsin. Elizabeth's husband was Norman Hall, and is in Illinois. James is the husband of Mary Carlin. Another child was Catharine. John died in youth. Isabella married John Moffett, and Jane, Samuel Patton. James Bill married in 1843, and is the father of five children.

Another of the old settlers of Aurelius was Justus Hall, who located in 1818 in section thirty. Though born in Canada, he was by 1812 so far Americanized as to fight for Uncle Sam. He came to Ohio from New York. Leaving Aurelius, he finally went to Illinois, where he died. His wife, whose name before her marriage was Diantha Burch, died in the year 1860. The names and places of residence of the surviving members of the family are: Leonard, in Illinois; J. B. Hall, in Aurelius township; Justus, in Missouri; Nelson, in Illinois; Diantha, married Simon Selix; and Samantha, married Lyman Hunt. Other members of the family were Electa Omstead, who died in 1855; Ephraim, who was drowned by the upsetting of a boat; German, who died in Salem township in 1863; Hely, who was killed when only eight years old; and Norman, who died a natural death at the age of fifty years.

Joseph B. Hall was married June 6, 1833, to Mary J. Bartlett. Their children are: John R., W. H., Margaret A., James, George W., R. B., W. A., Levi., and W. W., who are living; Diantha, Charlotte, Justus W., Mary E., Joseph H., and an infant, who are dead. Justus W. died in the army. B. B. and W. A. are physicians at Chilli-cothe. W. W. is assistant surgeon in the army at Fort Reno, Indian Territory. W. H. is in Osceola, Iowa, where he has a store.

Dr. John B. Regnier, the greater portion of whose participation in the settlement of Aurelius will be found recorded elsewhere throughout this history, seems to have been of a remarkably rare nature, always working for the public good, and of great enterprise and energy. His birth-time, birth-place, and death will be found elsewhere, in his epitaph. He married Content Chamberlain in New York State, came to Marietta about 1806, from Stanleyville, and went to Aurelius about 1819 or 1820. His arrival at Stanleyville was before 1800. Before moving to Aurelius he bought land there, and built the mill referred to at another place. He had seven children: Alfred, Hannah, Felix, Julius, Francis, John, and Aurelius, the township name. All are dead but Felix.

Dr. Regnier's death occurred at Marietta, of epidemic fever. He may really be regarded as the father of the township. He got it into the county, obtained many improvements for it, for he was county commissioner from 1815 till his death, got the post office, the first road, and many other benefits elsewhere mentioned. His intention was to plat Macksburgh, and open a drug-store in the place, but death intervened. His son Alfred was married to Mary A. Rowland, who settled in Aurelius in 1820, and who is still living. She resides with her daughter, Mrs. Albert Chandler, in Adams township.

Russell St. John was born in 1792, in Connecticut and came to Aurelius in 1821, from New York, and settled upon a farm in section twenty-two. He died in 1874. He was a blacksmith and farmer, and was frequently called upon to fill various offices in the township. His wife was Isabella Chamberlin. R. W., his son, is a farmer in Aurelius; George W. is in Kansas; Erastus L. is in Monroe county; Ruth E., Caroline C., Morris S. and Lorine are dead. R. W. St. John has seven children: Emma, C. R., William H., Arthur L., Leora H., Clara L., and Austin H. C. R. St. John studied law in Noble county under Dalzell & McGinnis, and was admitted to the bar in May, 1880. This was after four years spent as a teacher.

George Wickens settled in Aurelius in 1832, in section twenty-nine. He was a native of England, born in the Isle of Wight in 1780. He married Charlotte Rowlands, who was born in the Isle of Wight in 1792. He died in 1870, and his wife in 1868, in Aurelius. Their children are George, Elizabeth, William R., John and Henry. George moved to Illinois, John to Kansas, and the rest live in Aurelius. William R. in 1849 married Sarah L. Cadwell, and Henry married Elizabeth Roff in 1855.

John Dixon, sr., was a native of England, and came to Aurelius township in the year 1834. His son, John Dixon, jr., is living in the township, is married and has three children. He married, in 1853, Electa Vaughan, and has three children—Hannah, wife of W. Mincks, Abraham Lincoln and Fred.

Dr. Benjamin Brown was a graduate at Glasgow, Scotland, and his talents are mentioned as of a high order by all who have spoken about him. He came to the place about the time he married, which was in 1835, and to Content Adeline Rayley, the daughter of William Rayley, the pioneer. He had a very successful practice. The family, which consisted of the parents and three children, was divided by the separation of Dr. Brown and his wife.

William Davidson settled in section thirty, this township, in the spring of 1836. He was born in Northumberland, England, November 11, 1797, and emigrated to this country in 1829. He first settled in Virginia, and moved to Ohio, where he resided until his death, in 1869. His wife, Jane Richardson, died in 1840, aged forty years. Their children, five in number, were: Catharine, born in 1824; Elizabeth, born in 1826; George, born in 1828; Thomas, born in 1831; Margaret A., born in 1828, died in 1846. Two years after the death of his first wife, Mr. Davidson married Harriet Coles, who died in 1876. By this marriage there were seven children, six now living. George Davidson, one of the sons, married, November 30, 1854, M. M. Nesselrode, jr., and has had eight children, as follows: Emily A., born in 1856, married William Wilson in 1876; William C., born in 1858; Charles S., born in 1860, died in 1879; George M., born in 1862; Jennie, born in 1864; Maggie, born in 1866; Harry W., born in 1870; Kate, born in 1873.

About this time settlers began to come into the ridge country in the western part of the township. Among them was William Smith, who, with his wife, Elizabeth, was a native of Pennsylvania, and moved to this State in 1830. The settlement of this couple in Aurelius was seven years later. Their son, James W. Smith, is still living in the place.

The little settlement having got fairly upon its feet by the time two or three families were there, improvement began, and the various events growing out of the social life of man began to take place. Thus it is that man always gives an impetus to history.

Levi Dains had already distinguished himself as the builder of the first house in the township. It was, of course, a log cabin, and the tenderer portion of the family found it all ready for their entrance, the thoughtful care of the good man having prepared it before the family moved. A sheep pen had been made in the angle formed by the great chimney and the end of the house, and about the first one outside the family to discover this fact was a huge panther which made an incursion on the sheep the first night. The male portion of the family turned out en masse and drove the invader off.

Soon after Mr. Dutton moved there, while as yet there were but two families in the settlement, the society of the place was set all on the qui vive by a marriage between the two "first families" of the neighborhood. The woods that had before echoed to the howl of the wolf, and more lately to the blow of the axe and the crack of the rifle, now rang with the music of marriage bells—if they had any. Levi Dains, jr., and Sallie Dutton were the contracting parties. Their wedding tour was limited by the bounds of their fathers' lands, for they settled on a portion of the paternal acres.

In 1809 an addition was made to the settlement, but not by way of immigration. In the first family that settled was born the first child in the township. In a few short months, however, the little flower of the wilderness faded, and the first funeral saw little Simeon Dains buried at the edge of a field, and no stone marks the place where they laid him. Thus the little baby's short life was marked only by its birth and death. The funeral was preached at the house of Levi Dains by a Mr. Goss, who was the first Methodist preacher ever in the county. Only the Dains and Duttons attended the funeral; there were as yet no other settlers in the township.

It is not known certainly whether John Hutchins, jr., built the first frame house or Mr. John Jewell. Certain it is that the Hutchins house is the first frame house whose date we can obtain. It is about a mile above Macksburgh, and was built by Hollis Hutchins in 1823 for John Hutchins, jr., and his intended wife. They were married the next year and moved into it. It is a substantial building, containing plenty of hewn logs, which can be seen supporting the ceiling in a way that looks very substantial.

The first frame barns were built by the heirs of Dr. Regnier and by Joseph Dutton in 1822-3.

The first brick building was built by Dr. Regnier. It is described as a very large, fine house, employing many hands in its construction. On one of the walls the figures 1820 were built in with black brick, thus fixing the date very accurately. When the mansion was about ready to be occupied Dr. Regnier died. It has since been, for the most part, torn down, and the part of the walls remaining is concealed by the boards of the building of George Rice, esq.

As an orchard is considered one of the first requisites of a Washington county farm, it may be readily inferred that the first orchard in the township was on the first farm and planted by the first farmer. Levi Dean planted it in 1810.

The first road through the township was the ridge road, from Marietta to Cambridge. The first road for the benefit of the township was from Cat's creek mouth, at the upper end of Lowell, to Middleburgh, through Macksburgh. This road may be credited to the efforts of Dr. Regnier. It was built about 1815.

The first post office was obtained, the reader is ready to surmise by this time, by the influence of the public-spirited Dr. Regnier. He obtained it about the year 1819, and was himself the first postmaster—the office being in his own house. His son, Felix, succeeded him in the office. Next was another son, Julius; following him was William Rayley, who held it for twenty-three and a half years; next was I. H. Long.

The first Sunday-school was instituted by Benjamin Corp shortly before he built and presented the Methodist church, probably in 1823.

Dr. Regnier's son-in-law, William W. Mackintosh, kept the first dry goods store about 1827. This was the first store of any kind in the township. The first blacksmith shop was built about the year 1820, and the vulcan was William Way.

MILLS.

Dr. Regnier built the first grist- and also the first saw-mill in about the year 1818. The grist-mill is still standing, the saw-mill is now torn down, but was about four or five rods distant from the grist-mill. The building of these mills was, indirectly, the cause of the first Methodist church, as will appear hereafter.

The mill that the traveller on the railroad notices just below Elba was built by Thomas Girby forty or fifty years ago. It was a grist-and saw-mill combined, but is now only a saw-mill.

CHURCHES.

THE FREEWILL BAPTIST CHURCH.

This was undoubtedly the first church organized in the township. About 1810-12 Elder Daniel Hilton came from Maine. He found several people in the settlement and proceeded to establish a church of the above denomination. They met at no set place but held meetings from house to house, most frequently at Dean's and Hilton's. Some of the original members of this church were the families of Hilton, Dean, Bartlett, Judah Chamberlin, Jehu Chamberlin, Benjamin Blake, from what is now Noble county; also Nancy and Mary Dutton, and some of the Davises. This church flourished until 1817, when Elder Hilton, the Deans, Bartletts, and others went away in a boat to Illinois, below St. Louis. The colony left in two boats; one was built on the Muskingum, and the other, on which the Duck creek families left, in the woods below Macksburgh. The boat was launched by means of trees felled, trimmed, and used for "skids," over which the boat was pushed by the united efforts of some of their neighbors.

Such a depletion of their numbers destroyed the little church, and the few members remaining either ceased to attend church or joined the which had been formed a short while before. The most of the members of this church were from what is now Noble county, and most of the meetings were held there. For this church, too, like the other one, was not possessed of a set place in which to worship, nor, like the children of Israel, did it have even a tabernacle, but depended on the hospitality of its different members. We may be sure that these pioneers welcomed it to their houses not less cordially than a mortal stranger, and that they were none the losers.

REGULAR, OR HARD-SHELL BAPTIST CHURCH,

The originator of this church was Elder Joseph Clark. It comprised in its membership John Hutchins, sr., and wife, Simeon Morgareidge, Joseph Davis, Robinson Sanford, Walter Stevens, Joseph Dutton, and their wives. John Hutchins, jr., and his consort joined in 1830 or 1831. Their pulpit was often supplied from Zanesville. The second preacher was Levi Jewell. Another minister was Mr. Sedgewick.

In time, however, the church died, and the only denomination now represented in Aurelius is the

METHODIST CHURCH.

This was organized about the year 1818, principally by the efforts of William Rayley, who came to Aurelius at that time to board the hands and help build the mills for Dr. Regnier. This worker procured the services of Methodist ministers, notably Bishop Morris. Then came Nathan Walker and organized the church, the accompanying preacher sent by the Pittsburgh conference being Thomas McLeary. The original members included William Rayley and his wife, Sarah; John S. Corp and his wife, Elizabeth; and a young man working at the mills—only these five. Benjamin Corp, John's father, joined next. About 1824 he built, and presented to the church, a frame building twenty-five feet square, situated about half a mile above Macksburgh. Being rallied about its small size, he affirmed that when the congregation got large enough to fill it he would enlarge it. The first meeting the house was jammed, and so Mr. Corp had it cut in the middle, the parts separated fifteen feet and the space built in, making a building twenty-five by forty feet.

In the meantime, however, some of this society had been meeting about at the houses, notably at Dutton's, as the church building was not so convenient. This, again, as it increased divided into two parts, and those living nearest Macksburgh finally, in 1855, built the church now at that place. The land on which this building stands was donated by Mr. John Hilton. The building itself was constructed by Mr. John Eagler. Elder James Henderson was in charge at that time. Since then, because of the characteristic itinerant system of the Methodist church, there have been many pastors. For the past fifteen years they have been as follows: Revs. Thomas Winstanly and White; Revs. Gordon and Doane; Revs. Phillips and Strahl; Revs. L. Timberlick and Ruckman; Revs. A. D. McCormick, N. C. Worthington, George Wilson, and W. F. Smith; the last named being the pastor now. The church now belongs to the Dexter circuit. It was made from the Sharon circuit in 1875. This itself was not an original circuit, but formed from another.

The Corp meeting-house having been found unsuitable in position by this time, ceased to be used, some of the attendants coming to the Macksburgh church and others going to the "Crooked Tree" in Noble county.

The other part of the society before referred to as meeting at Dutton's, and other places, when the division occurred, held meetings in a log school-house near where the present school-house now stands, on James W. Smith's place, about a mile and a half west of Elba. This school-house, by the way, was built in 1846, and the first teacher who used it was Hannah Ellison. In time, a meeting-house was constructed, and in 1854 dedicated by Rev. Thomas Winstanley, of the Pittsburgh conference. The land on which it stands was the gift of James W. Smith. In about 1875 preaching was discontinued, and the congregation, for the most part, attend at Elba.

The Methodist society at Elba is not an offshoot of the foregoing, but was organized independently in about 1842. In the summer of 1874, James Morrison, a merchant of Elba, donated land as a church site, and the present church at that place was built. The preachers who first used the church were Revs. Webster and McCormick.

Thus we find that all these numerous societies of this denomination have finally gravitated to the two towns of Macksburgh and Elba.

SCHOOLS.

It is a fact creditable to the pioneers of Aurelius that the date of settlement and the date of the first school differ by a very small figure. The first formal attempt at the instruction of youth was made by Nancy Dutton, who started and successfully completed a three months school in the winter of 1808-9 or of 1809-10. Her pupils were, of course, drawn principally from the Dean and Dutton families. After this, Polly Stanley taught, and when the year 1819 had arrived, a Mrs. Free took charge of a school for the whole winter. Before that, Elder Davis had taught in 1812.

In the neighborhood of 1815, a log school-house was built near Dexter, two miles above Macksburgh. At the close of the War of 1812, Mr. John Jewell taught in the second school-house in the township, situate about a mile below Macksburgh.

The largest building and school in the township is at Macksburgh, and is the best public building in the place. It is a two-story white frame, surmounted by a steeple, and would be easily mistaken for a church. There are two departments taught, the upper room being presided over by Charles W. Atherton, and the lower by Charles St. John. There is a full attendance at both rooms.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

The only one now in existence in the township is the Aurelius lodge of Free Masons, with headquarters at Macksburgh. The date of this charter is October 20, 1859, to take effect December 24, 1850. The society, however, ran a couple or so of years before, under a dispensation. The charter members were: Thomas Morris, F. M. Mason, E. S. Tingley, G. L. Chamberlin, S. L. Berkely, Mark Weeks, R. E. Smithson and Jacob Wharton. The first officers were: Master, S. L. Berkely; senior warden, G. L. Chamberlin; junior warden, J. D. James. The lodge is now in a flourishing condition, if membership be the criterion, as it has about sixty members. The present master is R. C. Smithson.

The only other secret organization known to have existed here is the Good Templars, a lodge of which sprang up in the fall of 1873 and lasted about a year.

BURIAL PLACES.

The one below Macksburgh a short distance was established by Dr. Regnier, who gave the ground, nearly an acre, little thinking that he was providing a home for his own body in the near future. The first person buried in it was Mrs. Phineas Beardsley, and the second one was Dr. Regnier himself. This was the first burial place in the township. It contains the graves of many old settlers and the tombstone of Dr. Regnier. The stone may be seen leaning against the tree in the southwest corner of the lot. It is fitting that this memorial of the foremost man of the township be preserved, and, as far as possible, it shall be done right here. The inscription is:

In memory of
DR. JOHN B. REGNIER,
Who died August 16, 1821,
In the fifty-third year of his age.
A native of Paris, in France.

"Behold and see, as you pass by,
As you are now, so once was I;
As I am now, so you must be,
Prepare for death and follow me."

The cemetery near the "Smith church" dates from 1856, when Lucinda F. Taylor, an infant, was buried in it. This place of interment contains the graves of many other older inhabitants—the Smiths, the Walfords, the Wards, Elliotts and Gilmores, the Harveys and Blakes, and many others. The ground was given by James W. Smith, and has since been incorporated.

VILLAGES.

The two towns of the township are Macksburgh and Elba. Macksburgh is a place of about three hundred inhabitants, and is situated a few rods from the left bank of Duck creek, in the southeast quarter of section seven. It is a station on the Marietta & Cleveland railroad, and lies between this road and a coal road, which branches off to the north to a coal mine in Noble county. Its site is neither valley nor hill, but on the rise between, and the surface is much diversified, giving the place a rather irregular appearance. This is partly owing to the fact that the town was never regularly surveyed into lots until largely built. Dr. Regnier had planned to lay out the town but died before accomplishing his end. Old citizens unite in regarding this untoward death as a great misfortune to the prosperity of the village. It is now essentially an oil place, the numerous wells in its vicinity supplying employment for many of its residents. At present it contains the school-house and Methodist church, elsewhere described, a post office, three general stores, a shoe store, a blacksmith shop, a hotel by the name of the Ohio House, and two saloons. Directly south of the town, across the creek, is a gathering of dwellings along the road, which in many districts would be called a town. It might be considered a suburb of Macksburgh. This collection of houses is really as old as Macksburgh itself. The name Macksburgh is owing to the fact that William W. Mackintosh lived there, and probably because he kept the first dry goods store. It was never formally named at all; the name gradually grew to the place.

ELBA.

This town lies on a beautiful situation on the line between sections twenty-one and twenty-two, and on the left bank of Duck creek. Its site is a pretty nook, surrounded on three sides by hills. The railroad on which it is a station and the valley road passes along the west side of the place. A small stream runs through the village to join Duck creek, finding its way to the town by a romantic ravine. This village was laid out by James Morrison, then proprietor of the land. The survey was made in the fall of 1873, by Ralph St. John. It has a post office, two general stores, a shoe store, blacksmith shop, and a tobacco warehouse.

THE PHYSICIANS.

The physicians who have been in the township are Dr. John B. Regnier, Dr. Hodge, and Dr. Benjamin Brown. More particular mention of them will be found in the "settlement" elsewhere. The present physicians are Dr. Hopkin and Dr. Neiswonger at Macksburgh, and Dr. Brock at Elba.

CHAPTER LI.

FEARING TOWNSHIP.

Establishment of the Township—First Election—Statistics—Commodore Whipple for Once Gets Too Much of the Water—A Stream Named from a Dinner—Cannel Coal—The Duck Creek Settlement in General—Thomas Stanley—The Mill Question—Levi Chapman—A Block-house Built—Names of Settlers Before 1800—Allen Putnam's Death—Later Settlers—The Doctors of Fearing—The Mills Destroyed by Flood and Indian—Forgotten Schools—Charles Shipman the Earliest Teacher Remembered—Discipline in the Olden Time—Pioneer School-ma'ams—School in a Barn—An Early Library Association—The Fearing Religious Society—The Congregational Church—Methodism in Fearing—An Old-time Camp-Meeting—The Zion Methodist Episcopal Church—The Church at Cedar Narrows—The Two German Churches—The Stanley Cemetery—An Old Man—The Chapman Cemetery.

TOWNSHIP number three, in range number eight, was, on petition of John Porter and others, established March 8, 1808. As formed, it was six miles square. On the eighth of February of the following year the western tier of sections, by act of legislature, were detached and annexed to other townships. The further diminution of territory, which made the township as it now stands, occurred in 1861, when the township of Muskingum was formed.

The township was named for Hon. Paul Fearing, who was, at the time of its establishment, serving as county commissioner.

On the fourth day of April, 1808, the electors met at the house of Henry Maxon and elected the following officers: Henry Maxon, clerk; Thomas Stanley, John Porter and Resolved Fuller, trustees; Simeon Wright and Joel Tuttle, overseers of the poor; Solomon Goss and John W. White, fence viewers; William Stacy, jr., and John Miller, appraisers; Didier Gerez, Isaac Hill, Daniel Dunchew, Henry Maxon, John Porter and Ebenezer Nye, supervisors; Daniel G. Stanley and George Nye, constables; Solomon Goss, treasurer.

The present officers are: Henry Knock, Jacob Schramm, Daniel Ludwig, trustees; Charles Schimmel, clerk; Christian Gerber, assessor; J. J. D. McVaig, treasurer, and Daniel Marsch, justice of the peace.

The population of Fearing in 1840 was ten hundred and nineteen; in 1860, one thousand five hundred and eighty-nine; in 1870, one thousand three hundred and fifty-eight; in 1880, one thousand two hundred and seventy-five. In the Presidential election of 1880, Fearing township voted as follows: Hancock, Democrat, one hundred and ninety-six; Garfield, Republican, one hundred and four.

The township as it now exists, is six miles of a transverse section of the lower basin of Duck creek, extending almost across the basin, from the Little Muskingum ridge to that of its larger namesake, being four miles in breadth, and thus containing twenty-four square miles. Salem, Lawrence, Marietta and Muskingum townships bound it from the north around to the west. The boundary ridges of the basin of Duck creek lie partly within and partly without its eastern and western borders, and aside from these, Fearing has no important water-sheds. It therefore gives all its water to Duck creek, which stream enters the township three-quarters of a mile east of the northwest corner, and leaves it on the southern boundary three-fourths of a mile further east, making one huge bend to the east in the lower half of this course. The tributaries flow, for the most part, east or west, with a southerly tendency. The principal one is Whipple's run. It rises in Liberty township, a mile and a half from the southwest corner, near which it enters Fearing and flows west, with a large southerly bend, to Duck creek. In early days, it is said, Abraham Whipple and a party of surveyors, finding the stream too high to be crossed, felled a tree across it, and while using that for a foot log, the old sea captain fell in and nearly met his death. The unnamed stream was afterward described as the "run Whipple fell in," and this soon became condensed into "Whipple's run."

Passing down the left bank of Duck creek, and crossing several small and mostly unnamed streams, a creek is reached a mile below Stanleyville, called Sugar run. Farther down, an inconsiderable stream flows north into Duck creek, named Brush run.

In the winter of 1794-5, as the Chapman family were pushing their way up the wilderness by the natural pathway of Duck creek, to their future home near Whipple's run, they passed near what is now the Cedar Narrows, at the mouth of an unknown stream that flowed from the west. It was New Year's day, and they celebrated the holiday by the only practical, and, no doubt, acceptable way they could—by eating their dinner. Naturally enough, they afterwards would refer to that stream as New Year's creek, and the name still distinguishes the run. So the story goes.

The only other considerable run that drains the western part of the township enters Duck creek just above Stanleyville.

The country is not so rough as further north in Aurelius township and in Noble county. Still the hills are numerous and upright. To escape from among these barriers the larger streams are obliged to pursue very devious courses, and, as it were, to exercise all their ingenuity to find the Ohio.

As is characteristic of Duck Creek valley, bottom lands are not extensive when compared with those of most streams; still, in some places, as just above Stanleyville, the spectator can overlook from some bordering hill quite a stretch of rich, level farms. This is, of course, very desirable farming lands, except where too liable to sudden visits from Duck creek after heavy rains. In the higher lands the soil is not uniformly rich, the red being the most esteemed, and the light-colored or white soil being very poor. Limestone, the foundation of fertility, is not as abundant here as in other parts of the basin. Perhaps the largest formation of this rock appears in the neighborhood of Stanleyville.

SETTLEMENT.

From Marietta as a centre there issued three secondary colonies—to Belpre, Waterford and Duck creek. The latter was the smallest, and is least mentioned in previous histories. It is generally referred to as situated on the forks of Duck creek, but settlers made homes at different points farther down the stream. The necessity for a mill was perhaps the strongest influence that opened up this creek to the settlers. At the close of the Indian war, which began in 1791 and lasted some four years, the settlement lost most of the element of danger, and it is then we find the oldest permanent settlers of Fearing and Salem moving up the Duck Creek valley. Levi Chapman and Thomas Stanley, sr., were the first two to settle within the twenty-four square miles now called Fearing. Stanley was one of the prominent men in the Marietta settlement, to which he and his family had already come in 1790. In 1792 he was appointed constable of Marietta. He remained in this town till the close of the Indian war, when the family came to what is now section eight in Fearing township. His connection with the mills at that early date will more properly be treated further on. He was born in 1752. Mixenda, his wife, was born July, 1766. Anna S., his first wife, was born in 1760. She was the mother of Daniel G., who was born in 1785, in Connecticut, and of Thomas F., who was born in 1787. Francis R., born 1738 and dying in Illinois, was the son of his second wife, as was James, born 1789; Nancy, born 1791; Lucy, born 1793; Cynteia, born 1795; Mary, born 1798; Elizabeth, born 1801; Clarissa, in 1803; Sarah, in 1804; Mixenda, in 1806; and George, in 1812. Thomas, sr., died in 1816 and his wife in 1851. In 1816 Thomas, jr., married Angelina Goldsmith, who was born in Virginia in 1798. Of their children, Joseph Ford is the eldest, and is living at Stanleyville, married Harriet Doan and is the father of Frederick A., Helen A., Edna L., Abbey G., Percival J., Harriet E., and Adelina E. The other children of Thomas are Timothy T., John W., Eliza, Lucy, and Charles A., who is a missionary in China.

The nucleus of another settlement near the present site of Whipple station was formed by the settlement of Levi Chapman, sr., who landed at Marietta in 1794, with a family of eight boys and four girls, having emigrated from Saybrook, Connecticut. He remained in the fort a short time, and then moved to the above mentioned place, attended by a guard of soldiers, who aided him in the construction of a block-house. With this place, the commander of the fort kept communication until peace was made with the Indians.

Shortly afterward Joel Tuttle settled about a mile and a half above Stanleyville. He first came to Waterford township in 1789, having been born in Connecticut in 1740. He died in Fearing in 1823. He served as justice of the peace, and held various other township offices. His wife, Lucy Calkings, died in New England.

Simeon Tuttle came from Connecticut to Ohio in 1791, aged fourteen years, and settled in Fearing township. His death occurred in 1817. He was an 1812 soldier, justice of the peace several years, and husband of Phoebe Everett, of Pennsylvania, whom he married in 1801, and of whose ten children are living: Lucy M., married to Robert Ward, of Fearing, and Simeon E., in San Francisco. Five died young. Three died at maturer years: August, Sarah C. Maxon and Phoebe E. Bevins.

Jonathan Chapman came about this time with his wife, Mary Smith. The rest of the family was David, Levi, Simeon, Jonathan, Ruth and Clara. David married Martha Wheeler, and the children of this couple were Asahal, Selden, Enos, Wheeler, Jonathan, Esther, Antha and Mary Ann. Wheeler was born in Cape May county, New Jersey, about 1809, and married Louisa True in 1837. His children are Leander, Hiram and Sylvester. Enos was born about 1801, and came to the township in 1811. Selden, who was born in 1799, and died in 1839, married Elizabeth Stanley in 1820. The children were Oren S., Nancy S., William, Wheeler, Elizabeth A., Louisa M., Julia F., and Esther A. Oren S. was born in 1821, and in 1877 married Ellen S. Palmer. Their young child, Don Selden Thomas, was born in 1880. The common parents of all these sleep in the Chapman burying-ground. Jonathan died in 1820 at the age of seventy-two years, and Mary died in 1837 in her eighty-fourth year.

Simeon Blake came to Adams township from Rhode Island, where he was born in 1770. He died in 1833. He was a militia captain, and owned the old cabin, which stood on the banks of the Muskingum in the mill-yard. He moved into Fearing about 1800, on the farm occupied at present by John Flanders. His wife's name was Lavina Peck, who was born in Connecticut, and died in 1843. Of the children, Susan married Joseph Elliott; Jane, Willard Twiggs; Edward S. is unmarried; George married Cynthia Smith, while Louisa, Martha, and Charles F. died young. Mr. Simeon Blake married Mary Jane Cunningham in 1840. There were eight children. Mrs. Blake died January 30, 1874.

The following is a list compiled from signatures to old petitions of the settlers in Fearing before 1800. Of the Amlins, John, sr., John, jr., Jonathan, James, and Samuel. According to the records of the Ohio company, these occupied five lots just east of the present German church on Whipple's run. John Amlin, sr., was born in Germany, and came to New Jersey, whence he emigrated to Fearing township, where he died in 1816, at which time he was an old man. Sarah, his wife, lived until after 1825. John Amlin, jr., was one of his sons and a farmer. He married Jane Campbell. Elizabeth, a daughter of John, sr., married Ephraim True, another old settler of Fearing. James Amlin married Nancy Campbell. Jona-

CHARLES F. BISANTZ.

One of the early German emigrants to this county was Conrad Bisantz, who came to America with his family, consisting of a wife and nine children, and settled on a tract of land a short distance above Stanleyville, in Fearing township. This tract is still known as the Bisantz farm, and contains about three hundred acres.

Charles F., one of the best known of the children on account of his active business career, was born in Germany August 7, 1830. He worked on his father's farm until he was eighteen years old, when he began clerking in a steamboat. He afterwards engaged in the grocery and dry goods business in St. Louis. In 1854 he returned to Marietta, and opened a dry goods store on Front street.

He married May 27, 1855, Phoebe Zimmer, who was born in Germany April 21, 1832. Her father, Daniel Zimmer, came to America with his family early in 1833, and settled on March Run hill in Fearing township. He was one of the earliest settlers of that locality. His family consisted of eleven children, who came to maturity. Daniel Zimmer died June 10, 1875. Mrs. Zimmer died July 13, 1878, on the homestead. Conrad Bisantz, father of Charles F., died February 2, 1877. His wife had preceded him, having died August, 1875.

Charles F. Bisantz, the subject of this sketch, continued his dry goods business until June, 1861, when his store was consumed by fire. He again began mercantile business on Front street, in partnership with his brothers, but this partnership did not continue long. In 1863 Mr. and Mrs. Bisantz opened a restaurant on Front street, known as the Sigle House. Mr. Bisantz's next business was to buy the Lowell mill which he continued to own but a short time. In 1864 he purchased the historic old house on Butler street, which was built by Colonel Lord, and converted it into a hotel. He presided over the Bisantz house as landlord for fourteen years, when failing health made it necessary for him to retire. During the same period he was engaged in the oil business. He also had an interest in the Harmar mill, and in a ferryboat across the river. He removed to the farm at the extremity of Green street in 1878, and died there January 13, 1880.

Through all his life he had a faculty for acquiring money and property. But while we are paying him the respect his busy life demands, we must not fail to give due credit to his energetic, economical helpmeet who still survives. To her as well as him is due the credit of acquiring a competence which will soften the path of old age, and give the children a start in the course of life.

The family consists of three children: Ella Louisa was born June 14, 1856. She was married November 16, 1880, to Peter Kuntz, of Marietta. Charles was born January 10, 1858, and died when ten months old. Frank Buell was born November 25, 1859. He lives on the farm with Mrs. Bisantz.

than Amlin was a stone mason in Fearing township who moved afterwards to Marietta and died in Newport, Washington county, in 1846, at the age of seventy years. He married Elizabeth Twiggs. Samuel Amlin was also a farmer, who died in 1872, at the age of ninety-four years. He was married successively to Elizabeth Mitchell, Miss Hill, and Hannah La Rue. Samuel lived at Newport for many years.

Isaac Chapman was below Whipple station. Patrick and Daniel Campbell settled a mile and a half northeast of Stanleyville. Levi Dains mentioned more fully in the history of Aurelius township, of which he was the first settler, occupied the lot just above the Chapman burying-ground. Charles Daugherty owned lot one hundred and twelve, a mile east of Whipple station. John Forthner owned a lot two miles west of the Whipple Run church. Andrew and Daniel Galer held lots opposite Stanleyville, near the west line of the township. Seth Jones owned the northwest corner lot of the township. Henry and Rickard Maxon were on Duck creek just above Stanleyville. The Maxons were a part of the original Marietta boat-load. Allen Putnam held lot one hundred and thirty, a mile northeast of Stanleyville. Conrad Rightner adjoined the Amlins. Mr. Seevers was just north of Mr. Rightner. The Tuttles were on Duck creek, south of the Chapman cemetery. Allen Putnam, who also belonged to the generous boat-load of 1788, the friend of Amos Porter, jr., of Salem township, was another of these early settlers of Fearing. He married Anna Porter, and settled about a mile north of Stanleyville very soon after the spring of 1797. He was a ship-carpenter by trade, and met his death by falling through a hatchway, while he was at work at Marietta.

Charles H. Morton was at the mouth of Sugar run. Ephraim True, who afterwards moved to Salem township, was on lot one hundred and thirty-eight, northeast of Stanleyville. John Widger was on lot seventy-nine, near Whipple's station.

It will be seen from this that there was no inconsiderable settlement here by the beginning of the century. The great majority of these names occur on petitions dated 1797, showing that their owners came up the creek immediately on the complete return of security from the Indians.

In the southern part of Fearing a family settled early, by the name of Caywood, whence the name of the station on the Marietta, Pittsburgh & Cincinnati railroad at that place. William Caywood settled on the farm now occupied by Henry Pape. His wife before marriage was named Phoebe Moore. Of his family, Thomas married Harriet Maxon, and settled in Fearing; Jonathan married Eliza Huston, and also remained in the township; Phoebe married William Gill, and went to Marietta; Joseph Caywood settled in Lower Lawrence. He was a leading member of the Presbyterian church, and was born in Prince William county, Virginia, in 1799. He joined the family in this county in 1820. Eliza Caywood married Joshua Reed, of Marietta township. A. Jackson lives in Fearing, at Caywood station. He married Eliza Stanley and Elizabeth Hill.

Other early settlers of Fearing were the McKees, Robert, William, John, and Alexander. These moved to the settlement where Caldwell now stands, and their descendants are prominent members of that community to-day.

In the year 1806 another addition was made to the neighborhood. Nathaniel Kidd came from Pennsylvania, where he was born in 1800, and lived until 1880. His wife, Mary Hill, born in 1796, died in 1866, and was the mother of Isaac, C. J., N. E., and Jesse M. The first two live respectively in Lawrence township and Marietta; the latter two live in Fearing township.

Walter Athey came from east Virginia, and settled in Fearing in 1810. There he died in 1855, after holding various local offices, marrying Clarissa Goldsmith, and raising the following children: Walter, now in Bonn; John, in Nebraska; Elizabeth, in Indiana; Solomon, in Kansas; Hezekiah, in Fearing; William, in Fearing; Sarah, in Elba; and Samuel, in Illinois.

Hezekiah married Phoebe M. Huggins in 1855, and has these four children: Frances, Elizabeth, Rufus, and Etta. By his first wife, Mary Ann Tidd, the children were: C. W., James L., and Annie.

In 1811 one who is yet a resident of the township, Mr. William S. Price, came, then an infant of a year. He is a native of Virginia, and is possessed with a very distinct recollection of early times, in all that made them so different from the present. His home is about a mile from Caywood station.

Philo Doan was a settler in the northern edge of the township in 1812. His antecedents were settlers in Noble county, and are mentioned more particularly in the history of Salem township. Philo married Sibyl Chapman in 1839, when he was thirty-one years old. About 1856 he moved to Stanleyville. His children are Anna Kemp, William Henry, William P., Joshua P., and Ansel.

Reuben McVay was another one of the early settlers. The date of his settlement is 1813, when he came from Pennsylvania, where he was born in 1792, and died in 1860, in Newport township. During his life he was justice of the peace, and held other township offices. Margaret Hill was the name of his wife before her marriage, and she was the mother of Charles, Joseph, Elizabeth, Rosanna, and Luther, of Newport township, and J. J. D., of Fearing. Two died in childhood. Martha Cable, Mary Ann, Marie, and William are also dead. J. J. D. McVay married Miss Ann E. Kidd in 1855, and has had ten children: Dudley died when small; George F., Mary R., Ellsworth, Elizabeth J., Francis A., J. J. D., jr., Dewey F. and Juliette D. (twins), Augustus, and Otto are living with their parents. Mr. J. J. McVay has been a teacher for eighteen years, and several times honored with offices by the citizens of the township.

James Dowling came to the township in 1814, from Ireland. The immediate place from which he removed, however, was New York. He taught one of the first schools in Fearing township, and was a teacher for twelve years. He married Sallie Harris, and died in 1841. His son, John, still lives in Fearing; James is in Illinois; and Margaret Post is at McConnelsville; Lewis, Elisha, and Harriet are dead. John married Phoebe Perkins in 1836, and has four children living—Sarah J., Wilson S., Belle, and Henry A. Mr. Dowling has been justice of the peace and infirmary director nine years each, and has held many other local offices. Thomas B. Dowling married Hattie Smithson, and has one child.

Robert Ward emigrated to this county in 1818, with his father, Thomas Ward. He married Lucy M. Tuttle in 1827, and had ten children, six of whom are living: Julia Ann Douthett, of Salem; Simeon T., of Kansas; Matilda E. Hill, of Fearing; and John C., Everett R., and Alice M., also of Fearing. Phoebe Augustus, Augustus T., and two infants are dead. Robert Ward was never naturalized.

James Lowe was another settler, who hailed from Virginia, married Rosanna Haback, and died in 1818 in Morgan county.

In 1818 H. C. Hovey also came to Fearing, and in 1822 married Clarissa Stanley. The two removed in 1830 to Salem township.

John P. Palmer, another settler, is now represented in the township by his son, Thomas, who married his wife, Ellen, in 1847, and has the following children: William, Albert (dead), Ellen S., Jewett, A., Thomas F. (dead) Margaret J., John P., Emiline S., Almerta, Alzora, Gifford, and Sivellus. Thomas P. has held offices in the township, and is much interested in politics, taking an active part in that line.

About 1820, Dr. Hicks entered the township, but practised very little. Heretofore, all the medical service in Fearing was done by Marietta physicians. In about 1830 Dr. Quimby settled just above Mr. Guetteau's place.

Dr. J. F. Ullman, the only doctor now in Fearing, has been practicing here for two years, ever since his settlement. He came from Monroe, but was born in Noble county in 1853. His wife, Mary E. Lane, was born in this county in 1858. Mary Leona, their child, was born in 1877.

Amos Dye was an emigrant to Lawrence township in 1804 from east Virginia, where he was born in 1796. He died at Marietta. His wife was Marie Taylor, and children were Sophronia Chamberlain, Perlina Spencer, Edith Webster, Eliza Brooks, Charlotte Groff, Dudley Dye and Amos Dye, jr., John R., Annie, Henry, George W. and Mary, infants, are dead.

John Whittock, a native of England, was a resident of the township until 1879, when his death occurred. He was born in 1794, and married Miss Julia R. Chapman, who was born in 1816.

John Young, sr., was an emigrant from Virginia, who came to the township in 1833. His birth and death were in 1764 and 1854. He was a native of Scotland, and his father fought on the side of the British in the Revolutionary war, from the battle of Lexington to the surrender of Cornwallis. Mary Darling, born in 1770, died in 1855, was his wife and the mother of John and Betsey, of Fearing.

William Brown first settled in Belmont county in 1806.

He came to Washington county in 1834. His birth place was near Harper's Ferry, Virginia, and he died March 4, 1878. His wife, Margaret Nicol, was born in 1810 and died 1858. The children were Marie Yeomans, James P., and Frank S., of Fearing; Kate Broadhurst, of Barlow; John B., of California; Daniel N., of Dexter City; and William H., of Marietta. Annie M., Mary E., and Hattie A. are dead. James Brown still lives on the old homestead.

About this time was the beginning of that German emigration to Fearing that has since made it essentially a German township. In 1832 the Donaker family came from Germany and settled in Fearing. This was probably the first beginning of the German movement to this township. Shortly after, the Sayler family arrived, also from Germany.

Conrad Biszantz and wife, Eva Huffman, settled in Fearing township in 1834. He was born in Germany in 1801, and his wife was also born in Germany. Six of their ten children are living, three in Washington county. Mr. Biszantz died in Marietta in 1876, surviving his wife four years.

Jacob Zimmer came to Fearing in 1836 from Bavaria, where he was born in 1789. He married Elizabeth Schramm, and the children were: David, Charles, and Daniel, of Fearing; Elizabeth Lehnard, Catharine Buck, and Caroline Strauss, of Marietta; John, of Ironton; and Jacob, who died in 1878. Daniel Zimmer married Elizabeth Young in 1855. Eleven children are living—Catharine, Daniel J., Elizabeth M., Amelia Matilda, Lewis, Jacob, Caroline, Clara, Edward, Ella Lena, and Helen Frances.

Theobald Zimmer came to Fearing in 1836. He was a native of Bavaria, Germany, and was born there in 1817. His wife, Catharine Hoffman, was born in 1824. Their children now in Fearing are Charles and Daniel; Elizabeth Lehnard, Catharine Buck and Caroline Strauss are in Marietta. Jacob died in 1880.

C. W. Zimmer married Carrie E. Lehnard in 1876, and has two children—Nettie and an infant. He is president of the township board of education, and takes great interest in politics.

John D. Pape settled in Lawrence township in 1839, whence he came from Germany, where he was born in 1798. He died in Lawrence in 1842. The children of Mr. Pape reside as follows: John D., Marietta; Adeline Dinkleman, Cincinnati; Detrick and Henry, Fearing; Martha Wischmire, Cincinnati; Annie Geiger, Cincinnati. Two died in infancy.

Detrick Pape married Mary E. Eifler in 1849, and has six children—Adeline Brown, Marietta; Francis Stevenson, Marietta; George H., Fearing; Charles, Marietta; Clinton A., unmarried; Nora A., unmarried, and William, who died when young.

Theobald Boesshar was the son of Jacob and Louisa Boesshar, and came to Fearing in 1852. He was born in 1833, and in 1856 married Elizabeth Schramm, who was born in 1838. She died in 1878. The children are Caroline, Maria, Elizabeth, Jacob, Catharine, Maria Magdalena, John Jacob, Louisa, Edward Theobald, Bertha,

WILLIAM BROWN.

William Brown was a native of Virginia, and was born near Harper's Ferry, in 1804. When he was four years old his parents removed to Belmont county, Ohio, and during his younger years our subject operated a distillery. He married in Belmont county, in January, 1830, Margaret Nicol, a daughter of Daniel Nicol, of Fearing township, this county. Her parents were Scotch people of high respectability. They were rigid members of the Methodist church, and exacting in their honesty and morality.

Soon after he was married, Mr. Brown purchased a farm near the present homestead, at Caywood station, in Fearing township. He afterwards purchased the farm on which he died, and which is now owned by his heirs. The family consisted of ten children: Catharine was born in November, 1830. She married Whittington Broadhurst. Maria was born in 1832. She married Richard Yeomans, and died in 1869. John was born in 1834, and lives in California; Daniel was born in 1836, and lives in Dexter city, Noble county, Ohio; William H. was born in 1838, and lives in Marietta; Ann H. was born in 1840, and died in 1876; James P. and Mary E. (twins) were born in 1844—James P. lives on the homestead, Mary E. died in 1860; Frank S. was born in 1847, and lives on the homestead; Hattie, the youngest, was born in 1850, and died in 1868. Mrs. Brown passed away in 1858.

Mr. Brown was a man of modest and retiring habits. He was a farmer, and his only ambition was to earn a comfortable competence and lead an honest, upright life. Aside from the routine of farming, he dealt in cattle, and in that way formed a large acquaintance among the agricultural classes.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Brown were members of the Methodist church, and to the last were contented by a simple and religious doctrine, undisturbed by that skepticism so common to more pretentious people.

Mr. Brown died in 1878, having lived an honorable and profitable life.

Emma, and twins named Wilhelmina Philipina and Philipina Wilhelmina.

Lewis Motter emigrated from Germany to this county in 1850, and located in Fearing township with his parents, John and Elizabeth (Huffman) Motter, who had fourteen children, eight of whom are living. In 1860 he married Elizabeth Bisantz, daughter of Conrad and Eva Bisantz. By this marriage there are two children. Mr. Motter has been in the bakery and confectionary business in Marietta since 1865.

John Bules settled in Stanleyville in August, 1872, in which month he married Kate Trautner. He has been engaged in blacksmithing ever since his arrival. His children are Lizzie, Phoebe, Kate, and John.

F. C. Trapp, a German preacher in Fearing township, first came to this part of the county embraced in Muskingum township in 1872. The following year he removed to Fearing, where he is now engaged in ministerial work. He was born in Germany in 1831. In 1860 he married Catharine Kaiser, whose birth occurred in 1825. His children are Charles, Mary, Anna, and Henry.

The virtual beginning of the settlement, as has been implied before, was the attempted and finally successful erection of mills on Duck creek. In 1790 Colonel Ebenezer Sproat and Enoch Shephard commenced building mills in the southern part of the township, under an agreement that they were to receive one thousand acres of land if the mills were finished by September 1, 1790. But a freshet destroyed their dam and did such other damage that the terms of the agreement could not be met.

In the same year, farther down the creek, Mr. Robert Potts began a mill, but lost his labor and expense by the breaking out of the Indian war. The Indians swept through this valley and destroyed everything that could be found, these works not being excepted.

Also Thomas Stanley attempted to build mills and a still-house further up the creek, five miles from Marietta, but failed with the rest. But although the mills and other enterprises were not put in successful operation, yet reference is made to them in fixing locations as if they existed. Thus we find mention in the road records of "Stanley's still-house" as early as January, 1794. But we find that the mills were rebuilt.

But we find that the mills were rebuilt. In a petition for a road, dated January 5, 1797, is mention of "White's mill." As the petition was accepted March, 1798, the first date is probably an error for 1798, caused by the not uncommon lapsus penne at the beginning of a year. In a subsequent petition, dated 1799, White's, and Sproat's mills are referred to; also, "Esquire Stanley's old mill on congress lot," and in the plat of the road, the position of the former mill is fixed at the crossing of the road, which goes past the Methodist church near Wesley station. In fact, the petition was for this very road.

Thomas Stanley made his second and successful attempt at a mill in about a year after the close of the Indian war. He also built with it a saw-mill, which was the first in the township. In connection with it was a powder-mill, a fulling-mill, and a distillery, all three alike being a necessity in those days. At the same time he erected the first frame dwelling in the township.

The first brick building was not constructed until about 1831, when Isaac Chapman built one. In about 1811, Mr. Stanley built the mill at Stanleyville, on the site now occupied, after being rebuilt two or three times, by the mill of Theobald Boeschar. Shortly after, and before 1812, Carlisle's mills were constructed, near the north boundary of the township.

In the neighborhood of 1836, William I. Gray built a saw-mill and machine shops, and did, for a short time, some manufacturing of furniture. The turned pieces were mostly forwarded to Marietta, and there made into furniture. Mr. Gray called his works the Stanleyville mills, and in this way the town took its name, and very properly, too, from the old settler who had done so much for it.

The town is at present the only one in the township, and contains two stores, two blacksmith shops, a Congregational church, a grist-mill, carpenter shop, and a post office.

In a collection of manuscripts, made by Dr. Hildreth, is the following petition for one of the early roads through Fearing township. With the aid of what has been stated regarding the position of the farms referred to in the petition, the road can be easily traced and identified with existing ones:

To the Honorable Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace of the County of Washington:

Your petitioners request that a road may be laid out from Marietta to the forks of Duck creek and on to Mr. Tolman's in the most eligible situation to be taken past Pott's mills, so called, or any other place that should be found more convenient hereafter, from thence on to a ridge, keeping the same ridge to the Cedar Narrows, so called, thence following the creek by Mr. Widger's, then past Mr. Levi Chapman's, and crossing the creek and on to the forks of Duck creek, from thence to the mouth of Pawpaw and on to Mr. Tolmon's.

Which your petitioners, as in duty bound, request a committee may be appointed for that purpose. Signed.

|                    |                 |
|--------------------|-----------------|
| SAMUEL NASH,       | JOSEPH CHAPMAN, |
| LEVI CHAPMAN,      | AMOS PORTER,    |
| DUDLEY DAVIS,      | SETH JONES,     |
| LEVI DAINS,        | JOEL TUTTLE,    |
| LEVI CHAPMAN, JR., | EZRA CHAPMAN,   |
| LINUS TUTTLE,      | SIMEON TUTTLE,  |
| JOHN WIDGER,       | ISAAC CHAPMAN,  |
| JOHN CAMPBELL,     |                 |

Thomas Stanley, Surveyor, June, 1797.

The settlement having been formed so early, and yet being the object of no little attention by earlier historians, it becomes difficult, and sometimes impossible, to find the first events and enterprises. The first school is probably not retained in the mind of any one now living. It is remembered that Charles Shipman taught a school in 1804 or near then—that in the northeastern part of the township, Hannah Perkins, near 1807, and afterward Clarissa Plummer, taught.

In about 1812, a Mr. Coleman taught below Stanleyville. The pupils, raised in the open air, trained to hardy pursuits, and free from most of the restraints now everywhere existing, were very little inclined to obey the pedagogue. He accordingly submitted to superior physical force and abandoned the job of teaching before his term was out. A Mr. Gallant was employed in his place with the agreement that he was to teach his term out or he would receive no pay. One day the larger pupils brought their skates to school and disobeyed a rule by skating, that "nooning." Gallant excused all the smaller ones, locked in himself and the disobedient ones, produced a heavy ball bat, which he had charge of when not used in their play, and engaged in a lively knock-down melee with the young giants, in which he came out completely victorious. It is said that he had no trouble thereafter. This illustrates the spirit of those pioneer times—the preeminence accorded to physical courage and force and the rough and ready way of settling difficulties. Gallant was followed by Corner, who, in turn, was succeeded by James Dowling, who taught for twelve years at different schools. One of the early lady teachers was Miss Betsey Maxon, who taught at the mouth of Sugar run.

About 1814, Mary Gross taught a small school of young scholars in an old log barn. It was one of those double barns consisting of two "pens" separated by a third division which alone had a floor. In one of these pens was held her school, consisting of Philo and Anna Doan; Betsey, Rebecca, and John Carlisle; Betsey and Julinda Kidd; Hiram Chapman, and others. The school was held in summer time. Before that, school was kept in a school-house on Whipple's run. The principal text books then in use, were the Testament and Webster's spelling-book. Not much improvement has since been made on either. It is known that Walter Stevens taught school at Cedar Narrows, at a very early date. In 1851, the last select school in the township was taught by John Douglass.

While on the subject of education, it should be noticed that Fearing township was the seat of one of the very early libraries of the west. About 1810-13, the books were purchased by inhabitants of the township. It was a private affair, and in 1816 was incorporated. The articles of incorporation limit the property besides books, maps, charts, and the like, to three thousand dollars. As officers until an election could be held: Thomas Stanley, Robert Baird, and Elisha Allen were made directors; John Miller treasurer, and Daniel G. Stanley librarian. In time the association dissolved, the books were distributed among the shareholders and many remain yet in private libraries of their descendants. Many books are of a religious nature, and all are of the weightier class of reading. The latest date noticed on the title page as date of publication, is 1813. In the back fly leaves of many books, are the notes of damages and fines written by the librarian on the return of the book. The principal disasters to the works are from grease spots—suggesting the light of other days.

CHURCHES.

A record of the earliest church in the township (the old Presbyterian church of 1810) appears in the history of Salem township, although it belongs alike to both townships. The old church-building was constructed in 1814, in Stanleyville, on land given by Thomas Stanley. Regular religious services continued until about 1848.

An organization styled the Fearing religious society, was incorporated January 29, 1813, by John H. White, Simeon Tuttle, William Caywood, Daniel G. Stanley, Robert Baird, Isaac Hill, and associates. It was under the auspices of no particular denomination. It was reorganized in 1837, and going down again, was reorganized again in 1853, for business purposes—a dispute having arisen about the ownership of the church property hitherto owned by the Presbyterian church.

On the demise of the Presbyterian church in Stanleyville, three years elapsed and a Congregational church was organized in 1851. A building was erected in 1856, which is still standing. The pastor at that time was Rev. G. L. Fryes. L. L. Fay followed him, and his successor was Rev. Riddle. The present pastor is Rev. C. S. Erwin.

About 1820, a Methodist church was organized in the southern part of the township. One of the most energetic, and perhaps the principal of the organization, was Elder Sworinstead, who is well remembered as possessed of a powerful voice, his sermons being audible to a great distance. The meetings then were held in an old school-house, not far from the site of the present Methodist church building, near Wesley station. Among the old members of this church were Underhill Lynch, Abraham Daniels, John Price, Daniel Nicholls, James Brown, William Brown, Lewis Dowling, and their wives, also Mr. Quimby and Deborah Craff.

Quarterly meetings were held sometimes at the house of Mr. Underhill Lynch. In 1847 the church-building was completed, on land given by Mr. Lynch. About 1863 the parsonage was built.

The first camp-meeting in the township was held in 1822, in a sugar grove, on Mr. Lynch's place, near what is called the "overhead bridge" on the railroad. At the second camp-meeting, in about 1840, the pulpit was built between two large sugar trees. Now there was a singular character in the neighborhood at that time—an old worn-out slave, nobody knew how old. He was one of those whose appearance would indicate almost any age—the older, the better the guess. Complexion as black as coal, long, skinny, claw-like fingers, known to everyone as "Frank" (his real name was Francis Lee). He lived the existence of a local nomad, sleeping oftentimes in a hollow log in the woods. This character, some of the wilder sort, who attended this camp meeting, armed with a horn of loud and blatant tone. While the preachers were at supper, Frank and horn ascended one of the sugar trees that guarded the pulpit. The foliage screened him from immediate observation by the large audience which assembled at the evening meeting, and so he remained until the fervor of the meeting was at its height. Then, at a signal from one of the crowd, the impersonator of Gabriel awoke the echoes with a terrific blast. The audience, however, was not so superstitious as that of Lorenzo Dow in the old story, for both they and the minister preaching saw and recognized the trumpeter. In an instant the preacher was transformed into an axeman, and to save himself from being cut down, Frank, who had made his debut as Gabriel, assumed the role of Crockett's coon, and came down, or rather slid down, with more velocity than dignity.

JOHN C. WARD

was born in Fearing township, Washington county, Ohio, May 6, 1843. His father, Robert Ward, was a native of Cheshire, England, and emigrated to this country when a single man. He eventually found his way to this county, where he married Lucy M. Tuttle, and settled in Fearing township. He died July 28, 1879. His widow still survives and is living with her son.

Our subject spent his youth upon the farm, and enjoyed such educational advantages only as the common schools furnished, but of them he made diligent use. When he was nineteen he commenced teaching school, and subsequently taught seventeen terms, generally during the winter months, and working on the farm in the summer. Two winters he taught the Wagner school in Muskingum township, and walked from his home to his school and back again every day, a distance of three miles. He was elected township clerk of Fearing in the spring of 1866, and reelected in 1867. He served for four years as member of the school board of his township, and has always shown a lively interest in the cause of education. He was an orderly sergeant in the militia, and served in the Morgan raid.

Mr. Ward is in politics a Democrat, and in 1872 was a delegate to the State convention held at Cleveland, and again in 1875 was a delegate at Columbus, when Hon. William Allen was renominated for governor. He is a member of Palmer Lodge, No. 351, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and past grand of said lodge.

A second Methodist church was organized perhaps half a century ago, and held meetings at first in a school-house, just above Stanleyville. The preachers at the time were Messrs. Kellogg and Lewis. Members were Walter Athey, who was class-leader; John Collins, John Whittock, Joseph Cass, and their wives, also Jesse Hill, Maria Whittock, and Jennie Britton. About 1839, the congregation built a log structure in which they worshipped for eighteen or twenty years. Then the present frame church, east of Stanleyville, was erected by Mr. H. Athey.

Mr. Lewis, of Lowell, has now charge of the church which is known as the Zion Methodist Episcopal church, and belongs to the Lynch circuit.

A branch of the Congregational church of Stanleyville, finding it inconvenient to attend from a distance, built a church for themselves near the Cedar Narrows. The building was erected in 1873, by Thomas Flanders. The church flourished under the pastorate of Rev. Levi L. Fay and has now about thirty members.

The advent of the Germans, among other things, has resulted in the establishment of two churches in Fearing—the First Protestant Evangelist church, and the St. Jacob's church. The former was founded at almost the beginning of this phase of the settlement. As is characteristic of the German churches, the building was erected contemporaneously with the organization of the church. It was located near Whipple run, and may yet be seen. In 1872 a new building was erected, and the old, having finished its work, was forsaken. The land on which it stands was purchased from Daniel Biehl. The ministers have been as follows: From the organization until 1852, Rev. Schreiner; from 1852 to 1873, Daniel Hirsch; thence to the present, F. C. Trapps. The church has now fifty-two members.

The St. Jacobs church originated in 1858, as follows: In the summer of that year a number of Germans of the southern part of the township met for the purpose of establishing a church. Several concluded to withdraw from the enterprise, leaving only eight heads of families to continue the work. Nothing daunted, they undertook their great task. Their first step was to obtain a church site. This they did of Mr. Chapman, who owned land a mile west of Stanleyville, and who gave a part of it for this purpose on very liberal conditions. The church was erected, a plat set apart for a graveyard, and when the building was complete it was dedicated by Rev. David Hirsch. The eight builders organized and framed a constitution for a congregation.

This was in the early part of January, 1859. The names of these eight founders are: Jacob Biehl, Theobald Mueller, Friedrich Bules, Mr. Trautner, Franz J. Spindler, Michael Mueller, George Adam Trautner and Jacob Schumann.

Since then nineteen families have joined the organization, making in all twenty-seven. Eight of these have withdrawn—three on account of removal from the township, and five from a wish to be unconnected with the church.

The nineteen families composing the church in March, 1881, include five of the original eight families. An admission fee of three dollars is charged for the privilege of membership.

Six ministers, besides Mr. Hirsch, have attended the spiritual wants of the congregation. Mr. Hirsch, with a trifling exception, has been pastor twelve years—the first six years of the existence of the church, and also since April, 1873.

The oldest burying-ground in the township is that at Stanleyville. Perhaps the oldest grave is the one containing the remains of Major Thomas Stanley, who died March 14, 1816. Besides other members of the Stanley family, we find that many old families of the township have availed themselves of this spot as a resting place for their dead. The tombstones bear such names as Collins, Leedham, Whittock, Hodge, Blake, Caywood, Lankford, Cousins, Amlin, Athey, Hill, Kidd, Miller and Morris. The oldest person buried in the yard is Robert Collins, who was born in England in 1762, and died May 6, 1871, in the one hundred and ninth year of his age.

A half mile to the south of the Cedar narrows is the old Chapman cemetery. Originally a private burying-place of that family—begun in about 1816—others availed themselves of their courtesy until, besides the Chapmans, some of the Johnsons, Carlises, Flanders, Tuttles, Warrens, Guitteaus, Beardsleys, Morgans, Sinclairs and Hazens rest in the little plot.

At the church near Whipple's run, east of the Cedar narrows, there are two graveyards. The later one was begun in 1875, the old ground being filled with graves. This old one has been in existence since 1846, when Peter Biehl died and was buried there.

Near the Cedar narrows is a burial place on the Flanders farm. Members from the families of Flanders, Stewards, Penns and Seevers are here laid to rest.

CHAPTER LII.

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP.

Position and Division—The Ohio River Settlement—Prehistoric Inhabitants—The Valley of Dry Bones—Permanent Settlement—The Leath family—Other Pioneers—The First Orchard—An Early Tavern—The Settlement in 1808—Isaac Rinard and His Mills—The Captivity of Thomas Simons—A Girl Kills a Bear—The Vocalist of the Community—John Rea, the Irish Miller—The Rea Graveyard—Early Schools—A Temperance Movement—The First Store—A Union Church Building—The First Public School—A Useful Settler—First Frame Dwelling—The First Post Office—A Victim of the Freshet of 1832—"One Niggah Enough"—Other Mills—Beginning of German Immigration—Anecdote of Washington—The First Four Wheeled Wagon—The Western End of the Settlements—A Heroine Kills a Ruffian—A Few Doctors—An Incipient Town—It's Store—Early Preaching—Three Churches and the Tripartite Agreement—The First Sunday-school—The Little Muskingum Settlement—The Archer's Fork Settlement—Archer's Home in a Tree—The First Marriage—The First Schools—Private Burial Places—The Decker Mill—The Settlement of the Germans—Other Settlers—The Scotch Neighborhood—The Waernicke Mansion—Churches—Independence Declared a Township—The First Election—A Novel Ballot Box.

INDEPENDENCE township, as now constituted, is that political division of the county bounded on the north by Ludlow, on the east by Grand View, on the south by Newport and the Ohio river, and on the west by Lawrence. In its physical features it is divided into three parts, one of which directly slopes to the Ohio river, another contributes its waters to form Archer's fork, while the third part embraces the Little Muskingum valley.

The latter division barely lies within the township limits, the bounding ridge cutting, in a diagonal direction, sections thirty, thirty-six and thirty-five. The Ohio river division is a southeasterly slope of some two or three miles, beginning at a ridge entering near the encroaching corner of Grand View and reaching southwesterly to the further corner of section thirty-two. This portion of the township, a territory approximating thirteen square miles, was settled before the other two. The tide of emigration always seeks the valleys of the large streams first. The rivers were the only highways of the settlers, the banks of the rivulets their first foot-paths.

It does not belong here to treat at length of the first human beings who are known to have existed here, nor of that later race that made the country that our forefathers found, so much worse than uninhabited. This has been done at the beginning of the book. The most lasting reminders of their existence that were left here by these races were the graves and skeletons of their dead. One of the most remarkable of these traces existed until as late as, it may be, 1840. About a hundred yards from the Ohio, on the land now owned by John Butler, first owned by John Burris, is a rocky ledge, eight or nine feet high, under which was a collection of about a cart load of human bones, some of them of remarkable size. This circumstance gave name to the little stream—Bône run—in this vicinity.

SETTLEMENT.

The first white family that is known to have chosen what is now Independence for their home, was the Leath family. They settled at the mouth of the run bearing their name. This stream, rising far in Grand View, near its western boundary, as far north as Matamoras, takes a southerly course through one of the romantic valleys in which the country abounds, almost parallel to the Ohio, and empties into the latter river a few hundred yards on the Independence side of the Grand View line.

Little is known about this man or his family. He probably cleared the first land in the township, presumably above the mouth of the run. His settlement was either in the latter part of 1700 or first of 1800. His stay was short, for he moved away soon after burying his wife, Sarah, who died in 1804. She was buried in Grand View township near the line and the river. This, the first death in the township, was the origin of the first graveyard in the settlement.

In it now rest all that is earthly of the loved ones of the first families in the settlement: The Littles, Morelands, Riggs, Browns, Haldrens, as well as those of the settlement in Grand View—Burris, Dye, McMahon, Parr and others.

A few years ago the land composing the graveyard, was deeded by Mr. Haldren to the township, the matter having been neglected until then.

The second family was that of William Little. He and his household, which at that time consisted of himself, wife and three children, came from the Emerald Isle in 1805, in company with the family of William Rea. In 1806 he settled at the mouth of Leath's run, on land purchased and presented to him by his oldest son James, the son of his first wife, Mary Thompson. James had preceded his father and stepmother, Mary McKee, to America, settling in the Shenandoah valley, and rapidly amassing a fortune. William Little was a physician, having graduated at a medical college in Ireland. But his surroundings in that country were such that he could not succeed. He died in 1807, in his seventieth year. He was born in County Down, Ireland.

Of his two children by his second wife, Jane and Mary, Jane married Rhesa Moreland, and Mary married David Murdock.

As Mr. Little came down the Ohio on his way to his new western home, he stopped at Steubenville, and purchased young apple trees which he planted on his arrival, thus starting the first orchard in the township. The last tree was cut down in the winter of 1880—1—a truly patriarchal tree, the trunk measuring eleven feet in girth. The Ridgeway orchard in the same settlement was older than this, but was situated in Grand View.

The William Rea mentioned as the companion of Mr. Little in his emigration from Ireland, also settled as a neighbor, belonging to Independence. His land was that now belonging to Walter Brown. When he left Ireland, his family consisted, besides himself, of his wife, who was Nancy Martin, and two children. The latter number was subsequently increased to seven: William, Samuel, Martin, Margaret, Mary, Eliza, and Nancy. All are now dead, but Nancy, who lives in Mason county, West Virginia. Her first husband was H. A. Riggs; her second, J. P. Harvey.

The travel along shore and stream of the Ohio—the great thoroughfare between the east and her western children—increasing with the growth of the new settlements, it became necessary to provide more suitable accommodations than could be afforded to the belated travellers by the incommodious cabin of the pioneer. William Rea attempted to fill this demand by keeping a tavern at his home. In a short time, about the year 1808, he removed it to the mouth of the stream since named for him, Rea's run—a pretty stream, flowing two miles southeast to a point on the Ohio shore, a mile and a quarter below the mouth of Leath's run. Its waters are swelled by but one stream south, Farnsworth's branch, which enters it from the left, in the lower third of its course. The name that Mr. Rea thought appropriate for his hotel, was "The Travellers' Rest." Mr. Rea abandoned the enterprise, probably soon after the death of his wife in 1821. Mr. Rea was born in Ireland in 1777, and died in this township about 1848, being buried in the graveyard at the mouth of the run.

At this period of the settlement, a family arrived, whose domestic troubles alone cause it to be remembered.

John (or George) Cline was the name of the head of the family, and his wife's maiden name was Clarissa McCordle, of Middle Island. Cline was constantly inflicting corporal chastisement upon his spouse, and his excuse or pretext for this was that she was too much a friend to alcoholic stimulus. The troubles of this interesting pair furnished a theme for a song that is yet spoken of among the oldest inhabitants. Some time after 1808, Cline with his wife moved away, leaving his first name and his destination to be a subject of differing opinion by his quondam neighbors.

Joseph Holdren and his wife, whose name before marriage was Ruth Ferguson, settled on the place left by Cline. Their children were Thomas, George and Grace. The first two live in Grand View; the daughter is not living. Coleman Holdren, Joseph's brother, settled on the river. He afterwards moved to the middle part of the Newport township shore. He had several children, two were named Joseph and James; the latter lives in Marietta.

By the year 1808 the settlers had become numerous enough to give the settlement a definite form. It lined the bank of the river, beginning with Oliver Aplin's home, over two miles in Grand View, extending down the river embracing the fields of Dickinson, Nathan Parr, David Smothers, Joseph Holdren, Benjamin Ridgeway, and Joseph Burris—all in what is to-day Grand View territory. Those of the settlement in what is at present Independence township have been mentioned. Above Alpin's there was no settler for a considerable distance; the next settlement below was that of Newport. It will thus be seen that the history of the Ohio settlement of Independence merges into that of Grand View and Newport.

The next addition to this settlement was the widow of Samuel French and her children. She came from Tyler county, West Virginia, in which State her husband had died. She was poor and compelled to obtain a living as best she could, nowhere certain of a long stay, and working in different places. She died about 1845. The children of Mr. French and herself were three—two boys and a girl. Only one of these is now living, namely, Charles, who was born in Tyler county in 1803. Since his arrival he has always lived in the township. He was in those early days a youth who worked at odd jobs, helping Mr. Walker to construct Ridgeway's brick house for one thing, spending his leisure, which was probably ample, about the tavern with playmates, or learning to hunt with his stepfather, Thomas Simms. As Mr. French grew older he engaged in the nursery business—was connected with the boating interests of the river, was something of a farmer and has never been married. He lives now with his nephew, Martin O. Hanlon.

The next was the Rizhar family, which settled up Leath's run. This stream has considerable fall, and at one point the valley is very narrow, affording a good place for a dam.

Up to this time the settlement had been without a mill, and in their extremity the pioneers were obliged to resort for their flour and meal to Mills so distant as Devol's, on the greater Muskingum. Accordingly, a very important accession to the settlement was the skilful and enterprising Isaac Rinard, a German who came about 1809 or 1810 down the river, bearing on his raft millstones that were obtained at Laurel Hill, West Virginia. At the site before mentioned he built a dam and put up a mill. He built a cabin at the same place, which is still standing, though the old mill has long since been at rest. Not content with one enterprise, he built another mill at Mill creek, in Green View township, about 1822, also one on the Little Muskingum, in Monroe county, about four miles above Bloomfield. The children of Mr. Rinard and his first wife were John and Sarah; of the second wife Hester Elder, Isaac, James, Mary, Rebecca, Cynthia, Margaret, and Nancy.

Cotemporary with the settlement of Mr. Rinard was that of Rhesa Moreland, who came from Maryland in company with a friend. He was born about the beginning of the Revolution. He married Jane Little and was the father of three girls and one boy. The latter, John, was killed by the kick of a horse in the summer of 1875.

THOMAS SIMMS AND HIS CAPTIVITY.

About 1810 a man arrived, of adventurous and eventful history. When Thomas Simms was a boy of some eight years of age, living with his kindred near Wheeling, Virginia, the Indians attacked and massacred his grandfather, and several of the family to which he belonged, but spared his life. They took Thomas to what was called Sandusky plains, where they raised him in the ways of their tribe. He seems to have met with great favor in their eyes, for they made him their companion rather than their slave. They trained him carefully and well in the preeminent Indian accomplishment of hunting, teaching him all the subtleties of Indian woodcraft. In his youth he played with Indian playmates, whose almost constant sport was with the bow and arrow. He accompanied the tribe in their warlike expeditions, and was with them in their retreat from near Marietta, when the whites had almost starved them, when they buried their kettle and other utensils, only to have them dug up again by the whites. He learned their language. He was always well treated, except when they had their drunken carousals. During one of these orgies he was chased and wounded in the calf of the leg by a large knife, the blade passing completely through the fleshy part. He luckily managed to secrete himself in a hollow log where he lay all night, listening fearfully to the steps of his temporary enemies as they passed to and fro over his very hiding place, but luckily never thinking to peer in the end of it.

When Simms had reached the years of manhood, the longing came strong upon him to visit the homes of his own race and learn of his friends and kindred. It is said that the Indians allowed him to go "on his own recognizance," having such confidence in his honor as to trust his promise to return. At any rate he did make a visit to his old neighborhood, returning to his foster tribe in a very short time. In a little while he went again to Virginia, and thus severed his connection with the Indians forever. The story is that he escaped from them by frightening an old squaw who was with him at some distance from the camp with the exclamation that the whites were coming. She hurried back to the main body of the Indians, while Simms went in the opposite direction.

Once more with the white people, Simms found himself a child in the knowledge of his race. He took up his abode with James McMahon, in West Virginia, and set earnestly to work under the tuition of the Misses McMahon to retrieve as far as possible the lost years of his captivity. Under his fair preceptresses his progress was, no doubt, rapid, and he soon left the family to enter our settlement, marry Mrs. French, and devote himself to the arts of peace and civilization. He entered the farm where Mr. Charles French now resides, near the Ohio river, a few hundred yards west of Leath's run. Three daughters were born to him, but he took the most interest, apparently, and was oftenest in company with his stepson, Charles, then a youth of seven or eight years. Him he taught in the Indian ways, tutored in their language, told stories of their adventures, of their ways and customs, took with him when hunting—of which occupation the man was very fond, and in which Indian skill had made him an adept—taught to fire the rifle, to carry a deer as the Indians do—with a strip of bark against the forehead. Many other things he taught and told his young companion, most of which have been, unfortunately, forgotten. He identified himself with the tribe which had adopted him, to that extent that to insult or ridicule the tribe was a personal affront to him. A fellow-harvester, by the name of Benjamin Hartwell, once derided the defeat, before mentioned, of his tribe by the whites. Simms started for him with up-raised sickle and flashing eyes, and had not Hartwell run from the field it is probable that a tragedy would have been enacted. Now about that time a delegation of Indians came up the river in three keel-boats, bound for the capital. They stopped at this settlement two or three days, and the Indians frequently came to the house of Simms after learning that he could speak in the Indian tongue. It was on this account that they would eat at his house, refusing food at other places for fear of poison. Simms could converse with only one Indian, who had once belonged to the same tribe that Simms lived with, but had killed one of their number, and taken refuge with the nation he was then representing.

Simms was drafted in the War of 1812, but was excused from service on account of a running sore in his leg. He is described as a small, but heavy-set man, of medium weight, with black hair and quick, dark eyes, but fair complexion. He was the swiftest runner in the whole region about him, and was in every way quick and active. He died about 1816, when a man of apparently forty-five years of age. His death was due to a cold caught from exposure while chasing a bear.

These bears seem to have been more numerous at that time in the neighborhood than in many other parts of the county. In 1815 a young woman of perhaps twenty years, named Susan Riggs, while crossing the Ohio, opposite the settlement, in a canoe, saw a bear about a year old, swimming in the river, and, it is said, killed it with the canoe paddle.

Isaac Wilson and his wife, Margaret, settled a little below the mouth of Rea's run. He came, probably, during the War of 1812. He had but one child, a son named Abijah. He came from near Wheeling, and moved away in a short time to Marion county, as nearly as can be ascertained. He was a relative of Nathan Parr, who was a resident of the Grand View part of the settlement.

Near 1814 George Lewis arrived, from Virginia, it is thought, where he married a lady by the name of Cooper. Two of his children were Nathan and Polly. He was celebrated for his great talent as a singer. He moved down the river to Indiana, where his son, "Nace," has since achieved some political distinction.

In 1820 John Rea, a brother of William Rea, came to the settlement and bought the Rinard property. He had two sons and one daughter. The daughter built the wall about their private graveyard, which is still in existence, and contains but four graves.

John Rea was, of course, an Irishman. He immediately began running the old Rinard mill, which was then in a rather dilapidated condition. The creek got rather high one day when the mill was running, for in hilly countries, such as Independence township, rivulets rise and fall with great rapidity. The rumbling wheel gathered speed; the buhrs began to hum; the old mill tottered as if there were an earthquake, and the Irish miller, too much frightened to shut the water off, cried out to his oldest son: "Sam! Sam! let's go out on the bank an' let her run a weal of hours by herself until the wather ebbs."

In about eight or nine years Rea abandoned the old affair, and the site has been without a mill until three or four years ago, when John Yost constructed one at that place.

Samuel Rea, the Sam of the preceding narrative, was quite enterprising. With the exception of William Rea, who made, perhaps, one trading trip, he was the first one of the settlement to carry produce, by boat, to New Orleans. He began this business about the year 1824. His method was to build a flat-boat in the summer, and in the meanwhile scour the country for its produce of dried fruit, such as peaches and apples, buying flour and meal of the millers, and also investing to some extent in other products. At that time vast quantities of peaches were raised in this region, the bottoms being almost covered with peach trees.

At this period an important industry of the district was the manufacture of tar. The forests abounded in fine, yellow pine trees, especially in the territory now included in Independence, Liberty, and Ludlow townships. The pine knots from these trees were gathered and burnt in kilns, furnishing the tar, which was sold to traders in the article. Basil Riggs, living across the river, was a principal dealer in the tar, finding a market for it at Mr. Berry's rope works at Wheeling.

Returning to the year 1821, the death and burial of Nancy Rea, sr., at that date, was the beginning of the first graveyard within the township—that at the mouth of Rea's run. Since then his yard has received all that is mortal of many other of the oldest families—bearing such names as Farnsworth, Ellifrits, Kiddar, Price, Barkwill, and among them, four soldiers named Thompson Rea, Kemper Rea, Isaac Booth, and a Mr. Wolf. The land was given for the yard by William Rea, and is now filled with graves, so that burials in it have ceased.

At an uncertain date, but one not much later than this, a settler came to the neighborhood by the name of Martin O. Hanlon. He was the oldest child of Richard Hanlon and was born in 1818 in what is Pleasant county, West Virginia. He was quite young, when he settled here. He has lived in the neighborhood ever since. His first wife was named Louisa Hearn and his marriage to her was in 1843. She dying in 1878, in 1879 he married Mary A. Heinselman, a daughter of Christian Heinselman, born in 1834. The children are named Charles L. and Mathias F. Charles married Lydia A. Sloan of West Virginia.

Not far from 1823, William Cathers taught a subscription school in a little dwelling house near the Grand View line.

Soon after, Alcinda Bridget, a sister of Dr. Gale, of Newport, opened a like school in a little house on the farm of Rhesa Moreland. These were the first schools in the settlement, as far as ascertained.

In 1830, David Murdock came to the township. His marriage to Mary Little has already been chronicled in the sketch of that family. Though a comparatively late settler, he took a prominent part in making the history of the township. He was born in 1768 in Pennsylvania; married in 1815; settled in the Shenandoah valley—then went to Newport village in 1827, where he kept store three years. He died in 1853; his wife in 1850.

The first temperance movement in the township began through his agency. He kept a temperance pledge in a store which he was managing. Many of the settlement were induced to sign it by his efforts. The store referred to was the first one in the township. By his endeavors, a movement originated, and was carried through successfully, to construct a building of hewed logs, twenty-four feet square, for the use of all religious denominations for worship, and for a public school as well. Thus this structure was at the same time the first church building and the first public school-house in the township.

The first teacher in this building, and consequently, of the first public school in Independence, was Matilda Foster. She began her work in the summer of 1835, and received for it six dollars per month, existing in the meanwhile by "boarding around." She had about twenty pupils. That winter, Ebenezer Battelle taught in the same building for ten or twelve dollars per month. The district school teacher of to-day, who justly, perhaps, feels that his thirty to fifty dollars per month is not a sufficient return for the preparation that a competent teacher must undergo, can still see considerable advance in his monthly salary over his scantily paid pioneer predecessor.

Another settler was Stillman Harvey, of Maine, who came to the settlement in the neighborhood of 1831. His wife was Lona Prescott, and his children were Stillman, John, Asa, Albion, Lona, Ann, James B., Edson Jackson, Barizillar Washington, William Morgareidge, Mary Louisa, Lucien Levant, and Franklin Clarville. He settled on the farm before occupied by Isaac Wilson, owned, however, by John Burris. Mr. Harvey lost all his property by the great freshet of 1832. With characteristic generosity John Burris gave Mr. Harvey his own time to pay for the land.

Mr. Harvey was a farmer and blacksmith, and built the first blacksmith shop in what is now the township. This was upon his first arrival, before which, the neighborhood was obliged to go to Newport village for blacksmithing. He also built, in 1836 or 1837, the first frame dwelling in the township. His views were decided. He was a very strong temperance man, and so strongly inclined to Democracy that he would not patronize, it is said, a store kept by a Republican, although at one time he had to do without his coffee on this account.

In 1845 or 1846, he traded his farm for a store-boat, went to Harmar, and kept store there for a while. He changed his residence often, at one time returning to Independence township and finally passing to his rest in Matamoras. His wife returned to Maine.

By the efforts of Mr. Harvey, David Murdock, Hezekiah Riggs, William Rea, jr., and perhaps one or two others, a post office was established at the settlement, with Mr. Harvey as the first postmaster, and the first, as well, in the township. This was called Ostend. Mr. Harvey was succeeded in this position by Mr. William Rea; the third postmaster was S. C. Riggs, who held the position throughout the administrations of Grant and Lincoln. He had the name changed from Ostend to Wade, in honor of Ohio's bluff senator. The present postmaster is John Bliss. The mail was originally carried to and from this office by a hack that ran between Marietta and Wheeling. Before the establishment of Ostend, post office, the neighborhood went to the town of Newport for their mail.

The freshet just now referred to, that occurred in 1832, did great damage to others in the settlement as well as to Mr. Harvey. All along the river, dwellings were swept away, and lives, too, were lost. In the summer of 1880, the erosion of the bank uncovered a large human skeleton that was but eighteen inches below the surface. This was about a quarter of a mile below the mouth of Leath's run, in a place built up by previous river deposits. All the circumstances indicate that this great 1832 freshet had drowned the victim.

By this time the wild animals that were so numerous in the inception of the settlement were comparatively scarce. The first game to disappear is uniformly the bear. In the year 1834 the said bear was killed in the Ohio river division of the township, George Berridge wounded it while he was hunting squirrels at the foot of the hills on Leath's run. The bear took to the river just above the mouth of the run. Bazel Riggs, who lived on the opposite shore, saw the animal and notified the boys at the house, who embarked in two boats. Two or three shots were fired; the bear attempted to board one boat, at the same time a negro occupant of the vessel, with that delicate consideration and sense of the fitness of things often displayed by the darkey race, began to climb out over the opposite gunwale. The bear was dispatched with an oar. The darkey explained his course of procedure by asserting that he considered "one niggah in de boat enough at one time."

In this year the Rinard mill having been abandoned for five or six years, the settlement was without a mill, and Isaac and Hezekiah Riggs supplied the want by the construction of one further up the run. It was a grist and saw-mill combined. The next mill in the settlement was built in about 1840 on the same stream by John Edwards, a native of England, who was born in 1794. He came to the township in 1735, from Pennsylvania. The children of himself and wife, Ann Jeffre, were John, who yet lives in Independence; Susan, who married a McMahon, a resident of Grand View; Jane, now Mrs. E. Pinning, of Grand View; Richard, of Independence; Mary Ann, now wife of P. Hutchison, of Grand View, and James, now dead. John, the eldest, was born in England in 1820. When twenty-seven years old he married Maria, a daughter of Charles and Phœbe Weber, also a native of England, where she was born in 1828. Their children were ten, seven of whom are now living. The fourth child, Richard, was born in England in 1827. He came to the township with his father, is still living in it, married Ann Weber, sister of Phœbe, in 1853, and is the father of eight children, all living. Both Richard and John are farmers. The next mill in the neighborhood was built by Henry Goodman, on Rea's run.

The old settlement of Independence has been largely replaced by a German element. It may be interesting to note that this phrase of immigration dates from about 1836, when Hans Huffman and John Kinsel came to the township together. Huffman paid Kinsel's passage over the Atlantic, and Kinsel paid the debt after his arrival by work. Huffman and wife, Catharine, had two children, Conrad and Catharine. He was a farmer and died lately. John Kinsel and wife, Catharine, were childless. He was a stonecutter and blacksmith. He died in the county infirmary in 1880, where his wife still lives. The third German family was that of Charles Berlett, a wagonmaker, who, however, removed in a few years to Sunfish, West Virginia.

In 1842 Squire D. Riggs crossed the river from Pleasant county, Virginia, where he was born in 1816. He was the ninth son and eleventh child of Bazel Riggs, whose father was an old settler in Grand View. Bazel was born in Bedford county, Pennsylvania, in 1774. When but three years old he called forth a manifestation by George Washington. Bazel and his oldest sister, Mary, were witnessing, near their Pennsylvania home, the movement of troops during the Revolution. The little child, Bazel, was bewildered and frightened by the unwonted sights and sounds, and began to cry. This attracted the attention of Washington, and he came to the little fellow, and in the kindest manner soothed and reassured the boy.

Mr. Squire D. Riggs married Nancy R. Moreland, a daughter of Rhessa and Jane Moreland, and born in 1818 in the township. The marriage, which was in 1838, resulted in twelve children: Luther P., David M., Asberry A., Mary E., William N., Theodore J., Henry M., Luther M., Benjamin F., Adaline M., Walter L., and Hattie G. Luther P., Mary, and Luther M. are dead. David M. married Loretta Flint, and is a resident of Monroe county; Asberry A. married Mary Morrell, and lives in the township; William married Mary Howell, and lives in Meigs county; Theodore married Rebecca Davis, and is a resident of Independence; Adaline M. married A. Farnsworth, and lives in Richland county; three children are still at home, and Henry lives with his brother Theodore.

The vehicles of the earlier times were crude beyond comprehension by one used to nothing but the stylish and finished affairs that glide along the modern highway. It was not until near 1843 that a four-wheeled wagon was introduced in the township. This was owned by Mr. Riggs. He also bought the first combined reaper and mower a few years ago.

The Chapman graveyard was formed about this time (1843-5) by the burial of George Chapman. By permission of this family, several other families have availed themselves of this ground as a resting place for their dead.

By this time settlement was proceeding in the western part of that division of Independence which is now under consideration. One of the representative settlers in this neighborhood was Richard Bayles, youngest child of Richard, sr., born in New York in 1816. He came to Independence in 1849, and has resided there ever since, his home being on Dana's run, a stream flowing almost due south to the Ohio river, near Newport town. He married Nancy, a daughter of Charles Haynes, and born in Noble county in 1819. This union, which was in 1837, resulted in three children: Mary M., Richard, and Westley.

The next incident, in point of time worthy of record, is a tragedy. The settlement had long stood in fear of a desperate character by the name of George McCammick, who seemed to threaten and commit violence without motive. His wife was in constant dread of him. One evening in January, 1852, he left her and her children with a threat of murder when he should return. About dusk he arrived at the home of John Cisk, an inoffensive citizen, and after threatening to kill the family, aimed a pistol at Cisk, who would doubtless have been murdered had he not possessed a courageous wife. She seized a chair and demolished it over McCammick's head. Then with another chair gave him a second blow, leaving him prostrate outside the house. Leaving her husband in care of the household, she made her way through the snow in her stocking feet to the house of a neighbor, a considerable distance away and brought back assistance. McCammick was found dead, his skull having been fractured. The homicide was considered perfectly justifiable and no account was taken of the matter by the courts.

From the time of Dr. Little, down to the war of the Rebellion, there was no physician in the township. During the war Dr. Wilson located here; next to him was Dr. Sloan, who came at the close of the war, and left a short time ago. The present practicing physician is James Taylor, who began his practice in 1881.

The landing and post office at the mouth of Rea's run, has caused the erection of a few houses at the place. One of these is a store kept by Robert W. Bedilion, who came to the place in 1864. He is the seventh child of Abraham Bedilion, and was born in Pennsylvania in 1837. In 1864 he married Mary L., daughter of Samuel Mansbarger, whose birth was in West Virginia in 1840. His eight children are: William D. J., Nancy M. R., Robert H. B., Mamie, Abbie L., Clem E., Julia L., and Sarah E. Mamie is dead. Mr. Bedilion has been justice of the peace and township treasurer.

It is remarkable, that not until this stage of the narrative the writer is able to chronicle the digging of the first well on the Ohio river bottom in the township. This was by James Louderback in 1874.

Two years after, in 1876, the exigencies of travel on the river, justified the establishment of a light station on the Independence shore. This is some three-fourths of a mile below the mouth of Rea's run.

It must not be supposed that during all these years the people of the settlement neglected their religious interests. It is almost certain that the first preaching in the community was done by Mr. Davis Smothers in the first decade of the century. He had a charge in West Virginia opposite his home, which was in Grand View. He also preached on the Ohio side from house to house. But from that time until the erection of the public church building before referred to, the dwellers in the settlement under consideration repaired to Newport for religious exercises. The building of this hewed-log church in 1835 obviated the necessity of this. It was begun in January and finished in May. Immediately three separate organizations of respectively Presbyterian, Methodist, and Baptist belief, began to use it. By an amicable arrangement they used it in rotation. This continued without difficulty or disagreement until 1855, when the Presbyterians consolidated with their brethren at Newport and ceased to use the building. In 1858 the Methodists built a meeting-house on the upper side of Rea's run. The Baptists continued in their old place of meeting until 1867, when they began to use a school-house built about that time near the church. The old public meeting-house thus deserted is now used as a barn.

The first members of the above organization of Presbyterians were John Green, David Murdock—who were also the first elders—Mary Murdock, Jane Moreland, Maria Bailey, John Green's wife, daughter and two sons; Ira Bosworth; Luther Edgerton, his wife and daughters, Ellen Cook, and William Rea. The church was organized under the leadership of Rev. Bennett Roberts. The first regular preacher was Rev. Luke Dewitt, who was employed by the Home Missionary society.

The Methodist church was organized with the following membership: Samuel Rea, class leader; Elizabeth Moreland, John Moreland, Eliza Rea, John Berridge, his wife and two daughters, Daniel Dye and wife, and others. The second class leader was Martin Rea, a brother of Samuel. The three earliest preachers were Charles Talbott, Pardon Cook, and Philip Green. At this time the church belonged to the Woodsfield circuit. They now worship in their building mentioned above, the dedication sermon of which was preached by Alexander Bell. Their present preacher is J. H. Doan. The church belongs to the Newport circuit, and the class leader is Henry Whetstone.

The Baptists started with a very small membership—the Holdrens, Prices, and McMahons, with one or two others. The first preacher in the township was the father of Jeremiah Dale—the next was Jeremiah Dale himself. He began about 1825 to preach from house to house. In 1831 he died. The minister who held the first Baptist meetings in the union church building was Allen Darrow. The church is now without a pastor, the last one being Rev. Hanlon.

The first Sabbath-school in this division of Independence was held in a little house on Rigg's landing. This building was constructed by William Rea, jr., who used it as an office whence he watched for the arrival of steamers and employed his time in shoemaking and the like work. About 1834 Elizabeth Moreland organized and conducted a Sabbath-school in this building, whence it was removed to the union church. The next superintendent was Samuel Rea.

THE LITTLE MUSKINGUM SETTLEMENT.

Next to the Ohio settlement, in point of time, is that of the northwest corner of the township, which, by virtue of its location on the Little Muskingum river, is cotemporary with the old settlement along that valley, in Ludlow and Lawrence townships. Its history more properly belongs to either of those townships, but as township lines were not run for the convenience of the historian, a sketch of the little district will be inserted here.

It is something less than four square miles in area, and contains about a mile of the course of the Little Muskingum. This stream, passing diagonally through the corner section, cuts off about a quarter of it in its northwest part. The winding creek pays a second and very short visit to the township in section thirty-five, to receive the waters of Elk run, which stream rises in the centre of section thirty.

The first families to settle here were those of Jesse Flemming and Vachel Dickerson. It is not known who made the first settlement, but the distinction probably belongs to the Flemmings.

Jesse was the son of Peter Flemming, whose wife, Nancy, was the widow of James Burris, and daughter of James Wilson. Peter Flemming was one of the earliest settlers of Ludlow township, and died in 1833. Jesse was born at the mouth of Fishing creek, in 1791. He is said to have been the first white male child born between Wheeling and Marietta. His settlement was very early, and on section thirty-six. Paralysis ended his life at Matamoras, in 1872. His wife's name was Nellie Collins, who said she was born on "the eastern shore." The children were Thomas, Joseph, Wealthy and four or five others.

Vachel Dickerson was raised in this part of the county, and was the son of Thomas Dickerson. He settled before 1818.

The early settlers of this section of so limited extent were necessarily few. The later settlers, however, cannot be treated in detail, but one or two representative families deserve mention.

In 1846 Joseph A. Duval, the third child of Marion and Mary (Chambers) Duval, came from Jefferson county, where he was born in 1823. He married, in 1845, Nancy C., daughter of Joseph Carle. Their eleven children are named respectively: Margaret E., Ephraim F., a resident of Kansas, Eva A., William B., Rebecca J., Joseph C., Maria A., Washington M., Jackson B., George E. and Mary C. Mr. Duval is a farmer, and still lives in Indiana.

The year of 1859 brought Henry Mead to the settlement. His father was named Uriah. Henry was born in Maryland in 1816. He changed his residence several times, finally coming to the township from Monroe county. In 1833 he married Orpha Dodd, of Belmont county. Eight children were born to them: Elizabeth C., Anna D., David G., Nancy A., Mary E., Joseph H., Rachel C. and Samuel H., one of whom, Elizabeth, is now dead.

In ante bellum times a post office was established here, on the Little Muskingum, and appears under the title of Lawrence. The postmaster is William Flemming.

ARCHER'S FORK SETTLEMENT.

The third and last division of the township is that drained by Archer's fork, an area of between twelve and thirteen square miles. The region lies between the two ridges, elsewhere described, and furnishes to Archer several runs, named usually from some owner of the land through which they run. One stream, a short run, entering from the right near the centre of this district, is named Coal run, from the attempts formerly made to mine that article from the hills that line its valley. It may be remarked here, that the coal of Independence township is not in thick enough seams to warrant profitable mining.

Archer's fork is named from an early settler or squatter, about whose settlement there is a difference of opinion. One story places Mr. Archer at the mouth of this stream, another relates that he was the first settler, or rather the first squatter in the division of the township now under consideration. According to tradition Archer eloped with another man's wife, came to this secluded region, chose his home about three hundred yards below the mouth of Cady's run, on the banks of the main stream, and there lived romantically with his companion in a hollow sycamore tree, with no gossiping neighbors to molest or make them afraid. Whether the pair tired of their solitude or wished to find some spot more likely to remain unpeopled by others is not known, but before the first permanent settler came into this valley, the couple had taken their departure.

The upper course of Archer's fork was settled first. The first permanent settler was James Cady, who came from the Ohio river January 8, 1818, to this valley, and settled on Archer, about a quarter of a mile below the mouth of Cady's run. He moved into a house built by Alexander Walker, a settler of Grand View, who had been on Archer the year previous, and lived in it from spring to fall. Mr. Cady was in this house until spring, then he moved into a building of his own erection.

James Cady was born in Vermont, near the year 1779, and died about 1865, aged eighty-six years. He was a soldier in the War of 1812, his business being that of a teamster. His wife was Elizabeth Chandler, who was born about 1783, and died about 1860. The children were: Charles C., Ira, Abijah, James, and Eliza. Only Ira and James survive. The latter moved to Indiana in 1861. Ira, who was born in 1810, married Veronica Sipple in 1849, and settled on Cady's run, a stream flowing west to the centre of the region under discussion. The children are: Norman S., George, Ira H., and Margaret Ellen, all living in the neighborhood.

The second family in the settlement was that of Benjamin Burris, who came from Grand View in the spring of 1818. His wife was Susan Riggs, and they had no children when they came, but during their residence on Archer's fork, eleven children were born to them, viz: Mary, Johnson, Basil, Jackson, Lemuel, Benson, Elizabeth, Harriet and Lavina (twins), Volney, and Adaline. Two other children were born in Texas, whither the family moved in 1839. About the year 1828 Mr. Burris built the first mill in the settlement, a saw-mill, situated just below the mouth of Coal run. After the freshet of 1832 he added to it the machinery of a grist-mill. Burris was a lumberman, running his lumber down the Little Muskingum, also from his own mill down Archer. The usual destination of the lumber was Cincinnati. He was also a stock raiser and trader. He made a trip or two to New Orleans in the latter business. He was one of the three that built the Templeton mill below the mouth of Archer's fork. He was a Free Mason. His oldest child, Mary, was born in 1818, and was the first person born in the settlement.

A considerable time having elapsed, the next arrival was that of Mr. Burris' paternal grandmother and her daughter, Nancy. They settled in a cabin probably built by the resident grandson, across the stream from the historic Archer sycamore. At that time the elder of the two was the widow of Peter Flemming, mentioned before as the parent of Jesse Flemming, the pioneer on the Little Muskingum. After two or three years the pair moved over to the Little Muskingum, where Mr. Flemming died. Nancy lived a while in Ludlow, and is now an inmate of the infirmary.

Following these was Jeremiah Treadway, who settled down Archer, near where the township line is, in 1824. His wife's maiden name was Hopp. They moved away in five or six years.

The next settlement was probably that of Samuel Parr, who came from Virginia to the Little Muskingum, in Ludlow township, and then arrived at Archer in 1828. His mother, then a widow of Obseliah Peyton, accompanied him, also two half brothers and a half sister. He made his home about a half mile above the mouth of Cady's run. While in Ludlow, having become acquainted with Eliza, the daughter of James Cady, he married her, and thus she became the first bride in the settlement. Their marriage took place in 1825, Squire Felix Hanlon officiating.

About this time Solomon Tice moved into the neighborhood, and located at the mouth of Road run, a stream entering Archer's fork in section eleven, on the farm now owned by R. O. Hanlon. Solomon and his wife had eleven children: David, Catharine, Susan, John, Mary, Solomon, Lavina, Louis, Amaziah, George, and Cynthia. In this decade the first school on Archer's fork was opened. It was a summer school, maintained by subscription, and taught in 1829. The teacher was Miss Anna Aplin, and the school-room was an up-stairs room in the hewed log house of Benjamin Burris. There were nine pupils: Diana Cady, James Cady, Mary Burris, Johnson Burris, Bazel Burris, Lemuel Burris, Jackson Burris, Adaline Riggs, and Nancy Burns. The latter lived with John Burris in Grand View, on the Ohio river, but, there being no school in that neighborhood, she was sent to this settlement.

In 1834 or 1835 another subscription school was taught in the neighborhood by Elizabeth Moreland.

Near the year 1830, began the oldest cemetery in this district—the private one of the Cady family, although others also now use the ground. The occasion of its formation was the death of an infant child of Mr. Cady. The burial of the baby was the first in the cemetery. It is situated on land owned by Messrs. Hill and Schrader, and contains the graves of Zebulon Chandler, who came to the neighborhood about 1825, from Pennsylvania; James Cady and his venerable wife, David Cline and Sarah Cline.

The next oldest burying-ground is on the farm of Moses Decker. The first burial was that of a little daughter of Levi Decker, in 1830. Buried here are members of the Decker family, Joseph Luddington, who was killed by the fall of a tree, James Monroe Smith, and others. This, too, is a private yard. The settlement contains no public cemetery.

The next mill after the Burris mill, was built about 1833, by the Deckers—Abraham, Moses, and Levi. This was a saw-mill, and the furniture that the Decker brothers manufactured is described as very fine work. Specimens of their handiwork—tables, cupboards, and the like—generally made from wild cherry, still exist in the houses of some of the old residents.

The wave of German immigration that has so largely covered the township, reached Archer's fork about 1835. The first families were those of Goodballet, Sipple, and Yost. By this time settlers came in too rapidly to fully mention. About 1845 one of those moving in was Daniel Stewart, a native of Pennsylvania, who came to Monroe county, Ohio, in the first place, and removed thence to Independence. In 1857, or near that time, he returned to Monroe county and there died. He was the father of nine children—two boys and seven girls: John H., the oldest son, was born in Monroe county June 25, 1822; came to the township in 1853; has lived here since. He married Mahala, daughter of James Elson, who was born in 1827. This marriage was in 1843, and resulted in thirteen children: James P., Hiram, Whitten, Stanton E., Landora, Harriet I., William W., Louisa, Mary L., Bishop M., Eliza J., John E., and T. L. All are living but James P. and Louisa.

Andrew McMaster became a member of the community in 1848. He came from Belmont county, where he was born in 1818. In 1841 he married Lavina, daughter of Zebulon Day, and born April 28, 1823. Mr. McMaster has been justice of the peace and notary public for several years.

Those acquainted with the township have noticed on the boundary ridge, between the Ohio slope and the valley, a small Scotch settlement. This originated with the advent of David Deuchers, a son of James Deuchers. David was born in Perthshire, Scotland, in 1820. He came from West Virginia to Independence and settled where he now lives, in 1852. He married Isabel, a daughter of Daniel Murray, and a native of Scotland, where she first saw the light in 1827. The wedding was in 1846, and the children born to them number eleven: James, Isabel, Virginia, David, Daniel, George, Catharine, Sarah, Alexander, Elizabeth and Maggie. All are living but Catharine and David. James married Martha Griffin. Isabel became Mrs. Timothy Bliss. Daniel wedded Eliza Bliss, and George became the husband of Margaret A. Sprague, all residents of Independence. David Deuchers is a blacksmith, and has been honored with the position of township trustee. James, the first born, keeps a store opposite his father's house that does a flourishing trade. The year of his marriage is 1873, and his children are David, Burton E., and Mary E.

Another and later settler in the settlement is James Taylor, the fourth child of Mungo Taylor, and born in Perth county, Scotland, June, 1814. His settlement in Independence dates from the year 1856. In 1839 he married Margaret Deuchers. His children number eight, as follows: Mungo, Isabel, Catharine, John, James, William, David, and a child deceased. Mr. Taylor has been township trustee, and is a farmer.

In the following year (1857), William O. Riley came to the settlement. He was the fifth child of Dennis O. and Mary. His birth was in Belmont county, in 1826, whence he moved to Independence. His wife, Elizabeth, is the daughter of Abraham Ramsey, was born 1839; married in 1856, and is the mother of fourteen children; eight boys and six girls.

Near the residence of Mr. Deuchers is a church and cemetery. The latter began in April, 1864, when a child of Mr. Beaver died. This was the first burial in the yard.

About this time the first brick house in the township was erected—the building of Ernest Waernicke, a wealthy and enterprising citizen of the community.

The next enterprise in the vicinity that is worthy of remark was that of Nicholas Schar, who, about the year 1868, came from Monroe county with his family, settled in section eleven, and started a cheese factory. The enterprise lasted some three or four years, when, the business failing to prove remunerative, he abandoned it.

Until within three or four years the dwellers on Archer's fork were without a post office in their midst. At that time, however, one was established, close to the town-house, with Augustus Hill as postmaster. The mail is carried overland, there being no other way at present to get there.

The history of the churches in this neighborhood begins with that of the Methodist organization. Sometime before 1843 the Methodist meetings, held as circumstances permitted, resulted in an organization of that denomination, comprising as members Abraham Decker and his wife, Jacob Shockey and wife, William Chapman and wife, and others. The meetings from house to house continued until 1847, when a log meeting-house was built on a half-acre deeded for the purpose by David Cline. Then in a few years the organization went down.

But a United Brethren minister by the name of Cecil came shortly before 1851, and organized a church of that denomination in the building. The membership embraced several of the old members of the Methodist organization. The new church lasted but two or three years.

For nearly a score of years the old structure was without regular services. Occasionally meetings would be held in it, oftenest by Alexander Bell. In 1869 the Christian Union church began to use it, and continued to do so until the building of their own meeting-house in 1874. The old log building is now used by the Methodists again, they having taken possession in March, 1879. The church belongs to the Newport circuit, and the minister at present is Rev. J. H. Doan.

By the year 1847 or 1848, the German element in the vicinity had become strong enough to establish the German Lutheran church. The first members of this were Adam Yost, Martin Sippel, Henry Goodballet, Christian Hanselman, John Kinsel, John Wagner, William Saelick, and their wives, also Mrs. Huffman, then a widow, and others. A church building was erected on land given by Messrs. Yost and Holstein. The first preacher was the Rev. Bairnes. The present minister (1880) is Rev. Wintrin.

A series of meetings under the auspices of the Christian, or Disciple, denomination began to be held in the neighborhood about the year 1853. The leader of these meetings was John Henderson, of West Virginia, who may be called the founder of the church that resulted. About the year 1870, at a meeting in the Eddy school-house, not far from the head of Coal run, an organization was effected, embracing in its membership Henry and Alfred Eddy, Simeon Bennett, Levi Thomas, Timothy and Stephen Ward, Savannas More, and their wives. For a period of about three years the church met in the school-house and other places. Then, near the year 1873, during the ministry of John Henderson, a meeting-house was erected on the ridge at the head of Coal run. Alfred Eddy bought and presented the ground on which it stands. Since that time the ministers who have served the congregation are John Moody, Joseph Thomas, Ezra Barker, and John Henderson, who is now pastor. The church has thirty-seven members, and is known by the name of Mount Hope.

Among many institutions that refer their origin to the great Rebellion is the Christian Union church. During the latter part of this war, Rev. C. F. Given, a graduate of Marietta college, a Methodist preacher, and a Democrat, claiming that his Methodist brethren treated him unfairly on account of his politics, issued a call for the organization of a new church with the avowed object of excluding politics from its doctrine, discussions, and practice. Several churches were organized in obedience to this call, under the name of the Christian Union church. A minister by the name of Daniel Keller, from the interior of the State, came to the neighborhood and held meetings under the auspices of this new denomination at "Duval's Knoll, called Point Pleasant." Afterwards, William Weddele came and organized the church in Independence. Within the first year, about sixty members joined. This church held meetings on Archer's fork, some distance below Point Pleasant, but residents of that place were among the organizers of the church. Afterwards they organized a separate branch in their own neighborhood.

The building of this first church has already been referred to as erected in 1874. The land on which it stands is owned by Thomas Cline, who has given a lease to the church, permitting it to use the land as long as it chooses for church purposes. At present this branch has no pastor.

The Point Pleasant church, just mentioned, was organized about two years after the above body. The first minister was Mr. Weddele; the second, John Camden; and the third and present one, Thomas Cline. The meetings were held in a school-house until within three years of the present. Then a church building was erected and dedicated a year or two afterward.

The Little Valley church, another one of this denomination, was organized in the spring of 1872. Then the meetings were held in the so called "Hanlon school-house." Before organization meetings were held in Grand View, in the Delong school-house. In 1873 a meeting-house was built on land furnished by George Tice. The church now worships in this.

In the midst of the little Scotch settlement before referred to, is a small Baptist church building. The society organized in 1864, under the auspices of L. K. Adkins, of Newport. It was originally named Davis Run chapel—the meetings being at first held near the upper course of that stream. The building used for that purpose was a log school-house. Afterwards the present church building was erected, and is now familiarly known as "Deuchers chapel." This structure dates from 1871. Although at first called the Davis Run church, it was re-organized in 1870 by the efforts of David Deuchers, Isaac Atkins, A. C. Yonally, and the Rev. Rush. But it was not disconnected from the Newport church, of which it was a part from the first, until March 15, 1879. At that time, a request was presented and granted for the separation and independent existence of the Regular Baptist church, of Independence. The following persons signed the petition and may hence be considered the charter members of the church: Margaret A. Sloan, Loretta Yonally, D. Deuchers, Sarah M. Deuchers, Isabel Deuchers, George Deuchers, Virginia A. Deuchers, Isabel Bliss, Asa Yonally, Mary L. Yonally, Samantha Sloan, William Todd, Julia A. Todd, Sarah E. Yonally F. C. Richardson, and S. T. Echols. The ministers were Revs. Messrs. Rush, Hiram Gear, Dunn, and Luther Hanlon.

The territory which was the scene of all that precedes was originally a part of Newport township. In March, 1840, the two eastern tiers of sections in the township were attached to Grand View. When Independence was established the sections numbered five, six, eleven and twelve were still allowed to remain with Grand View. In the commissioner's journal, under the date June 3, 1840, appears the establishing act, which may not be inaptly styled the declaration of Independence. It reads as follows:

On the petition of sundry inhabitants of the township of Newport, praying to be set off into a new township separately and apart from said Newport, on consideration of said petition, the commissioners do hereby agree to constitute a new township in the county of Washington, to be known and designated as the township of Independence, and to be constituted of the following territory, to-wit: Sections No. 2, 3, 4, 8, 9, 10, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, and fractional sections Nos. 1, 7, and 13.

The early records of Independence township are missing from the clerk's office. Fortunately, however, something is remembered of the first election, which was for township officers. It was held in the cabin built by Benjamin Burris, after he came to Archer's fork. At that time it was occupied by John Goodman. It is thought that William Rea, jr., was the clerk of the election. The ballot "box" was a teakettle. The first justice of the peace was Stillman Harvey. Before his term expired, another justice was created by the election of James S. Cady. The latter was the first treasurer of the township, and remained in that office for many years.

For the past decade, the officers have been as follows: Trustees, 1870, Ruben Cline, Samuel Farnsworth, John Hoppel; 1871, George Brown, James Braden, John Hoppel; 1872, George Brown, William Sipple, Ira Cady; 1873, George Brown, John Hoppel, David G. Mead; 1874, David Mead, John Hoppel, James Braden; 1875-6, John Hoppel, Ira Cady, David G. Mead; 1877, John Hoppel, David G. Mead, George Brown; 1878-9, George Brown, John Hollstein, Samuel Miller; 1880, Walter Brown, John Hollstein, J. H. Bohlen. Clerks: 1870, J. W. Richardson; 1871, 2, 3, 4, and 5, Abner Powell; 1876, 7, 8, and 9, J. W. Richardson; 1880, J. M. Twinem. Treasurers: 1871-2, Ernest Waernicke; 1873 and 4, R. W. Bedillion; 1875, Charles Schrader; 1876, George Brown; 1877, 8, 9, and 1880, Charles Schrader. Assessor: 1871-80, Malachi Scott.

In 1880 the minority judge of elections was Henry Whetstone, and the constables were, L. H. Wells and W. B. Duval. The township has now eight ward districts and eight school districts. One of the latter is an independent district, and out of the control of the township board of education.

After the organization of the township, a log building was constructed as a town house. This has since been torn down, and about 1864 the present one was built.

The population of Independence in 1840, was three hundred and thirty-five; in 1860, one thousand five hundred and seven; in 1870, one thousand three hundred and ninety-five; in 1880, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight.

CHAPTER LIII.

LUDLOW TOWNSHIP.

Birth of the Township—Changes in Territory—Records—Early Elections—A Poor Place for Whigs—Population—The Little Muskingum and Its Tributaries—Scenery—The Earliest Settlement—The "Oldest Inhabitant"—A Governor Without a Subject—Silver Mining—Salt Boring—A Long-lived Family—A Grave Perplexity—First Birth—Early Agricultural Wants and Contrivances—Bark Harness—First Blacksmith Shop—First Road—A House Founded Under a Rock—David Cline and His Town—Abner Martin, the Pioneer Preacher—The Methodists—The Disciples—The Catholics—Solomon's Temple and the Baptists—Schools—Physicians—Mills—Bloomfield—Scott-town.

THIS township derives its name indirectly from a surveyor of that name, who ran the north boundary of the donation land called the Ludlow line. On July 17, 1819, the county fathers established the township and named it after the line that now bounds it on the north. At that time, however, the township extended two miles north of this line. The establishing act, as found in the commissioners' journal, is as follows:

July 17, 1819.

On the petition of Joseph Dickerson, John Davis, and Kinzer D. Joly and others, inhabitants of the third township in the sixth range.

The board of commissioners of Washington county establish the third township in the sixth range, together with section No. 36 of township two, in said sixth range, into a new and independent township and election district, to be hereafter known and distinguished by the name and denomination of Ludlow. And order that the qualified electors of said district meet at the house of Daniel Hearn, in said town, on the fourth Monday of August next, at 10 o'clock A. M., to elect their township officers agreeably to law.

In 1851 all above the Ludlow line became a part of Monroe county. In 1840 the establishment of Independence declared the "section No. 36 in township two" a part of that township. These are the only two changes that Ludlow has suffered territorially since its establishment. It now contains twenty-two and a half square miles, and is bounded north by Monroe county, east by Grand View, south by Grand View and Independence, and West by Liberty.

As is, unfortunately, often the case, the township records for the earlier political history of Ludlow are wanting. They were destroyed by fire. Consequently, dependence must be placed in the uncertain memory of man for what few early township officers he may chance to recall. The earlier elections were held principally at the house of Christopher Dickson, sr. This continued for a great many years. Afterwards a school-house was used for the purpose, then a log town house was built about 1840, at Bloomfield. This was replaced two or three years ago by a frame township house, in which elections are now held.

The early justices of the peace that are remembered are Joseph Dickerson, who was probably the first; Charles McIntyre, David McIntyre, and, later, Daniel Flint.

By the year 1840 there were about sixty voters in the township, but this number was of small benefit to the Whig party. A list of those who through these years stuck to the Whigs would begin and end with the names Samuel Kean, Solomon Hearn, Porter Flint, and George Adams, who says he was at one time the only Whig in the township.

The township officers for the year 1880-81 are: Elijah Haight, James Drum and Jonathan Cline, trustees; E. G. Smith, clerk; A. J. Watson, treasurer; Christopher Dickson, assessor; William Hendershot and Samuel Boston, constables; Isaac Tucker and John Hall, justices of the peace.

The population of Ludlow in 1840 was five hundred and thirty-nine; in 1860, one thousand and forty-three; in 1870, one thousand and eighty-two; and in 1880, one thousand three hundred and seventy-four.

TOPOGRAPHY.

The principal stream of the township is the Little Muskingum river, which, with very crooked course, bisects the township from northeast to southwest, so that the two halves dovetail together in much the same way as the different pieces of a child's puzzle block. The runs that enter the river from the left flow from a water-shed in the southeast part of township, and take, in general, a direction north of west. The principal of these creeks are, beginning up the river, Edwards' run, Wilson's run, Cedar run, Pice run and Hendershot run. Wilson's run is named from an old hunter by the name of Israel Wilson, who made its valley his favorite hunting ground. The derivation of the name of Cedar run is evident. The others are named from the owners of farms near their mouths.

The tributaries entering the Little Muskingum from the right flow almost due south from a water-shed in Monroe county. Those named are, proceeding down the river, Long eddy, Sackett's run and Winget's run. The first was named from the eddy formed at its mouth by its current and the conformation of the banks of the Little Muskingum at that point. Sackett's run was the resort of a hunter by that name, and Jacob Winget was the first settler on the stream by that name.

The township, like the others in its vicinity, is quite hilly. Many of these hills, however, are covered with the red soil that yields so well, and, if carefully tilled, affords good crops. The seams of coal are the same as in Liberty and Salem townships, but not so thick or extensive.

The Little Muskingum valley is famed for its beauty. Almost any of the hills that overlook this stream afford fine prospects. This may be particularly remarked of the ridge at one of the southern bends of the river, about a mile above the mouth of Pice's run. Through the trees on this ridge, whose limbs form a rustic frame for the scene, near two miles of the course of the river can be descried as it swings far to the south, laps the foot of the ridge under the spectator's feet, and bears off to the west. In the elbow thus formed lies the "made land of many an acre of the proverbial breadth"—the child of the river and the northern hills. By almost insensible gradations, the level merges to the rolling, and finally to the hill land back of it. Far back the dividing ridge, and to the right and left the ridge that turns the stream from sight bound the view. When the leaf and grain have painted this prospect in green and gold, it must be a sight for an artist. Unfortunately for the description, however, the writer was forced to be content with a winter view, when the snow was gone. A rain was falling, alike dampening to soil, clothes and appreciation of the beautiful, and in this case the bleak prospect proved the untruth of the adage that "beauty unadorned's adorned the most."

SETTLEMENT.

As is everywhere the case, the first settlements were along the streams, usually in the order of the size of these streams. All the early settlements in Ludlow were along the Little Muskingum, and generally, at the mouths of its tributaries. The oldest in Ludlow is the Tice run. The first ones to make a home here, and, consequently, the pioneers of the township, was the family of Solomon Tice.

Solomon Tice, sr., was known as "Governor" Tice. He was a blacksmith, farmer, and hunter, and came from New York city. He settled in Ludlow in 1797, on the east side of the Little Muskingum, about two miles below Bloomfield, where he died about 1838, at the age of ninety-three.

At one time he was in Virginia, and while there, received one vote for governor of that State. This gave him the cognomen of governor which stuck to him until the day of his death. He was a man of remarkable energy, which did not desert him even in his old age. One of his ruling passions was the desire to amass wealth suddenly. In 1833 he dug for silver on "Silver Mine run" known afterwards as Campbell's run, in the upper part of the township. He found shining metal which he took to be silver, probably thinking that the saying "All that glitters is not gold," did not apply to silver. He took a half bushel of it to Wheeling as a test, and there learned his mistake. This was not his only attempt. The hills of Independence and other places were the scene of his prospecting expeditions. In 1825 he bored for salt on Fifteen Mile creek opposite the mouth of Mill fork, penetrating the earth three hundred feet. Petroleum, of whose value he was then ignorant, calling it the "Devil's grease," stopped his enterprise. Throughout his long life, he boasted he never attended church. His family was remarkable for longevity. He had seventy grandchildren, eighteen great-grandchildren, and a few great-great-grandchildren before he died. He was noted for his wit and sociability. He related as his own experience the well known story of the capture of seven Indians by knocking the wedge from a partially split log, which they had been induced to try to pull apart.

His parents were Martin and Mary; his wife was Mary Collier. He had six sons and two daughters. Martin died young. James was born in 1775, and owned six hundred acres of land. His mania was the acquisition of land. He owned a saw-mill on the Little Muskingum above the mouth of Hendershot's run. He died on the way to Oregon in 1851. His wife was Sarah Strimback.

The first death in his family was that of a daughter. The longevity of the Tices has been remarked. James and family had not been in the habit of attending funerals. They therefore were at a loss to know the customary way in which funerals were conducted, and had to seek their neighbors to learn how. John, another son of Solomon, was born in 1780, and settled near his father in Ludlow. His two wives were sisters: Catharine and Christina Cline. Another son, Solomon, jr., was born in 1782, and settled on Archer's fork in Independence. He married another of the Cline sisters, Rosanna. The next son, Jacob, shot himself at a sugar camp in trying to kindle a fire with a loaded gun. Mary died in infancy. David settled in Virginia, from whence he went to Missouri in 1850. Sarah was born in 1798, and is the only one still living. She is the wife of Jacob Newlin, who was a soldier of the War of 1812. Sarah was probably the first white child born in Ludlow township.

The next to settle was the family of Abraham Devees. They came in about the decade of this century, probably near the year 1808. Mr. Devees had five children named William, Sarah, Archibald, Abraham, and Nellie. They settled near the mouth of Tice's run.

Following the family of Mr. Devees, was Daniel Hearn, a native of England. His migration to this county, however, was from Sussex county, Delaware. About the year 1807 he came with his family down the Ohio river, the freezing of which compelled him to stop where is now Matamoras. He leased a farm of, perhaps, eighty acres near that place, and remained there about four years. Then he changed his quarters to Ludlow, moving over by the aid of Solomon Tice, jr., who brought over the household goods on a sled. At that time Mr. Hearn's family consisted of his wife, who was Betsy Wilson before marriage, and five children named Hiram, Josiah, Solomon, Mary, and Daniel, jr. This number was subsequently increased to thirteen by the birth of Henry, Elizabeth, Nancy, Narcissa, Louisa, Perry, Luther, and Nehemiah.

Mr. Hearn settled in the same section of land with his neighbors Devees and Tice, section twenty. He, also, chose his home on the banks of the creek. Solomon Hearn was celebrated for his fondness for litigation. He practiced law himself to a limited extent. He also did something in the way of loaning money. Nehemiah married Elizabeth, daughter of John Medley. Nancy married James Bowie. Daniel, jr., was born in 1810 and was therefore a year old when he came to the township. He married Margaret Elder in 1840. Mrs. Daniel Hearn was born in 1818. Their surviving children are three boys and one girl.

The next two families to arrive were those of John Elder and Christopher Dickson. Elder probably came first. His arrival was in the neighborhood of 1812. He was accompanied by his two sons, James and John, from Ireland, although his son, John, never came to Ludlow. James married Sarah Rinard and was blessed with twelve children, one of whom, Margaret, has been referred to as the wife of Daniel Hearn. James Elder was a farmer, miller, distiller, and, in fact, worked at almost anything. John and James Elder settled on opposite sides of the creek on the farm now owned by Luther Rinard.

Christopher Dickson, sr., came in 1813 or 1814, and settled on the hill above Bloomfield, with his wife, who was Fanny Lewis, and children: Christopher, Jane, Elizabeth, Susan, and Mary. Afterwards Sarah, Jemima, Lavina, Nancy, Cythia, Alexander, and Jacob were born. All are now dead but Jacob, Christopher, jr., Susan and Cynthia. Jacob lives on the right side of the Little Muskingum, a short distance above Bloomfield. Cynthia is the widow of John Thomas, and lives farther down the stream. Susan is the widow of Truman Payne and lives near by. Christopher, who was born in 1808, lives just above Bloomfield. In 1834 he married Ann Elizabeth Snyder, who was born in 1815 and died in 1878. The children are Amanda, Albert, Lavina, Cynthia, Lewis, Margaret E., Abner, Clarissa, and Selena. Lewis, Cynthia, Albert, and Lavina are dead. Amanda became Mrs. John Woods and lives in Pennsylvania. Margaret married R. L. White and lives in Indiana. Abner married Mary E. Kirkpatrick. Christopher Dickson, jr., has been honored with many offices in the gift of his township. His father died about thirty years ago aged not far from eighty years; he lies in the Bloomfield cemetery.

The makeshifts and contrivances resorted to by these early settlers in the absence of harness-makers, blacksmiths, and the like, are difficult of comprehension by one who did not live at that time. Thus, in the toilsome task of loosening the soil on the hill-sides, the farmers would harness their horses to their rude plows with bark stripped from bushes and saplings. The settlers were obliged to get their blacksmithing done outside the township until the arrival of Stephen Parr, who opened the first blacksmith shop a little below where Scot Town now is.

The difficulties of travel were greatly ameliorated by the building of the first road in the township. It was the Woodsfield and Marietta road, and ran along the Little Muskingum. A branch was afterwards built up Winget's run. The distances were marked by means of mile-trees.

Mention must also be made of the old settler, Jacob Winget, who named the stream just referred to and settled at a very early date at its mouth.

David Edwards settled in Ludlow in 1819, and resided there until his death in 1848. He was born in Maryland in 1792, and in 1817 was married to Rachel Riggs, a native of West Virginia, born in 1795. She died in 1863. Mr. Edwards was a soldier in the War of 1812. He was the father of eight children, seven of whom survive and reside as follows: Mrs. Mary Scott, in Washington Territory; Mrs. Priscilla Griffiths, in Brooklyn, New York; James, in Belpre, this county; Charles, in West Virginia; William A. W., in Missouri; B. W. in Ludlow, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hooper, in West Virginia; Harriet is deceased; Baswell W., born in 1833, married in 1856 to Arminta Hooper, born in 1838, and has ten children: Nancy J., wife of S. Cline; Rachel E., wife of L. Moore; Benson B., Priscilla L., Mary B., Minerva J., Margaret A., Rebecca, Amanda E., and Sarah L.

Another very early settler was Patrick O'Hanlon. He was born in Ireland, whence he came with his parents. His children were: Margaret Ellen, John, Phelix (sic) James, Mary, and Richard. Ellen married Jacob Kinsler, a laborer, who was the first settler on Dana's run. At first their dwelling was under a rock. He removed down the river where he died. Phelix became the husband of Mary Musser, who lived in Ludlow township; James married Sarah Tice and lived in Ludlow; Mary became Mrs. George Musser, of Ludlow.

John Rinard, born in Pennsylvania in 1801, came to Washington county with his parents, Isaac and Mary Rinard. In 1824 he married Nancy Ray, who was born in 1802. They reared a family of twelve children, ten of whom survive, as follows: Isaac, John W., and Luther, who reside in Ludlow; Samuel, Mrs. A. Smith, David, Nelson, and Theodore, who reside in Iowa; Mrs. J. Pool, in Grand View township, and Mrs. H. Monteith, in West Virginia. Luther, one of the leading farmers of this township, was born in 1834 in Grand View township. In 1865 he married Charlotte Martin, who died in 1879, at the age of forty years. He has had seven children, six of whom are living, namely: Matilda and Delilah A. (twins), Delilah (deceased), David A., John, Hannah, Charlotte B., and Ida Dell.

David Cline came to Ludlow about 1840, and lived a few years at the mouth of Sackett's run. Then he moved about a mile below, back on the high ground. He laid out a village, which he called Clinesville, on the corner of a road just surveyed, hoping that this road would build the town. He left in a few years for Archer's fork, in Independence township.

Porter Flint was a millwright and farmer. He built Flint's mills before 1832 on the Little Muskingum, at what is now Bloomfield. His wife was a Miss Bell, of Newport township. He was drowned in 1859 while running a raft.

Daniel Flint, his brother, kept the first store in the township. It was opposite Flint's mills, and subsequently kept by Holland. He afterwards moved out of the State.

Joseph Reese, a native of Loudoun county, Virginia, born in 1798, removed to Washington county in 1840, and settled in Ludlow township. He remained here until 1862, when he moved to Germantown, Liberty township, and died the following year. His wife, Maria, born in 1796, survived him some ten years. He had twelve children, three of whom are living. David, merchant and postmaster at Dalzell, was born in Jefferson county, Ohio, in 1835, and removed to this county with his parents in 1840. He was married, in 1859, to Malinda Scott, who was born in Ludlow in 1840. They have seven children—Howard B., Jewett A., Laura L., James R., Albert O., John C., Melvin F., living, and Charles S., deceased. Mr. Reese served in the war of the Rebellion, from September 14, 1861, to July 27, 1865, being a member of company G, Thirty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry. He had also four brothers in the service, viz: Joseph, Oliver, Jonathan, and Thomas. He was appointed postmaster at Dalzell in 1874, and continues in that position.

William Fox, born in County Tyrone, Ireland, emigrated to this country with his family in 1841 and settled in this township. He settled in a sugar-camp and entered the first land in section one and seven. In the winter of 1842 a catamount was killed in the spring-house. At that time the milling was all done by horsepower at E. Reed's. Mr. Fox and wife, and son James, were the first Catholic citizens of the county outside of Marietta. The locality in which they settled was called the Fox settlement. Mr. Fox died in 1857. His wife, whose maiden name was Jane Maginnis, died in 1876, aged about eighty-four. They had five children. Patrick, James, and Mrs. Sarah McCormick reside in Ludlow; Mrs. Mary McKinney in Grand View, and the family of William, who is deceased, live in Iowa. James was born in Ireland in 1819. He married, in 1847, Margaret McKinney, who was born in 1824. They have had ten children living, as follows: Thomas, John, Sarah, William, Jane, Mary, Maggie, James, Anna, John, Catharine, and Bell. The first two are dead. Mr. Fox served about nine months in company D, Fifty-first Ohio volunteer infantry in the war of 1861-5.

Samuel L. Day came to Washington county and settled in Ludlow in 1849. He was born in 1820, and died in 1854. He married, in 1844, Drazilla Johnston, who was born in 1825. There were born to them nine children, of whom three only are now living, viz: William A., Rachel E. (Mrs. Scott), and Lavinia (Mrs. Ridgway). The last two reside in Kansas. William A. was born in 1845; married, in 1867, Joana Hendershot, and has four children—Samuel L., Clara B., and George and Minnie, twins. He was a member of company G, Seventy-seventh Ohio volunteer infantry, and served from the fall of 1861 to the spring of 1865. He was postmaster of Winget Run office for two years.

In 1853 Robert Giffin came to Ludlow, from Belmont county, Ohio, in company with his mother. Though born in 1798, the aged lady is still living with him. Robert Giffin was born in 1829. In 1858, he married one of the same surname—Miss Mary Giffin, who was born in 1833. Their children are: Emeline Asa, Anna M., Eunice M., Huldah J., and Reginald R. Huldah is dead.

One of the later settlers to the township is A. J. Watson, who came in 1878 and began keeping a store at Bloomfield. He was born October 30, 1855; his parents are James and Maria Watson, the former a native of Scotland. In 1880 he married Anna K. Poole. Although so short a time in the neighborhood, he has been already selected to fill township offices, that of clerk and treasurer.

CHURCHES.

The "advance guard of civilization," which came on foot armed with axe and rifle, would, in the early settlement of the country, be followed in no long time by the pioneers of mind and soul—the itinerant preacher on horseback, equipped with Bible and calling the hunters and farmers together as he passed, to worship God. By 1824, one of these preachers, Abner Martin by name, addressed meetings at different houses in the neighborhood often, for one, at the house of Christopher Dickson. These meetings soon bore fruit in the organization of the first church in the township. This was of the Methodist denomination. Before 1848, it became strong enough to build a meeting-house at Bloomfield. This lasted about twenty-five years, and was finally torn down. The organization has long since ceased to exist.

The next church was of the Christian denomination, otherwise and more properly called the Disciple church. This was near 1850. The original members, so far as learned, were: Ezra McMullins, Joseph Rees, Richard Scott, Samuel Thomas, Isaac Thomas, Levi McMullin, and their wives. The first minister was Richard Ather-ton. Following him were Isaac Thomas, Rev. Ashley, and David Hendershot. In about ten years after their organization, the members built a place of worship on Winget's run in section thirty-four, where they now hold meetings.

In the southeastern part of the township are many Irish, mostly of Catholic proclivities, making the field a favorable one for the planting of a Catholic church. This was accordingly done by Father Brumer, not far from 1860. At the same time a log church building was erected, principally through the agency of Messrs. Fox, Patrick Cawley, Charles Cawley, and James McCormick. The land on which it stands was donated for the purpose by Charles Cawley. The present officiating priest is Father Newmonger.

On April 29, 1866, Rev. John S. Covert preached in a school-house called "Solomon's temple." About twenty people only, attended the morning service, but in the afternoon the house would not hold the people. In May, 1866, a Sabbath-school was organized with Thomas Reynolds as superintendent. This school furnished itself a library and all the necessary accessories to its successful work.

The religious work thus inaugurated was continued by Elder Covert, who preached in May, July and August of that year. He was granted an involuntary vacation in June by the prevalence of floods, preventing his access to the place. Thus at different intervals, the work was kept alive until February, 1867. At that time the great flood of religious interest in Lawrence township to the south, arose and lapped the sides of the southern hills of Ludlow. Large meetings were held in the little school-house and five persons were baptized by Elder Seckman.

On the last day of March, 1837, a council was called of delegates from the churches at Brownsville, Graysville, Matamoras, Unity, Woodsfield, Liberty, Rood Fork, and Lawrence. The elders were present and the organization of the Baptist church of Ludlow was effected. The first members were: Mary Thomas, Isaac R. Rinard, Luther Rinard, Alfred Graham, Eunice Graham, Martha Thomas, and Eliza Swallow, all of whom yet live in the neighborhood. G. W. Harvey and Mary E. Harvey, who are now dead; and Ellen Hendershot,—Reynolds, Sarah Powell, Sarah Baker, James Pratt, Mary J. Pratt, Burgess Hall, Hannah Hall, Jonah Walters, and Mary J. Walters, who have moved away.

In a few years the little band determined to have a special place of worship, but it was not until May, 1870, that this was dedicated. The exercises lasted from the twenty-seventh to the twenty-ninth of that month, under the guidance of Elders Covert and Dana, and pastor D. Seckman, who was the regular preacher at that time. The building is a neat frame structure, situated on a bluff on Pice's run.

In November, 1870, at a meeting held in the church building, it was decided to incorporate the church. The trustees were elected for three years, consisting of Luther Rinard, Luther M. Hearn, Isaac Graham, and G. W. Harvey.

SCHOOLS.

Usually, when a settlement has so far progressed as to include four or five families, some maiden lady undertakes the task of keeping the little ones out of the way of the harvesters or other summer laborers, by instructing them in the mysteries of A, B, C, and the like branches of knowledge. About the year 1816 two such schools were taught. No trace of earlier ones in the neighborhood have been found. Nothing definite is learned that will determine which of these two schools were the first. The probability is, however, that the first one was by Miss Daly. It was a summer school of three months duration. Quite a number of pupils attended for the time of year, probably fifteen. This was held in a log school-house, about a mile and a half below Bloomfield. The attendants were the little ones of the families of Dickson, Tice, Hearn, French, Martin and others. The wages paid were a dollar and a half per pupil. The next school was taught by a man by the name of Gale.

At a school-house on the land of Daniel Hearn, the first teacher was Elizabeth McIntyre, about the year 1816. She was succeeded by Washington Williams. She had over a dozen pupils.

The settlers of Ludlow were without the benefits of a physician within easy access until 1838. Before that they were obliged to summon assistance, when sickness of such gravity as justified it attacked any of them, from Newport, Woodsfield, or even more distant points. But in the year referred to Dr. Philip D. Cocks settled in the vicinity. About the same time Dr. Jesse Ward, one of those physicians peculiar to the times called "steam doctors," made his home in what was then Ludlow but since has become Monroe county. Since then Drs. Russell and William Mitchell have settled in the township.

The first mill in the township not turned "by hand" was the horse-mill of James Tice. Soon after James Elder built one. These mills partially relieved the necessities of the people in that direction, until about the year 1818 or 1820 when Richard Taylor built the first water mill in the settlement. It was constructed on the Little Muskingum at the site of Bloomfield. It was both a grist- and a saw-mill. The first dam was a brush dam; this being swept away, it was replaced by a log dam. So anxious were the farmers to have this great convenience that when it was proposed to build the mill they subscribed aid enough, principally in lumber, work, etc., to insure its probable completion. This mill was afterwards rebuilt by Porter Flint, and still afterwards by Mr. Edwards and Solomon Tice.

About 1850 J. C. Ashley built a saw-mill farther down, in the neighborhood of Scott Town, but it has not been running since about 1870. Near this town, also, the firm of Best & Bates moved in and in the spring of 1869 started a woollen mill on Winget's run.

The oldest of the graveyards in Ludlow is what is known as the Tice cemetery. This dates from the year 1815, at which time Cynthia, a daughter of Jacob Wright, was buried—the first one in the yard. This cemetery has received the bodies of many old citizens and many of their families. Here Solomon Tice was buried; here William Snively and his wife; here are gravestones bearing the names of Dickson, Hearn, and others.

The next oldest is the Hall graveyard. This is in the southwest part of the township, and is nearly as old as the Tice burying-ground.

About forty years ago the graves of four children from the families respectively, of Daniel Flint, Jacob Flint, Elijah Reed, and George Snyder, situated near the site of Bloomfield, were found to be too close to the Little Muskingum. The bodies were accordingly removed to what is now the Bloomfield cemetery, which thus originated. Here are buried Daniel Hearn, sr., and his wife, Porter Flint, his wife and his mother, Christopher Dickson, sr., and his wife, David McIntyre, and others.

The Catholic cemetery is about twenty-five years old. It is situated in the southwestern part of the township, in section seven.

After the erection of the Baptist church building, near the school-house, that bears the singular name of Solomon's Temple, a cemetery was started. Necessarily, it is a burying-place for only the comparatively modern settlers.

At present there are two villages in the township, Bloomfield and Scott Town. The attempted enterprise of Clinesville has been referred to in the treatment of the settlement.

About forty years ago Porter Flint laid out the town of Bloomfield. The flouring and saw-mill there, as well as a furniture shop, distillery, and store carried on by Harvey and Horace Holland, seemed to warrant the expectation that a town could be successfully started. About that time, also, a post office was started which is yet in operation. At present Bloomfield is a small place on the left bank of the Little Muskingum, and situated principally in section twenty-one. The post office is on the other side of the stream.

In 1865 Isaac Scott opened a store at the mouth of Wingate's run. This was the origin of and the first building in Scott Town. In 1873 the place was granted a post office, with A. C. Alexander as postmaster. W. A. Day succeeded him and he was followed by the present postmaster, Isaac Scott.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH.

ROBERT GIFFIN.

The subject of this sketch was born in Belmont county, Ohio, August 5, 1829. His father, Archibald Giffin, was a native of Scotland, and was born September 24, 1771. He emigrated to America and settled in Belmont county, Ohio. He owned a farm and lived in Richland township until his death, July 26, 1833. In November, 1814, he married Agnes Belville, who was born in New-castle county, Delaware, July 14, 1798. She is of French parentage.

The Giffin family consisted of six children. Cornelius lives in Belmont county; John died in Belmont county; Archibald lives at St. Clairsville, Belmont county; William lives in Newport township, this county; Agnes died at the age of four years; and Robert, a pictorial sketch of whose residence in Ludlow township is presented on an adjoining page.

Robert Giffin purchased the farm on which he now lives while that portion of the county was comparatively new. Ninety acres was the extent of his property at that time. This was a part of the old Solomon Tice farm, an eccentric character who came from Virginia at an early period. The clearing and cabin of the "Governor," as he was known among the early settlers, stood near the site of Mr. Giffin's residence. But a small portion of the land was cleared, and to our subject is due the credit not only of accumulating acres, but also of improving them. John Giffin lived on the farm during the first year of Robert's proprietorship. The following year, his father having died, Mr. Giffin removed to the farm on which he has resided ever since. His mother accompanied him, and still makes his residence her home.

Mr. Giffin married Miss Mary Giffin, of Belmont county, York township, who was born June 10, 1833. The fruit of this union was six children, viz: Emeline, born August 29, 1861; Asa, born October 29, 1863; Anna Martha, born November 6, 1865; Eunice, born April 26, 1868; Huldah J., born December 12, 1872; Reginald R., born November 15, 1874. Huldah J. died October 25, 1873.

Mr. Giffin has been adding to his possessions from time to time until he now has in the farm on which he lives two hundred and twenty-seven acres. He also owns a farm on Tice run, embracing one hundred and twenty acres.

Mr. Giffin served during the war in the Thirty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry. He enlisted February 24, 1865, and was discharged from the service July 27, 1865.

Mr. Giffin is one of the most progressive farmers of the township. In addition to the routine of farming he deals largely in sheep, and in that way has added materially to his competence. In the community he is looked upon as a leading citizen, and in consequence is frequently called upon to act in the capacity of guardian or administrator of estates.

ROBERT GIFFIN

MRS. R. GIFFIN

RESIDENCE OF ROBERT GIFFIN, LUDLOW TP., WASHINGTON CO., O.

His farm is probably the best improved in the township. The large, square house, presented in the view, is surrounded by picturesque hills. Few more picturesque or more desirable places, so far as scenic effect goes to give interest to a locality, could be found in the county.

CHAPTER LIV.

LIBERTY TOWNSHIP.

The Territory Described—Ancient Smelting Works—Coal Mines and Oil Wells—The Birth of Liberty—Early Elections—Settlement—The First Child Born—The Germantown Settlement—A Departed Generation—Unfavorable Opinion of the Country Dispelled—New Life Given to the Settlement—The First Doctor—Oakwood and His Herbs—Other Physicians—The Last of the Deer—A Mill in a Stump—Mill of the Miller Miller—The Cluss Mill—The Germantown Mill—Early Schools—Pioneers in Religious Matters—The Christian Church—The Scott Ridge Church—German Churches—Pleasant Ridge Church—The Baptists—The Free Methodists in Liberty—Cemeteries—Germantown—Industries—Statistics.

THIS is the name that the county fathers, in 1832, applied to that part of the county now bounded on the north, for four miles, by Noble county; for the remaining northern two miles of boundary, by Monroe county; on the east by Ludlow township, on the south by Lawrence township, and on the west by Salem township. The name, which probably originated in the tact of some one of the commissioners, is appropriately bestowed, for if it be true that mountainous countries have always been the fastnesses of freedom, it is in keeping with it that a hilly region should be the abode of liberty. These hills, in general, arrange themselves into one principal and many subsiding ridges. The main ridge extends from the north projection of the township (section twelve), in almost a straight southwestern course, leaving the western boundary a mile from the southern line. From this back-bone extend many ribs, a few reaching westward toward Pawpaw creek, but the most and the longest, stretching southward and southeastward, as arbitrators of the claims of the various tributaries of Fifteen Mile creek. The longest of these ridges extends directly south from the north end of the main ridge for the six miles that it is in the township. The eastern slope of this is drained by the smaller streams, such as the west branch of Winget's run, which reaches the Little Muskingum directly. Along the foot of the western slope, the East fork of Fifteen Mile creek flows. This is divided from the West fork of the same stream by another remarkably straight ridge, which extends south from the upper end of the main ridge, four miles. These forks, after flowing almost directly south, unite in the northern part of section seven, and leave the township two miles west of its southeast corner. The three main tributaries of this stream from the west are, beginning with the most northerly, which rises in the centre of the township, Sycamore, Goss fork, and Dean's fork. The eastern slope of this main ridge, belongs, of course, to the Little Muskingum basin. The western slope furnishes three main streams, flowing nearly west to Pawpaw. Beginning at the north, they are Saltpetre, Koon run, and Campbell run. The first owes its name to the fact that some time in the thirties, a Mr. Davis was wont to come from the north to a cave in its bank, a short distance from where Germantown now is, and containing crude nitre. He would use it in the manufacture of gun-powder, in which he was engaged. The derivation of Koon run is obvious. It is so called from the residents of that name who first settled, and whose descendants still exist, along its valley. Campbell run is so called from the pioneer, Patrick Campbell, who settled on the stream very early. At that time it was called Horse run.

The two western tributaries of Pawpaw are known respectively as Long run and Laurel run. The latter is the southerly one, and takes its name from the laurel thickets that grew in its valley, and used to poison the cattle that found them in the course of their daily browsings.

Pawpaw itself enters the township about two miles and a half east of the northwest township corner, and flows southwest to a point two miles directly north of the southwest corner. Its waters eventually find the Ohio by means of Duck creek. Along its banks the traces of the wonderful Mound Builders appeared in the shape of remains of ancient furnaces of stone with hearths of clay. These were probably used for smelting, for they contained, when found, cinder and pieces of stone coal. These furnaces evidently existed in great numbers along the creek.

Although the hills would present rather a discouraging appearance to a farmer unused to them, yet the limestone under the farms, wherever it was crumbled into soil, has fertilized them to that extent that farming them is quite remunerative.

The coal, though not mined to the extent that it is in Salem, is everywhere prevalent, and up almost every run the traveller can see the pile of "slack" perhaps smouldering where it has been fired to keep the laborer warm, the terminus of the short railway, and the little car, perhaps emptying its black freight into the wagon below, or entering the grimy corridor to the heart of the hill. The seam mined is the Salem or sandstone seam. In one or two places the "Hobson" seam has been found in its usual place above the Salem coal, and borings made for oil have discovered the limestone seam far below, at its usual depth.

Although oil wells have been pushed downward at various places, the oil business as such does not exist in the township. Hitherto no oil has been found in paying quantities.

ESTABLISHMENT AND ORGANIZATION.

It appears that Liberty township was established without the preliminary petition from the citizens that is usually presented. We find in the commissioners journal, under the date of March 5, 1832, the establishing act beginning with the rather abrupt

Resolved, That the tract of country contained in range number seven, in town number four, in the county of Washington, be, and the same is hereby established into an incorporated town, to be called and designated Liberty; and the inhabitants residing within said surveyed township are declared to be entitled to all the privileges and immunities of incorporated towns within this State; and said inhabitants will meet at the house of Matthew Gray, in said township, on the first day of April next, at 10 o'clock, A. M., to elect township officers agreeably to law.

It will thus be seen that, at first, the surveyed township and the established township were identical, and thus, accordingly, Liberty began life with her full thirty-six square miles of territory. No record of township elections appears until 1838, although the book which contains this record was in possession of the township for four years previous.

The memories of the oldest residents of the township, however, retain the facts that Matthew Gray was in all probability the first justice of the peace, that at anyrate, he was a "squire" in 1834, at which time William Gray was a constable. It is said that at one time there were not available men enough to fill the offices, and that Salem township was asked in a neighborly way to lend them a man for constable, but who was the man thus obligingly furnished, tradition has provokingly forgotten. It appears also that these early elections were held in a log school-house about where Germantown stands.

The first township officers on record in the township were chosen April 2, 1838, at an election held at the residence of Joseph Barnhart. William Koon, Matthew Gray, and Gideon Keeder, presided over the election, and James Schofield and Richard Alberty were clerks. The election resulted in the choice of Newman Meridith, Marcellus Marsh, and Richard Alberty, for trustees; David Hendershot, clerk; Elijah Gray, constable; Isaac Cline and John Miller, overseers of the poor; Eben Speers, Amlin True, and William Walters, fence viewers; James Martin, Daniel Michael, and William Harsheys, road supervisors.

The omission to elect a treasurer was corrected by the appointment in May, 1838, of Matthew Gray to fill that office. This appointment was made by the trustees of the township.

On the twenty-sixth of May, in the same year, a division was made of the township into two school districts. This number has kept step with the increase of the population and growth of educational sentiment, until now Liberty township has eight school districts. At present the road districts number nineteen.

The present township officers were elected in 1880, and are: Isaiah Neff, T. C. Congleton, and J. W. Bowers, trustees; David Rees, treasurer; Joseph Congleton, assessor; J. J. Schenkel, clerk; Daniel Stephens and Michael Doyle, constables; S. D. Spear and Andrew C. Johnston, justices of the peace.

It is remembered that as far back as 1837, there were but five voters in the township as now bounded. On a full vote the Democrats could obtain a majority of one over the Whigs, provided some popular Whig did not run ahead of his ticket. These five were Philip Cline,

William Walters, Levi Woods, David Hendershot, and Matthew Gray. Of these, Cline and Gray joined the Whig element. This voting population has grown until in November, 1880, it polled one hundred and eighty-six Republican, one hundred and fifty-one Democratic, and four Greenback votes; total, three hundred and forty-one.

In 1851, when Noble county was formed, part of Liberty township was sacrificed, among other of the northern territory of Washington. Thus the township lacks sections 5, 6, 18, 24, 30, and 36. Sections 5 and 6 belong to Monroe county, and the rest to Noble county.

SETTLEMENT.

The oldest settlement in the surveyed township is in the Harrietteville neighborhood, in the part of Liberty since assigned to Noble county.

The first person known to have penetrated the wilderness of the present territory of Liberty was Jewett Palmer, who moved in from Lawrence township, where, about 1823, he had first settled. This removal was in 1825, and was to the farm now owned by C. Abicht, on the upper corner of Whipple run. Mr. Palmer remained in the place but five years, then went to Fearling, and finally, in the neighborhood of 1845, to Salem township. During his stay in Liberty occurred what was probably the first birth in the township, that of Pember-ton Palmer, in December, 1827. Jewett Palmer was remarkable for his bold and pronounced partizanship in regard to all the questions of the day, and several which at that time were questions of the future. He was bitterly opposed to the universal presence of whiskey and the like at old-time merry-makings, and industrial gatherings; was connected with the "Underground railroad," and was one of the very few early Free Soilers.

Shortly after the pioneer, Patrick Campbell, ventured into the wilderness as far as Horse run. About 1835 Richard Alberty moved in on the head of Whipple run. But this settlement, thus begun in the southern part of the township, was of short life. It was destined that the northern part, that about the site of Germantown, was to be the scene of the final permanent settlement. The first one to make his home here was Matthew Gray, who came from the Harrietteville settlement. As usual with the first settlers, he made his way along the natural pathway, worn for him by the rapid flowing of a stream. In this case he came to the banks of Pawpaw, about half a mile above the mouth of Saltpetre. Those who shared his danger and his home with him were his wife, whose name before marriage, was Amy Enochs, and his children. There were nine of these in all, named William, David, Elijah, Jesse, George, James, Elizabeth, Rhoda, and one whose name has been forgotten.

Matthew Gray seems to have been a man of great intelligence and force of character, as is evident by the character of the offices to which he was chosen, and the manner in which he is mentioned by those who knew him. The date of his settlement cannot be long before 1832.

By the year 1834 five other families had moved into the township. Two of these—Levi Woods and Isaac Koon—settled in the part since cut off. The other families were those of William Koon, Michael Koon, and Joseph Barnhart.

William Koon lived on Pawpaw, opposite the mouth of Koon run, with his wife, whose former name was Margaret Brown, and seven children.

Michael Koon's wife was Barbara Stackhouse, and he was the father of eight children.

Joseph Barnhart, who settled a little below Saltpetre, married Betsey Geer. Their children were William, George, Asa, Rosanna, and others.

Although the settlement was begun so late, it is a singular fact that none of these first settlers now live in the township. Facts about the settlement are consequently difficult to obtain, and to that extent less reliably learned. The next one to come to the township is now the oldest living settler. In 1834 Stephen Harris moved into that singularly isolated valley now called Koon run, where he has lived ever since. His wife's name was Rhoda Koon. Their children are Mary, Amy, Barbara, George, Stephen, who died in the army, and Esau.

George Kesseling, a native of Maryland, settled in what is now Liberty township in 1828, where he died in 1844. By his wife, Elizabeth Haltsman, born in 1806, he had eight children, six of whom survive, viz.: Elizabeth, Robinson, of Virginia; Mary Redfox, Rebecca Hendershot, Ezra, John, and Samuel. John, who was born in 1828, married Anna Eliza Gray, by whom he has nine children. He has a farm of ninety-four acres, and is a tobacco-packer. He resides in Newport township.

Soon after, the settlers came in more rapidly. At first there seemed to prevail an opinion that it was not possible to live in Liberty township, the land being considered too rough and barren. Many came from Salem township and elsewhere for a short time and returned discouraged. At last, however, it was found that these settlers, mentioned before, survived and even enjoyed it. Then settlement received new encouragement and more rapid progress was made toward its present population. Early and late, the most of the settlers have found their way over the ridges from more northern counties, especially Guernsey and Monroe. Shortly after 1834 came the families of William Walters, who settled near Germantown, Joshua Cunningham, a man named Stackhaus, who settled in section thirty-three, but left as early as 1848, and many others. In 1839 Cephas Hendershot arrived—a young man of twenty-two. He chose his home immediately below Germantown, where he has lived until now. His wife was Delilah Sloan, and his children living are Elias, George W., Sarah Ann, Caroline, Charles, Margaret, and Jane. Five others are dead.

About 1840 the little settlement was increased by the advent of a new neighbor—Philip Cline, from Monroe county. He settled on section thirty-three, on the farm at present occupied by Lewis Stickrath. His wife was Elizabeth Newman before marriage. The children were eight in number; four are dead. Philip, jr., and Samuel are in Iowa; Sarah lives in Liberty township; Andrew married Nancy McDonald and has four children living, one of whom, William, still lives in this township, and, with his wife, Rebecca, has five children.

The first doctor in the township arrived at this period. His name was Dr. Ekholtz, and he would sometimes be called by its English equivalent—Oakwood. His remedies were simple and confined entirely to the vegetable kingdom in its crude form. Such physicians were common in early times, and in the colloquial style of the people were termed "Yarb" doctors.

Between 1845 and 1850 a Dr. Patterson arrived, followed by Dr. J. M. Warren in 1851, Dr. Sparling in 1860, and the present Drs. Warren, jr., E. S. Divine, and Ridley Sparling.

Another comparatively late settler in Liberty township is Lewis Young, who is the son of Philip Young. He and his wife, Julia, are the parents of Jacob, now married and living in Fearing township; Lizzie, Charlotte, Caroline, Henry, and Otto.

John Bowers was born in Guernsey county, Ohio, in 1808, and settled in this township in 1845. He married Sarah McPeck in 1828. She died in 1878 at the age of seventy-one. They were the parents of twelve children, eight of whom are living, as follows: John W. and Valentine, in Liberty; Josiah A., in Noble county; Jacob A., Marietta township; Sarah Vanowey, in West Virginia, Mrs. Mrs. Rebecca A. Glove, in Bellaire, Ohio; Mrs. Elizabeth Congleton, in Liberty; and Mrs. Margaret E. Willison, in Marietta. Hester J., William T., Mary A., and James are deceased. Four of the sons served in the war of the Rebellion, to wit: John W., company D, seventy-seventh Ohio volunteer infantry; Valentine, company H, One Hundred and Seventy-fifth Ohio volunteer infantry; Josiah A., company K, Ohio volunteer infantry.

Thomas Hamilton, a native of North Carolina, born in 1784, emigrated to Ohio in 1804, and settled in Tuscarawas county. In 1849 he removed with his family to this county, and settled in Liberty township. He died February, 1872. His first wife was Mary A. Taylor, who was born in North Carolina in 1784. She died in 1828. The children by this marriage were six in number, three living, viz.: Archibald A. in Indiana; William in Tuscarawas county; Thomas F. in Pike county, Ohio. He married for his second wife, Sarah Manlow, born in 1817; died in 1840. The fruits of this union were four children as follows: Mrs. J. Smith in Illinois; Mrs. J. Swiggert in Coshocton county, Ohio; Lewis in Liberty and Leonard in Kansas. The latter was born in Tuscarawas county, Ohio, in 1834; married in 1855, Asaminta Parish, who was born in 1840, and has a family of nine children, viz.: Ruanna, Anna, Mary, Thomas and Lillie deceased; and Emma J., Susannah, William, and Fredonia, living.

Hiram Dearth was among the more recent settlers of the county, having removed here in 1869. He was born in 1828 in Monroe county, Ohio. He married Hester J. Kasey, born in 1830, and has the following children: James, Ephraim, Lewis, John, Robert, Martha A., Arizona, Russell, and George S., all living, and Nancy J., Kasey and Frank, deceased.

The wild animals in the township, when it was settled, were of the same kinds that the pioneers found elsewhere in the county, except that the settlement having been made so late, the bear disappeared. Many of the settlers were hunters rather than farmers, and were rarely seen without their guns. But in time the wolves and the deer left. The last deer killed was by Joshua Powell, about 1840, at the mouth of Saltpetre.

"In early days" as the old pioneers like to say, one of the greatest difficulties of the farmers was to prepare their grain for consumption. Other wants, though quite as pressing, were supplied by much simpler means, but the machinery of a mill was a matter of great moment, when everything had to be obtained from the raw material, water-mills being so "few and far between" various expedients were resorted to by the farmers, who could not at times take the long journey to the nearest mill or spare the time waiting until the grists ahead of them were ground or perhaps, on account of low or high water, be unable to find a mill that could run at all. Many owned hand-mills. A few farmers made rough horse-mills such as would make the miller of to-day smile. One way of making a hand-mill was to saw off a section of a hollow sycamore, making what is known as a "gum." In this was firmly planted the nether millstone at the proper height, a hole was bored in the stump to allow the meal to escape. The upper stone contained two apertures at a distance from the centre, one extending through the stone, and through this, the feeding was done. The other, extended deep enough to hold firmly a wooden rod, the upper end of which turned in a socket several feet above the centre of the stone. From one to three or four persons would seize this rod and turn the upper stone with it, while one dextrously dropped handfuls of grain in the hole for that purpose, as the revolution brought it past. Such were the primitive hand-mills, at least in Liberty township. Perhaps the first one of this kind was on the farm now occupied by Nathan Miller, then by Matthew Gray.

The first water-mill was built about 1844, by John Miller, on Saltpetre creek, about a half mile from its mouth. He was mechanic enough to build his mill himself. It was his custom to put the grist in the hopper, turn on the water, and retire calmly to rest, telling the customer that the "grist would be ready to-morrow morning." Shortly after this time a man by the name of Cluss built a mill on Pawpaw. He also had one in Salem township. John Miller afterwards built the mill now at Germantown.

The first road in the new settlement, and consequently in the township, went, as might be surmised from the position of the settlers' homes, up Pawpaw creek to the site of the town of Lebanon, north of the township.

The first orchard in the settlement was planted by Stephen Harris, probably, who bought the trees of Joseph Barker, at a nursery on the Ohio river.

Perhaps the first frame house in the township was built by Frederick Gruver. It now belongs to Caleb Hendershot.

The first school-house was a log one, and stood a quarter of a mile north of Germantown, in about 1838. At that time ten or fifteen pupils attended. Very early, perhaps before any other school had been inaugurated, a daughter of John Doffatt, of Salem township, came to the settlement and taught in an old log cabin that was considered the common property, where all sorts of meetings were held, principally church meetings of the denominations of Methodists, United Brethren, etc. This school was a private enterprise, and the teacher received a dollar and a half for each pupil that she taught three months. She had about a half dozen pupils, thus reaping the very moderate harvest of perhaps nine dollars for her work of a quarter of a year.

The first religious denomination that began work in the township was the Methodist. A hewed log church was built in 1839 or 1840, just above Germantown, and there they held their meetings. These meetings have long been transferred to a point further down stream. In 1848 Mr. Abraham Alban set apart some ground for the purpose, and a church building was erected on it. This was during the ministry of Rev. Thomas McCormick. The members of the church at that time were: Andrew Cline, Jeremiah Burton, William Myers, Amos Lacey, Elijah Gray, Abraham Alban, New Meredith, William Harmiger, and their wives, John Koon, Betty Koon, Margaret Koon, John Meredith, Catharine Amos, and George Casselring. This church still continues its meetings, which are at present conducted by Rev. Paugh. The building may still be seen standing on a high bank to the right of Pawpaw, a little above the road from Salem to Dalzell. The church belongs to the Lebanon circuit.

The next church that originated in the township was the one whose building now stands above Germantown, just over the border of the township. It being so closely connected with the settlers of the township, a sketch of it will be given. It dates from the vicinity of 1840, and was organized by the following members: Nathan Miller, David Hendershot, Levi Woods, Daniel Michael, Daniel McPeck, John Miller, Hammond Miller, John Walters, and their wives. About 1850 Daniel Michael gave land for the purpose, and a building was constructed by John Walters and John Powell. Before this meetings were held in the building used by the township for election purposes. The church building is still standing, but the members now meet at the church at Dalzell.

By the spring of 1855 the southern part of the township had become settled thickly enough to warrant the establishment of a church in that region. Accordingly John and William Love, Robert, John, and James Scott, with their wives, and Robert Love, banded themselves together as a separate congregation of Methodists. It was about the time of the ministry of Cook, of Marietta, that they met at the house of Robert Scott.

Thus matters went on for two or three years, when the advantage of a special house of worship became so obvious that they constructed one of logs for the purpose. This was replaced about 1873 by a frame structure, made by John Scott. In this they still meet and are known as the Scott Ridge church. Rev. Paugh supplies the pulpit, and the church is now a part of the Lebanon circuit.

Some fifteen or twenty years ago a German church was organized, and met in a building on Fifteen Mile creek. In a short time the building was destroyed by fire, and the church ceased to exist.

A German Lutheran church is in existence, and meets in their church edifice in section thirty-two. The organizers of this church were Jacob Schramm, Samuel Bruny, Christian Best, Peter Gruver, Charles Brown, their wives, and Catharine Hartwig, Frederick and William Epler. The meetings were at first held from house to house. This state of affairs continued for only two or three years, when the present building was put up. The preacher now is the Rev. F. C. Trapp.

The little village of Dalzell contains a neat-looking little edifice, in which the Pleasant Ridge Christian church of that place worships. The organization was effected in May, 1867, by Robert Miller, John Gregory, James T. Rogers, Joel C. Gregory, S. D. Spear, George Beardsmore, William Beardsmore, William Jarvis, D. N. Rogers, Francis Rogers, Wilford Howell, J. H. Gray, Elizabeth Farnsworth, Agnes Howell, Ellen Gregory, Eliza J. Howell, Abigail Rogers, Arminda Gregory, Millicent Beardsmore, Mary Taylor and Sarah Martin.

The officers elected first were: William Jarvis, John Gregory and D. N. Rogers, elders; Francis Rogers and Wilford Howell, deacons; John Gregory, J. H. Gray and S. D. Spear, trustees.

The officers now (1881) are: Elders, David Rees, William Roberts, S. D. Spear; deacons, John B. Booth, E. C. French, Thomas Forshey and Enoch Griffin.

The church numbers eighty-two members. It first held meetings in a log church, built at the time of organization. In 1880 the present frame structure was reared.

Where the two forks of Fifteen Mile creek unite is a church building which was built in 1874, and in which worships the Liberty Baptist church. The land was donated by John Congleton. Before the building of the church, the organization met in Noble county for worship. This church was constituted in 1842. The ministers have been: Revs. William Stone, John D. Young, J. C. Skinner, John Ables, H. Lyons, D. Ross, William McPeck and J. D. Riley. The church has now twenty-nine members.

On Fifteen Mile creek there is a Free Methodist church organization, which began about three years ago to hold meetings in what is known as "Jordan's hall." In the fall of 1879 they purchased a school-house, and dedicated it in the summer of 1880 as a church. The present preacher is Rev. Bennett.

The only graveyard in Liberty before 1834 was a private burying-ground of the Koon families. In that year it contained but one grave—that of a little daughter of William Koon. About the same time John Barnhart died, but was buried north of the present county line. These two deaths, so far as can be ascertained, were the first in the township.

The next oldest cemeteries are those at the Methodist and Christian churches in Pawpaw valley. Although the latter yard is partially outside the county, yet many old residents of the township lie there. The ground was set apart for the purpose by William and John Walters, about 1848 or 1849. The first one to be buried in it was a little child of David McPeck. In this yard rest the remains of some from the families of Hendershot, Miller, Walters, Beardmore, Roberts and other families. The yard now contains about a hundred graves.

The other yard, the one near the Methodist church, begun with the burial of Mrs. Thomas Robinson, in 1849. Here lie buried some of the Laceys, Clines, Kidds, Myers, Merediths and Burtons. Dr. Warren's grave is here. These three cemeteries are the oldest in the township.

Turning from the cities of the dead to the towns of the living, the oldest village in the township is German-town, which was laid out, in 1852, by David Hendershot. Before this there was no building in the place but a saw-mill. The first building put up after the sale of lots was by John Holtz, and intended for a storehouse. The post office was obtained in 1873, and Charles Coleman was the postmaster. The village now contains, besides the dwelling houses, a store, a mill, a blacksmith shop, a shoe shop and a saloon.

The other hamlet in the township is named in honor of Private Dalzell, of Noble county. It was laid out March 13, 1871, by R. W. St. John, surveyor for Francis Rogers, who owned the land. The first settler on the site of the town was S. D. Spear. The first house was a log house, on lot No. 16, and belongs now to George Kelzer. In January, 1872, Dalzell became a post office, with S. D. Spear as postmaster. The second and present postmaster is David Rees, who began his labors in that department in 1877. At present, Dalzell contains a store, blacksmith shop, wagon shop and shoe shop.

Before leaving the history of the township, it would be well to take a brief view of the population and its occupation. The people mainly represent the English, German and Irish races. A few are of Scotch extraction. About one-third can speak German, and about one in six are of German blood and English speech. Guernsey and Monroe counties, and Pennsylvania, furnished most of the settlers. Agriculture is, of course, the principal employment. Besides grain, much tobacco is raised, and, perhaps, this plant has brought more money to the people than any other. Cattle and sheep do well here, as much of the ground is better fitted for pasture than for raising grain.

In 1840 the population of Liberty was five hundred and fifteen; in 1860, one thousand three hundred and twenty-seven; in 1870, one thousand six hundred and thirty-two; in 1880, one thousand six hundred and twenty.

CHAPTER LV.

BARLOW TOWNSHIP.

A Progressive Township—Description—Establishment and Organization—Early Provision Made for Schools and Churches—Settlement—Religious Organizations—Educational Interests—Temperance Society—Agricultural Association—Wool Growers' Association—Patrons of Husbandry—Mills—Barlow Village.

THIS township, for the public spirit of its citizens, the industry, enterprise, and general thrift of its farmers, is known as one of the leading townships of the county. The many farms showing thorough culture, the successful operation of the agricultural fair, the Wool Growers' association, the church and school interests, and many other prominent indications of industry and intelligence, entitle her to that position. It is situated in the western part of the county, and is bounded on the north by Watertown, on the east by Warren, south by Dunham, and west by Fairfield and Palmer. The southern part is drained by branches of Little Hocking, and the north by branches of Wolf creek. In the central and northern parts the land is rather smooth, and the hill-slopes gradual, while the southern part is more inclined to abrupt declivities and higher elevations.

The soil is of red and yellow clay, and in many localities are found beds of shale of considerable thickness, containing small concretionary lumps of limestone in large quantities, thus giving the shales (or "marls," as they are popularly called) great value in fertilization. The chief productions are fruits, wheat, corn, and the ordinary farm products of this section. The chief branch of industry is wool growing, which is carried on quite extensively. The Merino sheep is the favorite breed in this locality, producing fleeces of fine wool, commanding good prices. The market for this production is local and ample, thus rendering the operations of trade both easy and profitable to the producers.

The township—barring a protrusion of two half-sections on the east, and a half-section taken from the north-west corner—is five sections wide and six long, making in all thirty and one-half sections, or nineteen thousand five hundred and twenty acres of land. It is almost entirely rural in its settlements, having no incorporated towns within its limits, and but three important points of trade—Barlow village, Vincent station, and Fleming post office—and has, according to the last census (1880), a population of one thousand two hundred. The main thoroughfare is the State road, leading from Marietta to Athens, and passing almost directly through the centre from east to west, receiving the Belpre and Watertown road at Barlow. The abandoned line of the Marietta & Cincinnati railroad passes through the southern part of the township.

Several seams of coal are found in this township, known as the Hobson seam, and generally found along the course of Wolf creek, but none of the seams are thick enough for practical mining—so far as the discoveries yet made are concerned. The probabilities are that future need of fuel will stimulate research that will be rewarded by the discovery of deeper seams of more superior coal.

Jesse Lawton some years ago discovered on his farm near the village of Barlow, which is situated in the midst of the marl regions, a locality of fossil fresh water shells of the genus Unio. These shells were imbedded in coarse sand or gravel, cemented by ferruginous matter, and the specimens are casts replaced by argillaceous oxide of iron. This locality bears evidence of once having been the bed of a lake or pond, but is now a valley surrounded by low hills, extending some four miles in length and a mile in width. The waters of this valley are drained by a small branch of the Little Hocking.

ORGANIZATION.

On petition of Nathan Proctor, Benjamin Baker, and others, the inhabitants of township three, of range ten, were declared entitled to the privileges and immunities of incorporated towns, and said territory to be known as Barlow township. The inhabitants were notified to meet at the residence of James Lawton for the purpose of electing township officers, on the third Monday of July, 1818. The only records of any election that can now be found is that of the election of trustees and other officials for managing the school and ministerial lands, which was held on the third day of January, 1818, at the Old Hickory school-house. At this meeting Benajah Howe was made both chairman and clerk pro tem. Judges of election were Cornelius Houghland and Isaac Hutchinson. The election resulted as follows: Cornelius Houghland, S. N. Cooke, and Caleb Greene, trustees; Duty Greene, treasurer; and, in the following April, Benjamin F. Palmer was appointed to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Cornelius Houghland.

In all probability, Cornelius Houghland was the first justice of the peace who exercised the functions of that office in Barlow township, as he held commissions as justice of the peace here long before the township was stricken from Wesley. The oldest of these commissions bears date of October 9, 1810, and is signed by Governor Samuel Huntington. Another is dated October 30, 1813, and bears the celebrated signature of Return Jonathan Meigs, governor and commander in chief of the State of Ohio.

SCHOOL AND MINISTERIAL FUND.

Section sixteen was granted by Congress for school and section twenty-nine for church purposes. These sections were surveyed and laid out in lots April 12, 1812, by Joseph Palmer, Cornelius Houghland, and Nathan Proctor, and they were viewed and appraised by Duty Greene. Five lots, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, of eighty acres each, were first laid out in section twenty-nine and valued at one dollar and seventy-five cents, to two dollars per acre. This land was rented to settlers, the rents collected by the trustees and applied to payment of teachers and preachers. In 1823 it was resolved by the trustees that any kind of goods in merchantable trade would be received for rents at following prices, viz: wheat, seventy-five cents per bushel, corn fifty cents, rye fifty cents, oats thirty-three cents, pork four dollars and fifty cents, and tow-linen cloth fifty cents per yard. Duty Greene as agent for the Methodist Episcopal church made the first demand for the ministerial funds, and on June 19, 1824, he received all the property in the treasury.

The first lease of land was made to William Dunbar, dated April 12, 1812, for No. 5 of section twenty-nine, valued at two dollars per acre—"six per cent. of this valuation to be paid every year as rent for said lands." This lease was witnessed by David Ewell, Samuel Clark, and Thomas Dunbar, and the trustees were Joseph Palmer, John Curtis and Edmund Neal.

EARLY SETTLEMENTS.

In the spring of 1800, James Lawton (to whom we are indebted for many of the facts contained in the history of Barlow), and Nathan Proctor made the first opening in what was then known as "White Oak settlement." The first cleared fields were on the small elevation just west of the present residence of Mrs. James Lawton, jr., southeast of Barlow village, and were made along the dividing lines between the only settlers in the wilderness. Nathan Proctor and his brother Jacob, erected a tent about forty rods south of the present Methodist Episcopal church.

Soon after, James Lawton began the erection of the first cabin, which was built immediately east of the present brick farm residence above mentioned—a relic of this first cabin in Barlow township is preserved, in the shape of a cane made from one of the walnut logs, and is now in possession of the Lawton family.

During the erection of this cabin the men engaged, who were hired from Marietta, passed the nights in Nathan Proctor's tent, where they were often entertained by the singing of Watts' hymns and the psalms, by the Proctor boys, who were then considered remarkably good singers.

In the summer of 1800, William Vincent and family, Cornelius Houghland, his brother-in-law, Thomas McGuire, and their families arrived in this vicinity. Duty Greene came the following year, and was probably the first Methodist in this locality. He was one of the leading men in the religious work of those early days, especially as a leader in the singing, and was very partial to a familiar methodist hymn called the "Good Old Way," which he sang on very frequent occasions.

Nathan Proctor came from Danvers, Massachusetts, and after he cleared the land and erected his cabin, his aged father and mother and his sister came to the new settlement. He died in Barlow in his seventieth year—of whose death the Marietta Register thus speaks: "Shortly after the first settlement at Marietta, he emigrated to what is now Barlow township, and selected his dwelling place where his residence now stands, and felled the first tree in the new settlement. In the death of this gentlemen society has lost a valuable member; the family, a kind husband and affectionate parent. He was a Christian and a Republican."

Cornelius Houghland, an early settler of what is now Barlow township, was a native of Hampshire county, Virginia, where he was born in 1773. In the spring of 1796 he married Anna Stalcut, and the fall of the same year left for Kentucky. He soon found his way to the vicinity of Williamstown opposite Marietta, where he made a settlement on a branch of Big run since known as Houghland's run. In April, 1801, with his brother-in-law Thomas McGuire, he removed to what was then known as "White Oak settlement," and located on the farm now owned by Neal Loynachan's heirs, one mile west of Barlow village. In his log cabin he kept the first licensed tavern in the township. The license was issued January 5, 1806, for the township of Wooster, and was signed by E. W. Tupper. Mr. Houghland was killed March 10, 1818, while cutting timber, a tree falling upon him. His wife died April 29, 1824, in her forty-eighth year. Their children were Polly, Margaret, Ruth, John, Eleanor, Elza, Lewis, David, and Anna. All are now dead except Anna (widow of Harris Palmer), who lives in Palmer township, aged sixty-four. Polly was the wife of Rev. Edmund McGinnis. Margaret married Benjamin F. Palmer, of Barlow. She died May 19, 1875, in her seventy-seventh year. She had four children: Joah F., Joseph, Cornelius (who died young), and Elza H. Ruth Houghland died in childhood. Eleanor became the wife of Vincent Smith, of Plymouth, this county.

Thomas McGuire who came to Barlow (then Wooster) with his brother-in-law, Cornelius Houghland, in the spring of 1801, settled on Wolf creek, northeast of where Barlow village now is. His cabin stood a short distance below the old hickory school-house.

The settlements made by these families formed the centre of what has now grown to be Barlow township.

The roads were then known only as "tracks" through the unbroken wilderness. One leading from Marietta to Athens, from east to west now known as the State road, passed a few rods north of the Lawton cabin, and the other from Belpre to Watertown was a short distance west. These routes sustained all the travel to and from these points, and the travellers, on account of the difficulties of the unbroken road, were often compelled to remain over night with some of the settlers, and among these early visitors are remembered—Dr. Perkins, of Athens, Griffin Greene, sr., of Marietta, Colonel Israel Putnam, and Colonel Fisher, of Belpre, Colonel Oliver, and Major White, of Waterford.

James Lawton, sr., was born in Rhode Island in 1760, and settled in Marietta in 1796, and died in Barlow in 1843. He was the first settler of Barlow township, and a man of superior intelligence and public spirit. He was married to Susannah Gould, who was born in 1764, and died in 1852. They had four children: one now living—Mrs. Sarah Branson, who lives in Illinois. His son Jesse was born in 1789, and came to Ohio with his parents in 1796, and was married to Maria Haskell in 1821, and settled in Barlow township in 1800. They had a family of six children—five now living: Arthur, Isaac and Phoebe (twins), Isaiah B., and Richard, who was born in 1824, and was married in 1862, to Persis Walker, who was born in 1828. He was in the United States army during the late war, in the hundred day service, and is one of the leading and respected farmers of Barlow.

William Vincent settled in Barlow in 1800. He was born in 1770, in Rhode Island, and died in this township in 1825. His wife, Elizabeth Earl, was born in 1767, and died in 1852. Of this family two yet survive—Mariah, widow of the late Obediah Gardner, of near Columbus, and John, who now resides in the township. He was trustee for eight years, also overseer of the poor for a number of years. John Vincent was born in 1809, and was married to Elizabeth Dustin in 1832, who was born in 1808. They have three children living. His son John C. was an orderly sergeant in the hundred day service. He is the inventor of the "Vincent rifle," and is engaged in the manufacture of these guns, and in other mechanical pursuits at his shop, just east of Vincent station. The popularity of this gun is increasing, and orders for them are received from various and distant places. Mr. Vincent is known as a workman of rare skill and proficiency in many departments of mechanical art.

Henry Earl Vincent was born in 1802, in Barlow township, where he died in 1873. He held the office of justice of the peace for many years, and was also clerk, treasurer, and trustee, and a leading pioneer citizen of the township. He was married in 1830 to Rhoda Clark, who was born in 1806. Her father, Elisha Clark, was born in New Jersey, in 1765, and settled in Belpre in 1798, and was married to Helen Brown, who was born in 1765. She has six living children, and is now living on the farm of eighty acres at Vincent station, engaged in farming and fruit growing. Osmer B. was in the hundred day service, and Henry C. was employed as telegraph operator, by the Government, under General Thomas, in Tennessee.

Daniel N. Dunsmore was born in 1817, and was married in 1843 to Isabel Fleming, who was born in Scotland, in 1817. They have two children. He is a farmer and stock-raiser and engaged particularly in raising thoroughbred Merino sheep. Hiel Dunsmore was in the hundred day service.

Duty Greene settled in Barlow, in 1800, and was born in New York, in 1760, and died in 1842. He had a family of six children, one of whom is now living—Pamelia, widow of S. H. Reynolds, now living in Missouri. Smith Greene, his son, was born in New York, in 1792, and came to Barlow with his father; was married to Sarah Mellor in 1813, who was born in England, in 1789. To them were born six children—two now living—Edna and Cynthia; the latter was born in 1814, and was married to Simeon Evans in 1842. He served in the Union army as member of company F, Thirty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry. They had a family of four children—two now living—Harriet E. and Charles E., who was in the hundred day service; David E., enlisted in 1861, in company F, Thirty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry, and died from injuries received in the army in 1863.

Isaac Woodruff was born in New Jersey in 1787; emigrated to this country and settled in Barlow township, in 1801. He was justice of the peace four years, and served in various township offices. He was married to Margaret Greene, who was born in 1790, and died in 1853. The following children of this family are now living: Silas, Chester, Caroline, Jeanette, and Duty. Mrs. Pamelia Bell was born in 1819, in Barlow township, and was married in 1838, to William Bell, who was born in 1811, and died in 1868. He was trustee of the township for a number of years, and was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church from 1837 until his death. Mrs. Bell is a cripple for life, having been injured by a fall in 1879. She has seven children living and owns two hundred and twenty-five acres of land.

Silas Woodruff, son of Isaac Woodruff, was born in 1811, and was married to Mary Stump, in 1833, who was born in 1812, and died in 1859. To them were born seven children; the following are now living: Hiram, David, and Anson, all living in Kansas; Maria, wife of J. L. Palmer, of California; and Mary, wife of H. M. Morter, this township. He was again married in 1859, to Elizabeth Stollar, who was born in Pennsylvania, in 1830. They had four children: Alpharetta, Calvin E., Marian G., and Clarence L. At present he has a farm of three hundred and fifty acres and is a general farmer.

In 1801, John Laffin settled in Watertown township. He was born in Vermont in 1773, and died in 1851. His wife, Abigail Richards, was born in 1777, and died in 1847. The surviving members of this family are Luman and Harley, the latter was the second son and was born in Wooster township, in 1807, and was married to Anna Shields, in 1831, who was born in 1809. They had a family of four children—three now living: Diantha, now Mrs. John Seeley, of Watertown; Mary A., wife of James Morrison; and Charles S., who now lives on the homestead, and was born in 1839, and married to Caroline Cooksey, in 1868. They have three children: Charles E., Morrison, and Lizzie.

Harley Laffin has held the office of justice of the peace for twelve years, and was elected to the legislature in 1854, and now resides on his estate of one hundred and sixty acres of land, a respected citizen and farmer of Barlow.

Benjamin F. Palmer came to Barlow in 1816 and built his log cabin bachelor's hall about twenty feet east of his present residence north of Barlow. While clearing his farm he gave two days' work of each week for his board, and passed the nights in his cabin, sleeping on the floor. He was married in 1817 to Margaret Houghland, who was born in 1798, and three of their children are now living in Barlow—Sarah, Joseph, and Elza H. He was a soldier in the War of 1812, serving under Captain Timothy Buell, and was one of the pioneers of the township. He now owns a farm of two hundred and sixty acres as the result of his own industry. E. H. Palmer, his youngest son, occupies the old homestead, and is largely engaged in the raising of fine stock.

Robert Breckenridge first settled in Wesley township in 1811; was born in Scotland in 1794, and died in Barlow 1871. He was one of the first elders of the Presbyterian church, which office he held until his death. Was married to Catharine Harvey, who was born in 1794. The surviving members of their family are Nancy, Elizabeth, Mary, and James H. The latter was born in 1832 in Barlow, and was married to Catharine Reed in 1860, who was born in West Virginia in 1835. He now owns a farm of eighty acres, and is one of the substantial farmers of the township.

Cyrus W. Morey was born in New York in 1807 and came to this township with his parents in 1808. The family consisted of four children—Benson, who now resides in Delaware county, Ohio; Julia, who died in 1872; Maria, who died in 1874; and Cyrus.

Heman Chapman was born in Connecticut in 1764 and first settled in Marietta in 1806, and died in Barlow in 1851. He was married in 1785 to Marcy Potter, who was born in 1767 and died in 1834. His son, Samuel Chapman, was born in New York in 1793 and came to Ohio in 1816, in which year he was married to Catharine Clark, who was born in 1797, and they settled in Watertown township in 1816. To them was born one son—Hiel Chapman—who was born in 1829, and in 1857 was married to Abigail Hutchins, who was born in 1831, and are now living in Barlow. He has held the office of constable and justice of the peace. Was a member of company F, One Hundred and Forty-eighth Ohio national guards, and is now a general farmer, owning a farm of eighty acres, on which he resides.

Jesse Pugh settled in Barlow township in 1814. He was born in Virginia, and married Sarah McDonald. They reared a family of five boys and three girls, viz.: Benjamin, Jesse, John, James, and Robert. Of these children, James, who was born in 1804, married Margaret Gard, the daughter of John Gard. Of their five children, two are living—James A. and John L. The latter lives in Noble county. James A., born in 1845, married Dora E. Cook, born in 1856. One child has blessed this union. They live in Palmer township, where Mr. Pugh owns one hundred and fifty acres of land.

Asa Beach was born in Connecticut in 1780 and first settled in Watertown in 1799, where he died in 1847. His wife, Betsey Corns, was born in 1782 and died in 1859. The following members of this family yet survive: David, Pardee, Bernard, Sarah, Elizabeth, and Rufus. The latter was born in 1814, and in 1840 was married to Emily Thompkins, who was born in 1820. To them were born the following children: Josephine, Alfred, Cydnor T., Leander, Roena, Alice, Ruth, and Ada May. Alfred was a member of company F, Thirty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry; was wounded at Winchester in 1863 and discharged in 1865. Cydnor enlisted in same company in 1863, and was discharged in 1865. Mr. Beach has held the office of trustee for five years, and resides on his farm of one hundred and sixty acres of land in Barlow.

One of the well known citizens of this township is John McCuiag, who came from Scotland and first settled in Warren township in 1821. He was born in Scotland in 1797, and was married to Catharine Harvey, who was born in 1801, and died in 1860. He has two children now living—Margaret, widow of Alexander Gordon, and Mary C., wife of David Scott. He served his apprenticeship as a blacksmith in Scotland, and after coming to this country he worked at his trade for a number of years at Barlow, where he now resides an honored and respected citizen, having retired from business, on his farm, adjoining the village.

Margaret Gordon was born in 1828 and was married in 1851 to Alexander Gordon, who was born in Scotland in 1818, and died in 1873. She has two children living with her on the old homestead—Kate G., now Mrs. Frank Palmer, and John, who was married to Carrie Hart in 1879.

James W. Merrill was born in 1832 and was married in 1854 to Rebecca Greene, who was born in 1832. He came to the township in 1842 and located where he now resides, in Barlow village. He entered the army as first lieutenant of company B, Ninety-second Ohio volunteer infantry, and was wounded in the right knee at the battle of Chickamauga and, being disabled, was honorably discharged in 1864. He immediately entered the dry goods business at the present location, where he has since been engaged, and has accumulated considerable wealth, owning a farm of one hundred acres, a dwelling in the village, and one-half interest in the present store.

David H. Merrill was born in 1835 and came to Barlow in 1850. He first began work on a farm; afterwards taught school until in 1857 he commenced merchandising at his present location in Barlow. In 1864 he was joined by his brother in partnership, under the name of Merrill Brothers, and they are now successfully operating the largest business in this section, consisting of general merchandising in all its departments, milling and buying wool—amounting to a business of forty thousand dollars per year.

Thomas G. Graham was born in Pennsylvania in 1800, and came to Barlow in 1842, having previously served as captain of militia in Pennsylvania. He was married to Susan Gillchreast, who was born in 1822 and died in 1848. The surviving children are: Maria, who lives in Palmer township; and Amanda, also living in Palmer.

Robert Graham was born in 1842, and was married to Mary L. Lamb, in 1868, who was born in 1846. They have four children living, and he is a farmer and stock raiser, owning a farm of one hundred and sixty acres of land. He enlisted in the Union army in 1862, company G, Nineteenth Ohio volunteer infantry, and was discharged in 1865.

Christiana Lamb, whose father, William Fraser, was born in Scotland, in 1783, and settled in Warren township in 1823, where he died in 1837, and whose mother, Christiana McKinsey, was born in 1772, and died in 1848, was born in Scotland in 1809, and was married to William Lamb, in 1827, who was born in 1803 and died in 1878. She has four children—Agnes, Christiana, Mary L. and Sarah, and now lives in Barlow.

Amos Benedict was born in New York in 1806, and settled in Warren township in 1844, where he died in 1879. He was married to Hannah Hobby, who was born in 1806, and died in 1853. They left three children, now living, Henry N., George E., and A. H. He was again married in 1854, to Anna Moffit, who was born in England in 1816.

A. H. Benedict was born in 1843, and was married in 1867 to Lucy E. Gould, who was born in 1847 in Barlow township, and they have a family of three children. He was admitted to the bar in 1867, has served as correspondent of the Marietta Register, has taught school in Barlow for the past twenty years, and at present possesses seventy-five acres of land, where he resides in Barlow township.

Josiah Scott, son of John and Nancy, was born in 1820, and was married to Louisa Finch, in 1855, who was born in 1822. They have one child living—Frank L., who resides at home. He now lives on his farm in Barlow, containing one hundred acres of land.

His father, John Scott, first settled in Warren township in 1839, was born in Pennsylvania in 1773, and died in Harmar in 1874. He was married to Nancy Patterson, who was born in 1778, and died in 1861. They have six children now living—William, now residing in Warren township; Mary A., wife of Seth Baily, of Coolville; James, now in Kentucky; Lydia, widow of John Scott, of Harmar, Moses, of Pomeroy, Ohio, and Josiah, who lives in Barlow.

David Breckenridge settled in Barlow in 1832, was born in Scotland in 1773, and died in 1843. His wife, Charlotta McMillen, was born in 1785, and died in 1875. The names of the living members of this family are, viz: Elizabeth, now Mrs. William Andrew; Charlotte, wife of John Dunlap; David, now living in Barlow; Margaret, wife of James McKay; Duncan and John, both living in Iowa; Charles, now in Indiana, and Thomas. The latter was born in Scotland, in 1811, and was married to Margaret Harvey, in 1836, who was born in Scotland, in 1812. He has served as trustee, supervisor and school director for several years, and now owns a farm of one hundred and thirty-five acres of land, on which he resides.

James Ormiston, third, was born in Scotland, in 1822, and in 1845 was married to Polly Conchrite, who was born in 1826. They have seven children now living, and he is general farmer and mechanic, and has made himself possessor of three hundred and fifty acres in Barlow, and served as constable for six years. His father, David Ormiston, first settled in Warren township, in 1828, was born in Scotland in 1800, and died in Illinois in 1880. The living members of this family are: John, living in Barlow; William, in Missouri; A. S., in Kansas; David and Jane in Illinois; Mary, widow of David Taylor, of Indiana, and Benjamin F., now living in Illinois.

James Ormiston, sr., was born in Scotland, in 1769, and settled in Barlow township in 1831, where he died in 1852. His wife, Christiana Lamb, was born in 1771, and died in 1834. Their children were Agnes and James. The latter was born in 1806 in Scotland, and was married in 1834 to Lucinda Willworth, born in 1813. The living members of this family are, viz: Alexander, Isaac, Christiana, James, Merat, Rufus, Anna J., Ruth L., and Thomas L. Alexander enlisted in 1861, in company G, Sixty-third Ohio volunteer infantry, and was with Sherman on his march to the sea. Isaac and James served in the hundred days service.

Mr. Ormiston was a carpenter in his early days, but now resides on his farm of two hundred and thirty acres in Barlow township, and is a general farmer and stock-raiser.

Thomas Fisher, sr., first settled in Aurelius township, in 1837, afterwards in Barlow in 1840. He was born in England in 1811. His wife, Mary Cousins, to whom he was married in 1835, was born in 1814. They have a family of six children, five now living—Richard, John, Sarah, Thomas, Hezekiah and Joseph.

Thomas Fisher, jr., is a general farmer of the township, and is also engaged in raising sheep, and has a farm of one hundred and fifty acres of land.

Marcus Anderson, sr., a native of Ireland, born in 1809, and came to Ohio in 1841. His wife, Rebecca Rodgers, was born in 1812. The members of this family now living are: Elizabeth, Edward, Mary, William, James, Susan, Agnes, Jane, Thomas, Marcus, and Rebecca. Edward was in the hundred day service. William was a member of company F, Thirty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry, and James of the "Pierpont battery." Mr. Fisher now owns three hundred acres of land and is engaged in sheep raising.

D. H. Tompkins settled in Barlow in 1845; was born in Belmont county in 1818, and died in 1880. He was married in 1843 to Betsey Windsor, who was born in 1823 and died in 1879. Two of the children are now living—A. W., who lives in Harmar, and W. E., citizen of this township. The latter was born in 1851, and now resides on the homestead containing over two hundred acres.

William Beebe, M. D., the leading physician of Barlow township, began the practice of medicine here in 1845. He was born in Belpre in 1822, and was married to Elizabeth Rathbone in 1846, who was born in 1827. To them were born five children now living—W. L., practicing physician in Minnesota; Brooks F., physician in Cincinnati; William P. physician in Texas. Lucy L. and Lizzie H. are both living at home. The doctor has a large practice, and is regarded in the community as an able practitioner in his profession.

In 1834, Robert Haddow came from Scotland and settled in Barlow township. He was born in 1799, and was married to Jeanette Ormiston, who was born in 1795 and died in 1866. The members of this family are—John, Nancy, Mary, Jane, and James.

James Haddow was born in 1827, and was married to Lucy Dustin in 1853, who was born in 1834. He was a member of company F, Thirty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry from 1861 to 1865, and was wounded at the battle of Winchester, Virginia, and discharged in 1865. He has a family of eight children, and owns one hundred and twenty acres of land, where he resides as a farmer and citizen.

John Haddow was born in 1821, and married in 1843 to Jane C. Fleming, born in 1824, and has seven children now living. He is present postmaster at Barlow, which office he has held since 1861; has held the office of justice of the peace for nineteen years, and township clerk eighteen years. In 1860 he was elected to the legislature, and through his influence Muskingum township was organized.

Ezekiel Deming was born in Massachusetts in 1772, and died at Marietta in 1858. He was judge of the supreme court twenty-one years; was also school teacher, and was married to Hannah Parke, who was born in 1777, and died in 1818. To them were born the following children: Hiram R., James H., Lucinda, Mary, and J. T. Deming, who was born in 1810, and was married in 1841 to Mary A. Richards, who was born in 1824. They have nine children living. Henry R. was sergeant in the hundred day service. Mr. Deming has over one hundred acres of land, and is engaged in farming and raising fine wool sheep.

William H. Cunningham, son of B. F. Cunningham, who was born in 1818, and married to Sabra Harvey, born in 1824, was born in 1842, and was married to Caroline Childers in 1867, who was born in 1848, and died in 1875, leaving two children. He is undertaker and cabinetmaker at Barlow. Of his father's family the following are now living, viz: John W., Melissa J., Orlando, Loring, Mary E., Ister C., Sarah R., and Robert.

John Fleming settled in Barlow in 1820. He was born in Scotland in 1778 and died in 1854. He was married to Jane Colvell, who was born in 1782 and died in 1852. His family consists of David, Isabella, and Mrs. Mary Harvey, who was born in Scotland in 1804, and was married to James Harvey in 1825, born in 1802 and died in 1856. She has six children now living. Her son, David, enlisted in 1861 in company F, Seventy-seventh Ohio volunteer infantry, and died in 1863 from injuries received in the army. Also her son Robert enlisted in 1861 in company A, Thirty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry, and gave his life to his country at the battle of Cloyd Mountain, Virginia, in 1864. Mrs. Kate W. Harvey was born in 1855, and was married in 1875 to Andrew Harvey, who was born in 1846 and died in 1880. She has three children living, and is also possessor of a farm of two hundred acres of land located in Barlow.

James Fleming was born in Scotland in 1792, and settled in Barlow township in 1820, and died in 1851. His wife was Margaret Breckenridge, and to them were born the following children: J. C., Sarah, Robert, Jane, Margaret, and Thomas. The latter was born in 1836, and was married to Margaret Breckenridge, who was born in 1840. They have seven children now living. He is extensively engaged in raising fine sheep, and has a farm of three hundred acres of land.

Enoch Preston first settled in Harmar in 1838. He was born in Maryland in 1806, and was united in marriage to Miss Margery Lytton, who was born in 1812. The surviving members of this family are Margaret A., wife of John W. Tuttle; Daniel L., Maria E., William L., and Mary J.

Miss Mary J. Preston was born in 1840 in Dunham township, and is now engaged in keeping a general supply store at Vincent station, where she began about one year ago, and at present carries a stock valued at two thousand dollars.

John Jones was born in Pennsylvania in 1803, and married Sarah Lavan, who was born the same year. In 1850 they became residents of Barlow township, remaining there until 1877; thence removing first to Fairfield and finally to Palmer township. His first wife dying in 1875, he married Mrs. Sarah E. Winner, daughter of Ansel and Lida Forbes. Mr. Jones has eight children living, and Mrs. Jones has nine children by her first husband. Mr. Jones has held township office.

CHURCHES.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH—BARLOW VILLAGE.

The first meetings of this society were held in the old Hickory school-house, and was then on Marietta circuit. David Young was one of the early ministers, and is remembered as having at one time selected for his text the twenty-third verse of the fifth chapter of Judges—"Curse ye, Meroz, curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof, because they came not to the help of the Lord." In the exposition of this text the minister, as was the custom in those days, repeated the text frequently, and each time with greater emphasis. An elderly lady from West Virginia happened to be present, and being afterward asked how she liked the sermon, replied: "The sermon was very good, but I am afraid the old man swore most too much."

The Methodists, after holding services in the Hickory school-house for a number of years, built a log meeting-house in 1808, north of Barlow village, where they held services until the present church building was erected in the village, which was completed in 1836, though it has been much improved since then, having at present a cupola and bell; and is a good substantial frame, thirty-five by forty. Among the early preachers of this society was Jacob Young, a brother of David Young, who is remembered as a very efficient minister in building up this part of the circuit. The present parsonage, located near the church building, was completed in 1839, and was first occupied by Rev. James B. Austin. Among the ministers who preached on this circuit after the church was built, were: John Furree, presiding elder, William Strickland, Samuel Hamilton, presiding elder, (1838) James D. Webb and Joseph Gasner, Matthew Scoville, Sheldon Parker, Joseph Morris, Martin Wolf. In 1844 the circuit was changed to Barlow, after having been Marietta, then Belpre circuit for a number of years. The society at Barlow village is now in a flourishing condition under the present ministry of Rev. S. B. Ricketts, and has a membership of one hundred and fifteen. The Sabbath-school, under the superintendence of Daniel Canfield, meets every Sunday. In connection with the church is the Woman's Missionary society, organized and carried on by the ladies of the society, and succeeds in adding about thirty dollars yearly to the missionary fund of the general church.

PRESBYTERIAN (OLD SCHOOL) CHURCH—BARLOW VILLAGE.

The Proctor family were the pioneer Presbyterians of this locality, and the house of Nathan Proctor was the stopping place of the ministers of this denomination, and he would make an appointment for them to preach at night, or probably secure their services for Sabbath.

Revs. S. P. Robbins, Jacob and Stephen Lindley, were among the early ministers of this denomination. The present church building was erected in 1833, and the first organization was effected three years after (1836) by Revs. Addison Kingsbury and Luther Bingham, "the petition to presbytery having been signed by John Henry, John and Hugh Breckenridge, and others." The sermon, from First Samuel, seventh chapter and second verse, was delivered by Rev. Kingsbury, and at the first meeting the following persons were received into communion by letter: Nill and Agnes McGeachy, Jeanette Johnson, and Elizabeth Bowman; afterwards, Joshua, Elizabeth, James and Hannah Rodgers, Thomas Breckenridge, John and Mary Martin, John Breckenridge, Charlotta Dunlap, David F. and Sophia Fleming, Michael Ormiston, and Duty Greene.

Revs. Manning and Roberts served this congregation as supplies until the first regular pastor, Rev. Samuel P. Dunham, was installed. In 1839 the "New School" society withdrew from this church, and erected a small frame building just east of Barlow village. Among the prominent members of this society were Robert Haddow, William Lamb, and Nelson Ford. They held services in this building until 1870, when the two Presbyterian societies again united, and the building was abandoned, the reunited society choosing the present house of worship. The present pastor, Rev. William Bay, has served this congregation about four years, and they have a present membership of about seventy-five, and are enjoying a good degree of prosperity. Services are held regularly every Sabbath, after which the Sabbath-school is convened, and an hour spent in the study of the Scripture and imparting the knowledge thereof to the children.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH—BARLOW VILLAGE.

This congregation was organized October 8, 1849, by Samuel Findly, D. D. It was formed mainly of those who had withdrawn from the "Old School" congregation worshipping in the same village. Since its organization the following have been ministers in charge: Revs. S. M. Hutchinson, James McNeal, Julian Straus, and W. S. Harper. The pastoral work of Rev. J. D. Palmer, the present minister, began in May, 1876. Ruling elders: Daniel Drain, Almond Henderson, W. B. McGill, and Anderson Ferguson. Trustees: F. P. Deming, Andrew McFarland, and James Drain. The membership now numbers about one hundred, holding services in the brick building located in Barlow village. Services and Sabbath-school every Sabbath.

THE UNION CHURCH—VINCENT STATION.

This building is located in the northeast part of the village; is a frame twenty-five by forty feet, and was erected in 1867 by general subscription as a union church for the use of all denominations. The Universalists, Methodists, and Presbyterians hold services here, but the former has regular services under the ministerial charge of Rev. J. W. McMasters. The original trustees were John Ormiston, Isaac Hopkins, and Isaac Dunlap. In 1866 Mrs. Sarah Hill first inaugurated the movement which resulted in the organization of the present union Sabbath-school, which now meets regularly at the church. The leading men in this congregation were Henry M. Amlin, John Ormiston, Osmer B. Vincent, and Hiram Gard. The object of the organization was to promote a general study of the bible without sectarian bias. The first officials were H. M. Amlin, superintendent; John Ormiston, assistant superintendent; O. B. Vincent, secretary; J. Caleb Vincent, treasurer. At present there are eight teachers, one hundred and seventeen scholars, with a library of about one hundred and fifty volumes. The present officials are: John Ormiston, superintendent; J. C. Vincent, assistant superintendent; Emmett Agin, secretary; Florence M. Hayes, treasurer. The school is now in very prosperous condition, and is regarded as an institution productive of much good, morally, socially and intellectually, and great interest is felt among the moral people of this community for the continued success of the union Sabbath-school.

The Christian church was organized in 1846 under the administration of Rev. William Kelso. The first meeting was held at the house of Amos Pryor, who was the first elder of the church. In 1859 the present church building was erected. The ministers of the society have been, in the order of their services, Zephaniah Zollers, Isaac Newton, John Peard, Nathan Moody, H. Bingham, Adam Cardner, John Moody, J. Neugent, Joseph Thomas, Ezra Barker, A. B. Wade, J. A. Walters, R. A. Pickens, Joseph Dunn, Joseph Dutton, and A. Calvert, the present clergyman. The society now numbers about thirty members, and has a prosperous Sabbath-school, of which A. Pryor is superintendent.

SCHOOLS.

In the fall of 1808-9 the first school-house was built on the northwest part of section sixteen, and was known as the old Hickory school-house. The first teacher was a young man—John Treat Deming—from Sandersfield, now Watertown. The next teacher was a venerable Irishman—Samuel Clark—who was well educated in mathematics and penmanship. He went from here to the vicinity of Fishtown in Fairfield, and afterwards removed to Columbus. For the following abstract of a description of this pioneer school-house we are indebted to the papers left by Henry Earle Vincent:

The house in which the pioneer children of Barlow township first learned their A, B, C, and to repeat "In Adam's fall we sinned all," was built entirely of rough hickory logs, with chimney of "cat and clay," and a broad fireplace wide enough to receive logs the length of a common fence-rail, which not only furnished fuel for fire but seats for the young urchins while warming themselves. The floor, benches and writing table were all made of rough-hewn puncheons—that is, logs split into slabs and some of the roughness "scutched" off with a broad-axe. Small cavities were left in the back wall in which the inkstands, containing the maple ink, were kept to protect it from the frost. The windows were made by cutting out a piece of a log six or eight feet in length and placing small sticks perpendicularly across the space at intervals, thus making a sash over which paper was pasted. The paper used was generally the well-scribbled leaves of old copy-books, as there were no newspapers in those days and blank paper was too scarce and too valuable to be used for such purposes. This paper was made transparent by being first generally coated with coon's grease, possum fat, and a fire-brand held to it until well melted.

The old schoolmaster was so deaf that the scholars would "talk right-out-loud," and often he would go to sleep and then the way the

Hiram Gard

Cornelius Gard, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was born near Morristown, New Jersey, on the thirtieth of October, 1749, (Old Style), was of English extraction, and married near Pughtown, in Frederick county, Virginia, on the first of October, 1774, Mary Hancher, whose parents were from Wales, and who was born June 22, 1757. Cornelius Gard came to Ohio from Frederick county, Virginia, in 1802; was a shoemaker by trade; lived in Washington and Licking counties; was a jovial and companionable man, and died in Palmer township, Washington county, November 2, 1841, aged ninety-two years, his wife having preceded him in death about one year—dying August 6, 1840, aged eighty-three years. Both of them were members of the Methodist church. They left two sons—Timothy, the oldest, born February 21, 1780, and David, born April 18, 1782. Timothy married Nancy Davis, a lady reared by Isaac Williams, a pioneer who lived in Virginia, opposite the confluence of the Muskingum and Ohio rivers. Timothy died July 23, 1836, at Gratiot, Licking county, Ohio, leaving four sons—Isaac, Jeremiah, Timothy, Samuel, and one daughter, Polly.

David Gard, the father of Hiram Gard, was born in Hampshire county, Virginia, and married Mary Hiatt, March 25, 1802, of same place. Came to Vienna, Virginia, six miles above Parkersburgh the same spring; lived there one year, and in 1803 moved to the White Oak settlement, in what is now Palmer township, Washington county, Ohio, at which place Hiram was born. In 1805 David returned to Vienna, Virginia, and remained there until the spring of 1810 when he returned to the White Oak settlement, then Wesley township, near where Brown's Mills were afterwards built, on Wolf creek, where he lived until his death February 16, 1859. His wife, Mary Hiatt Gard, followed him in death from the same place May 15, 1861. David Gard was a man of sterling integrity, and honest in the fullest sense of the term; a man of very limited education but of good judgment, and much respected in society. He and his wife were both devoted and worthy members of the Methodist church for the last twenty years of their lives; were quiet in demeanor, much beloved and respected.

David Gard left two sons—Hiram, born May 11, 1804, and James Hiatt, born January 2, 1828; and four daughters—Maria, born August 20, 1805; Rowena, born December 20, 1810; Sophia, born January 3, 1815; and Jane, born March 15, 1817 (died in infancy by accidental scalding).

Of the daughters, Maria married Benjamin Mason Brown, of Athens county, on the eleventh of May, 1826, and died at Belpre, July 27, 1880, at the home of her son-in-law, Justice Alderman, where she had lived many years in widowhood, receiving the kindest attention and best care that could be bestowed during a long illness. She left sons—Hiram McNeal, who died some years before his mother, leaving a wife, Mrs. Jane Brown, and one son, John Mason Brown; Charles Alonzo and John Arza both enlisted in the service of the United States against the Rebellion, and were honorably discharged at the close of the war, Charles Alonzo having received a wound at the battle of Chickamauga, from which he finally recovered; Charles Alonzo, who married Martha Breckenridge; John Arza, who married Henrietta Stacy; and Saphrona Josephine, who married the aforesaid Justice Alderman and lives in Belpre village.

Rowena married Edward Camp October 3, 1833, and reared two sons—George L., and David H., both of whom served honorably in the war against the Rebellion (George L., during an engagement with the enemy, at the battle of Mission Ridge, stopped one of the enemy's balls, which passed through many thicknesses of blanket and his trousers, and stopped in the midst of his silver lever watch, after entirely destroying it; and three daughters—Josephine, who married William Vincent; Augusta, who married twice—Dr. William Bates and J. R. Hornaday; and Emma, unmarried.

Ataline G. Gard

Sophia Gard married James M. Palmer November 4, 1835, and had three sons—David F., who married Miss Shrader; Dudley, who died in the Union army in Tennessee; and Hiram, who married Augusta Evans; and three daughters—Mary, who married Jesse Murdock; and Lydia and Laura, who are unmarried. Jane Gard died in infancy by a scald.

James H. married Ruth G. Palmer December 2, 1852. He also enlisted in the Union army and served a term of some three months. He left two daughters—Clara and Lucy, their oldest daughter, Ella, having died young. James H. died August 8, 1865. His widow and the two little daughters moved to Oregon where they still reside.

Hiram Gard, the oldest son of David Gard, married Ataline Gage Dunsmore February 25, 1830. They have reared four sons—Edward Dunemoor, Charles Edgar, Daniel Hosmer, and Hiel Abner; and three daughters—Mary Melissa, Martha Jane, and Helen Josephine.

Edward, first son, married Jane Breckenridge April 28, 1853, and died November 25, 1855. His daughter, Martha Ataline, was born after his death, on May 17, 1856, and died April 17, 1881. Edward D. was a very industrious and persevering young man, and had already founded a comfortable home at the time of his premature death.

Charles Edgar, second son, was born March 31, 1832, and married Rachel Broadwell September 1, 1860, who was born April 10, 1841, at Mt. Carmel, Ohio. They have two sons—Orlo Lark, born November 6, 1862; Onis Brent, born February 15, 1876; and one daughter—Grace Adena, born May 16, 1862. Charles was a surveyor and engineer (after being reared on a farm, where he studied and worked hard for an education), but finally settled down to merchandising, to which business he applies himself closely and shrewdly. He has served as justice of the peace one term and also as county surveyor.

Daniel Hosmer, third son, was born at Palmer February 24, 1844, and married Ella E. Rider November 5, 1868. They have one son, born May 3, 1876, named Wordsworth. He is a telegraph operator; has always made that his business, and is now superintendent of two lines of railway telegraph, viz: Hocking Valley, and Columbus & Toledo railroads. He lives at Columbus, Ohio, where he has built a fine residence on Long-street, near the crossing of Lexington avenue. He is a man of close application and good business habits, and stands high with his associates and the railroad companies.

Hiel Abner, third and youngest son, born August 19, 1853, married Flora Belle Ellenwood, November 13, 1879, is a young farmer, a man of good judgment, and prides himself on raising good stock and having everything near around him, and carries on the home farm at Vincent. Three sons, together with the daughters whose names will follow, were all born at Palmer, Washington county, Ohio.

Mary Melissa, the oldest daughter, was born March 31, 1834, and married Leonidas Pitt Pond November 23, 1854, who died January 25, 1875. Mr. Pond was hauling wood at a distance from his house; the ground was sloping and frozen but slightly thawed on top; the wagon slipped and upset, horses and all, into a broad gully, the wood under the wagon and Mr. Pond under one of the horses, which was also down. He was dead when found by his wife several hours afterward. He left four sons. Hiram Otis, the oldest, born November 15, 1855, was a telegraph operator in the principal office of the Columbus & Toledo railroad at Columbus, Ohio; is now chief train dispatcher on the same road. He was born minus one hand, the arm terminating a few inches below the elbow, an apparent evil perhaps working for his good. Charles Orland, second son, born November 26, 1858, a promising young man of six feet three inches; Beman Lew, third son, born June 9, 1867, and Sylvester Pitt, fourth and last son, born February 22, 1870.

Martha Jane, second daughter of H. Gard, was born January 29, 1836, and married Joel Mason Danley June 19, 1856, who enlisted in the Union army in the spring of 1862 for three years, and before he had seen many months' service, took the measles, followed by pneumonia, which caused his death at Carthage Ferry while in the service of his country. He reared one son, Robert Joel Mason, born September 26, 1861 (this son is also a telegraph operator in the principal office of the Hocking Valley railroad at Columbus), and one daughter, Ida Leona, born June 27, 1858, married to Stewart E. Crewson.

Helen Josephine, third daughter, was born August 22, 1839, and was married to Henry C. Vincent January 20, 1864. They have one son, Fred Wilber, born July 1, 1864. Mr. Vincent lives at Vincent, Ohio; he is also a telegraph operator, one of the first who learned to operate on the old Marietta and Cincinnati railroad; he has followed the business most of his life.

Hiram Gard, the subject of the portrait, was born in Washington county, in what was then called the White Oak settlement, which is now included in Palmer township. From 1805 to 1810 he was absent in Virginia, after which he returned and remained until 1854, when he removed to Vincent, in Barlow township. He was absent from that place some five years, living at New England, Athens county; at the expiration of which he returned to Vincent, where he now resides. In early life he was engaged to some extent in driving and dealing in stock, also in merchandising and milling. Subsequently at Vincent he graded about one and a half miles of the old Marietta & Cincinnati railroad track. At the age of nineteen he was elected a captain of militia, and a year or two later, lieutenant colonel of the same. In 1840 he was elected county commissioner for Washington county. He was frequently called to serve as viewer of State and county roads, and as justice of the peace in different townships in Washington and Athens counties. He once received a tie vote for nomination as representative of Washington county. He married, February 25, 1830, Ataline Gage Duns-moor, the daughter of Phineas and Polly Duns-moor, of Goshen, Sullivan county, New Hampshire. On February 25, 1880, they celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their happy wedded life, surrounded by all their children, most of their grandchildren, and many of their friends.

Hiram Gard, to a character of sterling worth unites a genial, hearty temperament, which rejoices in the society of friends, and finds the chief pleasure of life in their companionship. A good talker, he possesses a fund of anecdote and reminiscence which makes him excellent company. He has that self-depreciation and that lack of self-consciousness which render him always more thoughtful for the happiness of others than of himself. His incorruptible honesty as well as his strong hold on the affections of his acquaintances and friends are illustrated by an incident in his business career. At one time he became deeply involved in debt, and his friends urged him to avail himself of the advantage of the bankrupt law. He refused to do so, saying in substance that it was a law for sneaks. "There is my property," said he, "take it and divide it up among you as far as it will go, and if I ever make any more I will pay the whole debt; but I will not take advantage of the bankrupt law." Several judgments were secured against him, and articles of his property were, in pursuance thereof, offered at sheriff's sale; but in no instance, save one, was there one of his neighbors who was willing to bid, and, consequently, the property remained unsold. He redeemed himself and paid all in full.

Phineas Duns-moor was born in Townsend, Massachusetts, December 29, 1771. Polly Gage, his wife, was born in Pelham, New Hampshire, July 16, 1782, and was the daughter of Abner Gage, a soldier in the Revolutionary war, and at the battle of Bunker Hill had a portion of his foot taken off by a cannon ball. They were married April 10, 1798. He owned a large farm at Charleston, New Hampshire, where they resided until Ataline was about five years old, when he sold his farm and purchased a hotel stand and farm adjoining, at Goshen, Sullivan county, New Hampshire, where they resided until Ataline was ten years old; he then sold his property in New Hampshire, and bought of J. Buck a farm of nine hundred and five acres, situated in the Ohio company's purchase, Wesley township, Washington county, Ohio. They left New Hampshire the same spring and arrived in Wesley, July 25, 1822. He died May 6, 1823, at the same place, leaving his widow with seven children. These were: Horace, born October 11, 1799; Abner G., born March 17, 1804; Mary K., born August 13, 1805; Hiel, born October 20, 1807; Lucius P., born January 25, 1810; Ataline G., born September 18, 1812 (all the above born at Charleston, New Hampshire); Daniel N., born in Goshen November 26, 1817. Their mother died at Barlow March 20, 1857. Their ancestors came to this country in 1719, and settled in Londonderry, New Hampshire. They descended from Lord John Dinsmore, of Achumeed, Scotland; who possessed a large tract of land in the north of Ireland, Londonderry county.

Londonderry, New Hampshire, derived its name from Londonderry, Ireland—name given by first settlers there. From the above are descended all the Dens-mores, Duns-moors, and Dins-mores of this county.

young rogues in "home-spun and linsey" would "cut-up" was nobody's business but the teacher's and he did not know it. When dismissed for noon, the first one on the ice was the best fellow—but the best fellow in this case happened to be a tall, portly girl, who generally led the van in all the sports. The old school-house has long since, with the youthful actors in the scenes about its portals, passed away forever.

The early schools received some support from the rents of the lands granted by Congress for that purpose. The other expenses were paid by subscription from the parents who had children to send to school. As an illustration of how teachers were engaged the following contract is appended:

The article of agreement between James Lawton, jr. and his employers:

Witnesseth, that he on his part agrees to teach the school during the term of three months in which he is to teach the different parts of learning that may be required according to his best ability.

For the above service (when performed) the undersigned agree to give the said James Lawton the sum of $36.00, half in cash or store orders the other in the following articles of produce, viz: Merino wool (not less than one-fourth blooded) at 50 c. per lb., flax at 12½ whiskey at 31 c. per gal., linen cloth 30 c., and that which is called four and thirty linen.

This township has now eight school districts, all provided with school buildings and teachers supported under the present public school system at public expense. At the present time there are three hundred and forty-three pupils enrolled, with an average daily attendance of two hundred and twenty-seven. And the average number of weeks these schools were in session during the last year (1880) was twenty-six. The present educational advantages as compared with the past is not better exemplified in any other locality than in Barlow when we recall old Hickory school-house with its unhewn logs, its copy-book windows, clapboard seats, and few, if any books, with the present comfortable houses and many appliances and facilities in educational pursuits.

THE BARLOW AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATION.

In response to a call for a meeting to organize an agricultural society, about fifteen persons assembled at the town house in Barlow August 24, 1872. Daniel Canfield was called to the chair, and I. B. Lawton was appointed secretary. The election of officers resulted as follows: William Thompson, president; Thomas Fleming, vice-president; directors—for two years, John Ormiston, Daniel Canfield, C. S. Prugh, James H. Breckenridge; for one year, D. N. Dunsmore, Robert Dunlap, Rufus Beach, and C. H. Goddard; I. F. Palmer, secretary.

The grove of C. D. Ford, about a mile west of Barlow village, was immediately fitted up for the first exhibition, which was held September 24 and 25, 1872. The first exhibition was very much larger than was anticipated, there being over three hundred entries, and general interest was awakened and deepened by the discussion of various questions of farm interest.

The total receipts for the first year were seventy-five dollars and thirty-five cents; expenses, fifty-six dollars and ninety-four cents; leaving a balance of eighteen dollars and forty-one cents in the treasury, to begin the improvements and make arrangements for the next exhibition.

The grounds are now amply fitted for a very creditable display; having a domestic and art hall twenty by sixty feet, farm products hall twenty by sixty feet, an ornamental flower pavilion with a fountain, a sheep shed of fifty-six pens, arranged in a circle, enclosing an open space in the centre for exhibition; cattle and horse sheds containing over over one hundred and fifty stalls; and the enclosure of the grounds embraces an area of about fifteen acres, well supplied with water. The gross receipts of last year were six hundred and forty-six dollars and ninety-six cents, and expenditures five hundred and ninety-four dollars and ninety-nine cents. The present officers are: William Thompson, president; Robert Breckenridge, vice-president; directors, Thomas Fleming, C. S. Prugh, Roscoe Walcott, John Ormiston, C. S. Laflin, D. R. Shaw, J. H. Breckenridge; I. F. Palmer, treasurer; F. P. Deming, secretary.

BARLOW TEMPERANCE UNION.

The object of this society is to increase the interest in the cause of temperance. The Murphy pledge is used and the meetings are public, which are enlivened and made attractive by literary exercises. The first meeting was held February 26, 1880, at the Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. J. D. Palmer was called to the chair, and prayer offered by Rev. S. B. Ricketts. Sixty-five persons signed the pledge at the first meeting, and the membership has increased to two hundred and twenty-five. The election of officers resulted as follows: D. H. Merrill, president; J. H. Breckenridge, vice-president; Miss Nettie Loynacan, secretary; Miss Anna R. Ford, treasurer. The Union is now in active and successful operation, and is considered as an effectual agent in promoting moral reform in this locality.

WOOL GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

The sheep breeders and wool growers of Washington county met at the residence of William Thompson, in Fairfield township, March 24, 1876, for the purpose of organizing an association. Thomas Fleming was called to the chair, and G. B. Quinn, secretary; R. Breckenridge, treasurer. The committee appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws reported as the object of the association, the promotion of harmony and more intelligent action among sheep breeders by the interchange of ideas and information, and the careful and unprejudiced comparison of stock and productions. On motion it was decided that a "shearing" be held the following spring at the residence of William Thompson, and a committee was appointed to arrange for the meeting. James Hiatt, Andrew Harvey, William R. Putnam, James Trotter, George Coffman, and Pemberton Palmer were appointed judges of sheep. At this shearing, which was held May 1, 1876, the examinations were made as to the breed, age, age of fleece, weight of carcasses and of fleece, quality of wool and condition, length of staple, density of fleece, yoliness, covering of belly, head, and legs, wrinkliness, form and constitution. The sheep were first examined by the committee, then sent to the shearer; the shearer turns the fleeces over to the committee on fleeces, and, after examination, they are bundled and labelled, and recorded by the secretary. Over one hundred and fifty head of sheep were presented for examination at the first meeting.

The meetings of the association are held regularly once a month from October to May. The present officials are: Joseph H. Gage, president; John Ormiston, vice-president; F. P. Deming, secretary; R. Breckenridge, treasurer.

BARLOW GRANGE NO. 712 PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

The organization of this grange was effected in April, 1874, and the original officials were: D. N. Dunsmore, master; J. B. Lawton, overseer; C. C. Lawton, lecturer; J. W. Bradhurst, chaplain; D. Hartson, steward; Andrew Harvey, assistant steward; S. W. Harvey, secretary; D. H. Fleming, treasurer; Mrs. S. W. Harvey, Ceres; Mrs. P. Dunsmore, Pomona; Mrs. D. H. Fleming, Flora; Miss Hannah Fleming, stewardess. The charter members, including the above, were: E. F. Greene, P. Dunsmore, D. A. Dunsmore, William Fleming, J. W. Morris, Josiah Scott, Tremont Malster, Misses Emma Fleming, Nettie and Sarah Henry.

The building in which the meetings are held is located in East Barlow, and is a frame twenty by forty feet, erected by the grange in 1874. The meetings have been harmonious, though in debate on various questions affecting general interests, opinions are freely expressed, no serious discussions have occurred, and at present, though somewhat embarrassed by financial difficulties, in which this and other granges became involved by departing from grange principles and attempting to conduct business on plans not contemplated by the organization. This embarrassment has seriously injured the grange movement, although, so far as this society is concerned, every effort is being made to push the finances to final and satisfactory settlement, and to continue the organization, and make it an organization of substantial benefit to all classes as well as the farmer. The present membership is about twenty, though but about half of the original membership, it embraces among its numbers many of the substantial and reliable farmers of this locality.

CEMETERIES.—BARLOW CENTRAL CEMETARY ASSOCIATION.

This association was formed February 14, 1859, at a meeting called for that purpose, held at the town house in Barlow village. The officers of the association were elected, viz: D. C. Perry, John Vincent, James W. Merrill, James Haddow, and J. H. Breckenridge, trustees; James W. Merrill, treasurer; John Lawton, sexton. An addition was made to the old burying-grounds immediately east of Barlow village, on the Proctor farm. The lots were surveyed twelve by twenty feet, with an alley four feet wide between. These grounds are kept in repair by the association, and are now the principal burying-grounds of the township.

MILLS.

In early times "going to mill" was a pilgrimage requiring long absence from home, and at best, an uncertain return, and accompanied by many difficulties unknown to the present generation. Henry E. Vincent leaves on record a very full description of a journey of this kind from this locality to the mill on Big Hocking, some fifteen or twenty miles distant. The roads were but paths through the woods, and often led dangerously near the deep gorges and precipices of the rough country through which he passed. In the route he passed along the Big West branch, and here met with an accident. By a sudden slide of the wagon his load was precipitated over a precipice; down went sack after sack bounding over the rocks and tumbling over each other in their rapid descent, and to crown all, his bucket of biscuits burst from their confinement and went skipping down over the rocks after the sacks of grain, causing the hapless victim to smile in the midst of the disaster. He finally arrived at the mill, though it was fast growing dark, on Friday, and was informed that he could not have the grist before the following Sunday. But there were several others there patiently waiting for their supply of meal, and they camped around the miller's fire, where they passed the time in telling jokes, and the fun and mirth that went gaily around the miller's fire during those long nights must be imagined. The trip home was performed on the following Sunday, and by the assistance of a neighbor who rode with him from the mill, he was finally enabled to reach home in safety.

Barlow mill, located in the village of Barlow, was erected in 1859, by Haynes & Basim, and now belongs to Merrill & Ford, operated by D. E. Basim. It is a substantial frame building, two stories high, and has two run of stone, with capacity of two hundred bushels per day.

Since the abandonment of the railroad no shipping has been done, the trade being generally confined to custom work. This is the only flour mill within the bounds of the township, and now furnishes a large and growing community with all the usual commodities of the trade.

BARLOW VILLAGE.

The plat of this village was originally made in 1840, with John McCuig, Horatio Ford and Lyman Laflin, proprietors, and consisted of eleven lots of fifty-four acres each, and located near the Marietta and Belpre roads. The first house within the plat was a small frame located on the southeast corner (now used as a kitchen to J. W. Merritt's residence), and was built by Elias Woodruff and John Pratt for a grocery. The first store was where the present store of Merrill Bros. now stands, and Lyman Laflin kept the first post office south of the present store. At present the village has one general store, one blacksmith shop, one tin shop, one shoe shop, one wagon shop, one cabinet-maker and undertaker and one flour mill, two physicians and three churches.

Fleming station is a small collection of houses with one store and post office kept by Lyman Tullis in east part of township on the old Marietta & Cincinnati railroad.

VINCENT STATION.

This small village, located in the southwestern part of the township on the old line of the Marietta & Cincinnati railroad, was first laid out in lots, August 3, 1853, by Henry Earle Vincent, proprietor. The first house built within the original plat was erected by Enoch Preston on lot eight, where he kept the first house of entertainment and where he yet lives as proprietor of the Preston house. The first post office was kept by Henry E. Vincent in the present station house (1857), and the first store was kept by Church B. Tuttle on the lot, where the present store house of H. Gard & Son now stands. The village now contains two general stores, one saloon, one church, and one cooper-shop. The abandonment of the Marietta & Cincinnati railroad was a serious blow to the rather flattering prospects of the village from which there are small hopes of recovery.

CHAPTER LVI.

WESLEY TOWNSHIP.

The Township Established—Physical Features—First Election of Township Officers—Roads Established—Banishment of a Destitute Family—Wheat Received for Taxes—Census in 1826—Settlement—Societies—Schools—Churches—Cemeteries—Villages—Mills—Tannery—Incidents—Underground Railroad.

WESLEY township was established on petition of Joseph Palmer and others, in 1810, and originally embraced the territory of township three, range ten, and township seven, range eleven, then belonging to Wooster, also the south half of township eight, range eleven, belonging to Roxbury. Afterwards sections one, two, three, four, five, six of township seven, and sections one, two, three of township eight were added. At present it is nine miles long from north to south, and four miles wide, containing in all thirty sections, embracing an area of almost twenty thousand acres. It is bounded on the north by Morgan county, east by Palmer and Fairfield, south by Decatur, on the east by Athens county, and has a population of fourteen hundred and seventy-seven. The surface maintains the general aspect common to this section of country—high rolling lands, and in various localities broken in high hills and deep ravines. The soil is of yellow and red clay, productive chiefly of fruits of all kinds, wheat, corn and other ordinary cereals. The industries belong mostly to the agricultural, though there are several flouring-mills, saw-mills, tannery, and other minor manufactures. The timber consists mostly of white and red oak, with some walnut and poplar. The west branch of Wolf creek enters the township in the extreme northwest corner, and following a zigzag course southwest, enters Fairfield from section twenty-six. This stream usually furnishes sufficient force for flour-mills during most of the year.

Coal run, a small stream, enters the township at the northwest, and, flowing in a southeast course, empties into Wolf creek, north of Coady & Gage's mill. Several other unimportant branches are found in the west and south.

The State road leading from Harmar, on the Ohio river, to Athens was first laid out by the county commissioners, January 27, 1848. It extends across the central part of the township, from east to west, through the villages of Pleasanton and Plymouth, where it receives the main north and south thoroughfares.

ORGANIZATION.

The first officials of the township were appointed August 12, 1810, viz.: Trustees, Joseph Palmer, Cornelius Houghland and John Rardin; township clerk, Samuel Clark; overseer of poor, Abner Woodruff and Duty Greene; fence-viewers, John Danley and Henry Coons; lister of taxes, James Lawton; appraiser, William Vincent; supervisors, Robert Miller, David Gard, Isaac Woodruff, William Rardin and Edmund Neal; constables, David Ewell and Isaac Woodruff; treasurer, John Curtis. In the following October, Joseph Palmer and Cornelius Houghland were elected justices of the peace.

The first general election was held April 1, 1811, resulting as follows: Trustees, John Rardin, Duty Greene and John Danley; clerk, Samuel Clark; overseers of poor, Edmund Neal and Nathan Proctor; fence-viewers, Joshua Shuttleworth and James Corns; lister of taxes, Isaac Woodruff; appraiser, William Vincent; constables, David Ewell and Jabez Palmer; treasurer, John Curtis. Members of grand jury were first selected in 1815—David Ewell and David Gard; petit jury, Samuel Pond and John Danley. The first settlement by the treasurer, of which any record is found, was made by Samuel Pond, treasurer, March 16, 1815, showing the receipt from all sources of thirty-four dollars and twenty-three and one-half cents, and leaving in the treasury after settlement, four dollars and ninety-three and one-half cents.

On the thirteenth of April, 1816, the road districts were first laid out by Cornelius Houghland, John Danley and William Rardin, under Benajah Horse, township clerk. The first notice against the poor was issued by Joseph Palmer and William Coons, overseers, March 4, 1818, warning "James Lockwood and Phoebe, his wife, and all their children, to depart out of this township, as it is found they have no visible means of support and are in danger of coming onto the township." This notice was served by Michael Gard, constable, and it is supposed that its purpose was effected and that the poor family was compelled to "move on" out of the township.

At a meeting of trustees, April 2, 1821, a resolution was passed enabling those indebted to the township for taxes to pay the same in wheat, to be delivered at the mill of Samuel Brown, now in Palmer township, on Wolf creek, at fifty cents per bushel.

In 1826 the first recorded census of the householders of Wesley township shows a list of ninety-four names. This then included what is now Fairfield township with Wesley. This great expanse of territory had less than one hundred families as late as 1826, shows something of the progress this township has made in the past fifty years.

EARLY SETTLEMENTS.

Among the earliest pioneers of Wesley, we find the name of Honorable Thomas Ewing, who settled on the farm now owned by James W. Smith, just west of Plymouth. He built his log-cabin about seventy-five rods southwest of the present farm residence of Mr. Smith. A few fruit trees still stand as the only mark of the spot where the venerable statesman lived.

Moses Woodruff, who came from Pennsylvania, built his log-cabin two miles north of Plymouth, near the present residence of John Morrow, in section thirty.

John Rardin's cabin stood just where the present residence of Dr. Munroe now stands in Pleasanton.

Henry Rardin erected his cabin on the farm now owned by John Morrow, in section thirty. These settlements were all made prior to 1810, in which year James Ward Smith settled on the farm now owned by his son, James, immediately west of Plymouth, and occupied the cabin built by Thomas Ewing.

Robert Brackenridge lived about one mile southeast of Pleasanton, in the cabin which stood on the opposite side of the road from the present residence of Charles Haines, in section thirty-four.

Jacob Mullen erected his cabin on the west branch of Little Hocking river, about fifty rods southeast of the present farm-house of James A. McGrew, in section twenty-seven.

William Coaley lived on the farm now owned by Cyrus Wilson in section twenty-eight.

Soloman Gable erected his cabin on the site of the present residence of James King, in section twenty-seven.

Joseph Ames settled on the farm now owned by E. Hollingsworth, north of the State road, in section twenty-two.

Levi Arnold, two miles east of Plymouth, where Dixon Graham now lives, in section twenty-two.

James W. Smith was born in 1809, and came with his father's family to this township in 1810, and has lived on the homestead farm ever since. He was married in 1830, to Eliza Goddard, who was born in New Hampshire in 1813. To them were born eight children—six of whom are now living, viz.: Pherona T., wife of James W. Barnes, now resides in Cincinnati; Elonzo H., now living in Dunham township; Edward F., resides in Dakota Territory; Waldo, living in this township; Lucy, at home; and Clarence C., now living in Wesley township. Mr. Smith has filled several township offices, and has been a citizen of this township longer than any one now living within its boundaries—a period of three score years and ten.

James Waldo Smith, jr., was born in this township in 1838, and was married to Mary A. Gage in 1864, who was born in 1847. They have a family of four children, viz.: Oscar B., Myron A., Lucy S., Ethel F. Mr. Smith's farm is located about one mile north of Plymouth. He is quite extensively engaged in raising stock.

Soloman N. Cook settled in Wesley township in 1814, coming from New Hampshire in 1814, where he was born in 1785. He married Mary Cook, whose parents were early settlers of Palmer township. She was born in 1786, and died in 1868. Mr. and Mrs. Cook have five children, three of whom are still living, all in this county.

Philip Schrader, sr., was born in Maryland, and was married to a daughter of Michael Montgomery in 1805. He first settled in Wesley township in September, 1816, having purchased three hundred and twenty acres of land from William Skinner, sr., for which he paid eight hundred dollars. He located about one mile north of the present village of Plymouth. He had a family of eleven children, eight boys and three girls, all of whom have grown to maturity in Washington county. He died in Licking county, Ohio, in 1865, his wife having died in Athens county in 1862.

Levi Arnold came from Wood county, Virginia, and first settled on the farm now owned by Dixon Graham on the State road, two miles east of Plymouth, section twenty-two. He was born in Virginia in 1801, and was married to Sarah Ingram, who was born in 1803, and died in 1867. He died in Missouri in 1867. While he resided in Wesley he was one of the leading citizens, and held the office of clerk and trustee, and was justice of the peace sixteen years.

Benjamin F. Arnold, son of Levi, was born in Wesley township in 1825, and was married to Maria Palmer, who was born in 1827. To them were born twelve children, seven of whom are now living, viz.: Laura Orinda, wife of Oliver Miller, now living in Wesley township; Dena Johnson resides in Helena, Montana; Lucy Jane, wife of Charles Barnes, living in Morgan county, Ohio. Levi Sibley, Anzonetta, Alpha Diena, and Frank Benjamin are all at home. Mr. Arnold has been justice of the peace for twelve years. He entered the army in May, 1864, as second lieutenant, under Captain W. F. Dawson, One Hundred and Forty-eighth Ohio National guard. After serving four months he returned to his business of tanning at the present place, where he has operated since 1859.

George Martin, a native of Scotland, was born in 1780, and died in 1832. He was married to Rebecca McKollister, born in 1780, and died in 1862. They had a family of twelve children; nine are yet living.

Alexander, fifth child of George and Rebecca Martin, was born in Wesley township in 1816, and was married in 1848 to Phoebe Coaler, who was born in 1823. The names of their children are as follows: John, who now resides in Palmer township; Lucy, Ordella, Douglas, and William, all now at home. He resides on his farm, which is located in the northwest part of the township, section twenty-six.

Stephen Randolph, son of James and Margery, was born in 1831. His wife, Sarah Kester, to whom he was married in 1852, died in 1853. Marian, their only child, now resides in Hocking county, Ohio. He was again married, in 1856, to Narcissa Chamberlain, who was born in 1831. To them were born six children, as follows: Cameron W., Laura J., Clarence M., Everett L., Lowell W., and Lucy E., all residing at home. He has served as trustee and constable, and was in the three months service during the late war. He resides on his farm in section thirty-three.

Milton D. Fowler, the present postmaster of Bartlett post office (Plymouth), was born in 1822, and was married in 1863 to Susan James, who was born in 1832. He came to Wesley in 1838, and was raised on the farm which he cleared for his father, and afterwards moved to his present location in 1872, and engaged in the grocery business; was appointed postmaster in 1873, which position he yet holds. He is a member of the Friends society; also a member of the Masonic order, and is known as a straightforward and respected citizen of Wesley township.

JAS. W. SMITH.

MRS. J. W. SMITH.

RESIDENCE OF J. W. SMITH, WESLEY TP., WASHINGTON CO., O

James King was born in Pennsylvania in 1818. He removed to Morgan county, Ohio, in 1824. In 1841 he was married to Deborah Stephen, born in Berks county, Pennsylvania, in 1819. In 1843 he came to this county and settled in Wesley, where he now resides. He has had a family of eleven children, eight of whom are living, viz: Rebecca, wife of A. W. Naylor, banker, Des Moines, Iowa; Nora, wife of Professor D. R. Moore, of Mahaska, Iowa; Anna M., Ida A., wife of J. C. Picket; James S., a Methodist minister; Mary, wife of Professor J. Wolf; Helen A. and Charles. Mr. King has served nine years as township trustee; was elected three times as land appraiser of the township; was one of the two who first advocated the establishing of Bartlett academy, of which he has since been a trustee. He became a member of the Masonic order in 1852, and was one of the charter members of Bartlett Lodge, No. 293. He has always been an active temperance man.

John L. Brill, son of John and Mary, was born in Bradford county, Pennsylvania, in 1801. His wife, Eleanor Shively, to whom he was married in 1828, was born in 1808 in Loudoun county, Virginia. He settled in Wesley, where he now resides, in 1836. To them were born ten children, nine now living, viz: Ezra, resides in Morgan county, Ohio; Isaiah, in Athens county, Ohio; Hamilton, in Kansas; Commillia J., wife of Aaron Kester; William, in Washington county; Benjamin, at Ironton, Ohio; Margery, at home; John R., at Oscaloosa, Iowa, and Sarah J., wife of William Jewell. Mr. and Mrs. Brill are prominent members of the Methodist Episcopal church, and as the result of industry now possess a farm of one hundred acres of land.

James Bowman, son of Isaac and Ann, was born in Stark county, Ohio, December 15, 1818, deceased 1880. He was married in 1842 (May 25th), to Elizabeth Bailly, who was born December 1, 1820.

Henry Bowman, third child, was born in Wesley township, in 1847, and was married in 1868 to Rachel B. Crew, who was born in 1845. They have a family of four children, namely: Joseph T., Elizabeth J., Edith A., and Mattie C. His father settled in Wesley in 1837, where he resided until his death. Henry now owns a farm of sixty acres, eight acres where he now resides engaged in raising stock—section thirty-seven.

John Morris, son of Benjamin and Lydia, was born in North Carolina in 1790, and was married in 1814 to Rachel Coppark, who was born in Pennsylvania in 1790, deceased in 1843. He settled in this county in 1838. They had a family of twelve children, only one of whom survives.

Joshua Morris, jr., the only living member of this family, was born in Belmont county, Ohio, September 3, 1824, and was married in 1847 to Eliza Ann Tullis, who was born in 1822. To them were born nine children, seven now living, viz: Hannah, Emeline, Rachel, Linley, Ruthana, Benjamin F., and Richard E. Mr. Morris now owns two hundred and seventy-five acres of land, where he resides—section thirty-one.

Gideon Mills, a native of North Carolina, settled in Washington county in 1839. His children now living are Isaac, Reuben, Esther, Ezra and Lewis. Lewis Mills was born in 1814, and deceased in 1880. He was married in 1844, to Ann Smith, who was born in Virginia in 1821. They had six children, namely: Job S. who resides in Franklin county, Ohio; Simon G. and John A., both at home; W. J., in Franklin county, Ohio; Sarah L., wife of M. Tuttle; Rebecca, now at home; Emma is dead. He held the office of justice of the peace for nine years; T. W. Mills enlisted in company D, Seventy-seventh Ohio volunteer infantry in 1861, and now lies in an unknown southern grave; J. S. Mills is a member of the United Brethren church.

Robert Williams, son of John and Mary, was born in 1813, and was united in marriage in 1838, to Phoebe Boker, who was born in 1810. They have a family of five children now living: Eli H., Jason B., Sarah M., now Mrs. William H. Beazell; John T., and Robert H., both at home. He emigrated to this county in 1858, and settled in Wesley township, where he has since resided on his present farm, and located in the eastern part of the township, section six.

John Spears was born in Pennsylvania in 1813. He was married to Margaret Zumbro, who was born in 1816, and settled in Wesley township in 1852. He has a family of four children, namely: Jane, who resides at home; Henry, who lives in Athens county, Ohio; William and Malinda, both at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Spears are members of the United Brethren church and among its most liberal and earnest supporters. He located in the northern part of the township, where he now lives in section thirty.

Job Addis, son of John and Mary, was born in Fayette county, Pennsylvania, in 1816. His wife, Hester A. Hartman, to whom he was married in 1847, was born in 1822. They emigrated from Pennsylvania in 1858, and settled in Wesley township, where they have since resided. He now resides on his farm located in the northern part of the township in section twenty-four. They hold affiliation with the Disciples church, are strong advocates of social order and morality in the community, in which they live as respected members.

Elisha J. Holloway, son of James and Phoebe Holloway, was born in Belmont county, Ohio, in 1819, and was married in 1840, to Lydia Vanlaw, daughter of John and Sarah Vanlaw, who was born in 1820, in Belmont county. To them were born five children: Phoebe L., Mary, Lucinda, Edwin, and Samuel. Lucinda, the only one now living, was married to William Steele, and lives in Plymouth, and has a family of three children: Horatio, Samuel R., and Rufus. Phoebe L. was married to Samuel Kirby, and resided in Plymouth, where she died, leaving one child, Walter. Mr. and Mrs. Holloway are members of the Friends church, and were zealous friends of the slave during the agitation of the slavery question. He is now in the produce business in Plymouth.

James Morrow, son of James and Rebecca, was born in Pennsylvania in 1796, and was married to Sarah More, who was born in 1798, and died in 1866. They emigrated to Ohio and settled in this township in 1850, on the farm where he now lives, section thirty. He had a family of five children: John, who now lives on the farm; Rebecca, deceased; Polly, wife of Thomas Williamson, now deceased; Charles and Jesse C., both living in Plymouth. Captain Jesse C. Morrow was born in Beaver county, Pennsylvania, and was married in 1856 to Mary A. Pewthers, who was born in Washington county, Ohio, in 1836, and deceased in 1860. To them were born two children: Lucia A., now living at home; and Charles L., living in St. Paul, Minnesota. He was remarried in 1867 to Mrs. Lucia A. Vanlaw, daughter of Thomas Swaim, born in 1842. They have two children—Emma L. and Myron M.—both living at home. He enlisted in the Union army during the late war in company B, Thirty-sixth Ohio volunteer infantry, and was first made orderly sergeant, and was promoted successively in the several offices until he was made captain of company D. He was honorably discharged after having served from 1861 to 1865, from the beginning to the close of the war. He has held the offices of trustee and treasurer of the township, is a blacksmith by profession, and is at present engaged in this vocation where he resides, at Plymouth.

E. Hollingsworth, son of Elisha and Sarah Hollingsworth, was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, in 1827, and was married in 1848 to Mary J., daughter of William and Eleanor Harris, who was born in 1832 and died in 1866. They had a family of six children: Jemima L., wife of A. W. Graham; E. T. J. resides in this county; William D. and George R., both at home; Sarah E. and Phœbe E., deceased. He was again married in 1866, to Sarah J., daughter of Jonah and Nancy Taberner, who was born in 1836. They have one child, Mary J. They are both efficient and prominent members of the Methodist Episcopal church. They reside on their farm, section twenty-two.

John Zumbro, sr., came from Pennsylvania in 1848, and settled about one mile north of the present store of his son, John, section twenty-six. He was born April 26, 1806, and married February 5, 1829, to Catharine Price, who was born July 20, 1809. They had a family of seven children—Abraham, Joseph, Henry, John, Jacob, Mary E., and Benjamin. John Zumbro, jr., was born in Pennsylvania February 28, 1842, and was married to Louisa Jane Haas. They have three children—Emma A., Minnie C., and Alpha Adelia. He came to this township when he was six years old, and was reared on the farm where he remained until 1863, when he began teaching school, in which he continued until 1866. He bought his uncle's farm in 1867. In 1871 he sold the farm and began keeping store at his present location, about three miles north of Plymouth (Patten's Mills post office).

Ranson S. Gage was born September 25, 1862, in Fairfield township. His father, Horace D. Gage, was born in 1842, and was married to Margaret Josephine Coady. They have a family of seven children—Ranson S., Alice, Alva, May, Jay, Lucy, and Lena. Ranson began to assist his father in the flour-mill in 1876, and took charge of the present mills, known as Patten's mills, under the name of Coady & Gage, December 1, 1880, where he at present operates. He is a young man of energy and perseverance, and, though having undertaken the mill under some embarrassments, present indications are favorable for his future success.

Henry S. Barnes was born in Greene county, Pennsylvania, in 1810, son of Otho and Anna Barnes. He was married to Maria Price, daughter of John and Sarah, born in Maryland in 1809, and deceased in 1833. They had one child, Otho, who now resides in Belmont county, Ohio. He was again married in 1838 to Eliza A. Whittington, who was born in Maryland in 1817, and died in 1877. To them were born eight children, five now living—Anna, Amanda, Euphemia, and Caleb, all at home. Charles resides in Morgan county, Ohio. Lewis was in the Union army, and was one of the martyrs who gave their lives for their country in the prison pen at Andersonville. Mr. Barnes settled in this township in 1847, on his present farm, section six.

Richard J. Barton was born in Guernsey county, Ohio, in 1824—son of Alexander and Frances—and was married in 1847 to Sarah J. Keigley, daughter of William and Mary Keigley, who was born in 1827. They had a family of seven children, five of whom are now living—William A., resides at Portsmouth; Sarah C., wife of George W. Hance, Newark, Ohio; Virginia, now Mrs. E. Stanton, Athens county, Ohio; Susan, and Mary, both at home. He has a farm located in the northwest part of the township, section six. He has been a resident of this township since 1869.

Jason Williams, son of Robert and Phœbe, was born in Pennsylvania in 1845. His wife, Jane Hance, daughter of Kinsey and Charlotta, to whom he was married in 1877, was born in Belmont county, Ohio, in 1848. They have a family of two children—Archie, and an infant daughter. Mrs. Williams is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church; but he, though a strong advocate of law and order, does not belong to any religious organization. He now owns eighty acres of land, on which he resides, section five.

LODGES.

The Bartlett lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, No. 293, was organized October 24, 1856. The charter members were: S. C. Vanlaw, R. Hodgins, S. Heald, C. C. Cheadle, James King, H. S. Barnes, John Hass, D. Shinn, Elias Bundy, Benjamin Pickering, S. W. Phillips, and Jacob Perkins. Officials: C. C. Cheadle, master; S. C. Vanlaw, senior warden; James King, junior warden.

This organization has held its meetings regularly since the charter was granted, and has a very neat and tasty lodge room over the hardware store in Plymouth.

The Sons of Temperance and Good Templars have both had organizations here; but while these special meetings have now ceased and the organizations abandoned, their influence has made its mark on the moral history of this township. United with the religious societies the battle against intemperance was earnest, bold and decisive; and the fact that at one time there were three saloons here, while now there is not a place within the township where intoxicating liquors are sold, is justly claimed as a great victory in a great moral contest.

SCHOOLS.

The first school-house in this township was built about one mile north of Plymouth, about 1819. It was constructed of round, unhewn logs after the style common in these early days. The first teacher was Miss Hewitt, after her were Neil Rowell and Isaac Runnels.

School-houses after this same style were soon erected in various localities throughout the township, and for many years they were supported by private subscription, and the sessions were necessarily short and irregular, and affording the children of the early settlers very meagre opportunities for intellectual improvement. Under the present public school system there are twelve school districts, all supplied with teachers and good school-buildings. The number of scholars now enrolled is four hundred and fifty-seven; average daily attendance, two hundred and fifty-four; average weeks in session during the year, twenty-seven; average monthly wages, forty-four dollars.

These early teachers experienced difficulties incident to those early days, when it was of ordinary occurrence to "bar the teacher out" and compel him to treat the school, before he was allowed to enter. The Rardin boys and John Mullin are remembered as leaders in these sports. One time, on a Christmas, they barred Neal Rowell out, and after a long trial to gain access, he promised to sign a paper obligating himself to furnish the cider and apples for the school, but he signed "Neal Rowell, not bound" and it is safe to say that the cider and apples were never produced under that contract.

BARTLETT'S ACADEMY.

This institution was organized in 1856. The first board of trustees were: Joseph Penrose, president, Joseph K. Bucy, Isaac Emmons and James King, and Jefferson M. Heston was first principal with one assistant. The first building was purchased of the Presbyterian church for seven hundred dollars, and has been remodelled and improved, is now two stories high, with cupola and bell; and is a substantial frame structure, forty by thirty-five. The recitation rooms are on the first floor, and it has seating capacity for more than seventy-five on the second floor. The boarding hall for students joins the academy on the east, and is operated by a joint-stock company. The institution has continued for now almost a quarter of a century with variable degrees of success. The location is considered healthy, the community radically temperate and eminently moral. Present number of students, seventy-four. The object of the present administration is to impart good academic instruction, prepare students for college, and to train teachers by thorough normal drill. Faculty, Professor Z. G. Bundy, president; Professor William Eldridge, languages and mathematics; Professor D. R. Emmons, penmanship.

CHURCHES.

The first religious meetings in this township were held in the log cabins of the pioneers, until the school-houses were built in which the public services were then held. The first church building in the township was erected by the Methodist Episcopal society about one and a half miles north of Plymouth, 1825. Among the first ministers were: David Young (Protestant Episcopal), Jacob Young and Samuel Hamilton; first trustees were James W. Smith, sr., John Rardin, and Frederick Cradlebaugh. Services were held in this rude log-cabin until 1855, when the present house at Pleasanton was built. The building is a plain frame, forty by fifty, and is located in the northwest part of the village. This denomination has a parsonage in the village, and occupies the site of the former one destroyed by fire in 1871. Present pastor, Rev. D. M. Smith. Services every alternate Sabbath, Sabbath-school every Sunday.

FRIENDS' CHURCH (PLYMOUTH).

The first organization of this society was made in 1837. The meeting for this purpose was held at the residence of Edward McConnell one quarter of a mile east of Plymouth, on north side of State road. The first minister was Lydia McConnell, who preached here for a number of years; then Sarah Mott took charge, holding services at private houses until 1842, when they built a log meeting-house one quarter of a mile east of Plymouth, where regular services were held until 1856, when the present frame house located one quarter of a mile north of Plymouth was erected. Services are now held every first and fourth days, under the ministry of Daniel Mott. Membership, eighteen families.

FRIENDS' CHURCH (SOUTHLAND).

This society is the outgrowth of the Plymouth organization, and is under the same ministry. The present meeting-house (frame, eighteen by thirty) was erected in 1850, and is located four miles southwest of Plymouth. It has a membership of ten or twelve families. Regular services are held here every first and fifth days. Daniel Mott is the present minister.

UNITED BRETHERN CHURCH.

In early times this denomination held meetings in a log cabin church, located about one-half mile west of Patten's mills, and was the first building erected by this society in the township. In 1870 the present house, located about three-fourths of a mile south of Patten's mills, was erected. It is a substantial frame, about twenty-eight to thirty feet.

Among the early ministers of this denomination were Revs. Lease and Hood, who preached here for a number of years.

Rev. John Phillips is the present minister, holding services every Sunday. Present membership about thirty.

This denomination has another society and church building, located in the northwest part of the township.

The church building was erected about 1870, and is a frame structure of about twenty-eight to thirty feet. This society has a membership of about thirty, and is under the same ministerial charge with the other society. Services every Sunday.

CEMETERIES.

The burial grounds of this township, like all rural cemeteries, are located near the several churches. Some of them in this township are controlled by township trustees.

The first interments were made in the now abandoned grounds near the Methodist Episcopal church in Pleasanton, but no record can now be found to determine who were the first victims of the common destroyer.

VILLAGES.

Plymouth is a small village on the State road in the central part of the township, and was founded by Harvey Smith in 1835. The first business in the town was carried on by the founder, Harvey Smith, who manufactured hats in a log cabin in the rear of the present residence of Mrs. Crow, opposite the Faires House. James W. Smith kept the first licensed house of entertainment near the present residence of his son, just west of the town. Harvey Smith soon started a grocery in connection with his hat factory. He would string a few hats across his horse's back and ride to Marietta and exchange them for groceries and small articles, and carried his whole stock home with him in his saddle-bags.

The town has now grown to contain one general store, two shoe stores, one hotel, one fancy goods store, one hardware, and one millinery store.

Pleasanton was laid out by Milton Smith about three years after Plymouth, during the time when there was a movement made to organize a new county, of which this should be the county seat, and was called Pleasanton from the fact that it would be a pleasant place for the new court house. It joins Plymouth on the east, and so closely that it is difficult to determine where Plymouth leaves off and Pleasanton begins. The village now has one drug store, one general store, three blacksmith shops, one harness, and one wagon shop, one church, and one academy.

The post office is now in Pleasanton, and was established some time before Plymouth was laid out, and was called Bartlett post office, in honor of Amos Bartlett, who was instrumental in having an office established at this point, and who was the first postmaster.

The two villages are now really considered as one, and together have, by the late census, a population of two hundred and forty, and never having had the required population were never incorporated.

MILLS.

In early times the settlers of this township were compelled to go to what was known as the Barris mill, then located on Federal creek, eight miles north of Plymouth. The first flour-mill was built on Wolf creek in 1816, by George and John Martin. It was located on the opposite side of the creek from the present mill of Coady & Gage, known as Patten's mills, and was a frame building having two run of stone. From this mill the settlers received all their grists until the present mill, now operated by Ranson S. Gage for Coady & Gage, was erected. The present building is a frame of forty by sixty feet, has four run of stone with a capacity of four hundred bushels per day. The reaction wheels are propelled by water power.

The farmers' mill was built by Fergusson Brothers in 1877. It is a substantial frame, thirty-six by forty feet; has two run of stone, with a daily capacity of two hundred bushels. The power is received from a fifty horse-power engine. Its trade is a general local custom, yielding an income of about fifteen hundred dollars. It is located one-fourth of a mile north of Plymouth, and is now operated and owned by Messrs. Clark & Glen.

TANNERY.

As early as 1840 Hiram Rhodes operated a tannery on the site of the present tannery of B. F. Arnold. After him was Robert Hodgins for two or three years, and with some other changes of proprietorship it came into the hands of the present owner, B. F. Arnold. He has made very many improvements, adding a new structure. The present building is of three stories with basement, and is seventy by twenty feet. A stone wall eight feet high extends the whole length of one side and the ends, and two partition stone walls divide the basement into three rooms, in which the wet shaving, scouring, etc., are done; in the second room, beam-work, unhairing hides, and working vats; third room for bark. On the second floor is located the sale room, finishing department and bark mill. The third floor is used for drying. The capacity of the yard is as follows: Eighteen lay away vats, two vats for liming and two for vatsing, in the beam room, and three leeches, capable of tanning one thousand hides yearly. The local demand is all that is now sought to be supplied. Considerable shipments have been made from this tannery to Cincinnati, Philadelphia and New York.

INCIDENTS.

Levi Arnold was a hunter of some skill, and at one time he killed a deer in the forest, and bent down a sapling and swung the carcass up out of the reach of wild animals that infested the neighborhood. "Bill Wason," a common vagabond of the settlement, stole the carcass and carried it to his log hut, which stood on a by-path near the present residence of James King. Unfortunately for Wason, he failed to cover his tracks and Mr. Arnold with several of his neighbors followed the track to Wason's cabin door. The evidence of Wason's guilt was sufficient, and without the formalities of law the thief was taken and tied to a tree near his cabin and was severely lashed with hickory wyths. This is, no doubt, the first and only administration of justice by corporal punishment in this township.

The great Indian trail leading off Wolf creek extended southwest, passing the present southwest corner of the road in the northwest corner of section six. In this corner, as early as 1837 and for an unknown time before, hanging in a tree was the skull of an Indian horse. It was hung there no doubt by the Indians as a guideboard on the only pathway through the wilderness, but became regarded with some superstitious wonder and dread by the settlers, and the place was known as the "Horse Skull fork."

UNDERGROUND RAILROAD.

This name was given to the secret operations of the friends of freedom, known as abolitionists, in assisting the slaves of the neighboring slave States, to escape from bondage, to freedom in the north, or in Canada. The line extended from the Ohio river through Decatur and on through this township, along which the fleeing refugee was guided through the dark ravines and deep recesses by day, and hidden in the caves and caverns of these hills by night. They were passed along from station to station, where stood the secret friend to guide them on, to feed, and clothe, and cheer the panting fugitive, fleeing from the shackles and the lash in a land of boasted freedom. It is estimated that over one hundred slaves escaped to freedom through this township during that time.

Mr. James Ward Smith, grandfather of James Waldo, was one of the early settlers of the county. He was born in Genesee county, New York, and came thence to Wesley township, Washington county, Ohio, in 1810. He married, in New York State, a Miss Alderman. By her he had nine children, as follows: Vincent, Milton, Lawson, Harvey, James, Carmi, Talma, Eli, and Lucy. Of these, Milton, Carmi, and James are living; Carmi and James live in Washington county, Milton in the northern part of the State.

Mr. James Smith was born in 1809. He married Eliza Goddard, who is still living. Mr. and Mrs. Smith have had eight children, who, in the order of age, are as follows: Ferona T., Alonzo H., Edward F., James Waldo, Alphonso W., Sarah A., Lucy R., and Clarence C. Alphonso W. and Sarah A. are dead. Ferona T. married J. W. Barnes, and is living in Cincinnati, Ohio. Alonzo H., James Waldo, and Clarence C., are all farmers in Washington county. Lucy R. keeps a store in Plymouth, this county. Edward F. lives on his farm in Lincoln county, Dakota.

James Waldo Smith was born on the first day of June, 1838. He was educated in the common schools near his father's home. On coming to man's estate he bought a farm in Fairfield township, this county, which he, in 1862, traded to his brother, Edward F., for a part of his present farm. By additional purchase from time to time this property has grown to its present size. It is situated in Wesley township. Mr. Smith was married in 1864 to Miss Mary A. Gage, of Fairfield township. Four children are the fruit of this union: Roscoe B., born in 1865; Myron A., born in 1866; Lucy G., born in 1868; and Ethyl F., born in 1877. All of these are still living. Mr. Smith makes a specialty of stock-raising, paying especial attention to sheep-raising.

CHAPTER LVIII.

FAIRFIELD TOWNSHIP.

Situation—Principal Products—Timber and Streams—Organization and First Election—Settlement—Schools—Churches—Cemeteries—Societies and Associations—First Mill—Towns and Villages—Epidemic—Mineral Spring.

FAIRFIELD township is situated in the western part of the county, and is bounded on the north by Palmer, east by Barlow, south by Decatur, and west by Wesley. The original boundary lines were as follows: From northwest corner, section sixteen, township seven, range eleven, to northeast corner Fr. eighteen; thence to northwest corner, Fr. eighteen; thence east to southwest corner, section twenty-four, township six, range eleven; thence east to southeast corner of section thirty-six, township two, range ten, and thence to the beginning. At present, with the exceptions of part of a section taken from the northwest, and also part of a section taken from the southwest, the township presents a map of symmetrical boundary, and contains an area of more than fifteen thousand acres, and has a population of seven hundred and thirty-one.

The soil is generally of yellow and red clay, with the common sandstone base, which extends, generally, through this part of the State. This soil is abundantly productive of all kinds of fruits, apples of all kinds, pears, etc., and an ample profusion of the smaller fruits, are found in all parts of the township. Peaches are also produced in some seasons, but are not certain of fruition, owing to climatic influences. Wheat, oats, and corn are the chief agricultural productions. Wool growing is carried on quite extensively throughout the township, and fine-wool sheep are now being generally introduced, among which are found the Shermans, Merinos, and some Leicesters. The fleeces from this locality command the highest market price.

The timber lands abound mostly in white and red oak, with some hickory, walnut, and poplar. The sandstone, outcroppings of which are found in various localities in the township, is used generally for building purposes, but is quarried only for local use at the present time.

Little Hocking river takes its rise in the western part of the township, and, receiving several unimportant tributaries, flows in a southeastern direction until it reaches a point southeast of Dunbar post office, where it turns westward for a short distance, and thence directly south, leaving the township west of the central part of the southern boundary. Other small branches drain the various parts of the township, flowing both north and south from the great highland divide extending across the township.

The Marietta & Cincinnati railroad extends across the south part of the township, but is not now in operation, having been abandoned some two years ago.

ORGANIZATION.

The organization of this township was effected by the county commissioners at the December session of 1851. It was formed from parts of Wesley, on the northwest, Barlow on the northeast, Belpre on the southeast, and Decatur on the southwest.

The first election was held December 20, 1851, which resulted as follows: Trustees, Peter B. Lake, John Burfield and James Smith; township clerk, Charles H. Goddard; treasurer, Peter B. Lake; assessor, Torren Gilmore; constable, Augustine Stephens.

The first election for justice of the peace occurred August 17th, 1852, resulting in the election of Torrens

EARLY SETTLEMENTS.

Gilmore and Augustine Stephens.

The early settlers of this township came up over the Ohio river hills from Marietta, following the only broken route through the wilderness, since known as the State road. This route extended along its present course, following the ridge of highlands now known as the "divide," which extends across the northern part of the township from east to west. Near this road the settlers naturally fixed the site of their pioneer homes, erected their log cabins, and began the work of development and civilization of what is now known as Fairfield township.

Among the earliest settlers, of whom any account can now be obtained, were David Ewell, who came from Virginia some time prior to 1814, first settled about one-half mile south of the present village of Fishtown, where he erected his log-cabin home—section three, and Joshua Shuttleworth (also from Virginia) at this same time lived immediately south of Ewell.

Of these earliest pioneers very little is known concerning their personal history, for with them have passed away forever the records of their lives and deeds, save what they have impressed upon the unwritten history of the rise and progress of this locality from the wilds of wilderness and forest to its present position in the ranks of civilization.

William Dunbar settled in this township in the early part of 1814, and erected his cabin on the site of the present residence of his son Daniel, just east of Fishtown—section four. In this same year Walter Kidwell, from Fairfax county, Virginia, came and settled about one-quarter mile north of the present residence of his son John, where he built his cabin. He was accompanied by his wife and two sons, John and William.

William Dunbar was born in the year 1740, and was married to Polly Shelton some time previous to his settlement in Ohio. They had six children—Catharine, Sarah, Nancy, Thomas, William and Daniel. He was a private soldier in the Revolutionary war, and was discharged after honorable service to his country.

Daniel Dunbar, the only surviving child of William Dunbar, was born in Fairfax county, Virginia, in 1800, and came to this township with his father. He was married to Mary C. Lake in 1827, who was born in 1804, and died in 1840. They have five children, three of whom are now living, viz: Jane Ann, now the widow of Jacob Hueston, living in Athens county, Ohio; India, in Athens county, and James, the fifth child of Daniel Dunbar, was born in this township July 6, 1840. In the spring of 1866 he became a resident of Watertown, where he has since lived. He was married to Flora F.

Gage, who was born in this township, December 5, 1850. The fruit of this union was one child, Dayton G. He has been treasurer of Watertown since 1871, and store-keeper since 1867.

Thomas Dunbar, son of William, was born in Virginia in 1790, and died in 1874. He came with his father to this locality, where he spent his life. He was married to Esther Owens, who was born about 1794 in Virginia. They had six children, three of whom are now living, viz: Shelton, David and Louisa, widow of Samuel Hull, now living in Marietta. He served as private in the War of 1812, and also held several township offices.

Shelton Dunbar was born in this township in 1820, and was married to Sarah A. Varner (born in 1827) in 1844. They had four children—Emily J., wife of Knotley McCain, now living in this township; Mary Ann, Eliza and Angeline, the latter now teaching school. He has served several years as school director, and supervisor and has been postmaster at Dunbar station for over twenty-six years, and has also been connected with the mercantile business at Dunbar, Belpre and Parkersburgh.

Hapgood Goddard was born in Swansey, New Hampshire, in 1783, and was married to Rebecca Wood (born 1787,) in 1809. In the year 1817 he settled on section fifteen this township. His decease occurred in 1865, his wife surviving him ten years. He was one of the leading men in the township, and served as township clerk for fifteen years. Previous to his coming to the west he was engaged in the mercantile business in New Hampshire, but the financial policy of President Jefferson, known as Jefferson's embargo, ruined him, and he came to this township with but five dollars. He lived to own a farm of one hundred and twenty acres of land, and left an honorable name as citizen and farmer. He had a family of ten children, eight of whom are now living, viz: Eliza, wife of James Smith, in Plymouth; William, P. P., in Wesley; Abraham W., in Fairfield; Julia, widow of Lanson Smith, now living in Jackson county, Ohio; Charles H., in Fairfield; George R., in Dunham; Lucy E., wife of Joseph C. Coulter, in Fairfield; and Sarah, wife of John V. Farris, now residing in Missouri.

Abraham W. Goddard was born in 1816, in Belpre, and was married in 1843 to Mary Jane Coulter, who was born in 1825, in Coshocton county, Ohio. They had nine children, eight of whom are now living: Emeline, wife of William Quinn, Palmer township; William R. now resides in Athens county, Ohio; Edna, wife of James Randolph, Wesley; Talma, wife of William Rowlands, now living at Racine, Wisconsin; Edgar W., Fairfield; Harmar H., Fairfield; Zaidie E., Columbus, Ohio, and Minnie, who is now at home. Mr. Goddard has been a prominent man in this township, treasurer for fifteen years, and justice of the peace twenty-five years, and now owns a farm of three hundred and twenty-four acres, on which he resides, located in the southwestern part of township—section 19.

Charles H. Goddard was born in this township in 1824, and was married in 1847 to Melissa E. Chamberlain, who was born in 1826 (Watertown). They have a family of ten children, eight of whom are now living viz: Rowena, who now lives at home; Rodney Watson (Welston, Ohio), Harley C., S. A. Douglas, Ason A., Frank E., Bertha, and Webster B. He has held the offices of clerk and trustee of township for thirty-one years, having been clerk of four townships—Wesley, Fairfield, Warren and Dunham. He now owns about four hundred acres of land and has distributed three hundred and fifty acres among his children. He has been one of the most active citizens in all the public movements in the township.

Carmi Smith was born August 6, 1812, and was married October 20, 1831, to Sarah Bishop, who was born December 21, 1813, in the State of New York. To them were born seven children, three of whom are now living, viz: Gilbert, who now resides in this township; Talma, wife of Sylvester Williams, who now lives in Belpre, Ohio; Esther Jane, married to George R. Goddard (Dunham); Sarah Clorinda, wife of Dixon Graham (Wesley). He has been among the leading men of his locality; has held the office of justice of the peace for sixteen years; was merchant and general tradesman at Fishtown for many years, and has been prominently identified with the Methodist Episcopal church.

Gilbert Smith, only son of Carmi Smith, was born in Wesley township in 1832, and was married to Rowena G. Williams, born in 1833, in the year 1857. He has had the honorable distinction of representing his district in the Ohio legislature two successive terms—from 1875 to 1879. He was also assessor three years, and has held many other township offices. At present he owns three hundred acres of land located in the northwest part of the township. He had no family but took a girl named Ida, whom he reared as his own. She was married to Oscar Thompson.

Phineas Dunsmore came to this county in 1822 with his family, and settled about one mile north of Fishtown, then in Wesley but now in Fairfield township, where he had previously purchased a tract of land of nine hundred acres. He was a native of Townsend, Massachusetts, born December 29, 1771. In 1798 he married Polly Gage, who was born in Pelham, New Hampshire, July 16, 1782. Their children were Horace, Hiram, Abner G., Mary K., Hiel, Lucius P., Adaline G., and Daniel N. Phineas Dunsmore was a captain of a cavalry company in the War of 1812, but did not perform any active service, being only ordered to hold his company in readiness to march to Portsmouth at one day's notice. He died in less than a year after he came west—May 6, 1823. His wife lived until March 20, 1857.

Jordon Swesey, father of James Swesey, was born in Pennsylvania in 1788, and settled in Wesley township in 1828, on section five. He died in Palmer township in 1862. He was a man of versatile abilities, and skilful in various ways, such as splitting shingles, and roofing houses and barns. He was also a shoemaker, and in these pursuits obtained money to purchase seventy acres of land. He was united in marriage to Elizabeth Barr, who was born in Pennsylvania in 1790, and died in Palmer township in 1865. They had six children, three of whom are now living, viz: James, the oldest, is married, and at present resides in Iowa; Jordon lives in Fairfield, and Jane, wife of Robert Miller, lives in Palmer. Jordon Swesey was born in Pennsylvania in 1822, and was married in 1848 to Nancy Campbell, who was born in 1827 in Guernsey county, Ohio. Mr. Swesey farms sixty acres of land, part of which is located in the northeastern part of Fairfield township, on which he now lives. He is one of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal church and also a member of the Sons of Temperance.

William Moore came from Pennsylvania with his father, John Moore, and first settled in the central part of the county about 1845. He was born in 1828, and was married to Mrs. Louisa Chute in 1860. They had a family of seven children, viz: Fremont A., James G., William L., Lucy L., Clara O., Brooks B., Theora Belle, all of them are living at home. Mrs. Moore is a daughter of James Kidwell, and was first married to Samuel S. Chute, who died in 1859, leaving three children, viz: Sarah M., who now lives in Iowa; Sophronia, wife of Joseph Moore, living in Iowa; and Samuel S., now living at home.

Moses Campbell settled in this township about 1830; was born in Ireland, in 1800, and died in 1874. He was married in 1810 to Margaret Stranahan, who died in 1835. They had five children, four now living—Nancy, wife of Jordon Swesey; James and William, both married and living in this township. Martha, the only daughter, is also living in this township. He was afterward married to Eleanor Roberts in 1844, whose decease occurred in 1876. They had six children, all now living, viz: Caroline, widow of Martin Corns (Decatur township), Amos (Palmer township), Thomas (Columbiana county), Charles (Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania), David (Fairfield township), and Jane, wife of C. H. Bracken (Kansas). Thomas and Charles (orderly sergeants), served three years in the late war, both were members of the Seventy-seventh Ohio volunteer infantry.

James Campbell was born in 1829, and was married in 1845 to Nancy Laughlin, who was born in 1830 and died in 1858. They had two children, one now living: Esther Ann, wife of Isaac Jones, living in Michigan. He was again married, in 1860, to Rebecca J. Kenny, who was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, in 1833. To them were born four children, three of whom are living: Emma, Ella, and William W.—all at home. He has held several township offices—constable and supervisor, and was called out in the militia during the Morgan raid. He is a farmer and owns one hundred and sixty acres of land, located in section sixteen, in the northwestern part of the township.

David N. Campbell was born in this township in 1844, and was married to Jennie Irvine in 1876, who was born in Ireland in 1846. They have two children—Forest Wade and Willis Scott, both now living at home. He was trustee of the township, and owns the homestead farm of one hundred and fifty acres, where he now lives, and where his father settled and died.

Alexander A. Campbell (Cutler station) came to this township in April, 1856; he was born in Butler county, Pennsylvania, in 1821. His wife, Mary Myers, to whom he was married in 1844, was born in Guernsey county, Ohio, in 1825. Their family consists of eight children, five of whom are now living, namely: Samantha A., wife of E. G. Bundy (Kansas); Mary, wife of Jesse Bentley (Clinton county, Ohio); William is married and lives at Cutler Station; Charles and Ulysses Grant both live at home. He was in the late war serving in the Seventy-third Ohio volunteer infantry, company F, from October, 1861, to January, 1865, during which time he was in thirty-two engagements, which includes the second battle of Manassas, Gettysburgh and Mission Ridge, in General Hooker's brigade. At present he keeps the hotel at Cutler station, and is on the construction corps of the Marietta & Cincinnati railroad.

Joseph H. Gage settled in this township on section sixteen, in 1837. He was born in New Hampshire in 1815, and was married, in 1838, to Mary A. Cook, who was born in Vermont, in 1814. Of their nine children, six are now living, viz: Horace D. (Wesley township); John A., now living at home; Mary Ann, wife of J. Waldo Smith (Wesley township); Flora, wife of J. T. Dunbar (Watertown township). George is married, and lives in this township. Myron lives at home. He is a stone-cutter by trade, but is now farming, owning at present over four hundred acres of land, as the result of his own industry.

William Thompson was born in Guernsey county, Ohio, in 1828, and settled in this township on section hree, in 1851. He was elected county commissioner in 1880, and has held most of the offices of his township; was married in 1853 to Angeline Smith, who was born in 1834 and died in 1856, leaving two children—Carmi Orville, deceased, and Oscar, who is married and lives in Barlow township. He was married in 1858 to Laura A. Ford, who was born in Barlow township in 1834. They have three children, namely: John Ford, William Elmer, and Phœbe Putnam, all of whom are living at home. He was a member of company F, One Hundred and Forty-eighth Ohio national guards, and served from May to September, 1864; was stationed at Bermuda, on the James river, near Richmond, Virginia. He was first president of the Barlow agricultural board, elected in 1872, and has held the office until the present time. He was also a member of the county board for nine years; is at present a farmer, owning four hundred and five acres of land on which he resides, located in the north-eastern part of the township. Mr. Thompson has borne a leading part in public affairs, and has been efficient in most of the organizations of his own and adjoining townships, also of the county.

Owen Clark settled in Fairfield township in 1855. He was born in Ireland in 1813. He married Catharine O'Malia, who died in 1870. They have had seven children, viz: John H., Annie, Bridget, Edward, Thomas, Mary and Catharine; of these, Bridget is dead. John H., born in 1849, married in 1875, Miss Bridget Clark, by whom he has had three children, all born in Belpre township, where the younger Mr. Clark resides, he having charge of the depot of the Marietta & Cincinnati railroad.

SCHOOLS.

The first school-house was built on the north side of the present State road, about one-half mile west of Fish-town, about 1819. It was known as Lake's school-house, after Thomas Lake, who lived near it. Oliver Miller, father of Jonathan Miller, now living at Cutler station, was the first teacher who "wielded the birchen" and directed the intellectual development of the sturdy pioneer sons and daughters in this primitive log-cabin school-house. A few crumbling stones now remain to mark the spot of this first school-house, and Daniel Dunbar and John Kidwell are the only surviving members of the school.

The next school-house was built near the present residence of Daniel Dunbar, on the extreme west corner of his land, near the State road, in 1840. These early schools were taught by teachers engaged by the parents of the scholars, and were supported by general subscription. In this way the schools were supported in the various localities until the increase in population necessitated the organization of school districts. At present there are seven separate school districts, all supplied with teachers and good, substantial school buildings, where the means for the ordinary common school education are amply supplied under the present public school system.

CHURCHES.

The first religious services were held at the cabins of the pious settlers by the itinerant preachers who might happen in the settlement, until the school-houses were built, when the religious services were held in them. Probably the first general service was held in the old Lake school-house, in which many of the different religious organizations of the township were effected. The first church building was erected by the Methodist Episcopal society about 1824, on the site of the present Methodist Episcopal church at Fishtown, and was called "Kidwell meeting-house," in honor of Walter Kidwell, who was then a prominent member of the church. The house was built of hewn logs. This house stood until 1863, when it was pulled down, and another house erected on the same site by general subscription, as a union church, for the common use of all denominations. This new house was accidentally burned down on the twelfth of the following February. The workmen, after finishing the house, gathered the shavings and other inflammable material and stowed it under the house through an aperture left under the front door, which was to be closed by the stone steps; but before the steps were put up, on an occasion of public worship, a young lady took a fire-brand from a neighboring house to the church for the purpose of building a fire, and on entering the door the fire-brand fell from her hands and ignited the debris under the house, and before help could be obtained the building was destroyed.

The present frame building—forty-five by twenty-eight feet—was erected on the same site, by the Methodist Episcopal society, and was completed the following year, 1864. The dedication sermon was preached by Rev. John Frazier, presiding elder, and LUCIUS P. DUNSMORE.

Phineas Dunsmore with his wife, Polly, and seven children, among whom was Lucius P., came to what is now Fairfield township, then Wesley, Washington county, Ohio, in 1822. The family came from Goshen, New Hampshire. Lucius was then twelve years old, having been born on the twenty-fifth of January, 1810. Mr. Dunsmore brought his family through New York State and travelled along the beach of Lake Erie until they reached Ashtabula county, Ohio. Here the rest of the family tarried with friends until Mr. Dunsmore, with his brother and eldest son, Horace, came down to Washington county to "view the land." The result of this inspection was that Mr. Dunsmore traded his property in New Hampshire for a section and a fraction in Wesley township, comprising nine hundred and five acres. This purchase was made of James Brick, who was one of the Ohio company. Mr. Dunsmore then went for his family, and they came down in the same wagons in which they had come from New Hampshire, arriving at their new home on the fourth of July, 1822. A log house was immediately put up. It was of very primitive construction. They had no nails, and so were compelled to secure their roof with weight poles. This house stood about a mile northwest of where Layman post office now is.

In the early part of 1823 Phineas Dunsmore died and was buried on his own land, whence his body was removed to the Union cemetery a few years ago. Mrs. Dunsmore survived her husband about eighteen years, dying in 1841.

The children of Phineas and Polly Dunsmore, in order of age were as follows: Horace, born in 1799; Abner, born in 1802; Mary, born in 1804; Hiel, born in 1806; Lucius P., born in 1810; Adaline, born in 1812; and Daniel, born in 1816. Horace died in March, 1878, and Abner in 1853. The rest of the children are still living.

In 1836 Lucius P. Dunsmore married Mahala Williams, of Wood county, Virginia, who was born in 1813. He built a frame house about half a mile from the old homestead, and thither he took his bride. Their new home was in the midst of a dense forest, and they went to work to clear a farm for cultivation. The work proceeded very slowly, and only four or five acres were cleared a year.

In 1838 their first child was born—Elbina. She married, in 1856, Jesse Hildebrand, and now lives just above her father's home. She has three children. In 1840 their second daughter, Polly C., was born. She married Isaac P. Hanes in 1860. They reside on the old Dunsmore homestead and have two children. Rachel J. was born in 1842. She married John T. Hanes in 1862. They live in Palmer township near Mr. Dunsmore's and have one child. Mahala J. was born in 1843 and died in 1870. Lucius Jasper was born in 1845 and died in 1868. Laura Anne was born in 1848. She married Dr. Elisha Tinker. They lived in Plymouth, of this county. Mrs. Tinker died in 1872. Lorina A. was born in 1852. She married R. F. Runels in 1874. They live with Mr. Dunsmore in Fairfield township and have two children. Mr. Dunsmore's wife died on the twenty-first of May 1876.

When Mr. Dunsmore came to the county the comforts and luxuries of civilization had not yet reached this part of the country. Everything was in a rude state. When the family needed meal one of them was obliged to go to a mill six miles distant, of which the motive power was an old horse. Here he would sometimes be obliged to wait three days before getting the meal. They were obliged to go to Marietta to do their trading and also to haul their wheat there over rough roads, and then get only thirty-seven and one-half cents a bushel for it. At that day the forests were filled with wolves, which did great damage to the flocks. The farmers were obliged to build large sheepfolds to protect their flocks. Mr. Dunsmore has a farm of two hundred and sixty-two acres, being a part of the original purchase of his father. This land is farmed by a son-in-law, Mr. Runels, who makes a specialty of sheep raising.

Mr. Dunsmore was township treasurer for seven years. He is a member of the Universalist church. He now lives on his farm and is highly respected throughout the township.

the first trustees were Carmi Smith, Peter Lake, John Kidwell, Philip Moore, Theodore Hull, Reuben Ellis, and John V. Farris. Among the early local ministers of this denomination were Osborn, Thompson, Lippett, and others, and the first regular ministers were Revs. David and Jacob Young, Daniel Limerick, James Furee, James and William McMahon. Regular services are held every alternate Sabbath.

The Centenary Methodist Episcopal church is located in the southwest part of the township, three-fourths of a mile north of Cutler station, and was erected in 1867—a substantial frame building, about forty by forty-five. This congregation formerly worshipped in a log meeting-house, situated about two miles east of the present church building, and was known as "Zion" church.

The first minister of this charge was Rev. Hathaway, and among the prominent ministers on this (Bartlett) circuit were Revs. Sayers, Morgan, Callahan, O'Neal, and others. The first trustees were Theodore Hull, John V. Farris, W. D. Jones, R. D. Carothers, and B. H. Dawson. The membership numbers about sixty, holding services every alternate Sabbath.

The Universalist church located near the present residence of Charles H. Goddard, on the State road, west of Fishtown, was the first erected in the township by this denomination. It was first built in 1867, as a union church, but at present is controlled by the Universalists. It is a frame building, thirty by forty, and the first trustees were Daniel Dunbar, A. W. Goddard, and J. F. Haines. Services are held every month by the present pastor, Rev. Earl.

This denomination has another church building, located at Fishtown, which was erected as a union church in 1868. It is a frame building (thirty by thirty-six) and was dedicated by Rev. Cantwell, and is now under the control of the same trustees as the other church, with the same minister who officiates alternately with the other congregation.

The first meetings of this denomination were conducted by Father Sweet and Rev. Jolly, and the original organization was effected by Hapgood Goddard, Isaac Perry, Hiel Dunsmore, Jacob Minton, and George Hildebrand. Naturally there were many conflicts among the different religious societies of this locality, differing, as they did, so widely on the doctrines of the Bible.

CEMETERIES.

The burial places in this township are mostly connected with the churches near which they are located. Some are now under the control of the township trustees.

The first burying-ground was just south of Fishtown, where Mrs. Dunbar was buried in very early times. Then the Methodist Episcopal church graveyard at Fishtown was opened, where many of the early pioneers were buried. The cemetery at the forks of the road, near the Universalist church, west of Fishtown, is now under the control of the township trustees, and is one of the principal ones. A cemetery has also been opened near the Centenary Methodist Episcopal church, north of Cutler station.

ASSOCIATIONS AND SOCIETIES.

The Wool Growers' association was first organized at the residence of William Thompson, in 1876. The membership extends throughout this whole section of country, embracing Fairfield, Barlow, Wesley, Palmer, Watertown, and Warren townships. Meetings are held regularly in April and November, at the residence of some one of the members. The object of the organization is to have a general interchange of ideas on the subject of sheep raising, the best breeds to raise, what to feed, etc. At the meetings each member brings specimens of his breed of sheep and a general shearing is made and the fleeces compared. The general expenses are paid by a tax of twenty-five cents per capita, and the society is now in good condition in every way.

Sons of Temperance, Lyman division, No. 52, was organized in the Methodist Episcopal church, at Fishtown, in 1857, with the following officers: William Thompson, W. P.; Mrs. William Thompson, W. A.; G. W. Morris, R. S.; Orlando Trotter, F. S.; Jordan Swesey, treasurer; G. Y. Palmer, chaplain. This society has done much effectual work in the suppression of intemperance in this township and the fact that there is no place within the bounds of the township where intoxicating liquors are sold, attest the good results of labor in this cause. The society now holds its meetings at the private houses of the members—having no lodge room of its own—and has enrolled among its members some of the best and most influential citizens of the community.

Grange No. 872 was organized in 1874, by M. A. Malster. The original officials were as follows: Charles A. Goddard, master; J. H. F. Browning, secretary; David Dunbar, overseer; Reuben Hull, lecturer; William Thompson, treasurer; George Varner, steward; Caroline Varner, pomona; E. A. Varner, flora; Elma Addis, lady steward; and Josephus Harrington, gate-keeper. At present this organization has a membership of about twenty, and is highly regarded for the social benefits arising from the regular meetings, as many of the leading families of the township are members of the organization.

THE FIRST MILL.

The first and only grist-mill in this township was constructed on a very rude plan. Two stones were placed in a hollow log. The upper one had a shaft inserted through the top of the log, and had a handle attached, and with this power the mill was operated by hand. This structure was the common property of the settlers, and stood near the present residence of W. W. Morris at Fishtown. To this mill the early settlers brought their grists of corn, and each one in his turn ground out his supply of meal, from which the well known article of diet familiarly known as "mush" was made. This "mush" with bear meat and venison formed the common food of the first settlers.

TOWNS AND VILLAGES.

Cutler station is a small village located in the extreme southwestern part of the township, on the Marietta & Cincinnati railroad. It was first laid out in 1857, and received the name of Harshaville after John M. Harsha, M. D., who owned the land on which the original plat was made. Dr. Harsha afterward voluntarily relinquished the honor thus conferred upon him, in favor of William P. Cutler, and the town was rechristened Cutler station. The log cabin in which Dr. Harsha lived was the only house within the bounds of the plat, and it stood about four rods west of the present residence of Dr. Trickle, on the north side of the railroad, west of Main street. The first store was kept by Harvey Smith & Son on the southwest corner of Main and Front streets. At the same time Gilbert & Smith kept a store on the southeast corner of the same streets.

The postoffice was first established in the house of Dr. Harsha, who was appointed postmaster.

In the fall of 1857, A. A. Campbell built the first hotel on the southwest corner of Broadway and Front streets. In 1862 William Coulter kept a house of entertainment on the northeast corner of Main and Putnam. The Cutler house was built on the southwest corner of Clinton and Front streets, in 1865, but was destroyed by fire June 11, 1868, and the present house was erected on the same site in the following year. At present the village contains two general stores, one drugstore, one hotel, two shoe shops and one doctor's office.

The town has not fulfilled the hopes entertained by its founders, never having reached the dimensions necessary for incorporation.

Dunbar post office is located on the now abandoned branch of the Marietta & Cincinnati railroad, in the southern part of the township. Shelton Dunbar is postmaster.

Wesley post office, one of the old post offices of this section, is now, as for many years, kept at the private residence of Joseph H. Gage, postmaster, located east of Fishtown, on the State road, in the northeastern part of the township. These with the offices at Fishtown (W. W. Morris, postmaster) and Cutler station, constitute very ample mail facilities for this township.

Fishtown (Layman post office) is a small village of a few houses on the State road, in the northeastern part of the township. James Lake kept the first store here in 1837, which stood immediately west of the present store. He was succeeded in the business by Daniel Fish, after whom the town was named.

The post office was first established about 1857, and was kept in the store of Carmi Smith, who was the postmaster, and was removed to its present location, in the store-room of W. W. Morris, in 1861. Fishtown now contains six dwellings houses, one general store and post office, one blacksmith shop, one cabinet shop, one Methodist Episcopal and one Universalist church.

EPIDEMIC.

In 1820 this locality was visited by some kind of fever called by the settlers the "cold plague," and such were the ravages of the disease that it required all the energies of the able-bodied citizens to care for the afflicted ones. It is stated that over fifty persons were carried off by this awful scourge. What may have been the cause of this disease was never known; but its ravages were unchecked until a whole neighborhood was almost depopulated and the messenger of death had darkened almost every household.

On the farm of William Thompson, about ten rods north of his present residence, is a mineral spring, whose waters are found to be very beneficial in malarial diseases. No complete analysis has been made, but salts and iron with some eight other constituents are found contained in the water. No efforts, however, have been made to make the spring available to the general public, though many very notable cures of long-protracted and hopeless cases of ague have been effected by the use of this mineral water.

CHAPTER LVII.

DECATUR TOWNSHIP.

Establishment of the Township—Boundaries—Physical Features—Soil—Products—Streams and Roads—Settlement—Educational—Religious Organizations—Mills—Incidents—An Unsuccessful Enterprise—A Night in a Cave.

THE establishment of this township was effected in 1820, on the petition of sundry persons not named, residents in sixth township, range eleven. Said locality was declared an incorporated town and an election district to be thereafter known as Decatur, and it was ordered that the inhabitants residing in said district were thereby entitled to the privileges and immunities of incorporated towns within the State. The electors were notified to meet at the residence of William Johnson, on Thursday, November 30, 1820, to elect town officers, but the records of this first election cannot now be found, and the names of the first officials, therefore, cannot be definitely ascertained.

At present the township is bounded on the north by Wesley and Fairfield, east by Dunham and Belpre, and on the south and west by Athens county. The boundary lines, barring eight and a half sections on the northwest, enclose a perfect square of five sections on each side, making altogether thirty-three and a half sections, or an area of over twenty-one thousand acres. The population in 1870 was fourteen hundred and thirty-seven, and the last census (1880) gives the township a population of fifteen hundred and five, an increase of sixty-eight in ten years.

The surface consists generally of very high rolling lands, broken in rugged and precipitous hills, especially in the southwest. The soil is of red and yellow clay, though in localities some sand is found. The chief productions are wheat, corn, etc., and all kinds of fruits are produced in abundance, never failing orchards being found in various localities throughout the township. In early times considerable tar was manufactured near Fillmore, and was floated down the Little Hocking in canoes to the Ohio, but now only the small local demand is supplied from the old kilns. Shallow veins of an inferior quality of coal are found in various places.

The west branch of Little Hocking river, a considerable stream, enters the township from Fairfield at the northwest, and, flowing in a southeast course, leaves the township at the extreme southeast corner. Many other minor and unimportant branches, mostly tributary to the river, drain the lands of this locality.

The abandoned branch of the Marietta & Cincinnati railroad extends across the extreme northwest corner. The principal thoroughfare is the State road, leading from Hill's Landing to McConnelsville, extending from southeast toward north through the principal settlements—Fillmore and Decaturville. All sections of the township are also provided with road communications.

Along the water courses, and in various localities throughout the township, are found numerous outcroppings of sandstone, which is generally used for building purposes. This stone is found to make very desirable and certainly very beautiful residences, and promises to become utilized more in this way than heretofore. Specimens of these buildings are found here. Caves and deep caverns among towering hills, ribbed with the abutting sandstone and skirted with evergreen pine, are constantly in sight of the traveller, presenting a view grand and picturesque.

EARLY SETTLEMENT.

The first settler in this township was Joseph Lovdell, who came here in the spring of 1816. He was the first to accept an offer of forty acres of land made by David Putnam, agent of the Ohio company, to any one who would locate in this township, build a cabin, and plant an orchard of one hundred trees. He located forty acres on the northeast part of the farm now owned by Joshua McGirr, at Fillmore, and built his cabin in the extreme southwest corner of what is now section three.

Another forty acres adjoining this tract, on the northeast, was first bargained for by a Mr. Frost, who never came to the township; but William Johnson, having purchased this claim, arrived here about three weeks after Joseph Lovdell, and built his cabin just northeast of his only neighbor in the then western wilderness, about fifteen rods northeast of the present forks of the road.

Among the settlers who came after these earliest ones were Able Dufer, Hiram Fairchilds, Ebenezer Bachelor, John and James Dunn, John Giddings, Andrew Ballard, and others, all of whom settled in this locality, forming what was then known as the "Lower Settlement," now called Fillmore post office. It is located in the southeastern part of the township, on the State road, and is the centre of trade for the surrounding country. A general store, that of Mr. Russell, is kept here.

The settlement made around what is now known as Decaturville post office was then known as the "Upper Settlement," and was made soon after the original settlement.

George Ball built his cabin about fifty rods southwest of the present residence of his son, Henry L., immediately south of Decaturville, section seventeen.

Daniel Morey's cabin stood about one hundred rods west of Ball's, near the cave on the north side of the run.

Peter Brewer built his cabin on the farm now owned by C. F. Frazier, about ten rods from the northeast corner of section sixteen.

Isaac Place erected his cabin near the present residence of C. Booker, section sixteen.

Barnabas Nolan lived in a log cabin in the southwest part of section eleven.

John Storts entered two hundred acres of land, on which he built his cabin, near the present residence of P. Storts, section seventeen.

Nathaniel Place settled on section ten, near the present farm house of Austin place.

Joseph Place lived west of Decaturville, section sixteen, and Eli Gilbert built his log cabin house in central part of section sixteen.

Canada settlement is located west of Fillmore, beyond Little Hocking river, and was made soon after the "Upper Settlement." Jonathan Root and Alexander Johnson were among the early settlers. This locality, though having a general name, is but a thickly settled community, having no trading place or post office, and how it received the name of Canada is not certainly known.

Abel Dufur was a native of New York, and was born in 1802; deceased 1870. He emigrated to Washington county in 1814, and was married in 1823 to Polly Fairchild, who was born in 1809 and died in 1842. To them were born six children—Lucy M., Eva, Abel, Edmund P., John and Abigail. He was married the second time to Eunice Bachelder, daughter of Ebon and Eunice Bachelder, who was born 1817. They had a family of two children—Eunice A. and Daniel F. Daniel F. was born in 1851 and resides in the township. He has held the office of school director and is now county surveyor. He owns a farm on section two.

Philip Schrader, jr., was born in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, November 12, 1808, and was married in 1828 to Clarissa Cheedle, who was born in 1810. To them were born twelve children—nine boys and three girls. Five of the boys and the three girls are now living. He came to this township with his father (whose history appears in Wesley) in 1837, and settled on the farm that he now owns. His father built the house in which he resides. He has lived in this township continuously for forty-four years; has held several important offices; is at present justice of the peace and postmaster.

James Smith, a native of Ireland, son of James and Jane Smith, was born in 1792, and died in 1859. He was married in 1823 to Margaret Morrison, daughter of John and Catherine (McCausland) Morrison, who was born in Ireland in 1802. They settled in this township in 1832, section twenty-four, and to them were born twelve children—Anna Jane; William, resides in Decatur; Percilla, wife of B. H. Dawson (Fairfield township); Alexander F. (Kansas); John M. (Kansas); Eliza, wife of Henry Hibbard (Kansas); James H., enlisted during the late war in the One Hundred and Forty-eighth Ohio and was killed by the explosion of an ordnance boat; Margaret, at home; Joseph A. (Decatur); Matilda, wife of W. H. Burk (Michigan); Lucinda, wife of P. Roe (Chillicothe); Frances, wife of C. Payne (Missouri).

Joseph A. Smith was born in this township 1840, and was married in 1871 to Susan Dela Grange, born in 1849. They have one child—Arthur H. He enlisted in 1864 in company K, Thirty-ninth Ohio volunteer infantry, and was discharged in 1865; has held the office of district assessor and all the other township offices, except constable and clerk, and at present is engaged in farming, owning a farm of one hundred and eighty acres, on which he now resides as one of the respected farmers and citizens of the township, section twenty-four.

Richard W. Fields was born in Virginia in 1831, and settled in this township in 1847. He was married in 1851 to Mary J. Richards, born in Pennsylvania in 1831, died in 1878. Mr. Fields has a family of sixteen children, all living—Abdallah, Thornton, Mary, Joseph W., Amanda, Maria, George W., Sarah L., Martha; Frances E., Lydia, Ruth, Joshua R. G., Benoni, Arthur, and Jesse. Mr. Fields is a prominent member of the Baptist (colored) church, and one of its most liberal and earnest supporters, and has by his own industry made himself possessor of a farm of eighty acres, where he now resides a highly respected representative of his race—section twenty-three.

Richard Irwin was born in Ireland in 1810, and died in 1858. He was married in Ireland to Jane Wilkinson and settled in Decatur township in 1850. They had a family of five children, four now living—Richard J., Robert M., Sarah J., William G., living in the township. William G. Irvine was born in this county 1853, and was united in marriage in 1879 to Sarah A. Lyde, who was born in 1855. He is now elder in the Presbyterian church and has a farm on which he resides—section eleven.

William Gamble was born in Washington county, Pennsylvania, and was married to Elizabeth Corns. They had a family of nine children, eight now living—Amos L., William, Walter, Joseph, Harley E., Randolph E., Camby and Reese. William Gamble, jr., was born April 15, 1851; and was married to Sarah E. Nist (daughter of George Nist) who was born 1858. They have one child, Cornelia E. Mr. Gamble has been trustee for three years, and has a farm on which he now lives—section seven.

Henry Welch was born in 1804, and was married to Barbara Smith, who was born in 1806. They came to Washington county in 1841, and first settled in Wesley township. To them were born ten children, five now living—Peter, Susan, John, James, and George H. Peter Welch was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, in 1830, and was married in 1852 to Hannah Gilmore—daughter of Torrens and Polly Gilmore—born 1834. Mr. and Mrs. Welch had a family of thirteen children—John, Noah, Emily, wife of Isaac Bradenberry, Martin, Barbara (now Mrs. Charles Weaver), McClellan, Warren, Estella, Lucy, Ella, Dow, George and Marion. He has served as trustee, and now owns three hundred and twenty-five acres of land on which he resides—section twenty-two.

Elijah Sawyer, born in North Carolina in 1800, became a resident of Decatur township in 1854. He married Maria Kendall, who is still living. Three of their children survive, viz: R. F. in Belpre township, and William H. and James K. in Decatur township. Of these R. F. Sawyer married Elizabeth Tate, by whom he has one child. Mr. Sawyer is running on the river, and has his residence in Belpre.

Conrad Miller was born in Stark county, Ohio, in 1806, and was married to Elizabeth Burk, who was born in 1802. They had ten children, eight now living—Daniel, now living in Iowa; Emanuel, Decatur township; Conrad, Decatur; Nancy, wife of Samuel Lee, Wesley; Elizabeth, wife of R. Weir, Athens county, Ohio; Magdaline, Decatur; Jadida, wife of Robert Martin, Pennsylvania; Emeline, wife of David Martin. Emanuel Miller was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, in 1827, and came to this township with his parents in 1840, and was married in 1850 to Eliza Sharp—daughter of Isaac and Lydia Sharp—who was born in 1832. To them were born fourteen children, twelve now living—Elizabeth M., wife of J. Fish, lives in Decatur township; Lydia, wife of T. D. Meek, Fairfield; Isaac A., at home; Mary B., wife of D. B. Brooks, Belpre township; Henry B., at home; Enoch, Thomas, Samuel, Addie, Joel, Wyatt and Lucy, all at home. Mr. Miller served nine months in the late war, and is now possessor of one hundred and sixty acres of land on which he resides as a general farmer and respected citizen—section thirty-six.

Charles Russell was born in Coshocton county, Ohio, in 1808 and died in 1880. He was married in 1837 to Elizabeth, daughter of Jacob Reigel, who was born 1809. To them were born eight children. All but one (Sarah) are now living—Emanuel, Mary M., Washington, Solomon, Elizabeth, Charles, Lucretia.

Emanuel Russell was born in 1838, in Coshocton county, and was married in 1867 to Frances E. Gearhart, daughter of Jacob and Mary, who was born in Carroll county in 1847. Mr. and Mrs. Russell have a family of three children—Eva, Ella, and Alfred. Mr. Russell has held the office of treasurer for twelve years, justice of the peace nine years, and is now postmaster at Fillmore. He enlisted in the Union army during the war of the Rebellion, August, 1862, in the One Hundred and Sixteenth Ohio volunteer infantry, company I, and was a prisoner in the well known rebel prison pen of Andersonville for six months where, with thousands of his fellow comrades, he endured the horrors of hunger, thirst, and inhuman treatment, the details of which are too atrocious to be repeated, but, like the sufferings of the martyrs, will live in the annals of our country's heroic history forever. He is now engaged in the mercantile business at Fillmore, a highly respected and deserving citizen.

Dr. Edward Hamilton Trickle was born in Belmont county, Ohio, July 1, 1836; removed to Coolville, Ohio, in 1854 where, in 1857, he was married to Jane Hamilton, who was born in 1838. His family consists of five children—William Arthur, Mattie Jane, Frank Hamilton, Bessie Evelyn, and Phoebe Luella. He began the study of medicine in 1859, which was interrupted by the late civil war, in which he was engaged as member of company E, Fourth West Virginia volunteer infantry, and during the siege of Vicksburgh, Mississippi, was promoted to lieutenant. He was engaged in the battles of Charleston, West Virginia, the capture of Jackson, Mississippi, Mission Ridge, Lynchburgh, and the ensuing campaign under General Sheridan, and was discharged after a service of three years and three months, much impaired in health. He immediately resumed his medical studies, and in 1867 attended the Ohio Medical college at Cincinnati, and after practising his profession two years at Parkersburgh, West Virginia, he returned to Cincinnati and received a diploma from the Miami Medical college. He then returned to Racine, Ohio, where, with the exception of one winter in the hospital in New York, he practiced his profession until 1879, when he came to his present location at Cutler station. On his removal to this place he resigned the position of examining surgeon of the United States bureau, and also the presidency of the Meigs County Medical society.

SCHOOLS.

The first school-house was a log building erected about ten rods north of the old Methodist church. This school was first taught by Oliver Root, and after him was Abel Stanton. The early schools of this township, like all the early schools, were supported by special subscription, and the history connected therewith is identical with the schools generally of this period. Section sixteen of this township was reserved for school land, and the rents of this land were devoted to the support of the schools, thus rendering very material assistance to the needy settlers in furnishing educational facilities to their children. Time has brought many changes to the educational advantages in this township, and there are now ten school districts all supplied with teachers and school buildings at the expense of the general public, where the means for the common school education are amply provided for the rich and the poor alike. If the rising generation do not surpass their forefathers it will not be because the means for their advancement have not been provided.

CHURCHES.

Methodism planted the first Christian standard in this township leading the way as the pioneer church. Preaching was held in the woods, in the log cabins or in the school-houses. Whenever the pioneers found a lodgement in the wilderness, Methodism followed with a church. The first church building in this township was the old log meeting-house located in the eastern part of the township, built about 1840-5. Andrew Ballard was the leading member of this early church, and he often officiated as local preacher. This old house was the general place of meeting for the neighborhood, and all the religious organizations of the locality were effected within its walls. The early members have all passed away, and for some reason have left no one upon whom the mantles of succession in the religious work have fallen—and the society has been allowed to go down—and the churches of the township are now abandoned or occupied by other denominations. The Canada M. E. church was built some time after the settlement was made, but is now occupied by the United Brethren.

The Friends society in early times had an organization here and built a church at Fillmore, but it has been long abandoned.

UNITED BRETHREN CHURCH.

The first services of this denomination were held in the house of Mrs. Philip Schrader's father, now where George Dunsmore lives, northeast part of section seven-teen. About 1850 Jonathan Root was the leading member of this church, and Joshua Montgomery is remembered as the first minister. They now occupy the house built by the Methodist Episcopal society, near Decaturville, of which Henry Bennett and Lucius Root are the present trustees. This denomination also has another class which meets in the Methodist Episcopal church west of Fillmore. Both congregations are small and are supplied as missions. The present minister is Rev. George Geiger.

PRESBYTERIAN OLD SCHOOL CHURCH,

located one mile east of Decaturville, was organized in 1847 in the old log Methodist church, under the ministry of Rev. Moses Hoag. The first elders were William Bennett and William Campbell, and the first regular preacher was Rev. William Farris. The church building was first erected in 1849 and was rebuilt in 1856. The present building is a frame twenty-four by thirty. The congregation now numbers about seventy-five, under the ministry of Rev. Robert C. Stewart, and eldership of Philip Bennett, John P. Knox, Robert Cray, William Campbell, William Scott and William G. Irvine. Services and Sabbath-school every Sunday.

BAPTIST CHURCH (COLORED)

is located in the northern part of the township, northwest corner of section twenty-three. The first minister was Nathan B. Henry, and first trustees John Williams, James A. Harris and R. W. Field. The first house in which this society met was built in 1856, and was used for the colored select school was situated about twenty rods south of R. W. Fields—section twenty-three. The present board house was built in 1860, and the society was re-organized by Revs. Atkins and Pierce. During the agitation of the slavery question this society withdrew from the regular Baptist and became what was known as Anti-Slavery Baptist. Present membership twenty-six; services once every month; Sabbath-school every Sunday, Rev. William Norman, present pastor.

MILLS.

The first flour mill in this township was the one erected by Hiram Fairchild about 1822, and was located in the northwest part of section one, south of Fillmore. About the same time another mill was built northwest of the first one, but it has long since been abandoned. On the site of the original mill Dion Neal now operates a flour mill, having two run of stone with the usual capacity. The building is a frame of two stories and hip roof; the local demand only is supplied. The flour mill now known as Root's Mill, is located on west branch of Little Hocking river and is now operated by Rufus Root. This mill was first erected in 1860, but Mr. Root has made many improvements; it is now a substantial frame building about thirty-six by forty feet, having two run of stone, with a capacity of one hundred and seventy-five bushels per day. The power is derived from a forty-horse power engine. The trade is mostly local custom, which requires the full capacity of the mill to supply.

INCIDENTS.

The general route of the well-known underground railroad led through this township, and many of the prominent men of this locality were engaged in this work. Many incidents in this memorable struggle for freedom occurred here, but among them the following is perhaps the most noted, and will better illustrate the spirit of the contest:

On the night of July 9, 1845, a party of Ohioans from this locality went to Hall's Landing, on the Ohio river, for the purpose of assisting a party of six slaves, belonging to John W. Harwood, who lived just below Blennerhassett island, to escape. They were unarmed, and just as the boat on which the slaves were concealed reached the landing, a posse of armed officials, having had information of this movement and concealed themselves in the bushes, rushed out and captured five of the slaves and three of their intended liberators. The three Ohioans were Peter M. Garner, Crayton Loraine and Mordecai Thomas, and they were taken by force of arms and lodged in the Parkersburgh jail. The Virginia officials claimed that the Ohio citizens were "felons," amenable to Virginia law for an alleged offence not known in Ohio law. Bail was refused the prisoners, and all intercourse with their friends in Ohio denied, and lawyers employed in Marietta to defend them were rejected.

August 16, 1845, a public meeting was called, to meet in the court house at Marietta, "to take into consideration means for liberation of Ohio citizens confined in the Parkersburgh (Virginia) prison, and the vindication of the rights of Ohio citizens." This call brought forth quite a concourse of citizens, and the indignation of the friends of freedom was freely expressed, while the interest in the all-absorbing question deepened. September 2nd the prisoners were taken from the jail to the court house in Parkersburgh, and they pleaded "not guilty." Bail was again refused, and they were again remanded to prison.

On the seventeenth of the following November their trial was held, and they received a verdict of guilty. The case was taken to a higher court on the question of jurisdiction. The case was argued before the court of appeals, December 10th and 13th, and the court divided equally on the question whether the State line was the low or high water mark, the prisoners having been captured at the low water mark. At the following special term, at Parkersburgh, the men were admitted to bail on their own recognizance, and were set at liberty. January 10, 1846. Thus ended a very exciting local episode in the history of African slavery.

Garner lived in this township, at the Cross-roads, on the northwest corner, where the store now stands. He was born June 14, 1808, and died at Columbus, Ohio, at the age of sixty-one years. Loraine lived one-fourth of a mile west of Fillmore, but has since removed to Illinois, where he is now living. Thomas resided west of Loraine, but is now living in Belmont county, Ohio.

In 1826 the old school-house north of Lobdell's was mysteriously destroyed by fire, and at the time no cause could be assigned for the origin of the fire until some time after, in removing the debris, the charred remains of a man were found, which afterwards proved to be the body of a stranger who had come into the neighborhood the day before the fire, and was noticed as being very peculiar in his actions. An open razor was found with the body, and it is supposed that he fired the house and then cut his throat with the razor.

In early times a "refined" young man from New York purchased what he supposed was a desirable mill site, on one of the chasms of Little Hocking, and brought several first-class workmen with him to construct a dam. But no human genius could construct a framework that would withstand the sudden rush of water down any of these hill branches, and the grand enterprize became the laughing-stock of the practical settlers of the neighborhood, and the young man from New York was compelled to return whence he came, a wiser but somewhat poorer man.

It is related that one Christmas, J. D. Chamberlain, William Chute, Isaac Palmer and James Lawton were surveying a road through this township and that night overtook them in the wilds of hill and forest, and, as the cabins of the settlers were very few, and separated by long distances, and the roads were little better marked than the blazes on the trees indicated, they were compelled to seek shelter in one of the caves. They finally found one suitable for the purpose, and it was located on the steep brow of a hill nearly one hundred feet from the bottom of the ravine below. To this cave they made their way, pulling themselves over the rocks by branches of scrub oaks and pine. They lowered the wood for a fire from above to the shelf of a rock protruding from the cave. A hunter of the party easily procured a deer. The venison was soon on the fire, and the party, in true hunter style, passed a Christmas night in the cave, retiring at last with their saddles for pillows, and overcoats for blankets, while the glare of fire reflected from the rocks, illuminated the ravine below, where the horses of the party were quietly feeding.

ADDITIONAL PERSONAL NOTES.

---

Colonel Levi Barber was born in Connecticut in 1777 and emigrated from Vermont to Marietta, Ohio, in 1799. He settled in Harmar, where he remained until his death, which occurred in 1833. His wife was Eliza Rouse, whom he married about 1802. She was born in Rhode Island in the same year as was her husband, and died in 1830. To them were born five children, viz: David, living in Carthage, Illinois; Elizabeth, deceased; Austin, residing at Pittsfield, Illinois; Levi, who died in infancy, and a second son Levi, living in Harmar.

David Barber, nephew of Colonel Levi Barber, came to Harmar in 1819 from the State of New York, where he was born in 1799. In 1827 he married Miss Lydia N. Stanley, who was born in 1807, in Connecticut, and whose parents emigrated from that State in 1813, settling at Marietta. To Mr. and Mrs. David Barber have been born nine children, of whom four survive: Eliza, widow of Oscar D. Chapin, lives in Saginaw, Michigan; Levi A. resides in Bay City, Michigan; Julia is at home; and Electa W. is the wife of A. B. Chapin, of Saginaw, Michigan. In 1823, Mr. David Barber entered into mercantile business in Meigs county, Ohio, and, after remaining there nearly twenty-three years, returned to Marietta and continued in business, first with Levi Barber and then with his son Levi A. Since 1875, he has been a retired merchant, quietly enjoying the reward of his toil.

Hugh and Celia Brenan, natives of Ireland, emigrated to this country from the West Indies in 1840, and settled in Marietta. He was engaged here in general merchandise until his death, in 1869. They had twelve children, of whom Joseph, William, Francis R., and Celia (Mrs. Van Buskirk), are living. The three brothers are engaged in the grocery business in Marietta, each having a store of his own. Joseph was born in the West Indies in 1829, and was eleven years old when he came to Marietta. Since 1852 he has been engaged in the grocery business.

William Corner, who came in 1795, was from Macclesfield, England, where he was born February 3, 1789. He died August 17, 1878. He worked two years for General Israel Putnam. His wife's name was Sally Maxon, born in 1782, died in 1854. Of the children, Henry W. married Lucinda Robb, and is in Kansas; Lucy married James Anderson, who is now dead; Celinda married J. P. Sandford, and Mary E. was the wife of Benjamin Posey. Two children died in youth. The first land cleared on the Little Muskingum was by William Corner. Mrs. Sandford says that Henry Maxon cut the first tree in Ohio.

Another of the very early settlers was George Corner, who came to the township in 1795. He was born in England in 1783, lived with General Putnam when a boy, was a surveyor, and married Susanna Burlingame, who was born in 1790. She was a granddaughter of General Putnam. The places of residence of the living members of the family are: Persis R., Barstow, Iowa; George S., Marietta township; John B., Virginia; Mary S. Leggett, Iowa; Edwin L., Oregon; Susan B. Mackey, Newport township; Elizabeth P. Rood, Marietta. Henry H., Rebecca, Maria Racer, Sarah F., and Melville R., are dead.

Joseph C. Cole was another old resident, who came in 1802. He was born in 1769, in England, and engaged in farming and especially in raising small trees and nurseries. His wife, Polly Case, lived from 1781 to 1847, while he survived her until 1866. Children: Mary E., still lives on the old homestead; Candis is dead, as is Joseph C.; F. C. married Mary S. Dye, and Richard C. was unmarried; both are now dead.

Jacob Ebinger was born in Sweigern, Germany, in 1825, came to New York in 1847, lived for two years at Pottsville, Pennsylvania, and then came to Marietta, since which time he has been in the harness business. In 1849 he married Catharine Abendschan, who died in 1876. Eight of their nine children are living.

From Massachusetts emigrated William Fay, in 1832, who died at home in 1866. For many years he was deacon in the Congregational church. In 1812 he married Elizabeth Lankton, who was born July 23, 1790. Their children were: Levi L., who married Caroline Hill first, then Minerva Batchelor; Elizabeth, wife of Dr. Gillman, and now dead; Bula S., now Mrs. Dr. James Tenney, of Toledo; William A., married, and in Springfield, Ohio; Solomon P., in Boston, married to Marie Brigham; Catharine A., in Marietta, and wife of Archibald Ewing; Eunice S., wedded to Dr. Johnson.

In 1863, section nine furnished a home for Jacob Hendershot, who was a native of this State and born in 1825, although he came to Marietta from Virginia. He had a farm there on which several oil-wells were drilled, but sold out and came here. His wife was Mary S. Joy, born in 1835 and married in 1855. One child died young; another, Ella Adaline, is now at home.

Stephen Hildreth, father of Calvin, came to Washington county in January, 1814, having left Shirley, Massachusetts, the November previous. He was a son of John Hildreth, and a descendant of Richard Hildreth, who came to this country from England in 1650, and settled in Massachusetts. John Hildreth was a native of West-ford, Massachusetts. He was twice married. His second wife was Elizabeth Gates, by whom he had six children, viz: Simeon, Sallie, Stephen, Lemuel, Betsey and Polly.

Stephen Hildreth was born July 15, 1777, and married Miss Cynthia Brown, who was born October 9, 1783, in Shirley, Massachusetts. On coming to this county, he bought the farm now occupied by his son and grandson. He died here in 1858, his wife having preceded him, dying in 1823. They had four children—Caloin, born April 1, 1804, in Shirley, Massachusetts; Mary, born February 10, 1806, in Bath, Maine; Rebecca Ann, born August 29, 1808, in Charlestown, Massachusetts; Louisa, born August 4, 1811, in Shirley, Massachusetts.

Calvin married in 1830 Miss Susan E. Maxon, who was born in Fearing township, this county, in 1807. There have been born to them two children, Stephen B. and Cynthia, the latter dying in infancy. Stephen B. was born on the old farm October 19, 1831; married in 1856 Miss Oladine S. Hill, who was born February 26, 1834. The issue of this marriage is one child, Zenas Brownhill, born August 21, 1878.

Thomas Hutchinson was born in the block-house at Marietta, in 1794. He married Nancy Warren, who was born in Massachusetts in 1802, and is still living, having been a widow since 1841. Four of the seven children born to Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson are living: William resides in Harmar; Susan, wife of Rev. Irwin, lives in Kansas; Dudley is in Iowa; and Julia resides in Kansas. The eldest son, William W. Hutchinson, born in Harmar in 1822, married Phœbe Sutton, born in New York in 1821. Two of their six children are living, both in Harmar. Mr. Hutchinson has been a farmer during the most of his life, but is now in the grocery business in Harmar.

Lewis Lehnhard came to Marietta in 1838, having emigrated from Germany, where he was born in 1818. He has always followed the carpenter business for a livelihood. He married Elizabeth Cimmer, born in Germany in 1821. Four of the five children of this marriage are living—Lewis C., Lucinda, wife of Harman Angart; John H., who married Carrie L. Miller; Mary E., wife of Lewis Blohm. Mr. Lehnhard and his brother, John, are the only surviving members who organized the Evangelical church.

John Lehnhard was born in Germany in 1809, and married Christina Bescardor, a native of Prussia. In 1836 he landed in Baltimore, where he was married to Catharine Philipina Bock, by whom he has had twelve children, seven of whom survive. In 1838 Mr. Lehnhard came to Marietta. He has been a carpenter during his whole life.

Jacob Lorenz, a native of Germany, born in 1817 came to this country in 1846. Soon after his arrival at New Orleans he went to Louisville, Kentucky. In 1847 he married Catharine Reiter, and after a residence of two or three years in Louisville he moved to Marietta and settled in Union township. Mrs. Lorenz came to the county with her mother, Magdaline, who died here in 1859, aged eighty-nine years. Her father died in Germany. Henry and Mary Lorenz, the parents of Jacob, died, he in 1855 and she in 1861. To Jacob Lorenz have been born ten children, six of whom are living: Henry, Charles, Catharine (Shafer), Jacob, David, and Wilhelmina. Mr. Lorenz now lives in Marietta.

William W. Lucas was born in New Jersey in 1844, and came to Marietta in 1860, and after remaining but a short time went to Athens, where he was employed by the Marietta & Cincinnati railroad company for two years, when he left for Philadelphia, and in 1864 was again employed at Marietta, where he has since been ticket and freight, and, since 1877, express agent of the Marietta & Cincinnati road. In 1875 he married Marion Curtis. They have three children.

Emery Luthringer, sr., was born in Alsace, France, in 1809. He emigrated to America, and lived in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, until 1857, when he removed to Marietta where he resided until his death, which occurred in 1871. His wife, Agatha Dryer, is living with her son Joseph. She was born in Alsace in 1805. Their two sons are Emery and Joseph. Emery is in the tin business in Harmar. He was born in 1839 and married Mary M. Shilshott, who was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, in 1842. Joseph, born in Germany in 1842, came to Marietta with his parents. He married Margaret Henn, born in New York city in 1846. Five of their seven children are living. Since 1867, Mr. Luthringer has been in the tin and hardware business in Marietta.

In the year 1815 came William McAllister from New Hampshire, and settled on section sixteen. He was born in 1768 and died in 1819. A son of this farmer, John, was born in 1807, and married Olive F. Owen in 1834. Mrs. McAllister was born in 1815, and is still living. Mr. McAllister died in 1880. Their daughter, Mary, became Mrs. William Cecil in 1867. Mr. McAllister was much interested in meteorology, and kept a record of semi-daily observations for twenty years. Another son, Madison, married Sallie Whitehouse in 1842, and his second wife, Harriet Posey, in 1867. Two children—Kennett and Mahala. William's wife died in 1865, at the extreme age of ninety-three. Other children are Rebecca and Irene, now Mrs. Ebenezer Buell.

In 1829 John C. McCoy came to Harmar from Richland county, and engaged in the tailoring business. He moved to Athens county in 1856, where he died in 1875. He was one of the first Abolitionists in the county of Washington. He was born in Virginia in 1792, married Mary Comley born in 1799, and died in 1829. Two of their six children are living, viz: W. W. in Harmar, and Asa S. in Bloomington, Illinois. William W., born in 1822, came with his parents to Harmar. He was married in 1850 to Elizabeth Davis in St. Louis, Missouri. Six of their ten children are living. Mr. McCoy is a contractor and does a large business. His father was the mayor of Harmar about 1843. His brother Asa graduated from Marietta college in 1849, and is now a Methodist minister.

Gottlob Meister, born in Germany in 1821, arrived in New York in 1847, lived over a year in Philadelphia, and in Cincinnati until 1855, where he was engaged in the tanning business. Coming to Marietta he went into partnership with Ebinger and Killinger. He afterwards became a partner of A. Roemer. He now has a business aggregating about thirty thousand dollars per annum. In 1844 he married Elizabeth R. Stuhler, born in Germany in 1824. Eight of their twelve children are living, all in this county.

John Miller, father of Robert T. Miller, was born in Westchester county, New York, in 1777 and came to Washington county in 1806. He died in 1840. His wife was Jane Taylor, born in Providence, Rhode Island, in 1769. They had three children, one of whom only survives: Robert T. He was born in 1809 and in 1838 married Marietta Fuller, who was born in Rhode Island, in 1812. Her parents, Charles and Nancy Fuller, were early residents of this county and died here. Mr. Miller was county infirmity director from 1854 to 1860. His farm east of Marietta was entered by Colonel Robert Taylor, who came to the county from Rhode Island in 1799.

Jacob Miller came to Marietta in 1858, and started a bakery and confectionery and a mineral water establishment. Born in Germany in 1830, he emigrated in 1847, stopping first at Erie, Pennsylvania, and then removing to Cincinnati, where he lived ten years prior to coming to Marietta. From 1874 to 1880 he was a member of the board of education. In 1859 he married Mary Keller, born in Germany in 1842. By her he has had seven children, six of whom survive, and all at home.

Of the later additions to the population of the township, was John W. Miller, who married Margaret J. Scott, and had a family of five young children, namely: Fannie, Abbie, Bertha, John and Sarah. The father, however, died some time ago.

Another citizen of the township, Mr. C. A. Miller, married Margaret Bell in 1869. He served two years and ten months in the Seventh Ohio volunteer corps.

Marcellus J. Morse was born in the town of Marietta, in 1812, and died in 1880. He married Louisa Shankland, who was born in Virginia in 1813. They had five children, but two of whom are living: Kent, residing in Indianapolis, and William M., of Harmar. The latter was born in 1843 and married Charlotte Palmer, born in 1843. To them have been born three children: Jennie, Laura and Frank. Mr. Morse has been an engineer on the Marietta & Cincinnati railroad since 1861. He is at present a member of the city council of Harmar, and is also a member of the school board. The elder Mr. Morse was sheriff for two terms, also a member of the council and board of health at Harmar. During Grant's administration, he was inspector for this district.

John Otterbein emigrated from Germany to this country in May, 1860. Soon after his arrival in Marietta the war of the Rebellion commenced, and Mr. Otterbein enlisted as private in company F, Thirty-ninth regiment, and was mustered out of service as a commissioned officer in August, 1865. Soon after his return to Marietta he opened a meat market, which he carried on for a short time, and then engaged in the sale of liquors until 1875.

Richard Pattin, sr., was born in 1806, married Miss Mary Smith, who was born in 1807, and was the father of six children, three of whom are living: Sabra, widow of Luther Burlingham, living in Harmar; William S. residing in Portsmouth, Ohio; and Richard, jr., of Harmar. He was born in 1839, married Amanda Wells, born in 1844, and has three children living and one dead. Mr. Pattin is the superintendent of the Lubricating Oil Company.

Among the colonists of 1788 was Azariah Pratt, who married Sarah Nye, by whom he had ten children, three of whom survive. Their son Elisha was born in 1798, in the block-house standing on the corner of Second and Washington streets. In 1826 he married Lydia Smith, who was born in 1800, and died in 1851, six years before the death of her husband. Their only child, Sarah M., was married in 1852, to Alexander McGirr, born in 1825. They have four children, all living at home. Mr. McGirr entered the One Hundred and Forty-eighth Ohio national guard, company A, as sergeant, and was honorably discharged in September, 1864.

Benjamin Racer was one of the very first settlers, for he came to Marietta in 1789, and settled in Newport township. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1785, and died in the township in 1872. His business was farming and hunting. For many years he lived in the garrison at Marietta, and has mentioned that he heard the gun that killed Robert Warth. His wife, Susannah Holdren, was born March, 1784, and died in 1833. Their son David married Maria Corner, and afterward Susan Flagg; Francis D. is single; William P. married Hattie Fulton, and is in Marietta; Charles' wife is Margaret Day; E. O. married Jane Posey; Susan is the wife of S. B. Smith; all these live in Marietta. Grace's husband is James Stanley, of Salem; Cynthia is Mrs. John A. West; and Annie is the widow of Thomas Alcock; Dennis, Benjamin, Dudley, Mary, Sophia, Rachel, and Elizabeth are dead. E. O. is a farmer on the old homestead, living in a house built in 1831.

In 1811, Joseph Leonard Reckard emigrated to Marietta township from Massachusetts, where he was born in 1795. He engaged in the blacksmith trade and the manufacture of axes. In 1816, he married Delilah Jennings, born in Pennsylvania in 1798. Six of their eleven children are living. Mr. Reckard opened the first livery stable in Marietta, in which business he continued until his death, which occurred in 1870. His son, Joseph L. Reckard, who continued the business, was born in 1839; he married Mary E. Morse, who was born in 1839. They have two children.

Alfred J. Richards commenced the dry goods business in Marietta in 1875, having for six years prior to that time been in the employ of W. H. Buell. He was born in 1849, and married Sarah Eggleston, born in Philadelphia in 1853. They have one daughter.

William Rowland came to Newport township in 1816, originally from Maryland, where his birth occurred in 1790, but immediately from Pennsylvania. He died in 1854. He was a farmer and trader, and held the office of justice of the peace several times. His wife, Ann E. Clark, born in 1799, died in 1876. Several children were born them: Eliza J. is now Mrs. William Thorniley; Thomas married Amanda Neal, and with Charles, whose wife was Jane D. White, and Lewis C., who married Barbara McKibben, is in Newport. Virginia A. married J. B. Hovey, of Marietta; George W. married Paulina Ann Corner and lives in Marietta township. Rufus H. is the husband of Charlotte Rood, and resides in Kansas. William (dead), was wedded to Catharine P. Cline and went to Illinois. The rest died young.

In the year 1820 Thomas J. H. Sandford arrived from England and made his home on section four of Marietta township. He was born October 15, 1776, and died in 1823. He had served in the British navy, was paymaster on board a British man of war in the East Indies. His wife was Mary Broadhurst, who was born in 1790, and died in 1867. His son, J. P. Sandford, married Celinda Corner, and has had nine children. Eliza C. is unmarried; S. H. married Caroline Haas. Seven children died young.

John Schneider was born in Germany in 1827, and came to this country in 1846, and has since been engaged in the brewery business in Buffalo, Cincinnati and Harrison. In 1879 he opened a brewery in Marietta. In 1853 he was married to Elizabeth Zapf, by whom he has five children. Mr. Schneider's aged father is still living in Germany.

Henry Schwitzer, born in Prussia in 1821, came to Baltimore in 1848, then to Wheeling, and shortly afterward to Harrison county, where he worked at his trade for two years. In 1851, coming to Marietta, he engaged in the wagon-making trade. He was married to Elizabeth Lehnhard, born in Germany. They have three girls and three boys, of whom two are at home.

Edward Shaldon was born in New Jersey in 1789, and died in 1847, in Marietta township, where he settled in 1818. Of the six surviving children, Elizabeth, wife of Caleb Thornily, lives in Marietta township, as does Eliza. Sarah was born in Gallia county in 1836. She married Henry Reckard in 1857. He died in 1872.

Mr. George P. Stevens came to this county from Portage county, in 1867. He engaged in the mercantile business in 1870, in which he continued for six years. In 1879 he was elected a member of the board of education of Harmar, and in the spring of 1880 was elected mayor of Harmar, which office he still holds. Mayor Stevens and his father, Dr. Stevens, who is still living in Harmar, established and mainly built up the rolling-mill, which was successfully conducted while it had their attention. In 1863 Mr. Stevens was married to Harriet Harmond, and has one child.

John D. Strauss, born in Germany in 1819, emigrated to Virginia in 1848, coming to this county on foot in 1850. He lived, until 1851, on land purchased in West Virginia, and has since lived in Marietta. Until 1861 he worked at the cabinet-making business, and then bought the mill in partnership with F. Coleman, and in 1873 he retired from the firm. In 1878 he again bought the flouring-mill, which is now operated under the name of the Buckeye Flouring Mill, by Strauss, Elston & Co. In 1853 he married Caroline Zimmer, who came to this county with her parents, who died several years ago. Seven of the eleven children of Mr. Strauss are living, six being at home. Mr. Strauss has been in the city council for two terms.

John Strecker, born in Germany in 1804, came to the United States in 1846, and settled in Pittsburgh, and after one year had passed he came to Marietta. His wife was born and died in Germany prior to Mr. Strecker's emigration. Their son, George, came to this country with his father. In 1856 he married Johannah Abenchoen. Eight of the nine children are living. George Strecker, in 1868, started the Harmar boiler works, which are still in operation.

Ernst Styer was born in the Kingdom of Hanover, Germany, in 1798; emigrated to this country in 1837, and afterwards came to Marietta. Here he has resided since, except two years when he lived at Vicksburgh, Mississippi, working at his trade, that of carpentering. William, a brother of Ernst, came over from Germany in 1838, and to this county in the spring of 1839. He was born in 1806. His trade has also been that of carpentering, and he also spent some months in Vicksburgh. His oldest son William has been a druggist in Cincinnati, and now resides in Marietta.

William Thornily was born in England in 1774, and in 1795 emigrated to New York city, where he was soon afterwards married to Elizabeth Markham, born in London in 1775. Soon after their marriage they emigrated to Ohio, and settled on a farm in Marietta township. Mr. Thornily was at one time in the merchandising business, both at Marietta and Pittsburgh. Of a family of seven children, but one survives, viz., Augusta Beswick, living in Iowa.

Philip Van Thornily was born in New York city, in 1799, and came with his parents to Marietta township. In 1830 he married Nancy C. Martin, who was born in Virginia, in 1811. Eleven children have been born to them, seven of whom are living. Farming and boat-building have principally engaged Mr. Thornily's attention, but for some time previous to his death he led a retired life upon the garden spot of his large farm, which from year to year he distributed among his children. He died April 26, 1881, after an illness of a few weeks, in his eighty-second year.

William Thorniley, another son of William Thorniley, sr., was born in the township, section two, in 1808, and died in 1853. His business was that of shipping produce. He married Esther A. Smith, who was born in 1813. There were born to them: Samuel, who married Frances Middleswart; Thomas J., who died young; Elizabeth M., who is now Mrs. Samuel King; Augusta B., who is Mrs. George Harness; Eliza D., who is the wife of Daniel Reynolds, of Warren; and Laura J., who married Timothy Buell, of Marietta township.

Major John Thorniley came to Marietta township in 1795, from Cheshire, England. Born July 17, 1780, he died in Marietta township, August, 1844. He was in the War of 1812, captain under General Harrison, major in Washington county militia, and one of the seven members who formed the first Baptist church in Ohio. His wife, Mary Compton, was born in 1788, and survived her husband till 1875. Their children married as follows: William, to Eliza J. Rowland; Mary Ann, to Aaron Howe, of Illinois; Thomas E., to Mary C. Ralston; John, to Jane Temple, Harmar; Elizabeth, to Lemuel Wells, in Missouri; C. S. to Betsy Sheldon, in Marietta; Adaline, to James C. West, in Marietta township; James is unmarried, and lives in Marietta; John, Thomas, and George are dead. William T. is now seventy years old, has never lain on a sick bed, and all his teeth are as sound as ever. His marriage was in 1834, and the living children are Minerva A., wife of M. B. Gates, of Ironton; Rinaldo R., married to Mary Snyder, in Newport township; Alice, now Mrs. H. Scott, of Marietta; Newton I., married to Clara S. Kidd, also in Marietta; John R. died young.

Colonel William West settled in Marietta township, section eight, in 1829. He was born in 1796 at Bull Run, Virginia, and served six months in the War of 1812. He married Elizabeth Compton, born in 1794 in Virginia, near Winchester. Four of their nine children are living, viz: John A., James C., William W. and Thomas J. The elder Mr. West served two terms as county commissioner, was infirmary director, and held other important offices. During the war he was a strong Abolitionist, and made the first speech of that character in the county. He owned three hundred and ninety-five acres of land. Of his children, the eldest son, John A., was born in 1821 in Virginia; and married Cynthia Racer, who was born in 1819 in this county. Two of their three children are living: Henry C. and Leslie C. Their daughter Lelia (Hoffman) died in 1880, leaving one son. Mr. West owns a farm at the mouth of the Little Muskingum. He has been trustee of his township nineteen years. His son Henry C. married Phebe McKibben, and has two children. Leslie C., the second son, married Arvilla Middleswart and lives in Kansas. James C., the second son of William and Elizabeth West, was born in 1824, married Adaline Thornily, who was born in Marietta township in 1832. Their sons, George F. and James W. are living. Mr. West has been an important officer in his township. He owns a farm of nearly two hundred acres of land.

Robert Williams was a native of Carnarvonshire, North Wales, where he was born October 31, 1762. He emigrated to this country with his wife and three oldest children, in 1794, and after living some ten years in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, removed to Washington county in 1804. The following year he located on a farm four or five miles east of Marietta, in what afterwards became known as the "Fuller settlement,"—several members of a family of the name of Fuller settling there, whose farms adjoined one another. Robert Williams built himself a substantial log house, the best for many miles around. He was naturalized a citizen of the United States in 1808, and the naturalization papers are now in possession of his daughter, Mrs. Greene. Mr. Williams first married Jane Roberts, who died in 1816. He afterwards married Mrs. Mary H. Needham, widow of Noah Needham. He had six children by his first wife. David, the oldest, was a Methodist minister. Thomas was a farmer of this county. Of the four daughters, Mrs. Dickinson and Mrs. Baker removed to the west several years ago; Mrs. Winters, at her death, resided in Cincinnati, and the other died in childhood. By his second marriage there were five children, three daughters and two sons, twins. The two oldest daughters, Mrs. Susan W. Greene and Mrs. Mary A. Rood, reside in Marietta. The other daughter (Margaret) died quite early. One of the sons, Rev. John Williams, lives in Ottumwa, Iowa; the other, William, died in 1860. Robert Williams died April, 1843, aged eighty-one, and his wife, Mary, in 1857. Of the children of Mrs. Williams, by her first husband, only one lived to years of maturity, the late M. H. Needham, of Marietta, a well known architect, who died in 1878.

John Willis was born in Washington county, in 1839. In the year 1859 he married Rosa E. Grimes, who was born January 13, 1835. To this couple were born six children, four of whom are still living, viz: Osmer M., who is attending medical college at Columbus; Arthur C., Lemuel C., and Freddie N. Mr. Willis was elected superintendent of the county infirmary in 1877. This infirmary was erected in 1841, on land (one hundred and sixty acres) purchased for that purpose in 1839. Mr. Willis has been for nine years a pastor in the Methodist Episcopal church, but for the greater part of his life has been a farmer.

Stephen Wood was born in Tyler county, West Virginia, in 1809. He came to Marietta in 1829, and worked in the Phoenix mills, and was also connected with a ferry boat across the Ohio. He married Elizabeth Kennedy, who was born in 1811. Eight children still survive, viz: D. H., A. S., W. W., B. F., Mrs. Mahala Oliver, Mrs. Sarah J. Akerson, Mrs. Mary O. Bunch, and Mrs. Martha S. Pflug. Mr. Wood died in 1876. He was a temperance man from 1846 until his death. He joined the United Brethren church in 1856.

GENERAL INDEX

(See Errata and Addenda Index After This Index)

In the beginning was the word and then the book. It was not indexed. A three page Table of Contents and chapter headings alone served as guide. These are retained but are now enhanced by an added index.

This index represents the efforts of a host of persons and evolved over a span of years. The Misses Margaret E. Newton and Bernice Graham, after a survey of records, verified that the initial gathering was accomplished through the efforts of the Marietta Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. Starting in December of 1927, its final report of completion was supplied in June of 1932. It appears that the three coordinators were: Mary Means Hathaway, Kate Mason Hawes, Helen Hill Sloan.

Curiously, at least two substantial sections appear to have been omitted from the 1927-32 effort — the Civil War Township Rosters and the section dealing with Salem Township. These last have now been added and interspersed by the staff of Mayhill Publications, Knightstown, Indiana. In addition they have added other refinements and have devised the format of the present index.

With the start of the Bicentennial Year, extensive pages of additions and corrections were culled and submitted by Ralph L. Schroeder, president of the Washington County Historical Society, Marietta, Ohio. In proofing his findings, Schroeder is indebted to Prof. Owen P. Hawley of Marietta College. Finally they refined the gathering during a stint ranging from end of May into July 1976.

The version printed below is the glean of three sources. Since the original text is riddled with errors, the "Errata and Addenda" section (notes supplied by Schroeder), does not pretend to correct even a fraction of them. Likewise the index that follows has, among other things, omissions. (The reader is encouraged therefore to make refinements that will meet individual needs.) If weighed, may omissions and errors be feathers in the balance of perfection and scope.

Surnames are bold face caps; place and subject names are bold caps and lower case letters. Publications are in italics.

- |                                     |  |   |                             |  |                                 |  |                                   |   |                               |                             |                         |   |                               |  |                   |                    |                   |                   |                     |                                 |                                  |                        |                       |   |                   |                    |                               |                         |                       |  |                             |                         |                                      |                                   |  |                                       |   |                              |                               |  |   |                                 |                              |                                     |                                 |                            |                            |  |  |   |                                 |                           |  |                               |                      |                                    |                                     |                    |                                |  |   |   |   |                  |                       |                    |                         |                     |                      |                |  |   |                                    |                              |   |   |                   |                |                   |                          |                        |                                       |                     |                |                       |                    |  |                |                                  |                      |                                  |                   |                               |                                |                       |                       |                        |                  |                     |                      |                     |                     |                              |                   |                           |                             |                    |                                  |                     |                     |                             |                 |                             |                  |                    |                         |   |                     |                |                    |                  |                                 |                   |                 |                  |                 |                 |                   |                  |  |                   |                         |                    |                                 |                                    |  |                                |                          |                              |                                       |  |   |                                  |                  |                |                    |                           |                  |   |                      |                     |                           |                    |                   |                 |                   |                      |                              |                                    |                  |                    |                            |                            |                         |                           |                              |                           |                                |   |                   |                                     |                     |                            |                                    |                                |                       |                               |   |                            |                     |                                   |                  |                    |                     |                   |                    |                              |                    |                |                        |                     |                  |                           |                     |                   |                           |                 |                        |                  |                  |                               |                   |                 |                        |                 |                                    |                    |
|-------------------------------------|--|---|-----------------------------|--|---------------------------------|--|-----------------------------------|---|-------------------------------|-----------------------------|-------------------------|---|-------------------------------|--|-------------------|--------------------|-------------------|-------------------|---------------------|---------------------------------|----------------------------------|------------------------|-----------------------|---|-------------------|--------------------|-------------------------------|-------------------------|-----------------------|--|-----------------------------|-------------------------|--------------------------------------|-----------------------------------|--|---------------------------------------|---|------------------------------|-------------------------------|--|---|---------------------------------|------------------------------|-------------------------------------|---------------------------------|----------------------------|----------------------------|--|--|---|---------------------------------|---------------------------|--|-------------------------------|----------------------|------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|--------------------|--------------------------------|--|---|---|---|------------------|-----------------------|--------------------|-------------------------|---------------------|----------------------|----------------|--|---|------------------------------------|------------------------------|---|---|-------------------|----------------|-------------------|--------------------------|------------------------|---------------------------------------|---------------------|----------------|-----------------------|--------------------|--|----------------|----------------------------------|----------------------|----------------------------------|-------------------|-------------------------------|--------------------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|------------------------|------------------|---------------------|----------------------|---------------------|---------------------|------------------------------|-------------------|---------------------------|-----------------------------|--------------------|----------------------------------|---------------------|---------------------|-----------------------------|-----------------|-----------------------------|------------------|--------------------|-------------------------|---|---------------------|----------------|--------------------|------------------|---------------------------------|-------------------|-----------------|------------------|-----------------|-----------------|-------------------|------------------|--|-------------------|-------------------------|--------------------|---------------------------------|------------------------------------|--|--------------------------------|--------------------------|------------------------------|---------------------------------------|--|---|----------------------------------|------------------|----------------|--------------------|---------------------------|------------------|---|----------------------|---------------------|---------------------------|--------------------|-------------------|-----------------|-------------------|----------------------|------------------------------|------------------------------------|------------------|--------------------|----------------------------|----------------------------|-------------------------|---------------------------|------------------------------|---------------------------|--------------------------------|---|-------------------|-------------------------------------|---------------------|----------------------------|------------------------------------|--------------------------------|-----------------------|-------------------------------|---|----------------------------|---------------------|-----------------------------------|------------------|--------------------|---------------------|-------------------|--------------------|------------------------------|--------------------|----------------|------------------------|---------------------|------------------|---------------------------|---------------------|-------------------|---------------------------|-----------------|------------------------|------------------|------------------|-------------------------------|-------------------|-----------------|------------------------|-----------------|------------------------------------|--------------------|
| Abatis (fortification)52 | ABBESTWilliam Thomson286 see errata | ABBEYMrs. Arlie Morey554 | ABBOTTFurman 151 | ABBOTTCharles 298Farm 298George 138Henry 672Lucy 396Nathan 541William 286, 298William James 273 | ABENCHOENJohanna 738 | ABENDSCHENJacob, see errata | ABENSCHANCatherine 735 | ABENDSHAUJacob 303, see errata | ABENDSHAWJacob 151 | ABERNASHADJ. 151 | ABICHTC. 706 | ABLESRev John 709John 588, 589, 661William Thomson, see errata | Abolitionists 620, 643 | AcademyBartlett 723, see errata | Belpre 524 | Beverly 547 | Gallia 132 | Harmar 395 | Marietta 401 | Maxwell's (Oak Hill) 615 | Muskingum 393-4, 483, 611 | Accidents 603-4 | A accounts 365 | ACKERSONAbraham 298Ephraim 298George Washington 98 | Samuel 151 | Sarah J 739 | ACKLEYClarissa 519 | ACTONJ H 384 | ADAIDr 545 | ADAMSAlcynus 309Augustine 326D. P. 626Demas 326Dennis 347, 382, 625, 626, 631Elijah 139Frank B 547George 700George Washington 290Hamlin M 326Henry 151Horatio N 295Isaac N 317James 138, 290, 446, 641James M 290Jane Patterson 626John 642John Quincy 432-3, 544dJoseph John 298Lewis 290Mrs. Mary 592, 645Mrs. Mary J. 524Mrs. Mary Mellor 645Moses 309N B 520, 522Nathaniel 21Mrs. Prudence Mellor 645Samuel 458Thomas Dunn 275Tiffany 138, 427V. 533William A. S. 275Wirt 220Worley 442 | Adams Express Co 374 | Adams Grange 536 | Adams Twp. 109, 556, 580, 606 | ADAMSONBarnet 290, 603 | ADDISBenjamin F 271Elmer 729Hester A 721Job 721John 721 | Mary (w. John)Thomas M 271 | ADDYFrances A Barnes (w. William) 493Thomas 139Rev. William 492, 493 | Adelphia, flatboat 46 | Adelphi (Marietta) 356 | ADKINSAlvin 566Amos 309, 574E 588Prof. Erastus 400, 403Isaac 565, 577, 601L K 698 | ADNEYMaj. 202Sgt 167William H G (Lt.-Col.) 198, 204, 396 | Adventure Galley Boat 46 | AFFLACKPhoebe 384 | African Methodist Church 392 | AGENBRODRev. L G 386 | AGINWilliam 313 | AGLEOJohn S 267 | AGNEWGov. 473Margaret 473 | Agricultural Assoc. 348-9, 651, 717 | Agricultural &amp; Mech Institute Co 349 | Agricultural Society 348 | AIGINIsaac 670 | AIKINDavid C 542, 555, 561Harriet 555Isaac 555James 555Jennie 555John 555Mary M 555Samuel 555Violet Anderson (w. David C) | AKINSONCharles 658 | Cornelius 658 | Jane Templeton (w. William) | Theda Patterson (w. William) | William 658 | ALBACHJames R 9, 14 | ALBANAbraham 708Mrs. A. Abraham 708David 121, 126-7, 129, 132, 423a& Loomis 127, 132William 260 | ALBERRYAntony 321John 321Joseph 321Richard 321 | ALCOCKMr. 110Annie Racer (w. Thomas) | Charles T 298child of W m 428Richard 427Sally H 347Stephen 226Thomas 292, 737Wealthy A 427 | ALDEN 589 | Benjamin G 314 | Gilbert 240 | Col. Ichabod 465 | Jonathan 314 | Mehitabel 582 | R G 605 | ALDERMANE R 371, 415, 671J 520, 524Justice 716a | Saphrona J Gard (w. Justice) & Scott 524 | ALECHMr. (minister) 389 | ALESHIRECapt. 149 | ALEXANDERAlexander A 283A C 286, 704Allen J 193Henry 282Mrs. Jane 561Mary 624Mr. (teacher) 601Robert 227, 295Samuel 283T M 561 | ALGEOCharles 603Charlotte Dana (w. Joseph) | George 603 | J R 603 | Joseph 603 | ALLENCol. 115 | Alexander J 260 | Charlotte Dana (w. Dr. Joseph) | Corwin D 508 | D C 140 | Davis 507, 526 | Davis C 265 | Prof. D Howe 398, 399, 518, 644 | E H 395 | Elisha 226, 586, 587, 688 | Elizabeth 506 | Ellen Edgar (w. Luther P) | Eunice 508 | Harvey G 140, 265, 507 | Mrs. Irena Benedict 504 | James 195, 260 | Dr. Joseph 537 | Mrs. Joseph 537 | Justus 58 | Leonidas 321 | Levi 541, 555 | Loring P 265 | Luther P 555 | Magdalene (w. Reuben) | Mary L 508 | Mr. J 34, 532, 615 | Mr. (Old Charon) 134 | Rev N H 587 | Pamela Barrows (w. Davis) | Parker L 508 | Permelia 526 | Reuben 507, 508, 527 | Ruth 130 | Capt. Theodore F 130 | Viola 508 | Waldo E 508 | Allen's Mill 586 | ALLISONA bigail Kinny (w. Stephen) | A andrew 362 | C M 256 | Charles 362 | Delia 558 | Elizabeth Kinny (w. W m) | Hannah 557 | Hugh 362 | James 256 | John 367 | Levi 256 | Lucien 256 | Nancy 557 | Robert 58, 256, 362, 556-7, 561 | Samuel 286 | Stephen 256, 557 | William 557 | ALPHADaniel 138, 139 | Alpha Kappa (Lit. Soc.) 402 | ALTONMrs. Mary A Beck-ett 554 | ALTSMANMrs. S E 601 | Alumni Hall 401-2 | AMBLERBarbara 599 | AMBROSELieut. Harson P 227 | American Friend (newspaper) 413 | American Union Lodge, No. 1 F &amp; M 417-22 | AMESA bigail 503, 527 | Azuba 503 | C E 516 | Charles 498 | Charles B 503, 522 | Cyrus 347 | Cyrus Sr. 498, 503, 519, 522, 525, 527 | Cyrus Jr. 503 | Edward L 503 | Emma 503, 521, 522 | Frank P 503 | Joseph 520 | Mary 589 | Mary E 503 | Mrs. Mary 589 | Polly Rice (w. Cyrus) | Sarah Porter (w. Cyrus Jr.) | Susan 503 | William 503 | Amestown Colony 532 | Amesville, Ohio 636 | AMISSM P 156 | AMLENSarah 567 | AMLINAngelina 384 | Elizabeth 582, 684 | Elizabeth (w. Jonathan) | Elizabeth Mitchell (1st w. Samuel) | family 689 | Hannah La Rue (3d w. Samuel) | J M 430, 431 | James 580, 587, 684 | Jane Campbell (w. John Jr.) | John 570, 580, 581, 684 | John (Sr.) 580 | Jonathan 580, 684, 685 | Samuel 565, 570, 577, 580, 684-5 | Sarah (w. John Sr.) | AMMEN186 | AMOSCatharine 551, 708 | James 286 | James L 603 | Mordecai 286 | Robert 594 | Andastes 10 | ANDERSONAgnes 714 | Dr. A R 602 | D B 367 | Edward 318, 714 | Edward A 303 | Eliza 427 | Elizabeth 396, 714 | Harriett 132 | Harvey 218 | James 38, 318, 714 | June 714 | Joseph Hall 298 | Lewis 114 | Louis 347 | Lucy Corner (w. James) | Marcus 714 | Mark 427 | Mary A 628, 714 | Peter 76 | Rebecca Rodgers (w. Marcus) | Rebecca 714 |
|-------------------------------------|--|---|-----------------------------|--|---------------------------------|--|-----------------------------------|---|-------------------------------|-----------------------------|-------------------------|---|-------------------------------|--|-------------------|--------------------|-------------------|-------------------|---------------------|---------------------------------|----------------------------------|------------------------|-----------------------|---|-------------------|--------------------|-------------------------------|-------------------------|-----------------------|--|-----------------------------|-------------------------|--------------------------------------|-----------------------------------|--|---------------------------------------|---|------------------------------|-------------------------------|--|---|---------------------------------|------------------------------|-------------------------------------|---------------------------------|----------------------------|----------------------------|--|--|---|---------------------------------|---------------------------|--|-------------------------------|----------------------|------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|--------------------|--------------------------------|--|---|---|---|------------------|-----------------------|--------------------|-------------------------|---------------------|----------------------|----------------|--|---|------------------------------------|------------------------------|---|---|-------------------|----------------|-------------------|--------------------------|------------------------|---------------------------------------|---------------------|----------------|-----------------------|--------------------|--|----------------|----------------------------------|----------------------|----------------------------------|-------------------|-------------------------------|--------------------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|------------------------|------------------|---------------------|----------------------|---------------------|---------------------|------------------------------|-------------------|---------------------------|-----------------------------|--------------------|----------------------------------|---------------------|---------------------|-----------------------------|-----------------|-----------------------------|------------------|--------------------|-------------------------|---|---------------------|----------------|--------------------|------------------|---------------------------------|-------------------|-----------------|------------------|-----------------|-----------------|-------------------|------------------|--|-------------------|-------------------------|--------------------|---------------------------------|------------------------------------|--|--------------------------------|--------------------------|------------------------------|---------------------------------------|--|---|----------------------------------|------------------|----------------|--------------------|---------------------------|------------------|---|----------------------|---------------------|---------------------------|--------------------|-------------------|-----------------|-------------------|----------------------|------------------------------|------------------------------------|------------------|--------------------|----------------------------|----------------------------|-------------------------|---------------------------|------------------------------|---------------------------|--------------------------------|---|-------------------|-------------------------------------|---------------------|----------------------------|------------------------------------|--------------------------------|-----------------------|-------------------------------|---|----------------------------|---------------------|-----------------------------------|------------------|--------------------|---------------------|-------------------|--------------------|------------------------------|--------------------|----------------|------------------------|---------------------|------------------|---------------------------|---------------------|-------------------|---------------------------|-----------------|------------------------|------------------|------------------|-------------------------------|-------------------|-----------------|------------------------|-----------------|------------------------------------|--------------------|

GENERAL INDEX ADDITION

When the three divisions of the Index were finalized, the following notes relating to the General Index were deemed necessary.

ACADEMY

Maxwell's (Oak Hill) 615, see errata

ADKINS

Amos 309, see errata

ARTISTS

see errata for each entry

AUTHORS

see errata for each entry

BENT

Dorcas 502, see errata

BIZANT

Charles, see errata

CHOPMAN

Joseph 58, see errata

CONE

Mary 613, see errata

CUTLER

E 645, see errata

DEAN

eliminate entry for Anna

DODGE

Israel 48, see errata

DRAKER

entry should be under DRAHER

DUNHAM

Azubah 506, see errata

Bathsheba 506, see errata

DURHAM

Azubah 506, see errata

FULTON

Louisa Jackson 581, see errata

Rhuama Jackson 581, see errata eliminate Maria 566

GUITTEAU

HABERLING

Jacob, see errata

JACKSON

Rhuama 581, see errata

JAY

George, see errata

JENVEY

Charles W 478a, see errata

Ella Spaulding (w. Charles W)

George K 227, 306, 371

William 152, 178-83, 227, 306

KNOTT

Benjamin 537, see errata

KNOX

William 347, see errata

MARVIN

James 300, eliminate see errata

MARWIN

John 300, see errata

MATHEW

Richard 115, see errata

MATTHEWS

Elenor Woodward 609, see errata

MATTHEWS

Elizabeth 555 (not 554)

MERVIN

George W 296, eliminate see errata

MIDDLESWARTZ

George W 311, see errata

MILLS

Dorothy Webster (2nd w. Col. John), see errata

MILLSTEAD

Isaac 266, see errata

NENN (see Nine)

George 278, see errata

John 278, see errata

Jonas 278, see errata

NEUN

George 278, 312, see errata

Jacob 312, see errata

John 278, 600, see errata

Jonas 278, 589, see errata

Lewis 312, see errata

Tunis 600

NINE (see Nenn)

George 312, see errata

Jacob 312, see errata

Lewis 312, see errata

NOE

Lewis 151, 274

OHERBEIN

eliminate total entry

PAN

James H, see errata

PARDEE

Eunice, see errata

REYHOE

James F 324, see errata

RIDENOUR

John 139, see errata

Joseph 269, see errata

Roxbury Twp. 109, see errata

Schrumm's Mill 582, see errata

SHEPARD

Rhoda 407, see errata

SHEPHERD

Rhoda 407, see errata

SHERFICK

Frederick, see errata

STARMAN

Jonathan 331, see errata

STONEMAN

John 331, see errata

TAYLOR

Maria 566, see errata

WELLBROOK

Henry 307, see errata

Winget's Run

eliminate this entry

Wingett Run

see Winget(t)'s Run 704, see errata

WOODARD

Elenor 609, see Matthers

WOODWARD

Elenor 609, see Matthers

- Maj. Robert 118,
140, 228, 242
Samuel533
Thomas714
Violet555
William 138, 318,
714
William A 321
ANDRE58
Major459
ANDREA
August602
Em604
ADDRESS
Anna553
ANDREW
ThomasA 270
William 100, 714
ANDREWS
Amy553
Ann129
Anna Address (w.
Philander)
Christian307
Daniel307
Ebenzer B. 151,
198-9, 242-3, 305,
384, 399, 403, 564,
644, 674
Elizabeth Breckenridge(w. Wm.)
Ismael Ward 1, 107
fn., 108 fn., 111
fn., 115, 133, 154,
173, 339 fn., 340
fn., 347-8, 392a,
393, 399, 400, 405,
410, 472, 484, 486
Mrs. Israel174
Rev. J. 561
John58
Maj. 201, 494
Martin Register
396, 400, 405
Philander553
Samuel326
Samuel James 124,
539, 543
Sarah Parkhill (w.
Rev. Wm.) 484
Dr. T. L. 415
Rev. William 124,
400, 486
ANGLE
Catharine551
Peter551
ANKROM
Clarissa574
ANTHONY
family58
Anthony's Rock 580, 598
Antioch, Ohio 598
APLIN
Anna697
Joseph 298, see er-
rata
Oliver691
APPEL
Simeon318
Valentine318
Apple orchard 6n
N.W. Terr. 514
APPLE
Samuel317
Apple trees 98
APLEGATE
512
CharlesR 547
Joseph58
Applejack (distilleries) 574
APPLIN
Joseph, see errata
Arabella 590
ARCHER
Cornelius260
John139
Mr. 654, 696
Archer's Fork 613, 654, 696
ARCHIBALD
Rev. Israel566
AREND
Abraham613
Daniel307
Mary Elizabeth614
Sarah M 614
Arend Place 615
Argand Oil Works
375
Argyleshire 637, 638, 647, 649, 651
ARMSTRONG
589
Alexander H 265
Catherine Burke (w.
Peter)
Charles305
children511
Elizabeth84
Henry226
Isaac256
James139, 192
John 84, 101, 226,
305, 511
Mrs. John511
Mary668
Mrs. 526
Peter613
Rev. R. 575, 600
Robert275
William256, 518
ARNOLD
Mr. 389
Alice626
Alpha720
Anzonia720
Benjamin 227, 626,
632, 720
Constantine417
Denna720
Eunice626
Frank720
Joseph626
JosephA 326
Laura Orinda 720
Levi720, 724
Lucy Jane720
Maria720
Mary626
Mary Steer (w.
Joseph)
Mym626
Oliver116
Rosanna (Stetler)
Jennings (2d w.
Benjamin) 724
Sarah Parke (1st w.
Benjamin)
William139, 626
ARTHUR
J. Armstrong275
Richard519
WilliamD 275
ARTIS
Rev. 392
Artists, see errata
Bosworth, Sala
Mowery, Carrie
(Fay)
Spencer, Lilly Martin
Sullivan, Charles Twigg, Willard
ARVIN58
ASBENSHEAT
Daniel, see errata
ASBENSHEET
Daniel256, see errata
ASBURY
Dudley E 318
ASENATH
Hubbard 508
ASHCROFT
George671
ASHBY
Gen. 179
ASHE 439 fn.
ASHLEY
Edward13
J. C. 703, 704
Major30
ASKINS
George, see errata
Assessors 597
Association, First
(Belpre) 55
Association, Second
(Waterford) 55,
530
ATEN
George275
Mary Ann598
Athens Village 608,
612, 635, 668
Athens county Militia 164
ATHEKTON
Charles682
Howard546
W. F. 546
William H 256
ATHEY
Annie685
Charles114, 685
Charles Wesley 273
Clarissa (w. Walter)
Elizabeth114, 685
Etta685
Francis685
Rev. George 389,
577, 600
Hezekiah273, 685
J. W. 661
James685
James L. 273
John685
Mary A. n. Tidd (1st
w. Hezekiah) 689
Phoebe M Huggins
(2d w. Hezekiah)
Rufus685
Samuel685
Sarah685
Solomon685
Walter685, 689
William542, 685
ATHONE 58
ATKINS
George 383, see er-
rata
Isaac698
James E 521
Rev. (Negro) 733
ATKINSON
B. F. 675
C. W. 675
Charles283
Cornelius658
D. 226
Deborah667
Frank667
Frederick305
George Templeton
283
J. 675
James283
John305, 667
Jonathan298
Joseph667
Luan667
Mary B. 659
Mary N. 659
Samuel317
William218, 223
William Monroe260
William Templeton
283
ATWATER
Caleb 17 fn., 439, 479
ATWOOD
Leah636, see errata
Priscilla638
AUDEBERT
C. 298
AUGUSTINE
John256
Matt256
Aurelius Twp. 109,
674-7
AUSTIN
George Greenwood 275
Lemuel262
Salathiel262
AUSTON
James B. 519, 715
JohnC 521
Major501
Sally (w. Major)
Authors, see errata
Andrews, Israel
Ward
Barker, Col. Joseph Carter, John Henton
Cone, Mary (Gen.
Rufus Putnam)
Delafield, John Jr.
Devol, Capt. Jonathan Drown, Dr. Solomon
Emerson, Wm. Dana
Everett, David Flagg, Edmund
Greiner, John
Gage, Aunt Fanny
(Mrs. James L.)
poet Hidreth, Dr. Samuel P.
Lawton, James McIntosh, Dr. Nathan (religious) Meigs, Return Jonathan Jr.
Page, Edward Postlethway
Shepherd, Col.
Enoch (religious) Tupper, Maj. Ansel
Varnum, Gen.
James Mitchell
AYERILL
Gen. 169, 196
AVERY
366
AYE
Henry140
AYRES
Ebenzer57
Elizabeth449
J. T. 675
BABB
Reese Smith, see
errata
BABBIT
Henry A 206
BABCOCK
Abijah57
James Whitney Jr.
295
Joseph383, 427
William Winslow
295
BABSON
583, see errata
Albert583
Angenora585
Betsy583
Francis583
Ida583
John583
Lydia583
Mary583
Mary A. 583
Mr. 583
Nancy Marr583
Oliver583
Samuel, see errata
Sarah588
Sarah Ann583
BACHELDER
Abigail1731
Eben731
Ebenzer731
Mrs. Eunice731
Joseph667
BACHELOR
Alexander329
Annie528
Minerva658, 735
BACHER
Henry298
BACHMAN
George Jr. 423
BACHMANN
George423
BACKUS
Elijah56, 58, 62, 64,
105, 111, 114, 117,
118, 413, 473, 501,
581
James57
Matthew 114, 339,
433, 439
Thomas118
Mrs. Thomas 114,
118
Backus' Island 56,
70, 496, 500, 509,
513, 525, 563
BACON
Andrew J. 551
Bertrand551
Betsey551
child of Mrs. 427,
428
Eliza551
Ellen551
Emily551
Isaac551
John551, 623
JohnE 551
Maria551
Martha551
Martin551
Mary551
Mary A. 552
Mary E. 551
Melissa551
Meranda551
Mrs. 427
RachelJ 551
Sarah551
Sarah Corner (w.
John)
William551
BADGELEY
Benjamin139
Isaac256
BADGER
JohnB 552
Rev. Joseph381 ff
BADGLY
Abraham139
BADWELL
Elijah58
BAEDENSHATZ
Rev. 589
BAESSHAR
Christian 314, see
errata
Jacob589
Theobald589
BAGLEY
Henry57
BAHRENBURG
Henry589
JohnP 286
P. 588
BAILEY
A. S. 111, 227, 347
AbbieM 491, 492
Augustus636
BenjaminP 303
Bennett635, 644
C. E. 589
Caleb58
Charles Emerson
635, 636, 643
Cyrus139
Daniel318
Miss E. 645
Elizabeth635, 721
Elizabeth Emerson
(2d w. William)
Ella E. 636
George636, 643
Jane Johnson (w.
George)
John635, 644, 645
Lizzie641
M. 645
M. L. 636
Maria575, 635, 695
Mariah H. 575
Mary Annette636
Mary A. Scott (w.
Seth)
Mary A. Ward (1st
w. William)
Peter318
Polly James (w.
Seth)
Prashel525
Sarah H. 646
Seth 318, 634, 635,
636, 643, 644, 646,
714
Thomas636
William 636, 641,
643, 644
Bailey Cemetery 641
Bailey's Run 633
BAIR
Adam139
Rudolph106
BAIRD
Rev. 542
Robert688
Bake House Square
434
BAKEHAUS
1588
BAKER
Alpheus303, 307
Benjamin 57, 362,
710
Francis318, 329
George H. 329
George W. 111, 546
Henry290, 521
James M. 221, 245,
251
James William290
John138, 317
John L. A. 318
Jonathan546
LouisC 546
Manuel270
Manuel T. 318
Margaret560, 626
Morris140
Moses140
Nicholas520
Rhoda556
Samuel290, 541
Samuel Jr. 541
Sarah665, 703
Seth113
Dr. Seth 113, 540,
545, 556, 562, 630
Thaddeus57
Theobald616
Timothy58
William149
BALCH
John256
Mary455
Mary Summer (w.
Thomas)
Rev. Thomas455
BALDWIN
A. bel57
Betsey Bacon551
David57
Davis57
George150
George Edward298
H. C. 533, 542
Jesse557
Jonathan58
Jonathan (teacher -
"Picketed Point")
Marietta) 392, 393,
510, 516
Mary Hart (w.
Salmon)
Michael106
Perry280
Saint Clair292
Salmon490
Silas310
Sinclair310
W. L. 164
Baldwin Fort 490
Baldwin, (millwright) 512, 563
BALL
Edward111
George731
Henry L. 731
Mrs. James174
James W. 262
John525
BALLARD
Prof. Addison399
Andrew 519, 731,
734
Asa66, 67, see errata
Eleazer 66, 67, see
errata
George149
Mrs. Mary Ann
Cole635
PhilipA 267
BALLENTEINE
George Kimberly
310
Hugh275
John275
JohnT 310
Robert275
Susan Frances
(w. W. H.)
W. H. 570
William Edward310
William G. 403, 469
William Henry310
BALLOU
Miss594
Baltimore & Ohio
R.R. 148-9, 340-3, 524
BALTZ
Adam589
Jacob589
BALWIN
Jesse587
BANCROFT
Mary175, 499, 510,
566
Band 152
Band, college (1838)
358 fn.
BANE
J. B. 533, 534
Henry139
Bank of Chillicothe
372 Banking Law (of 1816) 372-3
BANKS
Gen. 183, 216, 222,
253
Banks (first in NW Terr.) 168, 183,
216, 222, 373, 374,
534, 535
Banks (Marietta)
372, 388b
BANSIER
Ella Smith (w. Dr.)
Dr. 668
BANTHORN
PerryG 139
Baptist Church 120,
385-7, 388b, 533,
543, 561, 578, 588,
598, 601, 661, 681,
695, 698, 703, 709
Baptists Lower
Salem 589
BARAND
Mr. 588
BARBER
Col. 444
Col. David 112, 122,
155, 735, see errata
David347
Electa W. 488, 735
Eliza735
Eliza Rouse (w. Col.
Levi)
Ezekiel58
Henry295
J. Daubigne275
Julia176
Capt. Levi161, 173, 198
Levi 295, 347, 349,
421, 422, 424, 735
Mrs. Levi141, 176
Col. Levi109, 111,
114, 120, 122, 500,
735
Lydia N. Stanley (w.
Col. David)
Prof. S. W. 601
BARBOUR
Goodrich H. 390, 479
Harriet C. Ward (w.
Goodrich H.)
Barclay
Rev. Chas. B. 541,
547
Charles R. 127
BARCUS
James M. 265
BARFIELD
Humphrey, see er-
rata
BARNTZ
Dwight275
Martin275
BARKER
Rev. 601
Anna502
Arthur W. 307
Catherine611
Charlotte611
Col. David 120, see
errata
Elizabeth Dana (w.
Joseph)
Emaline Devol (w.
George W.)
Rev. Ezra698, 716
Fanny (poet) see
Gage
George W. ("Major") 113, 155, 226,
347, 395, 611
Isaac57
Capt. Isaac 57, 84,
86, 97, 502, 510,
612
Isaac Jr. 502
J. Gage 307, 551,
611, 615
Rev. J. H. 543
J. H. 588
Capt. James 133,
157, 198, 248
Jesse H. 295, 307
John298
John D. 151, 187,
189, 190, 307
Joseph 57, 59, 65-
6, 81, 106, 111,
175, 307, 310, 348-
9, 362, 376, 387,
406, 430, 432-3,
467, 473, 479, 502,
510, 514, 516, 521,
565, 568-9, 576,
610-1, 615-6, 708
Mrs. Joseph 510,
514, 521, 569
Julia568
Juliet543
L. D. 576
L. M. 226
Levi Tuttle260
Luther 569, 611,
573, 577
Luther D. 307
Maria Devol (w. Luther)
Mary611
Mary Ann Shipman
(w. Joseph Jr.)
Melissa W. Stone
(w. Joseph Jr.)
Michael502
Nancy502
Rhoda502
Sophia501, 611
Timothy502
William502
William K. 260
Barker Cemetery,
Lower Newport
174, 521, 574
Barker Settlement, Lower Newport
573
BARKLEY
Arthur D. 625
Cecil625
Charles R. 118
Columbus D. 525
Earnest625
Eugene H. 625
Eva V. 625
Mary C. 625
Mary E. 525
Minerva M. 625
Samuel519
Samuel W. 265
Wm. H. 524, 528
BARKWILL
family693
BARLOW
Gen. 216
Capt. Aaron54
Jabez73-4, 531
Joel42, 407
Barlow Cemetery 7, X
718 Barlow Fair (It never rains) 717
Barlow Twp. 109, 710
Barn Raising 673
BARNES
A. L. 286
A. manda 722
Anna598, 722
C. J. 600
Caleb722
Charles722
Charles W. 598

- Euphemia Benninghaus (w. Theodore Sr.)
 Mrs. Frances A. 275, 492-3, 598
 Harriet 558, 564a
 Jane Grimes (w. Theodore Sr.)
 Jennie Leslie 598
 Laura 598
 Lewis H 392
 Lizette 598
 Louisa Belle 598
 Margaret Bell (w. Theodore Jr.)
 Maria Price (w. Henry S.)
 Otho 722
 Owen 260, 675
 Samuel 58
 Dr. Samuel 510, 515, 523
 T B 602
 Theodore B 598
 Theodore Jr. 598
 Vachel 603
 Vachel Hall 275
 William 272, 598
 William E 260
 William L 260
 William Wilson 260
- BARNETT
 A lbert 296
 Elizabeth 596
- BARNHART
 A sa 707
 Chester 275
 George 707
 George M 275
 James W 280
 James W William 275
 Jasper 308
 John 658, 707
 Joseph 706, 707
 Joseph W 286
 Leonard 275
 Rosanna 707
 William 275, 307-8, 707
- BARNHILL
 Robert S 227
- BARNUM
 Irene 504
- BARR
 Elias 271
 Elizabeth 727
 J J 544
 Lewis 280
- Barracks 510
- BARRETT
 John C 275
 Lydia 608
 P G 190
- BARRINGER
 J 519
- Barris Mill 724
- BARROW
 Rev. Thompson 520
- BARROWS
 Bradley P 268
 Charles Cole 298
 Gen. 146
 Guy 146
 James K 265
 James P 149
 Pamela 507
- BARSTOW
 Abbie 508
 Alice 508
 Caleb 428, 508
 Cornelia 508
 Israel 508
 Lydia 508
 Maria 508
 Richard 508
 Russell 508
 Salvia 508
- BARTLELL
 Frederick 314
- BARTER
 Silas 427
- BARTLETT
 520, 722, 724
 A Adelaide 506
 A lce J 553
 Amos 724
 Ann 506
 C P 422
 Caroline 506
 Eleanor Falcon (w. John)
 Elizabeth 506
 Elizabeth Allen (w. William)
 family 581
 Frances 506
 Rev. Francis 518
 Frederick 273
 Capt. G B 250-1
 G B 545
 George 326
 George B 322
 H 295
- Harry Grey (freeman) 429
 Henry 308
 James 262
 John 262, 506, 527
 Joseph 383, 427
 Levi 111, 114, 226, 612
 Maria Dickey (w. Levi)
 Phoebe Green (w. Levi) see errata,
 Green
 Polly 506
 Reuben 506
 Sarah Kinny (w. Wyram)
 Sylvester 295
 Thomas M 183, 185
 W William 506, 563
 Wyram 557
- Bartlett's Academy,
 see errata
- BARTMESS
Black-eyed children 657
 George 657
 George J 113, 273, 292
 Jacob 657
 Jacob S 283
 Samuel 283
 Washington 283
- BARTON
 Alexander 722
 Frances 722
 Joseph A 599
 Mary 722
 Richard J 722
 Capt. Robert C 135, 142, 143
 Sarah C 722
 Sarah J. Keigley (w. Richard J.)
 Susan 722
 Virginia 722
 William A 722
- BASHOR
 Joseph 603
- BASIM
 D E 718
 David 270
 John 268
- BAST
 Frederick 305
 Henry 305
- BATCHELDER
 Gideon 58
- BATCHELOR
 Daniel 267
 W William 305, 400
 Wm A 405
- BATE
 Henry 572
- BATES
 704
 Augusta Camp (w. Dr. Wm.)
 Augusta Gard (w. William)
 David 339-40
 Henry 395
 Rev. J A 518
 Martha Ettit (w. Henry)
 William 716a
 Dr. William 716a
- BATTELLE
 57, 445
 Andrew 568
 Anna Durant (w. Col. Ebenezer)
 Charles D. see errata
 Rev. Cornelius D 7, 478-479, 500, 568, 575
 Ebenezer 7, 57, 70, 113, 348, 433, 444-5, 500, 503, 510, 515-7, 565, 567-8, 574, 577, 657, 693
 Elizabeth Barker (w. A. Andrew)
 Elizabeth Green (w. Cornelius)
 Gordon 568
 Julia Barker (w. Ebenezer)
 Louisa 500, 575
 Mary Greene (w. Capt. Ebenezer)
 Phoebe 568
 Rufus B 445
 Thomas 500, 568
- Battle's Block-house 516
- BATTEN
 Jacob 221
 L M 516
 Lewis M 265
"Battle of the Kegs" 474
- Battles, Civil War
 178, 179, 181, 183, 188, 189, 191, 203, 221, 237, 238, 239, 241, 245, 248, 251
- BATTIN
 John 290
 Samuel 290
- BAUER
 Jacob 295
- BAUGHEY
 Jacob 416
- BAUMES
 Jacob 283
- BAUMGARDNER
 John G 308
- BAVINES
 Rev. 698
- BAXTER
 Lt. James 418
- BAY
 Frederick, see errata
 Henrietta M Conrad (w. Samuel) 584
 Henry 584
 Jacob 583
 Jacob F 314
 Louis William 584
 Mary C 584
 Samuel 583, 584
 S. Gruisharber (w. Thomas) 583
 Thomas 583
 William 583, 716
- BAYARD
 Col. 593
- BAYLES
 Mary M 694
 Nancy Haynes (w. Richard)
 Richard Sr., also Jr. & 3rd 694
 Westley 694
- BEABOUT
 James 280, see errata
- BEACH
 A P 423
 Ada May 713
 Alfred 713
 Alfred P 262
 Alice 713
 Amy 535, 553
 Amy Sherman (w. Samuel)
 Asa 535, 553, 625, 667, 713, 742
 Asa Pardee 292
 Barnard 713
 Charlotte B 553
 Clara C (w. William W)
 Cyndnor T 262, 713
 Cynthia A 553
 David 713
 David Edwards 400, 403, 405
 Eliza 553
 Elizabeth Cornes (w. Asa)
 Elizabeth Finney (w. Joseph)
 Emily Thompkins (w. Rufus)
 Hiram 270, 536, 553
 J D 536
 J P 422
 Jackson 535
 Jane 553
 Jesse 347
 John 553
 John Berwich 292
 John S 553
 Joseph 535, 553
 Josephine 713
 Leander 553
 Lucy 553
 Mrs. Martha 651
 Mrs. Melissa 551, 651
 Pardee 713
 Roena 713
 Rufus 713, 717
 Ruth 713
 Rev. S 613
 Samuel 113, 535, 543-4, 553
 Sarah 713
 Thomas H B 321
 William W 564c
- BEACH GROVE 661
- BEADLE
 Benjamin 57, 105, 530-1, 541, 551, 559
 — Converse (w. Benjamin)
- BEAGAL
 Milton 280, see errata
- BEAGLE
 Daniel M, see errata
 Jeremiah, see errata
 Milton, see errata
- BEALOUR
 James 280, see errata
- BEAN
 Daniel 58
 James F 292
- Bear Creek 579, 580, 582, 587
- Bear Creek Allotment 556
- Bear Creek Ridge 589
- Bear Run - Bear Creek 606, 654, 657, 658
- BEARD
 John (Barlow mini-ster) 716
- BEARDMORE
 George 709
 William 286
- BEARDSLEY
 689
 Mrs. Phineas 682
- BEARDSMORE
 Milcent 709
 William 709
- BEARFIELD
 Humphrey, see errata
- Bears 500, 654, 692
- BEATS
 Capt. Stephen 418
- BEATY
 Col. 149, 166
- BEAUREGARD
 154, 212
- BEAVER
 Abraham 280
 Calvin 275
 Francis M 280
 George W 275
 James 275
 Michael 275
 Mr. 697
 Perry 275
- BEAZELL
 Mrs. William (Sarah Williams) 721
- BEBEE
 Frederick 58
- BEBOUT
 H 604
- BECK
 Catharine 585
 Matilda 585
 Peter 150
 Preston 280
- BECKER
 Anna 561
 Caroline 561
 Ellen 561
 Flora 561
 Frederick 150
 Herman 561
 Jacob 561
 John 561
 Lavina 561
 Mary Wilking (w. Jacob)
 Philip 561
 Sally 566
 Theobald 561
 William 423
- BECKET
 Anna Watson (1st w. William)
 Clarissa Vincent (2d w. Wm.) 552
 Elizabeth 555
 Erasmus 555
 George 555
 Henrietta Hems-worth (w. John W)
 Humphrey 555
 Humphry 321
 Jacob 555
 Jesse 555
 Jesse M 321
 John W 554
 John 554
 Julia A 554
 Louisa 555
 Mary 554
 Mary Beckett (w. John)
 Samuel 554
 Sarah 554
 William 554
- BECKFORD
 Otis 318
- BECKWITH
 B 295
- BEDAGREW
 Hannah 554
- BEDEN
 D A 157
- BEDILION
 Abbie L 695
 Abraham 695
 Clem E 695
 Julia L 695
 Mary Mansbarger (w. Robert)
 Robert 695, 699
 Robert Jr. 695
- BEEBE
 523
 Abijah 626
 Charles 268
 Charlotte 612
 Christina Brabham (w. Richard)
 Elizabeth Rathbone (w. Dr. William)
 Ella Coaler (w. Franklin)
 Emeline 626
 Fostus 268
 Franklin 626
 George 626
 Guy 268, 329
 Harriet 626
 Hiram 540, 545
 Hobson 520
 James 268
 Jerry 317
 John W 326
 Juliana 626
 Joseph 317
 Kate Skipton (w. Thomas)
 Lyman 326
 Margaret Baker (w. Prentiss)
 Mary 627
 Polly Loring (w. William) 412
 Prentiss 626
 Rebecca Howe 464
 Richard 626
 Saddle 626
 Sarah 626
 Theodore 268
 Thomas 626, 627
 Dr. William 504, 523, 526, 714
 Dr. Wm. Sr. 523
 Dr. Wm. Jr. 523
"Beche House", 721
 Belpe 653
- BEEBEE
 Betsey 506
 Charles 545
- Beech Grove 573, 577
- Beech Grove Presby-terian Church 574
- BEECHER
 Henry Ward 145
 Gen. Philemon 109, 119
- BEEGLE
 Daniel M 275, see errata
 Frederick 603
- BEERS
 A M 223
 A N 198
- BEGAL
 Jeremiah 280, see errata
- BEGNEAR
 58
- BELFORD
 Jabez 155
- BELKNAP
 Rev. Jeremy 44, 355
 fn.
 Morris B 394, 483
- BELL
 589
 Adaline Reckard (w. Nathan)
 Alexander 600, 695, 698
 Austin 310
 C W H 525
 Eleanor 588
 Elizabeth 517
 George W 186
 George Washington 308
 Hiram 568
 Rev. Isaac 521
 James 588
 John 139
 John Thomas 273
 Joseph 565, 568
 Margaret 596, 737
 Maria 588
 Maria Broom (2nd w. Nathan)
 Mary Lyons (w. Samuel)
 Mathias 298
 Minister 392
 Miss 702
 Nathan 568
- Pamela Woodruff (w. William)
 Samuel 568
 William 308, 568
 William B 290
 William Henry 310
 Wilson 308
- Bell (Lewis Chapel) 520
- Bell for Blockhouse 51
- Bell for Courthouse 109
- BELLEVILLE
 Agnes 704
- Belleville Garrison 76, 668
- BELLOWS
 Abram M 265
 Avery S 265
 Benjamin 507
 Benjamin T 265
 Elias 507, 527
 Elias Sr. 624
 James M 507
 Mary Ann (w. Elias)
 Matilda 624
 Miss 503, 507
 Orin 265
 Simon 507
 William 507
- BELLVILLE
 Cornelius 290
 Isiah 290
- BERLMAN
 Christina 585
 James 321
- Belmont County 645
- Belpe (Belle Prairie) 1, 7, 55, 62-3, 68, 70, 134, 498-9, 516-7, 520, 524, 608, 611-2, 617, 634
- Belpe & Cincinnati R. R. 340
- Belpe Circuit 672
- Belpe Farmer's Club 522
- Belpe Farmer's Li-brary 515
- Belpe Floating Mill 56
- Belpe forts & block-houses 66, 70
- Belpe petition 82
- Belpe Twp. 109, 497-8, 515
- Belpreville 652
- BELVILLE
 George 280
 James 280
- BEMAN
 Frank R 683
- BENDER
 Frederick 283
- BENEDICT
 A H 713, 714
 Alvin 138
 A mos 713, 714
 Anna Moffit (2nd w. A mos)
 Ebenezer 504, 525
 George 114, 154, 318, 374, 422, 504, 618
 George E 713
 Hannah Hobby (1st w. A mos)
 Henry 713
 Irena 504
 John M 197
 Levi 504, 526
 Lucy Gould (w. A H)
 Polly 504
- Benedict & Hall 374
- Benedict House 501, 521, 524
- BENHAM
 Robert 103
- BENJAMIN
 C 519
 Judah 145
 Levi 427
- BENNER
 W S 519
- BENNETT
 Gordon 268
 Henry 733
 Isaac 268
 Joel 134, 139
 Maj. O 150
 Mrs. 582
 Philip 733
 Simeon 280, 698
 W P 368
 Mrs. W P 446
 William 268
- BENNING
 Dena 627
- BENNINGHAUS
 Euphemia 598
- BENSON
 Phoebe 599
- BENT
 Mr. 424
 Charlotte 506
 Col. Daniel 502, 510, see errata
 Dorcas 502
 Nahum 502, 525
 Rufus 58
 Silas 57
 Col. Silas 502, 506, 526, see errata
 Silas Jr. 57, 434, 508, see errata
 Susan 502, 506
- Bent's Post Office 502, 525
- BENTLY
 Dr. 49
 Jesse 728
 Mary (w. Jesse)
- BENTON
 William 128
- BENZE
 Capt. William 206
- BEOSLEY
 N K 390
- BERENTZ
 Dwight 600
- BERFIELD
 Humphrey 313, see errata
- BERGEN
 Naham 422
- Bergen Oil Co. 664
- BERKELY
 Austin 227
 Samuel 134, 149
 F J 675
 S L 682
- BERKLEY
 Dr. 134, 149
- BERLET
 Charles 694
- BERRIDGE
 George 693
 John 695
- BERY
 292
 Capt. Jacob 457
 James B 265
 John 520
 Lavina Cutler (w. Capt. Jacob)
 Priscilla 570
 Robert C 218
 William 149, 265
 William E 270
 Zenas A sa 295
- BERWICK
 Andrew 185
- BESBEE
 Maj. William Henry 146
- BESCADOR
 Christina 736
- BESS
 Ann Coates (w. Robert)
 Robert 520, 522, 528
- BEST
 704
 Catharine Burkey (w. William)
 Christian 709
 George C
 Hannah Snyder (w. George C.)
 Capt. Henry 161
 Henry 150, 435
 J H 158
 John 314
 William 584
- BESWICK
 Augusta Thorniley 738
 George 313
 Mr. 738
 Samuel 630
 William 630
- BETHEL
 Edward 58
 Bethel 603
- Bethesda Church 239
- Between-the-Logs 383
- BETZ
 Charles 260
- Beverly 55, 71, 132, 147, 532-4, 538, 546
- Beverly Academy 547
- Beverly Advertiser 546
- Beverly Citizen & Washington County Advertiser 546
- Beverly Dispatch 546

- Beverly Encampment 158
Beverly First National Bank 532a, 544c
Beverly Gazette 546
Beverly Mill 544c
Beverly Times 546
BEVINGTON Levil 40
BEVINS Mrs. Phoebe Tuttle 684
BEY Frederick 308, see errata
BIAN W 604
Bible (humor) 503
Bible Class 643
BICKERT Ambrose 298
BICKFORD Benjamin 647
 Hezekiah 647
 John 519
BIDDESON Phillip 348
BIDDLE Abbie 596
 Eva 596
 Jessie 596
 John Quincy 275
 Lloyd (Floyd) 596, 597, 602
 Loyd Albert 275
 Maria Willis (w. Theodore Perry) 275
 Sarah Mitchell (w. Lloyd) 275
 Theodore Perry 596
BIDEL Jacob 326
BIDLE Jacob 317
BIEHL Daniel 689
 Jacob 689
Bienville, Celeron de 167
BIERS Benjamin 138, 622, 636
Big Bottom 55, 66-70, 502, 509, 531, 609, 622
Big Kanawha 648
Big Run 676
BIGELOW John 422
 & Slocum 480
BIGGINS Brazil B 313
 Deliah 627
 James H 313
 John 627
 Thomas W 313
BILL Elizabeth 679
 Ellen 679
 Isabelle 679
 James 679
 James Jr. 679
 Jane 679
 Margaret 679
 Margaret Sinclair (w. James) 679
 Marion 679
 Mary Carlin (w. James Jr.) 679
BILLINGS Henry 588
 William 357 fn.
BINGHAM Alvin 97, 106, 112
 Daniel 150
 Prof. Hiram 399
 Mrs. Lucinda Deming 625
 Lucius 226
 Rev. Luther Good-year 123, 381-2, 395, 397, 445, 517-8, 587, 631, 643, 661, 716
 O (teacher) 662, 663
 Mrs. Rhoda Mankin 651
 Silas 97
 William H 218, 308
BIRCHALL Elizabeth 629
BIRCHET Jonah 139
BIRD Mary 608-9, 464
 Rev. Milton 547
 William 139
BIRKENSHAY John Jr. 520
 John Sr. 520
- BIRNEY James G 429
 Birth first 358, 362
BISANTZ Charles F 422
BISBEE W H 422
 William 178, 488
 William H 295
BISCOE Thomas Dwight 382, 400, 405
BISH Louisa M 560
BISHOP Cameron 603
 Dr. 587
 Governor 492
 Henry 321
 J N 614
 Lucinda 131
 Lycurgus 308
 Capt. Nathaniel 157, 359
 Sarah 727
 William 295, 321
BISZANTZ Charles 368, 684a, see errata
 Charles F 684a
 Conrad 684a, 686, 687
 Elizabeth 687
 Eva Huffman (w. Conrad) 684a
BLACK Capt. 223
 Christopher 218
 John 138
BLACKBURN Andrew 58
BLACKINGTON Alice 647
 Joseph Cone 643
 J B 647
 Martha Spencer Cone (w. J B) 643
BLACKLEDGE Dr. 587
BLACKMER Mrs. Eliza Hall 559
BLACKMORE Timothy 139
BLAIR Alexander 268, 272
 Alvin 268
 J G 198
 J M 422
 Robinson 146
 Thomas 268
BLAKE A T 347
 Benjamin 583, 585, 588, 681, 682
 Charles 585
 Cynthia Smith (w. George) 585
 David 57
 Diane Morgan (2 w. Simeon Jr.) 583
 Edwards 583
 Dr. G W 587
 George 585, 684
 Hannah D 585, 586
 Jane 583, 684
 John 585
 Lavina Peck (w. Simeon Sr.) 583
 Lucy L 582
 Martha J (w. Moses) 585
 Mary Jane Cunningham (w. Simeon Jr.) 583
 Matilda 583
 Moses 580, 585
 Simeon 57, 582, 583, 588
 Simeon Sr. 684
 Simeon Jr. 583, 675, 684
 Susan 583, 585, 684
 Thomas 522
 W A 588, 589
 Rev. W A 561
BLAKELEY Andrew S 310, see errata
 Edward 629
 John A 629
 Lewis 310, see errata
 Mary A 629
 Mary E Sheldon (w. Edward) 629
 William Hervey 310, see errata
 Blake's Store 589
BLAKESLEE see errata
- BLANCET William H 292
BLANE Emma J 412
BLANKENBUHLER Margaret Rietz 561
BLASDELL Capt. Enoch 218
BLEN Dominick 474, 617
 Harman 100a, 142, 420, 467-8, 472-5, 502, 563, 611, 617-8, 623, 639
 Margaret Agnew (w. Harman) 617
 & Woolbridge 617
Blennerhassett's Island 498, 500, 509, 513, 525
BLEWER Hiram 280
 James 280
BLISS Adaline 555
 Amos 58
 Caroline 427
 Eliza 697
 Isabel 699
 Isabel Deuchers (w. Timothy) 427
 James 427
 John 693
 Nancy 427
 Timothy 697
BLIZZARD Brooks 114
 Mary 520
BLOCK John 305
Blockhouses 55-6, 66, 70, 84, 380, 607
BLOCKSON Caroline V 255
BLOHM Lewis 736
 Mary E (w. Lewis) 736
BLONDIN D C 544
BLOOMFIELD Maj. 165
 Bloomfield 704
 Bloomfield cemetery 701, 704
BLOSS Jacob 389
BLOUGH John H, see errata
 Rufus 265
BLOW John H 265, see errata
BLOWER D 280
BLUE Malcom 652
 Blue Bird Mills 604
 Blue Jacket 71
BLUME Fred 423
ELYMYER William H 404-5
Board of Education 615
Boat house 447
Boats - built at Marietta 375 et seq.
BOBB Reese Smith 310, see errata
BOCK Catharine Philipina 736
BODBECK Paul 389
BODKIN William Wallace 265, see errata
BODKINS Charles 265
BODMAN Frederick 292, 317, see errata
BODWELL Mrs. 428
BOESHAR Christian 295
 John A 629
BOESHARR Christian, see errata
BOESSHAR Elizabeth Schramm (w. Theobald) 428
 Jacob 686
 Louis (w. Jacob) Theobald 686
BOGER Joanna M 584
- BOGGS Harrison 522
 Maria Morey 554
BOHL Dr. 631
 Conrad 326, 626a, 627a, 632
 Elizabeth 627
 Elizabeth Willis Manche (w. John) 627
 Henry 111, 423, 436, 436a
 John 627
 Margaret Smith (w. Conrad Sr.) 627
 Mary 626, 627
 Mary Beebe (w. Conrad Jr.) 627
BOHLEN Boiler Corner 467, 468
BOISE 541
BOLEN Daniel, see errata
Bolivar 111
BOLLES Col. W M 149, 195, 196
BOLLS Widow 538
BOLUN Daniel 321, see errata
BONAR Joseph 601
BOND Shadrack 103
BONE Mrs. Julia Becket 544
Bone Run 690
BONN 587, 590
Bonn Disciple Church 588
Bonn German Methodist 589
Bonn (village) 582
BONNER Mrs. 174, 176
 Rev. 601
 B J 388
BONNEY child of Count D 428
BONNY C D G 385, 442
BONY Simon 283
Book Binding 371
BOOKER C 731
BOOMER Charles D 305
BOONE Daniel 19
BOOTH Anna 446
 Daniel 139, 157
 Edward M 374
 Esq. 479
 Frank 298
 Frederick 305
 George 298
 George A 150, 220, 221
 George Albert 305
 Horatio 113
 Isaac 693
 James 176, 395, 446
 James M 111, 113, 114, 355, 385
 John F 146
 John Thomas 298
 Joseph Robinson 298
 M H 446
 Maria R 396
 (minister) 391
 Mrs. 523
 Robert 151, 156, 210, 298
BOOTHBY Cornelius E 318
 David 318
 Joseph D 318
 Timothy 318
BOQUET 10, 18, 19, see errata
BORDMAN Frederick 298, see errata
BORELAND Mr. 396
 Robert S 395
BORING A bsalom 146, 295
 Eli P 146
BOSMAN James 321
- BOSNER William 561
BOSTNER William 317
BOSTON Jacob 286, 290
 John L 290
 Leander 286
 Michael 286
 Samuel 1700
BOSWELL James R 283
 Mrs. Mary L Allen 508
BOSWORTH Celina 603
 Miss D T (3rd w. Daniel Perkins Sr.) 395, see errata
 Daniel Perkins Jr. 303
 Daniel Perkins Sr. 374, 391, 480
 Eleanor C 575
 Dr. F H 485
 Frank H 146
 Hannah Dodge (w. Daniel) 146
 Ira 567, 575, 695
 Jeremiah 567
 Lucy (w. Wm.) 272
 Lucy Ferguson (w. Jeremiah) 272
 Mary Ferguson (w. John) 272
 Mary Hildreth Putnam (w. Dr. F H) 272
 Sala 113, 359, 382, 385
 Sarah L 396
 Sula 385, see errata
 Sumner 310
 (teacher) 663
 Wells & Co. 375, 377, 478a
 William A 565
 Wm. 576
Botetourt County 13
BOTKIN John 678
 W W 149
 William Wallace, see errata
BOUDINOT Elias 743
BOUGHTON Calvin C 292
Boundary dispute (Ohio-Va) 120
Bounty land 28
BOUQUET see errata
BOUSER (w. Frederick) 585
 E 589
 E 1283
 Ernest 585
 F W 585
 Frederick 585
 P 589
 Philip 585
 Theodore 315, 585
Boye's Mill 587
BOYLE Hugh 105
 Thomas M 280
BRABHAM George W 326
 Henry H 326
 J W 164, 165
 John W 326
 Lucy 5641
 Richard B 326
 Stanton L 326
 Thomas J 326
 Walter 128, 130, 641
 Wellington 318
Brabham Cemetery 641
BRACKEN Craig 272
 Reed P 272
BRACKENRIDGE Robert 720
Brackett's Tavern 33, 45
BRADBECK Mrs., Paul 174
BRADBURY Geo. 532a
 Mary J 552, 553
 Mrs. Nathan 426
 Rebecca 552
 Sabra Hosmer (w. Consider) 580
Bowen's Row 435
BOWER (minister) 391
 Jacob 146
 Joel 421
BOWERS Elizabeth 707
- Hester J 707
 J W 706
 Jacob A 707
 Jacob Asbury 286
 James 707
 Jauna R 426
 John 707
 John W 707
 John Wesley 286
 Josiah A 707
 Margaret E 707
 Mary A 707
 Rebecca 707
 Sarah 707
 Sarah McPeck (w. John) 286, 707
 Valentine 286, 707
 William T 707
BOWERSOCK Adam L 290
Bowery, the 53
BOWIE Eli 280
 Harvey 280
 James 283, 701
 Nancy Ham (w. James) 283
BOWLUS Maj. L H 193
BOWMAN Ann (w. Isaac) 272
 Ed 256
 Elizabeth 716
 Elizabeth Bailey (w. James) 716
 Henry 721
 Isaac 721
 James 721
 John 139
 Col. John 19
 Rachel B Crew (w. Henry) 19
 William 256
BOYCE Elizabeth 615
BOYD Col. 134
 Eliza Sharpe (w. John Jr.) 134
 John Jr. 134
 Rev. John Jr. 388, 492
 Joseph 150, 295
 Sarah Pierce (w. John) 295
BOYE Almer 585
 August 315, 585
 Bertha 585
 Charles 273
 Christina Belman (w. Frederick) 585
 E 589
 E 1283
 Ernest 585
 F W 585
 Frederick 585
 P 589
 Philip 585
 Theodore 315, 585
Boye's Mill 587
BOYLE Hugh 105
 Thomas M 280
BRABHAM George W 326
 Henry H 326
 J W 164, 165
 John W 326
 Lucy 5641
 Richard B 326
 Stanton L 326
 Thomas J 326
 Walter 128, 130, 641
 Wellington 318
Brabham Cemetery 641
BRACKEN Craig 272
 Reed P 272
BRACKENRIDGE Robert 720
Brackett's Tavern 33, 45
BRADBECK Mrs., Paul 174
BRADBURY Geo. 532a
 Mary J 552, 553
 Mrs. Nathan 426
 Rebecca 552
 Sabra Hosmer (w. Consider) 580
Bowen's Row 435
BOWER (minister) 391
 Jacob 146
 Joel 421
BOWERS Elizabeth 707
- BRADFIELD Charles 275
BRADFORD Col. Gamaliel 418
 Louis 519
 Otis L 505, 520
 Pamela 501
 Robert 567, 57, 505
 Maj. Robert 427, 505, 510, 511, 513, 516, 520, 522, 526, 568
 Mrs. Robert 510
 Samuel 505
 Samuel A 505
 Sarah 505
 Walter S 186
 Welthea 254
 Gov. William 254
 Wm. (of Ky) 1412
BRADHURST J W 718
BRADSHAW George 639
 Margaret E Oliver (w. George) 639
BRADSTREET Daniel 580
BRAGG Benjamin 308
 Gen. 159, 167, 198, 202, 208
BRAMHAM Walter 112
BRAINARD David 646
 John 646
 Martha 646
BRANDEBERRY John H 268
 William C 268
BRANSON Mrs. Sarah Lawton 711
BRANT Joseph 465
BRAUN Eva D Wohrab (w. John) 465
 John 572
BRAYMAN James 57
Bread substitute (Johnny Constant) 538
BRECK Daniel, see errata
 John 503, see errata
 Mrs. John 503
 William 57, 357, 380, see errata
BRECKENRIDGE A F 666, 671
 Agnes Fleming (w. John) 666, 671
 Andrew 262, 527, 668, 669
 Mrs. Andrew 527
 Catherine (w. James H) 527
 Catherine Harvey (w. Robert Sr.) 527
 Charles D 265
 Charlotte 714
 Charlotte McMullen (w. David) 265
 Daniel 149
 David 714
 Edward 627
 Edward Jr. 627
 Eliza 659
 Elizabeth 714
 Elizabeth Palmer (w. Andrew) 714
 Ermina L Deming (w. William) 714
 family 100
 Gen. 220, 225, 232
 Hugh 262, 673
 James F 326
 James H 713, 717, 718
 Jane Fleming (w. Edward) 713
 John 113, 667, 669, 670, 672, 673, 714, 716
 Margaret 714
 Margaret (w. Thomas) 714
 Martha J 527, 716a
 Mary P Murdoch (w. Robert) 716
 Nancy 627, 669
 Nancy Brown (w. Andrew) 716
 Nancy Greenless (w. Edward Jr.) 716
 Naomi Highley (1st w. Andrew) 716
 Robert 669, 717

- Thomas 668, 669, 670, 674, 714, 716
William 627
- BRENAN
Celia 735
Frank 227
Frank R 298
Hugh 735
John Victor 298
William Augustine 298
- BRENNEN
Hugh 226
- BREVIT
William 139
- BREWER
Col. David 450
Peter 731
Brewery 371
- BREWSTER
Mr. 636
Annie Bachelor (1st w. Richard)
Levi 626
Lydia Waterman (w. Lev)
Richard 626
Robert 528
Mrs. Robert 626
Sarah E. Knowles (2dw. Richard)
- BRIAN
William 604
- BRIANT
Andrew J 295
Perminus 295
- BRICE
Rev. A B 541, 542, 544
- BRICK
James 728a
Brick house (Israel Putnam) # 611
Brick house, first Independence Twp. 697
- BRICKNER
Mr. 389
- Bricks and brick houses 366, 408, 536, 578, 611, 687
- BRICKWADY
Jacob 295, see errata
- BRICKWEDE
Jacob, see errata
- BRIDGE
Emma 625
Samuel 58
William 58
- BRIDGES
B 519
Benjamin 637
Jacob 637
Sarah 637
Silas 637
Bridges 514
- BRIDGET
Alinda 693
- Brigs & Schooners 140, 376-7, 466, 617
- BRIGGS
A bigail 624
B 614
C 150
Dean 634, 647
Felix 308
I T 675
James 675
Sabimus 308
son of S 427
TL 308
- Briggs Post Office 651
- BRIGHAM
A P 423
Caroline E 396
Lucius 262, 395
Marie 735
- BRIGHT
Homer C 542
- BRIGMAN
Mr. 476
- BRILL
Alexander H 210, 329
Benjamin F 329
Commillia J 721
Eleanor Shively (w. John L)
John L 721
John R 329
John Sr. 721
Mary (w. John Sr.)
Sarah J 721
William H 329
- BRITON
Mason 138
- BRITTON
Barbara Ker (w. Joshua)
- Charles Russel 310
James 656
Jennie 689
Joshua 570
Luther Dale 283
Sallie Dye Worthington (w. James)
Thomas 273
William Henry 283
- BROADHEAD
Gen. Daniel 19
Francis M 268
"Broadhorns" (Boats) 97
- BROADHURST
Catharine (w. Whittington) dau. of 427
Kate 686
Mary 608, 738
Whittington 686a
William J 298
- BROADRIGHT
Henry 275
- BROCK
Dr. 683
Gen. 134
- BROCKWAY
Benjamin 673
Ruth (w. Benjamin)
- BRÖESEL
Victor (minister) 388
- BRONSON
(w. S S)
- BROOKER
Brainard 256
Darius 256
Deemore 256
Marcelus 268
- BROOKOVER
Charles 298
- BROOKS
A bigail 532 d, 533
Abijah 540, 624, 628a
Anna 598
David 283
Effe 598
James 139, 163, 268
John 276
Rev. John 598
Col. John 418
Laura Woodford (w. Abijah)
Martha 567
N J Davis (w. Rev. John)
SH 544
- BROOM
James 280
- BROOME
Benjamin 637
Sarah 570
- BROPHY
John 524 b, 525
Mrs. Mary 389
"Brophy House" 368, 479
- BROSIOUS
Jacob 139
- BROUGH
Mrs. A W 521
Abigail Ames (w. Charles H) 347, 503
Abigail W 347
Charles H 416, 527
John Sr. 427
Gov. John 127, 157, 167, 168, 173, 252, 416, 422, 446
- BROWN
— 663, 674
Gen. 212, 668
Capt. 161, 225
Mr. 511, 559, 615, 690
A 519
A G 112
Mrs. A G 110, 618
Aron 58
Rev. Aaron 455
A dam 602
A ffa 668
A lexander 286
A lice C 555
A lvina 668
A my 668
A ndrew 670
A ndrews 313
A nn H 686a
A sa 308
Dr. Benjamin 679, 683
Benjamin 113, 667, 671, 673, 716a
Catherine 686
Catharine 686a
Charles 256, 709
Charles A 313
- Charles Alonzo 215, 224, 524, 527, 667, 716a
Charles E 210
Charles F 215
Charles W 321
child of J 427
child of Mr. 427
Christine Kyle (w. David T)
Cynthia 736
Daniel 573, 686a
David 577, 555
David Jr. 58
David T 533, 555
Miss E 547
Elizabeth Reece (w. Wesley)
Emeline (w. William) 636 b
Emma 601
Eva Louise 555
family 79, 511
Frank S 686a
Gartrai 256
George 280, 699
Dr. George 543
George W 256, 555
H H 158
H M 164
Hannah 570
Harriet 551, 560
Harriet Lagrange (w. S S)
Hattie 686a
Helen 712
Henrietta (w. John Arza)
Henrietta Stacy (w. John A)
Hiram 670, 716
Hiram McNeal 716a
Hugh 570
Isaac M 555
J A 164
J G 565
J H 164
J L L 347
J W L 226, 436a
Jacob 315, 427
James 226, 280, 286, 688
Capt. James 540, 541
James P 686a
James Pedre 273
Jane Brown (w. Hiram)
Jane Carr (w. Leonard)
Jesse 139, 541, 551, 555
John 322, 520, 522, 541, 597, 686a
Gen. John 642
John A 265, 313
John Arza 111, 516, 716a
John Howell 273
John Mason 716a
John Stacy 716a
John W 107, 322
John William 295
Joseph G 570
L D 525
Leonard 570
Leroy S 273
Lewis K 555
Lucinda 668
Lydia 666
M 395
M E Crawford (w. Joseph G)
Margaret 707
Margaret Nichol (w. William)
Maria 686a
Maria Gard (w. Benjamin)
Martha (w. Charles Alonzo)
Mary 508, 668
Mary Dunfee 508
Mary E 686c
Mary E Chambers (w. John)
Mary E Chambers (w. Walter Jr.)
Mary Griffin (w. Hugh)
Mary Poole (1st w. Samuel)
Matthew 675
Miriam Lowe (w. David)
Nancy Devol (w. William) 550
Nathaniel 58
Parley 551
Relief Story (w. Jesse) 551
Ruby 557
S S 551
Samuel 643, 667, 668, 719
Samuel Smith 286
Samuel W 321
Sarah Jenkins (2nd w. Samuel)
Sias A 313
Solomon 139
Sophia 668
Sophronia Josephine 716a
Susan 555
Dr. W H 385
W L 155
Walter 670, 699
Walter Jr. 564 c, 597
Walter Sr 597
Wesley 565, 570, 575
Willard M 555
William 256, 273, 625, 671, 686a, 688
William C 321
William H 686a
William H (minister) 392
William James 260
William P 322
- BROWNELL
Elizabeth 558
- BROWNING
Mrs. 427, 503
A H 149, 227, 501, 524
Abigail 501
Abigail Putnam (w. William)
Brazila 138
Cynthia 501
EP 501
Francis M 625
George 501
J H F 729
Jane Shipley (w. Nathan)
John Dana 516, 524
Joseph 501
Lucy Dana (w. Samuel)
Nathan 669
Park S 525
Phoebe Green 568
R P 501
Rebecca Shipman (w. Samuel)
Rufus 501, 611
Samuel 566, 699
Samuel M 501
Sarah (w. Weir)
Sophia 124, 396
Sophia Barker (w. Wm. Rufus) 517
Victor 625
Weir 625
Wesley 575
William 58, 134, 501, 503, 517, 524, 525, 526
William Rufus 75, 501, 518
- Brown's Mill 673, 668, 716a
- Brown's Mill Post Office 665
- Brown's Run 633, 637, 644
- Brownville Churches 598, 599, 601
- Brownville Baptist Church 598
- BRUBAKER
M 602
- BRUCE
James 598
Jane 663
Martha Jane Cline (w. James)
Napoleon 298
Robert 298
Samuel 276
Wallace 212, 298, 303
- BRUCH
James 295
- BRUE
Dr. G W 595
- BRUMER
Father (Rev.) 703
- BRUNY
Samuel 709
- BRUSH
A lice (w. Edmund)
Alice Sparrow Cone
Blackington 647
Edmund 647
Henry 111, 543
Brush Run 683
- BRYAN
Dr. H 673
William 146
- BUAZEL 57
- BUCHANAN
Charles 326
Cyrenus 113, 561, 562
George W 326
Dr. J R 564a
Lucinda 560
Sireus (see Cyrenus)
BUCHANAN
George 628 b
Jeffrey 627, 628
Laura (w. George)
Mary E Malster (w. Walter)
Rachel Prouty (w. Jeffrey)
Sarah A 628
Vesta A 628
Walter 628, 665
William 548
- BUCK
563
Catharine 686
Frederick 226
George 299
J 716 b
J A 272
John 58, 151, 533, 554
Lizzie 417
Mary 554
Silas 299
Titus 427
William C 303
Col. William 151, 206, 417
John S 299
Joseph T 141-2, 299
Sarah 141
Spencer T 141-2
Van H 141-2, 299
- Buckets, leather 435
- Buckeye 47
- "Buckeye Belle" 548
- BUCKINGHAM
Judge 380
- BUCKLAND
Col. 154
- BUCKLY
Ebenezer 139
- BUCKMINSTER
Jane 536
Howard 510
Howell 57
- BUCKNER
Capt. 149
- Buckongahelas 71
- Bucks Mills 603
- BUCKY
Joseph K 723
William T 322
- BUELL
154
Augustus Hiram 468
Aurelia A 142
CF 145, 444
Charles F 112, 122
child of T 427-8
Clarissa 427
Columbia 142
Daniel Hand 109, 113, 122, 359, 382, 387, 413, 414, 468
David 466
Maj. Gen. Don Carlos 142, 144a, 187, 197, 228-35
Ebenezer 736
Eliza 142
Frank 303
Capt. Frank 112, 128, 131, 141, 149, 151, 157, 177, 178, 179, 186, 226, 237, 247, 248, 493
George D 142
George P 226, 228, 247
Helen 540a
Hiram B 142
Irene McAllister (w. Ebenezer)
Gen. Joseph 57, 112, 142, 188, 212, 220, 363, 368, 387, 434, 439, 466-8
Joseph H 142
Laura J. Thorniley (w. Capt. Timothy)
Louisa 540a
Mary Hurd 466
Matthew 540a
Milo 142
Perez B 111, 247, 563
Sally M 142
- Hon. Salmon D 142
- Samuel 466
- Siba 468
- Siba Hand (w. Joseph)
- Silence Hatch (w. Matthew)
- Solomon 139
- Theodosia Hall (2nd w. Daniel)
- Timothy 467
- Timothy L 292
- Capt. Timothy 113, 114, 137, 139, 142, 413, 414, 420b, 427, 434, 474, 738
W H 375
William 414, 421, 466, 540a
William Plummer 142
- Buell, School House 479
- Buell's Battery 227
- Buell's Lowell 556, 559, 563
- Buell's & Numsell 419, see errata
- Buell's Pierpoint Battery 158-9
- Buell's Run 580, 678
- Buffalo Creek 52
- Buffington Island, battle 161-3
- BUKEY
Alexander 177, 181
Alexander H 133, 141-2, 146, 299
Eliza Hill (w. Spencer T)
Hezekiah 141
John 141-2
John S 299
Joseph T 141-2, 299
Sarah 141
Spencer T 141-2
Van H 141-2, 299
- BULBY
Robert 637
- BULES
Friedrick 689
John 687
Kate Trautner (w. John)
- BULL
Aron 57
Anna 571
Howard 510
Howell 57
Lucretia 636 b
P H 146
Reason A 224
Reason H 283
William R 283
- Bull Creek 569, 657
- BULLARD
A nn 536
Asa 66, see errata
Elaezer 66, see errata
- BUMGARNER
Nichola 139
- BUNCH
Mary 739
- Bunch of Grapes Tavern 32, 42
- BUNDY
E G 728
Elias 723
J B 671
Samantha A Campbell (w. E G)
Z G 547, 723
- BURBECK
William (S G W) 418
- BURBRIDGE
192
- BURCH
Diantha 679
Electa 678
Ellen E 625
Ellen Elosa 491
George N 430
Capt. Hiram 378, 491, 569
Mary W Whitney 491
Nancy W Whitney (w. Capt. Hiram)
Sarah Frances 491
William 569
- BURCHETT
William T 326
- BUREAU
J P R 80
Peter 58
- BURFIELD
John 726
- BURFORD
John A Alexander 286
- BURG
George W 268, see errata
- BURGE
C 310
Ellen B Raby (w. Jonathan)
George W, see errata
J K 565
Jonathan 572
- BURGER
Johanna 640
- BURGESS
Mr. 643
- BURGESS
Rev. Dyar 390, 486, 518, 632
Elizabeth Means Voris (2d w. Rev. Dyar)
George 430, 431
Isabella Ellison (1st w. Rev. Dyar)
- BURGOYNE
452, 461
- BURK
Henry 268
James 268
John 133, 299
Matilda Smith (w. W H)
Samuel 268
W H 731, 732
- BURKE
Catherine 613
John 150, 216
- BURKEY
Catharine 584
- BURKHARD
Catharine 585
- BURLINGAME
Betsey 480
Christopher 58
E P 303, 308
Edward P 189
- BURLINGHAM
Luther 737
Sabra Patton (w. Luther)
Susannah 735
- BURNES
77
- BURNET
David 604
Hannah E 650
Jacob 102 fn, 104 fn, 105 fn, 109
John 604
John L Jones 276
Simeon 286
- BURNHAM
Mr. 665
Capt. William 57, 112, 114, 362-3, 419, 540-1
- Burning Springs 353, 655
- BURNS
Israel 299
Nancy 697
Richard 186
- BURNSIDE
Gen. 160, 184, 191, 193, 201
- Burnt Cabins, Pa. 567
- BURR
Aaron 142, 467, 468, 473, 530, 618
Amanda 628
R D 391
- BURRIS
690
Adaline 696
Albert 326
Basil 696, 697
Benjamin 692, 696, 697, 699
Benson 696
Bernard 326
Betsey (w. J. John)
Elizabeth 696
Francis M 326
Franklin 322
George P 146
Harriet 696
Harvey 326
Jackson 696, 697
James 322
Mrs. James 695
John 594, 690, see errata
John J 326
John Martin 276
Johnson 696, 697
Joseph 691
Lavina 696
Lemuel 696, 697
Loraine 322
Loraine 221
Marion 276
Marion N 218
Mary 696

- Nancy 696
Nancy Wilson (w. James)
Reuben 326
Royal 322
Rufus 326
Stinson 276
Stinson 602
Susan Riggs (w. Benjamin)
Volney 696
William 276
William W 276
BURRITT
J C 272
BURROUGHS
Amanda B 648
W 519
William 134
BURROWS
James 322
Mrs. Frances Hopkinson 650
Mina 547
BURT
Calvin 675
Henry S 210
BURTIS
John 256, see errata
BURTON
Jeremiah 708
William 260
BUSH
Abraham 286
John L 310
Joseph 555
Josephus 286, 310
Lester 555
Media W 555
Samuel 658
W H 533, 555
William 286, 292
William Casner 310
BUTLER
Amelia Boyd (w. John)
Charles W 262
David 58
Hannah 251
Henry 262
Jane 396
John 572, 690, 693, 697
Richard 15
Gen. Richard 22, 23, 61-2, 459
BUTTERFIELD
216
BUTTS
George 256
BUZZARD
Samuel 396
Smith, Chapin & Buzzard 372
BYERS
Jacob 276
BYINGTON
Cyrus 464
Licia, see errata under Dana
Sophia N 347
Sophia Nye (w. Cyrus)
BYRD
Charles Willing 106
CABELL
Gen. 222
CADWALLADER
Mrs. E R 174, 176 & Tappan 368
CADWELL
James, see errata
John 656, see errata
Mrs. John 656
Patience Dye (w. John)
CADY
Abijah 696
Charles C 696
Diana 697
Eliza 696, 697
Elizabeth (w. James)
Elizabeth Chandler (w. James)
George 696
Ira 696, 699
James 112, 696, 697, 699
James Jr. 696
James S 112
Margaret Ellen 696
Norman S 696
Philip 138
Squire 57
Veronica Sipple (w. Ira)
Cady Cemetery 697
Cahokia 19
CAHOON
James 151
CAIN
James Gibson 292
Martin S 292
Cake Shop 368
CALD
Arnold 57
CALDER
A 652
Alexander 650, 652
Cecy Casey (2d w. Alexander)
Clara Estelle 650
David B 650
David R 650
Mrs. David B 650
Flora M 650
Genevieve M 650
Ida L 650
J M 650
Jane H King (w. William)
Lizzie Gertrude 650
Louis W 650
Mabel L 650
Margaret 650
Mary E McClure (w. David B)
Mary R 650
Myrtle L 650
Philip C 270, 650
Phoebe Mabey (1st w. Alexander)
Stella E 650
Van Buren 650
W 552
Wallace 650
William 650, 651
Witmer A 650
CALDWELL
Capt. Aaron 103, 149, 578
James 58, 106, 510
Robert 582
William B 329
Caldwell Settlement
582, 587, 685
CALHOUN
John C 145, 593
M A 7
Calico 362
California Company
488
CALKINGS
Lucy 684
CALL
David 58, 318
John 318
CALLAGAN
John 276
CALLAHAN
Rev. 729
Cyrus 322
Emery 317
Ezekiel 329
George E 272, 329
James 519
Oliver 283
Rebecca 638
CALLIN
58
CALTER
58
CALVERT
A 716
Alexander 276
Alfred 283
Eliza 446
Ezekiel 276
John 146
John P 221, 223, 262, 519
Washington 276
CAMDEN
Rev. John 698
Camden & Co. 664
CAMERON
Andrew 276, 283
James 105
John B 276, 403
John R 276
Mary 596
CAMMEL
M M 270
CAMP
Augusta 716a
David H 313, 716a
Edward 667, 670, 672, 674, 716a
Emma 716a
George L 313, 666, 716a
George S 716
Henry F 185
John 58, 67
Josephine 716a
Rowena Gard (w. Edward)
Sarah Palmer (w. George)
Camp Charlotte, Treaty 18
Camp Dennison 152
Camp Marietta 160, 164-5
Camp Meeting 688
Camp Meigs 140
Camp Putnam
(C.W.) 149, 156, 177
Camp Tupper 152, 219
CAMPBELL
Dr. 545
A A 730
Alexander 644
Alexander A 329, 727
Archibald 658
Caroline 727
Charles 727, 728
Charles H 265
Charles W 272
Curran 265
Daniel 580, 685
David 727
David N 727
Eleanor Roberts (2nd w. Moses)
Elijah 268
Esther Ann 727
Rev. F P 390
Forest Wade 729
Gideon 656, 658
H M Dye (w. Gideon)
Hannah Sample (w. Archibald)
Harvey 314
Inna 658
J C 165
James 268, 727
Jane 727
Jennie Irvine (w. David N)
John 286, 580, 658, 687
Joseph 276
Joseph Q 658
Julia 527
Luther T 268
M M 292
Margaret Stranahan (1st w. Moses)
Martha 727
Martha J 559
Mary 728
Mary J 185, 596
Mary Maxon (w. Samuel)
Mary Myers (w. Alexander A)
Moses 727
Nancy 559, 727
Nancy Laughlin (w. James)
Patrick 580, 582, 685, 705, 706
Rachel 256, 493
Rebecca A 658
Robert 580, 582
S Madison 292
Samantha A 658
Samuel M 658
Sarah A 658
Theodore W 265
Thomas 218, 272, 292, 727
Ulysses Grant 728
Willia Scott 727
William 268, 493, 670, 727, 733
William R 292
Campbellites 661
Campbell's Post Office 658
Campden & Co. 664
Campbell's Run
700, 705
CAMPION
John 256
Peter 256
William 256
Campos Martius 44, 48a, 50-2, 54, 56, 61, 62, 65, 69-70, 74, 76, 81, 121, 143, 358, 363, 421, 435, 501-2, 609
Campus Martius well
51 Canada Settlement
731
Canal, Ohio 108
Canals 33
Cane mill 502
CANFIELD
Daniel 576
David 576
CANNON
John 186
Cannon in Marietta
148, 160, 480
CANTWELL
Rev. 729
Joseph M 283
Capitolium 435, 439 et seq.
Capt. Pipe 11, 47, 51, 59-0, 62, 356
Capt. White Eyes 72
Carding machine
533, 539
CARDNER
A dam 716
CAREY
Elizabeth 650
CARHART
Seth 111
CARL
Ella J 555
Joseph 696
Joseph C 696
CARLICK
A 519
CARLIN
589
Gen. 170
D B 268
James P 262
CARLISLE
689
John 688
Carlisle's Mill 687
CARLTON
Mr. 630
CARMACHER
Mr. 389
CARMAN
Rev. I N 386
CARMICAL
James 260, see errata
CARMICHAEL
James, see errata
CARNER
Mary Broadhurst 608, see errata
CAROTHERS
Dr. & R D 486, 729
CARPENTER
Alexander 283
Alfred 318
Boy 77
Christopher 383
David 310
Ezra 318
George W 329
Jasper 310
Jasper N 292
Nicholas 77-8
Samuel 283, 299
Spencer 318
Theodore 295
William 151, 299
Carpenter Shop 687
Carpenter's Creek 83
CARPER
Patrick 519
Joseph 519
CARR
R C 329
CARRINGTON
Col M C 35, 37, 39
CARROL
Gen. 159, 179
George 276
J C 416
Thomas 276
CARROLL
Michael 58
CARSON
Andrew 280
David 58
J 151
James 280
Thomas 280
CARTER
Benjamin 541
E C 488
J W 387
John G 197, 314
CARTWRIGHT
J T 112
Peter 383, 391, 392, 631
CARVEL
John 138
CARVER
Cynthia 567
Elizabeth 428
Isaac P 310
J S 151
Sampson James 273
T S 273
CARWEE
Seneca 329, see errata
CARY
Cornelius 272
CASADY
Amzi 283
George 365, 638
Hannah Dye (w. George)
Lucas 638
CASE
Rev. Eliphath 520
Mary 385
Mrs. Mary 553
Polly 735
Mrs. W M 428
CASEY
Wanton 57, 510, 513, 515
CASKEY
Samuel 670
CASS
Elizabeth Spencer (w. Gen. Lewis)
Joseph 689
Gen. Lewis 112, 114, 117, 121, 135, 401, 420, 431
CASSADY
A maziah 639
Diadama 658
Emma 639
CASSELLING
George 708
CASSIDY
George 656
Hannah S Dye (w. Lucas)
Ida 639
Judson 639
Lucas 638, 639, 658
Mary 639
Morton 658
Oran 639
Sophia Hoff (w. Lucas)
William 658
CASTLE
G N 371
George 138
Castriopolis 355
CATHCART
Seth 112
CATHERS
William 693
Catholic Benefit Society 423
Catholic Cemetery, St. John's Church
630
Catholic Church 521, 526, 632, 703
Cat's Creek 548, 556, 680
CATHERWOOD
William, see errata
Cattle Creek 580
CAVANAUGH
George A 221
CAWLEY
Charles 703
Patrick 703
Cayugas 12
CAYWOOD
689
A Jackson 685
Eliza 685
Eliza Huston (1st w. A Jackson)
Eliza Stanley (w. Jonathan)
Elizabeth (2d w. A Jackson)
Elizabeth Hill 444a
George 423
Hannah Dye (w. Joseph)
Harriet Maxon (w. Thomas)
John 133
John W 299
John William 295
Jonathan 685, 689
Joseph 576, 656, 661-2, 685
Mary Ann 567
Phoebe 685
Phoebe Moore (w. William)
Sarah Hill (w. William)
Thomas 112, 685
William 112, 295, 576, 656, 685
Caywood Church
564b
Caywood Station
685, 686a, 689
Cecilia Square (St. Cecilia) 54, 441
CECIL
Edward S 319
George K 319
Rev. Hazel 577
John T 319
Mary McAllister (w. William)
Tabitha 640
William 736
Cedar Narrows 616, 658, 687, 688
Cedar Narrows Church 689
Cedarville 497-8, 501, 504, 519, 525-6
Celandine 509
Celebration 4th of July 356-7
Celebration, 7th of April 358-9, 531-2
Celeron de Bienville
16-7
Celeron Plate 17
Cemetaries 7, 75, 427, 443, 441-4, 454, 507, 511, 513, 526, 540, 574, 589, 602, 616, 623, 627, 630, 641, 651, 661, 672-3, 682, 684-5, 689, 694, 697, 704, 707, 709, 724, 729
CEMMER
Barbara 613
Daniel 613
Margaret 614
Centenary Church
383, 391, 520, 575
Centennial Exposition 645
Centennial of 4th July 1876 447
Center Belpre 504, 518, 525
CHABERT de JONCAIRE
Charles F 103, 105
CHADD
George 140
CHADWICK
Rev. 540, 541
Lucinda 545
Chair Factory,
Marietta 370, 617
CHALFANT
Bazil 319
CHAMBERLAIN
Alma 633
Anna 633
Asa 633
Ason 633
Diana 633
Eva J (w. George)
J L 682
George 668
Henry 656, 660
Isabella 679
J L 542
J M 112, 408
Jane Dye (w. Henry)
John 681
John Dresser 113, 130, 326, 347, 543, 633, 734
Laura Clark (w. Lawrence)
Lawrence 544d
Mrs. Lawrence 488, 524, 544a
Luman Watts 112, 130, 488, 524, 633
Melissa 633, 726
Narcissa 720
Prudence Dresser (w. Asa)
Rhoda McIntosh (w. J M)
Sarah 633, 679
Sarah Williams (2d w. J D)
Thirza A Grow (w. John D)
Hon. W 1552
William 295
West 643
CHAMBERS
Miss 656
Mrs. 658
David 373
Ellis T 292
Emma Dye (w. William)
Family 655
Hannah Dana (w. Joseph)
James 268
James P 656
John 150, 565, 656, 661
Mrs. John 656
Joseph 537, 540, 544c, 564c
Dr. J Joseph M 564c
Lucy A 564c
Martin V 268
Mary 696
Mary E 564c
Mrs. M M 564b, 564c
Matilda McElhinney (w. Joseph)
656, 657
Nancy M 564c
O J 422
Otis 150
Otis J 295
Rebecca 597
Salmon M 295
Samuel L 303
William 268, 292, 656
Chambers Mill 644
Chambers Run 656 CHAMPLAIN
Nancy 550
CHANDLER
Albert 257, 560, 561, 679
Capt. Albert 146, 154, 218, 220
Clarinda 611
Edith 585
Elizabeth 696, 697
Ethel Regnier (w. Albert)
Isaac 315
J L 625
John 97, 560
Mary 560
Mary J 560
Sallie Deming (w. J L)
Zebulon 697
CHAPELLE
Conrad 310, see errata
CHAPIN
339-40
Achsa Hulet (w. Seymour)
Anna Chappelle (w. Henry E)
Anna Young (w. Leander R)
Arthur B 150, 295, 488
& Fearing 624b
Caroline L 487
Charles Seymour 488
Cornelia Maria 488
Electa 487
Electa W Barber (w. Arthur B) 735
Fearing 624
Fearing & Earl 488
Hannah Earl (w. Harlow) 404b
Harlow 1, 111, 148, 176, 339, 348, 395, 404a, 439, 487-8
Henry E 488
Joanne 132
Joshua 487
Leander R 488
Levi L 487
Oscar D 174, 487, 736
Deacon Samuel 487
Sarah Earl 488
Seymour 487
(Smith, Chapin & Buzzard) 372
CHAPMAN
689
A R 542
Abigail Hutchins (w. Hie)
Anthea 684
Asahel 684
Catherine Clark (w. Samuel)
Clara 684
David 684
Don Selden Thomas 684
Elisha 139
Elizabeth A 684
Elizabeth Stanley (w. Selden)
Ellen Palmer (w. Oren)
Enos 684
Esther 583, 684
Ezra 666, 687
Ezra A 262
family 683
Frances M 552
Frederick 552
G W 151
George 280, 694
Harvey 95
Heman 713
Hiel 139
Hiram 684
Hiram H 273
Isaac 685, 687
James 280, 418
John 280
Jonathan 684
Joseph 58, 280, 580, 581, 687, see errata
Julia R 684

- Julia R686
 Leander684
 Levi 95, 580, 581,
 683, 684, 687
 Levi Constable581
 Levi O273
 Louisa M 684
 Louisa True (w.
 W heel)
 Marcy Potter (w.
 Heman) Martha Wheeler (w.
 David)
 Mrs. Mary 588
 Mrs. Ann684
 Mary Ogle (w.
 Parley)
 Mary S530
 Mary Smith (w.
 Jonathan)
 Mercy 558
 Nathaniel 552
 Nicholas 140
 Oren684
 Parley544, 552
 Rebecca (w. Frederick) Rector257
 Ruth684
 Ruth Palmer (w.
 Ezra)
 Samuel713
 Selden273, 684
 Sidney D315
 Simeon138, 684
 Simon139
 Sylvester684
 T M544
 Vivian280
 Wheeler684
 William 280, 684,
 698
Chapman Cemetery
 684, 685, 689, 694
Chapman Settlement
 588
CHAPPELL
 Conrad, see errata
 Julius520
 Robert V 197
 Sallie507
CHAPPELLE
 Anna488
CHASE
 A my 420a
 child of J 428
 John 146
 John Wallace299
 Philander327
 son of J 427
 Esq. Thomas418 CHEADLE
 C C722
CHEATHAM
 Richard B 210, 253,
 322
 Robert B 112, 544
CHEEDLE
 Clarissa731
CHEESE FACTORY 697
CHEESMAN
 William E257
CHEEVER
 Joshua57
 Lot57
CHEFFEY
 A manda554
 Charlotte554
 John554
 John H554
 John T554
 Robert554
 Salina Skirington
 (w. John T)
CHERRY
 A lbert299
 child of 427
 Henry299, 378
 Isaac667
CHEVALIER
 Mrs. Corinda Ellen-wood649
 Mary649
 William651
CHEVELETT
 58
CHEVINGTON
 John634
CHICK
 John C265
CHIDLAW
 Rev. B W 255
CHILDAN
 Benjamin W 206
CHILDERS
 Caroline715
 Joseph H295
 Otis L295
 Simon295
Children's Home 110, 613, 615, 618, 624,
 662
CHILDS
 Isaac539, see errata
Chillicothe (Indians)
 11, 12, 18
Chippewas (Indians)
 10, 60-2
CHOATE
 Francis58, 66, 419
 Isaac58, 66
 Joshua58
CHOPEL
 Antonio58
CHOUCHIP
 Jeffrey57
Christian Church
 698, 703, 709, 716
Christian Union
 Church698
CHRISTIE
 Elizabeth Trestle
 (w. John)
 John639
Christmas in cave
 734
CHRISTOPHER
 58
 Barnet639
 Clark L319
 Decamp639
 Emily Lacey (w.
 Barnet) Harriet (w. De-camp)
 William H319
Church Service, Civil War 147
Churches 369, 381-2,
 384-5, 387, 392,
 423, 500, 506, 516,
 521, 533, 536, 539,
 541-2, 561-2, 575,
 598-01, 613, 615-7,
 622, 644, 661, 671,
 685, 688-9, 695,
 697-8, 703, 708-9,
 715-6, 723
CHURCHILL
 A bigail576
 Deacon386-6
 Eunice566
 G W 433
 Gen. 209
 Jacob576
 S W 562
Churchtown 631
Churchtown P.O. 469 CHUTE
 A lbert319
 Louisa 727
 Louisa Kidwell (w.
 Samuel S)
 Samuel S727
 Sarah M 727
CHUSE
 Sophronia 727
CHUMMER
 William673, 734
CHEEDLE
 Elizabeth736
Cincinnati 64, 142,
372, 432, 532, 637
Cincinnati (The Order of) 29
CISCAL
 Rev. 391
CISK
 John694
CISLER
 M Callister (1st w.
 Maj. John)
 Maj. John)
 SW 675
 Sally544d
 Samuel 652, 711,
 716, 719
 Samuel D 544d
 Saneca553
 Sarah427
 Sarah J 648
 Thomas 139, 423,
 554a, 728
 Timothy Y 544d
 Tupper544d
 William 139, 525
Clark & Curtis
Building (Marietta
O.) 367
CLARKE
 122
 George299
 Isabella570
 Joseph D305
 Joseph Dana 124,
 228, 240
 Leander329
 Melton 147, see
 errata
 Col. Melvin 112,
 122, 124, 128, 145-
 6, 148, 150-1, 156-
 7, 198-01, 228, 236,
 240, 305, 388a,
 566, see errata
 Mrs. Melvin (Dor-
 cas Dana, Sophia
 Augustina S 553
 Bridget728
 Catharine Ross (w.
 Augustine S)
 Catherine728
 Catherine (w. Owen)
 Catherine O'Malia
 (w. Owen)
 Catherine Stull (w.
 Seneca)
 child of J 427
 Clarinda Jane 544d
 (see Russel McIntosh)
 Rev., Dr. D W 542
 Deborah517, 544d
 E W T 226, 448
 Edward728, 544d
 Edward T544d
 Elihu517, 647
 Elisha7, 712
 Elizabeth598
 Esther Ann544d
 Ethelinda R 647, 652
 Gen. George Rogers
 13-5, 18-9, 115, 459
 & Glenn724
 H S (D.D.S.) 542,
 544d, 545, 547
 Hannah544d
 Helen Brown (w.
 Elisha)
 Helen McClure (w.
 Henry) 322, 488
 Henry C712
 Henry S545, 553
 Isaac544d
 Jacob 149, 265
 Jane F 149
 Jehiel647
 Joel420
 Col. Joel418
 John 262, 265, 317,
 427
 Major John 143,
 146, 544d
 John C139
 John H728
 John J 265
 John Jr. 67, 544d
 Joseph57
 Joseph (elder) 681
 Julia Ann658
 Laura Shepard (2nd
 w. Maj. John)
 544d, see errata
 Levi600
 Lewis O 111, 112
 Mrs. Lydia Pomeroy 555
 M 248
 Martha Cooksey (w.
 Henry S)
 Mary 143, 728
 Melissa544d
 Miller647, 667
 Nancy C544d
 Osmer B712
 Owen728
 Polly544d-5
 Rachel Comes (w.
 Miller)
 Robert534
 Rosanna
 McCallister (1st w.
 Maj. John)
 Maj. John)
 SW 675
 Sally544d
 Samuel 652, 711,
 716, 719
 Samuel D 544d
 Saneca553
 Sarah427
 Sarah J 648
 Thomas 139, 423,
 554a, 728
 Timothy Y 544d
 Tupper544d
 William 139, 525
Clark & Curtis
Building (Marietta
O.) 367
CLARKE
 122
 George299
 Isabella570
 Joseph D305
 Joseph Dana 124,
 228, 240
 Leander329
 Melton 147, see
 errata
 Col. Melvin 112,
 122, 124, 128, 145-
 6, 148, 150-1, 156-
 7, 198-01, 228, 236,
 240, 305, 388a,
 566, see errata
 Mrs. Melvin (Dor-
 cas Dana, Sophia
 Browning) 124,
 176, 240
 Roxy Alden124
 Stephen124
Clarke & Ewart (law firm) 128
CLASEY
 Wine Road283
CLASSPH
 George292
CLAUS
 Henry146
CLAY
 Benjamin F 315
 Daniel315
 Henry488
 Nicholas262
 Orange257
 Timothy257
Clay in mouth 78
CLAYTON
 Gen. 222
 David E329
 Isaac C329
 James A 329
CLEMENS
 & Sherwood371
Cleona Farm 416
CLEVELAND
 Moses418
 William418
Cleveland & Marietta
R.R. 344-5, 589
CLIMAN
 John280
CLINDEREST
 Henry H218
CLINE
 290
 Alpheus598
 Andrew707, 708
 Catherine701
 Christina701
 Clarissa McCordle
 (w. John)
 David 227, 697, 698,
 702
 Elizabeth Newman
 (w. Phillip)
 G W 600
 George139
 George (John?)
 691
 Isaac603, 706
 Isaiah280
 Jacob280
 Jacob M 598
 James Monroe598
 Joel280
 John221, 283, 286
 John (George?) 691
 Jonathan290, 700
 Joseph603
 Joshua286
 Luther280
 Marion280
 Martha Jane598
 Martin Van276
 Mathilda Efan
 Wesley)
 Nancy A 598
 Nancy J Edwards
 (w. Andrew)
 Nancy McDonald
 (w. Andrew)
 Peter188, 283
 Philip706, 707
 Rebecca (w. William)
 Reuben699
 Rosanna701
 Rosetta598
 Mrs. S702
 Samuel305, 707
 Sarah697, 707
 Sarah E 598
 Solomon598
 Susanna598
 Theodore276
 Rev. Thomas698
 Wesley598
 William 138, 593,
 707
 Clinesville 702
CLINGER
 Frank627
 Martha Quinby (w.
 Frank)
CLINTON
 Sir Henry452
Clock Makers 367
CLOGSTON
 Mrs. Anna Nicker-son553
 Ansel299
 Charles 146, 178,
 293, 299
 John T114
 Luther E299
 Thomas J 355, 356
CLOGSTONE
 James445
CLOSE
 Allen315
 Almon, see errata
 Catharine584
 Daniel146, 283
Clothing 532
CLOUGH
 Aaron57, 507, 515,
 526
 Cynthia A 507, 521
 Julia506, 507
 Mary A Hitchcock
 (w. Seymour)
 Mary E 507
 N K 394
 Sarah A 507
 Seymour 112, 113,
 507, 521
CLOYSTON
 Mary E 656
CLUKE
 Col. 159
CLUSERT
 Col. 178, 179
CLUSS
 Almond 589, see
 errata
CLUTE
 John283
 M V 276
CLYMER
 Maria547
Coady & Gage Mill
 719
Coal 535-6, 556, 674,
 677, 705, 710
Coal Run 535, 580
Coal Run Mines 535, 556, 556, 705
COALAR
 Ella626
 Phoebe720
COALEY
 William720
Coalhouse Farm 508
COASTER
 Jacob638
 Joseph638
 Priscilla Atwood (w.
 Jacob)
COATES
 Ann (Mrs. Robert Bess) 528
COBB
 Isaac257
 A lisha257
 Joseph257
 William318
COBURN
 Major463
 Abraham556
 Andrew556
 Maj. Asa 52-3, 57,
 362, 507, 530-1,
 541, 556
 Barzilla543
 Gilbert557
 L C 544
 Lucy556
 Mary (w. Gilbert)
 Minerva556
 Nicholas 57, 362,
 530-1, 541, 556-7
 Parsis556
 Maj. Phineas 48,
 362, 530-1, 541,
 556 Rhoda Baker (w. of Asa)
 Samuel556
 Sarah556
 Susanna558
 Sybil556
COCHRAN
 Mr. 377
 A B 542
 Charles319
 David A 603
 Eddie596
 Emma Dorsey (w.
 Silas F)
 Henry596
 Hiram Howe319
 Lucy601
 Mary126, 388a
 Silas F 596
 Zachariah113, 596, 601
Cochransville 601
COCKEREL
 Col. 154
COCKINGS
 James283
COCKS
 Dr. Philip D703
COCKSHOTT
 Mary527
 S19
COFFEE
 A doniram257
COFFEE
 H T C257
COFFIN
 Rev. N C 587
COFFMAN
 645
 Austin638
 Carrie638
 Charles319, 638
 Deborah638
 Emma638
 Fannie638
 Franklin638
 Fremont638
 George638, 717
 Harriet Rouse (w.
 Charles)
 Harvey638
 Ida638
 Jacob638
 Jane Miller (w.
 John), see errata
 John638
 Lizzie638
 Lucy638
 Martha638
 Mary638
 Murray638
 Polly638
 Rebecca Callahan
 (w. Thomas)
 Mrs. Rebecca Mo-rey554
 Sarah638, 639
 Sarah Patton (w.
 George)
 Thomas347, 638
 Vestal638
 William638
COFFING
 Jackson G 403
COGESHAL
 Abigail507
 Daniel507, 510
 David507
 Isaac520
 Job507
 John507
 N 520
COGSWELL
 Daniel57
 Eli543
COLDWELL
 Charles106, 510
COLE
 392
 Capt. 379, 488
 A lisha519
 Amanda Jane490
 Amelia E Dyar (w.
 EN)
 Ann Chase420a
 Ann Eliza427
 Anna Maria 420a
 Arius Nye489
 Arthur W 650
 Asa488, 489, 635
 Capt. Caius Marcus
 1, 391, 416a, 488-
 90 Candace635
 Candis735
 Caroline635, 649
 Charles420b
 Charles Arthur490
 Cynthia508, 650
 David650
 Diantha635
 Dolly508
 Dudley319
 EN 620
 Effie650
 Elizabeth635
 Eunice503, 635
 Eunice Gates (w.
 Philip)
 F C 735
 family527, 634
 George420b
 George D 420
 H B 634
 Mrs. Henry H 635
 Henry508
 Henry M 635
 Hiram Howe319
 Hiram Howe293
 Horace Dryden490
 Isaac635, 641
 Jacob521
 James Franklin490
 James Wallace420b
 John 420, 488-9,
 508, 521, 635
 John Sardis490
 John W B 293
 Joseph C735
 Levi420a, 427
 Linda644
 Louisa635
 Louisa Shields
 (Mrs. William P)
 Lucinda635
 Lydia507
 Mary Ann 489, 490,
 635
 Mary Duncan420a
 Mary E 735
 Mary Jett (w.
 Nathan)
 Mary S (w. F C)
 Mary Uhl (w. Sardin)
 Nancy490
 Nancy Scott (w. C
 M) 416b
 Nathan 420a, 635,
 643, 651
 Noah635
 O L 164
 P L 634
 Philip635, 636
 Philip L 635
 Philip S 520, 522,
 650
 Polly508
 Polly Case (w.
 Joseph C)
 Reece610
 Sally508
 Sampson 110, 114,
 347, 368, 420a, see
 errata
 Samson 110, 114,
 347, see errata
 Samuel508
 Sarah Elizabeth
 420b
 Sarah J 635
 Sarah S 650
 Sarah Varner (w.
 Henry H)
 Sardis347, 488, 489
 Susanna Salisbury
 (w. John)
 William635, 644
 William H 420b
 William Henry H
 293
 William P 521, 650
 William R 265
COLEBY
 William637
COLEMAN
 Mr. 687
 Alfred265
 Charles541, 709
 Daniel138, 139
 F S 422, 423
 H 151
 Henry303
 Rev. John577
COLER
 Charles H 329
 Felix W 329
 George M 329
 John E 329
 Patrick Perley329
COLES
 Harriet680
 Isaac257
COLEWELL
 Robert580, 582
College Lands 92 College Pres., home
 406 College Minor
 (Weekly newspaper) 546
Collegiate Institute
 397
COLLENDER
 John140
COLLETT
 James W 129, 565
COLLIER
 Charles B 488
 G W 198
 Mary701
 Sarah Earl Chapin
 (w. C B)
COLLINS
 Capt. 588
 Adaline583
 Mrs. A Adelaide
 Bartlett506
 Deborah Dickerson
 (w. John)
 Elliott H 594
 Emeline528
 Frances (w. Henry)
 Frances B 594
 Francis594, 600
 Frank604
 Henry594
 Jeremiah594
 John 114, 593, 594,
 689
 Margaret M Bills
 (w. Francis)
 Mary E 594
 Nellie695
 Robert689
 Sarah Henthorne
 (w. John)

- Sardine 594
Stephen H 146
COLMAN
Thomas J 218
William H 326
COLVIN
Charles 326
COLWELL
W W 329
William W 326
COMAS
John 58
Lanane 158
COMBS
A S 524
Wesley 605
COMER
Sarah 551, see errata
COMLEY
Capt. 161
Mary 736
Common Pleas,
Court of 54, 115
Commons, the 434, 447
COMPTON
B W 522
Elizabeth 738
Mary 738, see errata
CONANT
Sanford 268
CONAUGHEY
George M 150
CONCHRITE
Polly 714
CONDIT
Timothy 306
Timothy L 187, 188, 252, 253, 403
CONE
Alice Sparrow 647
Charles 647
Deborah Packard 647
George 647
Joseph Spencer 646-7
Martha (w. Joseph) 647
Mary (Biog. Rufus Putnam) 1, 647
Sarah H Bailey (w. Timothy Sr.) 647
Timothy 444, 646-7
CONGDON
Buell 295
James W 305
John G 295
CONGLETON
Burriss 287
Mrs. Elizabeth Bowers 707
F 588
James 287
John 287, 709
Joseph 287, 706
Lewis 287
T C 706
Thomas 287
William 287
Congregational Church 381, 389, 390, 516, 562, 687, 688
"Congress", on oars 53
Congress Run 538
Congress Section (Sect. 8) 634, 636, 687
CONINE
Lt. J W 160, 163
CONKEY
John M 599
Margaret 599
CONKLE
Abner 293
Jacob 293
CONLEY
A 522
Col. M P 554
CONLY
Hugh 262
Connecticut Claim 14
CONNELL
Col. 149
Maj. C Samuel 139
CONNER
(Indian trader) 358
Isabel Dye (w. Thomas J) 358
James 571
John 283, 306
John D. 306
Joseph L 570
Joseph Long 310
Mary Ritchey (w. Joseph L) 310
Sarah Macon (w. James) 310
Thomas Jason 310, 571
CONNETT
Abraham 139
John 139
CONRAD
Henrietta M 584
CONSTABLE
Robert A 148
Constitution P.O. 635, 641
Constitution, U.S.A. 43
Continental Congress 14
CONTNER
Charles 303
William 303
Conus (earthworks) 441-2
CONVERS
Miss 531, 551
Benjamin 551
Daniel 530, 531, 541, 551
family 532, 551
Grosvenor 551
Hannah 550
James 531, 537, 541, 551
Simon 541, 555
Wright 551
CONVERSE
Benjamin 53, 57, 358
Mrs. B 531
Daniel 68, 78, 359
James 57, 68
L J 625
Leicester 358
Mary L 608
Sallie Deming (w. L J) 608
CONWAY
Capt. 377
COOD
Col. Edwin 164
COOEY
Bill 539
COOK
Gov. 451
Ada 504
Charles A 131, 164
Charles Augustus 293
Charles D 347, 504, 524
Charles H 164
Clara 504
Clarissa 519
Clariissa Devol (w. Joseph) 519
Eleanor R 575
Elizabeth 504
Ella B 504
Ellen 695
Capt. George 494
Jacob 308
Job T 542
Joseph 503
Lavinia 555
M L 151
Maria D 504
Mrs. Mary 720
Mary A 728
Mary C 528
Mary Curtis (w. Charles D) 504
Mary V 504
O M 670
Rhoda 523
Rosannah 550
S N 710
Sarah A 542
Silas 111, 112, 113, 114, 131, 670
Solomon N 671, 720
Thomas P 193
Cook-House (Hotel) 503
COOKE
Eleutheros 472
James Monroe 310
Mary (w. Pardon) 174
Mary Ellen Hunter (w. Pardon Jr.) 254
Milton Gilbert 310
Rev. Pardon 125, 139, 217, 254, 347, 519, 525, 542, 575, 600, 612, 695
Dr. Pardon Jr. 254, 303
Selden S 125
COOKIE
Monsieur 363
Cook's Tavern (Bel-pre, Ohio) 524
COCKEY
Martha 553
T H 326
Townsend 262
COLEDGE
J K 543
COOLEY
Amos E 552
Asahel 515
Caroline 552
Charlotte 552
Emeline C 552
George V 552
George W 552
Laura E Sherman (w. George W) 552
Laura R 552
Martha J 552
Mary M 552
Mary Vincent (w. Wm. Henry) 552
Sibyl D 552
William Henry 552
William W 299
COOMBS
Henry, see errata
William 293
COOMER
Henry 306, see errata
COON
George 146
Michael 287
Orlena 287
Peter 287
Sampson 287
Samuel 287
Simpson 287
William 287
Wilson 287
COONEY
Capt. James 544, 554
John 554
Mark 554
COONS
Henry 719
William 719
Coonskin Library 514
COOP
Benjamin F 262, see errata
COOPER
692
A S 370
Amos L 640
Armire R 314
Ezekiel 48
G W 155
Jacob 565
James 276, 640
James Fenimore 10
John 276
Lemuel 134, 647
Mrs. Lucy 643
Mrs. Lucy Druse 527
Marion M 640
Mary C 640
Minerva 1640
Nancy J 640
Robert 276, 290
Sarah M 139
Sarah McCue (w. James) 640
Sophia W 640
Uriah 640
Wilmina M 640
Cooper Manufacturing Co. 578
Cooperative Store 603
Coopering Industry 652
COPELAND
John 260
COPPARK
Lydia 721
Copperheads & Butternuts 164
Copper Stills 574
CORRAIG
George 293, see errata
CORBITT
Robert 139
CORDERY
Mr. 594
COREY
David 295
Decatur 303
Ebenezer 48, 146, 198, 206, 227, 296, 303, 362
Henry 227
Jonathan H 303
Joseph 303
Nancy Wells (w. Thomas) 362
Thomas 363
Corinth Church 589
CORLISS
Maj. William 45, 54
Corn-cracker mill 506
CORNELL
John 426
CORNER
Celinda 735, 738
dau. of George 427
Edward 146, 628
Edwin L 735
Eliza 571
Elizabeth P 735
George 628, 630, 735
George S 735
Hannah Thornton (w. Edward) 735
Henry H 735
Henry W 114, 347, 735
Isabella 628
James 571
Jane 628
John 141, 628
John B 735
Joseph L 571
Lucinda Robb (w. Henry W) 735
Lucy 735
Maria 735, 737
Mary Broadhurst (see Ismel Stoned, see errata)
Mary E Flagg (w. John) 735
Mary S 735
Matthew 623, 628, 645
Melville R 735
Nancy 628
Paulina 738
Persis R 735
Rebecca 735
Sally Maxon (w. Wm) 735
Sarah 141, 551, 735, see errata
Susan B 735
Susannah Burlingame (w. George) 735
Thomas 571
Whitney R 293
Willard 628
William 347, 628, 735
Corner Chapel 672
CORNES
Mrs. 672
children 667, 671
Catherine (w. Henry) 671
Elizabeth 667
Henry 667, 672, 673
James 667
John 666-7
Mary 669
Mary Danley (w. John) 669
Mary Miller (w. James) 669
Mary Perry (w. Wm) 669
Mary Pugh (w. Henry) 669
Rachel 667
William 667, 669, 672
Cornes House 667
Cornplanter (Indian Chief) 14, 61-2, 123
CORNS
Elizabeth 713, 732
James 719
Jonathan 427
CORP
Benjamin 680, 681
Benjamin F, see errata
Elizabeth 681
John 674, 675, 681
John L 347
CORRY
Ebenezer 48, see errata
CORSE
Gen. 209
CORTNER
Neal 566
CORTWRIGHT
Peter 383, 392
CORWIN
Rev. Ira 386
Thomas 123
Charles S 544
Ebenezer 48, see errata
Thomas 57
Coshocton (town) 19
COSS
George W 598
Nancy A Cline (w. George W) 598
COTE
A 519
COTTLE
Dr. 631
Lewis 272
Thornton F 272
COTTON
418
Mr. 578
J D 306, 347, 423
Dr. J Dexter 347
John 111, 112, 382, 397, 446, 566, 578
Dr. John 165, 166, 223, 247, 347, 367, 368, 385, 407, 410, 411, 422, 444, 471
Rev. Josiah D 410, 412
Theophilus 615
Cotton 96, 521
COTTRELL
Rev. S R 521
COUCH
James 67
COULTER
John 534
Joseph 726
Lucy E Goddard (w. Joseph) 730 COUNSEL
513
Counterfeiter 539, 553
Counties, created 109
County Fair 349
County Infirmary (Poor House) 110 County Societies 346
COURIM
John T 290
Court (First) 53, 115
Courthouse, First 109-10
Courthouse, Second 109-10
COVELL
Jane 715
Covenanter Church 564b
COVERSTONE
Henry 138
COVERT
J S 588
Rev. John S 703
Nancy M 596
COVEY
Marion 283
Morgan 283, 287
William Mason 283
Cow Run 564, 568, 633, 636b, 654, 656, 658, 661, 663
COWEE
F P 257
John T 329
Reuben 257
Sardine 329
Seneca, see errata
Seneca A 329
COWEN
Robert 280
Willis B 186
COWER
William 671
COX
Annie L 555
Benjamin M 559
Charles 559
David 139
E S (teacher) 525, 547, 555
Edwin 555, 559
Flora 559
Frances McCullom (w. E S) 559
Frank 555
George 559
H M 675
Harriet Porter (w. Joseph) 559
Maj. Gen. J D 157, 160, 161, 200, 209, 224, 243, 245, 254
James 559
Jane A 559
Jefferson 265
John 139, 559
Joseph 559, 561, 563
Margaret 559
Miriam 490
Mr. 588
Samuel 559
William 559
COZZENS
Samuel 326
CRAEL
Charles 319
CRAFT
Corp. John 134
CRAGE
William 58
CRAIG
15 fn. 134
George, see errata
Joel 501
Mrs. Joel 501
John T 290
Nancy 554
Quartermaster 134
Samuel S 322
Stewart 317
Sylvester 290
Capt. Wm 152
Col. William 124
CRAIGIE
Andrew 90, 91
CRAIK
Dr. 17
CRAM
Augustus 551
Caroline V.
Blockson (w. Jacob) 551
Capt. Jacob 255-6
Jane Leget (w. Augustus) 551
Jonathan 366, 367, 480, see errata
Lethe Devol (w. Jacob) 551
Sally Dodge (w. Jonathan) 551
CRANDALL
310
Mrs. 428
child of 428
CRANE
Charles C 257
Ezra 428
Jonathan 366, 367, see errata
William G 257
CRANSTON
William 287
CRARY
Judge 358
Archibald 57
Col. Archibald 45, 54, 55, 62, 112, 115, 360
Fred 358
Frederick 57
CRAWFORD
A W 322
Calvin 588
Miss Ellen 588
James 322
John 315
Mary 588
Robert 114, 350, 366, 370, 445
William 118, 315, 538
Col. William 17, 19, 20, 25
William H 488
Crawford's Trail 25
CREAL
George 303, 308
CREE
A Fredis 570
A P 612
David H 570
James 570
John 570
John R 310
Louisa Heintzelman (w. David H) 570
Nancy Gadd (w. John) 570
Cree Hotel 571
Cree House 579
Creek Indians 11
CREESER
Adam 326
CREIG
John 139
CREIGHTBAUM
A M 114, 423
CREIGHTON
David 554
Elizabeth 554
Ruby Gifford (w. Wm.) 554
William 111, 554, 670
CRESWELL
Lt. 154
CREW
Ann Andrews (w. Thomas) 129
Joshua 129
Rachel 121
Thomas 129
CREWSON
Ida Leona Daniel (w. Stewart E) 129
Stewart E 716b
CRICKARD
William C 293
CRIPPEN
Frank A 417
CRISMAN
J 542
CRISWELL
Hanson 218, 220
Isaac 326
CRITTENDEN
Gen. 204, 234
George B 230, 231
CROCKER
Joseph 310
Samson 32
Crocker's (Ohio Company) 31
CROGAN
Col. George 16, 17 & Montour 17
Cromwell's Head Tavern (Ohio Company) 17
CROOK
Col. George 151, 198, 199, 200
Crooked Tree, Noble Co. 681
CROOKS
Gen. 169, 170, 172, 173, 201, 203, 204, 205, 224, 249
A L 544
Ralph 322
Crops 606
CROSEN
Mrs. Henrietta Hopkins 650
CROSS
George W 598
Isabel 139
J 542
Jackson 290
John W 322
Nancy Cline (w. George W) 322
Nathan 139
Ruth P 612
CROUCH
Samuel 139
CROW
Mrs. 724
Rev. Timothy 520
CROWELL
Judge 123
CROWN
Henry 139
CROXTON
160
CROY
Calvin 272
David 272
Duncan 272
Elder 520
Greer 272
Nathan 272
Robert 268, 272
William 272
CRUM
Amos 577
CRUMBLEY
E A 310
CRUSON
Burns 630
CUDDINGTON
Z 139
CULVER
Dr. 545
B F 164, 227, 322, 412
Mrs. Harriet Brown 545
J P 631
Levi 588, 589
Nancy 588
Reuben 538, 540, 543
Cumberland Turnpike 340
CUMMINS
Joseph 57
CUNNINGHAM
B F 715
Bethel 644
C E 520
Caroline Childers (w. Wm.) 524
E 524
Francis M 262
H C 602
Ister C 715
James 276
Rev. James 587
John 637, 697
John W 715
Joshua 707
L M 519, 522
Rev. Levi 637, 644
Loring 715
Mary A 427
Mary E 715
Mary J 583
Mary Jane 684
Melissa J 715
Michael 310
Orlando 715
Philip 427
Robert 715
Robert H 276

- Sabra Harvey (w. B F)
Mrs. Sarah 636
Sarah R 715
Wm. H 715
William Henry 276
Wilson 283
Zoar 644
- CUPP
Valentine 186
- Cure with sheep pelt
407
- CURRIER
& Sumsion 367
- CURRY
Joseph H 599, 600
Dr. Moses 599
Nancy 599
Tirzah 600
- CURTIS
Dr. 631
Mr. 392, 393
A L 111, 245, 367
A S 265, 347, 439
Almira Guthrie (w. Walter)
Amanda Miner (w. Leroy R)
Augusta Fuller (w. Harvey G)
Augustus S 422, 507, 529
Aurelia A Buell (w. William F)
Austin L 227, 507, 522, 529
Benjamin 507, 529
Dr. Bidad 490
Bildad 628
Rev. C D 384, 518, 600
Caroline 507, 529
Rev. Charles S 644
Clara 507, 529
Clarissa 507, 529
Columbus B 265, 507
Daniel W 507
Capt. Eleazer 363, 392, 506, 526, 529
Eleazer Jr. 507, 508, 529
Mrs. Elvira 521
Esther Knowles (w. Eleazer Jr.)
Eunice Hoyt 526
Eunice S 507
Eunice Starr (w. Eleazer)
Dr. H N 412
Harvey G 507, 526
Helen Green (first woman doctor (w. Dr. H N))
Henry C 265, 507
Horace 348, 507, 526, 529
Capt. Jason R 143, 149, 367, 507, 529, 544d
Mrs. Jeannette Drain 638
John 711, 719
Leroy R 507, 516, 526
Lois 628
Lucy 507, 529
Lydia 507, 526, 529
Lydia Cole (w. Horace)
Marion 507, 521, 529, 736
Mary 123
Mary Clark (w. Jason R)
Mary J 507
Nancy V Dunfee 508
Polly 507, 529, 544d
R C 123
Roland L 195, 507
Samuel R 339
Vestie 490
W F 347, 366, 367, 422
Walter 111, 112, 113, 347, 507, 526, 528a, 529
William F 1, 110-1, 142, 154, 156, 296, 347, 374-5
William P 347
Curtis Cemetery 630
- CUSHING
Col. 70
Betsey 522
Elijah 57
Elizabeth Heath (w. Col. Nathaniel)
James Varnum 538
Nabby (dau. Nathaniel) 357-8, 443-4
- Col. Nathaniel 52-3, 57, 114-5, 134, 357-8, 443-4, 457, 463, 500, 509-0, 515, 517, 522
Sallie 506
Samuel 48, 510, 530, 531, 535, 541, 643
Thomas 32
CUSHMAN
Nathaniel 58
- CUSIC
L 299
- CUSSACK
Tunell 177
- CUSTER
Gen. 172, 173, 196
David 1276
Jervis 64, see errata
- CUTHBERT
Ralph 283, 658
Ralph D 283
Ralph W 283
- CUTHERWOOD
William 257, see errata
- CUTLER
Annie Elizabeth 486
Charles 457, 488
& Dodge 93
E 645
Elizabeth 457
Elizabeth William-son (w. Wm.)
Judge Ephraim 39, 42, 45, 93, 104, 106-8, 108a, 111-2, 339-0, 346, 348, 358fn., 409, 427, 432-4, 456-7, 471-2, 485, 532, 540-1, 546, 548-9, 551, 581, 641-4, 645, 648, see errata
Ephraim Sumner 486
Frederick J 469
Hezekiah 455, 471
J 644, 645
Jervis 48, 64-5, 457, 531, see errata
Julia Perkins 1, 456
Lavina 457
Leah Atwood (w. Ephraim) 636, see errata
Rev. Manasseh 32-5, 37-40, 40a, 42-7, 52, 56, 90-1, 93, 104-5, 111, 115, 120, 128, 356-8, 361, 380-1, 439-0, 442, 455-8, 468, 471, 477, 485, 636
Manasseh (infant) 427
Margaret Jane 486
Mary 457
Mary Balch (w. Manasseh)
Mary Ann 642
Miriam 644
Polly Parker (w. Ephraim)
Sarah 643
Sarah Julia 486
Susanna Clark (w. Hezekiah)
Temple 39, 457
William Ephraim 486
William Means 486
William Parker 1, 111, 148, 150, 156, 161, 241, 340-1, 344, 348, 348a, 380a, 402, 431, 489, 485-6, 489, 494, 496, 644, 647, 652, 730
Cutler Journal 34-42, 456
Cutler Station 729-0
Cutler's Indian Heaven 43-4
- CUTLIP
Henry 268
- CUTSHAW
Shannon 310
Sheppard 310
William 310
- CUTTER
E 540, see errata
Ephraim 532, see errata
Eva E Wagner (w. Lewis J Sr.)
F J 442a
Frederick J 131
Jarvis 531, see errata
- Lewis J Sr. 469, 470
Lewis L 317
William H 317
Cuyahoga River 10
- CYPHERS
Michael 559
- DABOLD
Jacob 308
- "Dad" (humor) 503
- DAGGETT
William S 299
- DAILEY
Hamilton 276
Isaac 293
Thomas 146, 180
William 276
William H 296
- DAILY
Thomas Cook 295
- DAINES
Benjamin 677
Eben 677
Julie 677
Lavina 677
Levi Jr. 677
Lucy 677
Luther 677
Parley 677
Simeon 677
- DAINS
Chloe (w. Levi)
Levi 582, 676, 677, 678, 680, 685, 687, see errata
Levi Jr. 680
Sally Dutton (w. Levi)
Simeon 680
- Dains Fork, see errata
- DALE
Edward R 310, 374, 447
Elder H S 577
Rev. Jeremiah 386, 676, 695
T D 376, 376, 447, 469
- DALMAN
Major John 163
- DALY
Miss 703
- DALZELL
Private 709
Mrs. Ann 506
James 265
- Dalzell Settlement
709
- DANA
Miss 500
Capt. 161
Gen. 432
Elder 703
Rev. Alfred 386, 562, 566, 576
Ann Bullard (w. Richard)
Ann Pratt (w. Rev. Alfred)
Augustus 500
Benjamin 99, 348, 493, 536, 537, 541, 544b, 547
Benjamin Jr. 536
Betsey 566
Caroline 537
Rev. Charles 112, 526, 565, 566, 574
Charles L 310
Charlotte 537
Deborah A (w. George) 503, 517
Dorcas 240, 566, see errata (w. William I)
Edmund Bancroft 57, 134, 429, 500, 521, 610
Edward B 518, 522
Elizabeth 537
Elizabeth 175, 500, 566, 568
Elizabeth Foster (w. Stephen)
Elizabeth Thornily (w. Samuel)
Eunice 537
Fannie (w. Rev. Israel Archibald) 566
Fanny 500
Frederick F 310, 569
George 1, 134, 430, 433, 499, 500, 503, 514, 518, 521, 524, 526
Gideon 360
Grace 128, 388b, 566
Grace Stone (w. Luther) 512a, 513
- Hannah Pope Putnam (w. John Winchester)
Isaac 536
J M 155
J Quincy 433
Jane (w. Benjamin Jr.)
Jane Little (w. S A)
John W 494
John Winchester 536
L D 370
Lidia Byington (w. George Jr.) 500, see errata
Lucy 501, 566
Luther 58, 500, 565, 566
Maria 566
Maria Guitau (w. William II), see errata
Marietta 537
Mary 119, 123
Mary Bancroft (w. Capt. William)
Mary W 500, 537
P F 576
Pamela 566
Peregrine 565
Permelia L 569
Polly 566
Polly Foster (w. William II), see errata
Richard 536, 566
S A 569
Sallie Shaw (w. Benjamin)
Samuel 566
Sarah 503
Sarah E 575
Sarah Winchester (w. Isaac)
Stephen 500, 568
Stephen A 577
Susan 566
Susan L 576
Watson 601
William 58, 240, 565, 566, 574, 576, 610
Capt. William 52, 55, 119, 124, 398, 430, 499, 502, 510, 515, 521, 526, 566
William, Jr. 500, 502, 566
Wm. II, see errata
& Wendelken 617
Winchester 336
- Dana Farm 532, 536
- Dana Island 536
- Dana's Run 569, 571
- DANE
Mr. 35, 37, 39
Nathan 35, 36, 37, 39
- DANFORD
Robert R 197
- DANIELS
A, son of 427
Abraham 688
Abram 150
Charles W 262
E W 588
James B 296
Joseph B 296
Maj. Joseph B 133, 149, 174
Sophia 570
Susan 397
- Daniels, Westgate & Alcock 110
- DANIELSON
A 545
E E 142
Eliza (w. Gen. Timothy)
Leroy H 326
Pliny 538
Lt. Timothy E 142
- DANKER
John 150
- DANLEY
Amy 666
Amy Pugh (w. John)
Benjamin 666, 671, 673
Eliza 666, 671
Elizabeth 666
Harvey 314
Hiel, see errata
Ida Leona 716b
James 314
Joe 667
Joel M 262
Joel Manasseh 716b
Joel N 314
John 666, 667, 719
John, Jr. 670
- John W 314
Joseph 314, 667
Joseph W 670
Martha Jane Gard (w. Robert Joel M)
Mary 666, 667, see errata
R 670
R L 672
Robert 666, 667
Robert Joel Mason 716b
Rosamond Swift 553
William E 314
- Danley Hotel 533
- DANNER
William 308
- DANTON
Israel 48
Danvers 45, see errata
- DAOFF
L 322
- DARE
Andrew 601
Jeremiah 565
- DARFRIS
Reil 534
- Dark Valley 655
- DARLING
Amy 558
Jonathan 139
- DARLINGTON
Joseph 105, 106
- DARROW
A R 333
Rev. Allen 386, 387, 562, 576, 577, 695
Allen R 227, 306
John 139
Russell 671
- DAUBER
Frederick 315
- DAUGHTERTY
Charles 685
George 138
J P 670
Mr. James P 218
William 319
- DAUGHLIN
James 186
- Daughters of Rebecca 589
- DAULEY
Hiel 326, see errata
Mary 667, see errata
- DAVENPORT
Capt. 161
Carl B 598
Ella L 598
Frank E 598
George 113, 164, 183, 184, 299, 577, 598, 602, 603
George A 598, 599
Gould 58, 368
John A 598
Martha 598
Mary E 598 (w. George)
Olivia R 598
William C 598
- DAVEY
T M 245
- DAVID
58
James B 280
DAVIDSON
392, 676
Barazilla 109
Catherine 680
Charles S 680
Eliz 265, 526
Elizabeth 680
Emily 680
George 680
George M 680
Harriet Coles (w. Wm.)
Harry W 680
Jane Richardson (w. Wm.)
Jenny 680
John 260
Kate 680
Maggie 680
Margaret 680
Thomas 680
Timothy 483
William 260, 680
William C 680
- DAVIES
Ben. 207, 212, 213
Lt. Col. 238
Dudley 581, see errata
- DAVIS
439, 563, 705
Captain 379
Gen. 170
Mr. 587, 608
- Elder 521, 682
Ada M 554
A daline 595
Albert 293
Albert A 296
Andrew G 640
Andrew J 257
Ann K rebs (w. J W)
Anna Stull (w. Marvel)
Asa 538, 551
Benjamin 677, 678
Beryl 554
Betsey 551
Bradford 280
Brown 260
Brown A 257
Caroline Shepherd (w. Willard)
Cecil 554
Charles 303
Chloe 677
Squire D 257
Capt. Daniel 47, 362, 532, 541, 551, 557
Daniel, Jr. 541, 551, 556, 557
Daniel W 257
David 531
Dema F 554
Douglas 318
Squire Dudley, Sr. 582, 676-7, 687
Dudley 257, 581, 582, see errata
E J R 347
Eben 677
Edmond 257
Eleanor Pinkerton (w. John)
Electa A 553
Eliza 613
Eliza Dye (w. Nathan)
Elizabeth 557, 560, 561, 640, 736
Elizabeth Trapp (w. Walter)
F S 519
family 681
Mrs. Frances Bartlett 506
Frank 283
Frederick 257
Freeman L 308
George S 267
Hamilton F 310
Henry Edward 310
Herman 308
Hester A 553
Hezekiah 541, 551
Hugh A 257
Isaac 369, 569
Isaiah 284
J 675
Gen. J C 495
J P 47
J S 519
J T 265
J W 527
James 640
James W 310
Jefferson 145, 172
Jesse 540, 543, 551
Jethro 299
Joel P 280
John 276, 293, 601, 640, 699
John Wilson 310
Jonas 86, 510, 511
Joseph 681
Julia 677
Julia Campbell (w. O L)
Juliet 553
Juthro 146
K 151
K B 310
Katie 557
L D 423
Lavina 677
Levi 677
Lucena 551
Lucy 677, 678
Lucy A 570
Luther 677
Mabelle 554
Malinda 640
Marvel W 553
Marvel, Jr. 553
Mary A (w. Gilbert Eldridge) 659
Mary C 557
Mindwell (Mrs. — Mason) 553
Moses 541
Nancy 667, 716a
Mrs. Nancy C Roberts 554
Nancy Patent (w. Marvel Jr.)
- Nathan 655, 656, 660
Elder Nehemiah 385
O D 522
O L 519, 527
Orilla 608
Parley 677
Patience 553
Paul W 257
Peter 276
Ralph 554
Rebecca 694
Rev. Reuben 562
Rose 557
Samuel 58, 678
Sandford 310, 570
Simeon 677
Solomon 299
Stella B 554
Susan 557
Thomas P 640
Trevelyn 554
Walter 557, 559, 561
Walter, Jr. 557
Willard 293, 557, 560
Willard F 557
Willard H 557
William 58
William S 257
William W 640
- Davis Run 570
- DAWES
Caroline Dana (w. D Edward)
D Edward 537
Ephraim C 303
Col. Ephraim Cutler 218, 245, 494, 643
Henry Manasseh 128
Mary B. Gates (w. Rufus R)
Rufus R 111, 133, 158, 237-9, 344, 370, 385, 435
Mrs. Sarah Cutler 1, 348, 384, 456
- DAWSON
B H 731
Moses 416
Percilla Smith (w. B H)
SD 7
Capt. W F 720
William F 227, 272
- DAY
Alvin 326
Augustus 571
Catherine (w. Jacobus)
Cecelia 571
Clara B 702
Daniel 554, 571
Capt. Daniel 47
David 531
David C 151
Drazilla Johnston (w. Samuel L)
Edward 571
Frank 571
George 702
H C 525
Jacob 571
Jonah Hendershot (w. William A)
John 58, 525, 571
Col. John 45
Lavina 697, 702
Lucinda 571
Margaret 737
Mariah Cislser (w. John)
Minnie 702
Rachel E 702
Samuel L 702
Thomas 224, 227, 326
Capt. William A 218, 223, 702, 704
William Alfred 290
Zebulon 697
- DAYLY
Wesley 276
- Dead Man's Run 85
- DEALEY
Jehu 139
- DEAN
681
Anna 589, see errata
Charles 322
Harry 491
John 322
Joseph 139
Levi 676, 680, see errata
Philo 226
- Dean's Fork 705, see errata
- DEARNA
Arona 707
Ephraim 707

- Frank 707
George S 707
Hester J Kasey (w. Hiram)
Hiram 707
James 707
John 707
Kasey 707
Lewis 707
Martha A 707
Nancy J 707
Nehemiah H 260
Robert 707
Russell 707
- DEASY
Luke 268
Death, dream 74
Death—first 357-8, 443
- DeBECK
Capt. W L 133, 185, 186
William L 299
- DeBeck's Battery
179
- Debtors, law regard- ing 103
- Decatur Twp. 109, 730-1
- Decaturville 731
- Decaturville P.O. 732
- DECKER
Abraham 697, 698
August 589
John, see errata
Levi 697
Mary 599
Moses 697
Samuel 280
- DEE
Capt. 161
- DEEBLE
Charles H 265
Joseph 265
- DEEGAN
William C 276, see errata
- DEEKER
John 308, see errata
- DEEM
Mrs. 428
James 367
John 616
- De GARMO
Salathiel Smith 643
- DeHASS
Lt. Col. 154, 218, 595
- DEITERS
C 600
- DEITZ
Frederick 315
- DELAFIELD
John, Sr. 416
John, Jr. 351 et seq., 387, 414, 446
- DELANO
A mos 641, 648
Clark 648
Carnelius 57, 58, 504, 510
Cynthia Cole (w. Thomas)
Elmer 648
family 527
Julia 648
Lewis T 648
Lucy 648, 649
Lucy Angeline, see errata
Phoebe E 648
Sarah 507
Sarah J 648
Thomas 648
- DELATRE
58
- Delaware Indians 9, 10, 14, 19, 59-62, 64, 68, 71, 133
- DELONG
Miss 85
Aaron 85, 534, 540
Charles 315, 347
Charles R 315
Chauncey 581
David 581
"Doc" 586
Henry 139
I H 678
Isaac 581
James 581
John 603
Jonathan 580-1
Jones 260
Lydia 581
Mary 581
Nelsie Lancaster (w. I H)
Sarah 587
T J 675
- DEMING
- Col 624, 630
Judge 629
Amanda E 625
Anna Henry (w. David)
Betsey 623, 625
D T 146
Daniel 627-8
David 134, 552, 625
David Y 625
Diantha 635
Diantha Cole (w. J H)
Edward N 326
Edwin A 625
Ellen E Burch (2nd w. William H)
Elizabeth 635
Ellen Elosa (w. Henry)
Emily 627, 628 b
Ermina L 627
Ezekiel 112, 624, 625, 636, 715
Mrs. Ezekiel 427
F P 716
Hannah 625
Hannah Parke (w. Ezekiel)
Harley 625, 628
Henry 262, 491
Henry M 326
Hiram 625, 635, 715
Honora 613, 623, 625
Horace W 625
J H 634, 635, 641
J T 715, 716
J Harvey 625
James H 715
Joel 134, 226, 347, 625, 636
Elder Joel 644
John 7625
Lester C 326
Lois (w. Daniel)
Lucinda 625, 635, 715
Lucy 623
Lucy A 625
Lucy Wolcott 490
Lucy Wolcott (w. Col. Simeon)
Martin L. 625
Mary 635, 715
Mrs. Mary B 625
Mary Ann Richards (w. J T)
Mary Humphreys (w. Joel)
Mary W 552, 625
Matilda J (1st w. William H)
Mercy 624, 625
R J Meigs 625
Sallie 625
Simeon 113
Col. Simeon 541, 624, 625, 630, 631
Wallace 635
William H 625
- Democratic Headquarters 368
- DEMONT
Richard 139
- DEMPSEY
Mrs. 427
- DEMSEY
Isaac 58
- DENBON
see errata
Elisha 290, see errata
Thomas 290, see errata
- DENNEY
Samuel 57
- DENNIS
669
Rev. George W 575
J W 661
Thomas 138, 139
- DENNISON
Gov. 145, 151, 167, 168, 186, 187, 218
Rev. 600
Susan 597
Hon. William 403
- DENNIT
58
- DENNY
533
Andrew 544
Charles W 329
Maj. Ebenezer 53, 78
Nanny 527
Sarah 554
- DENSMORE
Mary 666, see errata
- DENT
Lewis 141
- DENWELL
- Martin 257, see errata
- DERGY
Dr. 562, 631
- DESHLER
651
- De TEMPLE
Catherine 628
- DETERLEY
Michael 113
- Detroit 12, 15, 65
- Detroit Fl. 135-6
- DEUCHERS
Alexander 697
Burton E 697
Catherine 697
Daniel 683, 697
David 697, 698, 699
David, Jr. 697
Eliza Bliss (w. Daniel)
Elizabeth 697
George 697, 699
Isabel 697, 699
Isabel Murray (w. David)
James 697
Margaret 697
Margaret A. Sprague (w. George)
Martha Griffin (w. James)
Mary E 697
Sarah M 697, 699
Virginia A 697, 699
- Deucher's Chapel 698
- DEVAULT
John, Sr. 140
Thomas 140
- DEVEES
Abraham 701
Archibald 701
Nellie 701
Sarah 701
William 701
- DEVILBISS
John W 519
- Devil's Grease 700
- DEVIN
George W 146
- DEVOIR
Solomon 588
- DEVOL
433
Abner 558
Adelaide Dyar (1st w. Hiram F)
Adelia 551
Alexander C 322
Alice D 558
Allen 48, 530, 531, 535, 541, 551, 558
Alpha 348, 550
Alpha 510
Augusta 551
Barker 226, 612
Basha 550
Benjamin 308
Benjamin F, Sr. & Jr. 308, 612
Betsey 540a, 550, 551
Betsey Gray (w. Stephen Jr.) 540a, 549
Bitha Marshall (w. W m Dudley)
C M 533-4
Carroll 236
Catherine Angle (w. W m A)
Catherine 537
Celina M Olney (w. Charles M, Sr.)
Capt. Charles 126, 134, 137, 139, 336, 526, 612
Charles H. 308, 612
Charles M, Jr. 558
Charles M, Sr. 558
Charlotte 550
Christopher 58
Clara Sherman (w. Jonathan)
Clarinda Mason (w. Abner)
Clarissa 503, 558
Clarissa Hart (w. Wing)
Cook 550
Cynthia (of Isaac)
558
Cynthia (of Jonathan)
550
Cynthia (of Wing)
612
Daniel 551, 558
David 558
Diantha Stowe (w. Israel P)
Elizabeth 732
- Elizabeth Brownell (w. Isaac)
Emeline M 551, 559
Emily 540a
Ermine B 237
Eva E 551
family, see errata
Florence W 237
Capt. Francis "Frank" 114, 432, 612
Frances H 551
Frank 336
George Hosmer 237
George W 558
Gideon 58, 531, 537, 538, 550
Gilbert 48, 57, 73, 87, 105-6, 109, 113, 322, 348, 356, 358, 363, 435, 530-2, 541, 550-1
Hannah Convers (w. Cook)
Hannah Hatch (w. Philip)
Harriet Bowen (2nd w. Hiram F)
Harris 308, 612
Hattie A 236, 542
Helen Penelope Putnam (w. William)
Henrietta 126, 336
Henry F 322
Gen. Hiram F 1, 133, 166, 184a, 198, 202, 204-5, 235-7, 322, 532d, 540, 540a, 542, 553, 612
Howell 551
Isaac 551, 558
Isaac L 322
Isabel 552
Israel P 6, 7, 612-3, 621
Mrs. J B 542
J Herry 257
J P 605
James Harvey 612
Jane F Clark (w. Theodore)
Jerry B 7
Capt. Jonathan 7, 47-8, 55-6, 58, 96, 115, 336, 348, 376, 500-2, 510, 512, 521, 611-2, 617-8
Jonathan III 510, 530, 531, 533, 540, 541, 550, 551
John Bennett 551
John P 612
Joseph 7, 550, 612
Josiah 612
L B 423
Lecta 550
Letha 255
Louisa A 551
Louisa 540a
Lucinda 551
Luther 257
Maria 569, 611, 612
Mary 547
Mary B 237
Mary E 558
Milton H 551
Nancy 550, 557
Nancy Ann Barker (w. Jonathan)
Nancy Champlin (w. Alpha)
Nathan B 558
Patience 558
Philip 550
Polly 538, 549, 550
Presbury 550
Capt. Prescott 336-7
Rachel 543
Rebecca 540a 558
Richmond 558
Rosanna 550, 608
Rosannah Cook (w. Stephen Sr.)
Roscoe 551
Rubia Sprague (w. Simeon M)
Russell 558
Ruth 550
Ruth 551
Ruth Jennings (w. Allen)
Sallie Hoyt (w. Capt. Charles)
Sally 550
Sally Lake (w. Wanton)
Sally Silva (w. William)
Samuel 322
- Sarah 336, 550, 612
Sarah Devol (w. Prescott)
Silas 550
Silas A 322
Silence Buell (w. Stephen Jr.)
Silian 558
Simeon M 296, 551, 561
Stephen 308, 347
Stephen Jr. 519, 537, 538, 539, 540a, 542, 543, 549, 550, 551, 608
Stephen Sr. 7, 376, 537, 550-1
Stephen C 551
Theodore 540a, 551, 605
Tillinghast 540a, 544, 612
Wanton 58, 73, 87, 530, 531, 532, 541, 550
William 7, 112, 308, 395, 550, 605, 611-2
Willie Gray 540a
W m A. 536, 551
W m Dudley 114, 605, 612, 616, 618, 619
Wing 7, 550, 611-2
- Devol's Dam 616, 621, 656
- Devol's Island 89, see errata
- Devon 648
- Devon Cattle 585
- DEVORE
David A 326
James 319
- DEWEES
Caleb 272
- DEWEY
L 355, 356
- DEWITT
Col. E L 165
- De WITT
Rev. Luke 587, 695
- DEXTER
Dr 35
Mr. 653
Francis 265
John L 265
- DIAMOND
Mary 548
- DIBBLE
Hannibal 146, 293
- DICE
John 315, 318
- DICK
310
- DICKERSON
Dr. 594
Cassius M C 327
Deborah 594
Eleanor 593, 594
Elizabeth 593, 594
Frederick 593
Greensbury F 326
Henry 593
Isabella 593
John 198
Kinsey 593
Milton H 326
Rebecca 593
Sarah 593
Thomas 593
Vachel 593, 695, 696
- Dickerson Farm 594
- DICKES
Charles 283
- DICKEY
Dr. 486
Amos Austin 643
Betsey Brown (w. Thomas)
Charles 350, 635
Charles Lindley 635
J J M 558
James 359
Maria 612
Samuel M 276
Thomas 634-5
- DICKINSON
691
- Dickman's Battery
179
- DICKS
Nathan 57
- DICKSON
Abner 701
Albert 701
Alexander 701
Amanda 701
Ann Elizabeth Snyder (w. Christopher Jr.)
Christopher, Jr. 701
- Christopher, Sr.
699, 700, 701, 703, 704
Clarissa 701
Cynthia 701
Elizabeth 701
Fanny Lewis (w. Christopher Sr.)
Isaac 322
Jacob 701
Jane 701
Jemima 701
Levina 701
Lewis 701
Margaret E 701
Mary 701
Mary E Kirkpatrick (w. Abner)
Nancy 701
Sarah 701
Susan 701
- DILLEY
Clinton 260
Ellen 519
Francis 649
James Jr. 296
James L 260
Jonathan 280
Joseph 134, 260, 519
R P 164
Richard H 260
- DILLON
John C 197
John W 519
William Henry 315
- DILLY
Rev. 391
Abram 675
R 675
- DILSE
Mary 668
- Dime Saving Soc.
375
- DI MOND
Mrs. Sarah C 485
- DINKLEMAN
Adeline 686
- Dirk & Company 372
- DIRKS
563
- Disciple Church 535, 562, 589, 644, 698, 721
- Dispatch — Beverly 546
- Distilleries 535, 537, 539, 553, 574, 686a
- DIVINE
Dr. E S 707
- DIX
G F 589
- DIXON
589
- Abraham Lincoln
679
- Agnes 658
- Albert 290
- Electa Vaughn (w. John Sr.)
Fred 679
Hannah 679
Hugh 427
J Esquire 676
Jacob 290
John Jr. 679
John Sr. 678-9
Joseph 675
Nichol 322
William 322
Wilson 322
- DOAN
589
Anna 589, see errata
Anna Kemp 685, 688
Ansel 685
Archibald S 315
David C 315
Edwin T 315
Harriet 684
Rev. John H 575, 600, 681, 695, 698
Joshua P 685
Josiah M 315
Martha H 570
Orgilleas 589
Philo 685, 688
Richard 273, 315
Sybil Chapman (w. Philo)
William A 589
William Henry 685
W m P 685
- DOANE
Mrs. 582
A S 583
Mrs. Anna 583
Anna Post (w. Richard)
Annie Palmer (w. William A)
Armarailla G 584
A sa 584
- Ashael 583
Curtis 583
David C 583
Dana 583
E P 583
E T 583
Emily 584
Esther Chapman (w. Curtis)
Gileas 675
Guy Frederick 583
H P 583
Harriet A 584
J M 583
Joshua 583
L C 583
Linda 583
Lydia 583
Lynman 583
Mary A Babson (w. E P)
Pauline Fuller (w. S C)
Philo 583
Preston 583
Richard 583
S C 583
Sarah A bigail 612 b
Sarah Stanley (w. Asa)
William 583, 584
William A 584
Doane's Run 563
- DOBBIN 370
Isaac 257
John 257
William 257
- DOBBINS
A nthony 322
Henry 257
James 322
William 257
- DOCKERY
Gen. 222
- Doctor, first lady 412
- DODD
Orpha 696
- DODDRIDGE
John 19-20
- DOES
Joseph 66
- DODDS
Joseph 276, 600
- DODGE
Gen. 208
Abraham 58
Andrew 549
Betsey Burlingame (w. Nathaniel Jr.)
Betsey H McCoy (w. Richard H)
Christopher 549
Colina N 124, 549, 555
Dudley 427, 480
Mrs. E W 500
Elvina 549
Ethel 549
Eudoria Wing (w. Oliver)
Hannah 480
Harriet 651
Isaac 48, see errata
Ismael 48, 549
Capt. John 362, 461, 532-3, 540, 543-4, 546-7, 549, 622, 629
Lord John 549
John 55, 57, 58, 124, 549, 608
Mary 549
Mary B Stone (1st w. John)
Mary Manchester 557
Nancy Devol (w. Oliver)
Nancy N Patterson (2d w. John)
Nathaniel 366, 480, 557, 615
Nathaniel Jr. 480
Oliver 48, 363, 366, 372, 422, 480, 557
Patterson 534, 549
Mrs. Patterson 622
Rebecca 367, 608
Rebena 480
Richard Hubbard 557
Sally 367
Sidney 362, 533, 549
Susanna Morgan (w. Capt. John)
William 45, 480
William M 549
Dodge Mill 532 d
- DOEBERINER
Christian 561
- DOFATT
John 708
- Dog, Pedro 610

- DOHERTY
Capt. Geo. M216
Lt. Geo. 217
- DOLAN
Mrs. Mary Morey
554
- DOLEN
Lewis C322
- Dole's Blacksmith Shop 642
- DOLMAN
Charles Morgan 287
John W 287
- DOLNER
Rev. 388
- DOLSON
Emanuel 310, see
errata
- Dominic, the (Brig)
617
- DONAKER
family 686
- DONALD
Rev. 541
- DONALDSON
John B 287
- DONALSON
Israel 106
J S 561
Timothy E 394
- Donation lands 55-6,
91-2, 530-2, 553,
556, 606-7, 610,
621, 623-4
- DONE
Lt. Col. David 195
- DONLEY
Francis M280
- DONTHITT
William 287, see er-
rata
- DOOL
Rev. W S 599, 600
- DOOLEY
Andrew 639
Catherine Highland
(w. Andrew)
Jeremiah 178
John 639
Julia 639
T C 542
- DORFF
Charles 276, 596
Elizabeth Barnett
(w. Russell)
Eveline 596
Joshua 596
Margaret 596
Mary 596
Reuben 276
Russell 596
Samuel S 596
Sarah 596
Stillman 596
Violet 596
- Dore Evans (w.
Samuel S)
William 276, 596
- DORR
Barak 97
Edmund 97
William 97
- DORRENIE
Samuel 57
- DORSEY
Emma 596
James 58
Stephen W 183, 184,
185
- D'OSSOLI
Countess 476
- DOTSON
Emanuel, see errata
George 310
Joseph 293, 299
Michael 293
Samuel 293
- DOTY
Ephraim 140
- DOUBLE
Edward 272, see er-
rata
- DOUBLEDAY
Gen. 238
- DOUD
Conner 315
- DOUDLE
Edward, see errata
- DOUGHTY
Maj. John 22, 24,
47, 65, 117, 419
- DOUGHITT
James 150
- DOUGLAS
E J 151
Edward J 293
John 688
- DOUTHETT
Julia Ann 686
- DOUTHITT
Augustus 299
- James 296, 299
William, see errata
- DOW
David 146, 177, 182,
299
John 150, 299
- DOWELL
Jesse 290
Joseph 522
- DOWENS
George 310, see er-
rata
- DOWLING
Belle 686
Elisha 686
Harriet 686
Hattie Smithson (w.
Thomas B)
Henry A 686
James 685
James Jr. 685, 686,
688
James R 273
John 114, 685, 686
John W 273
Lewis 686, 688
Lewis W 273
Margaret Post 686
Phoebe Perkins (w.
John)
Sally Harris (w.
James)
Sarah J 686
Thomas B 686
Wilson S 686
- DOWNER
A F 149, 522, 524
E 93
- DOWNING
Augusta (Paxton)
244
George D 195
James T 138
- DOYLES
George, see errata
- DOYLE
Lt. 22
Michael 706
- DRAIN
Anna 638, 669
Catharine (w. Duncan)
Daniel 637, 638,
649, 716
Daniel R 649
Duncan 638, 669
Eliza 638
Hugh 638
Isabelle Dunlap (w.
Samuel)
James 637, 716
James B 649
Jeanette 649
Jeanette Fullerton
(w. Thomas)
Jeanette Templeton
(w. Daniel R)
Mrs. Jeannette
Mitchell 60
John 149, 270
John D 649
Margaret 638
Mary 638, 649
Nancy 638
Robert 649
Roland S 649
Romayne Bay (w.
James)
Rosetta 638
Samuel 649
Thomas 637, 649,
670
- DRAKE
10, 12
Dr. 602, 604
Lt. Col. 168, 222
J C 613
J M 187, 191
Jacob 427, 588
James 613
John 600, 613
Margaret 613
Mary 613
Sarah J Oliver (w.
Thomas)
Thomas 613
- DRAKER
A dam, see errata
John 284
- DRAPER
A dam 284, see er-
rata
- Dream of death 74
- Dress of early settlers
96
- DRESSER
Prudence 633
- DRESSLER
Michael 315
- DRETCHER
John 164
- DREW
- Jesse P 284
- DRISCOLL
George B 257
Merritt 257
Stukely 257
Thomas 146, 180
- DRISKILL
Elizabeth 588
Lucy 588
- DROWN
Gage H 488
John 58, 383, 427
Mary 427
Capt. N 378
S D W 427
Dr. Solomon 58,
358-9, 406
- DRULEY
Rev. T C 520
- DRUM
Jacob 257, 273
James 700
Lewis 257
- DRUMMOND
Col. 137
- Drunkness 7, 362
- DRURY
Betsey Devo (w.
Elmer)
Elmer 550
- DRUSE
Annie DeSasle (w.
Stephen S)
Amanda 538
Corra 638
Harrison 527, 638
Jane 638
Joseph 527, 638
Lucy 527, 638
Maria 527
Mary A 527
Mary Cockshott (w.
Riley)
Melissa 527
Nannie Denslow (w.
Stephen S)
Olivia 527
Riley 527, 638
Sally 427
Sarah 527
Sarah Barkley (w.
Stephen Jr.)
Stephen Jr. 498,
519, 524, 527, 638
Stephen S. 638
Urah 638
W. Warren 527, 638
Drew 528, 498
- DRYER
A gatha 736
- DUANE
James 14
Duck Creek Mills 56,
687
- Duck Creek Settlement 684
- Ducking gun 73
- DUDEEN
Charles 296
Henry 296
John 188, 296
- DUDER
Corp. Henry 190
- DUDLEY
A sa 58
Duel 408
- DUER
George A 329
Col. William 39, 40,
41, 42, 57, 90, 91,
338
- DUFER
Abigail 731
Able 731
D F 114
Daniel F 731
Edmund 731
Eunice 731
Eunice Bachelor
(w. Able)
Eva 731
John 731
Lucy 731
Polly Fairchild (1st
w. Able)
- DUFF
Mr. 677
John T 397, 478a
Mary S Spaulding
(w. J T)
- DUFFER
A H 519
- DUGAN
Charles 150
Moses 149
William 150
William C, see errata
- DUKE
Basil 159, 161, 165,
191
- DULTY
- 188
John 299
- DUMBLE
J W 415
- DUMELY
George W 228
- DUMFEE
Caroline 508
David 508
Elizabeth 508
Elizabeth Johnson
(w. William)
Francis 508
Geo. B 508, 527
George W 508
John 508
Jonathan 508
Ludlow 508
Maria 508
Mary 508
Nancy V 508
Nancy Tipton (w.
George)
Thomas 508
William 508
- DUMONT
John T 671
- DUNAHUE
Daniel 138
- DUNBAR
Mrs. 729
Catharine 726
Daniel 726, 727
David 727, 726, 727
Dayton G 726
Emily J 726
Esther Owens (w.
Thomas)
Flora Gage (w.
James)
India 726
James T 630, 726
Jane Ann 726
John 726
Louisa 726
Martha 679
Mary C Lake (w.
Daniel)
Nancy 726
Polly Shelton (w.
William)
Sarah 726
Sarah A Varner (w.
Shelton)
Shelton 726
Thomas 139, 711,
726
Warren K 262
William 711, 726
Dunbar P O 730
Dunbar's Store 628a
- DUNBERGER
George 522
- DUNCAN
Maj. 60
Mrs. 427
Betsey 657
Martha 679
Mary 420a
Robert G 428
William 138
Duncan's Falls 60,
96, 548
Dunce Block 671
- DUNCHEW
Daniel 683, see er-
rata
- DUNCKLE
Jacob 140
- DUNFEE
Mrs. Elizabeth
Bartlett 506
George B 527
- DUNHAM
510
Col. 214, 217
Miss 510, 511
Amos 515, 648, 651,
652
Azubah 506
Betsey 648
Daniel 57, 506, see
errata
Daniel Jr. 58
Mrs. Daniel D 510
& Gardner 413
Rev. Jonathan 648,
652
Laura Guthrie (w.
Amos) 507
Lucinda 651
Lucy Angelina 649,
see errata
Persis 79, 511, 526
Rev. Samuel 587
- Dunham Post Office
651
- Dunham Tavern 635
- Dunham Twp. 109, 647
- DUNIHEW
Daniel, see errata
- DUNIHUE
Daniel 683
- DUNLADY
Francis 106
- DUNLAP
Charlotte Breckenridge (w. John)
Isabella 649
Jane 649
John 714, 716
Margaret 649
Moses S 287
Robert 287, 717
William 284, 287
- DUNLAVEY
Francis 105
- DUNLEVY
George 112, 113,
149, 388a, 415
James 527
Washington M 696
William B 696
- DUNN
Rev. 699
James 114, 174,
226, 347, 422, 519,
731
John 731
Joseph 716
M J 601
Elder W 519, 577
- DUNSMOOR
Harvey 262
- DUNSMOORE
Lucius J 272
- DUNSMORE
Abner G 716b, 727,
728a
Ataline Gage 716a,
716b, 726, 728a
Amanda Hall (1st
w. J B)
Amelia 610, 620
Augustine 114
Augustine 605, 610,
615, 618, 620
B F 610
Camillus 610
Charles 610
Charles C 620
Edwin 610, 620
Elizabeth Pollard
(w. Augustine)
Esther Ann 612b
family 612b, 619
Fanny Kendrick (w.
Joseph)
Frank 610
George 435
Harriet A 610, 620
Harry 612
Helen 612
J B 228, 605, 610,
616a, 616b
James 610, 615
James H 619
John 619
John Jr. 612
John Sr. 610, 612
John W 612, 615
Joseph 308, 605,
610, 615, 619, 620
Joseph B 612b
Col. Joseph 164,
615, 619, 620
Louise 610
Mary 620
Mrs. Susan L Slater
554
Thomas 146
- DYE
690
A J 444a, 636b, 662
A Jackson 656
Abbie C 660a
Abigail 540
Abigail E Jameson
(w. Jonathan T)
Amos 227, 283,
564b, 660a, 686
Amos Jr. 656, 686
Ann 557, 656, 686
Arius Newton 636b
Augustus E 659
Betsey 656
Betsey (w. Ezekiel)
Betsey Duncan (w.
Jonathan)
Bettie 656
"Bub" Sam 656
Carl M 660a
Catharine 444a
Charlotte Graff 686
Charlotte M 636b
Clara M 660a
Clarissa (w. James H)
D 636b
D H 636b, 656
Daniel 695
Daniel H 296
Daniel U 636b, see
errata
- DUVAL
Ephraim F 696
Eva A 696
family, see errata
George E 696
Jackson B 696
Joseph A 696, see
errata
Joseph C 696
Maren, see errata
Margaret E 696
Maria A 696
Marion 696, see er-
rata
Mary C 696
Mary Chambers (w.
Marion)
Nancy C Carle (w.
Joseph)
Rebecca F 696
Washington M 696
William B 696
- Duval's Island
(Kerr's Island)
see Devol's Island
- DUVALL
Andrew 221
Andrew J 290
- Duval's Island, see
Devol's Island
- Duval's Knoll 698
- DYAR
A 605
Abigail Proctor (w.
J B)
Adelaide 236, 610,
620
Alary 610, 615
Amanda Hall (1st
w. J B)
Amelia 610, 620
Augustine 114
Augustine 605, 610,
615, 618, 620
B F 610
Camillus 610
Charles 610
Charles C 620
Edwin 610, 620
Elizabeth Pollard
(w. Augustine)
Esther Ann 612b
family 612b, 619
Fanny Kendrick (w.
Joseph)
Frank 610
George 435
Harriet A 610, 620
Harry 612
Helen 612
J B 228, 605, 610,
616a, 616b
James 610, 615
James H 619
John 619
John Jr. 612
John Sr. 610, 612
John W 612, 615
Joseph 308, 605,
610, 615, 619, 620
Joseph B 612b
Col. Joseph 164,
615, 619, 620
Louise 610
Mary 620
Mrs. Susan L Slater
554
Thomas 146
- DYE
690
A J 444a, 636b, 662
A Jackson 656
Abbie C 660a
Abigail 540
Abigail E Jameson
(w. Jonathan T)
Amos 227, 283,
564b, 660a, 686
Amos Jr. 656, 686
Ann 557, 656, 686
Arius Newton 636b
Augustus E 659
Betsey 656
Betsey (w. Ezekiel)
Betsey Duncan (w.
Jonathan)
Bettie 656
"Bub" Sam 656
Carl M 660a
Catharine 444a
Charlotte Graff 686
Charlotte M 636b
Clara M 660a
Clarissa (w. James H)
D 636b
D H 636b, 656
Daniel 695
Daniel H 296
Daniel U 636b, see
errata
- Daniel W 187, 189,
190, 284
Daniel Wayland
636b, 643, see errata
- David L 293
Devol 660a
Diarra A 656
Diamia Cassady
(3rd w. Samuel)
Dudley 284, 686
Edith Webster 686
Eliah 306
Eliza 655
Eliza Brooks 686
Elizabeth (w. John
H)
Elvira Torner (w.
Joseph R)
Emily Brown (w.
John J)
Emma 656
Enoch 655, 662
Esquire 444a
Ezekiel 656, 660
family 655
Fannie 444a
Fay 660a
Franklin C 636b
Freeman 643
Furman J 636b
Furman Victor 660a
G 656
George 299, 444a,
656
George W 686
H James 656
H M 656
Hannah 639, 656
Hannah Hoff
(John Jr.)
Harriet 444a
Hattie R 636b
Henry 306, 686
Capt. Henry 218,
223
Dr. Henry 444a
Ida Sophia 660a
Isabel 571
Israel 165
J H 369, 659
J W 636b
Jacob 306
James 226, 276
James H 444a
Jane 656
Dr. John 655, 656
John 660, 662
John Ely 284
John Jr. 636b, 655,
656, 657
John Sr. 427
John H 444a, 656
John J 636b
John W 656
John Wesley 660a
Jonathan 656, 657,
660
Jonathan Titus
660a
Joseph 660a
Joseph R 636b, 659
L A Wakefield (w.
Daniel Wayland)
L P 656
Lottie 656
Louisa 444a, 638
Lucinda 636b
Lucinda Dye (w.
Samuel)
Lucretia Bull (w.
Morgan I)
M 423
Marcellus 444a
Maria Petty (w. A Jackson) 656
Maria 569
Marie Taylor (w.
Amos)
Martin L P 660a
Mary 444a, 656, 686
Mary E Clogston
(w. D. D. Carle)
Mary H 570
Mary S 735
Minor M 284
Mophet 655, 663
Morgan 283
Morgan I 636b
Nancy 656
Newton 663
P C 656
Patience 656
Perlina Spencer 686 Petty (w. A Jackson)
Polly 656
Ross N 284, 658
S A 656
S P 284
Sallie 656

- Samuel 347, 444a, 636b, 656, 658
 Samuel Jr. 655
 Samuel Sr. 636b
 Sanford 293, 296
 Sarah (w. George)
 Sarah Campbell (w. Ross N)
 Sarah E 636b
 Sarah E Pepper (w. Augustus E)
 Sarah Snyder (w. George)
 Sereno 296
 Sherman Edwin 660a
 Sophia 656
 Sophia (w. Amos Jr.)
 Susan 655
 Susan (w. Samuel)
 Thomas 284, 578, 655, 660a
 Thomas M 636b
 W W 151
 William 299, 444a
 William A 656
 William Chase 636b
 W Wirt 636b
- DYER
 Augustus 164
 Charles 322
 John 322
 Lucy A 561
 Samuel 322
 Thomas 299
 William 140
- Dye's Settlement 386
- DYSON
 Mrs. Deborah Dickerson 594
- EAGLER
 C J 219
 John 681
- EAGLES
 Chas. J 218
- EAKINS
 James 322
- EARL
 Rev. E M 520, 632, 729
 Gilbert 488
 Hannah 488
 James 216
 Sarah 488
 William 488
- EARLEY
 John 290
- EARLY
 Gen. 170, 171, 172, 205
 George Washington 284
 Israel 600
 James 284
 John Alexander 284
 John Morris 284
 Thomas 284
 William 284
 William Thomas 284
- Earthquakes 425-6
- Earthworks, Capitolium 435
- Earthworks 50, 435, 437, 441, 498-9, 705 and see Belpre, Capitolium, forts, furnaces, prehistoric, Quadranaou, Sacra Via, Town
- EASTHAM
 Charlotte 601
 Henry 146, 150
 family 527
 Lucy 530
 Perley 519
- EASTHORN
 James P 276
 John J 276
- EASTON
 Daniel 276
- EATON
 Mr. 542
 Eliza Danielson (w. William)
 Mrs. Elizabeth Sef-fens 647
 John W 150, 180, 226, 299
 Rev. TC 385, 520
 William 142, 276
 Eaton, Ohio 72
- EBINGER
 Catharine Aben-schan (w. Jacob)
 J 150
 Jacob 735
 & Killingner 737
- ECHALBURY
 Mrs. Lucy D Reed 560
- ECHOLS
 S T 699
- ECKMAN
 Wm H 216
- Eclectic Medical Col-lege 564, 565
- Eclectic School 673
- EDDLSTON
 Hugh B 296
 John C 296
- EDDY
 Alfred 280, 698
 Alphaus 276
 Dr. CW 411
 David 276
 Erastus 536
 Going 276
 Going, Jr. 276
 Henry 698
 William 276
- EDELSTON
 John 159
- EDGAR
 Daniel 555
 Ellen 555
- EDGARTON
 Luther, see errata
- EDGE
 Capt. 159
 Aaron 365
 Benjamin Ellis 310
 John, see errata
- EDGERTON
 Austin 226, 695
 John 150, 206, 226, 445, 636
 Luther 310, 347, 367, 427-8, 445, 575, 695, see errata
 William H 310
- EDGILL
 John 276, see errata
- EDGINGTON
 Mr. 601
- Edict of Nantes 566
- EDMENDSON
 Nancy 570
- EDMISTON
 Maj. Wm. L 227
- EDMONDS
 John 276, 596
 Martha 596
 Robert 276
 William 276
- Education Purposes
 Land for -- See Section 16 & 29
- EDWARDS
 Alice 571
 Amanda E 702
 Ann Jeffre (w. John)
 Ann Weber (w. Richard)
 Arminia Hooper (w. Baswell)
 B W 702
 Baswell W 702
 Benjamin 310
 Benj. F 571
 Benjamin R 290
 Benson B 702
 Charles 702
 David 139, 701
 Dennis 571
 Dennise 310
 Elizabeth 702
 H B 542
 Harriet 702
 James 694, 702
 Jane 571
 John 280, 571, 694
 John Jr. 694
 Rev. Joseph 644
 Rev. ML 520
 Margaret A 702
 Maria Weber (w. John Jr.)
 Mary 571, 701
 Mary Ann 694
 Mary B 702
 Mary E Workman (w. Robert)
 Michael 164
 Minerva J 702
 Nancy J 702
 Nancy E Need (w. Benjamin)
 Priscilla 701
 Priscilla L 702
 Rachel E 702
 Rachel Riggs (w. David)
 Rebecca 702
 Richard 280, 694
 Robert 571
 Samuel 290
 Sarah L 702
 Susan 694
 Wm. A W 702
- EDYWELL
 E B 542
- ELLIS
 Capt. Arthur D 157, 163, 195-6, 249
 Arthur D 303
 G H 385, see errata
 J M 226, 370, 382
- ELLS
 G H 385, see errata
- ELFAN
 Matilda 598
- ELFAW
 Lugenius 284
- EGGLESTON
 Maj. Berth B 186
 Sarah 737
- EIFLER
 Charles 284
 Jacob 284
 Mary E 686
- Eight Acre Lots 54
- Eight Mile 563, 564, 565, 570, 655
- Eight Mile Run 567, 568
- EILLER
 J 150
- EISNACH
 Philip 287
- EKEY
 Lewis Milton 287
- EKHOLTZ
 Dr. 707
- Elba 676, 677
- ELDER
 James 701
 John Sr. 701
 John Sr. 701
 Margaret 701
 Sarah Rinard (w. James)
- ELDRIDGE
 Sylvanus 57
 Wm. 723
- Elections 515, 533, 593, 605, 670, 699, 706
- Electric Light Co., Marietta 44
- Elevated Square 110
- Elk Run 658
- ELLEFORD
 William 299
- ELLENWOOD
 Augustus 649
 B 519
 Benjamin 649
 Benjamin Jr. 649
 Corinda 649
 Cynthia 649
 Cynthia A 649
 Daniel 503, 519, 649
 Delia F 649
 Dudley H 270
 Elizabeth A Paulley (w. Harvey B)
 Ella F 649
 Flora Belle 649, 716a
 Harvey B 649
 Horace D 649
 Ida E 649
 J G 149
 Kemper D 649
 Lowell W 132, 649
 Lucy Dunham (w. Sylvester)
 Milton 649
 Milton E 649
 Orville O 649
 Rowena R 649
 S 519
 Samuel 649
 Samuel E 649
 Samuel S 649
 Sophronia Needham (w. Milton)
 Sylvester 649
- ELLIFRITZ
 family 693
 G 150
 George W 281
 James P 280
- ELLIOT
 Charles E 585
 John 585
 Joseph 585
 Mary E 585
 Rebecca 585
 Susan Blake (w. Joseph)
- ELLIOTT
 Ambrose 543
 Bro. 602
 John 139
 Joseph 581, 588
 Mrs. J oseph 684
 Matilda 645
 Richard 57
- ELLIS
 Dr. 564, 564c, 565
- Albert 268
 Alexander M 268
 Alonzo 329
 Asbury F 329
 Aurelia 594
 Aurelius 593, 594
 Aurelius Jr. 594
 Benjamin 139, 594
 Bertha 594
 Charles C 268
 Charles D 594
 Clarissa Ankrom (w. William Ma-gee)
 David F 272
 Diana 594
 E W 542
 Eleanor Dickerson (w. Silas)
 Elizabeth 594
 Elizabeth O 496
 Esther 496
 Ethan G 268
 Evan 594
 Eveline Morgan (w. Aurelius)
 Henry 594
 Capt. Ira 377
 James 1268
 John J 281
 John R 496
 John W 268
 Lafayette 594
 Leander 594
 Lewis H 272
 Lindley F 329
 Lizzie 564c
 Martin 594
 Mary 594
 Minerva 594
 Paulina 594
 Pierson 329
 Rebecca 573, 594
 Reuben 728
 Reuben H 268
 Richard 329
 Rufus 594
 Rufus Jr. 594
 Ruth 594
 Ruth Ingalls (w. Rufus)
 Sabra 594
 Sarah 594
 Silas 594
 Solon 594
 Summer 180 306
 William 603
 William Magee 594
- ELLISON
 675, 681
 Rev. E 600
 Edward 542
 Isabella 486
- ELROD
 James 276
- ELSON
 James 697
 Lewis, see errata
 Mahala 697
- ELSTON
 George E & Co. 372
 George T 617
 Col. J C Jr. 166, 196, 482
 Lewis 310, see errata
- Sarah Mills (w. Col J C Jr.)
- ELWELL
 James 138
 Oscar N 649
- Embargo Act (1807)
 376-7, 618
- EMERSON
 A sa 138
 Caleb 134, 142, 346, 368, 386, 394, 397, 398, 413, 414, 415, 430, 433, 442, 443, 513, 516, 636
 Elizabeth Smith 636
 Deacon Ephraim 385
 Ezekial 542
 Luke 139
 Mary Dana (w. Ca-leb)
 Sarah 529
 Wm. Dana 123, 414
- EMERY
 Alice 596
 Allen 596
 Catharine Kraft (w. Conrad)
 Conrad 596
 Elizabeth 596
 George 602
 Ira 596
 John 596, 600
 Laura 596, 601
 Lucy 478, 479
 Margaret 596
 Mary 596
- Mary Hays (w. John)
 Nathan 519
- EMGE
 Adam 318
 Emigrants (1788-90) 57-9
 E m m a G r a h a m (w. ammer) 155
- EMMITT
 TA 473
- EMMITTS
 475
- EMMONS
 D R 723
- EMORY
 Gen. 170
- ENGELHARDT
 Rev. 589
- ENGLE
 Richard 329
- ENGLEHARDT
 Rev. G F 616
- ENGLEHART
 Peter 600
- ENGLER
 William 561
- ENGLISH
 Gideon 329
 James 387
 English Claim 13-4, 28, 30-1
- ENOCHS
 A my 706
 John 290
- EOFF
 see errata
- EOFFLE
 see errata
- Hiram 276
 Lander 276
 Marion 277
 Sardine 276
- Epidemics 89, 117, 119, 381, 406, 408, 416, 426-8, 505, 513, 527, 614, 625, 641, 648, 679, 730
- Episcopal Church
 387, 388, 492
- Episcopal Church (Marietta) in C.W.
 174
- EPLER
 Frederick 709
 William 287, 709
- EPPAK
 Father Magnus 632
- ERB
 John 287
- ERHOM
 Henry 488
- ERWIN
 Rev. CS 688
 Deborah 427
- ESKEY
 Samuel S 265
- ESPENSCHIED
 Daniel, see errata
- ESSCHENFELD
 Rev. F 562, 589
- ESSEX
 G W 211
- ESSMAN
 Henry 306
- ETHELL
 Mrs. Mary W Wood 555
- ETWIN
 Rev. John 19
- ETZ
 C H 423
- EVANS
 Mrs. 428
 Augusta 716a
 Chas. E 262, 712
 Cynthia G 712
 David 268
 David E 262, 712
 Prof. Evan W 399, 402, 446
 Harriet E 712
 Jane 596
 Jeremiah 488
 John F 277
 L G 299
 MVB 519
 Simeon 262, 712
 Violet 596
- EVELYN
 Frederick 671
- EVERELL
 Gen. 159
- EVERETT
 Mr. 575
 David 413
 Rev. Ebenezer 587
 Edward 101
 Phoebe 684
- EVERLEIGH
 E 227
- EVERLY
 Elizabeth 657
 Frederick 299
- EVILSISER
 see errata
- Jonathan 284, see errata
- Josiah 284, see errata
- Samuel Hunt 284, see errata
- EWART
 Frances 596
 Gear & Ewart 129-30, 493
- Grace Dana (w. Judge Thomas)
 JW 601
 Jerusha (w. Judge Thomas)
 Mary Cochran (w. Robert Kells)
 Robert Kells 126, 388a
 & Shaw 129, 130, 496c
 & Sibley 469, 496d
 Judge Thomas W 126-31, 145, 240, 254, 347, 387, 388a, 388b, 395, 446, 469, 601
- EWELL
 David 711, 719, 726
 David's Division 237
- EWING
 Archibald 735
 Catharine (w. Archibald) see Fay
 George 432, 534, 541, 548
 Gen. Hugh 130, 224
 MB 183
 Marquis 327
 Thomas 85, 432, 534, 548, 719-0
 W A 183
 Wm. R 183
- Exchange Bank 374
- Exchange Oil Com-pany 655
- EKELL
 Rev. J J 600
- Explosion of Steam-boat 377-8, 647
- EYCK
 Capt. Henry Ten 418
- Factories see mills
- FAGAN
 Gen. 169, 221, 222
- FAIRBANKS
 Cornelius 268
- FAIRCHILD
 Hiram 731, 733
 Major 58
 Polly 731
- FAIRES
 Cyreneus B 272
 Edward G 272
- Faires House 724
- Fairfield Twp. 109, 647, 725-6
- FAIRHURST
 Jeremiah 146
- FAIRLAM
 Samuel 413
 "Fair Play" 442
- Fairs, County 349
- Fairview Christian Church 601
- FALCON
 Eleanor 506
- FALKNER
 CA 371
- Fallen Timbers, Bat-tle of 12, 86
- Famine 56, 88-9, 508
- FANTZ
 Frederick 315, see errata
- FARBORN
 Mary 595
- FARAN
 527
- FARBELL
 John 561
- FAREWELL
 Jonathan 58, 67
- FARGO
 Mr. 370
- FARIES
 George 329
- FARIS
 Samuel 319
- FARLEY
 Dr. 358
 Gen. 406
 George 270, 296
 George Jr. 270
- Isaac 287
 John 311
 John W 296
 Pearson 311
 Sarah 599
 Thomas 558, 588
 Dr. Thomas 571, 358, 406, 531, 545
 William 319
- FARLEYS
 Kins 319
- FARMER
 Jacob 58
 James 318
 John 257
 Thomas 257
- Farmers' Castle 56, 70, 71, 77, 81, 83, 365, 500, 502, 504, 505, 509, 511, 512a, 608, 610
- Farmers' Club 522, 619
- FARNSWORTH
 A 694
 Adaline M Riggs (w. A) 694
 Elizabeth 709
 Emeline Devol (w. John C)
 family 693
 Frank 559
 H 151
 Henry 281
 J C 535
 John C 281, 559
 Joseph 281
 Samuel 699
 Samuel S 281
 Simeon 559
 Thomas D 281
 William 559
- FARQUHAR
 E C 561
- FARRER
 Ephraim H 413
- FARRIS
 Rev. J M 576
 John V 26, 729
 Sarah Goddard (w. John V)
 Rev. William 733
- FARRISH
 Ann Eliza Leach (w. Thomas L)
 Joseph Leach 646
 Thomas L 646
 Tute M 646
 Virginia Ann 646
- FARSON
 Anna McTaggart (2nd w. J M)
 Catharine Staggs (1st w. J M)
 J M 498, 519, 522, 528
 FAST
 F D 542
- FAUTZ
 Frederick, see errata
- FAY
 Bula S 735
 Caroline Hill (1st w. Levi L)
 Catharine 110, 618, 662, 735
 Elizabeth 735
 Elizabeth Lankton (w. William)
 Eunice S 735
 Rev. Levi Lankton 389, 562, 564a, 565, 658, 661, 688-9, 735
 Marie Brigham (w. Solomon)
 Minerva Bachelor (2nd w. Levi L)
 Solomon P 735
 W A 382
 William 735
 William E 403
- FEARING
 Gen. Benjamin Dana 133, 154, 162, 165-6, 170, 217, 219, 221-6, 242, 244, 251, 296, 378, 493-5
 Betsey 348
 Cynthia Rouse (w. Paul)
 Eliza M 548b
 Eliza Dana (w. Henry) 176, 240
 537 Florence Elizabeth 548b
 Francis D 296

- Henry 120, 148,
154, 156, 347, 349,
50, 358, 383, 395,
488, 493
Jesse 548b
Julia Hill (w.
Randolph)
Lucy Willis 120
Mary Nye (w. Noah)
Mattie 396
Noah 58, 116, 530-1
Paul 17, 54, 93, 98,
106, 116-7, 119-0,
168b, 338-9, 348,
358, 361, 363, 372-
3, 393-4, 426, 433,
435-6, 442, 475,
488-9, 500, 502,
611-2, 666-7, 683
Randolph 548b,
549, 605, 613, 615
Shepard R 548b
Silas 120
Fearing Religious Society 688
Fearing Twp. 109, 683
FEATHERSTON
John 539
Susanna 551
Thomas 538, 540
Featherston Mill 533, 539
Federal Bottom 532, 537
Federal Creek 666, 724
FEITT
Rev. J C or C J 542,
575, 661
FELDER
Charles H 585
David 585, 588
Emma Matz (w.
Frederick)
Frederick 585, 589
Henry 315
Michael 589
Rebecca Elliot (w.
David)
FELDNOR
Samuel 315
FELL
C G 369
John C 303
Capt. John C 150,
206, 369
FELTON
Conrad 290, 603
Isaac 287
FENN
Benjamin 315
FERGUSON
673
Abner 139
Anderson 716
Andrew 314
Bazil 567, 577
Brothers 724
Columbia 125
Daniel 314
David 669, 670
Diana 601
Grace 576
H C 262
James 226, 369,
565, 567, 577, see
errata
James S 277
John 277
Julia 614
Lucy 567
Mary 567
Matilda 570
Noah Wilson 303
Ruth 691
T E 670
Thomas 277, 565,
567, 568, 574
Ferguson's Landing
572
FERIN
Joseph 446
FERRIL
Charles 319
FERRILL
family 641
FERRIN
Davis 621
Eliza Davis (w.
Davis)
Liman 621
Ferry 502, 612, 684a
Fiddler Tradition 607
FIELD
Joseph 299, 303
Theodore G 306
FIELDS
Abdallah 732
Amanda 732
Arthur 732
Benoni 732
Francis E 732
George W 732
Jesse 732
Joseph 732
Joshua R G 732
Maria 732
Martha 732
Mary 732
Mary J Richards (w.
Richard)
R W (negro) 733
Richard W 732
Ruth 732
Sarah L 732
Theo. G 146, 177
Thornton 732
Fifteen 663
Fifteen Creek 654, 658, 705, 709
FILE
Henry, see errata
FILLER
W C 519
FILLEY
Buel 1277
FILLMORE
731
Fillmore P. O. 732
FINCH
A Fred W 636
C M 193
Calvin 634, 636
Charles 636
Darius 296, 636
Dennis A 150
Eliza Jones (w. William W)
Ezekiel 635, 636
Harris 636
Henry 319
Henry C 366
Lewis J 319, 636
Lucy Skipton (w.
Lewis)
Morris 139, 636
Reuben 636
Sabra Thompson
(w. Henry C)
Samantha 636
Sarah 636
Sarah Cunningham
(w. Calvin)
William W 319, 636
FINDLEY
Col. James 135
FINDLY
Dr. Samuel (D.D.) 716 FINLAY
& Company 368
FINLEY
Alice C Brown (w.
Rev. Theodore G)
John 58
Dr. Samuel 418
Rev. Theodore G
542, 554, 555
FINNEY
Elizabeth 553
W C 391
Fire Co., Defiance
436 Fire Co., Riverside
436 Fire, First in Palmer
Twp. 667
Fire, 1875/Marietta
51 fn
Fire engine, Silsby steam 436
Fire engine, the Wave 436
First birth 358
First death 357, 443-4, 508
First marriage 358
FISE
W 151
FISH
607
Abner 512, 513, 539
Daniel 730
David 265, 270
Rev. Edward F 400
H C 534, 544
James 319, 327
Jeremiah 218
S H 268
Timothy 319
William 319
FISHBACK
John 139
FISHER
221, 222
Capt. 218
Lt. Col. 137, 711
Amos 508, 517
Andrew 503, 519,
522
Catharine 668
Col. Daniel 503, 527
Daniel 508
Deborah A 500, 503
E S 195
E T 196
Elizabeth 503
Gustavus 508
Hannah 503
Henry 277
Hezekiah 714
Huldah 517
John 525, 714
Joseph 139, 714
Joshua G 322
Maria 504
Mrs. Mary 527
Mary Cousins (w.
Thomas)
Polly Gray (w.
William)
Richard 100, 582, 714
Samuel 139
Sarah 714
Seth 503
Theodoric 508
Thomas 146, 315,
714
Thomas Sr. 714
William 503, 549
Fishtown 716, 726, 728-0
FITCH
Capt. 162
C C 422
FITCHEN
Christiana 659
FITZGERALD
Garret 272
FLACK
Mr. 601
FLADUNG
Father E L 629, 632
FLAGG
Catharine 141
Cynthia 141
Edmund B 414
Edna P 141
Eliza Ann Ciser (w.
Gershom)
Gersham 58, 141,
362, see errata
Capt. James 137-9,
141
John 536
Luther 322, see er-
rata
Margaret Ciser (w.
Gershom)
Mary E 141
Sarah 141
Sarah Corner (w.
Capt. James)
Sarah Corner (w.
Thomas P)
Susan 141, 737
T P 133
Thomas P 139, 141
Valeria Hays (w.
William C)
William 257
William C 139, 141
FLANAGAN
James H 290
Thomas J 290
FLANDERS
689
Alden 315
Augustus 273
Enos 273
G T 542
Rev. G T 385
Rev. George 520
513
Counree O 265
George 146, 265
Thomas 599, 600
FLOYD
John B (Sec. of War) 145, 229
Foat Iron Square 367, 468
Flax Growing 522
FLECK
George 563
J A 561
FLEECHART
Joshua 77, 83-4,
363, 510
FLEICHER
Mr. 389
FLEMING
222, 223, 710
Aaron 322
Agnes 669
Andrew 58
Aride 58
D H 718
David 322, 715
David F 716
Emma 718
Dr. George W 663
Hannah 718
Isabelle 715
J C 715
James 221, 262, 715
Jane 715
Jane Colvell (w.
John)
Janette 651
Jesse 662
John 715
Leander 2715
Margaret 715
Margaret Breckenridge (w. James)
Margaret Breckenridge (w. Thomas)
Mary 715
P 368
Porter 290
Robert 715
Robert H 262
Capt. Robt. H 218,
222
Sarah 715
Sophia 716
Thomas 664, 715,
717
William 643, 649,
718
FLEMMING
Jesse 695
Joseph 695
Nancy Williams (w.
Peter) Nellie Collins (w.
Jesse)
Peter 695
Thomas 695
William 228, 696
FLESHER
Adam 299
FLETCHER
Mrs. 392
Amasa S 265
Catharine Warth
(w. Joseph)
Daniel 286
Henry H 265
John V 265
Joseph 363
Sherabiah 503, 507
Wesley T 322
FLICK
William 488
FLINT
Daniel 700, 702, 704
David D 290
Hezekiah 48, 363,
see errata
Jacob 704
James 290
Loretta 694
O F 602
Porter 664, 700,
702, 704
Royal 90
Timothy 49
Flint's Mill 702
Floating Mills 56,
501-2, 512, 533,
537-8, 612, 617
Floods 423-5, 565,
572, 703
FLOOD
Chas. B 414, 416, 430 Florida, West (Mississippi) 27, 449-
50, 637
FLOWER
Martha 631
Mary 502
FLOWERS
513
Counree O 265
George 146, 265
Thomas 599, 600
FLOYD
John B (Sec. of War) 145, 229
FOHL
John 327
FOLGER
J C 423
FOLLETT
Mr. 427
Abbie M Bailey
(2nd w. M D)
Dr. Alfred 492
Alfred Dewey 132, 492
Austin W 492
Judge Charles 492
George 492
Harriet Shipman
(1st w. M D)
John A 206
John Fassett 403,
491-2
Martin Dewey 129-
30, 142, 312, 370-1,
396, 396a, 421,
471, 491-2
FOOT
233
FORANCE
George 277
FORBES
Ansel 715
L R 146
Leander 265
Lydia (w. Ansel)
Sarah 715
Rev. Samuel 576
FORD
Mrs. (Miss Loring)
504
A daline 628b
Ambrose A 139
Ammon 623
Anna 717
Ansel B 623
Betsey Deming (w.
Judah)
C D 717
Charles 623
Charlotte G 623
Daniel 327, 623
Dianna 628a
Dora 138
Douglas Ammon
628b
Edward 623
Eliza J 623
Eliza Price (w.
John)
family 630
Frank 623
Fred 623
Deacon George. H
391
Giles 623
Giles Harry 623, 632
Hannah Parke (w.
Ammon)
Hattie 623
Horatio 718
Isaiah N 623
John 623
Joseph 623
Judah 623, 625,
628b
Jude 631
Rev. L C 632
Laura 623
Louisa Morris (w.
Daniel)
Lucien 623
Lucy 623, 728
Mrs. Lucy 625
Lucy Deming (w.
Ansel B)
Margaret 623
Margaret Ross (w.
Seth)
Mary 623
Mira 623
Myron 623
Nelson 716
Roena 631
Romana B 623
Sarah 623
Sarah Ann (w.
Judah)
Sarah L 623
Seth 623
Soney 134
William 58, 622,
623, 628a, 631
William Jr. 58, 87,
544
FORDICE
Stanton 138
FOREST
Gen. 207, 214
Andrew 284
Joseph 553
FORESTER
Christian 206
FORSHEY
Thomas 709
Fort Baldwin 490
Fort Defiance 86
Fort Detroit 135-6
Fort Finney 15, 24-5,
33, 59, 62, 446
Fort Frye 71, 73-4, 531
Fort Gower 18
Fort Greenville,
16, 68, 133
Fort Harmer 22-6,
33, 47-8, 48a, 51-3,
60-2, 65, 69-0, 73-
5, 77, 79, 88, 117,
356-7, 361-3, 392,
419, 466-7, 505-6
Fort Harmer, Treaty
16, 508
Fort Harris 490
Fort Jefferson 72
Fort Laurens 22
Fort Meigs 142-3
Fort McIntosh,
Treaty 15, 21, 23-
5, 59, 61
Fort Pickawillany 16
Fort Pike 23
Fort Recovery 86
Fort Stanwix, Treaty
14, 59
Fort Washington 65,
72, 78, 419, 532
Fort Wayne 86
Forts, the earthworks 441
FORTHNER
John 685
FORTMAN
Frank 206
FOSTER
Miss 503
Albert 284
Archibald 284
Eliza Coyle (w.
James)
Elizabeth 568
Ephraim 141
Ephraim Sr. 428
George 284
Ira L 139
James 284, 639
John 284, 639
Joseph 284
Leonard 427
Mary 502
Matilda 693
Paul 58
Peregrine 502, 516,
517, 524, 525, 526
Polly 566, see errata
Sarah 141
Theodore 526
Mrs. Vestie S Mason 558
Widow 503
William 265
Zadoc 503
Foster's Tavern 502
FOUGERES
Louis 146, 181, 182,
227
FOULKE
W m N 146
Foundries, see mills
FOURACKER
Douglas W 318
Levi James 318
Louis McK 318
Richard 318
FOURACRE
Charles W 277
FOURAKER
Caroline 560
Caroline (w. Capt.
Richard)
Douglas W 560
Eliza J 560
Elizabeth 560
George B 277
Levi J 218, 251, 560
Lewis K 560
Martha E 560
Capt. Richard 218,
221, 251, 560
Richard 560
Fourth of July 116,
356-7, 447
FOUTS
Mrs. Electa A Stull
553
J W 247, 250, 253,
544
John W 322
Maj. John W 210,
215
FOWLE
J W 519
POWER
Adj. 215
L R 314
Lester R 329
Milton D 720
Mrs. S Perkins 240
Susan James 721
FOX
Abasalom 519
Anna 702
Arthur 599
Bell 702
C 603
Catherine 702
Charles 599
Cora 599
Hannah 665
J W 544
Jacob 599, 603
James 290, 702
Jane 702
Jane Maginnis (w.
William)
John 702
Joseph 138
Maggie 702
Margaret Mc-Kinney 702 (w.
James)
Mary 599, 702
Patrick 702
Rosa Roth (w. Jacob)
Sarah 595, 702
Thomas 702
William 702
Fox Settlement 702
FRAMPTON
S C 519
FRANCE
George W 268
John W 268
William H 268
FRANCIS
A J 311
Allen 570
Amanda 570
Ann 570
Ann (w. Edward Sr.)
B 281
Edward 570
Edward Jr. 570
Elijah 383
Jackson 570
Lee 688
Lester 570
Sophia 570
Stephen 311
Susan 570
FRANKEN-
BERGER
John C 186
FRANKLIN
Gen. 181, 237
Benjamin 17, 418,
455, 456, 550, 608
FRANKS
John 139
Lafayette 303
Owen 226, 371, 372,
395, 422
Franks Foundry 371
FRARY
Henry A 186
FRASER
Christiana McKinsey (w. William)
William 713
FREE
Sarah 571
FREEZER
Adam 284
Amos 265
Evan 270
Mary 573
FREEZER
C F 731
Christina (w. William)
Cornelius T 130
George B 277
James 643
Rev. John 728
W H 155
William 643
FREEZ
Lewisy 138
FREE
Mrs. 682
Free Thinkers 537 FREED
Adam 639
Adams A 639
Benjamin 639
Dennis F 639
Lizzie C 639
Margaret M 639
Margaret Oliver
Bradshaw (w.
Adam)
Martha J 639
Mary A 639
Rebecca 639
Sarah E 639
Susan A 631
FREEMAN
Davis 621
Freewill Baptist 587
FREIDRICH
Rev. C G 562
Rev. G 388
FREMONT
Gen. 178, 179, 186,
207, 603
FRENCH
Mrs. 692
Charles 691, 692
Chas. H 197
Columbus 319
Electa 650
Ezra 287
Isaac 650-1
Mansfield 395, 397
Mrs. Samuel 691
French Arrivals 57
French Claim 13

- French Emigrants
FRERE
 Dr. Jabez393
FREY
 William Henry277
FREYGANY
 Dr. J.E.388
FRIEDEL
 Andrew311
FRIEND
 Samuel643
Friends, Society of (Wesley Twp.)723
FRIENFSTICK
 Rev. E.A.562
FRIGATE
 Jeremiah139
FRISBY
 Charles L.299
 Richard299
FRITZE
 Mr.389
FROOCHER
 Walter319, see errata
FROST
 Mr.731
 Charles265
 Clarissa557
 Elam134
 Eliza557
 Ephraim139
 Louisiana557
 Nancy557
 Nancy Allison (w. Stephen)557
 Robert557
 Rosetta557
 Samuel557
 Stephen557
 Stephen Jr.557
FROTHINGHAM
 Peter58
Fruit Trees 55, 514, 606, 610
FRY
 B.S.210, 230, 231
 Clara C.564c
 Eva H.564c
 Ezekiel522
 George V.198
 Rev. George V.564c, 587
 George Vincent Jr. 564c
 J.D.519
 James Melancthon 564c
 James B.235
 Josephine Wintrose (w. Geo. V.Jr.)
 Nancy J. (w. Geo. V.)
 Rev. V.G.389
 William 603, 630
 William Everett277
FRYE
 Rev. 562
 G.L.688
 George N.268
 Harley E.556
 Henry C.556
 James C.268
 John W.556, 561
 Joseph58
 Joseph Jr.556
 Joseph Sr.556
 Joseph W.536, 541, 546, 556
 Lucy Coburn (w. Joseph W.)
 Malinda Mason (w. John W.)
 Margaret595
 Nellie M.556
 Rhoda556
 Sallie Becker (w. Joseph Sr.)
 Sarah556
FRYMAN
 Alexander281
 Isaac290
FULCHER
 Mrs. Elizabeth643
FULHAM
 John58
FULK
 Barbara657
FULLER
 Gen.207, 209, 212
 Mr.448, 603, 604
 Mrs.176, 581
 Adeline608
 Augusta507
 Charles736, 737
 Elizabeth659
 Ira293
 Isaac226
 J.M.423, 469
 Joseph385
 Lyman B.478a
 Margaret476
 Marietta736
 Nancy (w. Charles) Oliver57
 Orinda612
 Pauline583
 Phoebe174
 Resolved616, 683
 Sarah Spaulding (w. Lyman B.)
 Seth503
 Dr. Shubel411
 Susanna448
 Timothy476
FULLERTON
 Jeanette637
FULLMER
 Wm. H.603
FULMER
 Jacob290
FULTON
 Mr.587
 Mrs.589
 David287
 Hattie737
 Jane568
 & Mizer371
 Joanna589
 John589
 Louisa Jackson581
 Margaret589
 Robert43, 315, 588
 Samuel218, 222, 223, 580, 581, see errata
 William27
 Fultonburgh375
 Funerals701
FURFE
 Rev. James729
FURGASON
 James347, 369, see errata
Furnaces (ancient) 705
FUSTLAY
 58
GABLE
 Solomon720
GADD
 Nancy570
GADDLE
 Jacob306, see errata
GAGE
 Abner716b
 Alice722
 A.L.722
 Daniel539
 Mrs. F.357
 Flora F.728
 Francis Dana Barker (w. James L.)
 (Aunt Fanny Gage, poet) 175, 357, 611
 George149, 728
 Horace D.222, 722, 728
 Jay722
 John A.728
 Joseph H.728, 730
 Lena722
 Lucy722
 Margaret Josephine Coady (w. Horace D.)
 Mary A.720
 Mary Ann673
 Mary A. Cook (w. Joseph H.)
 May722
 Myron728
 Polly727
 Ransom S.722
 William L.391
Gage, Daniel's Daughters 539
GAINES
 Gen.137, 141
 "Gains" 405
GALBRAITH
 Alex.149
 Archibald266
 James266
 John265
GALBREATH
 Rev. M.R.576
 Wm. H.632
GALE
 Mr.703
 Ada570
 Alcinda570
 Dr. Bernard570
 Dr. C.T.565
 Constantine570
 Ellen570
 Dr. George570, 573, 579, 693
 Nicholas570
 Rachel570
GALER
 Andrew685
 Daniel685
GALLAGHER
 Col.160
 James272
GALLAHER
 Patrick272
GALLANT
 Matthew 85, 534, 541, 687
GALLATIN
 A.L.10
 Gallia Academy132
Gallipolia 17, 42, 57, 87, 92, 407
GALLISSONIERE
 Marquis de la 17
GALLOWAY
 Maj. James136
 T.M.661
GALOR
 Andrew581
GAMBLE
 Amos L.732
 Camby732
 Elizabeth Corns (w. William)
 Harley E.732
 Joseph732
 Randolph E.732
 Reese732
 Sarah E. Nist (w. William J.)
 Walter732
 William732
 William J. Jr.732
GAMELIN
 62 in GANDEE
 George W.528
 Dr. James7, 528
 Maria Smith (w. James)
 Mary A.528
GANET
 Andrew C.290
GAHO
 Jacob188, 311, 577
 John M.577
GARD
 Adaline Gage Duns Moor (w. Hiram)
 Chas. Edgar 114, 716a
 Clara716
 Cornelius 666, 667, 716a
 Daniel Hosmer716a
 David 666-7, 671-2, 716a, see errata
 Dudley673
 Edward716a
 Edward Duns Moor 716a
 Eleanora673
 Ella716a
 Ella E. Roder (w. Daniel Hosmer)
 Flora Bell Ellenwood (w. Hiel Abner)
 Grace A. dena716a
 Helen Josephine 716a, 716b
 Hiel Abner 649, 716a
 Hiram 668, 670, 671, 673, 716, 716a, 716b
 Isaac716a
 James667
 James H.314, 670, 716a
 Jane Breckenridge (w. Edward) Jeremiah716a
 Lucy716a
 Maria667, 716a
 Martha Ataline 716a
 Martha Jane 716a, 716b
 Mary (w. Cornelius) 716a
 Mary Hiett (w. David)
 Mary Melissa 650, 716a
 Michael672, 719
 Nathan673
 Nancy Davis (w. Timothy)
 Onis Brent716a
 Orlo Lark716a
 Polly716a
 Rachel Broadwell (w. Chas. Edgar)
 Rowena667, 716a
 Ruth G. Palmer (w. James H.)
 Samuel716a
 Sophia 666, 667, 716a
 Timothy667, 716a
 Timothy Jr.716a
 Wordsworth716a
GARDNER
 Mrs.608
 Dr. James B.413
GARDNER
 Darwin E.27, 123, 349, 372, 488
 Elizabeth P. Putnam (w. Darwin E.)
 James B.516
 John64-5, 531
 Mary557
 Sarah B. Earl (w. William)
 Sarah Williams (w. Darwin E.)
 William123
GARDZ
 A.H.151
GAREL
 Dudley D.303
 Irenia A.303
GARFIELD
 Gen.189, 196, 230
 James A.18, 594
GARLAND
 Rev. E.632
GARNER
 James139
 Peter M.431, 734
GARNET
 Mrs.427
GARNETT
 Thomas303
GARRARD
 Col.162, 192, 194
GARRETT
 Capt. Thomas 218, 221
 William678
GARRISON
 Robert491
 Rodney S.311
 Sarah Frances Burch (w. Robert Wm. Lloyd) 145
 James138
Gas Works, Marietta 371
GATCHETT
 John Barnes 287, see errata
GATES
 Capt.503
 Beman 1, 148, 153, 158, 174, 176, 239, 252, 342, 347-50, 358, 371, 374, 414-5, 452, 458, 512
 Betsey Shipman (w. Beman)
 Charles Beman 227-8, 252, 306
 Chas. L.150, 296
 David262
 E.356
 Ebenezer 110, 112, 114
 Elias522
 Elizabeth736
 Eunice635
 J.D.165
 Jewett311
 John139
 Elder John426, 427
 Leander S.329
 Mary347, 426
 Mary B.239
 Mathias139
 M.B.739
 Minerva Thormiley (w. M.B.)
 Nathaniel629
 Stephen139
 Timothy139
 William139
GATTEN
 Robert277
GAUGHAN
 Anthony268
GAULT
 Andrew290
GAUTCHI
 Jacob602
GAY
 William146
GAYLOR
 Andrew581
GAYLORD
 Benjamin R.398
 James M.111
Gazette-Beverly 546 GEAR
 & Ewart387, 396
 Rev. George R.306, 387, 396
 Rev. Hiram L.126, 129-0, 387, 388a, 390, 396, 562, 576, 699
 Jerusha126, 388b
 Peter, see errata
GEARHART
 Frances E.732
 Jacob732
 John584
 Margaret Lauer (w. John)
 Mary (w. Jacob)
GEARHEART
 John122, 731
 Joshua145
GIDDONS
 Joshua R.496
 JIFFEN
 Robert290
GIFFIN
 Agnes704
 Agnes Belville (w. Archibald)
 Anna M.702, 704
 Archibald704
 Archibald Jr.704
 Asa702, 704
 Cornelius704
 Emline704
 Eunice702, 704
 Huldah J.702, 704
 John704
 Mary (w. Robert)
 Reginald R.702, 704
 Robert702, 704, 704a
 William704
GIFFORD
 Ruby A.554
GILBERT
 & Nye483
 Col.199, 224
 A.W.206
 & Co.483
 child of D.428 child of G.427
 Eldridge J.659
 Eli371
 Ethel S.659
 Dr. G. N.483, 504, 517, 519, 523, 525, 541, 545
 Isaac281
 James428
 John W.519
 Jonathan57
 Juna B.659
 Laura M.659
 Lucy E. (w. Dr. G. N.)
 Mary P.396
 & Smith730
 Susanna520
 Tyler & Co.483
GILBRATH
 Thomas58
GILCHRIST
 Daniel N.265
 James H.265
 Susan669, 713
GILD
 E.C.391
 Edward303
 John395, 396
GILKERSON
 Sarah Delong (w. Thomas)
 Thomas587
GILL
 Henry Patterson 287
 Phoebe Caywood (w. Wm.)
 Wm.685
GILLIAN
 Edward L.195
GILLILAND
 Dr.486
 Geo. S.112
GILLINGHAM
 Milton146, 296
GILLMOOR
 Cromwell 327, see errata
 William W., see errata
GILLMOR
 Cromwell, see errata
 William W.327, see errata
GILLON
 Eliza F.195
GILMAN
 Bartholomew503
 Benjamin Ives 58, 79, 85, 106-7, 111-2, 116, 348, 363, 366, 372, 376, 434-5, 464-5, 512, 618
 Elizabeth Fay (w. Dr. John Calvin)
 Elizabeth Fisher (w. Bartholomew)
 Hannah Robbins (w. Benjamin Ives)
 Dr. John Calvin735
 Joseph58, 79, 112, 114, 116, 363, 464
 Rebecca Ives (w. Joseph) 464
 Winthrop S.348
 Gilman Farm 641
 Gilman Store 366
GILMORE
 Gen.191
 Cromwell, see errata
 David394, 483
 Capt. Geo. W.195
 Hannah732
 John T.260
 Polly (w. Torrens)
 Torrens726, 732
 William W., see errata
 Col. Wm. E.208, 210
GILPIN
 B.F.151
 Daniel308
 Felix319
 Jackson308
 James327
 Jonas Jr.327
 Joseph327
 Manley327
 Matthew327
 Rufus327
 Sullivan327
 William R.319
GILSHER
 Jacob284
GILSON
 Mary595
GINGRE
 Z.371
Ginseng (Used as legal tender) 362, 364
GIOLINA
 Rev. Francisca388 GIRBY
 Thomas581
GIRT
 Henry290
GIST
 Christopher10, 17
 William284, 602
GITCHELL
 J.W.578
 John Barnes, see errata
 John W.659
 John Wesley284
 Joseph Harmen284
 Samantha Tidd (w. John W.)
GITTINGS
 Harry C.322
 Metamoras322
GITTO
 Abner L.367 (see p. 359), see errata GIVEN
 Abraham306
 Rev. C.F.698
 J.F.519
 Josiah197
GLASS
 Frederick602, 603
 Isabella543
 William543
GLAZIER
 A.W.518
GLEASON
 George Milton287
GLEISCHER
 Mr.389
 Glendale School 652
GLENCOMP
 W.602
GLIDDEN
 J.G.355, 356
 James L., see errata
GLIDDONS
 James L.322, see errata
GLINES
 C.E.367
 Esq. C.E.478a
 J.C.371
 Dr. William547
 William367
 William C.644
GLOSS
 Margaret561
GLOVE
 Mrs. Rebecca A. Bowers707

Lewis210, 322
GRUBER Fred708
GRUDIER G287
John287
GRUISHARBER
MissS583
GRUVER
Peter709
GUALT
Peter290
GUARDOQUI
DonDiego41
GUBBEAU Monsieur363
GUCKERT
Henry306
GUILD
Rev. E C478
GUILINGER
Jacob H311
Michael311
Thomas311
GUIRT
William277
GUISE
A bramF293
GUIST
James284
GUITEN
Wm. 477
GUITON
J L446
William663
GUITTEAU
686, see errata, 689
Mrs. 427
Ab(nen) L 114, 226,
359, 367, see errata
Benjamin123, 566
Benjamin Fulton
273
Edward428
Fulton188
HamiltonH315
Jerusha455
John M 123, see er-
rata
John T 123, see er-
rata
Jonathan427
Judson427
Maria566
Maria Taylor, see
errata
T G348
William686
William P662
GULLY
Cyrus277
Gun, ducking 73
Gun, exploded603
GUTER
C H387
GURLEY
John293
Gurley & Cross
BookStore367
Gurley (Crawford & Gurley)371
GUTHRIE 499
Almira507
Anna525, 528
Augustus506

Austin 507
B F 347
Benjamin F 506
Mrs. C G 528
C L 347
Charles L 506
Charlotte Bent (2d
w. Edwin)
David P 525, 528
David G 506
Edna A Hibbard (w.
David P)
Edwin 347, 506, 520
Elias 58
Elizabeth Stone (w.
Truman)
Emelia Knowles
(1st w. Edwin)
Erastus 507
Frank H 528
George 507
George W 528
Hannah (w. Joseph)
Hattie A 528
Infant 506
James H 506
526
Joseph 58, 506-7,
526
Julius 507
Laura 507
Sallie Chappell (w.
Stephen)
Stephen 58, 507,
510, 515, 517, 526,
529

- Capt. Truman 50, 58, 506, 507, 514, 519, 520, 526
 Truman 347
 Truman Jr. 506, 510
GUY
 Hezekiah F 314
GUYTON
 Jacob 284
 John 303
 William 663
GWINN
 Abraham 299
Gyantwahia (Indian Chief) 14, 61-2, 123
HAAS
 Caroline 738
 Charles 584
 Christina 584
 Elizabeth 584
 Elizabeth Matz (w. Matthew)
 Jacob 584
 Joanna M. Boger (w. Valentine)
 John 722
 L 584
 Louisa J 722
 Matthew 585
 Matthias 584
 Rosa 584
 Sophia Lorentz 584 (w. L)
 Valentine 584
 Wallace 584
 William 584
HABACK
 Rosanna 686, 696
HABERLING
 Chas 423
HACKER
 William 330, see errata
HACKERHAN
 W 151
HACKETHORN
 William 277
HACKLEMAN
 Gen. 213
HACKNEY
 Joseph 58
HADDOW
 James 262, 714, 718
 Capt. James 198
 Jane 714
 Jane C Fleming (w. John)
 Jeanette Ormiston (w. Robert)
 John 149, 714
 Lucy Dustin (w. James)
 Mary 714
 Nancy 714
 Robert 714, 716
HADDUX
 Lewis C 446
HADLEY
 524
 John 578
HAENZEL
 Rev. CF 388
HAGAR
 Jacob 164
HAGERMAN
 George W 327
 John B 322
 John B 322
 Rebecca 554
 Sarah 632
HAGUE
 John 624
HAIGHT
 Charles C 311
 George Washington 311
HAINES
 Charles 720
 Charles L 330
 J F 729
 Jacob 318
 Josiah E 330
 Nathaniel A 330
Halcyons, Religious sect 392, 408
HALE
 524
 A S 478a
 Abbie (w. A S)
 Alexander S 296
 Margaret 588
 Selkirk 319
 Simeon 296
 William Owen 296
HALEY
 Edward 323
Half King (Indian) C. 111 HALL
 589
 Alexander 319
 Alfred 323, 559
 Alfred J 559
 Alice 629
 Alonzo 535, 536, 559
 Amanda 610, 615, 620
 Anderson 601
 Andrew 190
 Anna 629
 Ara 323
 Blanche 585
 Burgess 603, 703
 C B 584
 Caroline L Chapin (w. Wm A)
 Charles A 157
 Charles B 371, 374
 Charles 559
 Charlotte 584, 679, see errata child 428 child of Wyllys 428
 Clara A 559
 Clara J 660
 Diantha 679
 Dudley 257
 E K 319
 Edith 585
 Edith Chandler (w. German)
 Ele B 629
 Electa Chapin (w. Wm A)
 Electa Omstead 679
 Eli Worthington 311
 Elijah 257
 Eliza 559
 Elizabeth 585
 Elizabeth Birchall (w. Jacob)
 Ephraim 679
 Eunice 585
 Frederick 323
 George B 372
 George Buster 299
 George W 257, 679
 German 585, 679
 Hannah 703
 Harriet 427
 Hely 679
 J B 679
 Jacob 629
 James 266, 270, 274, 288, 371, 629, 679
 James A 585
 James Eli 303
 Jane Longfellow (w. James A)
 Jeremiah 266
 John 157, 257, 270, 287, 290, 323, 372, 374, 700
 John D 266
 John R 679
 Joseph 367, 432
 Joseph E 226, 347, 372
 Joseph, E, Jr. 157
 Joseph H 679
 Josiah W 257
 Justus 679
 Justus, Jr 679
 Justus W 260, 679
 Leonard 679
 Levi 679
 Lydia J 585
 Lyman 151
 Lyman W 296
 Margaret A 679
 Mary 585, 629
 Mary E 679
 Mary Wilson (w. Alonzo)
 Matilda 559
 Melissa 559
 Minnie 585
 Nancy 585
 Narcissa Ross (w. Alfred)
 Nelson 679
 Norman 585, 679
 Oscar 311
 Phoebe 585
 Rebecca 585
 Rebecca A Campbell (w. Thomas)
 Rev. 600
 Dr. R B 679
 Robert 464
 Samantha 679
 Samuel 358, 429, 430
 Sarah 559
 Sophia 608
 Sophia A 560b
 Theodore 322
 Theodosia 468
 Thomas 290, 658
 W A 679
 W D 585
 W H 679
 W H G 319
 Dr. W W 679
 William 288, 327
 Wm C 487
 Wyllis 110, 114, 367
 Wyllys 427
 Capt. Wylls 227, 432, 445
Hall Cemetery 704 HALLECK
 Gen. 212, 231, 233, 234
HALLET
 Asa Davis 315
 C 151
 Charles 274
 Howard 315
HALLETT
 Angenora 582
 Anna 582
 Corwin 582
 Cynthia 582
 Hannah 582
 Howard 582
 Isaac 582
 Isaiah 582
 Isaiah Jr. 582
 Lucy L Blake (w. Orrellane)
 Lynda 582
 Mary A 582, 583
 Orrellane 582
 Ruthe 582
 Solomon 582
 Zenas 582
HALLEY
 Major 458
Hall's Landing 734
HALTSMAN
 Elizabeth 707
HAMBLETON
 Maj. James 195
Hamburg (steamer) 488
HAMILTON
 707
 Albert 146
 Albert G 308
 Alexander 90, 145, 474
 Anna 707
 Archibald A 707
 Asaminta Parish (w. Leonard)
 Rev. CP 600
 Dr. David 130
 Emma J 707
 Fredonia 707
 Jane 732
 John A 130, 308
 Rev. John W 575, 661
 Leonard 707, see errata
 Lewis 707, see errata
 Lillie 707
 Mary 707
 Mary A Taylor (1st w. Thomas)
 Mary M Martin (w. John A)
 Nathaniel 58, 113, 139
 Ruanna 707
 Ruth Allen (w. David)
 Samuel 159, 723
 Sarah Manlow (2nd w. Thomas F)
 Gen. Schuyler 211
 Susannah 707
 Thomas F 707
 William 707
 Col. Wm D 193, 194, 195
Hamilton Fort 72
Hamilton, Mass. 34-5, 39, 455-7
Hamilton, Ohio 72 HAMLIN
 Rev. L 601
 Lewis 367
HAMMETT
 Samuel R 488
HAMMON
 Zoth 58
HAMMOND
 Mr 470
 Charles 109
HAMMONTREE
 Frank 544
 Samuel 544, 546
HAMPTON
 A mo 330
 Thomas 330
HAMTRAMCK
 Capt. 23-5
HANCE
 Charlotte (w. Kinsey)
 George W 722
 Jane 722
 Kinsey 722
 Sarah C Barton (w. George W)
HANCHER
 Mary 716a
HANCOCK
 Gen. 238
HAND
 Mr. 652
 J D 544
 Siba 467
 W T 383
Handkerchief, scouts 74
HANDLON
 Rufus 291
HANES
 Isaac P 728a
 John T 728a
 Polly C (w. Isaac)
 Rachel (w. John T)
HANEY
 James 308
HANGHT
 Bennett 281
HANLEY
 D G 588
HANLIN
 J W 167
HANLON
 Charles L 693
 Felix Squire 697
 Louisa Hearn (1st w. Martin O)
 Rev. Luther 695, 699
 Lydia A. Sloan (w. Charles L)
 Martin O 691, 693
 Mrs. Martin O 693
 Mary A Heinselman (2nd w. Martin O)
 Mathias F 693
 R O 697
 Richard 693
HANNA
 Andrew 638
 Deborah Inman (w. Robert E)
 Emma 638
 George 638
 Harriet Case (w. James)
 Henrietta 638
 Hugh 638
 James 319, 565, 572, 638
 Jane 638
 Jane Seffers (w. Hugh)
 John E 112
 Joseph 638
 John Tilton (w. Joseph)
 Lydia Inman (w. Andrew)
 Martha 638
 Mary 638
 Mary Watson (w. Moses)
 Moses 572
 Robert 638
 Robert E 638
 Sarah Reed (w. James)
 Thomas 638
 William W 319
HANNOLD
 Arabella R 564a, 564c
 Isaac 658
 Isaac, Jr 658
 Maj. Isaac M 564a, 568, 659
 Maj. I W 564c
 Patience F Ross (w. Maj. Isaac M)
HANSEI MAN
 Christian 698
HANSHUMAKER
 Philip 602
HANSON
 Finley 257
 Mary E 131
 Nancy 562
 William 260
 Wm H 218
HARDEE
 Gen 170, 209
Hardee's Corps 220
HARDEN
 Enos 318
 James 318
HARDIN
 536
 Isaac 634
HARDLEY
 Rev. R B 390
HARDY
 Adeline Collins (w. M V)
 Andrew 190
 Andrew J 315, 583
 Arthur Garfield 583
 Edward 583
 Ella F 583
 Eva May 583
 Dr. J M 587
 Dr. J R 587
 James M 315, 583
 John C 583
 John R 583
 Josephine 583
 Julia Goodrich (w. John R)
 Dr. M V 587
 M V 583
 Mary E Miller (w. James M)
 Maurice Luther 583
 Susan C 583, 585
HARLOW
 Thomas C 296
HARLEY
 child of Mrs. 428
HARMAR
 Col. Josiah 22-3, 65, 69, 90, 356
 Sarah Jenkins (w. Col. Josiah) 361
 Harmar 340, 356, 375-9, 385, 392, 397, 411, 421-2, 427, 429-0, 434-6, 439, 442, 444, 534, 609-10, 633, 636, 655, 668, 673
Harmar Academy 395
Harmar Aid Soc. 176-7
Harmar Assoc. (CW) 175
Harmar Bucket Factory 478a
Harmar Marble 648
Harmar Masonic Lodge 442
Harmar Mayors 439
Harmar Mill 648a
Harmar Union School 564c
Harmer's Defeat 65
HARMIGER
 William 708
HARMOND
 Harriet 738
HARNESSE
 Augusta B Thornhill (w. George B)
 George B 738
HARPER
 Charles 339
 Henry 564c
 Rev. W S 715
 William 260
Harper's Ferry 686
Harrietsville 587, 706, see errata
HARRINGTON
 Mrs. 650
HARRIS
 Mrs. A. Abigail 406
 Abner 640
 Amy 707
 Avera 652
 Barbara 707
 Betsy 569
 Caleb 21
 Candace Cole (w. Willard)
 Daniel 315
 Della 640
 E 93
 Edward 58
 Eldora 640
 Eleanor (w. William H)
 Elizabeth Sprague (w. George Jr.)
 Esau 707
 Fayette 640
 George 138, 139, 707
 George, Jr 640
 George, Sr 640
 George F 640
 Henry M 293
 Isaac 284
 Isabella 640
 Isham G 145
 James 183, 185, 300
 James (Negro) 733
 Joe 658
 Joseph 319, 427
 Lewis 319
 Mary 707
 Mary Harrison (w. George Sr.)
 Mary J 722
 Nathaniel 21
 Orilla 640
 Phoebe 640
 Rhoda Koon (w. Stephen)
 Samuel 303
 Stephen 288, 707, 708
 Susannah 637
 T H 436
 Thaddeus Mason 98
 fn. 356-7, 364, 439
 fn. 442, see errata
 Wilbur 635
 Willard 635, 641
 William 248, 640, 722
 William H 722
Harris Tour (1803) 357
HARRISON
 Mr. (clockmaker) 367
 Gen. 472
 Capt. Jack 568, 578
 Mary 640
 Wm 371, 439
 William Henry 12, 104, 111, 135, 139, 140
HARRY
 John W 327
HARSHA
 Dr. 730
 Robert 293
 William 293
 Harshaville 730
HARSBERGER
 Mrs. F P 174
HARSHEYS
 William 706
HARSHY
 William Wesley 284
HART
 408
 Dr. 624, 625
 Mr. 632
 Abigail Harris (2nd w. Dr. Josiah)
 Alexander 640
 Andrew J 640
 Anna Moulton (w. Dr. Josiah)
 Austin 624
 B F 347, 412a
 Dr. B H 411
 Benjamin 154, 613, 623, 624, 625, 630, 631
 Clarissa Gray (w. Josiah)
 Columbus 624
 David W 296
 David W 196
 Elizabeth D Marshall (w. Seth)
 Elizabeth 640
 Ella Lula Hiatt (w. Seth)
 Ellenworth 640
 Frank 176, 640
 Dr. Frank 177
 Dr. Franklin 624
 Frederick 640
 George 640
 Henry C 624
 Henry L 490
 H Lyman 640b
 Honor Deming (w. Benjamin)
 J M 547
 Jeremiah 293
 Joel 490
 Dr. Josiah 363, 382, 406, 549
 Dr. L 176
 Lidora 490
 Lucien 272
 Lucy Payne 624
 Lucy Wolcott Deming (w. Henry L)
 Lydia M Lawrence (w. Simeon D)
 Lydia North 397, 491
 Margaret 640
 Martha E Metcalf (w. Romeyn Beck)
 Mary 176, 490
 Mary A 640
 Mary Ann 552, 624
 Mary Frances 128
 Mary McKee (w. Samuel M)
 Mary Roan (w. Samuel Munson)
 Mary Wilson (w. Seth)
 Miller H 640
 Minniehaha Grace 491
 Miriam Cox (w. David Wilson)
 Norman 134, 139
 Percival P 296
 Deacon R B 391
 Romeyn Beck 490
 Samuel 296
 Dr. Samuel 412, 490
 Samuel M 319, 640, 641
 Samuel Munson 490
 Selah 57
 Dr. Seth 391, 408a, 411, 490, 491, 631
 Silas 624
 Dr. Simeon D 110, 114, 160, 412, 613, 618, 624, see errata
 Stephen 490
 Vestie Curtis (w. Seth)
 William 58, 87-8, 622-3, 640
 William R 272
 Wilson S 272
HARTE
 B F 347
 John 58
 Joseph 122
 Julia Holden (w. Rufus E)
 Miller H 319
 R H 155
 Rufus Erastus 1, 114, 122, 145, 148, 156-7, 176, 226, 395, 401
 W James 299
Harte & Pearce 367
HARTER
 John 140
Hartford, Conn. 45, 509
HARTH
 Daniel 315
HARTLEY
 Thomas 139
HARTMAN
 Hester A 721
 John 330
HARTNEDY
 Rev. M A 521
HARTSHORN
 D 442
 Harriet 427
HARTSON
 Stewart 718
HARTWELL
 Benjamin 569, 692
HARTWIG
 Mr 388
 Catherine 709
 John 288
 Peter 288
HARVEY
 Abion 693
 Amos 540
 Amos D 368
 Andrew R 362
 Andrew 262, 715, 717, 718
 Ann 693
 Asa 693
 Barzilar 693
 Catharine 669, 712, 713
 Catharine (w. James)
 David 262, 715
 Edson 692
 family 682
 Franklin C 277
 Franklin Clarville 693
 G W 703
 Holland 603
 J M 588
 J P 690
 Jackson 693
 James 643, 649, 651, 715
 Mrs. James 715
 James, Jr. 643
 James B 693
 Kate (w. Andrew)
 Lil 604
 Lona 693
 Lona Prescott (w. Stillman Jr.)
 Louisa 693
 Louis Levant 277, 693
 Margaret Breckenridge (w. Thomas)
 Mary E 703
 Mary Fleming (w. James)
 Nancy Rea (w. J P)
 Robt. 262, 715
 S 565
 S Fletcher 263
 S W 198, 718

- Samuel W 262
Sabra 715
Sarah Beckett 554
Stillman 693, 699
Stillman Jr. 693
Theodore 1277
Thomas 715
W M 604
Washington 693
William 260, 263
Wm. Morgareidge 693
- HARWARD
John H 431
- HARWOOD
Alvira 543
John H 431
John W 734
Leroy B 533
William W 323
- HASLER
Daniel 389
- HASKELL
Charles 566, 572
John 138
Maj. Jonathan 58, 113, 363, 500-1, 503, 515, 522, 528, 567
Phoebe Green (w. Jonathan)
- HASKINS
Col. Alexander L 148, 152, 210, 211, 212, 245, 247, 300
David 585
Eunice 585
George B 146, 185, 300
Jane 589
Joanna 585
John 585
Lydia 585
Mary Sutton (w. David)
Mehitabel Littlefield (w. John)
Oscar 585
Roswell 585
Sarah 585
Victoria 585
- HASLEY
Peter 577
- HASSAUER
Frederick 417
- HASTINGS
Adam 323
James 545
- HATCH
Mr. 340
Capt. George 377
Hannah 550
Silence 540
- HATFIELD
Rev. F C 600
Thomas 146
- HATHAWAY
Capt. 614
Clarissa Ripley (w. Luther)
J G 255
Luther 130, 151, 174, 254, 254a, 255, 300
Mary Means (w. Seymour J) 740
Nathaniel Gilbert 250
Rev. 729
Seymour Judson 1, 130, 133 fn., 150, 255-6, 256 fn.
Vasha Seymour (w. Nathaniel Gilbert)
Hats, First Hatter 367
Hats, Manufacture of 724
- HAUGHT
Elijah 291, 700
Joshua 284
Leonard 291
Levi 284, 291
William 291
- HAUVENS
Henry 139
- HAWES
J H 367
Kate Mason 740
- HAWKINS
Christopher 58
Granville 319
James 319
Thomas 319
- HAWKS
Rev. Theron H 140, 240, 347, 382, 439
- HAWLEY
Prof. Owen P 2, 740
- HAY
Henry 347
- HAYES
David 140
Elizabeth Waters (w. David)
Gov. 485
Mrs. John 596
Lewis 303
Col. Rutherford B 124, 156, 203, 205, 236, 237, 244
Valeria 141
- HAYNES
A 131
Andrew A 269
Austin 1269
Charles 306, 694
Crawford 281
Isaac P 272
John 257
John T 272
Mary 629
Nancy 694
Sylvester 520
- HAYES & Basim Mill
718
- HAYS
Allen 596
Ann 596
David 596
Henry 385
John 277, 293, 596, 602
Mary 596
Mary (w. John) P G 565
Preston G 311
Dr. S 412
Sarah 596
- HAYT
589
Theodore 315
- HAYWARD
Capt. 546
Nye & 377
Arthur W 552
C F 542, 552
Charles A 552
Charlotte Gray 552
Columbus F 552
Cyrus B 552
Daniel W 552
Edward 552
Edwin Theodore 552
Mrs. Emily Devol 540a
Emily Wilson (w. C F)
Emma A 552
Joseph 551, 552
Josephine A 552
Mary S 552
May Ann Hart (w. Joseph)
Pantia 552
Pantia Nye (1st w. of Rotheus)
Rebecca Gray (2nd w. of Rotheus)
Capt. Rotheus 133, 134, 347, 391, 464, 483, 540, 543, 544c, 549, 551, 552, Thomas 551
- HAYWOOD
Joseph 660
- HAZARD
Hon. Ebenezer 43-4, 355
Truman 266
- HAZEL
Frederick 311
- HAZEN
Charles D 315
Stowell S 315
Capt. Stowell S 186
Hazen's Brigade 225
- HEALD
Betsy Wilson (w. Daniel Sr.)
Caleb M 330
Daniel, Jr. 701
Daniel, Sr. 699, 701, 703, 704
Edmund 330
Elizabeth 701
Elizabeth Medley (w. Nehemiah)
Henry 701
Hiram 701
Josiah 701
Louis 693, 701
Luther 701, 703
Margaret, Elder (w. Daniel Jr.)
Mary 701
Nancy 701
Narcissa 701
Nathan 330
Nehemiah 701
Perry 701
S 722
- Solomon 700, 701
William 641
William S 330
- HEARN
Betsy Wilson (w. Daniel)
Daniel 701
Daniel D 291
Elizabeth 701
Granville 291
Harriet 427
Harris 291
Henry 701
Hiram 701
Jacob W 291
Josiah 291, 701
Louisa 701
Luther 701
Mary 701
Nancy 701
Narcissa 701
Nehemiah 701
Perry 701
Solomon 701
- HEARSAY
Dr. Thomas 562
- HEART (HART)
Capt. Jonathan 23-5, 33, 418-20, 439
Lt. Peleg 419
- HEATH
Gen 199, 200, 451
Elizabeth 500
- HEATON
Joseph 139
- HEBEL
John 388
- HECKATHORN
John 599
- HECKER
William 330, see errata
- HECKEWELDER
Joanna Maria 358
Rev. John 10, 19-0, 61, 81, 357-8, 454
- HECKLER
Godfrey 308
John 308
Joseph 308
- HECKMAN
Louis 185
- HEDDLESTON
F 191 277
Wm. 603
- HEDGES
H C 423
Dr. William 545
- HEIDER
Mr. 388
- HEINSELM
Christian 281, see errata
Jacob 281, see errata
Martin 281, see errata
- HEINSELMAN
Christian 693
Mary A 693
- HEINZELMAN
see errata
- HEINTZELMAN
Louis 570
- HEITT
Elisha 139
- HELD
Mr. 371
- HEMMEGER
William 293
- HEMPHILL
Dr. John 673
Joseph 673
Mary Ann Gage (w. John)
Orson 314, 673
- HEMPSTEAD
Dr. Giles S B 113, 347-8, 410, see errata
Lucy 427
William 112
- HENAGER
Charles 257, see errata
Herman 257, see errata
William H 257, see errata
- HENDERHAN
James
see errata
- HENDERSHOT
Caleb 708
Caroline 707
Cephas 707
Charles 707
David 706, 708, 709
Deliah Sloan (w. Cephas)
Elias 707
Ella A daline 735
- Ellen 703
George W 707
Jacob 735
Jane 707
Joannah 702
Margaret 707
Mary S Joy (w. Jacob)
Mrs. Rebecca Keesling 707
Sarah Ann 707
William 700
- HENDERSHOT
Brown 291
H 291
- HENDERSON
Capt. 544 d
A 348
Alexander 348, 373, 387
Almond 649
Catharine Hutchinson (w. Josiah)
Charles 323
Mrs. Charlotte O Jackson 554
Rev. E 521
Edward 58, 74, 75, 502, 649
Elizabeth 649
Fanny Caywood 502
George W 373, 502, see errata
I H 522
George W 373, see errata
Isaac 269
Israel 649
Elder James 681
James 319, 649, 673
Jane Dunlap (w. Almond)
Jane Lucas (w. James)
Capt. John 147, 149, John 251, 323, 544, 649, 698
John S 319
Josiah 348
Capt. Josiah 502, 520, 525, 649
Lucy A 554
Lucy Spencer 502
Richard 49
Samuel 323
Sarah Lufkin (w. Edward)
Thomas 420
Thompson 323
Warren 266
- HENDRIC
Charles 356
- HENDRICKSON
Rev. 600
- HENKER
Christina Row (1st w. Frank)
Cila Straller (2nd w. Frank)
Frank 628
Frank, Jr. 628
Henry 628
Jessie 628
Katie 628
Mary 628
- HENKEY
Henry 600
- HENKINS
Willia 139
- HENLEY
Rev. J W 385
- HENMAN
Jacob 389
Kertis 139
- HENNEGER
A 131 293
- HENNEMAN
George 303
- HENNEMANN
George 423
- HENNERMAN
Jacob 382
- HENNIGER
see errata
- HENNING
Charles Henry 274
Henry 146, 306
John 46
John Henry 274
Samuel 139
William 284
- HENREHAN
James 293, see errata
- HENRICK
John 296, see errata
- HENRICKLE
John 218, see errata
- HENRY
Mrs. 536
Anna 625
Arius N 327
- B F 327
David 327, 628, 630
Capt. David A 218, 223
Ellen 545
Emily 628
Emily Woodford (2nd w. David)
Florence 628
George 327-7
J N 536
Jacob 296
John 327, 636, 642
Joseph 327
Julius 263
Nathan B (negro) 733
Nettie 718
Owen 318, 545
Patrick 18, 145
Polly 610
S J 670
Sarah 718
Susan 628
Susan Graham (1st w. David)
Dr. William 536
William 134
- HENSELL
Anna 596
Catherine 596
Cora Jane 596
J W 519
John 596
John F 596
H 600
Martha C States (1st w. John)
Mary J Campbell (2nd w. John)
Samuel 595, 596
Samuel T 596
Z David 596
- HENSON
Tapley 300
- HENTON
Albert 300
James 300
Thomas 387
Dr. Thomas, see errata
- HEPSON
Benjamin 139
- Herald, steamboat
432
- HERBERT
M 389
- HERN
Jacob Winget 287
- HERNSWORTH
Henrietta 554
- HERNTER
Lavina 584
- HERR
William 519
- HERRINGTON
Joseph 729
- HESLOP
Agnes 659
Agnes Dixon (w. George)
Anna Thompson (w. John)
Elizabeth 659
George 288, 659
Isabel 659
Jane 560, 659
John 659
William 659
- HESS
Christian 260
Jacob, 260, 315
Justis 260
- HESSAM
Samuel T 277, see errata
- HESSON
Samuel T, see errata
- HESTON
Jefferson 547, 723
- HETRICK
Nancy 564 b
"Hetuck" (Big Buckeye) see Col. Ebenezer Sproat 47, 81, 461
- HEUTON
Dr. Thomas 387, see errata
- HEWITT
Miss 723
- HEYLE
213
- HIBBARD
Miss 666
Edna Amelie 525, 528
Eliza Smith (w. Henry)
Henry 731
L B 112
Sarah A 528
- Sarah M Porter (w. Thomas)
Thomas 528
- HICKMAN
Mrs. Anna Rose 560
Mary Tumbinson (w. Wm. Sr.)
Susan Perry (w. Wm. Jr.)
Wm., Jr. 669, 670
Wm., Sr. 669
- HICKOCK
Rev. Milo J 390, 587
- HICKS
Dr. 686
Rev. 520
Ambrose 281
Jackson A 113
John 281, 383
Rev. M 385
Thomas F 269
- HIELD
Dr. William 587
- HIETT
Elizabeth Pewthers (w. Timothy)
Ella Lula 491
James 491, 717, see errata
Lucretia Pugh (w. James), see errata
Mary 667, 716a, see errata
Timothy 667, 668, 669
- Hiatt Saw Mill 667
- HIGENS
534
- HIGGINS
Mr. 645
Alexander H 323
Capt. Alexander 223
Joseph 583
Mary 582
Mary (w. Joseph)
Mary Ann 645
Thomas Neely 311
Thomas W 216
- HIGHLAND
Catharine 639
John 300
Patrick 300
- HIGLEY
B S 370
Naomi 527
Samuel 139
- HILDEBRAND
Anna Maria 240
Aries Gilead 240
Cynthia E 240
I S 330
Eldiannas 240
Elbina (w. Jesse)
Eliza 240
F 150
Frances Isabel 240
George 670, 729
Jesse 112, 300, 314, 728a
Col. Jesse 148, 152, 152a, 167, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 239, 240, 246, 251, 494
Laura A nne 728a
Lorina A 728a
Lucius Jasper 728a
Mahala J 728a
Polly C 728a
Rachel J 728a
W W 240
William 228
- HILDRETH
Betsey 736
Calvin 226, 735, 736
Cynthia 736
Cynthia Brown (w. Stephen)
Elizabeth Gates (2nd w. John)
Dr. George O 164, 177, 399, 402, 411, 412
John 735, 736
Lemuel 736
Louisa 736
Mary 736
Mary Ann 485
Oladine S Hill (w. Stephen B)
Polly 736
Rebecca Ann 736
Richard 408, 735
Rhoda Cook (w. Dr. S P)
S P, Jr. 226
Sally 736
Dr. Samuel Prescott 7, 110, 347-9, 369, 401-3, 406-9, 411-2, 426, 439, 446, 509, 523, 587, 631
Simon 736
Mrs. Stephen 427
Stephen 385, 735, 736
Stephen B 736
Zenas B Brownhill 736
- Hildreth Cabinet, the 401-2, 409
- HILL
589, 689, 697
Col. 164
Gen. 178
Lt. 179, 180
Miss 678, 685
A H 423
Gen. A P 229, 238
Addison 311
Capt. Alexander 137, 138, 141, 142, 143, 181
Alexander 300, 340, 368, 545
Atkinson 544
Augustus 698, see errata
Benjamin F 218
Mrs. C B 174
Caroline 658, 735
Charles 567, 602
Cornelius 311
Cynthia Carver (w. John T)
Rev. Charles 567, 576
Daniel Y 141-2, 158, 164-5, 293
David 678
Davis 678
Edward Thomas 293
Eliza 141, 678
Elizabeth 567, 685
Elverson Newell 288
Ephraim 142, 428
Ephraim A 293
Frank 142
George 330
George W 263
Mrs. H 174
Hannah 678
Henry M 574
Hervey Dale 574
Henry McKibben 311
Hiram 133, 141-2
Hugh 141, 226
I H 678
I S 330
Ira 274, 565, 569, 573, 576-7, 586, 589, 591-2, 689, 697
Irwin 315
Isaac 274, 272, 588, 657, 660
Isaac V 323
J F 566
James 139, 216, 567, 678
James A mos 288
Jesse 141, 689
John 141-2, 293, 300, 323, 565, 567
John R 566
John T 567
Jonathan 678
Jonathan A 567
Julia 613
Juliette 678
Julinda Kidd 588
Lucinda Reckard (w. Jonathan A)
Margaret 567, 678, 685
Maria 567
Martha 364, 678
Martha Richey (w. John)
Mary 551, 567, 685
Mary Ann Caywood (w. William)
Mary Jane 678
Matilda 678
Matilda E 686
Martha J 569
McIntosh 284
Mrs. 427
Nancy Dyer (w. John R)
Obadiah P 323
Capt. Oliver 138
Peggy 660
Porter 277
Prescott 308
Rhoda Stephenson (w. William Sr.)

- Samuel323
 Samuel G 296
 Sarah567
 Sarah Amien (w. William Jr.)
 Sarah Foster (w. Capt. Alexander)
 Sarah Twigg (w. William Sr.)
 Spencer K 330
 Squire Ira 586
 Susan 595
 Susan Hoff (w. Isaac)
 Thomas 139
 Thomas G 281
 Thomas J 678
 Capt. Wallace 158, 177, 178
 Wallace 142, 146, 293, 300
 Wealthea 576
 Wealthea Little (w. Ira)
 William 296, 308
 William Jr. 567
 William Sr. 384, 565, 567, 576, 613, 660, 678
 William Wallace 311
 Hill Settlement 566
 HILLE
 Augustus, see errata
 J N 604
 Hill's Landing 731
 Hill's Post Office 566, 575
 Hill's Post Office Mill 578
 Hill's Run School 573
 HILLIARD
 James 139
 HILLYER
 Truman 404
 HILTABEDDLE
 William 257
 HILTON
 Mrs. Charlotte B Beach 553
 Elder Daniel 676, 678, 681
 F M 536
 James W 260
 John 675, 681
 Thomas 536
 HIMEBAUGH
 John H 274
 HINCKLEY
 Thankful 463
 HINCKSON
 Capt. 136
 HINDS
 Charlotte 595
 David H 595
 Eliza 595
 Hannah 595
 James 595
 John 595
 John F 595
 Lida 601
 Margaret Frye (w. John)
 Mary S 595
 Rosie 595
 Sarah 595
 William C 595
 HINES
 Dr Isaac M 216
 John 277
 John Jr. 277
 HINKLE
 664
 HINKLEY
 Mrs Sally Devo 550
 Nathaniel 58, 531, 541
 HINMAN 134
 Curtis 138
 HINTON
 Samuel 327
 William B 327
 HIRSCH
 Daniel 589, 689
 Rev. Davis 689
 Historical Societies, County 346
 HITCHCOCK
 Dr. 418
 Mary A 507
 Myson K 266
 Hon. Peter 403
 Hive, The Old (church) 520
 HOAG
 Rev. Moses 733 HOAGLUND
 Ezekiel 193
 HOAGUE
 Maj. Elijah 193
 HOBAUGH
 Philip 140
 HOBBY
 Miss 176
 Miss H 446
 Hannah 713
 Silas 387
 William 151
 William Alexander 274
 HOBERLING
 Jacob 303, see errata
 Henry 218
 HOBLETZELL
 Henry 218
 HOBSON
 Gen. 160, 162, 165
 Samuel M 330
 Thomas C 330
 Hocking Company Mill 164
 Hocking River 18, 650, 673
 HOCKINGBERRY
 Oakley 315
 Peter 315
 HODGE
 Dr. 678, 683
 G 689
 S G 533
 Thomas 532
 HODGIN
 R 722, 724
 HODKINSON
 George 375
 Jonathan 300
 Mrs. N C 128
 Thomas 300, 375
 HOEIT
 Capt. Joseph 418
 Samuel 421, 422
 HOFF
 Mr. 369
 Mrs. 427
 A Alfred 657, 659
 A mos 657
 Angelina 657
 Betsey Duncan (w. Jonathan)
 Daniel 656, 657
 Rev. Daniel 444a
 Elizabeth Dutton (w. William)
 Emily 427
 Enoch 657
 family 655
 Ford Plum 284
 George 657
 Hannah 655, 657
 James 296, 656, 657, 660
 James P 657
 John 150, 657
 Jonathan 657, 664
 Kingsbury 284
 Lida 657
 Margaret 657
 Mary 657
 Mary N Atkinson (w. A. Alfred)
 Polly 657
 Polly Dye (w. James)
 Susan 444a, 656, 657
 Washington George 284
 William 657, 660
 HOFFMAN
 Capt. 149
 Col. 162
 Mr. 738
 Conrad G 281
 Capt. Daniel W 186
 David S 263
 Francis A 263
 John Henry 293
 John J 195
 John W 263
 Mrs. Lelia West 738, 739
 Levi 601
 Richard A 263
 Samuel H 263
 William W 263
 HOGE
 Isaac 123
 HOGLAND
 Capt. 22
 HOHN
 John 319
 HOIGHT
 G W 565
 HOISINGTON
 George 263
 HOIT
 Ezekiel 85
 Jeremiah 293
 John A 288, 315
 Nicholas G 315
 Samuel 359
 HOLCOMB
 B F 198
 HOLCRAFT
 Miss 540
 HOLDEN
 Amos Price 300
 Andrew 150, 319, 639
 Charles 227
 Charles A 300
 J W 422
 James 347, 366
 John 639
 John B 303
 John D 146, 185
 Jos., Jr. 366
 Jos., Sr. 366
 Joseph 109, 114, 122, 366, 369, 373, 411, 467, 479, 481, 524b, 525
 Julia 122
 Julia Dooley (w. John)
 Julia L 396
 Margaret (w. Andrew)
 Marie 411
 N 421
 Nathaniel 227
 Shipman B 300
 William 146, 195, 303, 366, 368, 375
 "Holden's Corner" 374
 HOLDREN
 Allan 594
 Edmund 594
 Eliza 594
 George 690
 Grace 567, 690
 James 594
 Joseph 567, 578, 594, 690
 Josiah 594
 Mary 594
 Mary G Riggs (w. Thomas)
 Ruth Coleman (w. Joseph)
 Thomas 594, 690
 Wm. 368
 HOLLAND
 family 57
 Alexander 277
 Arius 291
 F M 391
 Harvey 126, 130, 277
 Harvey, Jr. 130
 Horace 704
 John Thomas 260
 William 277
 William Nelson 260
 Holland (country) 56, 617
 HOLLESTER
 J J 113
 Hollester & Allen 367
 HOLLIDAY
 Dr. 167
 Capt. James T 217
 HOLLINGSWORTH
 E 720, 722
 E T J 722
 Elisha 722
 George R 722
 Jemima L 722
 Mary J 722
 Mary J Harris (1st w. E)
 Phoebe E 722
 Sarah (w. Elisha)
 Sarah E 722
 Sarah J Taberner (2nd w. of E)
 Wm. D 722
 HOLLISTER
 A D 270
 A H 652
 Albert 648
 Amanda Burroughs (w. Whiting B)
 Arthur 296
 Asahel 648, 651-2
 Aurelia R 347
 Aurelia R Stone (w. W B)
 Austin A 270
 Betsey Dunham (w. Asahel)
 Charles S 319
 G R 319
 H M 561
 J E 542
 J J 226, 651, 652
 John L 319
 Jonathan 648
 Judson 430
 Justine 651
 R D 226, 651, 652
 W B 157, 372, 648, 652
 Whiting B 648
 Whitney 615
 Wm. B 347
 Hollister Settlement 652
 HOLMER
 Rev. James 632
 Capt. 161
 Madison 444a
 Mary Dye (w. Madison)
 HOLTON
 Dr. 41
 HOLTZ
 John 709
 Holtz machine 402
 HOLYOKE child of W 427
 HOMAN
 John L 281
 Home News 416-7
 HONNEL
 David 277
 HOOD
 Gen. 169, 171, 172, 190, 209, 226, 238
 Rev. 723
 D 277
 John Bendoah 291
 Thomas A 291
 Walter C 347, 417
 Hood's Army 192 HOOK
 John M 158, 347
 Humphrey 426
 M 371
 HOOKER
 Gen. 166, 180, 181, 186, 202, 216, 217, 225, 247, 597, 728
 Jo 158, 244
 HOON
 James P 314
 John 323
 Capt. Madison 210, 247, 323
 Samuel 323
 HOOPER
 Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards 702
 Arminta 702
 Samuel 519
 HOOPS
 Adam 21
 Capt. Adam 25
 HOOTSEL
 see errata
 Frank 327
 George 327
 John 327
 Peter 327
 William 327
 HOOVER
 Aaron 257
 Andrew 257
 D T 257
 Robt. B 447
 W H 257
 HOPKINS
 Dr. 683
 Anna 650, 669
 Electa French (w. Joline P)
 Rev. F M 382
 Frances 550
 Freeman 650, 669
 Henrietta 650
 Isaac 650
 James 459
 Joline P 650
 L D 651
 LeRoy 650
 Louisa 650
 Virginia Rowland (w. J B)
 Pres. Mark 486
 Melissa 650
 Morgan 650
 Nettie 650
 Sarah 460, 650, 660
 Sarah Leach (w. Freeman)
 HOPP
 696
 Elizabeth 637
 Jacob 561
 Zachariah 316
 HOPPEL
 John 113, 699
 HOPPER
 Englehard 444
 HORNE
 George W 1274
 HORNET
 David 281
 HORNIDAY
 Augusta Camp (w. J R)
 J R 716a
 HORSE
 Benajah 719
 Horse "Joe" (Capt. Eels) 163
 Horse mill 56
 Horse Run 633, 636
 Horse Skull Fork 725
 HORTON
 D B 266
 J H 519
 HOSE
 Wm 150, 218
 HOSKINSON
 John 188
 HOSMER
 Chapin & Sharp 339-40
 Sabra 532 d, 552
 Stephen R 339
 Hospital, Marietta (C W) 177
 Hotel Exchange 1837 366
 Hotel 368, 502, 524, 533, 571, 724
 HOST
 John Moffat 291
 William H 291
 HOWELL
 Dr. 631
 Agnes 709
 Andrew 277
 Anna 624
 David 288
 Eliza J 709
 F D 164
 George 277
 Dr. J D 223
 James 277
 John H 277
 Josephus 269
 Mary 694
 W A 544
 Wilford 709
 William 663
 Howitzer, The 510
 HOWLAND
 E M 164
 Jesse 315
 HOWLAND
 E M 330
 Jesse 274
 HOYT
 Adeline Vaughn (w. William)
 Alvey 560
 Benajah 515, 526
 Nicholas 534, 541
 Rev. O P 382
 Sallie 336
 Samuel 368
 William 678
 HUBBARD
 A Talbott (w. Be-mont)
 Bemont 595
 Gilbert 603
 H G 601
 Jemina 595
 John 595
 Richard 595
 Temperance 595, 605
 William 595, 603
 HUBBEL
 J H 537
 Marietta Dana (w. J H)
 HUBBLE
 Abijah 620
 J H 554a
 HUDSON
 608
 C W 396
 John 319
 Samuel 319
 Sarah E 446
 HUESTON
 Jacob 726
 Jane Anne Dunbar (w. Jacob)
 HUFF
 Amon P 300
 John 187, 189
 HUFFERD
 John W 319
 William H 319
 HUFFMAN
 Catharine 688, 694
 Catharine (w. Conrad)
 Conrad 694
 Elizabeth 687
 Eva 686
 Hans 694
 Levi 602
 N 602
 HUGGINS
 Mary Ann Tidd (2nd w. Hezekiah)
 Phoebe M (w. Hezekiah)
 Hezekiah 685
 HUGHES
 588
 Benjamin F 288
 David D 311
 David S 288
 George 535
 Thomas 662
 Hughes River, Va 865
 HUGHEY
 Andrew 257
 James L 257
 William 288
 HUGHS
 D D 151
 HULBERT
 J P 114
 HULBURT
 J P 525
 HULET
 Rufus W (William)
 Rachel 427
 Rufus William 530
 Sarah Emerson (w. Perley)
 Villata 609
 William P 519
 HOWELL
 Dr. 631
 Agnes 709
 Andrew 277
 Anna 624
 David 288
 Eliza J 709
 F D 164
 George 277
 Dr. J D 223
 James 277
 John H 277
 Josephus 269
 Mary 694
 W A 544
 Wilford 709
 William 663
 Howitzer, The 510
 HOWLAND
 E M 164
 Jesse 315
 HOWLAND
 E M 330
 Jesse 274
 HOYT
 Adeline Vaughn (w. William)
 Alvey 560
 Benajah 515, 526
 Nicholas 534, 541
 Rev. O P 382
 Sallie 336
 Samuel 368
 William 678
 HUBBARD
 A Talbott (w. Be-mont)
 Bemont 595
 Gilbert 603
 H G 601
 Jemina 595
 John 595
 Richard 595
 Temperance 595, 605
 William 595, 603
 HUBBEL
 J H 537
 Marietta Dana (w. J H)
 HUBBLE
 Abijah 620
 J H 554a
 HUDSON
 608
 C W 396
 John 319
 Samuel 319
 Sarah E 446
 HUESTON
 Jacob 726
 Jane Anne Dunbar (w. Jacob)
 HUFF
 Amon P 300
 John 187, 189
 HUFFERD
 John W 319
 William H 319
 HUFFMAN
 Catharine 688, 694
 Catharine (w. Conrad)
 Conrad 694
 Elizabeth 687
 Eva 686
 Hans 694
 Levi 602
 N 602
 HUGGINS
 Mary Ann Tidd (2nd w. Hezekiah)
 Phoebe M (w. Hezekiah)
 Hezekiah 685
 HUGHES
 588
 Benjamin F 288
 David D 311
 David S 288
 George 535
 Thomas 662
 Hughes River, Va 865
 HUGHEY
 Andrew 257
 James L 257
 William 288
 HUGHS
 D D 151
 HULBERT
 J P 114
 HULBURT
 J P 525
 HULET
 Rufus W (William)
 Rachel 427
 Rufus William 530
 Sarah Emerson (w. Perley)
 Villata 609
 William P 519
 HOWELL
 Dr. 631
 Agnes 709
 Andrew 277
 Anna 624
 David 288
 Eliza J 709
 F D 164
 George 277
 Dr. J D 223
 James 277
 John H 277
 Josephus 269
 Mary 694
 W A 544
 Wilford 709
 William 663
 Howitzer, The 510
 HOWLAND
 E M 164
 Jesse 315
 HOWLAND
 E M 330
 Jesse 274
 HOYT
 Adeline Vaughn (w. William)
 Alvey 560
 Benajah 515, 526
 Nicholas 534, 541
 Rev. O P 382
 Sallie 336
 Samuel 368
 William 678
 HUBBARD
 A Talbott (w. Be-mont)
 Bemont 595
 Gilbert 603
 H G 601
 Jemina 595
 John 595
 Richard 595
 Temperance 595, 605
 William 595, 603
 HUBBEL
 J H 537
 Marietta Dana (w. J H)
 HUBBLE
 Abijah 620
 J H 554a
 HUDSON
 608
 C W 396
 John 319
 Samuel 319
 Sarah E 446
 HUESTON
 Jacob 726
 Jane Anne Dunbar (w. Jacob)
 HUFF
 Amon P 300
 John 187, 189
 HUFFERD
 John W 319
 William H 319
 HUFFMAN
 Catharine 688, 694
 Catharine (w. Conrad)
 Conrad 694
 Elizabeth 687
 Eva 686
 Hans 694
 Levi 602
 N 602
 HUGGINS
 Mary Ann Tidd (2nd w. Hezekiah)
 Phoebe M (w. Hezekiah)
 Hezekiah 685
 HUGHES
 588
 Benjamin F 288
 David D 311
 David S 288
 George 535
 Thomas 662
 Hughes River, Va 865
 HUGHEY
 Andrew 257
 James L 257
 William 288
 HUGHS
 D D 151
 HULBERT
 J P 114
 HULBURT
 J P 525
 HULET
 Rufus W (William)
 Rachel 427
 Rufus William 530
 Sarah Emerson (w. Perley)
 Villata 609
 William P 519
 HOWELL
 Dr. 631
 Agnes 709
 Andrew 277
 Anna 624
 David 288
 Eliza J 709
 F D 164
 George 277
 Dr. J D 223
 James 277
 John H 277
 Josephus 269
 Mary 694
 W A 544
 Wilford 709
 William 663
 Howitzer, The 510
 HOWLAND
 E M 164
 Jesse 315
 HOWLAND
 E M 330
 Jesse 274
 HOYT
 Adeline Vaughn (w. William)
 Alvey 560
 Benajah 515, 526
 Nicholas 534, 541
 Rev. O P 382
 Sallie 336
 Samuel 368
 William 678
 HUBBARD
 A Talbott (w. Be-mont)
 Bemont 595
 Gilbert 603
 H G 601
 Jemina 595
 John 595
 Richard 595
 Temperance 595, 605
 William 595, 603
 HUBBEL
 J H 537
 Marietta Dana (w. J H)
 HUBBLE
 Abijah 620
 J H 554a
 HUDSON
 608
 C W 396
 John 319
 Samuel 319
 Sarah E 446
 HUESTON
 Jacob 726
 Jane Anne Dunbar (w. Jacob)
 HUFF
 Amon P 300
 John 187, 189
 HUFFERD
 John W 319
 William H 319
 HUFFMAN
 Catharine 688, 694
 Catharine (w. Conrad)
 Conrad 694
 Elizabeth 687
 Eva 686
 Hans 694
 Levi 602
 N 602
 HUGGINS
 Mary Ann Tidd (2nd w. Hezekiah)
 Phoebe M (w. Hezekiah)
 Hezekiah 685
 HUGHES
 588
 Benjamin F 288
 David D 311
 David S 288
 George 535
 Thomas 662
 Hughes River, Va 865
 HUGHEY
 Andrew 257
 James L 257
 William 288
 HUGHS
 D D 151
 HULBERT
 J P 114
 HULBURT
 J P 525
 HULET
 Rufus W (William)
 Rachel 427
 Rufus William 530
 Sarah Emerson (w. Perley)
 Villata 609
 William P 519
 HOWELL
 Dr. 631
 Agnes 709
 Andrew 277
 Anna 624
 David 288
 Eliza J 709
 F D 164
 George 277
 Dr. J D 223
 James 277
 John H 277
 Josephus 269
 Mary 694
 W A 544
 Wilford 709
 William 663
 Howitzer, The 510
 HOWLAND
 E M 164
 Jesse 315
 HOWLAND
 E M 330
 Jesse 274
 HOYT
 Adeline Vaughn (w. William)
 Alvey 560
 Benajah 515, 526
 Nicholas 534, 541
 Rev. O P 382
 Sallie 336
 Samuel 368
 William 678
 HUBBARD
 A Talbott (w. Be-mont)
 Bemont 595
 Gilbert 603
 H G 601
 Jemina 595
 John 595
 Richard 595
 Temperance 595, 605
 William 595, 603
 HUBBEL
 J H 537
 Marietta Dana (w. J H)
 HUBBLE
 Abijah 620
 J H 554a
 HUDSON
 608
 C W 396
 John 319
 Samuel 319
 Sarah E 446
 HUESTON
 Jacob 726
 Jane Anne Dunbar (w. Jacob)
 HUFF
 Amon P 300
 John 187, 189
 HUFFERD
 John W 319
 William H 319
 HUFFMAN
 Catharine 688, 694
 Catharine (w. Conrad)
 Conrad 694
 Elizabeth 687
 Eva 686
 Hans 694
 Levi 602
 N 602
 HUGGINS
 Mary Ann Tidd (2nd w. Hezekiah)
 Phoebe M (w. Hezekiah)
 Hezekiah 685
 HUGHES
 588
 Benjamin F 288
 David D 311
 David S 288
 George 535
 Thomas 662
 Hughes River, Va 865
 HUGHEY
 Andrew 257
 James L 257
 William 288
 HUGHS
 D D 151
 HULBERT
 J P 114
 HULBURT
 J P 525
 HULET
 Rufus W (William)
 Rachel 427
 Rufus William 530
 Sarah Emerson (w. Perley)
 Villata 609
 William P 519
 HOWELL
 Dr. 631
 Agnes 709
 Andrew 277
 Anna 624
 David 288
 Eliza J 709
 F D 164
 George 277
 Dr. J D 223
 James 277
 John H 277
 Josephus 269
 Mary 694
 W A 544
 Wilford 709
 William 663
 Howitzer, The 510
 HOWLAND
 E M 164
 Jesse 315
 HOWLAND
 E M 330
 Jesse 274
 HOYT
 Adeline Vaughn (w. William)
 Alvey 560
 Benajah 515, 526
 Nicholas 534, 541
 Rev. O P 382
 Sallie 336
 Samuel 368
 William 678
 HUBBARD
 A Talbott (w. Be-mont)
 Bemont 595
 Gilbert 603
 H G 601
 Jemina 595
 John 595
 Richard 595
 Temperance 595, 605
 William 595, 603
 HUBBEL
 J H 537
 Marietta Dana (w. J H)
 HUBBLE
 Abijah 620
 J H 554a
 HUDSON
 608
 C W 396
 John 319
 Samuel 319
 Sarah E 446
 HUESTON
 Jacob 726
 Jane Anne Dunbar (w. Jacob)
 HUFF
 Amon P 300
 John 187, 189
 HUFFERD
 John W 319
 William H 319
 HUFFMAN
 Catharine 688, 694
 Catharine (w. Conrad)
 Conrad 694
 Elizabeth 687
 Eva 686
 Hans 694
 Levi 602
 N 602
 HUGGINS
 Mary Ann Tidd (2nd w. Hezekiah)
 Phoebe M (w. Hezekiah)
 Hezekiah 685
 HUGHES
 588
 Benjamin F 288
 David D 311
 David S 288
 George 535
 Thomas 662
 Hughes River, Va 865
 HUGHEY
 Andrew 257
 James L 257
 William 288
 HUGHS
 D D 151
 HULBERT
 J P 114
 HULBURT
 J P 525
 HULET
 Rufus W (William)
 Rachel 427
 Rufus William 530
 Sarah Emerson (w. Perley)
 Villata 609
 William P 519
 HOWELL
 Dr. 631
 Agnes 709
 Andrew 277
 Anna 624
 David 288
 Eliza J 709
 F D 164
 George 277
 Dr. J D 223
 James 277
 John H 277
 Josephus 269
 Mary 694
 W A 544
 Wilford 709
 William 663
 Howitzer, The 510
 HOWLAND
 E M 164
 Jesse 315
 HOWLAND
 E M 330
 Jesse 274
 HOYT
 Adeline Vaughn (w. William)
 Alvey 560
 Benajah 515, 526
 Nicholas 534, 541
 Rev. O P 382
 Sallie 336
 Samuel 368
 William 678
 HUBBARD
 A Talbott (w. Be-mont)
 Bemont 595
 Gilbert 603
 H G 601
 Jemina 595
 John 595
 Richard 595
 Temperance 595, 605
 William 595, 603
 HUBBEL
 J H 537
 Marietta Dana (w. J H)
 HUBBLE
 Abijah 620
 J H 554a
 HUDSON
 608
 C W 396
 John 319
 Samuel 319
 Sarah E 446
 HUESTON
 Jacob 726
 Jane Anne Dunbar (w. Jacob)
 HUFF
 Amon P 300
 John 187, 189
 HUFFERD
 John W 319
 William H 319
 HUFFMAN
 Catharine 688, 694
 Catharine (w. Conrad)
 Conrad 694
 Elizabeth 687
 Eva 686
 Hans 694
 Levi 602
 N 602
 HUGGINS
 Mary Ann Tidd (2nd w. Hezekiah)
 Phoebe M (w. Hezekiah)
 Hezekiah 685
 HUGHES
 588
 Benjamin F 288
 David D 311
 David S 288
 George 535
 Thomas 662
 Hughes River, Va 865
 HUGHEY
 Andrew 257
 James L 257
 William 288
 HUGHS
 D D 151
 HULBERT
 J P 114
 HULBURT
 J P 525
 HULET
 Rufus W (William)
 Rachel 427
 Rufus William 530
 Sarah Emerson (w. Perley)
 Villata 609
 William P 519
 HOWELL
 Dr. 631
 Agnes 709
 Andrew 277
 Anna 624
 David 288
 Eliza J 709
 F D 164
 George 277
 Dr. J D 223
 James 277
 John H 277
 Josephus 269
 Mary 694
 W A 544
 Wilford 709
 William 663
 Howitzer, The 510
 HOWLAND
 E M 164
 Jesse 315
 HOWLAND
 E M 330
 Jesse 274
 HOYT
 Adeline Vaughn (w. William)
 Alvey 560
 Benajah 515, 526
 Nicholas 534, 541
 Rev. O P 382
 Sallie 336
 Samuel 368
 William 678
 HUBBARD
 A Talbott (w. Be-mont)
 Bemont 595
 Gilbert 603
 H G 601
 Jemina 595
 John 595
 Richard 595
 Temperance 595, 605
 William 595, 603
 HUBBEL
 J H 537
 Marietta Dana (w. J H)
 HUBBLE
 Abijah 620
 J H 554a
 HUDSON
 608
 C W 396
 John 319
 Samuel 319
 Sarah E 446
 HUESTON
 Jacob 726
 Jane Anne Dunbar (w. Jacob)
 HUFF
 Amon P 300
 John 187, 189
 HUFFERD
 John W 319
 William H 319
 HUFFMAN
 Catharine 688, 694
 Catharine (w. Conrad)
 Conrad 694
 Elizabeth 687
 Eva 686
 Hans 694
 Levi 602
 N 602
 HUGGINS
 Mary Ann Tidd (2nd w. Hezekiah)
 Phoebe M (w. Hezekiah)
 Hezekiah 685
 HUGHES
 588
 Benjamin F

- Mary 636
HUMPHRIES
 Isaac 112
HUNSELL
 John 602
Hunt (Sharp & Hunt)
 686
HUNT
 Rev. John 587
HUNTER
 169, 203
 Gen. 248
 A. mada 584
 Charles 272
 David 584
 David C 315
 Elizabeth Mellan
 (w. David)
 Ellen Ritchie (w.
 Samuel)
 Emerson Burnett 584
 family 641
 George 266
 J C 383
 John 584
 Mary Ellen 254
 Samuel 584
 Hon. Wm. Forest
 254
HUNTINGDON
 Elisha 394, see errata
HUNTINGTON
 Gen. 212
 Elisha 394, 483, see
 errata
 J F 306
 Capt. J F 133, 158,
 183, 184, 186
 Gov. Samuel 710
 Samuel 106
Huntington's
 Battery 183
HUNTSMAN
 Cyrus S 296
 D D 151, 296
HUPP
 John 604
HURD
 Capt. Ethan O 206
HURLBERT
 Benoni 347
HURLBURT
 Benoni 53, 57, 77
 510, see errata
Hurlbut Mill 668
HURLBUT
 Benoni W H 323
 John 668, 672-3
 Mary M 651
HURLEY
 Gilbert 140
 William 140
Hurons (Indians) 9, 10
HURST
 A C 383
 Col. Samuel H 216
HUSSEY
 Elmira 570
 Marilla 570
HUSTON
 A 542
 Rev. Andrew 575
 Eliza 685
 Esther 668
 John P 314
 William 668
HUTCHENSON
 H Underhill 293
HUTCHESON
 589
 Edward 257
 John 257
HUTCHINS
 Benedict 134
 Caroline 678
 David 678
 George 678
 Hannah Vaughn (w.
 Joseph)
 Hollie 580
 Jane Joana 678
 John Jr. 678, 680,
 681
 John Sr. 675, 678,
 681
 Joseph 678
 Julia Ann 678
 Rosanna 678
 Shubel 678
 Thomas 18, 24-5,
 28, 33, 35, 477
HUTCHINSON
 Mr. 669
 Calvin A 323
 Charles 311
 E B 601
 Elisha 382
 George 149
 Henry 181
- Henry W 319
 Isaac 710, 716
 J G 544
 James 281
 John 266
 Joseph T 319
 Julia 736
 Matilda 625
 Nancy Warren (w.
 Thomas)
 Phoebe Sutton (w.
 William)
 S M 716
 Samuel 599
 Susan 736
 Thomas 57, 363, 736
 William 636, 736
 W H 316
HUTCHISON
 Albert 604
 Arthur 597
 Catharine 502
 Edward 597
 Elizabeth 597
 Jane Morton (w.
 Samuel)
 James 138
 Jennie 598
 John 150, 151, 597
 Joseph 347
 M M 600
 Mary 597
 Mary Ann Edwards
 (w. P)
 Morton 597
 Nancy 570
 P 694
 Samuel 597
 Samuel & Sons 597
 William 597
HUTZEL
 see errata
HYER
 L 151
IAMS
 Hiram 185, 300, see
 errata
 Mary W Burch (w.
 R P)
 R P 375, 491
IFLER
 Jacob 274
IJAMES
 Hiram 300, see errata
Illinois Country 10, 13 Immigrants first to Marietta 57, 58, 59
IMMEL
 George 284
Impaled head of In- dian 75
Independence Twp.
 109, 689-9, 695-6,
 699 Independent order of Good Templars
 564b
Indian Burial Mound
 673
Indian legend 12
Indian Massacres
 see massacres
Indian War 49, 69,
 88, 133, 509, 531,
 607, 610, 612, 620,
 622, 634, 687
Indian War, funds 69
Indiana Ways 692
Indiana, The 466, 617
Infirmiry, County
 (poor house) 110
INGALLS
 Ruth 594
INGERSOLL
 Capt. 510
 George 57, 115
INGLES
 John 138
INGRAHAM
 Luther M 150
 Ralph 296
 Thomas M 319, see
 errata
INGRAM
 Sarah 720
Inhabitants (1788-90) 57-9
Inhabitants (Belpre)
 Indian War 510
Inhabitants (Bever- ly) Indian War 531 Inhabitants (Mariet- ta) Indian War
 362-3
INMAN
 Deborah 638
 Lydia 638
I.O.O.F Lodges 522,
 544, 561, 602
Inoculation 89
- Institute of Educa- tion (Rev. Bing- ham) 395
Interperance 362
Ipswich, Mass. 34-5, 45, 455, 457, see
 errata
IRISH
 Addie 256 fn
Irish Families 100, 578
Iron Tank 560
Ironton 636
Iroquois 9, 10
IRVIN
 Rev. 562
IRVINE
 Fanny (w. John)
 Maj. James 193
 Jennie 727
 John 130, 132
 Richard J 732
 Robert M 732
 Sarah J 732
 William G 732
 Dr. William 130
IRWIN
 Jane Wilkinson (w.
 Richard)
 Richard 732, see er-
 rata
 James 656
 Richard J 732
 Robert M 732
 Sarah J 732
 Thomas 533
 William 270, 403,
 488
 William G 732
IRWINE
 Richard, see errata
ISHAM
 Russell 58
Island Factory 534
ISRAEL
 Joseph 413
 Retta 547
IVES
 Benjamin 464
 Rebecca 116, 464
JACK
 David L 296
JACKSON
 A M 323
 Abner 542
 Alexander 544, 554,
 731
 Pres. Andrew 239,
 646
 Andrew 260
 B F 323, 544, 554
 Betsey 582
 Carrie 554
 Charlotte O 554
 David 582, 593
 David Jr. 582
 Frank 323
 H G 675
 Harry 554
 Henry 45, 93
 Hugh 582, 586, 677
 James C 554
 James N 260
 Jane 582
 John Jr. 521
 John, Sr. 521, 554
 John (negro) 522
 John T 323
 John W 603
 Louisa 581, see er-
 rata
 Margaret 582 588
 Marion 323
 Mary 582
 Nancy 582
 Nancy Craig (w.
 John Sr.)
 Oscar L 210, 215
 Phoebe 582
 Rebecca 582
 Rhuma 581
 Robert 582
 S T (negro) 521, 522
 Sally 582
 Samuel L 323
 Sarah Morris (w.
 David)
 Sarah E Wood (w. B
 F)
 Temperance W 554
 Thomas Putnam
 260
 Thos. J (Stonewall)
 178, 179, 181, 183,
 193, 200, 203, 216,
 237
Jackson Chapel 521
Jackson's Run 677
JACOBS
 John W 177
 Maria 599
JACQUINTH
 Miss S 395
- JADON
 Nancy 645
JAHRAUS
 Mr. 588
Jail 109-10
JAMES
 Children 510
 Rev. E 518
 J D 682
 John 58, 86
 John Jr. 58
 John W 260
 Mrs. Maria Watson
 702
 Polly 635
 Mrs. R P 226
 Susan 721
 Capt. William 510,
 635
 William 58, 67-8
 William, Jr. 636
JAMESON
 A bigail E 660a
 James 284
JAMISON
 A bigail 656
 Elizabeth 656
 Elizabeth Gordon
 (w. James)
 James 656
 John H 656
 Mark B 656
 Rebecca 656
 Susan 656
JAMS
 Hiram 300, see errata
JARVIS
 Ashbury 277
 George P 269
 John E 277
 Solomon 427
 William 709
JAYNES
 Capt. 161
JEFFERSON
 Pres. Thomas 20,
 36-7, 462, 474, 726
Jefferson Med. Col- lege 595
JEFFRE
 Ann 694
JENKINS
 Gen. 196
 Mr. 161, 203
 Evan 607
 Rev. J H 389, 390
 J R 155
 James 674
 Maj. John S 206
 Josiah H 164, 306
 Samuel 314
JENKS
 D 644
 S 644
JENNE
 Stephen 257
JENNINGS
 Almira 626
 Daniel 626, 632
 Deliah 737
 Henry 626
 J 519
 Joshua 58
 Junia 114, 226, 245,
 347, 445
 Margaret 569
 Mary J 632
 Rosanna 626, 632,
 724
 Rosanna Stotlar (w.
 Daniel)
 Wm. H 229
JENVEY
 Charles W, see errata
 Ella Spaulding, see errata George K
 227, 306, 371
 William 152, 178-
 83, 227, 306
JERVINEY
 Charles W 478a, see
 errata
 Ella Spaulding (w.
 Charles W)
- Silas T 395, 396,
 478a
 William 721
JEWETT
 L 126
 Dr. Leonard 514,
 515, 523
 Dr. Milo P 398, 399
 S 1544
JEYNES
 James 306
JINKS
 Mrs. Harriet Aikin
 555
JOB
 Amy 678
JOBS
 Carby 311
 George 281
 John 311
JOHN
 Anthony 284
Johnny Constant (breed substitute)
 538
JOHNS
 A 151
JOHNSON
 613, 689
 Gen. 169, 170, 202,
 209, 212, 215, 230,
 231, 495
 A F 311
 Agnes Heslop (w.
 Andrew)
 Alderman 660
 Andrew C 288
 Andrew 659
 Benjamin 323
 Bloomfield 320
 C H 524
 Charles 296
 Corwin 269
 David 660
 E A 311
 E D 601
 E M 272
 Edward 660
 Elizabeth 508
 Mrs. Elizabeth
 Bartlett 506
 Ellen 636
 Emma 660
 Mrs. Dr. Eunice S
 Fay 735
 Rev. Francis H 520
 George 615
 Henry W 316
 Isaac 544, 626
 J R 391
 Jacob 151, 319
 James 277, 323, 578
 Jane 636
 Jeanette 716
 John 626
 John D 272, 277
 Jonas 382
 Jonathan 330
 Josephine 626
 L 524
 Laura A Stanton
 (w. Isaac)
 Margaret 660
 Marion N 269
 Mary 557, 593, 626,
 660
 Mary Manchester
 Dodge (w. Perley
 B)
 Mary Wilson (w.
 John)
 Newton 323
 Okey 601
 Perley B 111
 Mrs. Perley B 557
 Rennsaler 520
 Robert 226, 323,
 435, 479
 Ruth 427
 Samuel 269
 Sarah 446, 660
 Sarah L 626
 T 488
 W H 375
 William 284, 323,
 601, 636, 730, 731
 William A 260, 269
 William H 269
 Dr. William P 197
 Willis H 112, 626
 Winchester B 626
 Worthy A 269
 Zeno C 272
Johnson's Battery
 179
JOHNSTON
 Andrew C 706
 David 139
 Drazilla 702
 James P 266
 John 139
 Col. John 11
- Joseph W 266
 Josiah 536
 M B 544
 Mrs. Sarah 643
 Valentine E 266
JOLIM
 A V D 387, see
 errata
 John K 387, see er-
 rata
JOLINE
 Mr. 416
 A V D 359, 387, 415,
 430, see errata
 John K 387, 415, see
 errata
JOLLY
 505
 Rev. 729
 Henry 112, 594
 Kinsey, see errata
 Kinzer D 699, see
 errata
 Elder W H 520
 William 139
Jolly Post Office 600
Jolly Twp. 109, 565, 596
Jonathan Creek 667
JONES
 Rev. 391, 575
 Col. A E 149, 165, 202
 Alexander 304
 Allen 330
 Andrew 320
 Anthony 300
 Calvin D 277
 Charles 306
 Rev. D L 518
 David F 150, 218,
 303
 E A 396, 577, 579
 Edward A 564c
 Eliza 636
 Esther Ann
 Campbell (1st w.
 Isaac)
 George 626
 Henry 600
 Isaac 727
 Jacob 263, 545
 James H 114
 Johiel 277
 John 715
 John Jr. 263
 John R 281
 Joseph 226, 304
 Martha Maloney
 (w. George)
 Rebecca V Kenny
 (w. Isaac)
 Samuel 627, 672
 Sarah Lavan (1st w.
 John)
 Sarah E (2nd w.
 John)
 Sterling 601
 Thomas F 158, 371,
 422
 W D 729
 W S 220
 William D 272
 Wm. G 198, 200,
 236, 241
 Yearsley 217
JORDAN
 A M 544
 Henry 544
 J H 544
 John 288, 323
 Mitchell 323
 W S 544
 William 288
Jordan & Son 58
JORRES
 Anna T Struif (w.
 Henry)
 Henry 628
Journal of Man 564a
JOWRDOM
 58
- JOY
 Bishop 291
 David 291
 Elie L Long 291
 George 291, see er-
 rata
 Mary S 735
 Matthew 291
 Mordecia B 291
JUDAH
 Gen. 160, 162, 165
JUDD
 Aberus, Sr. 561, 563
 C E 561
 Charles Hildreth
 296
 Chauncey 257
 Chauncey T 114
 Frank L 300
- James 227
 James Grover 300
 Lewis 258
 Merrit 300
 Merritt 226, 347
 Sergeant 24
 Wm S 150
JUDSON
 Silas H 183
 William 427
JUERGEN
 Rev. 589
JUERGEUS
 Rev. F 562
JULIER
 D Alonzo 330
July, Celebrations
 116, 356-7, 447,
 603
JUMPER
 Elizabeth (w.
 George)
 George 250
 John 323
 Capt. John J 197,
 250
 M P (w. Capt. John J)
- JUNG
 Theobald 589
JUNGMAN
 Rev. George 19
JURDEN
 Catharine De Temple (w. Matthew)
 Matthew 628, 631,
 632
JUSTICE
 George 323
 Henry 323
 John W 277
 John William 281
 Josiah 277
 Phineas J 281
 Reuben J 281
 William 323
KAISER
 Catharine 687
KALLENBAUGH
 Mr. 388
KALVINI
 A delpha 625
 Regita 625
 Sarah Woodruff (w.
 Regita)
 Thea 625
Kanawha 17
KANEFF
 Charles Wesley 274
 George Washington
 274
KANTZ
 Col. A V 191
KASEY
 Hester J 707
Kaskaskia 19
KASPER
 Krus 306, see errata
KASS
 James 330
KATHARY
 Mary see errata
KAY
 Dr. Horace P 197
KAYLASS
 William 367
KAYLOR
 Altonis 640
 George 640
 Henrietta 640
 Johannah Burger
 (w. John)
 John 640
 John J 640
 Joseph 640
 Josephine 640
 Lizzie 640
 Martha 640
 Mary A 640
 Matilda 640
 William H 640
KEAGLE
 J 542
KEAN
 Samuel 700
 Mrs. Sarah E Beckett 554
 Walter 22, 37
KEARNEY
 180
 Mr. 39, 41
KEARNS
 William 544
KEATH
 Mrs. Mary Roberts
 554
 Peter 540
KEATING
 Mrs. 427
KEDDY
 Charles 602

- KEEDER
Gideon 706
- Keel Boating & Cries
538-9, 665
- KEEVER
536
Mrs. Sarah Hall 559
- KEGHOE
J 323, see errata
- KEIGLEY
Jacob 277
Mary 722
Sarah J 722
William 722
- KEIL
John 630
Oliver 556
Sarah Frye (w. Oliver)
ver
- KEITH
Peter B 258
- KELLER
Rev. Daniel 698
- KELLEY
Col. 149
Mrs. 463
A C 519
Anna Hart 358
Calvin 584
Charles 584
Charlotte Hull (w. L. R.)
Clara 584
Cynthia Flagg (w. Joseph)
Elizabeth 584
Ezra 138
Henry 164
Isaac Newton 288
James 58, 71, see errata
James (infant of) 427
John 584
Joseph 71, 141, 165, 198, 519, see errata
L R 583
Lucy 584
Mary J 584
Dr. P. H. 469
St. Clair 139
William R 584
- KELLNER
John 600
- KELLOGG
Capt. 189
Rev. 689
M P 519
- KELLY
Arthur St. Clair 76, 358, 362
Benjamin 284
& Bro. 372
Calvin V 316
Charlotte Hall (w. William Jr.) 584
Dr. E 545
Elizabeth Scott (w. William) 584
James Sr. 76
John 76, 584
Joseph 76, 304, 362, 462
Margaret 584
Samuel 269
William 288, 584
Wm. Jr. see errata
- KELNER
Henry 146
- KELSO
Rev. Wm. 716
- KEMBLE
Titan 114
- KEMP
Abram 284
Charles Wesley 284
John D 284
Nathan 281, 284
William 150
William J 281
- KEMPER
F H 490
Vestie Curtis (w. F H)
- KENDAL
John 323
- KENDALL
Hiram 323
Rev. Paul 395, 520
Reason 604
- KENDLE
Elias 277
- KENDRICK
Fanny 610
Prof. John 399, 402, 405
Col. John Mills 164-5, 306, see errata
- KENNEDY
194
- Arius H 300
Arius Nye 150
Elisha 300
Elizabeth 739
George W 150
George Washington 300
Jacob 284
James 384
Joel 150, 300
William 150, 300
- KENNON
Dr. 545
- KENNY
Rebecca 727
- KENT
W J 519
- KENTON
Simon 19
Kentucky 24, 55, 97, 103, 144, 412, 614
- KER
Barbara 570
Charles 569
Elizabeth Kinsor (w. Jonathan)
Hannah 570
Hattie Jewell (w. Jonathan)
James W 570, 574
Jane McNulty (w. Charles)
Jonathan 569
Margaret 569
Samuel 569, 570
Ker's Hollow 569
- KERNS
Andrew J 281
- KERPES
Leonard, see errata
- KERR
George 75
Hamilton 24, 57, 74-5, 363
J W 565
Jane 363
John 293
Matthew 58, 74, 443
Washington 378
William 140
Kerr's Island 24, 47, 74-5
Kerr's Run 608
Kershaw's Division 204
- KESSELRING
Elizabeth 707
Elizabeth Haltsman (w. George)
Ezra 707
George 707
John 707
Mary 707
Rebecca 707
Samuel 707
- KESTER
Aaron 721, see errata
Aaron M 330
Commilia J Brill (w. Aaron)
Sarah 720
- KESTERSON
S P 16
- KETTE
Ferdinand 277
- KEYES
C E 525
- KEYHOE
Mrs. Electa A Davis 553
Ephraim 534
J, see errata
John 534, 544
- KEYS
Mrs. Mary 403
- KIBLING
Elmira 479
- KID
John 138
- KIDD
Ann F 685
Betsey 685
C J 685
Clara S 739
Isaac 226, 685
Jesse M 274
Joseph 274
Julinda 684
Mary Hill (w. Nathaniel)
N E 685
Nathaniel 685
Nathaniel Evans 274
William 139
- KIDDER
Fanny 610
Prof. John 399, 402, 405
Col. John Mills 164-5, 306, see errata
- KIDWELL
Alexander D 272
George Washington 308
James 727
John 727
Louis 727
Mary Ann 645
Mary E 595
Walter 728
- KIGGENS
John 580
- KIGGINS
Elijah W 281
Joseph 281
Samuel 281
- KILBOURN
Mr. 108
- KILE
Oliver W 258
SC 561
Samuel C 258
- KILMER
Mr. 589
John 277
- KILPATRICK
169, 170
Gen. 195
- KILTHARY
Mary 584, see errata
- KILZER
Catharine 585
Catharine Burkhard 585
George 585
- KIMBALL
Mr. 377
Rev. P 631
- KIMBERLEY
Zenas 105, 106
- KIMBERLY
Benjamin 263
- KIMBLE
Aphraim 57
- KIMERLY
Benj. M 221
- KIMMICK
George 274
William 274
William Henry 274
- KINARD
1291, see errata
- KINBLE
Titan 541
Titus R 139
- KINDER
Mr. 569
Kinderhook 569, 571, 577
- KING
563
Capt. 149, 531
Abel D 269
Anna M 721
Charles 721
Deborah Stephen (w. James)
Elizabeth M Thorniley (w. Samuel)
Ella A Bowen (w. I F)
Mrs. Eunice S Allen 508
George W 306
Helen A 721
I F 553
Ida A 721
J R 522
Jacob 526
James 720-4
James S 721
Jane H 650
Jesse 288
John 522
John Merical 288
Joseph C 520
Kate 604
Martin 5323
Mary 721
Nathan P 269
Nicholas 288
Nora 721
Rebecca 721
Rufus 36, 37
Samuel 738
William 269, 288
Wilton 269
Zebulon 58, 62, 500, 508
- KINGSBURY
Ens. 23, 24
Rev. Addison 390, 398, 518, 643, 661, 716
J A 344
- KINGSLEY
Supt. E D 396
- KINKAD
Capt. Isaac B 218, 227
J H 522, 524
- J P 164
Col. Joseph 164, 228
- KINKHEAD
Benton 330
David N 263
George W 263
Isaac B 263
John P 263
Julius 330
- KINNEY
Brig. Gen. 148
John M 291
Nathan 58
- KINNY
Abigail 557
Elizabeth 557
John W 519
Massa Wilson (w. Nathan)
Nathan 530, 531, 532, 541, 556, 557
Sarah 557
William 541
- KINSEL
Catharine (w. John)
John 694, 698
- KINSER
Jacob 702
Margaret Ellen
O'Hanlon (w. Jacob)
Theophilus 49, 57, 58
- KINSOR
Elizabeth 569, 702
Ellen 569
Jacob 569, 702
Margaret 569, 702
- KIP
John D W 642
- KIRBY
John 323
SB 524
- KIRK
Mark 288
- KIRKBRIDE
A 602
Andrew 599
Charles 599
Ellen 599
Elizabeth 599
Frank 599
Frederick 599
Martin 277
Mary 599
Mary Decker (w. Andrew)
Nathan 599
Sarah 599
Sarah Farley (w. Nathan)
- KIRKER
Thomas 106
- KIRKMAN
Samuel 288
- KIRKPATRICK
C B 266
Fremont 150
Henry 150, 266
Mary E 701
Ralph 258
T M 266
- KIRTLAND
Elizur 48
Kiskapocke (Indians) 11-2
- KISLEY
John 139
- KITBRIDGE
Dr. 408
- KITCHEN
Joseph 530
- KITCHING
Gen. 171
- "Kitt" Putnam
(colored boy) 510
- KLINGER
Joseph 327
- KNAPP
& Calhoun 604
E Calhoun 603
Frank H 194
Wilson L 277
- KNIGHT
Benjamin 210
James 138, 427
Theophilus 49, 57, 58
- KNIGHTLY
E W 140
Knights of Golden Circle 158
- KNOCH
Henry 683
- KNOTT
Benjamin 537, 538, 539
Samuel 139
- KNOWLES
Capt. 161, 227
Amelia 506
Amos 507, 508
Charles 57, 115
- Clariissa Curtis (w. Samuel Jr.)
Mrs. Cynthia A Clough 507
Rev. D C 575, 661
Esther 508
Mrs. H D 347
Harriet 608
Henrietta Devol (w. Samuel S)
James 508, 608
James Sr. 142, 508, 519, 526
Jesse 508
Martha (w. James Sr.)
Polly Porter (w. Amos)
Reuben 508
SS 164, 336, 446
Samuel 508
Samuel Jr. 126
Samuel B 508
Samuel S 110, 112, 114, 126, 128, 132, 304, 347
Sarah E 528
Susan 597
William 508
- Knowles Cemetery
526
- KNOWLTON
Esau 602
James 600
William 565
- KNOX
Gen. 35, 39, 41, 69
John Drummer 150
John P 733
Joseph 138
M G 417
Willis 417
William 347
Capt. Wm. 377, 417
- KOANEKE
Rev. 588
- KOBLER
C 388
- KOENIG
Caroline 216
Jacob 151, 206, 246, 300
Jacob Jr. 246
Jacob James 300
Julia 246
Julia A Mass (w. Jacob)
Philip 246
William 246
- Koenig's German Rifles
151
- KOERNER
F 577
Frederick 565, 572
Mary (w. Frederick)
- KOON
Barbara Stackhouse (w. Michael) Betty 708
George 300
Isaac 707
John 708
Margaret 708
Margaret Brown (w. William)
Michael 707
Rhoda 707
Wescon 300
William 706, 707, 709
- Koon Cemetery
707
- Koon Run
705
- KOONTZ
Samuel F 603
- Koquethogechton
72
- Koscuisko
452
- KRAFT
Catharine 596
- KRAMER
Henry 318
- KRANTZ
Rev. 381
- KRAPPS
Dr. John 190
- KRAUS
Casper, see errata
- KRAUSS
K 164
- KREBS
Anna 527
- KRESS
Rev. 388
- KRETSCHEMAR
Rev. Alfred 562
- KRIGBAUM
Conrad 114
- KROPP
August 146, 206, 304
- KUEHN
Rev. John B 390
- KUNTZ
Ella Louise (w. Peter)
John 306, 389
Peter 684a
Peter Jr. 423
- KUPP
John 600
- KURBS
Leonard 274, see errata
- KURNEY
John 519
- KYLE
Christina 555
OW 588
Oliver 140
- KYLES
Frederick 316
- LABELLE
Francis 58
- LACEY
Amos 708
Charles 182, 306
Emily 693
John 693
- La Chappelle
61
- LACKER
Elijah 422
- LACKEY
Sarah R 570
- LACY
Elisha 320
- LADD
John 318
John Asher 308
Richard 318
Salathiel 308, 318
William 308
- LADY
Hiram 323
Willis 417
- Ladies' Union Circle
(Belpre) 175
- LAFABER
James 578
- LAFALETTE
Gen. Marquis de 14, 356, 432, 464, 505
- LAFLIN
Abigail Richards (w. John)
- Albretta M 626
Anna Shields (w. Harley)
Caroline Cooksey (w. Charles S)
Charles E 712
Charles S 712
Diantha 712
Flora E 626
Harley 612, 626, 711, 712
Huldah 626
John 626, 712, 773
Kyman 626, see errata
Lizzie 712
Lyman 626, 712, 718
Mary A 712
Morrison 712
Susan E Leeley (w. Lyman)
Tuman R 626, see errata
- LaGrange
Harriet 551
LaFayette 146, 284
- LAKE
Andrew 58, 362, 381, 464, 479, 608-9, 617
Daniel 609
Dauphin 609
Elizabeth Goss (w. Andrew)
George 314
Hannah 609
James 609, 730
Jane 609
John 362
Mary Bird (w. Archibald), see errata
Mary C 726
Mrs. Mary Hickman 669
Peter B 671, 726, 729
Preston 609
Sarah 609
Solomon 609
Thomas 58, 362, 609, 616, 728
Tirzah 609
William 58, 509
- Lake Erie Indians
10
- Lake Huron
16
- LALANCE
Pierre 363
- LALORCEY
58
- LAMB
Agnes 713
Christiana 713
Christiana Fraser (w. William)
Leonidas G 263
Mary 713
Mary L 713
Sarah 713
William 139, 713, 716
William A 263
William F 263
- LAMBERT
Elwood 330
- LAMINGTON
Josiah B 288, see errata
- LAMMA
Andrew 637
Polly 637
Rachel (w. Andrew)
- LAMMERY
Rebecca 637
- LAMOTT
Eugene R A 300
Levi F 300
- LAMOTTE
Levi F 146
- LAMSDON
Thomas 545
- LANCASTER
F T 308
Francis 308
Frank 296
J Leroy 308
James 675
Mordecai 308
Nelsie 687
William 308
Lancaster Road 634, 644
- LAND
LC 604
Land, division of 54-5
Land Office, the 608
Land as Pay (War) 28
Land transaction 90-92
- LANDER
Gen. 183
- LONDON
Mr. 424
- LANDSETTLE
Jacob 561
- LANDSITTE
Jacob 258
- LANDY
A W S 151
Alvy William 277, see errata
Calvin 281
- LANE
Mary E 686
Father T 1521
Thomas 274
- LANG
Ebenzer 311
F 151
James 323
William 311
- LANGBRIDGE
Samuel 391
- LANGDON
Rev. 517
- LANGHAM
Elias 103, 105
- LANGHERY
Thornton 323, see errata
- LANGLEY
177
Benjamin H 323
David 300
George W 300
Henry 227
Henry M 300
Lewis D 300
- LANGLY
Marion A 258
Language (impolite), forbidden 103
- LANKFORD
689
H H 274
- LANKTON
Elizabeth 735
- LAPHAM
Jos H 146, 151, 304
- Luther T 304
Owen Theodore 304
Pazzi 414
Zina 423
- Laramie's Creek
16
- LARCOMBE
Charles 277
- LARKINS
Elias 311

- LARNE
Jacob 138
- LARNED
Capt. 449
Ellen D (historian)
27
- LA RUE
Hannah 685
- LASA
John 57
- LA SALLE
Robert Cavalier De
13, 16
- LASHLEY
J D 534, 547
- LASKIEL
10
- LASURE
Nathan 300
- LATAMORE
John W 373
- LATHBE
John 58
- LATHROP
Maj. Wm. H 206
- LAUDER
Jacob 227
- LAUER
Barbara (w. Jacob)

Catharine (1st w. Daniel)

Catharine Cloee (w. Jacob)
Christopher 584
Daniel 584, 589
Elizabeth 584
George 584
George P 584
J Lauer & Son 584
Jacob 584
John 316, 584
Lewis 584
Louis 422
Magdalena 584
Margaret (w. George P)

Mary 584
Mary Kathary (2d w. Daniel)
Phoebe Hahn 584
Theobald 584
William 584
- LAUGHERY
Henry 535
Thornton, see errata
- LAUGHLIN
Maj. 187
James 186
Milton H 146, 178, 300
Nancy 727
- LAUGHRON
J 547
- LAUGHTON
Dick 57
- LAVAN
Sarah 715
- LAW
John 675
- LAWDER
William H 519
- LAWRENCE
Lydia M 412, 613
Michael 574
R. J. 139
Mrs. Rachel J Bacon 551
Rev. Robt. J 390
Rufus 624
- Lawrence Twp. 109, 654-5, 660
- Lawa, established
102-3
- Laws regulating settlement 102 et seq.
- LAWSON
Alexander 483
- LAWTON
Mrs. 500
Arthur 263, 711
C C 718
Ezra J 263
Isaac 711
Isaiah B 263, 711
J B 718
James 97, 109, 134, 347, 428, 429, 711, 717, 719, 734
Jesse 710, 711
John 718
Maria Haskell (w. Jesse)
Persis W (w. Richard)
Phoebe 711
Richard 711
Richard G 263
Sarah 711
- Susannah Gould (w. James)
LAYMAN
A mos 416, 439
Layman P.O. 730
- LAYNER
Austen 628
John 628
Margaret Lightfritz (2d w. John)
Sarah Hagerman (w. Austen)
- LAZURE
E E 314
- LEABODY
W P 519
William 522
- LEACH
Ann Elizabeth 646
James 57
Joseph 646
Sarah 650
Susanna (w. Joseph)
LEAPER
Maj. John 190
- LEASE
Rev. 632, 723
- LEASON
Rev. T S 576
- LEASURE
Jesse 672
- LEATH
Mrs. Sarah 690
Leath's Run 594, 599, 603, 690, 695, see errata
- LEAVENS
Mr. 79, see errata
John 58, see errata
Joseph 58, see errata
- LEAVERS
W J 320
- LEAVIN
John 394
Mr. 79
- LEAVUS
Mr. 79, see errata
- LEBER
Frederick 151
- LeBLOND
Monsieur 363
- LEDGER
Daniel 277
Frederick 277
- LeDUC
Rev. Chas. S 399
- LEE
428
Gen. 172, 173, 180, 183, 193, 196, 200, 204, 205, 217, 239, 241, 450, 496
Rev. 392
Arthur 14, 15, 42
Edwin 330
Francis (person of color) 688
Rev. J. John 521
Jonathan R 269
Margaret 569
Peter 281
Hon. Richard Henry 35, 37, 39
Samuel 330
Thomas 17
Wesley 330
William 281
Lee House 220
- LEEDHAM
689
- LEELY
Susan E 626
Wm. G 626
- Legal tender 362, 364-5, 574
- LEGET
E B 544, 547
Ebenezer B 114
Capt. James 538
Jane 551
John 541, 551
Robert 538, 551
Rufus 544
S 544
Susanna Featherston (w. Robert)
W F 544
Wm. 670
- LEGGETT
Alexander 58
Mrs. Mary S Corner 735
Robert 348
- LEGGITT
George 77
- Legislature - Ohio
611, 612
- Le Gris 62 fn
- LEHMER
Annie E Stickle (w. George E)
George E 660
Wille H 660
- LEHNHARD
Carrie R Miller (w. John H)
Catharine Philipina Bock (w. John)
Christina Bascador (w. John)
Elizabeth 686, 738
Elizabeth Cimmer (w. Lewis)
John 178, 182, 388, 736
John H 423, 736
Lewis 388, 736
Lewis C 736
Lucinda 736
Mary E 736
LEHNHARDT
John Jacob 306
- LEHNHART
A M 446
John 227
Lewis 226
- LEMGO
Henry 300
- LEMOYNE
Dr. 407
- LENHARDT
Henry 316
Lenni - lenape 10
- LENNINGTON
Josiah B, see errata
- LENTZ
Elizabeth 599
- LEONARD
A 565
Albert 601
Albert W 153, 196, 277
Augustus 227, 311, 575
C R 371
Carrie 686
Charles 372
Cynthia 601
D P 545, 670
E G 479
Elizabeth Danley (w. J) 666
Henrietta D Ward (w. E G)
J D 153, 601
Rev. J D 543
Jacob 576
Joseph 670
Dr. L G 147, 386, 387
Lydia Moulton (w. William B) see errata 428
Mary 601
Mary S 552
Nancy 601
Rev. S G 601
Theophilus 48
Virginia 601
William 576
Dr. William B 406, 408
- LEONHART
Lewis 158
- LEOPOLD
Louis 422
- LeSEUR
C 519, 524
- LEST
John 356
- LETCHERS
Gov. 203
- LEVER
James 281
- LEVINGS
Esther 615
- LEVINS
526
Capt. John 510
Joseph 526
- LEWIS
58
Mr. 689
Gen. Andrew 18
Benoni 526, 649
C B 162
Caroline Cole (w. Loring W) 635
Charles 263
David 519
David H 150, 304
Mrs. Delia Ellenwood 649
Elizabeth Pickering (w. Parker)
Fanny 701, 704
Frederick 519, 649
George 692
Mrs. Harvey 643
Henry 649
- Hezekiah 522, 643
Isaac T 527
J W 519
James 149, 157
Leonora 527
Levi L 527
Lillie M 527
Lincoln Q 527
Lizzie P 527
Loring W 649
Mary 519
Mary Walton (w. Benoni)
Morgan E 527
Nathan 692
Otis 258
Parker 525, 527
Polly 692
Samuel 58
Samuel M 304
Seth E 527
Solomon 630
Stephen B 258
Sylvanus P 527
William H 263
William P 527
Lewis Chapel 519
- Lewisburgh, W. Va. 650
- LIACKEY
Oscar 164
- LIBBY
Elisha B 599
Eliza 599
James K 599
Jason 599
Nancy Campbell (w. Elisha B)
Phoebe Benson (w. James K)
Virgil 599
Liberty Twp. 109, 705-6
- LIBRAND
Frederick 327
Library 446, 547:
Belpre Farmer's 515
Church 385, 518, 520
College 402
Coonskin (first) 514
Fearing Twp. 688
Lichtenan 19
- LIEGINE
F L 673
- LIGGETT
James 139
Robert 139
- LIGHTBURN
224
- LIGHTFOOT
James 320
John 320
- LIGHTFRITS
Drusilla 637
John 637
- LIGHTFRITZ
Margaret 628
Samuel 320
- LIMERICK
Daniel 519, 729
Limestone Flour 674
- LINCOLN
Miss 669
Pres. 173, 178, 198, 205, 210, 212, 242, 367
Angeline 427
Bettie (w. Peleg) 427
Charles 427
James 427
Jefferson 427
Joanna 426
Joseph 48
Gov. Levi 478 a, 479
Capt. Obediah 427
Obadiah 114, 427
Peleg 669
Maj. Robt. 365, 366
Lincoln's Inn, (Lanterdale Creek) 46, see errata
- LINDAMOOD
James 316
- LINDER
E 534
Rev. Jacob 541, 716
Rev. Stephen 384, 716
- LINDNER
Carl W 316
Ernest 114, 151, 198, 316
- LINDY
H H 330, see errata
- LINER
John 318
- LINGO
Archelaus R 316
- LINN
Mr. 587
- Daniel O 318
Hiram 278
Mary W 500
William 278
- LINNEL
Miriam C 129
- LINSEY
Rev. Jacob 518
Dr. James 534, 545, 547, 560
James 690
Jane 579, 690, 691
Keziah 505
Rev. Marquis 519
Capt. Nathaniel 501, 505, 510
- LINSLEY
Pres. Joel Harvey 683, 695, 699
382, 390, 398, 400, 644
- LINTEN
George 260
- LINTNER
Dr. 627
Mrs. Caroline 588
Dr. Ernest 588
Mary Behl (w. Dr.)
- LINZEE
Robert 97
- LIPPINCOTT
Samuel 278
- LIPPETT
Rev. Wm. 575, 729
- Lippincott Publish-ing House 2
Alexander 595
Amma 595
Edmund 595
Harriet 595
James 278, 595
Jasper 131, 595, 602, 603
John 595
Jonas 595, 602
Maria Salisbury (1st w. Edmund)
Mary E 595
Mary A Lippincott (w. Nicholas Sr.)
Nicholas 278
Nicholas Jr. 595
Nicholas Sr. 595
Pauline 595
Sarah Fox (w. Edmund)
Susan Hill (2nd w. Nicholas Sr.)
Thomas 595
- LIST
Nick 595
Susan Hill (w. Nick)
- Litchfield Company 608
- Literary & Debating Soc. (1790) 361
- Literary Societies 402, 446
- LITTLE
Arthur 577
Arthur B 311
Arthur Bradford 565, 568
573, 576
Col. D 165
Daniel 278, 601
George 568
Harry 568
Rev. Jacob 587, 643
Dr. James 156, 164, 545, 547
James 112
Jane 579
John 278
Leander 278
Lewis Bradford 568
Mary 576, 590, 693
Mary McKee (2nd w. William)
Mary Thompson (1st w. William)
Mary A Frazier (w. Charles)
Nathaniel Jr. 58
Nathaniel 58, 74, 77, 501, 568
Pamela 570
Pamela Bradford (w. Nathaniel)
Thomas 278
Thomas O 311
Waltha 568, 573
William 603, 604
Dr. William 690, 694
Little Hocking 525, 636-7
Little Hocking Cemetery 526
Little Kanawha 63
- Little Kanawha Circuit 672
Little Miami (River) 10
Little Muskingum Church 601, 698
Miriam C 129
Little Muskingum Circuit 672
Little Muskingum German Church 661, 689
Little Muskingum Lyceum 663
Little Muskingum (River) 17, 654
Little Muskingum Settlement 564-5, 683, 695, 699
Little Turtle (Indian) 71, 86
Little's Landing 572
LITTLEFIELD
Mehitabel 585
William 260
LITTLETON
507
James 507
LIVERMORE
Mrs. 427
Jonas 427
LIVESAY
Almina (w. J A) 478 a, 479
John A 478 a LIVING
Frederick 146
John 258
LIVINGSTON
Gov. (of N. Y.) 500
- LLOYD
David 58
Greenback 676
- LOBDELL
Joseph 731
- Lobdell House 734
- LOCKRY
Col. Archibald 19
- Lock Works - Marietta 371, 534
- LOCKER
428
Elijah 164
John 427
- LOCKHART
Daniel Jr. 504
Daniel 58, 112, 113, 504, 510, 512 a, 515, 516, 520, 521, 524 b, 526
Deborah Gray (1st w. Jesse)
Delta 504
Capt. E H 149, 223
Ezekiel 504, 512 a, 524 b, 525
Fannie (1st w. Oliver Rice)
Francis H 504
Franklin 266
Infant 504
Israel 58, 504, 524 b, 525
Jesse 113, 114, 504, 549
Lucy 504
Maria Fisher (2d w. Jesse)
O H 515
O R 347
Oliver 112
Oliver Rice 504, 519, 524 b, 525
Orinda Howe (2nd w. Oliver Rice)
Polly 504, 523
'Priest' 524 b
Rice 612
Warren 504
- LORRAINE
Crayton 431, 734
- LOSKIEL
10
- LOUDERBECK
James 695
- LOUFMAN
James 182
Philip 146
- LOUIS
Rev. 562
Phillips 431-2
Louis XV 17
Louisville (Site of) 16
- LOUTHAN
James 330
John 330
- LOVE
Charles W 263
Hugh 288
John 708
Robert 288, 708
Solomon 288
Thomas 288
- LONGSTREET
Gen. 166, 202
- Longstreet's Corps 236
- LOOMIS
Harriet Francis Wheeler (1st w. Wm. B)
Mrs. N C Hokinson (2d w. Wm. B)
Judge Wm. B 127, 131, 388, 396
William B 112, 388 a
- LORAIN
Louis J 269
- LORD
Esquire 559
Mr. 358
Col. 684 a
Col. Abner 366, 368, 376
Dr. Asa D 402
Mrs. E W 402
Elisha 58
Henry 300
Nelly Oliver (w. Thomas)
Miss Temperance 118
Thomas 57, 112, 115, 362
- LORENTZ
Sophia 584
- LORENZ
Catharine 736
Catharine Reiter (w. Jacob)
Charles 736
David 736
Henry 736
Jacob 389, 736
Mary (w. Henry)
Wilhelmina 736
- LOREY
William 131, 417
- LORING
Judge 517
Miss 504
Bathsheba 504
Charlotte 504, 505, 524 b, 525
Corwin 149, 504
Corwin H 266
Mrs. D 504
Daniel Jr. 504
Daniel 58, 112, 113, 504, 510, 512 a, 515, 516, 520, 521, 524 b, 526
Deborah Gray (1st w. Jesse)
Delta 504
Capt. E H 149, 223
Ezekiel 504, 512 a, 524 b, 525
Fannie (1st w. Oliver Rice)
Francis H 504
Franklin 266
Infant 504
Israel 58, 504, 524 b, 525
Jesse 113, 114, 504, 549
Lucy 504
Maria Fisher (2d w. Jesse)
O H 515
O R 347
Oliver 112
Oliver Rice 504, 519, 524 b, 525
Orinda Howe (2nd w. Oliver Rice)
Polly 504, 523
'Priest' 524 b
Rice 612
Warren 504
- LORRAINE
Crayton 431, 734
- LOSKIEL
10
- LOUDERBECK
James 695
- LOUFMAN
James 182
Philip 146
- LOUIS
Rev. 562
Phillips 431-2
Louis XV 17
Louisville (Site of) 16
- LOUTHAN
James 330
John 330
- LOVE
Charles W 263
Hugh 288
John 708
Robert 288, 708
Solomon 288
Thomas 288

- William 288, 708
LOVEJOY
 145
LOVELL
 B W 176
 Betty W 131
 Mrs. Joseph 176
 O M & Son 375
LOVETT
 Brady 598
 Ella 598
 Frank 598
 George 598
 Jay 598
 Madison 598
 Robert 598
 Susan Nelson (w.
 Robert)
Low Gap 603
LOWE
 Rev. Benj. 1576
 James 555, 686
 Miriam 555
 Rosanna Haback
 (w. James)
Lower Newport 577
Lower Newport
Cemetery 574
LOWERY
 Daniel 278
LOWMAN
 William Henry 278
LOWRY
 Allen 139
LOWTHER
 William W 278
LOYD
 Sarah 628c
LOYNACAN
 Nettie 717
LOYNACHAN
 Nell 711
LUCANS
 Eliza J 570
LUCAS
 Mr. 424
 Ephraim 139
 George W 258
 Isaac 58, 258
 J C 269
 Jane 649
 Marion Curtis (w.
 William W)
 Nathaniel 649
 Oliver 269
 Thomas 272
 Maj. Thos. 216
 William W 736
LUCKENS
 Charles 164
LUCKEY
 John 566
 Joseph 565, 578
LUCY
 427
 Rev. George 562
LUDDINGTON
 Henry 281
 Joseph 697
LUDGEN
 E 151
LUDLOW
 Mr. 338
 Col. Israel 92, 338
 John 103, 104
Ludlow Twp. 109,
 699-0
Ludlow's Line 92,
 544c, 674, 699
LUFKIN
 Sarah 502
Luke Chute 379, 540
LUKINS
 Eli 263
LUND
 G 423
 Gamaliel 218, 223
 Gamiel J 260
 J T 675, 676
LUNDY
 Alva William, see
 errata
 Benj. 145, 428
 H H I, see errata LUNISON
 Elizabeth Heslop
 (w. Thos.)
 Thos. 659
LUNT
 Ezra 57, 115, 419
 Wm. 57, 531
LUPARDIS
 Elizabeth 678
Lurchin's Brigade
 165
LUSK
 J T 391
LUTGEN
 Capt. James H 218
Lutherans 389, 588,
 632, 661, 698
LUTHRINGER
 Agatha Dryer (w.
 Emery)
 E 393
 Emery 736
 Emery Jr. 736
 Margaret Henn (w.
 Joseph)
 Mary M Shilshot
 (w. Emery Jr.)
 Reck & Co. 368
LUXEMBURGH
 58
 Lyceum 446
LYDE
 Sarah A 732
LYGNUM
 Joseph 58
LYLE
 George 266
 Prof. John M 400,
 403
LYMAN
 Gen. 27, 449
LYNCH
 Thomas 320
 Underhill 688
Lynch Circuit 689
LYNN
 John 139
LYNOT
 William 58
LYON
 538, 563
 Mrs. 427
 Abraham 138
 Rev. H 561
 Henry 588, 589, 661
LYONS
 H 709
 Rev. Henry 601
 John 139
 William 139, 565
LYSLE
 George 149
LYTLE
 Samuel 330
LYTTON
 Margery 715
MABEY
 Phoebe 650
MACBETH
 John 285
MACHETANZ
 Edward 599, 602
 Elizabeth Lentz (w.
 Jacob)
 Gottfried 599
 Jacob 599
 Maria Jacob (w.
 Gottfried) & Son
 597, 599
Machetanz Tannery
 599, 602
MACKAY
 Isaac 519
 Jean 527
 Mrs. Matilda Hall
 559
MACKEY
 James 571
 Susan B Corner (w.
 James)
MACKINTOSH
 William 587
 Wm. W 680
Macksburg 587, 676
MACON
 Sarah 571
MACUMBER
 Maj. J John W 193
MAD RIVER 10
MADDEN
 Father I C 521
MADISON
 President 471
MADOX
 Rev. M 562
MADDOX
 Samuel 519
Magazine of Western History 2
MAGEE
 Mr. 586
 Ansel Ward 293
 Felix 589, see errata
 George 293
 H 588
 Hiram 293
 John 81, 586, 587
 Robert 139
 William 139
MAGERS
 William 330
MAGINNIS
 Jane 702
MAGRUDER
 Asahel 316
 John N 316
 Maria 585
 Nahum W 316
MAHAFFEY
 Margaret 624a, 665
MAHES
 Teacher 516
MAHNKEN
 John 301, 306
MAHONEY
 Reuben, see errata
Mail Route 359
Maine Liquor Laws
 672
MAINS
 A biram 330
 Elijah 330
 Richard G 330
 Simon H 330
MALCOLM
 Andrew 320
 Horace H 320
 James M 320
 John W 320
MALE
 Aaron 263
MALL
 James 138
MALLERY
 Mr. 666
MALLORY
 Elisha 134, 138
MALONEY
 Joseph 185
MALÓY
 Alexander E 306
 Barney 306
 James Henry 306 MALSTER
 Amy Danley (w.
 Thomas)
 Benjamin 665, 671
 Christopher 624a,
 665, 672
 Diana 609
 John 624a, 665, 671,
 673 Margaret (w. Christopher) Martha White (w.
 Moses A)
 Mary E 665
 Moses A 114, 544,
 545, 624, 665, 674,
 see errata
 Rowena 665, 668
 Sarah Baker (w.
 Wm.)
 Thomas 597, 624,
 665, 666, 671
 Tremont 718
 Wm. 624a, 665, 670,
 671
MALTYB
 Rev. Erastus 381
MANATT
 Prof. Irving J 400,
 405
MANCHE
 Elizabeth Willis (w.
 Michael)
 Michael 625
MANCHESTER
 Mrs. Nancy Devol
 557
MANKIN
 Daniel E. 270
 Elizabeth Carey (w.
 Wm.)
 Ezra 270
 Frances F 270, 652
 Harriet Dodge (w.
 Wm.)
 John 146, 150, 647
 Martha 651
 Rhoda 651
 Rufus M 270
 Wm. 649, 650, 651
MANKINS
 A S 323
MANLEY
 Bryan 311
 Rev. Robert 382,
 518, 575, see errata
MANLOW
 Sarah 707
MANLY
 Michael 150
MANN
 David 519
 James 538, 551
 Lucena Davis (w.
 James)
 Manley W 130
MANNING
 Rev. S N 632, 716
MANSBARGER
 Mary 695
MANSFIELD
 Gen. 366
 Hon. Edward D 362
 fn., 403, 474 fn.
 Jared 362 fn., 474
 Willard 422
MANUKEN
 John 150
MANYPENNY
 J W 416
Map, first of county
 121
March Run 606, 684a
Marie Antoinette 356
Marietta (fn 1803)
 363-64
Marietta 1791, de- scription of 70 Marietta (Inception of-1786) 355
Marietta Chair Co.
 388b
Marietta & Cincin- nati R.R. 149, 160, 1, 341-3, 677, 710,
 716b, 725, 729-31
Marietta City Inc.
 435 Marietta, City Offi- cials 436-8
Marietta College 397
 et seq.
Marietta Democrat
 131 Marietta Garrison
(Campus Martius)
 51, 52
Marietta Gazette
 120, 414
Marietta Hospital
 177 Marietta Intelligen- ce 414-5
Marietta (Name
chosen July 2, 1788) 54, 355-6
Marietta Nat. Bank
 374, 388b
Marietta, Pitts- burgh, & Cleve- land Railway Co.
 345, 388b
Marietta platted 44
Marietta Register 6,
 126, 413, 415, 417,
 457, 714
Marietta Shade Tree
Assoc. 447
Marietta, site 33
Marietta Times 417
Marietta Twp. 109
MARK
 58
Market Square 54, 434
MARKET
 Wm. H 675
MARKHAM
 Elizabeth 738
MARKS
 D R 278
 Dr. D R 603, 604
 Henry E 240
MARLEY
 Rev. Robert 518, see
 errata
MARLOW
 Lieut. 222
 Leonard A 278
 Capt. Leonard A 218
MARMADUKE
 Gen. 221
MARNASIA
 Marquis 420
MARLOTZKE
 Otto 185
MARPLE
 James W 272
 Wesley 273
Marquee, (Putnam's Tent) 47, 51
MARR
 Nancy 583
Marriage, first 358
MARSCH
 Daniel 683
MARSH
 Brigham 296
 E 546
 George 150
 John 316
 Joseph 150, 210
 M W 422
 Marcellus 706
 William 316
MARSHALL
 A S 605
 Allen 612, 613
 Bruce 612
 Drucilla 583
 Elisha 418
 Elizabeth 491
 Gideon 491
 Gen. Humphrey
 153, 196, 229, 230
 Jesse B 330
 John 148, 226, 240,
 613
 Miss (w. Wm. Mc-Elinney) 564b
 William 269, 308
MARSHER
 see errata
 Daniel P 330, see
 errata
 Samuel F 330, see
 errata
MARTIN
 Capt. 479
 Abner 702
 Adaline Davis (w.
 Francis P)
 Amelia 628c
 Alexander 720
 Benjamin 330
 Bishop 193
 Charles H 541
 Charlotte 702
 D M 155
 David 732
 Dr. F P 602, 603
 Francis P 595
 George 720, 724
 Mrs. George 720
 Henry W 327
 Isaac 103
 James 706
 John 281, 595, 600,
 601, 716, 720, 724
 Malin 588
 Mary M 130
 Mary (w. John)
 Nancy 690, 738
 Nathan 330
 Phoebe Coaler (w.
 Alexander)
 Polly 657
 Rebecca 465
 Rebecca McKollister (w. George)
 Rev. 741
 Robert 285, 732
 Sarah 666, 709
 Simeon 48
 Sylvester 603
 Wilson 284
Martin Farm 655
MARVIN
 see errata
 James 300, see er-
 rata
 John 300, see errata
MASON
 Adeline 558
 Adolph Coburn 558
 Anthia Simons (1st
 w. Isaac)
 Adolphus 253
 Betsey B (w. Adolphus)
 Mrs. Betsey Devol
 551 Beulah Stacey (w.
 Jonas)
 Carolyn Reaney (w.
 Sylvester)
 Charles G 183
 Clarinda 558
 Delia Allison (1st w.
 Isaac)
 Elijah 558
 Elijah J 258
 Electa K 558
 Elizabeth 558
 Elizabeth Shepard
 (w. Richard D)
 Emily 561
 F M 682
 Franklin 323
 H W 323
 Harriet Barnes (1st
 w. Sylvester)
 Henrietta McDonald (w. Wm. B Sr.)
 Horatio 258
 Horatio W 150, 218
 Isaac 558
 Jacob 258
 James M 145
 John 560b
 Jonas 347, 558
 Joseph 558
 L L Stacy (w.
 Reuben S)
 Lucetta B Mason
 (w. Wm. B Jr.)
 Lucy 558
 Lucy A Dyer (w.
 Manly M) Luna Sprague (1st
 w. Wm. Jr.)
 Lynday 558
 Malinda 556
 Manly M 560b
 Mary Eliza 558
 Melinda 558
 Melissa 558
 Nancy Sprague (2d
 w. Wm. Jr.)
 Oscar 258
 Oscar F 558
 Pamela 558
 Patience Simons (w Adelphe)
 R D 258
 R S 133
 Rachel 558
 Rebecca Sharp (w.
 Wm.)
 Reuben S 258, 558
 Richard D 193, 253
 Rosannah Scribner
 (w. John)
 S 165
 Sarah 551, 558
 Simeon 558
 Sophia Hall (w.
 Manly M)
 Sophronia 558
 Stevens T 118
 Susan 558
 Susanna Coburn (w.
 Col. Wm. Sr.)
 Sylvester 536, 538,
 558, 561
 Vestie 558
 William B 258
 Col. Wm. B Jr. 130,
 133, 149, 150, 217,
 218, 220, 221, 222,
 240, 422, 423, 558
 Col. Wm. B Sr. 558
 Capt. William B
 130, 133, 149, 150,
 217, 218, 220, 221,
 240, 422, 423, 558
 William Jr. 558
 William II see
 errata
 Col. William 48,
 359, 367, 432, 558
 Wm. 558
 W W 536, 558
 William Bion see
 errata
 William Bond see
 errata
 William W 258, 558
 Winchester 323
Masonic Centennial
(1876) 421
Masonic Lodges 417-
 22, 522, 543-4, 561,
 564b, 603, 722
MASS
 A J 323
 Stephen 227
Massachusetts Claim
 14
Massacres (Indians)
 62 fn.
Armstrong Family
 84
Big Bottom 81, 502, 509, 531, 609
Brown family 81, 511
Jonas Davis 86
Maj. Nathan
Goodale 81
Benoni Hurlburt
 510
Moravian Indians
 20
Abel Sherman 85
Robert Warth 85
Sherman Waterman
 88 Massas (Indian) 62
 fn.
Gen. Nathaniel 97,
 103, 105-6, 470
Massie's Station 97
MASTERS
 Benjamin 288
 C 600
 Joseph 285
 Joshua 288
 Phoebe Titus (w.
 Thomas A)
 Thomas A 278, 597
 Thomas H 288
 Zephaniah 260
Matamoros 592-3,
 602, 604
Matamoros Herald
 604
Matamoros (Mayor)
 595
MATCHETT
 George 285
MATHEWSON
 John 311, 657
 Nathan 657
 Noah 657
MATHER
 D P 519
 Richard 115, see er-
 rata
 Prof. W A 399
MATHERS
 Alexander 311
 Elizabeth 506
 Francis M 278
 Henry 285
 John 311
 Joseph 311
 Matthew 311
 William 285
MATHEW
 Miss 115
 D G 374
MATHEWS
 Abel 57, 363, 609,
 see errata
 Alfred F 1, 6, 7
 Allen 585
 Charity 609
 G G 374
 Hannah 609
 J T 424
 James B 226
 Jerusha True (w.
 Wm. P)
 John 25-6, 363, 609
 Maria Magruder (w.
 Thomas)
 Richard 115, see
 errata
 Samuel B 260
 Thomas 585
 William P 585
MATHEWSON
 Jeffrey 512
MATHUSS
 W E 588
MATTERN
 Christina Minich
 (2d w. Philip)
 Christina 584
 George 584
 Henry 560, 584
 Madeline 584
 Mary Chandler (1st
 w. Philip)
 Philip 114, 560, 584
MATTHEWS
 Capt. Abel 609, see
 errata
 Charlotte 609, see
 errata
 Elizabeth Woodard
 (w. Capt. Abel),
 see errata
 Hannah 609, see er-
 rata
 John 609, see errata
Penelope Morris
 609, see errata
Penelope
 Woodard (w.
 Philo) see errata
 Philo 609, see errata
MATTHEWS
 Capt. 161
 Cynthia 478a
 Daniel 448
 David 311
 Edward 311
 Elizabeth 554
 Ephriam 616
 George 605
 Henry C 260
 James Garnet 260
 John 25, 45, 46, 47,
 48, 50, 63, 64, 115,
 296, 609
 John T 316
 Miranda 656
 Penelope Morris (w.
 John)
 Penelope Woodard
 (w. Philo)
 Philo 609, see er-
 rata
 Prof. 399, 400
 Samuel 398
 Solon 296
 Stephen 296
 Stephen D 296
 Susanna 512a, 513
MATTHEWSON
 Jeffrey 57
MATZ
 Alice Hovey (w.
 Jacob Jr.)
 Carrie 585
 Catharine 585
 Catharine Kilzer (w.
 Jacob, Sr.)
 Elizabeth 585
 Elizabeth Stom (w.
 George)
 Emma 585
 George 585
 Henry 585
 Jacob 583
 Jacob Jr. 585
 Jacob Sr. 585
Maumee Indians 10

MAWHINNEY

Amy Wiley (w. J. B.)

J. B. 520, 525, 528

MAXON

Mrs. Betsey 688

Edwin 285

George 285

George W 296

Harriet 685

Harry 531

Mrs. Harry 531

Henry 48, 285, 530,

581, 683, 685

Isaac 120, 226, 356,

414, see errata

Lewis B 183

Lucy H McIntosh

(w. Samuel)

Mary E 658

Michael 150

Olive 659

Polly Wells (w.

Richard)

Richard 362, 581,

684-5

Russell W 293

Sally 735

Samuel 408

Sarah Tuttle 684

MAXWELL

George 482

Martha Spencer

Mills (w. George)

S Newton 308

Samuel 615

Dr. Samuel 398-9

William 102

Maxwell's Academy

615, see errata

MAY

H B 602

Col. John 45, 51-4,

58, 61, 61 fn., 56,

556, 558, 359

Joseph 51

MAYBERRY

John Pennybacker

120, 122

Lucy Willis Fearing

(w. John P.)

Mrs. Rebecca

Pennybacker 120,

122

MAYER

Felix 589

George 285

Mayflower (Boat) 46-

7, 48, 52, 502, 612

Mayhill Publications

Staff 740

MAYNARD

Daniel 58

MAYO

Daniel 58, 501, 510,

516

Mary Putnam (w.

Daniel)

MAYS

93

McABOY

Rev. James 385,

576, 645

McAFEE

see errata

Margaret 256

Margaret A 585

McAFEE

see errata

Henry 637

John 285

McAFFLE

Henry 318, see errata

McAFFLEE

Joseph Francis 288,

see errata

Thomas 258, see errata

McALLISTER

Charles Alden 285

Harriet Posey (2d

w. Madison)

Irene 736

James A 285

John 736

John M 285

M 658

Madison 375, 736

Mahala 736

Mary 736

Nancy 569

Olive F Owen (w.

John)

Sally Whitehouse

(1st w. Madison)

Wm. 285, 427, 736

McARTHUR

Col. Duncan 135

James 370

Dr. Thomas W 206

McATEE

Mr. 537

Benjamin 534, 540

Francis 253

Samuel M 258

William 536

William H 323

McBAKER

J 603

McBANE

William 589

McBEATH

John 285

McBEE

Jesse 278

McBETH

William 291

McBRIDE

John 593

McBURNLEY

Maj. William 186

McCABE

427

Mrs. 428

Robert 383

McCADDEN

George 147

McCADDON

Mrs. Betsey Devol

540a

Frank 150

James 150

Theodore 150

McCAFFREY

Rev. James 389

McCAIN

Emily J Dunbar (w.

Knotley)

Knotley 726

McCALL

Benjamin 278

Rev. H 600

James 151, 274, 278

William R 323

McCALLISTER

Charles 311

John S 300

Rosanna 544d

McCANNICK

George 694

McCANDISH

Anthony 134

McCANNE

John 533

McCARDLE

Clarissa 660

McCARTHY

Augustus 218, 221

McCARTY

Christopher 258

J C 423

Lucien 258

Thomas 264

W C 226

William 375

McCASKEY

C B 367, 423

McCAUSLAND

Catherine 731

McCLAY

Cassius 145

McCLEAN

Andrew 139

McCLELLAND

Gen. George 149,

180, 184, 200, 231,

232, 237, 241, 492

Margaret 496g

McCLINTICK

Mrs. 383

Catherine 426

McCLUNG

Forrest 625

Sidney 615

McCLURE

Capt. 379

Alonzo 271

Andrew 58, 71,

530-1, 538, 540,

549, 559

Andrew J 320

Dyer 200

Dyer G 271

Harry 644, 648, 650

Henry 0271

Dr. James (Surgeon) 412

Lavinia Humiston

(w. Harry)

Mary E 650

Polly Devol (w. Andrew)

Theodore D 320

Thomas 263

McCLUSKEY

Rev. John 123

McCOLLISTER

Louis 423

McCOLLUM

Rev. S 541, 542

McCOMBS

John 139

McCONNELL

Edward 723

Lydia 723

McCONNEL

Samuel 533

McCOOK

Gen. 188, 234

Maj. Daniel 162,

163, 495

McCORMICK

22, 223

Rev. 588

Capt. A W 300

Andrew 131, 132

A D 542, 681

Capt. Andrew W

112, 145, 148, 169,

173, 218, 219, 221,

228, 359, 416

C N 546

F R 132

Isaiah 227

John W 132

L C 548

Robert 601

Col. R W 133, 169

Sarah 702

Mrs. Sarah Fox 702

Rev. Thomas 682,

709

McCOWAN

Asa 656

Isaac S 285

Jeanette Smith (w.

Wm. H.)

Mirinda J Matthews (w. William)

Lieut. J S 133

Dr. 662

Dr. Wm. 662, 663

Dr. William L 423,

656

William 656

Wm. H 606, 659

McCOY

Alexander 139

Betsey H 557

Elizabeth Davis (w.

Wm. W.)

John C 347, 367,

371, 390, 391, 736

Joshua 316

Dr. Mary Comley (w.

John C.)

Thomas A 311

W W 436

Wm. W 436, 736

McCRACKEN

Dr. John 566

John S 416

Josephine 596

McCUAIG

Catharine Harvey

(w. John)

John 712, 713

K 522

Margaret 713

Mary C 713

McCUE

Rev. P K 600

McCULLOCH

Anthony W 296

McCULLOCK

73

Daniel 541

William 58, 71, 531

McCULLOM

Francis 555

Isaac 278

John 278

McCULLOUGH

D 285

H 266

James 599

John 147, 151, 278

McCUNE

Mr. 581

Mrs. 428

Hannah 581

Helen 650

Mary 581

Thomas 105

McCURDY

Capt. 24, 65, 361

Joshua 258

McCUTCHEN

J 519

McDANIEL

Frederick P 269

McDANIELS

J 311

McDEED

John 324

McDERMOTT

James 627

Margaret Dyar (w.

James)

Michael 632

John C 187, 210

Col. Angus 19

Henrietta 558

James 324

John 324

Nancy 707

- McQUIG John 718
McTAGGART
 Alexander 206, 271
 Anna E 528
 Neil 271
 Niel 649, 651
McTERRY
 Rev. James 521
McTERRY
 392
McVAY
 Charles 565, 685
 Esau 291
 Mrs. J. D. 685
 Luther 569, 685
 Martha J. Hill (w. Luther)
McVEY
 Miss Mary 639
 Margaret Hill (w. Reuben)
 Reuben 565, 569, 664, 685
 Thomas Jett 311
 William 685
McWILLIAMS
 James 112, 599, 602
 Lewis H 278
 Rebecca 599
MEACHAM
 58
MEAD
 Charles K 269
 David G 696, 699
 Henry 696
 John 586
 Gen. John 159, 181, 183, 186, 217, 249, 597
 Orpha Dodd (w. Henry)
 Uriah 696
MEAGEL
 Jacob 422
MEANS
 Elizabeth 390, 486, 518, 632
 James 542
 Col. John 486, 487
 Mary C 130
 Wm. C 130
MEARS
 Rev. William 543
Mechanic steamboat
 432
MEDBURY
 Charles 527
Medical Society.
 Washington Co.
 412
MEDLEY
 Elizabeth 701
 John 701
MEDLICOTT
 Graydon 226
 John 304
 John J 150
MEEK
 Jacob 269
 Lydia 732
 Samuel 269
 T D 732
 William J 272
MEEKER
 Forrest 625
MEKES
 Gideon 278
 Isaac 66-7
MEER
 Patrick C 272
MEERS
 Patrick C 150
MEESE
 Mrs. 427
Meeting House on Bluff (Belpre) 517, 520
MEHRTENS
 Hedwick 659
Megachuke 12
MEIGHAN
 John 177
MEIGS
 Col. Return Jonathan 66, 28, 45, 47, 54-5, 58, 64-5, 76, 80, 103, 109, 115-6, 116a, 362, see errata
 Gov. Return Jonathan 65, 80, 138-40, 143, 357-9, 362-3, 381, 420-1, 435, 461-2, 470-1, 478, see errata Sophia Wright (w. Gov. R.J.)
 Timothy 362, 462
Meigs County 608, 612
 Meigs Creek (block-house) 56
Meig's Station 63
MEISENHOLDER
 John 372, see errata
 William, see errata
MEISER
 Mr. 369, see errata
MEISTER
 Mr., see errata
 Christian 304
 Frederick 423
 J 369
MELEVERY
 Agnes 564 b
MELITZER
 Carl 600
MELLEN
 Franklin S 281
MELLON
 Samuel, see errata
MELLOR
 see errata
 A S 7
 Ann Eliza Leach (3 d w. Jesse)
 David Higgins 646
 Edward 645
 George 646
 Dr. J B 412
 Jane 645
 Jesse 644 b, 645, 646
 Joanna 645, 646
 John 623-4
 Mary Ann 645
 Mary Ann Kidwell (1st w. Jesse)
 Mary Corner (w. Samuel Sr.)
 Matilda Elliott (2nd w. Jesse)
 Nancy 645
 Nancy Jordan (w. Samuel)
 Prudence 645
 Samuel A 645
 Samuel Jr. 645, 646
 Samuel Sr. 623, 645-6
 Susan 645
 Thomas 327
 Walter H 308
MELLOW
 Samuel 269, see errata
MELONEY
 John 626
 Martha 626
MENDENHALL
 James 150
 William A 285
 William T 291
MENKEN
 Capt. 149
MENZIE
 R C 519
 Rufus C 266
Megachuke Indians
 11
MERABIN
 L R 306, see errata
MERCER
 427
 Caleb 640
 James A 640
 John 542
 Tabitha Cecil (w. James A)
MEREDITH
 John 261, 708
 New 261
 Newman 706, 708
MERIAM
 (Merriam)
 S N 561, 563, 586
MERIBER
 Leonidas 147
MERICAL
 A mos 285
 John 281
MERIDETH
 David 139
 Brig. Gen. Solomon 238
MEROIN
 Picket 58, 363
 Polly Warch (w. Picket)
MERRIAM
 Mrs. 426
 Anna 613, 621
 Reuben 426
 William S 258
Merriam's Mill 587
MERRIDE
 James 598
 Rosetta Cline (w. James)
MERRILL
 Mrs. 427
 Capt. 149, 224
 Col. 225
 Albert G 183, 184
 D H 717
 David H 713
 Hon. ES 127
 James W 264, 713, 718
 John 114
 John P 195
 Rebecca Green (w. James W)
 Simeon 58
Merrill Brothers 713
MERVIN
 see errata
 George W 296, see errata
MERWIN
 see errata
 Lewis P 296, see errata
MERYDITH
 Rolla 603
METCALF
 Martha 490
METHENY
 John 571
 Mary Seever (w. John)
 Nathan 571
 Noah 571
Methodists, Bonn
 German 589
Methodists, Mt.
 Ephraim 588
Methodist Churches & Ministers 382, 383, 389, 506, 518, 519, 521, 532 d, 533, 539, 542, 543, 561, 575, 582, 587-8, 600, 661, 679, 687, 688, 689, 695, 698, 702, 708, 709, 715
Methodish Meetings (humor) 539
Metric System 365
Miami Exporting Co. 372
Miamis (Indians) 9, 10, 12, 62, 71, 133
MICHAEL
 Daniel 706, 708
MICHAELIS
 Emil see errata
 H 423
 Herman 114
MICHAM
 William M 327, see errata
MICHELIS
 Emil 422, see errata
MICHENER
 Esther 673
Michikiniqua (Miami Indian Chief) 133
MICHNER
 Ezra 631, 674
 Sarah 631
MICKENS
 Henry 675
MIDDLESWART
 see errata
 A. A 151
 Arvilla 739
 Austin 636 b
 Clark 565
 Frances 738
 G W 151
 Capt. Hamilton 224, 225, 577
 Jacob 226, 565, 574, 576
 Sarah E Dye (w. Austin)
Middle Settlement (Belpre) 499
MIDDLESWARTZ
 George W 311
 H F 311, see errata
 N 312, see errata
Middletown Twp. 109
MIEGLE
 Jacob 615
MIER
 1588
MILBACH
 Jacob 614
MILBURN
 Andrew 139
Mill Run 633, 634
MILES
 Capt. Benjamin 58, 381, 382, 505, 510, 513, 514, 515, 517, 518, 521, 526
 John 58, 226
 Maria 517
 Mary 506
 Priscilla 517
 William 281
Miles House 505
Miles' Oxen 505
MILFORD
 Joseph T 139
Military Adventures 27, 449
Military Committee, County 153
Militia, Wash. Co. 164-5
Mill Creek 56, 595, 601, 603
MILLARD
 Capt. George 195
 J F 422
Mill Fork Creek 658
MILLER
 43, 606
 Mr. 43
 Mrs. 427
 Capt. 149
 Adie 732
 Albert H 639
 Austin 318
 Capt. C A 737
 C P 546
 Charles 258
 Charles Augustus 294
 Col. Charles 136, 206, 602
 Conrad 600, 732
 Daniel 732
 Rev. E L 542
 E T 574
 Edward 58, 134, 320
 Elbridge 272
 Eliza Sharp (w. Emanuel)
 Elizabeth Burk (w. Conrad)
 Elizabeth J 639
 Elizabeth M 599, 639, 732
 Ellsworth ("Elf") 670
 Emanuel 732
 Emeline 732
 Enoch 732
 Frederick 278, 301
 Gen. 138
 George 639, see errata
 George W 639
 Greenbury 312
 Gressy (w. John) 564 c
 H C (Negro) 522
 H 5521
 Hammond 708
 Hannah M 639
 & Hanshumaker 603
 Henry 261
 Henry B 732
 Henry J 306
 Hiram H 263
 Isaac 263, 732
 Rev. J 588
 Jacob 139, 737
 Jadida 732
 James 278, 294
 Lieut. James 135
 Jane 638, 645
 Jane Swesey (w. Robert)
 Jane Taylor (w. John)
 Joel 732
 John 57, 72, 73, 261, 278, 281, 285, 427, 564 b, 683, 688, 706, 708, 737
 John W 737
 John William 293
 Jonathan 728
 Joseph 58, 150, 577
 Josiah 263
 Laura Orinda Arnold (w. Oliver)
 Lucy 732
 Lydia 732
 Louise Taylor (w. George)
 M 151
 Rev. M R 576
 Magdalen 732
 Manual 269
 Margaret J Scott (w. John W)
 Margaret Bell (w. Capt. C A)
 Marietta Fuller (w. Robert T)
 Mary 564 a, 667
 Mary B 732
 Mary E 583
 Mary Keller (w. Jacob)
 Mary McVey (w. William)
 Moses 105
 Nancy 732
 Nathan 330, 708
 Oliver 330, 720
 Mrs. Oliver 720
 Peter 330
 Mrs. Polly Bartlett 506
 Robert 288, 727
 Robert T 114, 226, 719, 737
 Robert Taylor 294
 Samuel 139, 699, 732
 Stephen O 263
 Susan E 570
 Susannah B 639
 Thomas 258, 330, 732
 William 48, 639
 William K 263
 Wyatt 732
MILLIGAN
 George 297
 John 105, 107, 297
 William 297
MILLIKEN
 Col. Minor 186, 188
 Mr. 40
MILLS
 Mrs. 405-6, see errata
 Ann Smith (w. Lewis)
 Benjamin 68
 Retsey Gates (w. Wm. Webster)
 Charles 58, 406, 536
 Christopher 330
 Deborah Wilson (1st w. Col. John)
 Dorothy Webster (2d w. Col. John)
 Emma 721
 Esther 721
 Ezra 721
 Gideon 721
 Isaac 721
 J S 721
 Job 721
 Col. John 148, 155, 226, 340, 342, 347, 366-7, 368 a, 370-1, 373-5, 377, 397-8, 402, 445-6, 480-2, 484, 544 c
 John (of Va.) 488
 John Jr. 370
 John A 721
 Prof. John Lawrence 389, 400, 405, 447, 644
 Lewis 721
 Martha Spencer 482
 Reuben 721
 Rebecca 721
 Sarah 482, 721
 Simon G 721
 Thomas W 330, 721
 W J 721
 Capt. William 58, 363, 480
 William Webster 197, 419, 481
Mills (grist, etc.) 54, 56, 164, 370-2, 478 a, 501, 506, 512-3, 524, 531, 533-5, 538-40, 549, 555, 562-3, 578, 586, 603, 607, 617, 620, 648, 656, 658, 664, 667-8, 687, 691-2, 694, 696-7, 702-4, 708, 718-9, 724, 729, 733
Mills House 406
Millsburgh (Wolf Creek Mills) 55, 461, 531, 622
MILLSTEAD
 Isaac 266
Milltown (Newport Twp.) 566, 569
MILNER
 Mrs. Louise Becket 554
MILROY
 Gen. 178, 179, 180, 185, 216
 R H 496
MINDER
 A W 603
 Alexander 602
 Jacob 278
MINE
 L 151
MINER
 Mrs. 427
 Amanda 507
 Mrs. Esther 624
 George G 190
 John H 178
 John N 146, 301
 Capt. Matthew 140, 466
 Matthew 427
 Robert W 301
 Smith 181, 301
 Wesley 146, 180
Mineral spring 730
Minerva 415
MING
 Smith 151
Mingo Bottom 12
Mingoes (Indians) 10, 12
MINICH
 Christina 560
Ministerial Section (291, 434, 507)
MINOT
 James 57
Minsi (Indians) 11
MINSTER
 Corp. Wm. F 178
MINTON
 Jacob 729
MINTUM
 Capt. Wm. H 178
MIRABEN
 L R 177, see errata
 Leonidas R 301
MIRACLE
 see errata
 Garrison 288, see errata
 Isaac 288
 Jesse 288
 John 288
 John Long 288
 William 288, see errata
MISERN
 Abalom 134
MISENHOLDER
 William 306, see errata
MISER
 Adam 327
MISKIMENS
 David 138
MITCHELL
 495, 673
 Rev. 630
 David 271
 Edward S 294
 Eliza 384
 Elizabeth 685
 Elizabeth Clark (w. Thomas)
 George B 271
 Hannah E Burnett (w. John)
 Hugh 649
 Israel 278
 J M 223, 603
 Jeanette 650
 John 57-8, 149, 227, 266, 271, 593, 598, 650, 660
 Joseph 599
 Joseph M 278, 598
 Margaret Dunlap (w. Hugh)
 Mary 657
 Mary E Swarts (w. Joseph M)
 Nathaniel 660
 Gen. O M 197, 224, 232, 233
 & Rice 602
 Robert 58, 140
 Samuel 57, 68
 Sarah 598
 Thomas 218, 221, 271, 598
Mitchell Boys 664
MITCHEM
 William M, see errata
MITSTEAD
 Isaac 266, see errata
MIXER
 Mr. 424
 Isaac 58, 360
 Louis 385
 Peter 4
MOAT
 Mathias 356
MOCKER
 David 272
MOFFAT
 Rev. John 599
MOFFITT
 Anna 714
Mohawk Indians 14
MOLDER
 Mrs. Margaret Gettel 528
MOLINEY
 Reuben 328, see errata
MOLST
 John 114
MONAHAN
 Dr. Arthur D 210, 215
Monetary Methods 364-5
MONETT
 A Lake 308
 Isaac 609
 Mary 1
 Moses M 308 MONEY
 Rev. D S 519
MONROE
 Abner S 330
 Pres. A. B. 261
 Pres. James ("Jemmy") 471
 Col. James 15, 22
 Lewis 147
 Squire 609
Monroe County 565
Monroe County Militia 164
MONTBRUN
 Timothy de 13
MONTEITH
 Mrs. J 702
MONTGOMERY
 589
 Miss 720
 J J 670
 Joshua 733
 Michael 720
 Hon. William 128
MONTOUR
 Andrew (Halfbreed Indian) 16, 17
MOODEY
 Mr. 424
MOODY
 John 588, 716
 Rev. John 698
 Nathan 588, 716
 Nathaniel 53, 57
MOOR
 Abijah 312
 E R 316
 John 58
 Landon Norman 291
MOORE
 A F 151, 301
 A L 661
 Rev. A L 577
 Aaron 258
 A. M. 266
 Rev. D H 155
 D R 61 d, 721
 Daniel 139
 Mal. David A B 186, 188
 Edward R 218
 Eliakim H 111
 Flora Rebecca 496
 Frank A 263
 George 147, 151, 272, 304
 Grandville 282
 Henry 320
 James 519
 Capt. James 648
 Jane 608
 John 278
 Rev. John J 575
 John S 578
 Dr. Jonas 110, 398, 410, 429
 Joseph 496 g, 727
 Julia 496 h
 L R 182
 Lewis Roe 301
 Louisa Kidwell Chute (w. William)
 Margaret McClelland (1st w. Col. Thos. Watson)
 Mary Green (2d w. Col. Thos. Watson)
 Melissa 648
 Nora King (w. Dr. R) P R 258
 Phillip 729
 Phoebe 685
 R T 525
 Mrs. Rachel S Edwards 702
 Rebecca Watson (w. Joseph)
 Rowena Green 496
 Sampson 420 a
 Samuel 140
 Shadrack 278
 Sheldon M 278
 Sophronia Chute (w. Joseph)
 Susan F 579
 Thomas W 320
 Col. Thomas Watson 151, 161, 164, 168, 198, 200, 227, 241, 424 a, 641, 496 g
 Col. W C 366
 Waters & Co 370
 William 278, 288, 304, 727

- William H 316
William M 269
Zedick J 258
- MOOREHEAD
Dr. Jos. C 164
- MOORLAND
Elizabeth 593
- MORAN
Anthony 269
- Moravian Missions
11, 19-20
- MORDOUGH
William 670
- MORE
Alfred 308
Savannas 698
- MORELAND
Elizabeth 695, 697
Jane 575, 694, 695
Jane Little (w. Rhesa)
John 691, 695
Nancy R 694
Rhesa 690, 691, 693
- MOREY
Arlie 554
Benson 554, 713
Cyrus 554, 713
Daniel 731
Elizabeth (w. Nathaniel)
Maria 554, 713
Mary 554
Nathaniel 554
Rebecca 554
Rebecca Hagerman (w. Cyrus)
Retta 554
William H 291
- MORFOTT
Samuel 139
- MORGAN
Rev. 729
Daniel 549
David 445
Diane 583
Col. Dick 159, 161
Maj. Edward S 195, 255
Eveline 594
George Henry 316
James Wheeler 316
John 541, 543
Gen. John 159-165, 187, 188, 191, 193, 196, 232, 234, 252
Samuel 601
Susanna 549
Vincent 320
William 139
- Morgan County, Ohio 612, 614, 669, 670, 671
- Morgan County Militia 164
- Morgan's Raid 159-65, 688a
- MORGANSTAR
Jacob 615
- MORGANSTERN
F 63
- MORGAREIDGE
Simeon 681
- MORGARIDGE
Daniel J 301
R. Arthur 301
William 301
- MORLAN
Barzillei 330
Samuel 630
- MORRELL
Mary 694
- MORRIS
Mrs. 385
Mr. 608
Capt. 25, 222, 379
Allen 258
Augustus 146, 306
Benajah 263
Benajah K 314
Bishop 644, 648, 681
Benjamin 721
Calvary 111
Charles 22
Col. Charles H 217, 218
Daniel 320
David 359
Delia Loring (w. Rev.)
Delliah Biggens (w. John)
Eleanor 627
Eliza 627
Eliza Ann Tulis (w. Joshua Jr.)
Elwood 327, 331, 627
Elza 327
George M 263
Harvey 327, 627
Henrietta 482
J W 718
- James 261
James R 111
John 258, 314, 327, 627, 721
John R 320
John W 263
Jonathan G 314
Joseph 320, 519
Joseph P 263
Joshua Jr. 721
Louisa 623
Lydia (w. Benjamin)
Minerva 627
Mordcai 331
Nancy 627
Nathan 331
Nehemiah 138
Penelope 609
Philip 324
RS 314
Rachel Coppark (w. John)
Rev. 504
Sarah 582
Silas S 331
Temer 627
Thomas 274, 682
Thomas C 314
W 729, 730
William 21, 258, 314, 627
William H 263, 306
- MORRISON
A J 544, 554
Catharine McCausland (w. John)
Rev. Chester 542
J A 675
James 536, 681
John 731
Margaret 731
Mary A Laffin 712
Polly 732
Temperance Jackson (w. A J)
- MORROW
Andrew D 273
James 331
James Jr. 722
James Sr. 722
Jeremiah 105, 106, 111
Capt. Jesse 198, 722
Capt. John C 223, 225
Joseph W 263
Polly 722
Rebecca (w. James Sr.)
Sarah Moore (w. James Jr.)
William 273
- MORSE
Dr. 634
Mr. 654
Mrs. 427
Annette (w. J G)
Charlotte Palmer (w. William)
David 359
Elizabeth Shankland (w. Marcellus J)
J G 255
John P 304
John W 396
Justus 427
Justus Jr. 396
M 347
M D 588
M J 348, 430
Madison 316
Madison R 589
Manley 142
Marcellus J 737
Marcellus P 111, 112
Maria M 396
Margaret 428
Mary E 737
Mary J 445
Moses 58, 363
Nehemiah 134, 139
Mrs. Pearce 427
Pearce 427
T W 367
Thomas 446
Wayne 316
Wilbur F 147
Wilbur Fisk 316
Wilkinson M 316
William 737
William S 151, 304
William Wallace 316
& Wilson 372
Winslow W 316
- Morse Run 654-6, 658, 661-2, see errata
- MORTER
H M 712
- Mary Woodruff (w. H M)
- MORTLEY
D H 422
- MORTON
Charles H 685
Jackson 297
Jane 597
O P 168
- MOSBACH
Rev. Jacob 388, 389
- MOSBURG
William 656
- MOSEL
James 266
- MOSER
C 389
- Moses footprints 580
- MOSHER
see errata
- MOSHIER
Daniel 330, see errata
Samuel T 331, see errata
- Moss Run (see Morse Run) see errata
- MOSSBURGH
William 288, see errata
William A 288, see errata
- Motion, perpetual 501-2, 512
- MOTT
Daniel 723
Sarah 723
- MOTTER
Elizabeth Hoffman (w. John)
Elizabeth Bisantz (w. Lewis)
John 687
Lewis 687
- MOTZ
Jacob 589
- MOULTON
Edmond 48, 426, see errata
Edward 363, see errata
Lydia 363, 406, see McKawen
William 48, 363, 406, 443
- Mound Cemetery 75, 427, 441-2, 454
- Mounds (Indian) 439
et seq., 498, 499
- Mount Dudley 569
- Mount Ephraim 662, see errata
- Mt. Ephraim Meth. Church 588
- Mt. Pisgah 580
- Mount Pisgah Church 661
- MOUSTIERS
Count 356
- MOWRY
John 139
Steven 139
- MOXLEY
Maj. John D 186
- MOXON
Isaac 414, see errata
- MUELLER
Jacob 417
Louis 417, 423
Michael 689
& Schultz 417
Theobald 689
- MUISENHELDER
John 372, see errata
- MULCHER
Elmira 625
- MULHANE
Dennis 150, 301
- MULINEX
David B 291, see errata
John 291, see errata
- MULL
George W 288
- MULLEN
Jacob 720
James 544
Mary 528, 569
Mary C Cook (w. William)
Sarah Poland (w. William Sr.)
William 525, 528
William Sr. 569
- MULLENIX
see errata
Owen 288
Robert 114
Thomas 288
Rev. Wm. 173
- MULLIGAN
M 522
- MULLIN
John 723
- MULTON
Jacob 139
John 673
Lucy (w. John)
- MUMFORD
Mrs. F 174, 176
Rev. 147
T J 391
- MUNAM
Mrs. Katherine 466
- MUNCEY
John D 297
Montgomery 297
- MUNCTON
Enoch 328
Isaac 347
- MUNCY
Isaac 297
- MUNN
648
John 593
- MUNNEL
George 316, see errata
- MUNNELL
George, see errata
- MUNROE
Dr. 720
Capt. Josiah 48, 92, 112, 359, 363, 420, 444
- MUNSELL
Levi 58, 359, 363, 368, 467, 501
David 575, 690, 693, 695
Elias 668, 669
George 669, 672
James M 668, 669, 670, 672, 673
Jesse 716
John 668
Malinda Pewthers (w. Elias)
Mary Delse (w. John)
Mary Little (w. David)
Mary Palmer (w. Jesse)
Nancy Breckinridge (w. James M)
& Buell's 419, see errata
- MURCHY
John 264
- MURDER 694
- MURDOCK
Andrew 316
Churchill 316
James 289
Lewis 316
- Murdock Cemetery 673
- MURDOUGH
Charles J 314
J G 314
- MURPHY
A 519
Henry 427
Nathaniel 227
Samuel 138
William 273, 281
- MURRAY
Mrs. Adaline Swift 553
Daniel 697
Mrs. Eliza Nickerson 553
Isabel 697
George 519
Musician (C W) 227
- Muskingum Academy 393-4, 483, 611
- Muskingum Company 151
- Muskingum (Indians) 9, 10
- Muskingum legends 552c
- Muskingum River 11
- Muskingum River Improvements 100, 130, 339-40, 487
- Muskingum Twp. 109, 605-6
- MUSSER
George 702
Mary 702
Mary O'Hanlon (w. George)
- "Mustang Linament" 375
- Mutilation of Indian 75
- Mutual Assurance Co. 510
- MUZZY
Col. L F 165
- MYER
Henry 285
John 285
- MYERS
Eliza Libby (w. Henry)
Harriet Beebe (w. William)
Henry 278
John 278, 664
Mrs. Henry 599
Martha 625
Mary 727
William 269, 625, 708
William Larwell 278
- MYRES
David 289
Jacob 318
James 289
Jonathan 289
William 289, 318
- Names (proposed, N. W. Terr. & Marietta) 36-7, 355-6
- NASH
Capt. 581
C A 526
Chester 581
David 581
Samuel 580, 581, 687
Simeon 112, 128, 398
- Nashville, Battle of 171
- National Bank 534
- National Guard 168
- National House Tavern 368
- NAYLOR
A W 721
Harrison 189, 297
James M 297
Madison J 150
Rebecca King (w. A W)
- NEAL
Amanda 738
Dion 733
Edmund 711, 719
George 195, 429
William 71
- NEALE
George 348
- Neal's Station 78
- NEALY
Thomas 58
- NEASON
John 328
- NECHBOLD
Edward 126
- NECHLOW
Jacob 138
- NEED
Nancy E 571
- NEEDHAM
Mr. 427
Jasper 519, 651
Mary H (w. Noah)
Michael H 158, 436, 739
Noah 739
Sophronia 651
Stephen 519, 651
- NEELY
Benjamin 140
NEFF
Isaiah 706
Negroes 78, 80, 100-1, 360, 427, 429, 462, 510, 521-2, 525, 561, 623, 657, 688, 733
- NEIGHAM
John 147
Neil's battery 212
Neil's Station 509
- NEISWONGER
Dr. 683
- NELLES
Osias 195
- NELLY
Charles 602
Nelly House 602
- NELSON
232, 233, 234
Philip O 294
Susan 598
- NENN
George 278, see errata
John 278, see errata
Jonas 278, see errata
Perley J 261
R H 261
- Netawatamaes (Indian) 11
- Nettle 509
- NEU
Jacob 605
- NEUBERGER
Frederick 417
- NEUGENT
Alexander S 228
J 716
Rev. 601
- NEUN
George, see errata
George, see errata
Jacob, see errata
Rev. John 600
Jonas 589
Lewis, see errata
Rev. Tunis 600
- NEUTIN
John 349, 375, 404
- New Jerusalem Church 564c
- New Philadelphia 19
- New Year's Creek 683
- New York Claim 13-4
- NEWAL
Thomas 139
- NEWBANKS
Alfred D 328
Archibald 627
Caroline Walbridge (w. Levi)
Elza 627
George 627
Joseph 627
Levi 627
- NEWBERG
William 274
- NEWBURY
Joseph 503, 519
- Newbury Settlement (Belpre) 55, 79, 80, 506, 520, 521, 526
- Newcomer (Indian King) 11
- Newcomerstown 11
- NEWEL
Erastus R 269
- NEWELL
Arthur C 197
Samuel 58
William 58, 531
- Newell's Run 563, 564, 565, 567, 568, 570, 575, 577, 594, 808
- NEWGEN
Rev. Mr. 644
- NEWLEN
David 312
Henry 312
Ira 312
Martin 312
- NEWLIN
Jacob 658, 701
Sarah Tice (w. Jacob)
- NEWMAN
A R 603
Elizabeth 707
Henry 278
John 269
- NEWMONGER
Rev. Father 703
- NEWPORT
F F 150
J R 150
J Ross 266
Newport 7, 564, 564a, 564b, 565-6, 568, 572, 574-5, 578, 601, 613, 660, see errata
- Newport Literary Institute 564a
- Newport Lyceum 564a
- Newport Twp. 109, 563-6, 699
- Newspaper Editors, Wash. Co. (C.W.) 228
- Newspaper, first 412
- Newspaper, German 131, 417
- Newspapers 228, 412-7, 524, 227, 546, 604
- NEWTON
C H 186, 350, 375, 385
Charles 306, 375
Elias 634, 635
Harriet Humphreys (w. Stephen)
Isaac 716
J L W 164, 544
John 155, 161, 187, 190, 347, 349, 374-5, 404, 616, 635-6, 660, 663
Joseph 626
Mrs. Jane Beach 553
- Miss M F 176
Margaret E 740
Nathan 324
Oren 635, 642, 643, 644, 651
Polly Smith (w. John)
S 385, 391
Sarah Beebe (w. Joseph)
Stephen 13, 14, 154, 174, 176, 347, 635, 636
Sylvanus 58, 616
William A 324
- Newton Twp. 109, see errata
Newton Twp. 109, see errata
- NICHOL
S R 544
- NICHOL
Daniel 686a
Robert Elder 274
Margaret 686a
- NICHOLLS
Daniel 688
- NICHOLS
E 519
James 567
M C 522
- NICHOLSON
61
John 512
Rebecca 528
- NICKEL
James 324, see errata
William 324, see errata
- NICKERSON
Allen 324, 533, 540, 553
Amanda 553
Anna 553
Charles S 553
Cynthia A Beach (w. Joseph)
Cyrus 553
Dorinda C Swift (w. Allen)
Eliza 553
Harry W 553
Hugh 553
Joseph 553
Mary Taylor (w. Joseph)
- NICHOL
Thomas 273
- NICHOLS
see errata
- NICOL
Daniel 686a
Robert Elder 274
Margaret 686a
- NIECE
Samuel H 150
- NINE
George 312, see errata
Jacob 312, see errata
Lewis 312, see errata
- NISEWONGER
John 58, see errata
- NIWONGER
Peter 76, 363, see errata
- NIST
George 732
Sarah E 732
- NIXON
Adaline Smith (w. George)
Albert 627
Augustus 618
B F 324
Charles T 627
Dena Benning (w. Charles T)
Edward William 294
Eleanor Morris (w. Albert)
Elizabeth Stephenson (2d w. Wm.)
Emma C 627
Francis M 627
Frederick 627
George 627
George D 627
George E 324
George H 129, 627
Harriet 568
Harriet 570
James 114, 490
James M 324
Mary E 627
Mary L 627
Mary Petit (1st w. Wm.)
Mary Wilson (w. James)

- Dr. Oliver W 206
Otis 627
Samuel 138
Sarah 568
William 324, 434,
565, 568, 570, 627
William M 324
William W 627
Zebulon J 294
- NOBLAISE
Peter 541
- NOBLE
670
Mr. (teacher) 393
John 582
Rev. John 389, 575,
632, 644
Rev. 562
- Noble County Bank
388b
- Noble Co. Militia 164
- NOE
George, see errata
Jacob, see errata
Lewis 151, 274, see
errata
- NOFFSINGER
Matthias 282
- NOGLE
George 634
Isaac 634
- Nogletown, see errata
- Nogletown (squatters) 634, 647, 651
- NOLAN
Allan 269
Enoch 269
Philip 312, see errata
Ryley 269
Zachary 269
- NOLAND
Ann Ballard Bull
(w. Stephen)
Augustus 271, 312,
571
Barnabas 731
Edmund 571
George W 266
James A 271
John 271
Johnston 312, 571
Joseph M 271
Justus 312
Justice 571
Lewis 571
Loring 271
M & Joseph 150
Maria Ritchey (w.
Stephen) Nancy Haynes (w.
Augustus)
Philip, 571, see errata
Sarah Frazee (w.
Thomas)
Stephen 312, 570,
571
Sylvester 271
Thomas 571
William 571
- NOMANS
Evan 663
- Nonpareil (schooner)
618
- NORMAN
A W 324
A Mos 269
A Zariah 269
Franklin 392
Joseph G 324
Jane 392
Rev. Mr. 733
Milton 324
Susan 392
William 324
- NORRIS
Adam 264
Peter 324
Shep. 671
William 331
- NORTH
Lydia 490
Thomas 147
- North Branch Allotment 621
- North West Territory
36-7, 43, 337, 607,
609, 612
- NORTHROP
Henry A 294
J. Thurston 294
- NORTHROP
Reuben 574
W W 525
- Northrup's Run 564
- NORTON
Col. 149
Major Augustus
190
Charles R 271
- George W 183, 184
- NOTT
Benjamin 258
Horace 390
Percival 221, 258
Perley J 304
Simon 541
William 258
- Novelty Mill 534
- NOWLAND
OB 378
- NOYES
Edward F 206, 209,
214, 215, 403
- Nozletown (squatter settlement) 634,
647, 651, see errata
- NUGENT
Henry E 150, 297
- NUGER
A 600
- NULL
Samuel 138, 324
- Nullifiers, the 416
- NULTON
Henry 314
John 535
- Nummel & Buells
419, see errata
- NYE
Anselm Tupper 1,
51, 113, 129, 131,
133-4, 145, 148,
157, 164, 347, 368,
370-1, 377, 380 fn,
388, 398, 425, 429,
31, 433, 439, 446,
446a, 463, 482-3,
532d, 533, 540
Arius 31 fn, 112,
114, 121-life of,
123, 125, 126, 129,
240, 373, 387, 397,
432, 444, 464, 483
A Spencer 121, 123,
369
Charles N 308 Desire Sawyer (w.
Ebenezer)
Dudley 436
Dudley Spencer 121
Ebenezer 58, 385,
463, 464, 608, 683
Edward C 304
Edward W 414,
464
George 462, 608, 683
& Gilbert (Belpre)
483
Harriet 125
Helen McLeod (w.
Reuben)
Horace 67, 80, 136,
140, 143, 429, 464,
483, see errata
& Hayward 377
Col. Ichabod 52-3,
57, 81, 121, 143,
347, 362-3, 369,
376, 414, 420-2,
430, 435, 443, 458,
462-4, 466, 482-3,
540, 552
Ichabod Hinckley
129, 464
J H 226
James W 211, 447
Lewis 608
Lorena 505
Mary C
Melzer 347, 608
Minerva Tupper
Rev. Mrs. Ichabod
Miriam C Linnell (w.
Ichabod)
Nathan 608
Neal 608
Panthia 464, 551
R L 496d
Rebecca (2nd W.
Ichabod)
Rebena Cram (w. A T)
Reuben 129, 131,
147, 198, 447
Reuben L 304
Rowena 464
Sarah 608, 737
Sophia 464
Virginia N 396
W S 342
William 369
William Spencer
112, 125, 369
- Nye Farm (Muskingum Valley)
619
- Nye Hardware Co.
483
- NYGHSWONGER
Jane Kerr (w. Peter)
- Peter 76, 363, see
errata
- Oak Grove Cemetery
444, 647, see errata
- Oak Hill Cem. 647,
see errata
- OAKES
C W 499, 516, 520
Charlotte 506
Cynthia 506
Daniel 506, 526
Elizabeth 506
Elizabeth Wells (w.
Silas B)
Joel 58, 502, 506,
510-1, 519-20, 526
Julia 506
Julia Clough (w.
Daniel)
Lizzie 506
Lucy 506
Noah 526
Silas B 506
Sumner 347, 506,
see errata
Susan 506
Susan Bent (w.
Joel)
William 506, 526
- OAKS
Joel 58, see errata
Sumner 347, see er-
rata
- OATLEY
Elizabeth 582
- O'LENAS
Abram Guyton 312,
see errata
Henry 312, see errata
- O'BLENESS
see errata
Elizabeth 582
- O'BRIEN
Ichabod 58, 564b
Susan 519
- Ocean Vessels 375 et seq., 617-8
- O'CONNOR
Mr. 634
& Blue 652
M J 525
- O'DARE
George 564b
- Odd Fellows 544, 561, 589
- O'DONNELL
John 273
- ODENAHAN
F 150
- ODLIN
J Hunter 210
- OESTERLE
George 605
Jacob 605
- Officers, Governmental (Territorial, National,
State, County) 11- 14
- OGLE
Mr. 582
George 582
James 582
Mary 552
Willard 261
William 582
- OGLESBY
Gen. 219
James 139
- OHANER
Joseph 140
- O'HANLON
James 702
John 702
Margaret Ellen 702
Mary 702
Mary Musser (w.
Phelix)
Patrick 702
Phelix 702
Richard 702
Sarah Tice (w.
James)
- OHARA
Capt. 22
- OVERBEIN
J D, see errata
- O'HERRN
James 318, see errata
- O'HERRON
James, see errata
- Ohio Canal 108, 483
- Ohio Company:
of Associates 31-5, 42, 45, 54, 89-5, see
errata
Colonial 117
Land, disposal of 54-5
- New England 45,
see errata purchase 42 purchase, mapping of 44-5
purchase, terms of 40 fn, 41-2
release from original contract 89 et seq.
Second purchase 91-
2
Shareholders 45, 92-4
- Ohio Eagle 527
- Ohio Gazette & The Territorial & Va.
Herald 412-3
- Ohio Life & Trust Co.
343
- Ohio River 446a, 572, 592
- Ohio River Stone Co.
634, 652
- Ohio Statehood 106
et seq.
- OHLE
Charles 304
William Henry 304
- Oil, Dutton Well 677
- Oil, first major hit
(Oct. 1859) 677
- Oil, Old Elm Oil Well
659
- Oil production 353, 663, 677
- OKEY
Mr. (teacher) 601
G T 225
- OLDHAM
Betty W Lovell (w.
Frank F)
Frank F 129, 131
Mary Curtis (w.
Wyllie H) Rebecca (w. Samuel)
- Samuel 123
Hon. Wylie H 114,
123-4, 129, 131,
618
- OLDS
Chauncey N 403
Edson B 423
- O'LEARY
Dennis 146, 177-8,
301
Mrs. 174
- OLIPHANT
Andrew 535
Mrs. Emma A Hayward 552
- Oliver Green (Block House) 81, 84-5, 87
- Oliver Green Creek &
Colony 531, 532, 534, 548
- OLIVER
Col. 711
Lt. Col. 30
Mrs. 630
Albert 294
Col. Alexander 54-
5, 57, 501, 510,
522, 559, 562
Betsey 501
Celina 610
David 294, 501
Electa 501
Henry 294
Hillery 278
James 289
John Weston 278
Launcelot 57, 501
Lottie (w. Col.
Alexander)
Lucretia 501
Margaret 639
Margaret E 639
Mary 501
Mehala 501
Col. Robt. 53, 55,
57, 62, 64, 68, 81,
91, 104-5, 110, 112,
360, 362, 419-22,
434, 461, 541, 546,
549, 551, 622, 629
Sally 501
Samuel 639
Sarah J 613
Thomas 294
William 57
- OLLIVER
Drucilla 657
- OLLUM
J 498
- OLMSTEAD
Carlyle 490
Lidia Hart (w. Carlyle)
- OLNEY
Asa 552
Celina M 558
- Coggeshall 58, 362, 610
Coggswell 58, see
errata
Eleazar 362, 610
Gilbert 139
Orin 258
Rachel 552
S S 605
Sylvanus 139, 541
W C 347
Washington 139
William C 423
- O'MALIA
Catharine 728
- O'NEAL
Rev. 729
Amanda 503
Colbert 503, 524
E M 149
E R 150
Eunice Cole (w.
Joseph Jr.)
Ezra 565, 570
Ezra H 503
Foster 503
George 570
Gilbert 570
Huldah 570
J C 503, 520
J L 149, 516, 522, 524
Jane 570
Jennie Rardin (w.
Ezra H)
Joseph 570
Joseph Jr. 503
Joseph Sr. 503, 519,
526
Judah 570
Matilda Ferguson
(w. Ezra)
Mrs. Nancy Scott
638
Owen 146, 177
Russell 503
Sarah Broome (w.
Gilbert)
Sarah Dana (w. Colbert)
Thomas 570, 577
Thompson 301
William J 558
- Oneidas 14
- O'NEIL
Lt. 162
Mrs. Eunice Cole
635
Ezra H 266
Gilbert 312
James H 301
- ONG
Capt. Oliver C 195
- Onondagas (Indians)
14
- Orchard - first 657
- Orchards 537, 690, 708
- Ordinance of 1784-
1785 21
- Ordinance of 1787 21,
34, 35 et seq.
- Ordinance of Freedom (anti-slavery)
35 fn, 36-8, 43, 53,
107, 144
- Orlando, The 466
- Orleans, The 377
- ORMISTON
A S 714
Agnes 714
Alexander 264, 659, 714
Anna J 714
Benjamin F 714
Christiana 714
Christiana Lamb
(w. James Sr.)
David 714
Isaac 714
Isaac A 264
Isabel Heslop (w.
Alex)
James Jr. 714
James Sr. 714
James F 264
James (Third) 714
Jane 714
Jeanette 714
John 539, 714, 716,
717
Lucinda Willworth
(w. James Jr.)
Mary 714
Merat 714
Nathan 58
Michael 716
Polly Conchrite (w.
James III)
Rufus 714
Ruth L 714
Thomas L 714
William 670, 714
- ORRIS
Prof. S Stanhope
399
- OSBORN
Ezra J, see errata
Geo. 139
Joseph 312
- OSBORNE
Rev. 729
Ezra 112
OSGOOD
Mr. 40
Samuel 40, 42
- O'SHURN
Ezra J 312, see errata
- OSTEND 693
- OSTIN
James 282
- OTIS
Gilbert 138
H L 294
Harrison G 258
Stephen 613, 616
Timothy 301
William 615
- Ottawas (Indians)
10, 12, 60-2
- OTTEN
John 308
- OTTERBEIN
Daniel 206, 301
J D 367
John 737
- OTTERBIM
J D 367, see errata
- OTTO
Sieur 41
- OTTON
Henry 588
- Overhead Bridge 688
- OVREY
56
- OWEN
Alexander D 258
Alice 558
Alison 557
Azabab 557
Betsey Green (2nd
w. Daniel)
Daniel 258, 557
Daniel Jr. 558
Deborah Sprague
(3rd w. Daniel)
Mrs. Electa K Mason 558
Florence 558
Hannah 557
Hannah Allison (1st
w. Daniel)
Henry 557
James 52, 53, 57,
89, 556, 557
James D 258
Leander 557
Linnie 558
Mrs. Mary Swift
553
Mary Gardner (w.
James) Mercy Chapman (w.
Daniel Jr.)
Ruby Brown (w.
James)
- OWENS
Dr. 587
Esther 726
Oliver G 557
Oscar F 258
Polly 557
Sally 557
Sylvester D 258
Vincent 557
Vincent B 258
W D 258
- Owl Hill 634
- Oxen (humor) 502
- Oyez (lost monetary)
54
- PACKARD
Deborah 647
- PADDEN
Anthony 147
Michael 147
- PADEN
Anna B 525
Rosa E 528
- PADGETT
Mrs. Retta Morey
554
- PAGE
Mr. 613, see errata
F M 522
May 274
Nathan 58
Page Farm 613
- PAINE
Capt. 211
Daniel 139
Edward 105
Hon. Isaac 124
& Sibley 496d
- PAINTER
John 331
Thomas 301
William 331
- Painter's Run 658
- PALMER
202, 673, 710
Miss 583
A 686
Albert 686
Almeta 686
Alzora 686
Andrew B 324
Annie 584
Annie Houghling
(w. Harris), see er-
rata
Augusta Evans (w.
Hiram)
Rev. B M 382
Benjamin 139, 666,
710, 711, 712
Carlton 576, 658
Catherine Beck
(w. John)
Charlotte 737
Clarence Maud 585
David F 716a
David F 308
Dudley 716a
Dudley R 853
Mrs. E 666
E H 712
Edward R 666
Edward W 853
Eliza 427
Elizabeth 666, 669,
671
Ellen (w. Thomas)
Ellen S 684
Elza H 712
Emiline S 686
Emma N 666
Ephraim 665, 666,
672
Eva 585
Frank 713
Frederick 58
G B 545
G Y 729
Gabriel T 328
George B 324
Gifford 686
Hannah Fox (w.
Joseph)
Harris 666, 711
Harris James 289
Henry 258
Hiram 716a
I F 264
Ida 585
Isaac 665, 666, 672,
734
Isaac L 324
J A Mos 331
J B 545
Rev. J D 716, 717
J F 717
J L 670, 712
Mrs. J P 493
Jabez 139, 665, 666,
671, 719
Jabish F 113
James 520
James D 314, 666
James Martin 666,
670, 672, 716a
Jane Gard 716a
Jerusha 665, 666
Jesse A 666
Jewett Jr. 131, 147,
173, 198, 248, 256,
316, 447, 493, 588
Jewett Sr. 131, 256,
493, 588
John 585, 624, 670
John A 151, 198,
256, 256a, 316,
585, 588, 589
John A Alexander 256
John D 324
J L 585
John L 248
John P 493, 686
Joseph 583, 665,
671, 710, 711, 712,
719
Joseph Jr. 666, 672
Joseph Sr. 666, 672
Joseph T 544
Julie 585
Kate Gordon (w.
Frank)
Laura 716a
Lydia 716a
Lydia Brown (w.
Jabez)
Margaret 589
Margaret A McFee
(w. John A)
Margaret Hough-land (w. Benjamin)

- Margaret J 686
Maria 720
Marie Woodruff (w.
J L Palmer)
Mary 666, 716a
Mary Dinsmore (w.
Ephraim)
Mary J Flanders
(w. Miles L)
Matilda Beck
(w. Moses)
Matilda Ward
(w. Joseph)
Miles L 274, 583
Moses 585
P 583
Pemberton 113.
520, 581, 585, 589,
717
Perses Tilton (w.
Isaac)
Phineas 538
Rachel Campbell
(w. Jewett Sr)
Ruth 666
Ruth G 716a
Saida M Scott (w.
Jewett Jr.)
Sarah 666, 712
Sivellous 686
Sophia Gard (w.
Jas. Martin)
Susan C (w. P)
Susan C Hardy
(w. Pemberton)
Thomas 686
Thomas F 686
William 258
Palmer Lodge, (No.
351) 589
Palmer Store 673
Palmer Twp. 109,
665, 670-1
PAMEY
Jean 58
Panther 680
PAPE
A deline 686
Annie 686
Christiana Fitch
(w. John D Jr.)
Dietrick 686
Henry 686
John D 686
John D Jr. 659, 686
John D Sr. 659
Martha 686
Mary E Effer (w.
Dietrick)
PARCEL
Theodore 324
PARDEE
Dr. 540, 545, 631
Paris, Treaty of 13
PARK
Hannah 625
Col John 418
Mary B 625
Solomon 558
Sophronia Mason
(w. Solomon)
PARKE
Hannah 623
Sarah 626
PARKER
A deline Bliss (w.
Joseph)
Adoniram 301
Alexander 21
Dr. CS 411
Florence Bliss 555
George 304
Henry 291
Isaac 261, 278
Isaac D 304
J J 226
James 297
James S 147, 150,
188
John 289
John A 291
John C 291
Dr. Joseph 533, 541,
544, 555
Mary 501
Robert L 291
Sheldons 519
Wm. 58, 150
PARKHILL
Sarah 486
PARKS
Miles 297
PARLIN
Benjamin 639
Ethelinda 639
George 639
James 639
John 639
Lizzie 639
Martha J Smith (w.
Benjamin)
Mary 639
Verandale 639
PARMALEE
Wm. F 183, 185
PARNE
Thomas 362
PARR
690
Mrs. Eliza Cady 697
Jacob 291
James 282
James H 278, see er-
rata
Lorenzo D 282
Nathan 593, 691,
692
Rebecca 593
Samuel 696, 697
Stephen 701
William Lafayette
291
PARRISH
Isaac 111
Parrot Guns 336
PARSONS
Enoch 58, 113, 361
Hardeson 324
Jonathan 458
Josiah W 269
Mehitable Mather
(w. Samuel H)
Robert K 269
Gen. Samuel Holden 15, 23, 27, 33,
5, 40-1, 43-5, 52,
54-5, 57, 101-2,
112, 115, 117, 358,
361, 418, 439, 458,
461
Silas D 324
W 269
William 264
Parson's Agency 93
PARTON
James 456
PASCAL
Rev. MK 518
PATCH
Mr. 31
PATCHEN
Mr. 63
PATENT
Nancy 553
PATRICK
Benj. 139
PATTEN
James 58, 66
Thomas 320
Patten's Mills P.O.
722 PATIENT
Andrew 669
Anna Hopkins (w.
Owen)
Earl 669
Freeman 669
Ida 669
John 669
John Cornes (w.
Thomas)
Owen 669
Owens 669
Robert 669
Sarah 669
Thomas 669
PATTER
Sally 619
PATTERSON
Dr. 658, 707
Abigail 669
Adams 521, 522
Alex 139
Barbara Ambler (w.
Wm.)
Benjamin 58, 89,
510, 513
Henry 282
James 58, 363, 599
Jane 527
John 32, 324, 538,
540, 553
Lucinda 599
Margaret 553
Mrs. Margaret 474
Mary 553
Matthew 534
Nancy 549
Nathaniel 58, 363
Samuel 668
Sarah 599
Theda 658
Wm. 599
Dr. Wm. T 663
PATTIN
Amanda Wells (w.
Richard Jr.)
David 640
Mary Smith (w.
Richard Jr.)
Richard 478a, 479
Richard Jr. 737
Sabra 737
Thomas 422
Thomas J 297
William S 737
PATTON
Mrs. Anna Hopkins 650
George D W 301
Mary Smith (w.
Richard)
Richard 636
Sarah 638
Thos. 634
Capt. Thos. J 151,
186, 187, 188
W M 634
Z O 677
Patton Farm 628b
PAUL
Col. George 137
John 77, 106
PAULEY
Benjamin T 271
PAULLEY
A mos 649
Elizabeth A 649
Pauper, common treatment 664, 719
Pawpaw Creek 579-
81, 589, 705, 708
PAXTON
Col. John C 149,
195-6, 196a, 233,
243-5, 304, 347
John L 312
Martin 312
S G 304
Sayers 195
Pay, soldiers 30
PAYNE
A D 301
Abram Darrow 306
C 732
Darius 264
Frances Smith (w.
C)
Francis M 314
Gabriel 670
Geo. 151, 226, 347
George 304, 306
George L 306
John 630
Joseph D 314
Orrin 316
Rufus 590
Samuel 630
Susan Dickson (w.
Truman)
Truman 701
PAYNTER
Daniel 282
PEABODY
Wm. 600
PEACE
J 597
Peach Brandy 7, 574
PEAKER
Charles 261
John 261
Joseph 261
Peter 261
PEARCE
Chas. 601
Charles 306
Ebenezer 151, 307
Edgar P 218, 253,
306
F E 374, 375
Francis 541
Israel 53
Israel 320
Thomas R 320
William 306
Rev. Wm. 152, 217,
562
Mrs. Wm. 174
Rev. W H 469
PEASE
Calvin 118
PECK
Miss 629
Ellen Cone (w.
Hiram A)
Hiram A 646
Lavina 583, 684
Wm. V 403
PECKENS
Austia W 312
George Connor 312
H Sheppard 312
PEDINGALE
638
Pedro (dog) 610
PEEK
Anna 625
PEET
Truman 538
PEGG
Henry 312
PEGRAMS
Gen. 191
PELTON
Milton 518
PEMBERTON
Gen. 159
Peninsula, The 531, 540
PENNINGMANS
Jesse 22
PENNOCK
Jacob 273
PENNY
Chas. H 193
Daniel 138
PENNYBACKER
Rebecca 120
PENROSE
Albert 331
Joseph 723
William 331
Pension Permit 593
PENWELL
Martin 258, see er-
rata
PENWILL
William 678
PEPPER
John Q 659
Olive Marion (w.
John Q)
Sarah E 659
PERCY
Lt. 25
PERDEW
Abbie A 637
Annel 637
Benjamin W 637
Charles 637
Clara L 637
Hannah L 637
Henry 320
John E 637
Joseph 637
Lizzie L 637
Mary J 637
Polly Lamma (w.
Charles)
Sarah Seffens (w.
Wm. Jr.)
Mrs. Sarah Seffens
650
Susannah Harris
(w. Wm.)
Wm. 637
Wm. W Jr. 637
PERKINS
663, 664, 676
Dr. A Thens 711
Albert 258
Anthony 580, 582,
586
Asa 582
Augustus 582
Betsey 475
Charles 261
E B 367
Dr. Elisha 484
Elizabeth Oatly
(w. William)
Ezra 582
Hannah 586, 687
Jacob 222
John 582
Mary Woodbridge
122
Miles O 316
Osborne 582
Percival 582
Phoebe 686
Rebecca 586
Rowena 678
Sally 591
William 582, 587
William Burris 261
Perpetual motion machine 501-2, 512
PERRIGO
Wm. H 183, 185
PERRIN
Mrs. Betsey Davis
551
Lyman 203, 309
PERRY
Miss 609, 666
Hon. Aaon F 403
Abigail Patterson
(w. John)
Armstrong H 314
Caroline 668
Catharine 669
Catharine Fisher
(w. Thomas)
Chauncey 668
Charles B 668
Commodore 138, 142
D C 632, 718
Edmund 666
Esther Hutson (w.
Jas. B)
Euphemia 668
Isaac 668, 670, 729
James 668
Jas. B 668, 670
John 139, 668
Lewis 668
Mahala 668
Margaret 668
Mary 667
Mary Armstrong
(w. Isaac)
Orange C 668
Rev. Peter 390
Phoebe Smith (w.
Jas. B)
Richard 324
Sarah 668
Susan 669
Thomas 668, 669
Perry Co. Militia 164
PERVIS
Lydia 429
PETAL
Joseph 58
PETER
John B 440a
John D 397
Joseph 614
L 577
PETERS
Judge 118
Rev. Bernard 520
Catherine 613
Charles 613
Jacob 613
John 389
Margaret 613
Philip, see errata
Phillip 613
PETERSON
Thomas 282
PETIT
John G 112
PETRE
see errata
Charles 307, see er-
rata
Frederick 307, see
errata
Petroleum 353, 564,
663, 677, 701
PETTEE
Hira 139
PETTIBONE
John W 324
"Petticoat Ford"
(Ohio River) 604
PETTIGREW
Pastor 392
PETTY
589
Betsey 569
Daniel 278
EW 498, 519
Henry W 569
Henry Wesley 312
Margaret 569
Margaret (w.
Pressly)
Maria Dye 565
Mariah 569
Nancy (w. Henry
W)
Pressly 139, 569, 629
Rosannah 569, 629
Stephen 569
PEWTER
Miss 608
PEWTERS
Mr. 670
Charles J 331
Elias 673
Elizabeth 667
Jas. 668
Malinda 668
Mary A 722
PEYTON
Mrs. Frances 594
Obseiah 696
Wm. 594
PFAFF
C J 581
Carrie Matz (w
O J)
Christopher J 316
Conrad 274
Daniel 151, 274
Jacob 463, 589
John 389, 615
Lewis 274, 307, see
errata
O J 585
Peter 589
PFEIFER
John 304
William 304
PFEIFFER
J 227
PFLUG
Mrs. Martha S
Wood 739
PHAFF
Elizabeth Lauer
(w. Lewis)
James 584
PHELPS
Col. 474
Benjamin 289
Elizabeth 504, 505
J D 440a
Jacob E den 289
James 147
John 427
Thomas 147, 177
Phi Beta Kappa 402
Phi Sigma (Lit.
Soc.) 402
PHILIPS
CS 324
PHILLIPS
Capt. 158
Rev. 681
Cajoe (Negro) 623
Ezra 58, 510
Rev. John 723
John 614
John B 440a
John D 397
Joseph 614
L 577
L W 423
Lewis 565
Lymen 301
Mary 614
Robert E 301
SW 722
TF 542
Thomas G 264
Wendell 145
PHILLIPE
Louis 431
Phoenix Mills 377
Photographers 368
PHUNSTER
John 656
Susan Jamison (w.
John)
Physicians 405 et seq., 523, 528, 536,
545, 562, 631, 663,
673
PIANA
58
PIATT
James 291
Pickaway 11 fn
Pickaway 338 fn
Pickaway, Ft. 16
PICKENS
RA 716
589
PICKERING
B C 331
Benjamin 722
Elizabeth 527
Elwood E 331
Jasper C 331
Timothy 35, 527
PICKET
Ida A King 721
JC 721
Picketed Point 52,
363
PICKLE
Matthais 282
PIER
Dr. Ira W 522, 523
PIERCE
676
Rev. (Negro) 733
Henry 285
Isaac 104, 105, 113,
115, 434, 505, 510,
515, 516, 523
Israel 57
J 261
Joseph 505, 541
Nathaniel H 403
Phineas 58
Phoebe 505
Robt. 655
Samuel 505
Stephen 57, 435
Susan Dye (w.
Robt.)
PIERPONT
Gov. 151, 178, 218
PIERRE
Jean 58
PIERROT
Eugene 668
Henrietta 673
Joseph 673
Pigeons 68
PIGGOT
Rev. H M 661
W H 542
Rev. W H 575
Rev. William 600
PIKE
Gen. 184
PILCHER
Miss 625
Miss Eliza (Greene)
567
Pillory & Stocks 102-
3, 110
Pilot 415-6
Pine Ridge Church
661
Pine Ridge M. E.
Church 575
PINKERTON
Andrew 639
Andrew S 640
Calvert 318, 639
Eleanor 640
James 639
John 639
Mary Wilson (w.
James)
Robert 639
Sarah 639
Sarah Coffman (w.
Thomas)
Thomas 639
William 639
Wilson 639
Pinkerton Farm 637
PINNELL
Dr. G N 523
George M 523, 528
Rosa E Padden (w.
George M)
Dr. Norval 523
PINNEO
Timothy S 399
PINNEY
Benj. 599
PINNING
E 694
Jane Edwards (w.
E)
Pioneer Assoc. of 1870 346-8
Pioneer Monument
526
Pioneers, the Original (1788) 48, 52-3,
see errata
PIPE
Capt. (Indian) 11,
47, 51, 59-0, 62,
356
PIPER
Sibyl 673
Pique 11 fn, 12, 18
PITCHER
William 278
PITKIN
John 541
Rev. John 587
PITTINGER
Capt. Wm. H 206
PITTMAN
Jacob 282
Pittsburg 10, 19
PIXLEY
A 347, 356, 385, 615
B F 158
Frank 304
Fremont 557
George 309, 446
Joseph 324
Lydia 557
Orgalus 139
Wallace W 147, 183,
185
William W 307
PLACE
Isaac 731
Joseph 519, 731
Nathaniel 731
Truman E, see er-
rata
PLAFF
Lewis 584, see erra-
ta
Plainfield (Beverly Waterford)
55, 64, 532, 546,
622
PLAN
Truman E 269, see
errata PLANT
Daniel A 297
PLANTS
Judge 126
Tobias A 111, 112
PLATT
Col. Richard 91
Richard 44
Smith 58
PLAYWELL
James 139
Pleasant Grove 644
Pleasant, W. Va. 601
Pleasanton 719, 724
PLESSNER
Maj. Henry 193
Plow Factory 371
PLUMER
Annie 573
Charles S 568
Eliza 568
Fanny 384
Happy F 568
Jane Fulton (w.
John M)
John 577
John A 113, 568

- John M568
Dr. Wm. 573
Wm. 568
Wm. F568
- PLUMLEY
J266
William266
- PLUMLY
J N 528
Jonathan S58, 528
Rebecca Nicholson
(w. Jonathan S)
Susan Shotwell (w.
J N)
- PLUMMER
Clarissa687
Nancy615
Robert L258
Dr. W W604
- Plymouth 719, 724
Plymouth Circuit
(now Watertown)
644, 652, 672
- POE
Adam519
- POGUE
John F403
- Point Pleasant, Bat- tleof18
- Point Pleasant
Church698
- POLAND
Richard637
Sarah569
Zimri316
- POLLARD
Elizabeth610
- POLLOCK
Capt. O W210
- POLTON
Pastor391
- POMEROY
Mr. 31
A 544
A delphia55
Asahel555
Rev. Augustus 518,
643
Francis555
George555
Lydia555
Lymann555
Mary555
Moses555
Rosamond Webster
(w. A sahel)
Sibyl555
Susan555
- POND
BemanLew716b
CharlesOrland716b
Eliza665
Hiram Otis716b
LP264
Leonidas Pitt 227,
650, 716a, 717
Mary Melissa Gard
(w. Leonidas Pitt)
Samuel719
SamuelB650
SylvesterPitt716b
Thaddeus665
- Pony Section, the 227
- POOL
Mr. 480
& Company372
Alexander282
Anna K 702
Catharine595
Ellen595
DeaconFitch537
Hannah Rinard (w.
John)
Mrs. J Rinard 702
John176, 595, 601
Mary E Kidwell (w.
Samuel)
Richard595
Samuel595
Wm. 603
WilliamF34, 37
- POOLE
A baigail615
Charles278
Fitch457
James Jackson278
Mary668
Richard278
Wm. F39, 42
- Poor House110
- POPE
Gen. 184, 200, 207,
211, 241
Elizabeth 539, see
errata
S 600
- Port Vincent 24
- PORTER
Col. 463
Com. 168
Gen. 138
Almer587
- Amos 48, 580, 581,
583, 587, 588, 687
Amos Jr. 48, 580-1,
586, 588, 590-1,
685
Cummings34, 507
Daniel278, 316
Ebenezer 58, 507,
527, 561
family44
Fitz John180
Hardy258
Harriet559
John507, 683
John R139
Lydia506, 527
Oliver422
P546
Poly507
SS158
Sabra Tolman
(w. Amos Jr.)
Sally Perkins
(w. Amos Jr.)
Samuel58, 507
Sarah503
Sarah M528
Simon588
Squire582
Thos. 58, 226, 289,
586, 587
Thomas J285
W M546
Prof. William399
William587
William H285
Wm. Jr. 546
Porter Bros. 586
Porter Cemetery 589
Porter tannery 587
- PORTERFIELD
William L 221, 255,
304
- POSEY
Rev. A 521
Bain385
Benjamin735
CW (Negro) 522
Dudley294
Henry Clay294
Jane737
Mary E Corner (w.
Benjamin)
- POST
Anna583
Rev. Christian
Frederick 19
Post Offices & Postmasters 359, 469,
502, 525, 536, 563,
566, 575, 596, 600,
635, 641, 644, 651,
687, 722, 730, 732
- Pottawatomies 61-2,
133
- POTTER
Benjamin58
Rouse58
Sarah610
Wm. S603
William58
Pottery 524
- POTTS
James58
John139
Richard278
Robert56, 58, 687
Potts' Mills687
- Powder mill687
- POWELL
Maj. 220
Abner699
Daniel285
George282
George W 278
James150, 282
Jesse266, 282, 285
John708
Joshua708
Reuben282
Sarah703
Col. W H195, 196
W T602, 604
William 150, 244,
658, 683
- POWERS
Amanda Burr (w.
Robert)
Andreas537-40
Anna628
Burr W628
Charles628
David318
Deborah (w. Andreas)
Edith628
Eliander628
Estella628
Gregory 122
Harnett632
Hattie628
James318
- James R626
John628
Joseph628
Lillie628
Lois(w. William)
Mary628
Mary T Sullivan (w.
Burr W)
Robert318, 628
Saddie Beebe (w.
James R)
Stephen 1, 6, 552c,
537, 542
Theophilus H537-8
William628
William H537, 552a
- PRATT
Lt. 22, 23
Mrs. 427
Ann566
Azariah363, 737
CharlesC324
Davis258
Elisha737
James285, 703
JamesG291
John381, 718
Lydia Smith (w.
Elisha)
Mary J703
Philip285
Sarah M737
Sarah Nye (w.
Azariah)
Prehistoric earthworks50
PRENTISS
Royal113, 413, 414,
416
- Preparatory Dept.
401
- Presbyterian Church
384, 532b, 533,
541, 631-2, 643-4,
651, 661-2, 695,
715-6
- PRES-COTT
Lona693
- Presque Isle16
- PRESTON
Benjamin324
DanielL264, 715
Enoch715, 732
Frederic138
George554a
Rev. Ira M110, 403, 618
J C534, 544, 546
J J226, 347
Joanna Chapin132
Dr. John C216
JohnC132
John Jones715
Margaret A715
Margery Lytton (w.
Enoch)
Maria E715
Mary J715
Sarah384
Sarah E Winner (w.
John J)
Sarah Havan (w.
John J)
W534, 544
William L715
Wm. H542
- PRETTYMAN
Eli320
John320
- PREWETT
Brazil274
- PREWIT
Wm. 134
- PRICE
Gen. 207, 212, 213,
214
A A 521
Abram639
Dr. B F523, 526
Catharine722
Eliza639
Elizabeth609
family692
Harriet Wilson (w.
Abram)
Harriet640
Jacob L331
John688, 722
John W189, 274
Logan274
Sarah (w. John)
Wm. 297, 685
- Price for goods362
- PRICHEET
James139
- PRIEST
John Sumner294
Josiah439
Richard D138
William Henry294
- PRIESTLEY
Q M166
- PRIME
Joseph58
- PRINCE
Capt. 363
Rev. H M562, 588-9
Joseph361
M424
- PRIOR
Howard291
- PRITCHARD
James103
- PRITCHETT
Elizabeth (w.
George)
George570
- PROCTOR
Gen. 138
Mr. 340, 652
Abigail610, 620
Alfred328
Betsey Wells (w.
Jacob)
Edward328
Jacob 58, 37, 362,
540, 620, 622-3,
711
John87
Joseph H264
Nathan 97, 382,
620, 623, 710, 711,
715, 719
Poly530
- Prophet, The (Indian)135
- "Prophet's Chamber"481
- PROSE
J R519
- Prospecting 701
- Protopolis355
- PROTSMAN
D 427, see errata
Daniel226
Lorenzo428
- PROUTY
Mr. 665
Presque612, 616
Diantha Howe (w.
Squire)
Louisa 612, 616
Rachel 612, 616,
627-8
- PROVANCE
David291
David S291
James291
John291
John William291
Joseph291
- PROVINCE
JesseS218, 223
- PRUGH
C S717
- PRUNTY
Franklin W189
- PRYOR
A mos716
Frances320
Jasper320
Matthew320
Nathan297, 312
William320
- Psi Gamma (Lit.
Soc.)402
- Pudding furnace607
- PUGH
Capt. 161, 218
A G670
Amy666
Austin314
Benj. 673
David D164
David P151
Dora E Cook (w.
James A)
Henry L314, 670
J L264
James713
James A713
Jesse713
John713
John A314
John L670, 713
Margaret Gard (w.
James)
Mary667
Mary (w. Benj.)
Robert713
Sarah McDonald
(w. Jesse)
Thomas297
Widow444
- PUGSLEY
Abraham385
- Pulaski, Battle of192
- Pump, manufacture
of478a
- PURLING
Mr. 564b
Mary564b
Wm. 564b
- Purslane 509
- Put-in-Bay Victory
(Perry's) 138
- PUTNAM
Aaron Waldo52, 74,
5, 348, 427, 474,
499, 501, 504-5,
510, 514-5, 517,
522, 524a, 525, 611
Abigail455, 501
A biguigne W505
Allen48, 590, 685
Anna560a
Anna Porter (w.
Allen)
Ayres455, 484
Bathsheba505
Benjamin 373, 484,
537, 544c, 545
Benj. Perkins485
Bertha Glyson (w.
Dr. William Pitt)
406, see errata
Betsey Perkins (w.
David)
Catharine484, 505
Charles Marsh 398, 484
Charlotte427
Charlotte Loring
(w. Aaron Waldo)
Capt. D E251
Daniel382
David58, 119, 140,
176, 224-5, 347-8,
359, 360a, 372-3,
390, 394, 406, 435,
443, 475-6, 479,
481, 483-4, 731
Douglas 113, 133,
145, 156, 176, 342,
345, 347, 372a,
374, 382, 395-8,
402, 435, 445, 476,
483-5, 495, 618
Douglas Jr. 133,
166, 223, 224, 297,
485
Edward448
Edwin93
Elisha448
Eliza Tucker485
Elizabeth 455, 484,
501, 505
Elizabeth P123
Maj. Ezra 58, 362,
443
Ezra Jr. 58, 67
Franklin412, 455
George484
George W 198, 309,
501 Hannah N347
Hannah Pope536
Harriet Brown (w.
James F)
Harriet Ripley (w.
Israel W)
Hattie560
I W 347, 505, 515, 516
Gen. Israel 19, 27,
52, 57, 74, 98-9,
397, 406, 448-9,
475, 494, 500-1,
505, 510, 514-5,
517, 521, 527, 536,
611, 616, 711
Israel Jr. 505
Israel Pitt309
J P160
James B560
James F560, 563
Jethro48, 115
Jewett & Co. 372
John448
John Jr. 448
Julia H505
Katherine455
Kitt (Negro) 510
Col. L J P 226, 347,
395, 617
Mr. L W505
Lizzie485
Lorena Nye (w.
William Pitt)
Lucretia Oliver (w.
George W)
Lucy E504, 505
Lucy Putnam (w.
Maj. Ezra), cul-inary81
Martha176
Mary501
Mary Dana (w.
Benjamin)
Mary Hildreth485
Nathaniel448
P B164
Patty455
Persis Rice (2d w.
Rufus Putnam)
- Peter484
Mrs. Phoebe W347
Rosella585
Rowena517
Rowena Nye (w. W.
P)
Gen. Rufus 21, 25,
27-34, 37, 40, 43-6,
48, 50, 52-5, 57, 69,
75, 71, 90-2, 102,
106-7, 111-2, 115-
6, 149, 355-8, 362,
373, 381, 393, 397,
402, 412, 418-22,
439, 442, 448-9,
451, 454, 457-8,
461, 475-6, 480,
500-2, 512a, 529-
3, 611, 616
Samuel Hildreth
150, 187, 297, 485
Sarah501
Sarah Waldo (w.
Gen. Israel)
Sarah C Dimond485
& Sibley496
Sons & Company 372 Susanna455
Thomas448
Col. W D412
Dr. W M406, 444
Wade W560
Waldo A 57, 74,
501, 505
William Pitt 113,
134, 140, 348, 365,
395, 406, 464, 501,
505, 520, 522
William Rufus 75,
98, 104-5, 122-4,
148, 160, 175, 309,
347-8, 382, 398,
402-3, 409, 426,
435-5, 454-5, 581,
618, 717
- Putnam Agency 93
- Putnam House
(Muskingum Twp.) 611
- Putnam Light Artil-
lery447
- Putnam, Ohio 143,
380
- Putnam in West Florida (Miss.) 27
- Putnam's Guards
255
- Putnam's Paradise
43
- Putnam's Tent (Marquee) 47
- Putrid sore throat
(1792)505
- PYLE
George D324
Lewis536
- Quadrangle (earthworks) 54, 152,
435, 439 et seq.,
see errata
- Quaker Settlement
100, 723
- QUARLES
Dr. J W523, 526
- Quarries 651, 652
- Quebec Bill 13
- QUIGLEY
Horace139
James301, 623
John139
Patrick J301
- QUIMBY
Dr. 686, 688
Allen285
Charles Wesley285
Daniel297
Ezra324
FultonG285
George297
George Wesley285
Hanford329
Sol329
- QUINBY
Daniel47, 626
Finatta Parke (1st
w. Wm.)
LewisC626
Lucy E626
Martha626
Martha (w. Daniel)
Martha E626
Mrs. Martha Jones
(2d w. Wm.)
Philipena Steeber
(w. Wm. W)
Samuel626
Wm. 626
William W626
- QUINN
Charles668
David J668
- Elizabeth668
Emeline Goddard
(w. Wm.)
Geo. 668
Geo. B665, 668, 670
Isaac672
Jane Bruce (w.
Geo.)
Rowena Malster (w.
Geo. B)
Wm. 726
- RABE
Hannah597
- RABEL
Mary571
- Raccoon Creek 86
- RACER
Annie737
B164
Benjamin 565, 737,
see errata
Charles737
Cynthia737
David141
Dudley737
D O737
Elizabeth737
Grace737
Francis D737
Hattie Fulton (w.
William P)
Jane Posey (w. E O)
Margaret Day (w.
Charles)
Maria Corner (w.
David) 735
Mary737
Rachel737
Sophia737
Susan737
Susan Flagg (w.
David)
Susannah (w.
Benjamin)
William P737
- RACY
William278
- RADEBAUCH
Daniel Jr. 416
- RADECKER
William328
- RADENBAUGH
J446
- RADER
H M661
Rev. Henry M575
- RAESER
Fred423
William423
- Railroads 340 et seq.
573, 602, 670-1
- Rainbow Allotment, Creek Settlement
606-10, 614-6, 621-2,
614-6, 625, 629
- RAINEY
Milton297
- RAKE
Abraham294
Elias294
John658
John Jr. 294
William Jasper291
- RALPH
Pastor392
- RALSTON
Mary C739
Sarah C Ward (w. W.
L)
Wm. L347, 369, 479
- RAMSAY
Joseph279
- RAMSEY
Dr. 545
Abraham697
Elizabeth697
James324
John139
John V112
Mary Frances Hart
(w. William W)
Philip324
Robert544
Dr. Robert128
Thos. 139
Wm. 593
William W128
- RAND
William543
- RANDALL
David541
Ebenezer58
- RANDOLPH
Cameron720
Clarence M720
Edna Goddard (w.
James)
James Everett L720
Isaiah N331
James720, 726
John227

- Laura J 720
Lowell W 720
Lucy E 720
Margery (w. James) Marian 720
Narcissa Chamberlain (2d w. Stephen)
Sarah Keeter (w. Stephen)
Stephen 720
RANGER
Charles F 426
Ephraim 426
FW 151
Francis Wesley 301
J 644
John 147, 304
Wm. 147
Wm. H 178, 181
William Henry 301
RANKIN
Dr. 486
RANNELLY
Joseph 320
William 320
RANSFORD
Joseph 58
RANSOM
Rev. Calvin 518, 562
Col. Owen P 186
Thomas G 413
RAPP
& Bros. 372
RARDIN
Alonzo 271
Andrew 331
Eli 331
Henry 720
Jacob C 331
Jennie 503
John 634, 719, 720, 723
John C 331
Leroy L 331
Levi H 331
Ruth 668
Thomas 297
Viola 553
William 719
William H H 331
RASER
Benjamin 565, see errata
RASH
Charles 297
RATGEN
John 150
RATHBONE
Kate 619
W W 614
Rathbone 524, 664
RATHBUN
Benedict 648
Gideon 636, 648, 652
RAUER
Dennis 139
RAWSON
Thomas 543
RAY
Ezra Deming 289
James 139
James D 285
John 282
Nancy 702
RAYLEY
Barbara Ann 678, 679
Caroline Smith (w. F W)
Content Adeline 679, 680
FW 614
Gurdon 679
Martha Duncan (w. William)
Maynard 614
Ralph W oodell 679
Raymond W 614
Sarah 570, 681
Sarah Chamberlain (w. William)
Wm. 675, 678, 680, 681
Wm. L. 676, 679
RAYMOND
Chas. H (M.D.) 399
REA
Eliza 690
James Richard 282
John 692
Julia 579
M W 132
Margaret 690
Margaret 690
Mary 690
Nancy 690, 692
Nancy Martin (w. William)
Philip Greene 282
Samuel 690, 692
Samuel Kemper 282
Thompson N 282
William 690, 692, 693, 695, 699
William Henry 282
READ
Jacob 291
Joseph 291
Stephen W 331
READING
Simon 150
READING
Simon J 320
REAGLER
Albert 183
REANY
Caroline 558
Maj. Wm. 190
Reaper, combine 694
Rea's Run 573, 690, 695
REASACKER
Rev. 600
REASON
Oliver 320
RECH
A 423
Jacob 423
HECK
Miss R A 596
RECKARD
A W 368
Delilah Jennings (w. Joseph Leonard)
Frank 151
Frank 183
Frank R 301
Henry 738
J L 423
James L 301
Joseph Leonard 737
Mary E 596
Mary E Morse (w. Joseph L)
Sarah Sheldon (w. Henry)
Wesley J 294
RECORD
J L 226, 347
L 519
Otis 138
RECTOR
Rev. C 576
Edward 387
Enoch 588
REDFOX
Mrs. Mary Kessel ring 707
"Red House" (tavern) 368
Red Jacket (Indian) 14
Redstone, Pa. 117
REECE
George 569
Margaret Ker (w. George)
REED
Maj. 134
Anthony 565
Chamberlain 633
David M 560
E 702
E B 382
Elijah 704
Eliza Caywood (w. Joshua)
Enoch 58
Erastus 261
Rev. Eugene S 389
Mrs. Eunice Curtis 507
Ezekiel 656
Frances M 560
Dr. G W 523, 528
George 324
George W 328, 560
Gertie May 496 h
Rev. J M 520
Jane Jackson (w. Joseph)
Rev. John 562
John W 331
Joseph 314, 582
Joshua 685
Julia (w. F M)
Lucinda Buchanan (w. David M)
Lucy D 560
Mary J Chandler (w. George W)
Mary Dye (w. Ezekiel)
Paxton 243
Samuel 139
Sarah 638
Sophia L 243
Watson 633
REEDER
Daniel 105
REES
David 291, 706, 709, see errata
Jonathan 289
Oliver 291
Samuel 304
Thomas 291
REESE
Albert O 702
Charles S 702
David 702
Mrs. H 368
Howard B 702
James R 702
Jewett A 702
Jonathan 702
John C 702
Joseph 702, 703
Joseph Jr. 702
Laura L 702
Malinda Scott (w. David)
Maria (w. Joseph)
Melvin F 702
Oliver 702
Samuel 297
Thomas 316, 702
William 188, 312
REEVES
Abram 294
Isaac 294
Isaac Jr. 294
Nathan 139
Wiley 180
REGNIER
Dr. 562, 587, 631, 678, 679, 680, see errata
Alfred 560, 679
Aurelius 679
Austin B 411
Mrs. C 174
Charles F 297
Ethella 560
Dr. Felix 411
Felix 679, 680
Francis 679
Fred 159, 227
Frederick A 297
Hannah 679
J B 348
Dr. John Baptiste 367, 406-7, 563, 674, 679, 682-3
Milton 147
Modeste 407
Will 181
Regnier Cemetery 682
Regnier House 544 c
Dr. Regnier's Mills 586
REHM
John 318, see errata
REIBER
John G 600
REICHMAN
Frances 186
REID
Mr. 148
Hugh 273
James 266
Whitlaw 153, ("Agate") 158
Rev. Wm. 676
REILEY
John 338
REINHART
A 423
Andrew J 301
REINHERR
Philip 602, 603
REIS
John H 185
REISCH
C 151
REISS
Christina Mattern (w. Peter)
Franz 584
Peter 584
Susan Wendell (w. Franz)
REITER
Catharine 736
Magdaline 736
Nicholas 307
Religious Purposes, Land for see Section 16 & 29
Religious Society, First 381, 392, 516
Religious Society, 2d 364, 392
Religious Society, the fourth 392
Religious Soc., the Union 392
REMELE
John see errata
REMELEY
John L 328
RENETTS
G C 603
REPPERT
Miss A 176
Byron D 320
Byron P 150
H Clay 297
Capt. Henry C 187
Mrs. L 176
L W 240
Miss U 176
Walter 147, 189, 297
Republican Convention 496 c
Residents (1788-90) 57-9
Residents During Indian War:
Belpre 510
Marietta 362-3
Ft. Frye 531
RESTER
Aaron 331, see errata
RETCHER
Harriet 588
REVERE
Paul 418
Revival meeting 600-1
REW
David 291, see errata
REWELL
Martin V 301
REYHOE
J see errata
REYNOLDS
Gen. 181, 189, 201, 224, 236, 237
C W 151, 534, 542
Charles 324
Charles Wesley 312
Clarence G 1
D S 151
Daniel 568, 738
Daniel S 312, 568
Eliza D Thomiley (w. Daniel)
Elizabeth Gill (w. Daniel S)
Mrs. Ella Henderson 703
Emanuel 271
George 568
Geo. W 150, 658
Isaac 519
Dr. James 141
James E 568
Dr. John 545, 547
John 565, 568
John R 235
Dr. L 545
Luke 520
Margaret 568
Mary Ann (w. Thomas)
Nancy 568
Rebecca 568
Samuel 568
Theodore M 312
Thomas 568, 601, 703
Wm. 139
Reynolds' Mill 658
Reynolds' Run 569
RHETT
Barnwell 145
RHINEHART
Charlotte (w. Rev. Leander)
Rev. Leander 636 b
RHOADES
Hiram 724
RHODES
Benj. 140
Charles R 95, 112, 114, 124, 156-7, 348, 373
Rev. D W 469
Joseph 309
Mary E Ward (w. Charles R)
Robert B 187
RICE
Col. 154
Mrs. 504, 525
Alice 595
Ambrose 666
Caroline Grove (w. Edmund)
Deborah 666
Dorcas (w. Nathan)
Edmund 599
Effie 599
Elizabeth Miller (w. Henderson)
Ettie 599
Frances 599
Geo. 375, 677
Esq. George 680
Maj. George T 133, 151, 156, 206, 245-6, 301
Rev. H 577
Henderson 599
Jason 666
Jonas 666
Joseph 666
Joseph Alban 289
Kate 599
Mary 245, 666
Nathan 245
Maj. Oliver 504, 506, 510, 513, 520, 522
Oliver 57, 115
Oscar 599
Persis 449, 529
Polly 503
Reuben 666
Sabina 666
Sally 642
Thomas 285
William 297, 328
Wm. 599
Wm. W 150, 188
Zebulon 449
Rice's Tavern 45
RICHARD
Mrs. 711
F B 184
John 602
RICHARDS
A J 367, 423
Alfred J 737
Abigail 626, 711 & Bro. 533
Charles W 132
D J 324
David 673
Capt. David J 227
E H 151
Edward H 301
George H 132, 372
George W 112
Henry S 264
John 226, 301
Joseph 522
Luman D 264
Mary 715
Sarah Eggleston (w. Alfred J)
Thomas 301
Timothy 301, 304
RICHARDSON
Dr. 216, 594
Charles 132
Edna P Flagg (w. Silas)
Edward L 294
F C 699
J C 588
J C (Pastor) 387, 561
J W 699
Jane 680
Phineas 58
Richard 445
Dr. S M 602, 603
Sarah E Smith (w. William P)
Silas 141
W P 132
William P 126
RICHEY
Martha 567
RICHNER
Wm. P 218
RICKER
Maj. Benj. J Jr. 198
RICKETS
Capt. 159
RICKETTS
Rev. S B 717
Ricketts' Div. 170
RIDDLE
Rev. 661, 668
Ella E 716 a
J W 543
Jas. W 387
Rev. M S 577
M S 661
RIDENOUR
J R 269
RIDGLEY
E 644
RIDGLY
C 645
J 645
RIDGWAY
A mos 602
Benjamin 691
Caroline 612 b
C W 603
Esther Ann (w. Thomas)
Francis 612 b
George 309, 612 b
George W 147
Isaac 612 b
James 612 b
John 612 b
Joseph 309
Lavina Day 702
Mary 612 b
Sarah A (w. Thomas)
S 132
Sidney 7, 612 b
Terry 612 b
Thomas 132, 348, 608, 612 a-b
Thomas Jr. 612 b
William 612 b
RIDINGOUR
John 139, see errata
RIENICT
Garhard C 279, see errata
Polly 503
RIENTZ
Garhard C, see errata
RIETZ
Caroline 561
Henry 561
Jacob 561
Katie 561
Margaret 561
Margaret Gloss (w. Jacob)
Phoebe 561
Rife Co. (Palmer Twp.) 672 RIGBY
Capt. 170
RIGG
John C 264, 328
RIGGS
Adaline M 694, 697
Angelina 593
Asberry A 694
Asbury 282, 593
Basil 593
Bazil 692, 693, 694
Benjamin F 694
Squire D 593, 694
Daniel 593
Daniel B 279
David 282
David M 694
Edmund 593
Elizabeth Moorland (w. Hezekiah)
H A 690
H R 600
Harriett 593
Hattie G 694
Hazil 593
Henry M 694
Hezekiah 593, 602, 693, 694
Isaac 593
James 593
James W 593
John 593
Loretta Flint (w. David M.)
Luther 694
Luther M 694
Mary 593, 694
Mary A 594
Mary E 694
Mary W 594
Mary Howell (w. Wm.)
Mary Johnson (w. James)
Mary Morrell (w. Asberry A.)
Mary Robey (w. Basil)
Maxey 593
Nancy E 593
Nancy Rea (w. H A)
Nancy R Moreland (w. Squire D)
Polly 593
Prissa 595
Rachel 701
Rebecca Davis (w. Theodore)
S C 693
Samuel 593
Susan 593, 692, 696
Theodore 694
Theodore J 694
Walter L 694
William N 694
William 593, 694
Righteous Ridge 532
RIGHTMIRE
Benjamin 112, 565
Eliza 570
Harriet Nixon (w. Samuel)
Lucy A 570
Martha H 570
Mary H 570
Samuel 570
Sarah R 570
Susan E 570
RIGHTNER
Conrad 580, 685
RIGNIER
Dr. 387, see errata
RILEY
Albert 328
Dennis O 697
Elizabeth Ramsey (w. William O)
George W 328
J D 589, 661
Rev. J D 387, 589, 709
James 139
John 104, 106, 107, 294
Rev. John D 577, 601
John Newton 294
Judson 294
Mary 697
Ulysses 301
Warren 294
William O 697
RINARD
A 702
Mrs. A Smith 702
Charlotte Martin (w. Luther)
Charlotte B 702
Cynthia 595, 691
David 702
Delilah A 702
Hannah 595, 702
Hester Elder (w. Isaac)
I, see errata
Ida Dell 702
Isaac 291, 595, 603, 691, 702, 703
Isaac, Jr. 595, 691, 702
Mrs. J Pool 702
James 595, 691
John 595, 691, 702
John Jr. 702
John W 702
Luther 702, 703
Margaret 691
Mary 691
Mary Young (w. Isaac)
Matilda 702
Nancy 595, 691
Nancy Rea (w. John)
Nelson 702
Peggy 595
Polly 595
Rebecca 591
Samuel 702
Sarah 595, 691, 701
Theodore 702
William 692
Rinard's Mill 691, 692, 693
RINDLE
Charles 279
RINEHART
Pastor 391
Rev. T L 601
RIPLEY
Harriet 505
Henry E 301
Hiram 258
J Minerva 206, 245
Philetus S 147, 301
William 543
RITCHIE
Abraham 570
Jacob 570
Jane Willoughby (w. Abraham)
Joseph 320
Maria 570
Mary 570
Nancy Edmondson (w. Jacob)
RITCHIE
Ellen 584
Isaac 312
St. Clair 312
William 312
RITENOUR
Joseph S 269, see errata
RITTENHOUSE
David 35
RITTER
Henry 279
River Raisin, Battle of 136
RIZHAR
family 691
ROACH
John 558
Lymen 258
Marcelus S 324
Pamela Mason (w. John)
Rufus W 324

- W S258
Wallace S210, 324
William W 258
- Road, plank, Mar- ietta-Salem 589
- Road — 1st (Water- ford-Plymouth)
673
- Road from Point to Campus Martius
51
- Road, state 646, 710, 731
- Road-State, Harmar to Athens 719
- Roads and bridges
13, 51, 55, 97, 338,
407, 513-4, 642,
646, 671, 673, 687,
701, 711, 719
- ROADS
William 261
- ROAN
Mary 490
- ROBB
Lucinda 735
- Robbery attempt (bank) 373
- ROBBINS
Benjamin 506
Chandler 390
Hannah 366
Isaac 58
Jonah (teacher) 652
Leonard 490
Nancy Cole (w. Leonard)
Reuben 506, 526
Rev. Samuel Prince
381, 390, 426-7,
517, 641, 716
- ROBERTS
Capt. 377
Rev. 716
A. Alexander 554
Amos 554
Rev. Bennett 429,
430, 575, 587, 632,
695
Charlotte Taylor
(1st w. Amos)
Daniel 554
Eleanor 727
Elisha 211, 324, 554
Ezekiel 320
Mrs. Frances Stull
533 Frances White (2nd
w. Amos)
Hannah Bedagrew
(w. Daniel)
Henry S 554
Isaiah 554
James 554
Jane 739
Jeremiah 554
John 320, 554
Margaret 554
Nancy C 554
Palmer 554
Richard 554
William 289, 297,
554, 709
- ROBERTSON
Dr 652
John T 138
W F 534
- ROBEY
Mary 593
- ROBINSON
Rev. Abel 600
Alice C 555
Anthony 520
Benjamin 264
Benj. F 227
C E 285
Charles E 1294
Charles H 274
Colina N Dodge (w.
SB)
David 279
Dow 521
E R 347
Mrs. Elizabeth Kesselring 707
H 519
J W 186
Rev. John P 387
Joseph 264, 274
Louis C 555
Lucius L 294
R P 372
S B 155, 544, 546,
549, 555
Samuel B 112, 124,
555
Thomas 709
W Lynch 274
W P 555
W T 604
W T & Co 371
- Wm. 147, 150, 266,
309
Capt. Wm P 218
- Robstown 608
- Rockdale Plan 603
- Rockland 525
- Rockland Cemetery
7, 527
- ROCKWELL
Mr 424
John A 94
- RODAMONT
Columbus 185
- RODER
Rufus 733-4
- Root's Mill (flour)
733
- Rope walks 377
- ROSE
Dr. 587
Anna 560
Clem J Hall (w.
James)
Mrs. Clara Hall 559
Edward 560
Elisha 578, 660, 664
I R 536
Isaiah 259, 560
James 259, 560
James H 560
Lemuel 560
Louisa Bish (w.
Manning M)
Manning M 536, 560
Mary Shafer (w.
James H)
Sanfron 259
Silas 560
Thompson 259
- Rose Brothers 535
- ROSECRANS
Gen. William S.
151, 159, 166-7,
185, 188-9, 199,
202, 207, 212-4,
235, 250, 494
- ROSINY
Judge 479
- ROSS
Mrs. 536
Carl W 553
Catharine 553
Rev. D 709
Daniel 324
Daniel N 259
Mrs. Elizabeth
Beckett 555
Franklin 325
Griffin 309
H O W 536
James 132, 216,
270, 325, 331
Jessie B 553
Margaret 623
Mary M 553
Mrs. Mary Patterson 553
Narcissa 559
Nathaniel 259
Patunia F 659
Richard 553
Russell D 259
Sampson 259
Sarah 609
Capt. Thom. 218
Thos. 147, 328
Dr. Thomas 545,
631
Viola Rardin (w.
Richard)
Joseph 423
Joseph 1320
William 259, 309,
553
- ROSSETER
George R 405
- ROTH
Christian 316
Henry 316
Jacob 282
Rev. John 19, 358
John Lewis 358
Nicholas 282
Rosa 599
- ROUDEBAUGH
Henry 603
- Round Bottom 532, 535, 666
- ROUSE
Barker 500, 519
Bathsheba 500, 516,
see errata
Betsey 500
Cynthia 117, 500,
see errata
John 58, 500, 510,
516
Michael 58, 500, 519
Rebecca (w. John)
Robert 500
Ruth 500
Stephen 500
Wm. 151
- ROUSER
Jacob 679
- ROUSH
Absalom 320
Harnett 638
James 297
John, see errata
William 320
- ROW
Nicholas 139
- ROWE
Christine 628
Cynthia 117, see er-
rata
John 418
- ROWIE
Mrs. Alice Tucker
542, 554
- ROWEL
Daniel 58
- ROWLAND
Amanda Neal (w.
Thomas)
Anne E Clark (w.
William)
Barbara McKibben
(w. Lewis C)
Catherine P Cline
(w. William)
Charles 738
Charlotte Rood (w.
Rufus H)
Eliza J 738, 739
George W 737
James E 270
Jane 678
Jane D White (w.
Charles)
John 331, 565, 568
John W 270
Lewis C 738
Paulina Ann Corner
(w. George W)
Robert 565
Robert S 312
Rufus H 738
Rufus Henry 312
Talmie (w. William)
Thomas 738
Virginia A 738
William 726, 738
- ROWLANDS
Charlotte 679
R S 444
- Roxbury Twp. 109,
760, 719
- RUCKER
William P 304
- RUCKMAN
681
- RUDDOLPH
Dr. 388
- RUDIG
A 151
Adam 307
Jacob 307
- RUE
Henry 58
Reuben 58
Rufus Putnam, The 379-80
- RUGGLES
Col. 449
Benjamin 114
- RUMBLES
Charles 294
- RUMBOLD
Benjamin F 320
Charles H 320
Joseph 423
Joseph 1320
- RUMMER
Parley 561, 563
Perley 259
W J 259
- RUMERFIELD
Aaron E 320
- RUNELS
Lorina A (w. R F)
R F 728 A
- RUNKLE
Col. B P 161, 163
- RUNNELS
Isaac 723
- RUNYER
Rev. 388
- RUSE
Eliza 584
- RUSH
Dr. 35
Rev. 698, 699
Rev. Z C 577
- RUSSELL
C L 151
Charles 544 d
Clarinda Jane Clark
(w. Charles) see
McIntosh
Emanuel 270
Dr. Jesse 703
Washington 270
- Gen. 238
Mr. 731
A. Fred 732
Alpheus 363
Caroline 612
Charles 297, 612,
732
Elizabeth 612, 732
Elizabeth Reigel (w.
Charles)
Ella 732
Emanuel 732
Eva 732
Frances E Gearhart
(w. Emanuel)
Hiram 612
Jane 612
John 58, 285, 362,
612, 616
Jonathan 612
Levi 291
Lucrasta 732
Lucy 612
Mary 612
Mary M 732
Samuel 292
Sarah 732
Solomon 732
Washington 732
William 612
- RUTHERFORD
Capt. 161
Jacob 150, 266
Josiah 150
Josiah S 266
- RUTTER
William C 328
- RUTTIE
Mrs. Sarah Slater
555
Delia May 628 b
- RYAN
Mrs. 428
Dianna Amanda
(w. Thomas &
Michael)
James Dennis 628 b
M 164
Rev. M J 390
Michael 628 b, 630
T C 547
Thomas 328, 628 b
- Ryan Mill 630
- RYLAND
A 631
Stephen 519
- RYSLEY
E 519
- SACHEL
Peter 540
- Sacra Via 435, 440
et seq.
- Sacs 61-2
- SADDLER
Rev. L L 520
- SADLER
Capt. John 448
- SAELICK
William 698
- SAFFORD
Dr. Jonas P 216
Robert 58
Col. Robert 136
Dr. Robert 106, 110,
112, 125
- SAGE
Rev. H P 520
- SALE
John 383
- Salem Light Guard
151
- Salem Twp. 109, 579- 81
- SALES
Rev. James 562
- SALISBURY
Henry 279
Maria 595
- Salt 89, 96, 353, 531-
2, 548, 673
- Salt Creek 85, 548
- Salt Lick 606
- Salt Kettles Mfg. 371
- Salt-making 548
- Salt Well 606
- SALTINGSTALL
John 139
- SALTONSTALL
Lucretia 428, see er-
rata
- SALZMAN
Wm. 150
- SAMPLE
Samuel B 292
William 292
- SAMPSON
Elizabeth 632
James 21
Thomas E 270
William 632
- SANDERS
C 600
John 140
Mordecai 615
Sandersfield 716, see
errata
- SANDFORD
Caroline Haas (w. S
H) Celinda Corner (w. J
P)
Clark 279
Eliza C 738
J P 735, 738
John 279
M 279
Mary Broadhurst
(w. Thomas J H)
Nathan 279
S H 738
T J H 427
Thomas J H 738
- Sandusfield Settle- ment 625, 629, 716,
see errata
- Sandusky (Indians)
10
- SANER
Conrad 309
Henry 309
- SANFORD
Mrs. 418
Charles Henry 294
George Philip 294
J P 164, 347
John 221
John P 227, 294
Robinson 681
Thomas Spencer
294
- SANKEY
James 565
- SANKFORD
Franklin 316, see er-
rata
- SARGENT
Abel 392
Rev. John 562
Rowena Tupper (w.
Maj. Winthrop)
444
Maj. Winthrop 21,
25, 27, 32, 40-5, 52-
4, 57, 62, 101-2,
355, 358, 360, 458
- SARVER
George W, see er-
rata
- SAUNDERS
Capt. 191
- SAWERS
George W 294, see
errata
- Saw mill see mills
- SAWYER
Desire 608
Elijah 732
Elizabeth Tate (w.
R F)
family 44
James K 732
Lydia Porter (w.
Nathaniel Sr.)
Maria Kendall (w.
Elijah)
Nathaniel Jr. 506
Nathaniel Sr. 58,
506, 513, 527
R F 732
Robert 521
Lt. Wm. 138
Wm. H 732
- SAYERS
Rev. 729
- SAYLER
Edward J 273
- SAYLES
Burgess A 259
- SAYLOR
Edward 264
Jacob 264
Solomon 264
- SAYRE
Montgomery 226
Simeon S 304
Wm. F 150
- SAYRES
George 271
I T 271
Isaac T 271
James M 271
Richard C 271
William 271
- SCAMMON
Gen. 162, 165, 255
- Scarlet fever (1790)
405
- SCHACHTELLEN
Mrs. 427
Jacob 427
- SCHAU
Nicholas 697
- SCHELLAMER
Rev. C F 390
- SCHERMERNAN
Andrew 632, see
errata
- SCHENCK
Gen. 216, 494
Peter F 138
Gen. Robert C 178,
185
William C 104
- SCHENKBERG
C & Company 367
- SCHENKEL
J J 706
- SCHIEFFELIN
Jonathan 106
- SCHIEBECK
Rev. John H 388
- SCHILLEY
Chas. M 185
- SCHILLING
Elizabeth Hopp (w.
Philip)
George 638
John 318
Joseph 297
Philip 637
- SCHIMMEL
Charles 675, 683
- SCHLAUBACH
Conrad 318, see er-
rata
- SCHLAUBACK
Conrad 318, see er-
rata
- SCHLEICH
Brig. Gen. 148
- SCHLICHER
Daniel 304
Frederick 304
Lewis 304
- SCHLICHER
Louis 150
Peter 389
- SCHLOHN
Jacob 588, see er-
rata
- SCHLOTTERBECK
see errata
- SCHMIDT
Mr. E 417
Edwin William 301
Emanuel 304
Geo. 602, 603
Henry 422
J E 151
J F 423
Lewis 304
Louis 150, 210, 301,
423
- SCHMINKE
Augustus 307
John 285
- SCHNEADER
Gebhardt 632
Lawrence 632
- SCHNEIDER
Elizabeth Zapf (w.
John)
Frederick 289
Geo. 372
John 738
Lewis 289
Philip 307
William 289
- SCHOCKEY
Jacob 698
- SCHOCKLEY
Davis 147
Schoenbrunn Indian Village 19-20
- SCHOFIELD
169, 170
Charles M 316
David W 583
Drucilla Marshall
(w. David W)
Henry 583, 588
J J 525
James 706
Joseph C 316
Lilly M 583
Mary E 583
Mrs. Sarah 588
William 316, 583
William A 316
- School Lands 104-5, 711
- School Law 642-3
- Schools, early 508,
516, 524, 538, 546-
7, 562, 573-4, 586,
595-6, 601, 611,
614-5, 629, 642-3,
652, 660-1, 671,
682, 687-8, 693,
695, 697, 703, 708,
710, 716-7, 723,
728, 733
- SCHOONOVER
Augustus D 267

- Jacob F 267
 Walter H 267
SCHRADER
 697
 Charles 699
 Clarissa Cheedle (w.
 Philip Jr.)
 John 285
 Philip Jr. 731
 Philip Sr. 720
 Mrs. Philip 733
SCHRAM
 Henry 150
 Jacob 289
SCHRAMM
 Elizabeth 686
 Jacob 605, 683, 709
 John 589
 Philip 157
 Philip 423
 Theobald 589
SCHREINER
 Rev. Theodore 563,
 613, 616, 689
SCHROEDER
 Ralph L 7, 740
SCHRUMM
 Charles 581, see errata
Schrumm's Mill 582
SCHULTHEISS
 A dam, see errata
SCHULTICE
 A dam 274, see errata
SCHULTZ
 Christian 348
 D 388
SCHUMANN
 Jacob 689
SCHUYLER
 David
SCHWAN
 Mr. 652
SCHWARTZ
 Martin 309
SCHWARTZCUP
 A dam 328
SCHWENDENMAN
 Andrew 632, see errata
SCHWITZER
 Elizabeth Lehnhard
 (w. Henry)
 Henry 738
Scioto Company 90 et seq.
Scioto Indians 9, 10, 42, 57
Scioto Salines 501, 505, 511
SCISSON
 Lewis E 307, see errata
Scotch Settlement
 669, 697
SCOTT
 Col. 138
 Dr. 358
 Gen. 193, 671
 Mr. 367
 Abijah 289, 292
 Alexander 58
 Alice Thorniley (w.
 H)
 Andrew E 325
 Arthur 593
 Basil 292
 Benjamin 292
 Darwin 297
 Darwin A 150
 David Wallace 638
 Elizabeth 584
 Evan 565
 Capt. Ezekial 1418
 Freeman 325
 H 739
 Henry 264
 Howard 292
 Isaac 279, 704
 J W (Negro) 522
 Jacob Hanson 294
 James 285, 708, 714
 James N 186
 John 139, 279, 297,
 490, 563, 594, 708,
 714
 John S 714
 Joseph C 320
 Joshua 139
 Josiah 714, 718
 Louisa (w. Wallace)
 Louisa Dye (w.
 David Wallace)
 Louisa Finch (w.
 Josiah)
 Lydia (w. John S)
 Malachi 699
 Malinda 702
 Margaret J 737
 Mary A 714
 Mrs. Mary Edwards 701
 Mary Holiday (w.
 William)
 Maxwell 312
 Moses 714
 Nancy 490, 638
 Nancy Patterson
 (w. John)
 Obediah 543
 Oliver 147, 164, 195,
 325
 Mrs. Rachel E Day
 702
 Richard 703
 Robert 708
 Saidia M 131, 493
 Samuel C 227
 Temperance 601
 Theodore 226, 396,
 493
 Thomas 106, 675
 Wallace 444
 Watson 328
 William 147, 218,
 226, 282, 297, 320,
 325, 638
Scott Ridge Meth.
 Church 708
Scott Town 701, 704
Scott's Landing 161
SCOVILLE
 Matthew 519
SCRANTON
 William 289
SCRIBNER
 Rosanna 560b
SCROGGAN
 John 325
SEACORD
 D 312, see errata
SEAD
 David, see errata
SEAMAN
 Benjamin 363, 559,
 562, 610
 Capt. 151
 Gilbert 363, 559,
 610
 Mary M 555
 Preserved 363, 559, 610
 Samuel 58, 363, 610
SEAR
 Col. 463
SEARIGHT
 David J 197
SEARS
 U 297
SECHLER
 Thom M 186
SECHMAN
 D 661
SECKMAN
 Rev. D 703
Second Adventists
 408 Second Association
 Belpre 55
Second Colony 622
Second Creek 607, 614
Section 8 (Congress)
 634, 636, 687
Sections 16 & 29 21,
 42, 54, 104-5, 434,
 507, 527, 647, 649,
 710-1, 731
SEDGEWICK
 Mr. 681
SEDWICK
 Rev. A J 562
SEELEY
 Diantha Laflin 712
 Elizabeth 544d, 549
 Mrs. L 542
 S F 348, 533
 Thomas 540, 541,
 544b
SEELY
 John 544c
 Lucetta A M 614
Seely's Mill 544c
SEEVERS
 Mr. 685
 Abraham 571, 732
 Abram 312, 426
 Amariah 732
 Andrew 732
 Benjamin 274
 Daniel 732
 Daniel D 312
 Elizabeth Devol (w.
 William)
 Harvey 732
 Jacob 568
 James 312
 John 732
 Levi 732
 Margaret Reynolds
 (w. Jacob)
 Martha 732
 Mary 732
 Polly 732
 Polly Morrison (w.
 Abraham)
 Richard 732
 Richard D 312
 W J 151
 William James 312
 Wm. 571, 577
SEFFERS
 Ann 650
 Anna Shackleton
 (w. Wm.)
 Edward 650
 Elizabeth Eaton 650
 Flora 650
 Hannah Welshaus
 650
 Harriet Taylor (w.
 John)
 Hugh 650
 James 650
 Jane Hanna 650
 John 650
 Joseph 650
 Mary Ann Taylor
 650
 Sarah Perdue 650
 Wm. 650
SEFFERS
 Judge 567
SEAFOR
 339-40
 Capt. 141
 Abraham 427
 Catherine 628
 Eliza 492, 732
 George Q 628
 & Hunt 668
 Isaac 732
 Jefferson D 628
 Capt. John 135, 138
 John 113, 434, 657,
 660
 Joseph 628
 Letitia C 628
 Lydia (w. Isaac)
 Martha E 628
 Martha McPherson
 (w. Wm.)
 Mary Mitchell (w.
 John)
 Mary R 628
 Nancy J 628
 Rebecca 558
 Reese 628
 Sarah R 628
 Wm. 628
Sharp Mill 574
SHARPE
 Joe 331
 Solomon 563
SHARROT
 Daniel 140
SHATTUCH
 Benjamin 259
SHATTUCK
 540
SHAW
 Benjamin 48, 531,
 535, 537, 541
 Boyleston 113, 347,
 535
 Catherine Mackey
 (w. Daniel)
 Charles 259
 Cushing 537
 D B 545
 Daniel 161, 649
 Mrs. E A 545
 Georgia 542
 Jacob 147
 Jacob H 267
 James 271
 John L 147, 309
 John M 289
 lawyer 129
 Louisa 540a
 Mrs. Louisa Devol
 540a
 Malcom 651
 N H 151
 Nathan H 307
 Miss P G 545
 Peter 541
 R A 603
 Capt. R K 133, 210,
 388a
 Rodney K 127, 307
 Capt. S F 149, 150
 Sally 537
 Sidney F 307
 Thomas 58, 66
 W R 535
Shaw Farm - burial grounds 651
Shawnee Indians
 10-2, 15, 18, 61-2,
 64-5, 69, 71, 133,
 548
SHAY
 A 427
Shay's Rebellion 30, 359, 461
 (Flour Mill) 603
 Samuel 597, 602
 Susan Dennison (w.
 Samuel)
 Thomas 597
SHAPLEY
 Charles P 596
 Edward 596
 Fannie B 596
 Frederick 596
 Geo. 596
 Geo. A 602
 Jerome 596
 Josephine Mc-Cracken (w.
 George)
 Marshall 596
 Maude 596
 Mary Cameron (w.
 Edward)
 Samuel 597
 Sarah 596
 Susan Dennison (w.
 Samuel)
 Wm. 596
Shareholders, see Ohio Company
SHARK
 Judge 567
SHARP
 339-40
 Capt. 141
 Abraham 427
 Catherine 628
 Eliza 492, 732
 George Q 628
 & Hunt 668
 Isaac 732
 Jefferson D 628
 Capt. John 135, 138
 John 113, 434, 657,
 660
 Joseph 628
 Letitia C 628
 Lydia (w. Isaac)
 Martha E 628
 Martha McPherson
 (w. Wm.)
 Mary Mitchell (w.
 John)
 Mary R 628
 Nancy J 628
 Rebecca 558
 Reese 628
 Sarah R 628
 Wm. 628
Sharp Mill 574
SHARPE
 Joe 331
 Solomon 563
SHARROT
 Daniel 140
SHATTUCH
 Benjamin 259
SHATTUCK
 540
SHAW
 Benjamin 48, 531,
 535, 537, 541
 Boyleston 113, 347,
 535
 Catherine Mackey
 (w. Daniel)
 Charles 259
 Cushing 537
 D B 545
 Daniel 161, 649
 Mrs. E A 545
 Georgia 542
 Jacob 147
 Jacob H 267
 James 271
 John L 147, 309
 John M 289
 lawyer 129
 Louisa 540a
 Mrs. Louisa Devol
 540a
 Malcom 651
 N H 151
 Nathan H 307
 Miss P G 545
 Peter 541
 R A 603
 Capt. R K 133, 210,
 388a
 Rodney K 127, 307
 Capt. S F 149, 150
 Sally 537
 Sidney F 307
 Thomas 58, 66
 W R 535
Shaw Farm - burial grounds 651
Shawnee Indians
 10-2, 15, 18, 61-2,
 64-5, 69, 71, 133,
 548
SHAY
 A 427
Shay's Rebellion 30, 359, 461
SHEARS
 Isaac 297
SHEDD
 John H 403
SHEE
 Wm. 150
Sheep pelt, cure with 407 SHEETS
 Anthony 593, 599,
 600 Caroline (w. Anthony)
 Hamilton 594
 Harrison 331
 Henry 565, 567,
 575, 577, 593, 597,
 603
 Henry C 331
 Hiram 314
 Jesse P 594
 John W 331
 Leander 594
 Martin 593, 600
 Michael 519
 Malinda 594
 Minerva 594
 Prissa Riggs 602
 Rebecca M 594
 Rebecca Parr (w.
 Henry)
 Ruth B 594
 Wm. H 594
Sheets' Run 593 SHEFFIELD
 Miss 362
 Mrs. 465
SHEID
 John T 320
SHELBY
 Gen. 221, 222
SHELDEN
 Charles 274
SHELDON
 Betsey 739
 Charles 294
 Elizabeth Way (w.
 James)
 Helen Buell (w.
 James)
 Hiram 294
 Hiram H 305
 J R 542
 James 540, 629
 Jonathan 58
 Mary E 629
 Mary Haynes (w.
 James)
 William 629
SHELL
 J W 632
SHELTON
 Polly 726
Shepard House 368
Shepherd's Mills 580
SHEPHERD
 56, see errata
 Anna 362, 428
 Calvin 362, 501
 Daniel 362
 David 593
 Enoch 56, 58, 75,
 359, 362, 407, 444,
 544d, 687
 Esther 362
 Hulda 362
 John 58, 510
 Laura 544d, see errata
 Lorena 362 (see Laura)
 Luther 362, 544b
 Mehala Oliver (w.
 Calvin)
 Rhoda 362, 407,
 544b
 Gen. (Wm.) 359,
 407, 461
SHEPHERDSON
 Nancy 384
SHEPPARD
 157, see errata
 C 1157
 Caroline 557
 Charles J 129, 226
 Courtland 206, 297, 347, 439
 Henry 297
 Henry W 150, 206
 James 282
 Stephen 368
 Thomas 318
 Thomas R 129, 294
SHERER
 Peter 301
SHERFICK
 William 588
SHERIDAN
 Gen. Phil 170, 172,
 173, 196, 204, 205,
 248
SHERLICK
 Frederick 316, see
 errata
SHERMAN
 Col. 44
 Gen. 154, 166, 167,
 169, 170, 171, 172,
 190, 192, 209, 210,
 215, 217, 219, 220,
 221, 224, 226, 229,
 231, 235, 239, 240,
 245, 494
 A P 149
 Abel 85, 87, 534-5,
 553
 Amy 535, 553
 Clara 550
 Conrad 541
 Ezra 85, 534, 535,
 541
 Isaac 21
 Jasper 331
 Joshua 85, 86
 Josiah 534, 535, 541
 L P 516
 Laura E 552
 Hon. R 35
SHERRE
 Peter 147
SHIEFLEY
 Gottlieb 304
SHIELD
 Louisa 650
SHIELDS
 Gen. 183
 Anna 712
 David 628b
 Louisa Cole 635
 Sarah (w. David)
 Sophia 628b
SHIERS
 see errata
 Robt. 147
SHILLING
 Elizabeth Snyder
 (w. John)
 John 627
 Philip 627
 Wm. 627
SHINER
 Wm. 58, see errata
SHINGLER
 John 138
SHINN
 Alexander 259
 Alfred C 259
 D 722
 D W 670, 673
 James H 331
 Samuel D 259
SHINNICK
 W M 544
Shipbuilding 375 et seq., 617
Ship Carpenter 685
SHIPE
 Isaac N 266
 John A 266
SHIPLEY
 Jane 669
 Levin 669
 Nancy (w. Levin)
 Rebecca 669
SHIPMAN
 Chas. 367, 463, 687
 Dr. H B 384, 385
 Harriet L 132, 396,
 492
 Joseph S 325
 Joshua 57, 109, 362,
 393, 428, 435, 467,
 608
 Maria Bailey 635
 Rhoda M 396
 Samuel 114, 344,
 347, 367, 370, 382,
 398, 422, 445
SHIPPEN
 Dr. 35
SHIPTON
 L W 545
 William 271, see errata
SHIRE
 William 267
SHIRES
 see errata
 George 301, see errata
 Robert 301, see errata
SHIVELY
 Eleanor 721
SHIVERS
 George 259
SHIVINGTON
 John 547
SHOCKLEY
 David 307
 Henry 259
 John 325
 N D 259
 Squire 282
 William 259
SHOEMAKER
 Mr. 427
 Elizabeth 613
 J M 544
SHOEMANN
 family 58
SHOEPPH
 Gen. 230, 231
SHOLES
 Richard 58
SHOOP
 Hugh 147
 Mrs. Kate 132
SHOOT
 Oliver 540
SHORT
 E 563
Short Line B. & O.
 R. R. 524
SHOTICK
 Mr. 31
SHOTWELL
 Ezra M 267
 Isaac 267
 Susan 528
SHOUMAN
 Monsieur 363
SHRADER
 Miss 716a
 William 270
SHRAM
 Henry 266
SHREVES
 James Wesley 312
 Thomas 312
SHULTS
 Barney 206
SHULTZ
 (Muller & Shultz)
 417
SHUSTER
 William 318
SHUTTLEWORTH
 Joshua 719, 726
 Joseph 139
SIBLEY
 Benjamin 496
 (Ewart & Sibley)
 496
 Ezekiel 496
 Ezekiel Jr. 496
 Capt. H L 388a
 H L 129
 Hiram Luther 496a
 John 496
 Joseph 496
 (Paine & Sibley) 496
 Phoebe Simons (w.
 Ezekiel Jr.)
 (Smith, Sibley &
 Meigs) 435
 Solomon 103, 462
 William Jiddings
 496
SICKLES
 158
 Gen. 182
Siddy season, see epidemics
SICKMAN
 S B 601
SIEBERS
 Richard 150
SIEGEL
 Gen. 186, 216, 247
SIEGFRIED
 Rev. S 543, 562
Sigle House 684a
Silkworms 521-2
SILL
 Col. 151
SILLMAN
 Prof. Ben 409
 Wyllis 117, 413
 Wyllis 413
SILLS
 Jonathan 139
SILVA
 Sally 550
Silver Grey Organi- zation 134, 157, 226
Silver Heels (Indian)
 85, 86, 535
Silver Mine Run 658, 700
SILVERS
 John 139
SIMKINS
 Daniel 58
SIMMONS
 Alexander 371, 675
 J N 602
 John 274
 Orrin 307

- Wm. 383
SIMMS
 Maj. 193
 Nannie591
 Thomas691, 692
SIMON
 589
 John H 138
SIMONDS
 Joseph58
SIMONS
 Anthia558
 Mrs. Chene Waters
 496
 Joseph556, 559
 Luther496
 OH259
 Orrin259
 Patience558
 Phebe496
SIMPSON
 C644
 FB150
 J519
 PW149
 William331
 Wm. T190
SINCLAIR
 Jesse B307
 Margaret679
 Mariah384
 William274
Singed Cat Society
 663
SINGER
 Rev. 601
SIPPLE
 Daniel221, 282
 family697
 Martin698
 Veronica696
 William282, 699
SISSON
 Capt. 220
 Lewis E, see errata
 Maj. Lewis E 217, 218
 Dr. NB 223
SIVILL
 Nathan331
 SamuelN 331
 Tobias331
Six Nations 9, 60-1
 Skating 361
S'KEEN
 Mrs. Caroline Bart-lett506
SKEEN
 S M526
Skeletons 442, 498-9, 690, 693
SKIDMORE
 C J151
SKILLINGTON
 Thomas325, 547
 William O325
SKINARD
 Ed259
SKINNER
 Adolphus M 297
 D C367, 371, 394
 D L369
 Daniel C366
 David148, 445
 David C145
 Dr. Elsie418
 George282
 J C588
 Rev. J C709
 Jacob521
 James282
 John57, 138, 139
 Rolston & Company
 370
 Miss Sarah Catherine479
 Samuel C147
 Samuel146
 WP226
 William 58, 363,
 373, 420, 422, 424,
 434-5, 445, 475,
 479, 481, 611, see
 errata
 Mrs. William474
 Wm. J. 366
 Wm. Sr. 366, 720
 Wm. W150
Skins (legal tender)
 362, 364
SKIPTON
 Hiram320
 Joelpha626
 John226, 637
 John Sr. 632
 Kate626
 Lucy636
 Sally632
 Samuel320
 William, see errata
 William 314, 320,
 see errata
- SKIVINGTON
 Salina554
SLAGLE
 Ezekiel576
SLATER
 Calvin554
 DS325
 David554
 Ellis533
 Enos554
 Fletcher554
 Hester A 554
 James W F, see er-
 rata
 Jos. W197
 Margaret Turner
 (w. Enos)
 Martha West (w.
 David)
 Mary554
 Sarah554
 Susan L 554
SLATERS
 James W F 325, see
 errata
SLATTERY
 JA 423
 Patrick William302 Slavery (in Wash
Co.) 36-8, 107, 120,
 144-5, 360, 428-31,
 657, 734
SLEIGH
 George W325
SLEMMER
 Gen. 224, 494
 Maj. 109, 151
SLETH
 Rev. D M661
SLIDELL
 John145
SLIH
 Thomas58
SLOAN
 Dr. 695
 Delilah707
 Helen H117, 740
 Lydia A 693
 Margaret A 699
 Samantha699
SLOBAM
 John659
SLOBOHM
 see errata
SLOBOHN
 see errata
 Henry 289, see errata
 John H 289, see er-
 rata
SLOCOMB
 Benjamin392
 Deborah Packard
 (w. Silas)
 Gen. H W 169-70
 John M226
 Mary C396
 P367
 Silas 227, 347, 367,
 371, 374, 377, 384-
 5, 647
 William 367, 377,
 382, 393-4, 398,
 401, 430, 446, 479-
 80
Slocumb Hall 401 SLOT
 Michael F267
SLOTTERBACK
 see errata
 Henry 331, see errata
 Joseph 331, see er-
 rata
SLOTTERBECK
 see errata
SLUMP
 John302, see errata
SMALL
 John103
Smallpox 52, 609
Smallpox (1790) 405
SMALLWOOD
 John E164
SMITH
 Col. 162
 Dr. 400, 486
 Lieut. 23, 24
 Mr. 37, 547
 Mrs. A 702
 Aaron427
 A da668
 Adaline627
 A dda C629
 Alexander731
 A lexander F270
 Alonzo725
 A lphonso W 725
 Andrew 218
 Angeline728
 Ann721
 Anna Jane731
- Anna N 668
 Anthony 605, 615,
 616
 Arnold267
 Arthur H 732
 August317
 Augustus608
 Gen. Baldy247
 Barbara732
 Benjamin58
 C C347
 C C Jr. 608
 Caroline608, 614
 Carmi649, 725, 727,
 729, 730
 Casper368
 Chapin & Buzzard
 372
 Charles259, 325
 Christian B138, 139
 Christianne (w.
 Noah)
 Christopher210
 Christopher C309
 Clara B668
 Clarence725
 Clarence C628, 720
 Clark292
 Columbus608
 Cynthia684
 Cyrentha608
 D A155
 Rev. D M720, 723
 D W672
 David264, 292, 691,
 695
 David Chemsy294
 Deborah C Graham
 (w. S S)
 Maj. Dioclesian A
 223, 224
 Dock V 668
 Dudley608, 615
 E 644
 ED164
 EG700
 EG396
 Edith M629
 Edward629, 725
 Edward F720
 Edwin305
 Eleanor Houghland
 (w. Vincent)
 Eleazer632
 Eli725
 Elias D289
 Elijah636
 Elijah G147, 297
 Eliza731
 Eliza Arnold (w.
 Robert)
 Eliza Goddard (w.
 James Ward)
 Elizabeth612, 680
 Ella668
 Ellen613
 Elonozo H720, 725
 Esther A 738
 Esther Jane 649, 727
 Ethel F720
 Ethyl725
 Eunice632
 Eva608, 613
 Eva B584
 Eva J 668
 Fera725
 Flora (see Flora Vincent)
 Frances732
 Frank668
 Franklin608
 Fred668
 Frederick316
 Frederick C216
 G P605
 G W285
 George312
 George Alexander 289
 George P309, 608
 Dr. George S573
 George W 261, 312,
 321, 565, 571
 Gerrett145
 Gilbert727
 Gilead320
 H 645
 Prof. H P 469
 Harriet608
 Harrison150
 Harvey724, 725
 Henry 112, 312,
 314, 328, 395, 398,
 399
 Prof. Henry 402, 404
 Rev. Henry 390,
 403, 575
 Henry M297
 Horatio Nelson261
 Howard191
- Hulda636
 Ida727
 Idella M668
 Mrs. J 707
 J C423
 J E151
 J Higgins312
 J J307, 584
 J L584
 J V155
 James 58, 362, 569,
 571, 725-6
 James F270
 James Jr. 731
 James Sr. 731
 James H731
 James K629
 James Keith312
 James Monroe697
 James W 261, 629,
 675, 680, 681, 682,
 721
 James Waldo 720,
 723, 725, 728
 James Ward 720,
 723, 725
 Jane (w. James Sr.)
 June620
 Jeanette629
 Jeremiah297
 John 58 (twice),
 103, 104, 106, 139,
 218, 223, 309, 316,
 321, 368, 446a,
 510, 636, 639, 675
 John B216
 John Charles302
 John D139
 John F157, 190
 John M731
 John W 139, 147,
 297, 629
 Jonathan 58, 261,
 297, 312
 Jonathan H188
 Joseph58, 285, 732
 Joseph A 270, 731
 Joseph L629
 Joshua Pitt294
 Josiah331
 Julia Goddard (w.
 Lawson)
 Katy584
 Col. Kirby213, 215
 Lawson725, 726
 Leslie668
 Lionel J206
 Lot L126
 Lucinda732
 Lucy720, 725
 Lucy S720
 Lydia608, 615, 737
 Margaret731
 Margaret Morrison
 (w. James Jr.)
 Margaret Perry (w.
 S S)
 Maria528, 601
 Martha639
 Mary 608, 636, 684,
 737
 Mary L629
 Mary Ann Gage (w.
 J Waldo)
 Matilda 608, 731, 732
 Matilda P610
 Melancthon35
 Melissa608, 615
 Michael584
 Maj. Michael W 186
 Milton724, 725
 Minnie668
 Moses151, 294, 302
 Myron A 720, 725
 Capt. N B223
 Nathan139, 218
 Noah571, 629
 Oliver629, 639
 Orland216
 Oscar B720
 P 645
 Paul584
 Percilla731
 Percival608
 Pherona T720, 725
 Philip316
 Phoebe668
 Polly636
 Ralph W 668
 Rebecca571
 Robt. 356, 639, 644
 & Rodick368, 446a
 Rosanna569
 Roscoe B725
 Rowena G Williams
 (w. Gilbert)
 Rozannah Petty (w.
 James K)
 Ruth Rardin (w.
 Ralph W)
 SB737
- SCH150, 267
 SH W151
 SR312
 SS668, 670
 Sally (teacher) 652
 Sallie644, 652
 Samuel569
 Samuel H W 307
 Samuel T571
 Samuel Thomas312
 Sarah608, 643
 Sarah A 725
 Sarah Bishop (w.
 Carna)
 Sarah Clarinda727
 Sarah E127
 Sarah Perry (w.
 Dock V)
 Sibley, Meigs435
 Sidner E668
 Stephen 58, 510,
 608, 615, 616
 Susan Dela Grange
 (w. Joseph)
 Susan Racer (w. S
 B) Talma725, 727
 Thomas 331, 601,
 639
 Gen. Thos. Church
 Haskell151, 154,
 186, 304, 335, 402
 Vincent 668, 711, 725
 W F681
 William 58, 67, 74-
 5, 139, 165, 363,
 503, 510, 541, 603,
 636, 641, 680, 731
 William C270
 William Giddings
 496
 Wm. H 158, 297,
 422, 439
 William L302
 Wm. M629
 William P289
 Wilton331
 Rev. Windsor A 644
 Winthrop B402
SMITHERS
 Rev. David600
SMITHSON
 Lt. 169
 HN261
 Hattie686
 Jane778
 John675, 677
 John Jr. 676
 RE682
 Richard C261
 Maj. Robert E 217-
 8, 223, 261
 William261
SMOTHERS
 Davis695
 Rev. John575
SNIDER
 Andrew 601
 Henry309
 Jacob Bratton302
 John302
 John B307
 John W270
 Peter307
 Peter Bratton302
 Sarah444
 Thomas H270
 William T302
SNIER
 Ordaml147
SNIFFEN
 Rev. 541
 BN631
SPARLING
 Dr. 707
 Dr. Ridley707
SPARROW
 Alice647
SPAULDING
 213
 Miss395
 & Jewell468a
 Abbie478a, 479
 A lmina E 478a, 479
 L Benjamin 478a,
 479
 Cynthia A (w.
 Isaac)
 Edward478a, 479
 Elia478a, 479
 Elmina (w. Isaac)
 Capt. Isaac 478a
 Isaac478a, 479
 Isaac Jr. 478a
 Rev. John518, 645
 Josiah339
 Lucy (w. Capt.
 Isaac)
 Mary478a, 479
 Sarah478a, 479
SPAYERMAN
 John325, see errata
- SNYDER
 Ann Elizabeth701
 Benj. 139
 Caroline D560
 Charles560
 Daniel560
 Elizabeth560
 Elizabeth Davis (w.
 George)
 George 560, 561,
 704
 Hannah584
 JS675
 Jacob227, 560
 Jacob Jr. 560
 Jessie D560
 Joseph B294
 Margaret Baker (w.
 Jacob)
 Mary739
 P576
 Peter565, 569
 Peter Jr. 569
 Wilard560
Societies - 1st, Liter- ary & debating 361
SOLAR
 George307
Soldiers' Aid Society
 176 Soldiers' Monument
 333 Soldiers' Monument
 Assoc. 175
Soldiers' Relief Fund
 175
SOLER
 Daniel147
 Geo. 151
SOLNIGER
 Mrs. 427
"Solomon's Temple"
 703
SOLZER
 Frederick151
Sons of Liberty 158
Sons of Temperance
 564b
SOULE
 A lmer P 488
 Asa488
 Benjamin543
 Jonathan423
SOULK
 Geo. F195
SOUTH
 Geo. S195
South Branch Allot- ment 621
South Wolf Creek
Block House 622
SOWERS
 Rev. J E519
SOYER
 Elizabeth T396
 Louis114
SPACHT
 Anthony507, 526
 Catherine (w. Anthony)
SPALDING
 Jesse139
SPARHAWK
 Caroline502
 George W 502
 Nathan502, 517
 Noah 58, 502, 519,
 526
 Susan Stone (w.
 Nathan)
SPARKS
 Rev. 541
 BN631
SPARLING
 Dr. 707
 Dr. Ridley707
SPARROW
 Alice647
SPAULDING
 213
 Miss395
 & Jewell468a
 Abbie478a, 479
 A lmina E 478a, 479
 L Benjamin 478a,
 479
 Cynthia A (w.
 Isaac)
 Edward478a, 479
 Elia478a, 479
 Elmina (w. Isaac)
 Capt. Isaac 478a
 Isaac478a, 479
 Isaac Jr. 478a
 Rev. John518, 645
 Josiah339
 Lucy (w. Capt.
 Isaac)
 Mary478a, 479
 Sarah478a, 479
SPAYERMAN
 John325, see errata
- SPEAR
 Gideon259
 Henry L331
 James T259
 SD 706, 709
SPEARMAN
 John325, see errata
SPEARS
 Henry721
 Ivan259
 James309
 Jane721
 John316, 721
 Malinda721
 Margaret Zumbro
 (w. John)
 Mary588
 William721
SPENCE
 John216
 Wm. 147
SPENCER
 Mrs. 427
 Caywood528
 Electa Oliver (w. O
 M)
 Elizabeth117
 Emma Jane528
 Fanny528
 George W325
 Maj. Gen. Joseph
 646
 Dr. Joseph121, 366,
 382, 646
 Josiah528
 Lucy A Henderson
 (w. S J)
 Margaret645
 Martha Brainerd
 (w. Maj. Gen.
 Jos.)
 O M501
 Robert528
 Rowena121
 S J528
 Samuel S643
 Rev. W V 525
 William528
SPEVIL
 Eben706
Spies 510
SPIES
 Henry561
 Jacob605
 John607
SPINDLER
 Franz J 689
Spinning Wheels 636
SPONDER
 534
 Dr. 543
 A J534
 Cyrus325
 Dr. Cyrus555, 562
 Daniel259
 Edward H555
 Grace G 555
 Isaac259
 Isaac D555, 561
 John563
 Sarah Denney (w.
 Isaac)
 Whipple615
SPOTSWOOD
 Gov. Alexander16
SPRAGUE
 Gen. 211, 212, 215
 Abigail Wilber (2nd
 w. Joshua) Amy Darling (1st w.
 Joshua)
 Benjamin559
 D W563
 Daniel F259
 E W561
 Elijah347, 535, 559
 Elizabeth640
 Frederick559
 H O259
 JS148
 J W156
 James559
 Jasper367
 Jasper S112
 John535, 536
 John W 152, 169,
 210, 251
 Jonathan 58, 347,
 530, 558, 559, 562,
 608
 Joseph S536
 Joshua58, 530, 531,
 532, 541, 558, 559
 Luna558
 Dr. Manly H536
 Melissa Smith (w.
 Jonathan)
 Nancy558
 Nehemiah 58, 541,
 559 Rubia551
 Samuel73, 541, 559, 644

- Seaman 559
Col. W P 165, 213
W R 535
Wayne 559
Wilbur 73, 530, 541, 559
William 58, 73, 111, 530, 531, 532, 541, 558, 559
- SPRATT
Alice J 560
George 560
Jane Heslop (w. Thomas)
Lizzie A 560
Mary 560
Matthew 560
Thomas 560, 659
- SPRENGLE
Chas. 147
- SPRINGER
Clark 139, 624
Cornelia 519
Rev. Cornelius 426
George 279
Henry J 279
Jacob 520
John 279
Joseph 624
Pegleg 58, 362, 624
Sally Wells (w. Pegleg)
Samuel 279
- SPROAT
Miss 462, see errata
Catherine W Hipple (w. Col. Ebenezer) 461
Earl 48, 366, 373, 435
Col. Ebenezer 21, 25, 27, 44-8, 50, 54, 56, 66, 69-10, 75-6, 79, 110, 113, 115, 117, 363, 419, 435, 460-1, 466, 541, 687
- SPROUT
William 588
William J 581
- Squatters (proclamation regarding) 21, 22
- SQUIER
Rev. 542
Catherine (w. Samuel) & Davis 439, 441
Edward A 564c
Ester 564c
G McElhinney 658
James M 564c
Marshall M 564c
Samuel Adalbert 564c
- Squirrels 611
- St. Cecelia Square (see Cecelia Square)
- ST. CLAIR
Gov. Arthur 10, 15-6, 35, 40-2, 53, 62, 65, 71-2, 78-9, 101-2, 104, 106, 366, 362, 435, 440, 443, 461-3, 470-1, 482, 500
Arthur Jr. 462
Jane 462
Louisa 6, 361, 462
Margaret 443, 462
Wm. 151
St. Clairsville 564-5, 599
St. Cloud Hotel 368
St. Jacob's (German Church, 1858) 689
- ST. JOHN
Arthur L 679
Austin H 679
C R 679
Caroline C 679
Charles 682
Clara L 679
Emma 679
Erastus L 679
G W 675
George W 679
Leora H 679
Lorine 679
Morris S 679
R W 114, 679
Ralph 682
Russell 676, 679
Ruth E 679
W M H 679
- St. John's (Catholic & Cemetery) 630, 632
- St. John's (Lutheran) & Cemetery 630, 632
- St. Louis, Mo. 502
- St. Lucas (Lutheran) 389
- St. Luke's (Episcopal) 387-8
- St. Mary's (Catholic) 389-0
- St. Paul's Evang. 388-9
- STACEY
Alice J 560
Dr. 81
Mr. 601
Mrs. 561
A D C 605
A O 559
A R 605, 609, 615
A de laide 609
Aurelia 609
Aurelius 607, 609
Beulah 558
C F 605, 609
Ella 609
Gideon 465
Grace 610
Harriett A Dyar (w. Miles A)
J 605, 615
James 610
Joel 609
John 58, 67, 465, 609, 610
Joseph Jr. 610, 616
Joseph Sr. 58, 363, 609-10
Mrs. Lydia 561
M A 605, 615
Mary 610
Mehitable 609
Miles A 609, 620
Philemon 465, 609
Philip 58, 67, 68, 70
Richard 601
Rufus 58
Samuel 609
Sophia 609
Col. William 52, 57, 65, 67, 70, 115, 363, 419, 465, 609, 616
William Jr. 58
- STACKHAUS
707
- STACKHOUSE
Barbara 707
Franklin 259
John 259
Wallace 309
W W 259
William 285
- STACY
Arius F 309
Austin 557
Albert F 557
Clide C 669
Eliza J Breckinridge (w. Wm. R)
George P 557
Harry 557
Henrietta 716a
James 309
Jessie M 557
Joel Eliot 309
John 557
John R 669
L L 558
Leonard 669
Little 557
Louisiana Frost (w. John)
Lucy 557
Lydia Pixley (w. Austin)
Margaret 559
Mary 557
Miles A 151, 198, 309, 557
Ned E 669
Osmer O 557, 561
Sophia 557
William 557
Wm. Jr. 683
Wm. R 669
- STAG
Catharine 528
- STAGE
Ada 637
Andrew 266
Drucilla Lightfritz (w. William)
James 637
Jerry 637
Perry 637
Samantha 637
Samantha B 637
Samuel G 637
Sarah R 637
Thomas 321
William 637
William J 321, 637
- Stahls Brigade 179
- STALEY
Albert 555
D C 533, 548
- David 555
Elizabeth 555
Elizabeth Matthews (w. H A)
Ella 555
H A 348, 544, 555
Mary A 555
Sarah E 555
William 555
- STANBERRY
Att. Gen. 95
- STANDSBURG
Christina 139
- STANHOPE
John William 294
- STANLEY
587, 589
Gen. 207, 213
Abbay G 684
Adelina E 684
A m z 113, 428
Angelina Goldsmith (w. Thos.)
Anna 585
Anna (w. Thomas)
Augustus Little 585
Benjamin 586
Chas. A 403
Charles W 585
Clarissa 583, 684
Cynthia 684
Daniel G 585, 587, 683, 684, 688
David S 211
Edna L 684
Ella 557
Eliza 427, 685
Elizabeth 684
Rev. F 562
Francis 139
Francis R 684
Frederick A 684
G W 583
George 113, 226, 274, 583, 684
Geo. W 178
Grace Racer (w. James)
Harriet Doan (w. Joseph Ford)
Harriet E 684
Helen A 684
Ida Babson (w. W W)
J H 420b
Col. J R 149
J W 368, 70, 420, 446
James 131, 151, 147, 198, 202, 316, 493, 585, 589, 684, 737
James H 585
John 139
John W 347
Joseph Ford 684
Joseph L 585
Lilly N Schofield (w. G W)
Lot Putnam 585
Lucy 684
Lydia N 735
Lydia Porter 585
Mary 684
Mary Augusta 585
Mixenda (w. Thomas)
Nancy 684
Percival J 684
Polly 682
Rosella 585
Rosella Putnam (w. Daniel)
Sarah 584, 684
Sarah Elizabeth Cole (w. J W)
T F 58, 432
Thomas 56, 58, 112, 114, 316, 363, 419, 434, 583, 585, 683, 684, 687
Maj. Thomas 689
Thomas F 684
Thomas J 585
Susannah 585
Col. Timothy R 196
W T 274
W W 583, 589
Capt. Wallace S 198
William 274
Dr. Wilson 411, 412
Stanley Mills 687
Stanley's Div. 211, 212
Stanley's Still-house 687
Stanleyville 584, 658, 685, 687, 689
Stanleyville Cemetery 689
- STANTON
Abel 733
F 722
- Henry B 147
Smith 271
Virginia Barton (w. E)
- STARK
Horatio 147
- STARKES
Pardon 138
- STARKWEATHER
Mrs. Parmelia E legwood 649
- STARLIN
Betsey 626
Loraina 625
Marvel 624, 625
Simon 624, 630
- STARLING
George 270
Marion 267
Stephen 328
- STARMAN
Jonathan 331
- STARR
George W 267
Henry 398
Pierre S 206
- Statehood, enabling act 106
- Statehood, opposition 106
- STATES
Prof. D F 579
D J 575
Martha C 596
- Stationary Mill (1st) 513
- STATTS
Alfred 285
- Steamboats 43, 377-9, 432, 647
- Steam Doctors 703
- Steam engine 501
- Steam Flour Mill 597
- STEARNS
Rev. Asa 520
- STEBBINS
Samuel 57, 115
- STEBER
Adam 328, see errata
- STEDMAN
Alexander 506
Betsey Beebe (w. Bial)
Bial 112, 134, 506, 513, 515, 520
Mary Miles (w. Bial)
William T 113, 603
- Stedman's Mill 513
- STEEBER
Adam, see errata
Jacob 328, 626
Jolina Beebe (w. Jacob)
- STEED
Abraham 259
James 305, 309
John 259
William 305
- STEEDMAN
Gen. 189
Col. James B 149
- STEEL
Gen. F 168, 221, 222, 223
Judge 505
Phoebe Pierce (w. Judge)
- STEELE
Gen. 253
Horatio 721
James 564c
Lucinda 721
Nancy M (w. James)
Rufus 721
Samuel R 721
William 721
- STEEN
Eli 151
Ely 206
Hamilton 286
James 286
Joseph 286
- STEENROD
J J 157
Joseph J 218, 220
- STEER
Edward 309
Mary 626
Dr. Smith D 216
- STEIGNER
Jacob 289
- STEIT
Mr. 613
- STEMBACK
Maj. Henry 195
- STEPHEN
Deborah 721
John P 601
- STEPHENS
A W 286
Abigail Coggeshall (w. Peter)
Alex 145
Anna 525
Augustine 726
Daniel 706
David 541
George 439, 571
J P 601
Jacob 58
Joseph R 302
Joseph S 157
Mrs. Lucy L Beach 553
Mary Rabel (w. George)
Peter 507
Stacy H 279
T S 519
Thomas 273
- STEPHENSON
Joseph 279
Joseph Albert 279
Rhoda 567
- STERLIN
Joseph 150
- STERNES
Amos 526
- STETLER
Rosanna 626, 724
- STEBEN
Baron 39
- Steuben Fort 24
- Steubenville 611, 615
- STEVENS
Capt. 219, 223
D 226
Dr. G J 411
George P 738
Harriet Harmon (w. George P)
Hugh 297
J G 412
John G 370
Lloyd B 196
Walter 681, 688
Col. Wm. E 217, 218
- STEVENSON
Capt. Jos. 224
W E 173
- STEWART
Pri. 199
George 297
Joseph H 227
- STEWART
Gen. 200
Basil 601
Bishop M 697
Eleanor 588
Eliza J 697
Frank 309
Geo. 601
Harriet L 697
Hiram 697
Hiram C 279
Ira 312
J H 312
J W (Preacher) 600
James 576, 697
Col. James 140
John 151, 289, 312, 383
John E 697
John H 697
John W 259, 325
Jonathan C 297
Landora 697
Louis 697
Capt. M A 210
Mahala Elson (w. John H)
Mary L 697
Philander 593
Rev. Robert C 733
Stanton E 697
T L 697
T R 307
Tartus 147
Tartus L 325
Thomas R 316
Wm. 147, 151
Witten 697
William W 697
- STICKLE
Annie E 660
- STICKRATH
Lewis 707, see errata
Paul, see errata
- STICKROD
Lewis 316, see errata
Paul 317, see errata
- STIDD
John 289
- STIDWELL
James R 216
- STILES
Benjamin F 297
- STILL Chester T 261
Eather 588
James Leroy 292
John F 261
Leonard 279
Martin Luther 261
Thomas 279
- STILLWELL
Rev. E 543
- STILT
Jacob 302, see errata
- STIMSON
Rodney Metcalf 1, 126, 228, 333-4, 348, 405, 410, 415, 417
- SINE
Michael 601
- STITTS
Jacob, see errata
- Stockade, The 121, (see Campus Martius)
- STOCKDALE
Capt. 379
- STOCKING
Oliver 139
- STOCKLEY
Rufus B 522
Rufus Putnam 512a, 513
S H 520, 521, 522
Samuel 402, 512a, 513
Sardine 422, 616, 620
Simeon Bolivar 512a, 513
son of Samuel 427
Susanna 502, 517
Susanna (w. Capt. Jonathan) Thompson 302
Wm. 168
Rev. William 709
- Stone Castle 567
- Stone House 513
- Stone's Garrison-Belpre 81, 86
- Stone's Stockade 502, 504, 509, 511, 512a, 516
- STONEHAWKS
James 193
- STONEMAN
Jasper 331
Jessie 382
John 331
Philip 266
William 266, 267
- Stony Point 548
- Store, first Lawrence Twp. 658
- Store, first in Palmer 673
- STORTS
H Andrew 270
John 731
Joseph B 270
P 731
Philander 270
- STORY
Judge 469
Dr. Andrew 530, 531, 535, 540, 541, 543
Andrew 58
Charles 544, 550
Rev. Daniel 45, 56, 58, 76, 363, 380-1, 419-22, 439, 457, 466, 468-9, 516-7, 611, 622
Deacon 358
Hannah Devol (w. Charles)
Joseph 58
M 543
Relief 551
William 58
- STOTLAR
Peter 626
Rosanna 626
- STOUGH
Wm. 193
- STOUT
M 661
Stove Factory 371
- STOW
Charles R 309
J S 347
Seldon S 309
James S 147
- STOWE
Col. 370
Anne Merriam (w. Sardine)
Charles 621
Diantha 612, 613, 821
Dudley 621
- Jonathan Franklin 512a, 513
Capt. Jonathan 501, 509, 510, 511, 512a, 513, 515, 526
L E 7, 516, 524
Lillie W 446
Loring E 164
Lydia 608
Lydia Barrett (1st w. Israel)
Lydia Loring 512a, 513
Marana D D 366
Mary 427, 608
Mary B 549
Mary Broadhurst Corner (2nd W. Israel)
Mary Sr. 427
Matilda 608
Melissa Barker 512a
Melissa W 512a, 513
Milton 150
Rebena Dodge (w. Augustus)
Rosanna 612
Rosanna 246
Rufus 611
Rufus B 522
Rufus Putnam 512a, 513
S H 520, 521, 522
Samuel 402, 512a, 513
Sardine 422, 616, 620
Simeon Bolivar 512a, 513
son of Samuel 427
Susanna 502, 517
Susanna (w. Capt. Jonathan) Thompson 302
Wm. 168
Rev. William 709
Stone Castle 567
Stone House 513
Stone's Garrison-Belpre 81, 86
Stone's Stockade 502, 504, 509, 511, 512a, 516
STONEHAWKS James 193
STONEMAN Jasper 331
Jessie 382
John 331
Philip 266
William 266, 267
Stony Point 548
Store, first Lawrence Twp. 658
Store, first in Palmer 673
STORTS H Andrew 270
John 731
Joseph B 270
P 731
Philander 270
STORY Judge 469
Dr. Andrew 530, 531, 535, 540, 541, 543
Andrew 58
Charles 544, 550
Rev. Daniel 45, 56, 58, 76, 363, 380-1, 419-22, 439, 457, 466, 468-9, 516-7, 611, 622
Deacon 358
Hannah Devol (w. Charles)
Joseph 58
M 543
Relief 551
William 58
STOTLAR Peter 626
Rosanna 626
STOUGH Wm. 193
STOUT M 661
Stove Factory 371
STOW Charles R 309
J S 347
Seldon S 309
James S 147
STOWE Col. 370
Anne Merriam (w. Sardine)
Charles 621
Diantha 612, 613, 821
Dudley 621

- Dudley S613
Eliza (w. James S)
Erastus 620
J S Sth621
J S 367
James S 610, 620,
620a, 620b
James S Sr 613
Jane Smith (w.
James S)
Lucy 613, 621
Nancy 613, 621
Pitt 621
Pittman 613
Rufus 611
S S 605, 608, 611
Sardine 620, 621
Sardine S 608, 613
Seldon 621
Seldon S 613
STRACHAN
Sarah Johnson (w.
W)
W 660
STRAIGHT
Mr. 671
STRAIN
James M 321
STRALLER
Cila 628
STRANAHAN
Margaret 1727
STRATTON
526
Mrs. 176
Miss E 176
Geo. E 158
Mrs. J P 396
John 57
Samuel 57
Stratonsville 564, 565
STRAUS
Julian 716
STRAUSS
Mr. 644
Caroline Zimmer (w.
John D)
D W 423
Elston & Co. 738
J 632
Rev. J 576
John D 738
STRECKER
George 371, 738
Johnannah A benschon (w. George)
John 605
John Sr. 738
John J 617
STREMPLE
Charles 297
Henry 297
STRIBBLING
S J 524
STRICKER
John 227
Mathew 151
Matthew 305
Morris 305
William 305
STRICKLAND
M P 519
STRICKLER
Isaac 294
STRICKLEY
A 286
STRIKER
John 259
STRIMBACK
Sarah 701
STROHL
see errata
Charles 292
Joseph 292, 309, see
errata
Joseph S 297, see
errata
Martin 292
William 309, see er-
rata
STRONG
Capt. 23-4, 362, 466
Joseph 58
Rev. Father Truman 520
Wm. A 139
STROTHERS
Col. 200
STROWERS
Mrs. 392
STRUIF
Anna T 628
STUCKEY
Jeremiah 227, 294
STUFFLEDOM
Calvin 302, see erra-
ta
STUFFLEBEAM
Calvin, see errata
STULL
Anna 553
C R 533, 534, 544
Catharine 553
Electa A 553
Francis 553
Frances Wickham
(w. Perez)
Henry 553
Perez 553
STUMP
John 282, 321
L 302, see errata
Lawrence 307
STUMPF
John 302, see errata
L, see errata
STURGES
W M 402
STURGIS
Gen. 192, 207
STURGISS
J W 423
STYER
Ernest 738
William 738
Wm. H, see errata
SYNER
307, see errata
Subscription Schools
601
SUCK
August 603
SUGAR 362
Sugar Run 683, 685
Sugar Run School
687
SUGDEN
Edmonds J 297
Thomas Henry 297
SULLIVAN
Gen. 207, 214
Charles 226, 439
Mary 7628
SULTAN
Samuel 286
SUMNER
Chas. 145
Sumrill's Ferry 26,
45-6, 559, 625
Sunday Creek 608
Sundial 51
Survey 50-1, 54, 63, 647 Surveyors - (chosen by Ohio Company)
21
SUTHERS
Esther A 678
Sutter Creek 607
SUTTON
A m 586
Mary 585
Mrs. Sally (see Porter, Mrs. Amos Jr.)
SWAGERT
Philip 139
SWAIM
Lucia A 722
Thomas 722
SWALLOW
Eliza 703
George Washington
292
James M 292
SWAN
Mr. 587
David R 267
George 598
Gustavus 114, 116
Hon. Gustavus 403,
410
Jas. H 671
Jane 598
John Jr. 598
John Sr. 598
Mrs. Margaret
Calder 650
Mary Ann Aten (w.
John Sr.)
Samuel B 267
Silas Darwin 598
William 598
SWANEY
William 289
SWARTZ
A 388
Martin 309
Mary E 598
SWATSWOOD
Levi K 279
William 279
SWAYNE
215
Hon. Noah H 403
SWESEY
Thomas 544
SWEET
Father 729
Rev. A. Phelps 520
SWEETZ
Francis M 267
John L 267
SWESEY
Elizabeth Barr (w.
Jordan)
James 727
Jane 727
Jordan 727, 729
Nancy Campbell (w.
Jordan)
SWIFT
Esq. 116
Adaline 553, 554
Alice J Bartlett (w.
Samuel)
Amy Andrews (w.
Charles)
Charles Jr. 553
Deborah Sprague
557
Dorinda C 553
Francis 553, 554
John 302, 325
Louisa 553, 554
Lucinda 553, 554
Lyman 553, 554
Lyman W Jr. 325
Mary 553, 554
Rosamond 553, 554
Samuel 553
Sibyl Webster (w.
Lyman)
SWIGGERT
Mrs. J 707
SWORMSTEDT
Rev. Leroy 383,
519, 542, 688
Sycamore, The Archer 696
Sycamore, living in 557
SYLVESTER
N B 127
Symmes 112
Symmes Creek 86
Symmes Purchase
97-8, 467
SYMMESE
Judge 42, 101, 361,
467
Daniel 501
John 557
Lucretia Oliver (w.
Daniel)
SYMMONS
Joseph 80
Symrills Ferry 625,
see errata
SYNCLE
Wm. 138
TABENNER
Jonah 722
Mary J 722
Nancy (w. Jonah)
Sarah J 722
TAGER
Jacob 183
Tahre, The Crane of the Wyandots 62,
84
TAIT
Edward 273
Michael 273
TALBOT
427
William Bruce 279
TALBOTT
Abasalom O 594
Basil 594
Cornelia 594
Rev. Charles 695
Charles W Jr. 595
Charles W Sr. 594
Eliza McMunn (w.
Charles W Sr.)
Elizabeth 594
Elvisia 594
Ephraim 594
Jake T 305
John Marshall 594
Martha 594
Mary 594
Nancy (w. Charles W Jr.)
Nancy B 594
Polly 600
Temperance 594
TALLMADGE
Col. Benj. 45, 91
Tallow Light, The 6, 7 Tammany Societies
470
Tanneries 524, 563, 673-4, 724
TANTROFF
Antoine 59
TAPPAN
S C 305
Samuel C 190, 305
T M 368
Tar Industry 666, 692
TARBELL
John 547
Tarnal Critters 663
TARREN
Gilmore 726
TATE
Elizabeth 732
John 270, 331
William 21
TATUM
Abasalom 21
Tavern, Brackett's
33, 45
Tavern, Bunch of Grapes 32, 42
Tavern, Red House
368
Taverns 368, 502, 505, 524, 534, 540,
630, 635, 641, 690
Tawas - Indians 10
TAYLOR
Mrs. 551, 650
Benjamin G 270
Brintal 331
Catharine 697
Charlotte 554
Comfort 474
David 289, 331, 697, 714
Elizabeth 384
Ezra 289
Finley W 331
Harriet 650
Isaac 289
Isabel 697
Dr. James 695, 697
James 697
Jane Alexander (w.
Col. Robert)
Jasper 67, 578
Jasper 427
John 139, 289, 325,
697
John W 270
John Wesley 332
Joshua 369, 384
Lois see errata
Louise P 639, see
errata
Lucinda F 682
Margaret Deuchers
(w. James)
Maria 566
Mary 553, 709
Mary A 707
Mary Ann 427
Mary Ormiston (w.
David)
Mungo 601, 661,
697 Peter (Blennerhas-set Gardeners) 623
R 151, 169
Reuben 274
Richard 703
Richard P 286
Col. Robert 444, 737
Samuel M 521
Sarah 608
Stephen 648
Theodore 289, 325
Thomas 586
Thomas C 325
William 261, 427,
697
William C 112
William M 270
Wm. S 198
William W 331
Wilson P 332
Taylor's Run 651
Teachers, early 142, 500, 516, 615
Tecumseh - Indian
11-2, 77, 138
TEEL
Nicholas 139
TEETERS
George W 267
TEGET
E B 547
Telegraph, news by 415
TELLES
William 289
Tempe 355
Temperance 444-5,
582, 651, 672, 693,
729
TEMPLAR
Amos 267
Austin 267
TEMPLE
Jane 739
Sir John 35, 41
Luther 396
TEMPLER
Austin 522
TEMPLETON
Esq. 662
Squire 657
Annie Dye (w.
William)
& Burris 657
Esq. Geo. 657
George 567, 657, see
errata
George W 286
Jane 658
John 660
Lettie 661
Polly 657
Wm. 567, 656
Templeton Mill 657
Ten Eyck, Capt.
Hy. 418
TENNER
A C 210
George 58
TENNEY
Mr. 652
Rev. 518, 541
Bula (w. Dr. James)
Mrs. E A 446
Edward P 305
George Champion
305
Dr. James 735
Rev. John 198, 206,
227, 305
Prof. Lionel 564a
Mrs. Lionel 395
Rev. Roswell 587,
632, 644
TERNEY
Anne 614
TERRY
T W 147
TEST
Hulda Smith (w.
John)
John 113, 226, 347, 636
"Texas" 391
Texas Rangers 220
Text Books 688
Thanksgiving (early)
641 THATCHER
Rev. T 643
T S 391
Rev. Tyler 587
THAYER
Ephraim 259
James E 259
THEIS
Christian 305
& Ez 368
William 113, 273,
717, 728, 729, 730
William Elmer 728
William S 279
THORNBERRY
Lewis 630
THORNBURY
Mr. 593
William H 325
THORNILEY
A daline 141, 739
Alice 739
Augusta 738
Augusta B 738
Betsey Sheldon (w.
C S)
C S 739
James 701
John 697, 701
John J 279
Lavina 697
Lewis 282
Louise 697
Martin 701
Martin Jr. 701
Mary 697, 701
Mary Collier (w.
Solomon "Governor")
Noah 282
Philip B see errata
Rosannah Cline (w.
Solomon Jr.)
Sarah 701, 702
Sarah Strimback
(w. James)
Sherwood 292
Solomon "Governor" 282, 658,
697, 700-1, 704
Solomon Jr. 697, 701
Susan 697
William Harrison
282
William P 282
Tick Ridge 532, 540
TIDD
A S 520
Charles 637
Charles Theodore
305
Charles Wesley 313
George Washington
313
Mary Ann 685
S H 422
Samantha 658
Newton 1739
Philip Van 738
Rinaldo 739
Rinaldo R 295
Samuel 501, 738
Sarah Putnam (w.
Samuel)
Thomas 141, 297,
739
Thomas F 739
Thomas J 738
Thos. R 147
Warren 294
Capt. Wm. 223, 225
William 141, 249,
738-9
Willis Hall 294
THORNILLY
427
Mrs. 427
Caleb 427
THORNTON
Hannah 628
Henry 628
William 274
THORP
Isaac 279
Isiah 279
John Henry 279
William 279
THROP
Martin 150
THORPE
Dr. Jas. C 193
Martin R 267
Three Acres Lots 54 Threshing Machine
Accident 596
THROOP
Zebulon 67
THURHEIMER
Rev. Peter 390
THURLOW
Martha 536
Silas 325, 535
THURMAN
Conrad 543
John E 151
John H 297
THURSTON
F S 519
TIAS
Daniel 58
Eliphale 58
TICE
A maziah 697
Catharine 697
Catharine Cline (1st
w. John) Christian Cline (2nd
w. John)
Cynthia 697
David 697, 701
George 697, 698
George W 282
Harvey 279
Henry 282, 292
Henry William 279
Jacob 282, 701, see
errata
James 701
John 697, 701
John J 279
Lavina 697
Lewis 282
Louise 697
Martin 701
Martin Jr. 701
Mary 697, 701
Mary Collier (w.
Solomon "Governor")
Noah 282
Philip B see errata
Rosannah Cline (w.
Solomon Jr.)
Sarah 701, 702
Sarah Strimback
(w. James)
Sherwood 292
Solomon "Governor" 282, 658,
697, 700-1, 704
Solomon Jr. 697, 701
Susan 697
William Harrison
282
William P 282
Tick Ridge 532, 540
TIDD
A S 520
Charles 637
Charles Theodore
305
Charles Wesley 313
George Washington
313
Mary Ann 685
S H 422
Samantha 658

- Sarah Bridges (w. Charles)
TIFFANY
 A F 198
 Alfonso 264
TIFFIN
 Gov. 530
 Gov. Edward 474
 Edward 103, 104, 105, 106, 119
TILAS
 Alexander 58
TILE
 Henry 308, see errata
TILLOTSON
 & Brother 664
TILTON
 Mrs. 511
 Azubah Dunham (w. Joseph)
 Benjamin 261
 Douglas 271
 Joseph 605, 506, 515, 649, 651
 Leroy D 318
 Persis 666
TIMBERLAKE
 Thomas see errata
TIMBERLICK
 L 681
TINGLEY
 E 568
TINKER
 Dr. Elisha 728a
 Laura Anne (w. Elisha)
TINKHAM
 Cornelius 384
 Hattie 384
TINKHAM
 Mercie B 384
TIPPENS
 Edward 286
 Napoleon 286
TIPTON
 Nancy 508, 527
 Solomon 139
TISE
 Jacob 297, see errata
 Philip B 297, see errata
 Solomon 139
TISEN
 Zephaniah 139
TISON
 Wm. 566
TITUS
 Chas. H 210
 Phoebe 597
Tobacco 709
TODD
 Gov. 155, 156, 157, 160, 193
 Alfred 271
 Capt. Billy 387
 David 153, 167
 George 271
 James 282
 John 13
 Julia 699
 William 699
TOLAND
 Col. 196
TOLFARD
 D W 388, see errata
TOLFORD
 Mary O 396
TOLLMAN
 Ebenezer 581
TOLMAN
 589
 Benjamin 580, 581
 Chester 581
 Eben 581
 Ebenezer 580-1, 588
 Elizabeth 581
 George 581
 James 581
 Jerusha 581
 Joel 581
 Nancy 581
 Ora 581
 Sabra 591
 Seth 580-1, 586
 Silas 581
 Urania 581
 Toltes 440
TOMLINSON
 Joseph 465
 Samuel 465
TOMPKINS
 A W 264, 559, 714
 Alexander 282
 Betsey Windsor (w. David)
 Cydnor B 111
 David 714
 Flora M Cox (w. A W)
 W E 714
- TOOMBS
 Robt. 145
TOOTHAKER
 Frank B 302
TORBERT
 171
TORNER
 Charlotte J Weiss (w. Victor)
 Elvira 636b, 659
 Hugo 659
 Victor 578, 659
 William V 659
TORPEY
 Daniel P 113
TORREY
 Dr. J. Joseph 39, 457
 "Tory" (derision) 134
 Towing business 377
 Town, the earth-works 441
 Town Meeting, first 360
TOWNE
 Rev. Abner 125
 Harriet Nye (w. Henry A)
 Henry A 125
TOWNSEND
 225
 Republican 676
 T B 544
 William C 325
TOWNSHEND
 508
 Township Committee (Civil War) 153
 Township system 29
 Townships, created 09
TOWSLEY
 Darius 227, 302, 350
 Frank 150, 302
 George 302
 John 302
TRACHEL
 Walter 321
TRACY
 Samuel 147
 Samuel L 150
 Samuel S 302
 Wesley 302
TRAIN
 Dr. Isaac 190
 Deacon Samuel 401
Transmontane (ord.) 16
TRAPP
 Rev. 589, 616
 Anna 687
 Catharine Kaiser (w. F E)
 Charles 687
 Elizabeth 557
 Elizabeth Haas 584
 Rev. F C 709
 F C 687
 F E 687
 Henry 687
 Mary 687
 Philip 536, 557
TRATCHE
 Walter see errata
TRAUTMAN
 John W 132
TRAUTNER
 M. 689
 Geo. Adam 689
 Kate 687
 Traveler's Rest 690
TRAVIS
 Ezra 140, 267
 Jacob 267
 Lewis 267
 William 267
TREADWAY
 Jeremiah 696
 Jerry 657
 Jonathan 657
 Zephtha 657
Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle 13
Treaty of Ft. Harmar
 61-2
Treaty Ft. McIntosh
 15, 21
Treaty of Greenville
 68, 86, 98, 92, 607
Treaty of Ghent 13
Treaty of Paris 13
Treaty of Utrecht 13 Treaty, 1752 Indian
 338fn
Tree Assoc., Marietta Shade 447
Trees 54-5, 434, 611, 690
TREIM
 Theodore 367
- TRESCH
 Charles 423
TRESIZE
 Mr. 385
TREUTLEN
 Gov. J A 94
TREVETT
 John 459
TREVOR
 Dr. Hugh 411, 422
 Marie Holden (w. Hugh)
 Sir Hugh 411
TRICKLE
 Bessie Evelyn 732
 Dr. Edward 730, 732
 Frank Hamilton 732
 Jane Hamilton (w. Dr. Edward)
 Mattie Jane 732
 Phoebe Luella 732
 William Arthur 732
TRIMBLE
 Col. 138
 Francis 279
TRIPP
 J W 164
 W L 157, 190
 William L 302
TRITSEL
 Charles 641
TROESCHEL
 see errata
TROOP
 Zebulon 59
TROTTER
 Mr. 670
 Anna Drain (w. Orlando)
 Caroline Dunsmoor (w. Richard)
 James 314, 717
 Orlando 669, 729
 Richard 314, 669, 670
TROUDNER
 George Adam 274
TROWBRIDGE
 David 138, 422
 Jacob 138
TRUCKSON
 563 TRUE
 589
 Abbie L 582
 Amlin 706
 Annie G 582
 Betsy Amlin (w. Ephraim)
 Mrs. Charles Mills (w. Dr. Jabez), see errata
 C W 603
 Clark E 582
 Ephraim 581, 582, 685
 Eugenie Mabel 582
 Hanson W 317
 Rev. Henry 405
 Hiram 582
 Hurd A 317
 Dr. Jabez 52, 57, 89, 113, 115, 363, 382, 393, 405, 408, 427, 435, 442
 Jerusha 585
 John 408, 581, 586, 588
 John A 317
 Joseph O 317
 Julia 582
 Louisa 684
 Mehitabel Alden (w. Moses)
 Melvin 582
 Melvin C 317, 582
 Mixinda Hovey (w. Melvin)
 Moses 582, 588, 589
 Russel H 317
 Wilbur F 317
 Wilbur L 582
TRUESDALE
 John W 325
 Joseph F 325
 Wm. 678
TRUESDELL
 J M 544
 John M 348
TRUIN
 Maj. 141
TRUMBLE
 Daniel 139
TRYON
 59
TUCKER
 Mrs. 427
 Abner 274
 Alice 542, 554
 Rev. D 521
- David (Negro) 522, 525
 Mrs. Eliza 485
 Isaac 700
 James 325
 John 545
 John R 226, 274
 Joshua 139
 Lycurgus 533
 Mary Jane 542, 554
 Mary J Buck (w. Oliver)
 Oliver 533, 542, 554
 Samuel 545
 Mrs. Sarah 545
 Wesley 325
 Wesley J 210
 William 305
TUCKNER
 Abner 147
TUFFER
 Judge 358, see errata
TULLIS
 Eliza Ann 721
 Dr. R H 190
TUMBERLAKE
 Thomas 261, see errata
TUMBLINSON
 Mary 669
TUMEY
 Roswell 226
TUNECLEIFF
 William 297
TUNIS
 Capt. (Indian) 23, 24
TUNNECLIFF
 Joseph 321
 William 321
Tunnel P.O. 641
Tunnel Station 637
TUNNICLIFF
 Wm. 150
TUPPER
 Col. 44
 Gen. 466
 Judge 358, see errata
 David 138, 422
 Maj. 466
 Mrs. 140
 Maj. Anselm 25-6, 45, 47, 51, 68, 81, 140, 363, 392, 419-20, 443, 458, 465, 474, see errata
 Gen. Benjamin 21, 24-5, 27, 30-2, 43, 5, 48, 52-4, 57, 115, 121, 143, 355, 358, 362, 365, 380, 392, 397, 412, 418-9, 442-3, 435, 458, 465-6, 482, 523, 552
 Benjamin Jr. 57, 363, 466
 Bertha Glysson (w. Gen. Edward)
 Gen. Edward White 406, see errata
 Gen. Edward White 57, 80, 112, 134, 136, 140, 363, 365, 376, 406, 458, 463, 466, 474, 478, 618, 711
 Huldah White (w. Benj.)
 Judah 57
 Minerva 458, 463
 Rowena 53, 358, 361, 458, 638
 Sophia 458
 Theodore 466
TURCHIN
 Col. 189, 197, 201, 202, 224, 225, 236, 251
TURDER
 George Butler 302, see errata
Turkey Hen 633, 637
Turkey Hen Creek
 648
Turkey, wild 509, 648
TURNER
 Allen C 126
 Benjamin S 189, 313
 Charles H 469
 David 264
 Duncan 264
 Frances 426
 Frederick V 302, see errata
 George Butler 164, 166-7, 224-5, 227, 251, 253, 264, 302, 403, 426, see errata
 George W 292
 Green 112
- Hannah Butler 251
 James 146
 John (Negro) 521, 522
 Margaret 554
 Mrs. S R 174
 Samuel R 251, 367
 Thomas M 198, 313
 William Parker 313
TURREL
 William P 270
TURRILL
 Charles 321
 Henry L 321
TURRILL
 William see errata
Tuscarawas Indians
 9, 10
TUTTLE
 313, 689
 Mr. 424
 A theniel 385
 August 683
 Jabez 138
 James 264, 641
 Joel 58, 113, 387, 580, 581, 683, 684, 687
 John W 715
 Joseph F 403
 Rev. Joseph F 433
 in Linus 58, 687
 Lucy Calkings (w. Joel)
 Lucy M 683, 688a
 M 721
 Margaret A Preston (w. John W)
 Phoebe Everett (w. Simeon)
 Sarah E 684
 Sarah Mills (w. M)
 Simeon 363, 684, 688
 Simeon E 683, 685, 687
Tuttle Church 718
Tuttle's Run 530, 532
TWIGGS
 Andrew 589
 B F 567
 Benjamin 317
 Cornelius 589
 George 589
 Jane Blake (w. Willard)
 Maria Hill (w. B F)
 Sarah 567
 Willard 583, 684
Twigtwees 12
TWINEM
 J M 699
 John 600
TYLER
 Dr. 663
 Charles D 414, 415
 Comfort 474
 Maj. Dean 52, 57-8, 88, 531, 540-1, 546, 549, 623
 George W 414, 415
 Gen. R O 181, 183
TYRREL
 William 321, see errata
TYRRELL
 Mary A Cole (w. Thomas)
 Thomas 490
TYSON
 Charles 325
 Ira 325
UHL
 Mary 489
ULING
 (traden) 24
ULLMAN
 Dr. J F 686
 Mary Leona 686
 Mary E Lane (w. Dr. J F)
ULLMORE
 Col. Mars 668
ULLOM
 Sylvanus 279
ULMER
 Christian 427
 Col. Jacob 427
 Ulrich 613
Unalachtgo 11
Unamis 11
Underground Rail-road 429, 706, 725, 734
Underwear, purchase
 147
UNDERWOOD
 Oscar 147, 157, 187
 Oscar H 297
 Thomas 186
- UNGER
 A 602
 Andrew 261
 Jacob 150, 313
 Jeremiah 261
 Jones 279, 601
 Nancy 601
Union Bank of Marietta 388b
"Union Galley" boat 46
Union Grange Association 561
Union (landing) 606, 617
Union League 158
Union League, Loyal Women of Amer.
 175
Union Mills 617
Union (Twp.) 109, 606, 621-2
Union Soldiers' Relief 174-5
U. S. Mail Steamers
 578
Unitarian Society
 391, 478
Universalist Society
 385, 395, 520, 583, 542, 588-9, 632, 638, 651, 716, 729
UPEDEGRAFF
 Nathan 107
Upper Newport Settlement 566
Urania - early name for Marietta 355
Utrecht, treaty of 13 UTTER
 Joseph 59
 Reuben 59
 Samuel 59
VALLANDIGHAM
 C L 158
Valley of Dry Bones
 690
VAN BERCKLE
 41
VAN CLIEF
 Peter 541, see errata
VAN CLIEP
 Peter 541, see errata
VANDENBURG
 Henry 104
VANDERVEER
 495 VANDERWALKER
 J 641
VANDERWARKER
 J J 422
VANDINE
 Samuel 307
VANDOM
 156
VAN DOM
 Gen. 207, 212, 214
VANDYNE
 George 286
VANFLEET
 Garrett 261
VAN GILDEN
 George H 267, see errata
VAN GILDER
 A masa 508
 Asenath (w. Jeremiah)
 Charissa 508
 George H, see errata
 Hubbard 508
 Jeremiah 508
 Jesse H 508, 521
 Louisa 508
 M G 521
VAN HORNE
 495
VAN LAW
 Jessie 519
 John 721
 Lucia A 722
 Lydia 721
 S C 722
 Sarah (w. John)
VANMETRE
 William 59
VANOWEY
 Mrs. Sarah Bowers
 707
VANVALEY
 John W 264
 Joseph S 264
VAN VORHES
 Col. Nelson H 111, 223-4, 495
VANWAY
 Burris 289
 Isaac 289, 313
 James 313
 Joseph Osborn 289
 Moses 313
 Robert L 289
- Thomas Mills 313
 William 313
VARNER
 Gen. 44
 Caroline 729
 David 635
 E A 729
 Geo. 729
 Sarah 635
 Sarah A 726
VARNIER
 Charlotte Hickman
 669
VARNUM
 Gen. James Mitchell 27, 44, 45, 52, 54, 56, 57, 72, 101, 102, 112, 114, 116, 356, 358-9, 406, 419, 443-4, 459, 636
 Moses 609
 Samuel 116, 459
VAUGHAN
 Alex 139
VAUGHN
 Mr. 540
 Adeline 678
 A R 678
 Betsey 678
 Caroline 678
 Celestia 678
 Davis 678
 Electa Burch (w. Ely)
 Ely 588, 675-6, 678
 George 678
 Hannah 678
 Ira 261
 James 321, 541
 John 678
 Lydia 678
 P B 678
 Patty Simms (w. George)
 Polly 678
 Robt. 543
 Rowena Perkins (w. John)
 Sally Wharf (w. A R)
VAUPE
 Andrew 597, 601
 Elizabeth Bandal (w. Andrew)
 Louisa 597
 Mary 597
 William 597
VAUX
 Richard 421
VEAL
 Mr. 424
VELLERMINE
 59
VERNARD
 Pierre 59
VERTICAN
 F W 261, 542
 Veto P.O. 651
VICKERS
 Albert 279
 Geo. 147
VIETTS
 Mr. 424
VIGO
 52
VINCENT
 Anselm 264
 Anna Waterman (w. Laban)
 C W 325
 Clarinda 522, 554
 Cyrus E 264
 Eli B 552
 Eliza J 552
 Elizabeth Dustin (w. John)
 Elizabeth Earl (w. Wm.)
 Flora Smith (w. Fred Wilber)
 Fred Wilber 716b
 H 325
 Helen Josephine (w. Henry C)
 Henry C 716b
 Henry Earl 7, 712, 716, 718
 J Caleb 716
 John 552, 712, 718
 John Jr. 552
 John B 552
 John C 264, 712
 Josephine (w. William)
 Laban 552
 Maria 712
 Marion 325
 Mary 552
 Mary A 552

- Mary A Bacon (w. John Jr)
 Mary E 648
 OB 264, 716
 Prudence 552
 Prussia 552
 Rachel Olney (w. John)
 Rhoda Clark (w. Henry Earl)
 Thirza 552
 Thomas 329
 W J 325
 William 711, 712, 716a, 719
 Vincent, O 710, 718-9
 Vincent Station 718
 Vinegar Works 514
 Vineyard - Machetan 602
VINTON
 Miss 125
 Hon. Lemuel 126
 Maggie 446
 Hon. Samuel F 108, 111, 122, 125, 403, 431, 472, 671
 Susie 446
 Thomas 369, 443
Virgin Bottom 580
Virginia Claim 13-4, 28, 30-1
Virginia Military Dist. 14, 30
VISGAR
 Jacob 103
VORIS
 Elizabeth Means 486
 Elizabeth William-son 486
 Dr. William 486
VOSCHEL
 Ebenezer 325
 James 147
 Peter 525
VOSHEL
 James, see errata
 John 282
VOTIAL
 James 259, see errata
VOTIER
 59
VULGERMOT
 Jacob 139
Wabash Indians 62
WAERNICKE
 Ernest 697
WAGGONER
 Peter 286
WAGNER
 Wilhelm 589
Wagon, first four-wheeled 694
WAGONER
 Michael 309
 Theobald 309
Wakatomica, Journey to 98
Wakatomica 358
WAKEFIELD
 L A 636b
 Rev. William see errata
WALBORN
 Elias 273
WALDECK
 Simon 317
WALDO
 Jonathan 510
WALFORD
 John 261
WALKER
 Aaron 286
 Anna 286
 Ezra A 286
 Henry M 267
 James 273, 586
 Martin 286
 Judge Timothy 50 WALL
 Dr. Andrew 216
 Wm. 339
WALLACE
 David 48, 408
 family 20
 Sir James 460
 Joseph 675
 Gen. Lew 234
 Mathew 408
 Dr. Robert 408
 Thomas 259, 302
 Thomas 1261
 Wm. 139, 384
WALBRIDGE
 Caroline 627
 Cynthia (w. Ira)
 Ira 627
WALLCUT
 Thomas 358
- Walnut Hill Farm 612, 616
Walpole (scheme) 18
WALSORTH
 Daniel 541
WALTER
 Dr. D 125, see errata
 Isaac 261
 Jay Clark 261
 Louise 638
 Seth Eugene 261
 Warren Norton 261
 Wm. C 546
 Dr. Z D 1, 125, 412, 422, 446, see errata
WALTERS
 Rev. George G 542
 1602
 J A 716
 James P 289
 John 708, 709
 Jonah 703
 Mary J 703
 Ralph 325
 Thomas B 307
 William 706, 707, 709
 William E 297
 William T 289
WALTHER
 Rev. August 616
WALTON
 James 636
 James S 632
 Rev. James S 644
 Josiah 298
 Mary 648
 Mary Annette Bailey (w. James)
War, Indian 49, 69, 88, 133, 509, 531, 607, 610, 612, 620, 622, 634, 687
War of 1812 131-43, 586, 599, 608, 636, 648, 701
War of Rebellion 143-336
WARD
 676
 Col. 162
 A 542
 A T 113
 Agnes 479
 Albert 596, 670
 Alice M 646
 Ann Maria 479
 Artemus 476
 Asa Evert 596
 Augustus 275, 686
 Augustus T 248
 Chas. A Augustus 249
 D 545
 Daniel 582, see errata
 Daniel J 675
 David 596, see errata
 Eliza Jane 596
 Mrs. Emily 545
 Everett R 275, 686
 Harriet Denny (w. Nahum)
 Henrietta D 479
 Henry Dana 426, 472
 Isaac 259, 261, 325
 J 675
 J Edwin 309
 Jacob 282
 James 261, 605
 James Edwin 298
 James P 596
 Dr. Jesse 703
 John 138, 282
 John C 686, 688a
 Jonas 541
 Joseph 596
 Joseph P 596
 Julia Ann (Doughty) 686
 Kate L Wakefield 249
 Lafayette 479
 Lucy M (w. Robert)
 Margaret (w. James P)
 Martin 313
 Mary 596, 676
 Mary E 479
 Matilda 583
 Matilda E 686
 Morris 259
 Nahum 94-5, 100, 140, 176, 348-9, 391, 431-3, 472, 476, 478-9, 590, 669
 Nancy Covert (w. Joseph P)
 Phoebe Augustus 686
- Richard 596
 Robert 248, 612, 684, 686, 688a
 Sarah Catharine Skinner (w. Nahum)
 Simeon T 686
 Stephen 261, 698
 Thomas 261, 686
 Thomas W 476
 Timothy 698
 W G 259
 William 291
 Wm. 371
 William S 95, 158, 348-50, 391, 479, 618
 Mrs. Wm. S 174
Ward Bro. Store 596
Ward Station 593, 600
WARDEN
 J B & Co. 496
Wards, city 435
WARFIELD
 Dr. James W 217
WARNER
 Gen. A Doniram
 Judson 111, 334-6, 370, 404, 589-0, see errata
 Alex 112
 Anaximander 420, 422
 Dr. C C 371
 J A 370, see errata
 L E W 423
 Gen. Willard 403
Warner Village 589-0
WARNET
 A E 446
WARREN
 689
 Dr. 35
 A T 675
 A 1570
 Aiden 677
 Andrew 570
 Caroline Weber 570
 Charles 275, 519
 Delia 570
 Elbridge G 570
 Elijah 58, 362
 Elmira (Hussey) 570
 Fannie 504, 524b, 525
 Geo. 188, 307
 Hannah (w. William)
 Dr. J M 707, 709
 J M 164
 James S 570
 Manley 113, 146, 156, 227, 302
 Marilla (Hussey) 570
 Nancy Hutchinson 570
 Priscilla Berry 570
 Robert L 275
 Sarah Mitchell (w. Elbridge)
 Sarah Rayley 570
 Sophia Daniels 570
 Western 570
 Wm. 226, 347, 509
Warren (Twp.) 109, 633-4
WARTH
 Alexander 363
 Catharine LaLance (w. Robert)
 George 363
 John 85, 363
 Martin 363
 Robert 59, 85, 363, 737
 Ruth Fleehart (w. George)
WASHBURN
 Mrs. Bathsheba
 Loring 504
 Seth 367
WASHINGTON
 Augustine 17
 George 28-30, 69, 82, 356, 418-20, 452, 454, 462, 464, 473, 480, 608, 694
 John (Negro) 522
 Lady 362
 Lawrence 17
Washington, The (explosion) 377
Washington Benevolent Soc. 543
Washington Co Advertiser 546
- Washington County Agricultural & Mechanical Assoc. 349-51
Washington Co., formation 53, 108-9
Washington Co. Infirmary 564, 565
Washington Co. Militia 164-5
Washington Co. Rifle Guards 150
Washington, Fort 65, 72, 78, 419, 532
Washington Guards 147
Washington Street 434
Washingtonian Society 564b
Washington's Farewell Address 145
WASON
 Bill 724
WASSON
 William 59
Waterford (Plainfield) 1, 68-71, 84, 636, 673, 684
Waterford & Wolf Creek Allotment 621
Waterford Blockhouse 64
Waterford Cemetery 623
Waterford Garrison 622
Waterford Twp. 109, 530-2, 545-6
Waterford Twp., Soldiers' Aid 174-5 WATERMAN
 Aden 541
 Calvin 643
 Charles L 328
 Daniel 329
 Eleanor 587
 Ferrand 623
 John 59, 87-8, 622-3, 630
 John G 516, 519, 522
 Rev. Joseph A 566
 Ralph O 328
 Sherman 59, 87-8, 363, 556, 622-3, 625
 Susan (w. Rev. Joseph A)
WATERS
 Asa Bradford 374, 377, 382, 385
 Charles 496
 Clement 597
 Elizabeth 596
 Israel Richmond 148, 240, 371, 373-4, 377
 John 279
 Rebecca 496
 Zephaniah 261
Watertown Mill 628a, 668
Watertown Twp. 99, 109, 621-2, see errata
WATKINS
 Rev. Denton 589
 Hamilton 317
 Jonathan 97
WATSON
 A J 700, 702
 Anna K Pool (w. A J)
 Daily 267
 Jacob 267, 279
 James 702
 John K 267
 Luman 633
 Maria (w. James)
 Mary 572
 William 279
WATTERMAN
 Anna 552
 John 573
 Rev. John 575
 Rev. Wm. 575
WATTS
 Rev. 632
WAUGH
 Capt. 161
 Joseph 59
 Wm. S 113
WAXLER
 Archibald V 275 WAY
 Maj. 163
 Charles Bosworth 156, 302
 Elizabeth 629
 James E 131
- Joshua 131
 Lucinda Bishop (w. Joshua)
 Mary E Hanson (w. James E)
 William 129, 131, 680
 Way & Ridgway 7
WAYNE
 Gen. Anthony 10, 16, 79, 82, 86, 88, 135, 456, 531
 Mrs. Lucinda Devo 551
Wayne's Treaty 88
WAYSON
 Alexander 271
 Henry 271
WEAKLY
 Thomas 270
WEARE
 Col. 664
WEATHERBY
 Rev. Charles 561, 563
 John 520
 William 259
WEAVER
 Barbara Welch (w. Charles)
 Charles 732
 Rev. G S 385, 520
 Hanson 267
 Nicholas 318
 William 267
WEBB
 Capt. 31, 40
 Dr. Erastus 523
 James D 519
WEBBER
 Col. Daniel 206
 Hadessa 595
 James Madison 595
 Jerry 595
 John 595
 John P 595
 Marion 595
 Mary 595
 Mary Farraborn (w. Richard)
 Mary Gilson (w. John)
 Richard C 595
 Richard Gilson 595
 Samuel Q 595
 Sarah 595
 William Emmett 595
WEBER
 Andrew 52, see errata
 Ann 694
 Caroline 570
 Charles 694
 Maria 694
 Phoebe 694
 R G 600
WEBSTER
 Rev. 682
 Adelpha 543, 544, 553, 556
 Andrew 52, 53, 57, 64, 328, 427, 463, 530, 531, 540, 556, see errata
 Asa C 556
 Miss C M 395
 Daniel 36, 39, 432, 456
 Dorothea 482, see errata
 John L 328
 Luke 58
 Mary 554
 Rosamond 555
 Sibil 554
 Sibil Coburn (w. Andrew)
WEDDELE
 Rev. Wm. 698
Wedding, delay of 665
WEDDLE
 William 292
WEDGE
 Abijah 517
WEEK
 Eliza 678
WEEKLY
 Thomas 261
WEEKS
 James 605, 675
 Joanna 678
 Mark 682
WEHERS
 George 305, see errata
WEHRS
 George, see errata
WEIDEN
 John 459
- WEIDRICK
 179
WEIGHT
 Jonathan 58
WEINHEIMER
 Charles 605, 613
 Elizabeth Shoemaker (w. Charles) WEIS
 Chas. 367
WEISER
 Conrad 16
WEITER
 Col. Stephen C 186
WELBROOK
 J Henry 150
WELCH
 89
 Mr. 444
 Barbara 732
 Barbara Smith (w. Henry)
 Dow 732
 Edward 321
 Ella 732
 Emily 732
 Estella 732
 George 732
 George H 732
 Hannah Gilmore (w. Peter)
 Henry 732
 Maj. J M 197
 James 732
 Dr. Jas. P 198
 John 732
 Judge John 388b
 John W 112
 Lucy 732
 Marion 732
 Martin 732
 McClellan 732
 Mrs. 363
 Noah 732
 Peter 732
 Susan 732
 Warren 732
WELD
 Theodore 429
WELK
 William 305, see errata
WELKING
 Philip 309, see errata
Well, Campus Martius 51
WELLBROOK
 Henry 307
WELLS
 Major 559
 Mrs. 443
 Adams 328
 Amanda 737
 Barton 586
 Bazaleel 107
 Betsey 623
 C B 374
 C K 396, 525
 Charles E 1340
 Charles E 1340
 Chauncy T 599
 Christopher 282
 Clinton 279
 David 58, 362, 559, 587
 Deborah T 395, see errata
 Elizabeth 506
 Elizabeth Thorniley (w. Lemuel)
 Rev. G W 389
 George H 368
 Harry H 599
 Henry 302
 Ira 328
 Prof. J L 390
 James 362, 443, 628
 John 603
 John C 295
 John Marshall 599
 John W 297
 Joseph 48, 362, 559, 562
 Joshua 109
 Lemuel 739
 Lewis Henry 282, 699
 Mrs. M P 174
 Martin Pomeroy 133, 336, 374, 447, 619
 Mary L Barnes (w. John Marshall)
 Nelson F 282
 S 151
 Samuel 282
 Sheffield B 282
 Thomas 58, 362
 Varnum 362
 William 307, 581, see errata
 William 377
- Wells (of Bosworth, Wells & Co.) 375, 377
WELLSRING
 John 309, 615
WELMAN
 Dr. 663
WELSH
 608
 Noah 150
WELSHAUS
 Hannah 650
WENDELKEN
 Dana & (factory) 617
WENDECKER
 Henry 151, see errata
WENDELKIN
 Martin 182, see errata
WENDELL
 563
 Susan 584
 William 561
WENLAND
 Julius 295
 Robert 295
WENLEKEN
 Henry W 309, see errata
WENLEKIN
 Henry 305, see errata
 John 305, see errata
 Martin 305, see errata
WENLAND
 Julius 150
WENTELKER
 John 372, see errata
WERNER
 Aaron 640
 Wesley P O. 730
 Wesley Station 687, 688
 Wesley Twp. 109, 719
WESSON
 Wm. D 216
WEST
 275
 & West, Chamberlain 643
 Dr. 673
 Adaline Thorniley (w. James C)
 Anna 597
 Arvilla Middleswart (w. Leslie C)
 Cynthia A Racer (w. John A)
 David O 597
 Edwin 565, 670
 Elizabeth Compton (w. Col. Wm.)
 George 597
 George F 739
 George Washington 289
 Gordon B 147, 218, 221, 309
 Henry C 739
 Henry Clay 295
 James C 739
 James Compton 295
 James W 739
 John A 737, 739
 Jonathan 289
 Joshua 289
 Lelia 739
 Leslie C 739
 Leslie Coombs 295
 Levi 289
 Mahala 597
 Michael 279, 567
 Phoebe McKibben (w. Henry C)
 Rebecca Chambers (w. George)
 S A 286
 Samuel 597
 Stephen A 313
 Susan E 597
 Susan Knowles (w. George)
 Thomas J 739
 Thomas Jefferson 295
 Virginia 608, 612, 613
 Dr. W L 602
 William 113, 114, 145, 218, 226, 356
 William Milton 261
 Col. William 739
 William L 595
 William N 261
 Wm. W 227, 739
 William Wilson 295

- West Fork (Wolf Creek) 673
WESTBROOK
 William Thomas 289
Western Christian Advocate 520
Western Liberal Institute 395
Western Reserve (Conn.) 14
Western Spectator 119, 134, 413
Western Teachers Seminary 397
Westfall, Ohio 18
WESTGATE 110
 A G 422
 T J 226, 348
 Vesta M 396
 W T 423
WETSON
 Chas B 147
WETZEL
 James 313
 Joseph 313
WHARFE, see errata
 Albert 583
 Betsy 583
 Charles W 317
 Deborah 588
 Francis 583
 George 317
 John 583
 Lydia 583
 Mary 583
 Nancy 588
 Nancy Marr (w. Oliver) 583, see errata
 Oliver J 583
 Oliver K 517
 Sally 678
 Sarah A nn 583
 William 588
WHARTON
 Jacob 682
WHEALLEY
 H H 226
WHEAT
 Rev. John T 388
Wheat, first in Ohio 50 fn, 506
WHEATLEY
 Isaac 302
WHEATON
 Mr. 358
WHEATSTONE
 Isaac 317, see errata
 Joseph 317, see errata
WHEELER
 427
 Capt. 186, 215, 225, 226
 Gen. 194, 195
 Catharine 552
 F A 128, 359
 F C 226
 Frederick A 114, 618
 Harriet Frances 128
 Mrs. J 176
 Jesse 313
 John 313
 Julius Frank 302
 Mrs. L 176
 Lewis 313, 321
 Martha 684
 Mary J 532a
 Otis 369
 Uriah 580
 W V Z 544
WHETSTONE
 Henry 699
 Isaac, see errata
 Joseph, see errata
WHILFORD
 Dr. J H 198
WHILLESEY
 William Beale 305, see errata
WHILSON
 Mr. Joseph 138
Whippings 102-3, 110, 724
WHIPPLE
 Mr. 541
 Com. Abraham 52b, 53, 58, 65, 117, 363, 376, 433, 459, 60, 683
 Catharine 461
 Jesse 93
 John 58, 65, 376, 460
 Sarah Hopkins (w. Com. Abraham)
 Samuel 139
 Wm. L 403
Whipple Fork 654
Whipple Run 683, 684, 689
Whipple Station 684-5
Whiskey 445, 540, 544c, 574, 579, 586, 672
WHISSEN
 Amos A 325, see errata
 Nancy 543
 P S 544
WHISTON
 Amos A, see errata
 Jesse 565
 S A 565
 Silas Adkins 313
WHITCOMB
 Capt. Joseph 449
WHITE
 Lt. 221
 Rev. 681
 A B 479
 Agnes Ward (w. A B)
 Arastus H 267
 Mrs. Basha Devol 550
 Hon. Emerson E 403
 Mrs. Frances 554
 Maj. Haffield 26, 45-6, 54, 62, 360, 362, 434, 461, 540-1, 549, 622, 629-0, 711, see errata
 Harris 554
 Henry L 267
 Hershel 218
 Hiram 325
 Hiram W 554
 Maj. Haffield 26, see errata
 Hulda 458
 J J 155
 Jacob 105
 James 139
 James A 600
 Jane D 738
 John 58
 Ensign John 541
 Major John 530, 531, 540
 John H 435, 688
 John W 164
 Rev. Joseph H 575
 Josiah 48
 Leander I 267
 Lydia 427
 Rev. M 561
 Margaret E Dickson (w. R L)
 Martha, see errata
 Peletiah 48, 138-9, 362, 629
 Polly 427
 R L 701
 Rebecca 526
 Susan Wells (w. Peletiah)
 Sydney P 267
 Thomas 113
 Walter Cole 313
 Wm. 139, 150, 427, 543, 637
 William W 267
White Eye - Delaware Indian Chief 10, 11, 72
White Oak Settlement 653, 674, 711, 716a, 716b
White Woman Creek 10 fn, 12
WHITEHEAD
 J A 422
 Jos. A 372
WHITEMAN
 J P 439
 Lucinda 635
 R G (Negro) 522
WHITEMARSH
 Col. 459
White's Mill 687
WHITHERTON 458
WHITING
 Eliza 58
 Josiah 503, 517
 Theodore 298
WHITMAN
 Rev. 392
 Jacob 521
WHITNEY
 Rev. 406
 Rev. J 576
 James 325, 366, 370, 376, 383, 439, 481, 519, 552, 567
 Jonathan 139
 Josiah 491
 Nancy 491
 Mrs. Rebecca Bowen 552
 Ruth Greene (w. James) 517
 Sarah 517
 Simon H 275
Whitney Chapel 383
WHITRIDGE
 Josiah 48
WHITSEL
 James 313
WHITTAKER
 Mrs. Martha T 525
WHITTEMORE
 Ebenezer 57
WHITTEN
 J P 547
 William 541
WHITTIER
 John Greenleaf 145
WHITTINGTON
 Eliza A 722
WHITTLESLEY
 William Beale, see errata
WHITTLESLEY
 Miss 122
 Charles 439
 Hon. Eliza 122
 Hon. William A 111, 113-4, 125, 145, 148, 226, 240, 402, 418, 426, 446
 Mrs. Wm. A 176
 William Beale 166-7, 223-5, 246-7, 251, 253, 305, see errata
WHITTOCK
 Henry 589
 Henry B 589
 John 686, 689
 Julia R Chapman (w. John)
 M (w. S)
 Maria 689
 S 589
WHITTON
 James 138
WIBLE
 Joseph 273
 Levi 273
WICKAFIELD
 Rev. Mr. 410, see errata
WICKFIELD
 Rev. William 390, 391, see errata
WICKENS
 Charlotte Rowlands (w. George)
 Elizabeth 679
 George 675, 679
 George Jr. 679
 Henry 679
 John 679
 Wm. R 679
WICKES
 Rev. Thomas 147, 173, 382, 390, 398, 587
WICKHAM
 Frances 553
Wideawake Oil Co. 564
WIDGER
 Ananias 282
 John 685, 687
 W H 422
WIESS
 W 317
WIGHTMAN
 Capt. Geo. 210
 Joseph P 113
WIGNER
 W D 328
Wigs 643
WILBER
 Abigail 558-9
 Anna 608
WILCOX
 Chester 138
 Henry P 112, 359, 421
 Gen. Joseph 140
 Warren 227, 445
WILDT
 Joseph 307, 417, 422
 Joseph B Jr. 307
WILES
 Nicholas 630
WILEY
 Amy 528
 Daniel 289
 Miss Julia 528
 Mathews 226
WILFORD
 Charles 259
WILHELM
 S C 367
WILKING
 563
 Adam 615
 Daniel 605, 615
 David 561
 David Jr. 561
 Franz Jr. 561
 Franz Sr. 561, 563
 John 561, 616
 Mary E 561
 Philip, see errata
WILKINS
 John 97, 556
 Rhoda Frye (w. John) 556
WILKINSON
 Jane 732
WILLARD
 Elizabeth T 428
 Rev. John 368
 Rev. Joseph 428, 442, 615
 Joseph T 421
WILLIAMS
 Dr. 35
 Gen. 217
 Rev. 600
 Aaron 521
 A W 446
 Abraham 32
 Alfred 504
 Archie 722
 Charles B 302
 Chas. H 541
 Clara Cook (w. Alfred) 292
 David 2, 138, 267, 739
 Eli 721
 Evan 589
 Florence A dams (w. Hamilton) 72
 George (Negro) 522
 George W 267
 Hamilton Zadok 2, 6, 7
 Harriett 615
 Harrison 521
 Henry 61, 289
 Isaac 24, 47, 54, 55, 77, 82, 88, 464, 465, 508, 509, 607, 667, 716a
 J T 519
 J W 259
 James 521, 522
 Jane Hance (w. Jason) 739
 Jane Roberts (w. Robert) 739
 Jason 721, 722
 Jesse 259
 Jessie Sinclair (w. Louis A)
 Rev. John 518, 739
 John (Negro) 733
 John 282, 721
 John A 370
 John T 721
 Lewis 279
 Lizzie Bolt (w. Louis A)
 Louis A 2
 Mahala 728a
 Margaret 739
 Mary (w. John) 739
 Mrs. Mary 588
 Mary A 739
 Mary H.
 Needham (w. Robert) 739
 Mary Woodward (w. William W)
 Moses A 488
 Phoebe Boker (w. Robert) 721
 Rebecca 444
 Rebecca Elliott (w. David)
 Mrs. Rebecca Martin 465
 Reese 317
 Robert (Negro) 522
 Robert 721, 739
 Robert H 721
 Rogers 566
 Rowena G 727
 Mrs. S 524
 Sarah 123, 633
 Mrs. Sarah 588
 Sarah Eckhardt (w. Theodore F)
 Sarah M 721
 Susan C Wood (w. William W)
 Susan W 739
 Sylvester 313, 727
 Talma (w. Sylvester) 727
 Theodore F 2
 Thomas 588, 739
 Washington 703
 William 317, 739
 Wm. B 197
 William W 2, 6, 7
 Yola M 547
Williams Bros. Publishing Co. 2, 6, 7
WILLIAMSON
 Dr. 486
 Col. David 19, 20
 H A 604, 605
 Hannibal 601-3
 1305
 James 313, 600
 John 259, 561
 Maj. John 193
 John P 403
 Nelson 279
 Polly Morrow 722
 Samuel 106, 112, 593
 Stephen 282
 Temperance (w. H A)
 Thomas 722
WILLIS
 Rev. 644
 Arthur C 739
 Bartha J 632
 Elizabeth 632
 Elizabeth 632
 Freddie N 739
 Rev. George 536
 J W 632
 James 279, 632
 Rev. John 739
 Lemuel C 739
 Maria 596
 Nicholas 632
 Osmer M 739
 Richard 139
 Rosa E Grimes (w. John)
 S P 165
 T F 155
 Warden 113
WILLISON
 Mrs. Margaret E Bowers 707
WILLOUGHBY
 Jane 570
WILLS
 De Hass 217
Wills Creek Circuit 577
WILSON
 535, 624
 Gen. 192
 Abijah 692
 Alexander 264
 Alexander D 598
 Mrs. Amanda Nickerson 553
 Amos 317, 559
 Andrew V 279, 598
 Anna 598
 Ann P 536
 Benjamin 259, 536
 Benjamin P 271
 Betsey 701, 704
 Betsey Davis Perrin 551
 Betsey Newhall (w. Amos)
 Caroline 559
 Charles 559
 Charlotte 559
 Clifford Guy 598
 Cyrus 720
 Daniel 325, 328
 David 64, 559
 Deacon David 490, 530, 531, 535, 537, 541, 551
 Deborah 482
 Eli 317
 Elijah 624, 660
 Eliza 559
 Emily 552
 Emmett C 598
 Finley W 113
 Freeland C 317
 George 58, 531, 532, 541, 545
 Rev. George 681
 George W 259
 Harriett Price (w. John)
 Mrs. Hester A Slater 554
 Hugh 588, 589, 656
 Isaac 660, 692
 J T 544
 James 279, 325, 372, 695
 Jennie S Hutchison (w. Andrew W)
 Jeremiah 58, 531, 536, 543, 551
 John 106, 259, 279, 307, 317, 640
 Jonathan 139
 Joseph G 403
 Lily 598
 Margaret 692
 Margaret A Stacey (w. Newhall)
 Martin 264
 Mary 490, 559, 588, 626, 639
 Mary Van Eman (w. Robert E)
 Massa 531, 557
 Matthew W 295
 Milo 295
 & Morse 372
 Nancy 695
 Nelson 559
 Newhall 559
 Noah Lindsley 340, 342, 366, 369, 373, 398, 402, 433
 Owen D 290
 Polly 559
 Capt. R B 161
 Dr. R G 486, 518
 Rebecca 537, 540a
 Rector R 298
 Richard 282, 292
 Riley 317
 Robert E 597, 598
 Sarah 598
 Stella A 598
 Steven B 366
 Susan Lewis (1st w. Newhall)
 Washington 164
 William 58, 112, 259, 298, 302, 313, 325, 530, 532, 539, 541, 545, 551
 William W 317
 Col. Wm. S 198
WILYS
 Nathaniel 458
WINANS
 Benjamin 267
 Francis 267
WINCHESTER
 Gen. 136
 Albert 302
 E 228, 417
 Sarah 536
WINDLE
 Joseph 140
WINDSOR
 Betsey 714
 H 539
WINES
 Rev. 486
WING
 Enoch 559, 562
 Mary Oliver (w. Oliver)
 Oliver 501
Wingate's Run 704, see errata
WINGET
 Jacob 701
Winget's Run 705, see errata
WINGETTE
 Ann 658
 Jacob 658
Wingett Run 656, 701, 704-5
WINKELREID
 Arnold 252
WINN
 Rev. J M 561
WINNER
 Sarah E 715
WINSOR
 Augustus 112
 Christopher 58
 Henry H 328
WINSTANLEY
 James 325
 Peter 325
 Rev. Thomas 681
WINTERS
 Mrs. 739
WINTHROP
 Mr. 35
 Edward 388
WINTON
 Clark 279
WINTRIN
 Rev. 698
WINTRODE
 Josephine 564c
WINUM
 Henry 427
WINY
 Eudocia 480
WISCHMIRE
 Martha 686
WISE
 Henry A 145
 L C 126
WISEMAN
 Sarah 428
 Thomas 218, 282
Wiseman's Bottom 607, 610 WISER
 Elizabeth 611
 Jacob 59
WITAM
 J M 318
 Mrs. Maria 608
 Nathan 670
WITHEROW
 Wm. H 178, 180
WITHRO
 Alexander 564c
 Gressy 564c
WITHROW
 James 302
 Wallace 46
 William Wallace 302
WITTEN
 Philip 106, 112, 593
WITTLIG
 Jacob 367
WOITH
 Richard 541
WOLCOTT
 Adaline 608
 Adeline H 625
 Anna L 625
 Brooks 625
 C F 328
 Delinda 625
 Delinda Howe (w. Elias)
 Elias 134, 625
 Elias H 625
 Emma Bridge (w. Roscoe)
 Fremont 625
 Henry 458
 Horace 624, 625, 629
 Joseph 625
 Lewis 328
 Lorraine Starlin (w. Elias H)
 Lucien M 625
 Lucy 625
 Lydia A 625
 Orinda 625
 Orlow 625
 Peter H 625
 Ralhin 328
 Rosalitha 625
 Roscoe 328, 625, 631
 Vesta 625
 Wallace 227, 631
 Walter B 625
WOLF
 Mr. 692
 Henry 561, 563
 Prof. J 721
 Martin 519
 W H 675
Wolf Creek 621-2
Wolf Creek Chapel 631
Wolf Creek Mills 55, 67-70, 461, 612, 531, 548, 622, 666, 667
WOLFERT
 Julie Palmer (w. William)
 William 585
WOLFORD
 Isaac 261
Woman from Fearing 428
Women's Christian Tem. Union 564a
Women's Sewing Soc. 601
Women's Work in War 174
WOOD
 Capt. 165, 255
 Gen. 217
 Maj. 137
 A 644
 A S 739
 Adaline Fuller (w. Emelius)
 Alfred Spencer 302
 Amanda 555
 Anna W ilber (w. Joseph)
 Augustus 608
 B F 739
 Caius Martius 347, 608
 Chas. J 555
 Cornelia 608
 D H 739
 Capt. D L 160-3, 165
 E 644
 Elizabeth Kennedy (w. Stephen)
 Emelius 608
 F 576

- Frank M 555
Gustavus Adolphus 309, 608
Hervey D 555
Imogene J 608
Isabel Devol (w. Chas.)
J A 533, 543, 605
J L 305
Jacob 150
Jacob S 305
James 608
James M 555
John 151, 302
John A 608
John C 227, 313
John J 559
Joseph 58, 112, 362, 543, 555, 608, 616
Joseph E 313
Joseph N 555
Lavinia 543
Lavinia Cook (w. Joseph)
Mahala 739
Martha J Campbell (w. John J)
Martha S 739
Mary O 739
Mary W 555
Morgan 559
Nancy 608
Newton 325
O G 167
O J 198, 605
Osmer J 309
Paulus E 139
Police E 139
Rebecca 649, 653, 726
Hon. Reuben 403
Reuben 671
Sarah E 554, 555
Sarah J 739
Shadrach 227
Soranus Shaw 313
Sophia Hall (w. Caius Martius)
Stephen 739
Susan 608
Sybil 613
W W 739
William 325, 423
William Ware 313
- WOODARD
Elizabeth 609, see Matthers
Penelope 609, see Matthers
- WOODBIDGE
Dudley 31, 56, 58, 109-10, 122-3, 363, 365-7, 373, 426-7, 435, 442, 445, 468 fn., 475, 481, 519, 563
Mrs. George 446
Geo. M 154, 155, 158, 240, 358
Geo. W 173
Mrs. J M 446
Rev. J M 564
Jalal 132
John 408, 424
Rev. John 644
John M 347, 421, 446
John Thomas 279
Miss M 174
Maria P 475
William 17, 111, 112, 118, 119, 369, 409
& Blennerhassett 617
- WOODBURY
Daniel T 404
Nathan 58
- WOODFORD
Amelia (w. Miles)
Annie 628b
Carrie Bell 628b
Caroline 628b
Dianna (w. William)
Dianna Amanda 628b
Elias 718
Emily (w. William S)
Giles 628b
Grove 628a
Hial 628b
James H 628b
James K P 628b
Laura 628a, 628b
Mary 628b
Mercy (w. Seth)
Miles 624, 628a, 628b, 630-1
Minnie 628b
Ottie Sophia 628b
Sarah Anna 628b
- Seth 624, 628b
Sophia (w. William G)
W L 227
William 624, 628a, 628b, 630-1
William G 624, 628a, 628b
William S 628b
- WOODRUFF
A 226
Abner 625, 719
Abner Jr. 625
Alpharetta 712
Amanda 625
Anson 328, 712
Betsy F 625
Calvin E 712
Caroline 712
Catharine Roll (w. Abner)
Chester 712
Clarence L 712
David 712
Duty 712
Elias 625
Elizabeth Stoler (w. Silas)
Emeline 625
Emily 625
Emmeline 625
Eunice 625
Feannette 712
George N 328
Hannah 625
Hannah C 625
Hannah McGuire (w. Elias)
Henry C 625
Hiram 712
Isaac 625, 712, 719
Jacob R 625
Mansley 328
Margaret Greene (w. Isaac)
Maria 712
Marian G 712
Mark 328
Mary 712
Mary Stump (w. Silas)
Moses 720
Nancy 625
O Jerome 328
Oren J 625
Pamela 712
Polly 625
Prudie 630
Sarah A 625
Silas 712
T N 423
- WOODS
Amanda Dickson (w. John)
John 701
Joseph 421, 434
Rev. Joseph W 442
Levi 706, 707, 708
Woodsfield Church 601
- WOODSON
Oliver Jr. 565
- WOODWARD
Elizabeth 609, see Matthers
Geo. G 161
John 313
Levi 57
Orlando 295
Penelope (Elenor) 609, see Matthers
Wool Growers Assoc. 710, 717-8, 729
Woolen factory, Beverly 533-4
- WOOLFE
Reese 382
- WOOSTER
Jacob, see errata
Wooster Twp. 99, 109, 621, see errata
- WORKMAN
Rev. 391
J W 545
- WORMLEY
Prof. T G 403
- WORSTALL
George 325, see errata
- WORSTED
George 554a
- WORSTEL
George S 544
- WORSTELL
Etta H 547
George 325, see errata
- WORTH
George 59
John 59
Rudolph 186
- WORTHINGTON
Gen. 470
Asa 418
James 339
Rev. N C 681
Sallie Dye (w. Thos.)
Steven 139
Thomas 338
Mrs. Thos. 656
- WORTSELL
Jos 378
- WOSTER
Jacob 261, see errata
- WRIGHT
Maj. Gen 205
Amos 259, 305
Benjamin 321
Caleb 140
Cynthia 704
David 226, 321
Elizabeth 640
Friend 640
Henry 608
Hiram 290
Horace 325, 608
Jacob 704
James 150, 178, 180
James M 302
Jesse 640
John 286, 640
Rev. John 600
Josiah 259
Lorana 608
Luther 150, 313
Maria Witham (w. Simon)
Marice Pattin (w. William)
Nathan 286
Royal 221, 325
Russell 325
Simeon 57, 608
Simon 608, 616
Sophia 470
Stephen 640
William 295, 321, 640
Wm. C 564
Writers, see authors
Wyandot Indians 9, 10, 12, 60-2, 64, 68, 133, 548
- WYATT
Charlotte Ann 530
- WYE
Horace 67, see errata
- WYLIE
Wm. 227
- WYLLIS
413
Major 23
- WYLLYS
John P 418
Col. Samuel 418
- WYNN
A D 321
Amos D 321
Joseph 628
Joseph D 321
Mary A Anderson (w. Joseph)
Sarah Yocum (w. Joseph)
WYSS
Lyman 221
- YAHU
Peter 286
- YARNELL
Mrs. Elizabeth Way 629
Jefferson 671
Joseph 631
- YATES
Mr. 38, 39
H M 516, 559
Malissa Hall (w. H M)
YEARDLEY
Frank B 295
John 295
- Yellow House 593, 597
- Yellow Creek 22, 59
- YEOMANS
Maria (w. Richard)
Richard 686a
- YOCUM
Sarah 628
Yoh River 45-6
- YOHO
Job 261
- YONALLY
Asa 283, 699
A C 698
Jesse 282
Loretta 698
Mary L 699
Sarah E 699
- Solomon 283
- YOST
Adam 697, 698
John 692
- Youghiogeny 608
- YOUNG
Andrew 339
Anna 488
Carl 615
Caroline 707
Charles 601
Charlotte 707
Daniel S 298
Rev. David 715, 723, 729
Douglass H 275
Elder 588
Henry 707
Isaac 604
Jacob 408
Rev. Jacob 515, 542, 552, 575, 707, 715, 723, 729
John Sr. 686
John D 709
John Lewis 298
John Lewis Jr. 298
John R 275
Julia (w. Lewis)
Lewis 275, 707
Lizzie 707
Mary 595, 601
Mary Darling (w. John Sr.)
Otto 707
Philip 707
Theobald 581
Thomas Andrews 275
William 519
- Youngblood Farm 614
- Young's Blacksmith Shop 602
- Young's Book Store 602
- ZANE
Mr. 26, 33
- ZANILLEY
E F 313
John 313
- ZAPP
Elizabeth 738
- ZEARING
James E 321
John L 321
Joseph 321
William H 321
- ZEISBERGER
Rev. David 10, 19
- ZELLARS
Abraham 605
- ZIEGLER
Capt. David 23, 61, 65, 69, 358, 362, 466
- ZIMMER
Albert L, see errata
Amelia Matilda 686
C W 686, see errata
Carrie E Lenhard (w. C W)
Caroline 686, 738
Catharine 686
Catharine Hoffman (w. Theobald)
Charles 686
Clara 686
Daniel 684a, 686
Daniel J 686
David 686
Edward 686
Elizabeth 686
Elizabeth M 686
Elizabeth Young (w. Daniel)
Elizabeth Schramm (w. Jacob)
Ella Lena 686
Helen Francis 686
Jacob 686, see errata
John 686
Lewis 275, 686
Nettie 686, see errata
Phoebe 684a
Theobald 686, see errata
- ZIMMERMAN
Lorenzo 286
- Zion Methodist Church 689
- ZOLLER
George 302
- ZOLLERS
A 588
Abram 678
Caroline Vaughn (w. Abram)
Frederick 261
J 588, 675
- James 259
Nathan 261
Zephaniah 259, 716
- ZUMBRO
Abraham 722
Alpha Adelia 722
Benjamin 722
Catharine Price (w. John Sr.)
Emma 722
Henry 722
Jacob 722
John Jr. 722
John Sr. 722
Joseph 722
Louisa Jane Haas (w. John Jr.)
Margaret 721
Mary E 722
Minnie C 722

INDEX TO ERRATA AND ADDENDA

- ABREST
William Thompson 286
- ABENDSCHOEEN
Jacob 303
- ABENDSHAU
Jacob 303
- ABLES
William Thompson 286
- ADKINS
Amos 309
- ANDREWS
Israel Ward, see Page
- APLIN (APPLIN)
Joseph 298
- Artists, see Page
- ABEENSHEET
Daniel 256
- ASKINS
George 383
- ATKINS
George 383
- ATWOOD
Leah 636
- Authors, see Page
- BABB
Reese Smith 310
- BABSON
— 583
Samuel 583
- BAESSHAR
Christian 314
- BALLARD
Asa 66
Eleanor 66
- BARBER
Col. David 120
- BAREFIELD
Humphrey 313
- BARKER
Col. David 120
Col. Joseph, see Page
- BARTLETT
Mrs. Phoebe, see Green
- Bartlett's Academy
723
- BATELLE
(BATTLE)
Charles D 310
- BAY
Frederick 308
- BEABOUT
James, see Bealour
- BEAGAL
Milton 280
- BEAGLE
Daniel M 275
Jeremiah 280
Milton 280
- BEALOUR
James 280
- BEARFIELD, see
Berfield
- BEEGLE
Daniel M 275
- BEGAL
Jeremiah 280
- BENT
Col. Daniel 502
Dorcas 566
Silas Jr 502
Col. Silas Sr 502
- BERFIELD
Humphrey 313
- BEY
Frederick 308
- BISZANTZ
Charles 368
- BIZANT
Charles 368
- BLAKELY
(BLAKESLEE)
Andrew S 310
Lewis 310
William Hervey 310
- BLOUGH
John H 265
- BLOW
John H 265
- BOBB
Reese Smith 310
- BODKIN
Wm. Wallace 265
- BODMAN (R)
Frederick 317
- BOESHARR
Christian 314
- BOLEN (BOLUN)
Daniel 321
- BOQUET
— 10, 18, 19
- BORDMAN
Frederick 296
- BOSWORTH
Miss D T, see Wells
- Sala (Sula) 385, see Page
- BOTKIN
Wm. Wallace 265
- BOUQUET
— 10, 18, 19
- BRECK
Daniel 357, 380, 503
John 503
William 357, 380, 503
- BRICKWADY (BRICKWEDE)
Jacob 295
- Buell's & Munsell
419
- Buell's & Numsell
419
- BULLARD
Asa 66
Eleanor 66
- BURGE (E)
George W 268
- BURRIS
John 256
- BURTIS
John 256
- CADWELL
James 656
John 656
- CARMICAL (CARMICHAEL)
James 260
- CARNER
Mary Broadhurst 608
- CARTER
John Henton, see Page
- CARWEE
Seneca 329
- CATHERWOOD
William 257
- CHAFELL (CHAPPELL)
Conrad 310
- CHAPMAN
Joseph 58
- CHILDS
Isaac 539
- CHOPMAN
Joseph 58
- CLARK
Laura, see Shepherd
- CLARKE
Milton 147
Melvin 147, 566
- CLOSE
Almon 589
- CLUSS
Almond 589
- COFFMAN
Jane Miller 638
- COLE
Samson (Sampson) 110, 114, 347
- COMER
Sarah 551
- COMPTON
Mary 141
- CONE
Mary, see Page
- COOMBS
Henry 306
- COOMER
Henry 306
- COOP
Benjamin 262
- CORAIG
George 293
- CORNER
Mary Broadhurst 608
- CORP
Sarah 551
- CORRY (CORY)
Benjamin 262
- COWEE
Seneca 329
- CRAIG
George 293
- CRAIN
Jonathan 366
- CRAM
Jonathan 366
- CRANE
Jonathan 366
- CUSTER
Jervis 64
- CUTHERWOOD
William 257
- CUTLER
E 540
Ephraim 532, 636
Jervis 64, 531
Polly Leah Atwood 636
- CUTTER
E 540
Ephraim 532, 636
Jarvis 64, 531
- DAINS
Levi 676, 680
- Dains Fork 705
- DANA
Dorcas Bent 566
Licia (Lucy) Byington 500
Maria Guiteau 566
Polly Foster 566
William II 566
- DANLEY
Hiel 326
Mary 667
- Danvers 45
- DAULEY
Hiel 326
Mary 667
- DAVIES (DAVIS)
Dudley 581
- DEAN
Levi 676, 680
Dean's Fork 705
- DECKER
John 308
- DEEGAN
William C 276
- DEEKER
John 308
- DELAFIELD
John Jr., see Page
- Delano
Lucy Angeline 649
- DENBON (W)
Elisha 290
Thomas 290
- DENSMORE
Mary 666
- DENWELL
Martin 257
- DEVOL (DEVOL)
family 550
Capt. Jonathan, see Page
- Devol's Island 89
- DOAN
Anna 589
- DODGE
Isaac 48
Israel 48
- DOLSON
Emanuel 310
- DONTHITT
William 287
- DOTSON
Emanuel 310
- DOUBLE (DOUDLE)
Edward 272
- DOUTHITT
William 287
- DOWNS (DOWNS)
George 310
- DRAHER
Adam 284
- DRAPER
Adam 284
- DROWN
Dr. Solomon, see Page
- DUGAN
William C 276
- DUNCHEW
Daniel 683
- DUNHAM
Azubah 506
Daniel 506
Lucy Angeline 649
- DUNIHEW
Daniel 683
- DUNSMORE
Mary 666
- DURHAM
Azubah 506
Daniel 506
- DUVAL
family 550
Joseph A 696
Mareen (Marion) 696
- DYE
Daniel U 636b
Daniel Wayland 636b
- EDGARTON (EDGERTON)
Luther 347, 428, 445
- EDGEILL (EDGILL)
John 276
- EELS (EELLS)
G H 385
- ELSON (ELSTON)
Lewis 310
- EMERSON
Wm. Dana, see Page
- EOFF
(see EOFFLE)
- EOFFLE
Hiram 276
Lander 276
Marion 276
Sardine 276
- ESPENSCHIED
Daniel 256
- EVERETT
David, see Page
- EVILSISER (EVILSIZER)
Jonathan 284
Josiah 284
Samuel 284
- FANTZ (FAUTZ)
Frederick 315
- FERGUSON
James 369
- FILE
Henry 308
- FLAG (G)
Luther 322
- FLAGG
Edmund B, see Page
- Gersham 141
- FLINT
Hezekiah 48
- FOSTER
Polly 566
- FROOCHER
Walter 319
- FULTON
Samuel 581
- FURGASON
James 369
- GADDLE
Jacob 306
- GAGE
Aunt Fanny, see Page
- GARD
David 667
- GATCHETT
John Barnes 287
- GEAR (GEER)
Peter 299
- GEREZ
Didier (I) 683
- GERREZ
Didier (II) 260
Lafayette 260
- GETCHELL
John Barnes 287
- GETT
Henry 299
Michael 299
- GEVEREZ
Didier 260, 683
Lafayette 260
- GEVREY
Didier 683
- GILLMOOR (ORE)
Cromwell 327
- GILLMORE (E)
William W 327
- GITCHELL
(see GETCHELL)
- GITTO
Abner L 367
- GLIDDEN (GLIDDONS)
James L 322
- GLYSSON
Bertha 406
- GOETTLE
Henry 299
Jacob 306
Michael 299
- GOODALE (GOODALL)
Major 47
- GOSS
Mary 688
- GREEN (GREENE)
David (Davis) 125
Griffin 369
Mrs. Phoebe 612
Capt. Willard (William) 636
Green Street 372, 374
- GREENBACK (GREENBANK)
William 281
- GREINER
John, see Page
- GROSELAS
Jacob 260
- GROSKLOS
Jacob 260
- GROSS
Mary 688
- GUITEAU
Mr. 686
Abner L 367
John M 123
John T 123
Maria Taylor 566
- HABERLING
Jacob 303
- HACKER
William 330
- HALL
Charlotte 584
- HAMILTON
Leonard 707
Lewis 707
- Harriet(s)ville 582
- HARRIS
Thaddeus (s) 98
- HART
Dr. Simeon (Simon) D 412
- HECKER
William 330
- HEINSELM (HEINZELMAN)
Christian 281
Jacob 281
Martin 281
- HEMPSTEAD
Dr. G. M. P. 410
- HENAGER
Charles 257
Herman 257
William H 257
- HENDERHAN
James 293
- HENDERSON
George W 373
- HENNIGER (see HENAGER)
- HENREHAN
James 293
- HENRICH (HENRICE)
John 296
- HENTON
Dr. Thomas 387
- LANDY
Alva Wm. 277
- LANGHERY
Thornton 323
- LAUGHERY
Thornton 323
- LAWTON
James, see Page
- Lease Run 599, 603
- Leath's Run 599, 603
- LEAVENS
John 58
Joseph 58
Mr. 79
- LEAVEUS
John 58
Joseph 58
- LEAVUS
Mr. 79
- LENNINGTON
Josiah B 288
- LEONARD
Lydia 428
Lincoln's Inn 46
H H 1330
- LUNDY
Alva Wm 277
H H 1330
- MAGEE
Felix 589
- MAHONEY
Reuben 328
- MALSTER
Moses A 665
- MANLEY
Rev. Robert 518
- MARLEY
Rev. Robert 518
- MARSHER
Daniel P 330
Samuel F 330
- MARVIN
John 300
- MARWIN
John 300
- MASON
William Bion 558
William Bond 558
William II 558
- MATHER
Richard 115
- MATHEW
Richard 115
- MATHEWS
Capt. Abel 609
Eleanor Woodward 609
Elizabeth Woodard 609
Eunice Pardee 609
Molly Woodards 609
- JOLIM (JOLINE)
A V D 387
John K 387
- JOLLY
Kinzer (Kinsey D) 699
- JOY
George 291
- KASPER
Krus 306
- KATHARY
Mary 584
- KEGHOE
J 323
- KELLEY
James 71
Joseph 71
- KELLY
Wm. Jr. 584
- KENDRICK
J Mills 164
- KERPS
Leonard 274
- KESTER
Aaron 331
- KEYHOE
James F 324
- KILTHARY
Mary 584
- KINARD
I 291
- KNOTT
Benjamin 537
- KNOX
William 378
- KRAUS
Caspar 306
- KURBS
Leonard 274
- LAFLIN
Kymen 626
Tuman R 626
- LAKE
Mary Bird 464
- LAMINGTON
Josiah B 288
- REUSE RUN 599, 603
- Leath's Run 599, 603
- LEAVENS
John 58
Joseph 58
Mr. 79
- LEAVEUS
John 58
Joseph 58
- LEAVUS
Mr. 79
- LENNINGTON
Josiah B 288
- LEONARD
Lydia 428
Lincoln's Inn 46
H H 1330
- LUNDY
Alva Wm 277
H H 1330
- MAGEE
Felix 589
- MAHONEY
Reuben 328
- MALSTER
Moses A 665
- MANLEY
Rev. Robert 518
- MARLEY
Rev. Robert 518
- MARSHER
Daniel P 330
Samuel F 330
- MARVIN
John 300
- MARWIN
John 300
- MASON
William Bion 558
William Bond 558
William II 558
- MATHER
Richard 115
- MATHEW
Richard 115
- MATHEWS
Capt. Abel 609
Eleanor Woodward 609
Elizabeth Woodard 609
Eunice Pardee 609
Molly Woodards 609
- Penelope Woodward 609
- Philos 609
- MATTHEWS, see
Mathews
- MAYER
Felix 589
- MAXON
Isaac 414
- Maxwell's Academy
615
- McAFEE (McAfee, McAfee, McAfee)
Henry 318
Joseph Francis 288
Thomas 288
- McFARLAN (D)
Moses 368
- McFarlan (D) House
368
- McGIN (McGIRR)
Alexander C 304
- McGRATH
W 376
- McINTOSH
Dr. Nathan, see Page
- Rhoda 407
- McKAWEN
Lydia 428
- McKENNA (Y)
James J 258
- McKINSEY
Aron J 316
- McMANN'S (McMANUS)
Michael 301
- McNAMARA
William 273
- M'NAMERY
William 273
- McPECK
Lemuel 288
- MEIGS
R J Jr 470
Col R J 48
- Return Jonathan Jr., see Page
- MEISENHOLDER
John 372
William 306
- MEISER (MEISTER)
Mr 369
- MELLON (W)
Samuel 269
- MELLOR
George 639
- MERABIN
L R 306
- MERVIN (MERWIN)
Lewis P 296
- MICHAELIS
Emil 422
- MICHAM
William M 327
- MICHELIS
Emil 422
- LINDY
H H 1330
- MULD
DLESWART (Z)
- George 311
- H F 311
- N 312
- MILLER
George 639
- MILLS
Dorothy Webster 482
- Mrs 405-6
- MILLSTEAD
Isaac 266
- MIRABEN
L R 306
- MIRACH (MIRACLE)
Garrison 288
William 288
- MISENHOLDER
William 306
- MITCHEM
William 327
- MITSTEAD
Isaac 266
- MOLINEY
Reuben 328
- Morse Run 662
- MOSHER (Moshier)
Daniel 330
Samuel T 331
- Moss Run 662
- MOSSBURGH (MOSSBURY)
William 288
William A 288

- MOULTON
 Edmond (Edmund)
 48, 363, 426
 Edward 363
MOWERY
 Carrie, see Page
MOXON
 Isaac 414
Mt. Ephraim 589
MUISENHELDER
 John 372
MULINEX
 (MULLENIX)
 David B 291
 John 291
MUNNEL
 (MUNNELL)
 George 316
Munsell & Buell's
 419
NENN, see Neun
NEUN
 George 278, 312
 Jacob 278, 312
 John 278
 Jonas 278
 Lewis 278, 312
New England Ohio
 Co. 45
Newport 109
Newton Twp. 109
Newtown Twp. 109
NICHOLS
 James 324
 William 324
NICKEL
 see NICHOLS
NINE, see Neun
NISEWONGER, see
 Nyghswonger
Nogletown 647
NOLAN(D)
 Philip 312
NOTT
 Benjamin 537
 Nozletown 647
Nozsell & Buell's
 419
NYE
 Horace 67
NYGHSWONGER
 John 363
 Peter 363
Oak Grove Cem. 647
Oak Hill Cem. 647
OAKES 58, 347
OAKS 58, 347
O'LENAS
 (O'BLENNESS)
 Abram Guyton 312
 Henry 312
O'HERRON
 (O'HERN)
 James 318
Ohio Company of Associates 45
OLNEY
 Cogswell 58
OSBORN
 Ezra J 312
O'SHURN
 Ezra J 312
OTTERBEIN
 (OTTERBIM)
 J D 367
PAGE
 Mr. 613
 Edward Postlethway 1613
PALMER
 Annie, see Hough-land
PAN
 James H 278
PARDEE
 Eunice 609
PARR
 James H 278
PENWELL
 Martin 257
PETE(?) (PETERS)
 Philip 328
PETRE (PETRIE)
 Charles 307
 Frederick 307
PFAFF
 Lewis 584
Pioneers, the Orig- inal 48 (1788) 48
PLACE
 Truman E 269
PLAFF
 Lewis 584
PLAN
 Truman E 269
POPE
 Elizabeth 539
PROTSAM
 (PROTSMAN)
 D 427
PUTNAM
 Bethia Glysson 406
 Lucy Putnam 81
QUADRANAON
 (QUADRENAOU)
 152
RACER
 Benjamin 565
RASER
 Benjamin 565
REES
 David 291
REGNIER
 Dr. 367
REHMLE
 John 318
REMELA
 John 318
RESTER
 Aaron 331
REW
 David 291
REYHOE
 J 323
 James F 324
RIDENOUR
 John 139
 Joseph 269
RIDINGOUR
 John 139
RIENIC
 Gearhard C 279
RIENTZ
 Gearhard C 279
RIGNIER
 Dr. 367
RINARD
 1291 RITENOUR
 Joseph 269
ROGERS
 Joseph 58
ROESH (ROUSH)
 John 318
ROOD
 Marion 141
ROUSE
 Bathsheba 500
 Cynthia 117
ROWE
 Cynthia 117
Roxbury 109
SALTONSTALL
 Lucretia 428
Sandersfield 716
Sandusfield 716
SANKFORD
 Franklin 316
SARVER
 George W 294
SAWERS
 George W 294
SCHEMDERNAN
 Andrew 632
SCHLAUBACH(K)
 Conrad 318
SCHLOHN
 Jacob 588
SCHLOTTERBECK
 331
SCHRUMM
 Charles 581
 Schrumm's Mill 582
SCHULTICE
 (SCHULTHEISS)
 Adam 274
SCHWENDEMAN
 Andrew 632
SCISSON
 Lewis E 307
SEACORD
 D 312
 David 312
SHALDON
 Edward 738
SHEPHERD
 56
 Col. Enoch, see Page
 Laura 544 d
 Lorena 544 d
 Rhoda 407
SHEPPARD
 157
SHERFICK
 (SCHERLICK)
 Frederick 316
SHIERS (SHIRES)
 George 301
 Robert 301
SHINER
 Wm. 58
SHIPTON
 William 271
SISSON
 Lewis E 307
SKINNER
 Wm. 58
SKIPTON
 William 271
SLATER(S)
 James W 325
SLOBOHN(M)
 Henry 289
 John H 289
SLOTTERBECK
 (SLOTTERBACK)
 Henry 331
 Joseph 331
SLUMP
 John 302
SPAYERMAN
 John 325
SPEARMAN
 John 325
SPENCER
 Lilly Martin, see Page
SPROAT
 Miss 462
STARMAN
 Jonathan 331
STEBER
 (STEEBER)
 Adam 328
STICKRATH
 (STICKROD)
 Lewis 316
 Paul 317
STILT
 Jacob 302
STITTS
 Jacob 302
STOFFEL
 (STOFUL)
 John 307
STONEMAN
 John 331
STRAHL
 Joseph 309
 Joseph S 297
 William 309
STROHL
 (see STRAHL)
STUFFLEBEAM
 Calvin 302
STUFFLEDOM
 Calvin 302
STUMP(F)
 John 302, 321
 L 302
STY(N)ER
 Wm H 307
SULLIVAN
 Charles, see Page
 Symrills Ferry 625
TAYLOR
 Lois (Louise) 639
 Maria 566
TEMPLETON
 George 657
THOMAS
 Ruse (Reese) 584
THORNILEY
 Capt. John 141
TICE
 Jacob 297
 Philip B 297
TILE
 Henry 308
TIMBERLAKE
 Thomas 261
TISE
 see TICE TOLFARD
 D W 388
TRACHEL
 (Troetschel)
 Walter 319
TRUE
 Mrs. Jabez, see
 Mills, Mrs.
TUFFER
 Judge 358
TUMBERLAKE
 Thomas 261
TUPPER
 Judge 358
 Maj. Anselm 419, see Page
 Bethia Glysson 406
TURDER
 (TURNER)
 George Butler 302
TURRILL
 William 321
TWIGGS
 Willard, see Page
TYRREL
 William 321
VanCLIEF(P)
 Peter 541
VanGILDEN(R)
 George H 267
VARNUM
 Gen. James Mitchell, see Page
VOSHEL
 James 259
VOTIAL
 James 259
WAKEFIELD
 Rev. William 390-1, 410
WALTER
 Dr. D (Z D) 125
WARD
 Daniel 582
 David 582
WARNER
 A J 370
 J A 370
Watertown Town- ship 99, 109
WEBER
 Andrew 52
WEBSTER
 Andrew 52
 Dorothea 482
WEHERS
 (WEHRS)
 George 305
WELK
 William 305
WELKING
 Philip 309
WELLBROOK
 Henry 307
WELLS
 Miss D T 395
 William 305
WENDELKER
 Henry 151
WENDELKIN
 Martin 182
WENDEKEN
 Henry W 309
WENDEKIN
 Henry 305
 John 305
 Martin 305
WENTELKER
 John 372
WHARFF
 Oliver 583
WHEATSTONE
 (WHETSTONE)
 Isaac 317
 Joseph 317
WHILLESEY
 (Whittlesey)
 William Beale 305
WHISSEN
 (WHISTON)
 Amos A 325
WHITE
 Major Haffield
 (Hoffield) 26
 Martha 665
WICKAFIELD
 Rev Mr 410
WICKFIELD
 Rev Wm 390-1
WILKING
 Philip 309
Wingate's Run 704
Winget(t)'s Run 704
WOOD(W)ARD
 Elenor 609
 Elizabeth 609
 Molly 609
 Penelope 609
WOOSTER
 Jacob 261
Wooster Twp 99
WORSTALL
 (WORSTELL)
 George 325
WOSTER
 Jacob 261
WYE
 Horace 67
ZIMMER
 Albert L 686
 C W 686
 Jacob 686
 Nettie 686
 Theobald 686

Errata and Addenda

See Index Page 778

- 10 Boquet should be spelled Bouquet (also on pages 18 & 19)
Col 1, 1. 8 — should be Shawnees
- 18 Col 2, footnote has no *
- 26 Col 1, 1. 5 from bot. Major Hafffield White, not Hofffield
- 35 Col 2, 1. 19 Muskingum not Murkingum
- 45 Col 2, 1. 20 from top — The New England Ohio Company is usually referred to as the Ohio Company of Associates. It is to be differentiated from the Colonial Ohio Land Co. (see p. 17).
Col 2, 1. 15 from bot., Danvers should be Ipswich (now Hamilton, Mass.)
- 46 Col 1, 1. 4 from top. Lincoln's Inn on the Lanterdale Creek — Most sources say that Putnam joined the party at Swatara Creek, probably at Swatara Station, Lebanon Co., Pa.
- 47 Col 2, fn. 1. 3 probably should be Major Goodale, not Goodall
- 48 List of the "48", Col 2, Ebenezer Corry should be Cory; Isaac Dodge should be Israel Dodge. Add the following two names: Flint, Hezekiah, Moulton, Edmond, making 47 names listed instead of 45. Col. R. J. Meigs was the 48th member, arriving by land a few days later (see p. 47, Col 2 fn.)
- 50 Col 2, 1. 10 Campus Martius; Col 2, 2nd para. 1.10 verdure-clad
- 52 Col 2, 1. 12 from bot. Andrew Webster, not Weber
- 56 Col 1, 1. 6 from top — Shepherd — The various spellings of this family are listed only under Shepherd and Sheppard in the added index.
- 58 Col 1 of Col 1, 1. 13 Leavens, Joseph; Col 2 of col. 1 1. 14 Leavens, John, not Leaveus
Col 1 of Col 2, 1. 8 Chapman, Joseph, not Chopman
Col 2 of Col 1, Shiner is Skinner, Wm.
Col 1, 1. 24 from top, Oaks should be Oakes
Col 3, 1. 14 from bot. Joseph Rogers is Capt. Joseph Rodgers
Col 3, 1. 25 from bot. Coggsell Olney, variously Coggeshall Olney
- 61 Col 2, 1. 13 from bot. Pottawatomes
- 64 Col 2, 1. 14 Jervis Cutler not Custer
- 66 Col 1, middle — Asa and Eleazer Ballard, not Bullard
- 67 Col 2, last line of footnote, Horace Nye not Wye
- 69 Col 2, 1. 10 Captain
- 71 Table of Contents, 1. 10 should be James Kelley, not Jos.
- 73 Col 2, 1. 5 pail in hand
- 75 Col 2, 1. 11 "them urder" should be "the murder"
- 79 Col 2, middle — Mr. Leavus, should be Leavens
Col 2, 1. 8 from bot. change to Leavens
- 81 Col 1, 1. 19 from bot. — Mrs. Putnam's culinary — This refers to Lucy nee Putnam, Mrs. Major Ezra Putnam.
- 89 Col 1, 1. 14 from bot. Devol's Island. It appears that already before the settlement in 1788 it was known as Duvall's Island, and after Hamilton Kerr built his cabin on the island in 1787 it took his name. It is still frequently referred to as Kerr's Island (see Index reference).
- 98 Bot. fn. — Thaddeus Harris, not Thaddeu
- 99 Col 2 — note: In 1805 Watertown Twp. did not exist. It was created in 1806 and in fact was then called Wooster. The name was changed to Watertown in 1824.
- 109 Col 1, 1. 7 and 8 from bot. — refers to Watertown and Roxbury being created in 1805. See note immediately above.
Col 1, 1. 13. Newport should read Newtown or Newton Twp.
- 110 Col 1, 1. 10 from bot. — Sampson Cole, not Samson
- 114 Col 1 at bot. Sampson Cole, not Samson
- 115 Col 2, Parsons' father-in-law was Richard Mather not Mathews

(General Index Begins Page 740)

- 117 Col 1, 1. 8 from bot. should be Cynthia Rouse, not Rowe
- 120 Col 2, 1. 21 from bot. should be Col. David Barber, not Barker
- 122 Col 1, 1. 20 from bot — end of line needs hyphen "as--"
- 123 Col 2, 1. 8 should be John M. not John T. Guitteau
- 125 Col 1, 14 from bot. is Dr. Z. D. Walter, not Dr. D.
Col 2, 1. 12 and 13 David Green should be Davis Green
- 137 Col 1, beginning of Journal — Dolonel Davis, should be Colonel
- 139 Col 1, 1. 25 from bot. John Ridingour, probably Ridenour
- 141 Col 1, 1. 17 from bottom — change to a9
Col 1, 1. 34 from bot. Gersham Flagg. This is Gershom James Flagg who successively mar. sisters Margaret and Eliza Ann Cisler. His sister Sarah Flagg mar. Mariner Rood.
Col 2, 1. 12 from bot., Capt. John Thorniley was married in 1802 to Mary Compton
- 144 Col 2, 1. 13 Americans all
- 147 Col 2, 1. 14 is Melvin Clarke not Melton
- 151 Col 1, 1. 25 from top — Henry Wendelker is Wendelken
- 152 Col 2, toward middle — Quadranaou not Quadranaon
- 157 Sheppard — see entry for 56 Col 1, 1. 6 above.
- 164 Col 2, under Wash. Co. Militia — remove comma between Mills Kendrick
- 182 Col 1, 1. 10 from bot. of text — Martin Wendelkin is Wendelken
- 256 Asbeensheet, Daniel is Espenschied (Asbeensheet, probably an attempt to anglicize, and may have so appeared in the War Records?)
Burtis, John is Burris
- 257 Cutherwood, William is Catherwood
Denwell, Martin is Penwell
Henager, Charles; William H; Herman, is Henniger
- 258 McKenny, James is McKenna.
- 259 Votial, James is Voshel
- 260 Carmical, James is Carmichael
Col 2, 11. 11 & 13 from top. Gerrez— It is Didier (II) and Lafayette Gevrez.
Groselas, Jacob is Grosklos (so spelled today, probably Grosscloss earlier)
- 261 Tumberlake, Thomas is Timberlake
Woster, Jacob is Wooster
- 262 Coop, Benjamin is Corp.
- 265 Bodkin, Wm. Wallace is Botkin
Blow, John is Blough
- 266 Mitstead, Isaac is Millstead
- 267 VanGilden, George H. is VanGilder
- 268 Burg, George W. is Burge
- 269 Mellow, Samuel is Mellon Plan, Trueman E. is Place
Col 2, 1. 5 from bot. Joseph Ritenour, probably Ridenour
- 271 Shipton, William is Skipton
- 272 Double, Edward is Doudle
- 273 M'Namery, William is McNamara
- 274 Kurbs, Leonard is Kerps
Schultice, Adam is Schultheiss
- 275 Beegle, Daniel M. is Beagle
- 276 Deegan, William C. is Dugan
Edgill, John is Edgell
- Eoffle, Lander; Marion; Sardine; Hiram is Eoff
- 277 Hessam, Samuel T. is Hesson
Landy, Alvy Wm. is Lundy, Alva Wm.
- 278 Nenn family name. (also refer to Nine on p. 312).
George Nenn on p. 278 and George Nine on p. 312 appear to be one and the same person. Jonas, George and John Nenn on p. 278 evidently are Neun. The name Nine on p. 312 is the anglicized version of Neun
Pan, James H. is Parr
- 279 Rienict, Gearhard C. is Rientz

- 280 Beagal, Milton is Beagle
 Beagal, Jeremiah is Beagle
 Bealour, James is Beabout
- 281 Heinselm, Christian; Martin; Jacob is Heinzelman
 Greenback, William is Greenbank
- 284 Draper, Adam is Draher
 Evilsiser, Samuel; Jonathan; Josiah is Evilsizer
- 286 Abbest, William Thompson is Ables
- 287 Donthitt, William is Douthitt
 Gatchett, John Barnes is Getchell (Gitchell)
- 288 Lamington, Josiah B. is Lenington
 McAfflee, Joseph Francis; Thomas is McAfee
 Mirach, William; Garrison is Miracle
 McPeck, Lemuel is McPeek
 Mossbury, William; William A. is Mossburgh
- 289 Slobohn, Henry; John H. is Slobohm
- 290 Denbon, Elisha; Thomas is Denbow
- 291 Jay, George is Joy
 Kinard I. is Rinard
 Mulinex, David B.; John is Mullenix
 Rew, David is Rees
- 293 Coraig, George is Craig
 Henrehan, James is Henderhan
- 294 Sawers, George W. is Sarver
- 295 Brickwady, Jacob is Brickwede
- 296 Henrich, John is Henricle
 Merwin, Lewis P. is Mervin
- 297 Strohl, Joseph S. is Strahl
 Tise, Philip B.; Jacob is Tice
- 298 Aplin, Joseph is Applin
 Bordman, Frederick is Bodmar
- 299 Getth, Henry; Michael is Goettle
 Geer, Peter is Gear
- 300 Jams, Hiram is Ijams
 Marwin, John is probably Marvin
- 301 McManns, Michael is McManus
- 302 Shires, Robert; George is Shiers
 Slump, John is Stumpf
 Stilt, Jacob is Stitts
 Stuffedom, Calvin is Stufflebeam
 Stump, L. is Stumpf
 Turder, George Butler is Turner
- 303 Abendshau, Jacob is Abendschoen
 Hoberling, Jacob is Haberling
- 304 McGin, Alexander C. is McGirr
- 305 Wehers, George is Wehrs
 Welk, William is Wells
 Col. 1 — Henry, John and Martin Wendlekin are Wendelken
 Whillesey, William Beale is Whittlesay
- 306 Coomer, Henry is Coombs
 Gaddle, Jacob is Goettle
 Kasper, Krus is Kraus, Casper
 Merabin, L. R. is Miraben
 Misenhelder, William is Meisenhelder
- 307 Petre, Charles; Frederick is Petrie
 Scisson, Lewis E. is Sisson
 Stoful, John is Stoffel
 Styner, Wm. H. is Styer, Wm. H.
 Wellbrook, Henry — died 1862 not 1864
- 308 Bey, Frederick is Bay
 Deeker, John is Decker
 Tile, Henry is File
- 309 Strohl, William; Joseph is Strahl
 Welking, Philip is Wilking
 Adkins — probably Adkins, Amos 7th Cav., Co. H.
 Col. 2 — Henry W. Wendleken is Wendelken.
- 310 Bobb, Reese Smith is Babb
 Batelle, Charles D. is Battelle
 Blakely, Lewis; William Hervy; Andrew S is Blakeslee
 Chapeell, Conrad is Chappell
 Dolson, Emanuel is Dotson
 Dowens, George is Downs
 Elson, Lewis is Elston (per 1860 Federal Census)
- 311 Middleswartz, George; H. F. is Middleswart
- 312 Nine, Jacob; Lewis; George is Neun
 Nolan, Philip is Noland
 O'Blenas, Henry and Abram Guyton is O'Bleness
 O'Shurn, Ezra J is Osborn
- Middleswartz, N is Middleswart
 Seacord, D. is Seacord, David 148 Inf., Co. G.
 313 Berfield, Humphrey is Barefield (per 1850 Census),
 (1860 Census says Bearfield)
- 314 Baesshar, Christian is Boesharr (per 1860 Census)
- 315 Fantz, Frederick is Fautz
- 316 McKinsey is Aaron J.
 Munnell, George is Munnell
 Stickrod, Lewis is Stickrath
 Sherlick, Frederick is Sherfick
 Col. 2 middle — Sankford is Sanford
- 317 Wheatstone, Isaac and Joseph is Whetstone
 Bodman, Frederick is Bodmar
 Stickrod, Paul is Stickrath
- 318 McAffle, Henry is McAfee (McAfee)
 O'Hern, James is O'Herron
 Rehmler, John is Remela (1860 Census) — It so appears twice in the 1860 Census. On tombstones most often Remmele.
 Schlauback, Conrad is Schlaubach
 Roesh, John is Roush
- 319 Froochel, Walter is Tratchel — In 1860 Census it's Trotchel. Tombstones at times give Troetschel
 Ingram, Thomas M. is Ingraham — so in 1860 Census
- 321 Stump, John is on p. 302, errata. This was given as Stumpf. 1860 Census gives Stumpf.
 Tyrell, William is Turrill
 Bolun, Daniel is Bolen
- 322 Flag, Luther is Flagg
 Gliddons, James L. is Glidden
- 323 Keghoe, J. is Reyhoe(?), see 324
 Langhery, Thornton is Laughery
- 324 Nickel, William; James is Nichols
 Reyhoe, James F. — evidently the same person as J.
 Keghoe on p. 323
- 325 Slaters, James W. is Slater
 Spayerman, John is Spearman
 Whissen, Amos A. is Whiston
 Worstall, George is Worstell
- 326 Dauley, Hiel is Danley
- 327 Gilmore, William W. is Gilmore
 Gilmoor, Cromwell is Gilmore
 Hootsel, Joseph; Peter; John; Frank; George; William is Hutzel
 Micham, William M. is Mitchem
- 328 Moliney, Reuben is Mahoney
 Pete, Philip is Peters
 Steber, Adam is Steeber
- 329 Carwee, Seneca is Cowee
- 330 Hacker, William is Hecker
 Lindy, H. H. I. is Lundy
 Marsher, Daniel P. and Samuel F. is Mosher — so in 1860 Census.
 Moshier, Daniel — probably the same as Mosher above.
- 331 Moshier, Samuel T. — probably the same as Mosher on 330.
 Rester, Aaron is Kester
 Slotterback, Henry and Joseph is Slotterbeck.
 Perhaps spelled Schlotterbeck at one time
 Starman, Jonathan — evidently the same entry as for Stoneman, John
- 340 Col. 2, 1. 10 from bot. Belpre not Belper
- 347 Col. 2, 1. 14 from bot. Sampson Cole, Luther Edgerton — not Samson nor Edgerton
 Col. 2, 1. 29 from top, Oaks should be Oakes
- 355 Col. 2, section "Name" 1. 14 not 1878 but 1788
- 357 Col. 2, 1. 16 Rev. William Breck should be Rev. Daniel
 Breck
- 358 Col. 1, under "Pall Holders" — is Judge Tupper not Tuffer
- 363 Col. 1, 1. 7 from bot. is Edmond, not Edward Moulton
 Col. 2, 1. 6 from top — John and Peter Nyghswonger, hunters and rangers. The early spelling of the name was altered to Nighswonger, Nieswanger, Nisewonger, Niswonger. The later is the one most commonly used today. Col. John (1754-1821), one time resident of Winchester, Va., served in the Rev. War and was in the Battle of Point Pleasant, Oct. 1774.

- During the Indian War that afflicted the Marietta Settlement the Nyghswongers lived within the complex of Picketed Point (Peter and family were in Blockhouse No. 4). Col. John, according to a dislocated tombstone, died in Meigs County. After the stockade confinement at Marietta, Peter likewise went to Meigs Co. and settled at "Old Town," Lebanon Twp. (See Hildreth: PIONEER HISTORY, pp. 330-1) Finding things too "crowded" he removed his family purportedly to the wilds of southern Illinois. There is a family burying ground near Sparland, Marshall Co., Illinois, where the earliest member interred is Lewis Cass Nyghswonger. According to Wayne Buck of Washburn, Illinois, a History of Marshall County refers to a Solomon Nighswonger (b. in W. Va., 1815), as an early resident. He had a brother, Peter, who moved to Davis Co., Mo. The last legal record in Washington Co., O., in which Peter Nighswonger figures is an "Indenture of Lease" (Vol. 11: 337), between himself and Henry H. Scheffelin, a druggist of New York City, dated 18 March 1812. At that time Peter Nighswonger is listed as being of Letart Twp., County of Gallia. Since the latter county was erected in 1803 and Meigs in 1819, additional information may be gleaned from their records.—Reference is made to Jane Kerr, wife of Peter Nyghswonger. There was in fact a double alliance with the Kerr family. Hamilton Kerr, son of Matthew, married Sukey Nyghswonger in 1793.
- Col. 2, 1. 15 from bot. John Mathews — "He (Capt. Abel) was the father of John Mathews, of whom much is said in this volume." This is an error. The John "of whom much is said," was a son of Daniel and Huldah (Putnam) Mathews and was a nephew of Gen. Rufus Putnam (see p. 25 fn.) John Mathews (1765-1828) mar. 1796 to Sarah Woodbridge (dau. of Dudley Woodbridge Sr. and Lucy Backus). He later removed to Putnam (Zanesville), Ohio.
- 366 Col. 2, last paragraph & top of 367—Jonathan Crane (Crain) is Cram
- 367 Col. 1, 1. 10 from bot. Dr. Regnier not Rignier
Col. 2, 1. 24 Abner L. Guiteau not Gitto
Col. 2, lines 10 & 9 bot. J.D. Otterbein not Otterbin
- 368 Col. 2, 1. 22 Moses McFarland, not McFarlan
Col. 2, 1. 7 above "Photography" Charles Biszantz, not Bizant
- 369 Col. 1, 1. 7 from bot. James Ferguson not Furgason
Col. 1, line at bot. Mr. Meister not Meiser
Col. 2, 1. 10 from bot. is Griffin Greene, not Green
- 370 Col. 2, 1. 6 above "Marietta Foundry" is A.J. Warner, not J.A.
- 372 Col. 1, 1. 5 from bot. John Wentelker is Wendelken
Col. 2, 1. 15 is Greene Str. not Green
Col. 2, 1. 4 under "Smaller Manuf." John Muisenhelder, the name is Meisenhelder
- 373 Col. 1, 1. 4 from bot. George W. Henderson, not George
- 374 Col. 2, 1. 19 from bot. Greene Str., not Green
Col. 1, 1. 7 above "Capital Stock"—Greene Str., not Green
- 376 Col. 2 bot. — This was Whittington Williams Whitney McGrath (d. 1813). His wife was Mary Corner.
- 378 Col. 2, 1. 22 from bot. William Knox, not William
- 380 Col. 2, 1. 22, it is Rev. Daniel Breck, not Wm. Breck. Note: William Breck is on p. 93, 1. 14 as a shareholder. May's Journal for Sunday, July 20, 1788, reads in part — "at 11 o'clock Mr. Daniel Breck — began the sabbath exercises — by singing, praying, and preaching . . . the place was our Bowry; on the bank directly over my ship. . . Mr. B. made out pretty well — the singing excellent . . . Billings to perfection . . ." Again May's Journal Thursday, April 23, 1789 . . . at half past seven in the morning I left Boston in Co. with Mr. Wm. Breck on a Tour to Marietta and Kentucky in the Ohio Country." Mrs. May's diary under that date: "At 7 o'clock Mr. May and Mr. Breck set out on their tour to the Western Territory, in tolerable health and spirits, and left us rather dull."
- 383 Col. 1, 1. 4 George Askins not Atkins
- 385 Col. 1, 1. 4 Sala not Sula Bosworth
Col. 1, 1. 6 is G.H. Eells not Eels
- 387 Col. 1, lines 23, 27, not Dr. Thomas Heuton but Henton
Col. 2, lines 22 & 24 from bot. John K. & A. V. D. Jolim should be Joline
- 388 Col. 1, lines 19-0 from top — D. W. Tolfard — This was Rev. David W. Tolford who also conducted St. John's Female College.
- 390 Col. 2, lines 9, 18 & 19 from bot. Rev. William Wakefield not Wickefield
- 391 Col. 1, 1. 8 Rev. William Wakefield, not Wickefield
- 394 Col. 2, mid. Elisha Huntington, not Huntingdon
- 395 Col. 1, 11. 17-8 from top — Miss D. T. Wells, now Mrs. D. P. Bosworth. She was Deborah T. Wells (d. 1845), grandmother of Hobart and Welles Bosworth. After her death Daniel Perkins Bosworth, Sr. (d. 1869) married Lucia Ann Wells (1818-1909), as his 4th wife.
- 402 Col. 2, 1. 2 above "College Societies", President
- 405 Col. 2 bot. line Mrs. Mills — At top of page 406 Mrs. Mills is identified as the widow of Charles Mills, an early state representative of Washington County. Mrs. Mills, Sarah nee Boardman (d. 1836, in her 73rd yr.), was Mrs. William Mills. Evidently Mills died about 1811 at Cincinnati. However, Sarah Mills had obtained a divorce from Capt. William. This was the first legal separation, in 1803, under the authorities of the then newly created State of Ohio. One Charles Mills married Sally Nyswonger in 1795 and later resided in Gallia County. Capt. William Mills was the father of Charles, Henry, Sarah (Mrs. Jonathan Guiteau, d. 1823) and of Col. John, so styled.
- 406 Col. 1, 1. 22 from bot. On p. 365, Col. 2, 1. 12 from bot. it says of Gen. Edward White Tupper, "His wife was Berthia, daughter of William Pitt Putnam . . ." In the study of Thomas Tupper and His Descendants (1945), she appears as Bethia Scarborough (Gleason). She was a daughter of a Dr. Gleason and mar. 1st Dr. Wm. Pitt Putnam. Consequently, when she mar. Tupper she was Putnam's widow, not his daughter.
- 407 Col. 1, 1. 22 from bot. improvements
Col. 2, 11. 9 & 11 from bot. Rhoda Shepard is Rhoda Shepherd. She was a niece of Gen. William Shepherd.
- 410 Col. 1, 1. 7 from bot. Rev. Mr. Wakefield not Wickfield
Col. 2, 1. 10 from bot. G. M. P. is Dr. Giles S. B. Hempstead
- 412 Col. 1, 1. 5 is Dr. Simeon D. Hart, not Simon
- 414 Col. 1, 1. 13 from bot. is Isaac Maxon, not Moxon
- 419 Col. 1, 1. 17 from bot. Munsell & Buell's, not Numsell
Col. 1, 1. 12 from bot. Anselm Tupper, not Auselm
- 422 Col. 1, in "Harmar Lodge" lines 10 & 16 is Emil Michaelis, not Michelis
- 424 Col. 1, 1. 25 The flood of 1872 should be 1772
- 426 Col. 2, 1. 9 from bot. Edmond Moulton, not Edmund
- 427 Col. 2, 2nd paragraph of list of dead, 1. 4 down D. Protsman, not Protsam
- 428 Col. 1, very top Luther Edgerton, not Edgarton
Col. 1, 11. 18-9 from top — Lucretia Saltonstall was Lucretia Lattimore, wife of Capt. Nathaniel Saltonstall, maternal grandfather of Dr. Giles S. B. Hempstead.
Col. 1. 11. 19-0 from top — Lydia McKawen. The family name was spelled variously: McKowan, McCune, McKewne, McKewen. She was Lydia Moulton and mar. three times: Dr. Wm. B. Leonard 1802, James Fulton 1807, Charles McKewne 1811. The Moultons were silver and goldsmiths.
- 431 Col. 1, small print section 1. 6 1st word As not Al
- 445 Col. 2, lines 7, 11— Luther Edgerton not Edgarton
- 462 Col. 1, 1. 2 from top — Miss Sproat — Col. Sproat's daughter was Sarah Whipple Sproat. The Sibleys were significant at Detroit, along the Lewis Cass, William Woodbridge and others.
- 464 Col. 2 — end of Mary Bird Lake write-up — she died 27 April 1796.
- 470 Col. 1, R. J. Meigs, Jr. was 4th Governor of Ohio
- 478a Col. 2, 1. 7 from bot. Jervney is Charles W. Jenvey

- 482 Col. 2, 1. 12 from top — Dorothea Webster is Dorothy Webster
 499 col. 2, 1. 15 from bot. is spring of 1789
 500 Col. 1, 1. 10 Lucy (Byington) Dana, not Licia — tombstone in Rockland cemetery, Belpre, shows Lucy Col. 1, 11. 18-9 from top — Bathsheba Rouse is credited with being the first lady to teach in the N. W. Terr. She mar. Richard Greene (of Griffin, Sr.)
 501 Col. 1, 1. 9 from bot. Cincinnati
 502 Col. 1, 1. 6 and 1. 8 "Family of Col. Daniel Bent". This should read "Family of Col. Silas Bent, Sr." Line 8 is Silas Jr. The share was drawn in the name of Silas Sr.
 503 Col. 2, para. on John Breck — "his father was a prominent member of the Ohio Co. He preached the first sermon in the settlement." Wm. & Rev. Daniel Breck were probably brothers. Wm. was the "prominent member." Rev. Daniel was the one who "preached the first sermon." It is not known who the father of John was.
 504 Col. 2, 1. 1 "done did" should perhaps read "did duty"
 506 Col. 1, 1. 6 from top. Azubah Durham is Azubah Dunham. Moreover, Joseph did not mar. Azubah, but Bathsheba Dunham, 21 Aug. 1797.
 510 Col. 1, 1. 7 Daniel Dunham not Durham
 Col. 1, 1. 17 from bot. Benoni Hurlburt — This is Benoni Prettyman Hurlburt (1735-1791), whose murder is recorded on p. 77. His wife Phebe (1747-1816) is buried in the Stokley Cem., near Roseville, O. Their daughter Abigail mar. David Stokley.
 518 Col. 2, 1. 5 from bot. Rev. Robert Manley, not Marley
 530 Col. 2, 1. 15 from bot. water
 531 Col. 1, 1. 27 from top. Jarvis Cutter is Jervis Cutler.
 532 Col. 2, 1. 6 from bot. of Section "The Plain", Ephraim Cutler not Cutter
 537 Col. 2, 1. 2 from bot. — Benjamin Knott probably should be Benj. Nott, as per 1810 Federal Census of Wash. Co.
 539 Col. 1, lines 9 & 10, Isaac Childs "took up" with a strolling woman. She was Elizabeth Pope, mar. 25 Feb. 1821
 540 Col. 2, E. Cutler not Cutter
 541 Col. 1, 1. 19 Peter VanClief not VanCliep
 544d Col. 2, 1. 5 from top — Laura Shepard is Lorena Shepherd
 550 Col. 1, 1. 1 & footnote. The name Devol was not sometimes spelled Duvall. The Devols came to Wash. Co. from New England, while Maryland was the seat of the Duvall families. The footnote merely tangles two separate families. Devol at times was spelled DeVol.
 551 Col. 2, 1. 25 Sarah Corner, not Comer
 558 Col. 1, 1. 8 from bot. is William Bond. Col. 1 last line is William Bion. Col. 2 middle is William (II) and represents another Mason family.
 565 Col. 1, 1. 3 from bot. Benjamin and Sarah Raser, should be Benj. Racer and Susannah Holdren
 566 Col. 2, 1. 14 should read "He (Wm. Dana II) was married three times: 1. Polly Foster. 2. Dorcas Bent. 3. Maria (Taylor) Guitteau.
 Col. 2, 1. 27 from top — Melvina Clark is Melvin Clarke
 567 Col. 2, 1. 2 from top. Joseph and Grace Holden are Joseph and Grace (Coleman) Holdren
 581 Col. 1, 1. 15 from bot. Dudley Davis not Davies
 Col. 2, 1. 2 from bot., not Louisa Jackson. Samuel Fulton mar. Rhuama Jackson
 Col. 1, 1. 10 from bot. Charles Schrumm is Schramm
 582 Col. 2, 1. 27 from top — Schrumm's Mill is Schramm's Mill
 Col. 2, 1. 23 is Harrietsville
 Col. 2, 1. 30 is David Ward not Daniel
 583 Col. 1, 1. 19 "A man by the name of Babson", should read "a man by the name of Oliver Wharff". He was a stepson of Samuel Babson.
 Col. 2, 1. 7 is her father, not his
 Col. 1, bot. 1. Judso H. Hovey is Judson H.
 584 Col. 1, 1. 26 Mary Kilthary is Mary Kathary
 Col. 1, 1. 32 is Lewis Pfaff, not Plaff
 Salem Twp. Section Col. 2 top, William Kelly, Jr. married Charlotte Hull, not Hall.
 Col. 2, bot. 1. — Ruse Thomas is Reese Thomas. His wife Angenora (dau. of Daniel Tarr Babson and Lydia Porter Stanley).
 586 Col. 1, 1. 2 from bot. is kinsfolk
 588 Col. 2, 1. 13 from top — Schlohn, probably Jacob Schilb (b. ca. 1797, Bavaria)
 589 Col. 1, Almond Cluss is Almon Close
 Col. 1, 1. 7 from bot. Anna Doan (not clearly printed in original copy).
 Col. 2, 1. 9 not Felix Mayer but Felix Magee. He died 1873 aged 106.
 Col. 2, 1. 17 — the burying place and/or church called Mt. Ephraim.
 599 Col. 2, 1. 20 from bot. Lease Run is Leath's Run
 603 Col. 1, 1. 4 from bot. Lease Run is Leath's Run
 608 Col. 1, 11. 7 & 8 from top. Mary (Broadhurst) Corner Stone was first the wife of William Corner (1761-1795). They had seven children, among whom was George, p. 735.
 609 Col. 1, last para. to bot. — This section alone is such a grand tangle that it brings one to a sharp halt. First, the family name is presented incorrectly as Matthers. It was Mathews. Consequently, the reader can identify all the members of this family correctly. Second, the names of the various wives also seem to be incorrect. Capt. Abel Mathews, Jr. (1748-1822) it appears was twice married (1) Eunice Pardee and (2) Molly Woodards in 1806 (not Elizabeth). Her family name, at times Woodard, usually is spelled Woodward. Philo mar. Elenor Woodward of Union Twp. in 1814, not Penelope per the mar. record.
 612 Col. 2, 1. 19 from bot. Mrs. Phoebe Green was Phoebe Canfield. She mar. 1st Leonard Green, 22 Jan. 1845.
 613 Col. 2, 1. 25 from top (For other listings see Authors & Artists in the Index proper.) — The listing in the index for authors constitutes the major known writers that cover the span of this history. Page, for example, self-styled "High Priest of Nature," has been included though no clear reference is given for him. He may be referred to on p. 613, or perhaps the reference is to his nephew Henry Page. Another, John Henton Carter (1832-1910), "Commodore Rolling Pin," spent years on riverboats, author of Duck Creek Ballads and an assortment of almanacs, etc. His sister, Jane, was the second wife of Edward Postlethwayt Page. "Governor" John Greiner, later of Zanesville, a Whig newspaper editor, was a political balladeer. The entries for Artists also includes some not cited in the text (Mowery and Spencer), but who figure within the span of this history.
 615 Col. 2, 1. 14 from bot. Maxwell's Academy was called Oak Hill Academy
 625 Col. 1, 1. 1 — Symrills Ferry — Of various spellings, Sumrill's Ferry seems most logical.
 626 Col. 1, 11. 15-6 from top — Kyman and Tuman R. are Lyman and Luman R. Laflin
 630 Col. 2, end of cemeteries, not Eva Merae but Ave Maria
 632 Col. 2 1. 20 from top — Schemdernan in Andreas (Andrew) Schwendenman (1818-1890), born in the Grand Duchy of Baden; mar. Elizabeth Brooker (1822-1893).
 635 Col. 1, lines 16-7 from bot. Capt. Willard Green, not Wm.
 636 Col. 2, 1. 26 from top — Polly Leah Atwood — Her name was Leah Atwood.
 Col. 2, 1. 9 from bot. Judge Cutler not Cutter
 636b Col. 1, 1. 2 from bot. not Daniel U. but Daniel Wayland Dye
 638 Col. 2, 1. 20 from bot. Coffman, Jane Miller. She was Jane Mellor.
 639 Col. 1, 1. 14 from top — Under the heading of Miller in the Index p. 763 (and/or the text itself), there are various persons whose name originally was Mellor. One such instance at least is the entry for George (p. 639). Originally his name was George Mellor (son of - Samuel and Mary nee Corner). By referring to p. 639 the reader can readily untangle this family.

- 647 Col. 1, 1. 18 is Lois Taylor, not Louise
- 647 Col. 1, 1. 8 from top — Oak Hill Cem. is Oak Grove
- 647 Col. 2, 1. 7 Nogletown not Nozletown
- 649 Col. 1, 1. 19 Lucy Angeline Dunham last name should be Delano
- 656 Col. 1, 1. 11 from bot. is James Cadwell, not John
- 657 Col. 2, 1. 12 George Templeton, not George
- 659 Col. 2, 1. 10 eight children
- 662 Col. 1, Children's Home, 1. 3. Morse Run/Moss Run. Morse Run was earlier name.
- 665 Col. 2, para. beg. "In 1832", 1. 7 Moses A. Malster mar. Martha White 19 Nov. 1845.
- 666 Col. 1, 1. 2 from bot. Annie Hougling is Houghland
- 666 Col. 2, 1. 21 from top. Mary Densmore is Dunsmore
- 667 Col. 1, 1. 23 from bot. David Gard's wife, Mary Hiett dau. of James & Lucretia (Pugh) Hiett.
- 667 Col. 2, middle, Mary Dauley should be Mary Danley
- 676 Col. 2, 1. 14 from bot. Levi Dains, not Dean
- 680 Col. 2, para. "As an orchard", 1. 4, Levi Dains, not Dean.
- 683 Col. 1, 1. 13 from bot. Didier Gerez — He was Didier (I), father of Theodore Sr. Gevrez is the most common spelling out of a host of varia.
- 683 Col. 1, 1. 12 Daniel Duniheew not Dunchew (so spelled in 1810 Census).
- 686 Col. 1, 1. 33 from top. Mr. Guetteau is Guitteau
- 686 Col. 2, para. 4, Jacob Zimmer. Add at end: Jacob, the first, died in 1880.
- 686 Col. 2, para. 5, Theobald Zimmer — delete last 3 lines of this para. and add: Their only child was Charles William (C.W.) who also lives in Fearing.
- 686 Col. 2, para. 6, C.W. Zimmer — has two children, Nettie and Albert L.
- 688 Col. 1, 1. 18, Mary Goss, not Gross
- 694 Col. 1, 1. 16, 1735 is perhaps 1835
- 694 Col. 1, 1. 9, Mareen Duval not Marion
- 696 Col. 1, 1. 9 from top, Joseph A. Duval is Duvall. The latter seems to be the correct spelling for all members of this family.
- 698 Col. 1, 1. 6, Augustus Hille, not Hill
- 699 Col. 2, 1st l. of fine print, Kinsey D. Jolly, not Kinzer.
- 704 Col. 1, 1. 2 from bot. is Wingett Run, not Wingate's
- 705 Col. 2, 1. 4 Dains' fork, not Dean's
- 707 Col. 2, 5th para., lines 13 & 14, reverse Lewis and Leonard Hamilton; Lewis was in Kansas.
- 716 Col. 2, under "Schools" 1. 4 is Sandusfield
- 723 Bartlett's Academy organized Sept. 1865 not in 1850.
- 732 Col. 1, toward mid., Richard Irwin is Irvine
- 738 Col. 1, 1. 24 from bot. Edward Shaldon is Shelden and applies to all members of this family

